

Dig it!

The effort was there, the results lacking, as MU beat the 'Cats

Sports, page 10

Israeli finance minister meets criticism

By The Associated Press

TEL AVIV, Israel — Israel's frantic pre-devaluation buying spree died down Wednesday, but the finance minister was reported under pressure to resign for his handling of the economic crisis.

Israel radio, Israel television and several newspapers said senior members of the governing Likud bloc were working with top bankers to dump Yoram Aridor in favor of Ezer Weizman, the popular former defense minister.

No one would comment publicly on the delicate issue, but Israel radio quoted a source close to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir as saying he had no intention of dropping ministers from his new government "in the coming weeks."

However, the radio said, Shamir did not rule out changes once his government was stable and firmly in office. Aridor said he did not intend to resign in the face of charges he had mismanaged the economy and lost his credibility.

Two weeks of economic turmoil climaxed Tuesday with a 23 percent devaluation of the Israeli shekel and 50 percent increases in the prices of basic foodstuffs.

Israelis responded by stampeding to grocery stores and electronic goods shops Tuesday in search of items still being sold at pre-devaluation prices. By Wednesday, merchants had raised their prices and there were no bargains left.

The crisis began two weeks ago when the Bank of Israel, the nation's central bank, published figures showing a staggering increase in the foreign debt and trade imbalance this year. The public reacted with a massive dumping of bank stocks, the favorite form of small investment in this country.

Anticipating a devaluation, Israelis changed their money into dollars in such vast quantities that the banks warned they could no longer support their stocks. With a crash appearing imminent, the stock market closed Sunday. It has not reopened.

The devaluation was designed to goad the public into selling its dollars and reinvest in bank stocks. It was also aimed at improving the trade balance by making Israeli exports more attractive on world markets and cooling high Israeli spending on imported goods.

The daily Maariv reported that a random sampling of street opinion showed a sharp prestige drop in Tel Aviv's low-income Hatikva quarter, which until now was strongly pro-Likud.

Stray Cats to entertain on homecoming weekend

By The Collegian Staff

The Stray Cats will be in Manhattan Friday, Nov. 11.

Union Program Council received confirmation by telegram Tuesday that the band will perform during homecoming weekend at Ahearn Field House, Barbara Burke, UPC adviser, said Wednesday.

"We've looked at quite a number of bands since August, but they didn't pan out," Burke said. UPC was able to get the Stray Cats because Manhattan is between two cities in which they will be performing.

"They are playing in New York for 'Saturday Night Live' and their next job is in Oregon," Burke said. "It was just a matter of getting them to stop along the way."

Tickets will be sold in the Union Box Office beginning Saturday, Oct. 22. Ticket prices are $10, $9.50 and $9 for students and $11, $10.50 and $10 for the general public. There is a 20-ticket-per-person limit.

Staff/John Sleser

Improv at noon

Rick Efros, graduate student in education administration and foundations, plays the part of a domineering father as Cham Ferguson, junior in speech, portrays the part of the son that isn't allowed to do anything, during a skit performed by the Complex Improvisational Theatre Wednesday over the lunch hour. The group performed between the Union and Seaton Hall as part of Alcohol Awareness Day.

Kissinger calls for end to Salvadoran abuses

By The Associated Press

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Henry Kissinger warned the government of El Salvador on Wednesday not to let human rights abuses continue while it fights leftist guerrillas.

Apparently referring to a recent resurgence of rightist death squads, the former secretary of state told interim President Alvaro Magana: "The American people must not be asked to choose between security and human rights." The United States is El Salvador's chief backer in its four-year-old war against the rebels.

Kissinger, who arrived in the morning, is heading a bipartisan commission on a six-country tour of Central America to make recommendations on U.S. policy in the region.

In a private meeting in the presidential palace, Kissinger and Magana discussed Central American strife.

Afterward, Kissinger told reporters: "It is imperative to defend these principles of democracy and human rights, to preserve and expand them. And as the American people cannot be asked to choose between the two, the Salvadoran people must not be asked to make such a choice."

Magana said a few words of welcome to the journalists but did not comment on his talk with Kissinger.

After a lull of about two years, two of five known rightist death squads have intensified their activities recently, bombing homes and other buildings and kidnapping and killing several leftists and suspected leftists.

Both the White House and the State Department issued statements last week deploring the violence by the rightist squads, which are widely believed here to work closely with military and security forces under the guise of fighting communism in Central America.

For the past two years, President Reagan has had to certify every six months to Congress that the Salvadoran government is making social and economic reforms and is progressing in eliminating human rights abuses. The certification is required for El Salvador to continue to receive U.S. military aid.

Stephan clears Bell of alleged charges

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — One week after the U.S. Attorney's office closed its books on the case, allegations of influence peddling against Insurance Commissioner Fletcher Bell were dismissed as unsubstantiated by Attorney General Robert Stephan.

"At your request, I have conducted an investigation into alleged violations of state conflict of interest laws by officers and employees of the office of state Insurance Commissioner," Stephan said in a two-page letter to Bell made public Wednesday. "In short, the transactions in question do not constitute a criminal offense under Kansas law."

The accusations were leveled at the six-term insurance commissioner by a former insurance department employee and prompted U.S. Attorney Jim Marquez and the FBI to conduct a seven-month investigation.

The probe attempted to determine whether gratuities from insurance companies affected decisions the department made on rate issues and policy questions in regulating those same firms.

Marquez said last week his inquest found no violations of federal law or the Corrupt Influences Act which prohibits public officials at any level of government from accepting money, gifts or favors in return for special treatment or influence.

Stephan, a Republican, disclosed Wednesday that a similar probe by the Kansas Bureau of Investigation into related charges uncovered no illegal acts and he cleared Bell of any alleged improprieties.

Bell, also a Republican, was accused of illegally obtaining a favorable deal from a Topeka automobile dealer on a three-year-old luxury car that a Topeka insurance executive traded in last summer.

Also, the disgruntled former employee also alleged that payments for meals, tickets to this year's inauguration of state officials and tickets to sporting events were among gifts accepted by department officials.

Groups conduct alcohol awareness programs

By CAROL BELL
Collegian Reporter

If your friend went out and ate a six-pack of green beans every night, would you talk to her?

This is the theme the residence halls are using in a campuswide effort to promote alcohol awareness this week.

The month of October has been designated as Kansas' Alcohol and Other Drug Abuse Awareness month. Student Senate, along with the Association of Residence Halls and Interfraternity Council have deemed the week of Oct. 9-15 Alcohol Awareness Week at K-State.

The residence halls are running programs throughout the week, but the highlight was the Alcohol Awareness Fair coordinated by the Alcohol Abuse Prevention Program Wednesday in the Union.

There were displays and information from various campus organizations as well as other concerned organizations in the Manhattan area.

"We are trying to include both the positive as well as the negative aspects of alcohol," said Elaine Spencer-Carver, director of the alcohol and other drug education services and coordinator of the fair. "There are alternatives to drinking; also information and the facts on drinking and driving."

"There have been fairs of this sort in the past, but not this large."

Non-alcoholic beverages were served as students walked around and looked at the exhibits.

Participating in the fair were the Kansas Highway Patrol with information on the new Driving Under the Influence law, the Riley County Fire Department and Fort Riley Public Safety, which brought the "Convincer," a machine that simulates what an accident would feel like at 20 miles per hour.

Other information about alcoholism, prevention and misuse was presented by area health organizations through pamphlets, posters and displays, including one which showed the effects of alcohol from recognizable liquor bottles.

Coors distributors were there with information on stress, the misuse and abuse of alcohol, and drinking and driving.

"Education and moderation — those are the keys," said Jerry Frakes, general manager of a Junction City distribution company. "I am concerned as much as anyone else, once use becomes abuse, it's all over."

"The residence halls are providing a week full of activities for the students by the students," said Rosanne Proite, assistant director of Housing.

Every evening the food services in the halls are having a "Mocktail Hour," basically cocktails without the alcoholic beverage in them, Proite said.

Each of the halls were asked to sponsor a program dealing with the issue of alcohol. Some of the halls are showing a film, and others are hosting discussion sessions, Proite said.

Edwards Hall is holding a Moonshine Walk Thursday night where they are going out to McIntyre Creek for a short hike, a star-gaze, a fire and some cider. Strong Complex is hosting a non-alcoholic beverage function, and West Hall had a videotape of their big brother floors on Drinking and Dating, Proite said.

Moore Hall is having a test on the effects of alcohol. They will be experimenting with 3.2 beer; measuring its effect on a person's behavior and reaction time, she said.

"Our primary objective is to provide information so people can make responsible decisions," Proite said. "Once the week is over, we want to be able to continue to give information; to supply a steady stream to people."

Local bars toughen lookout for altered ID's

By ANDY OSTMEYER
Staff Writer

The temptation is great, but for many students who are under the age of 21, the consequences of displaying a fake form of identification to enter a private club or buy liquor are not so desirable.

Displaying a fictitious, altered or fraudulent driver's license is a class C misdemeanor and is punishable by one month in jail or a fine of up to $500 or both, said Bill Kennedy, Riley County assistant attorney.

Lending a driver's license to someone who is underage is a class B misdemeanor and the offender can receive a $1,000 fine and six months in jail, he said.

"There is some real intent when you alter a driver's license," Kennedy said, adding that he sees this type of offense about once every two weeks.

Kennedy said he believes that most of the time when a license is altered, it is done on a whim; a person might wonder if he is capable of altering a license and what the possible consequences would be if he tries to use an altered license.

Those who are arrested for the offense usually don't expect to get caught, Kennedy pointed out, adding that one reason that people get caught is that the jobs often look amateurish.

"People get excited and think they can get away with it," he said.

He said people often forget that altering a driver's license is against the law and that they are jeopardizing the liquor license of the establishment they try to get into.

The director of operations for Terry Ray Enterprises, Mike Larimore, said it is their policy to turn over any fake or altered identification to the police, and they usually catch about five people per week with a fake or altered driver's license.

One way they watch for the problem is to check identification at the door, Larimore said.

"It's our fault. We're the ones responsible," said Steve Dunaway, managing partner for Bushwackers, a local club.

Dunaway said some minors are not caught because their fake identification appears realistic.

"We're not beyond making a mistake," he added.

Dunaway said he has occasionally hired people who are under 21 years of age to try and get into his club as a test for his doormen, but said they haven't been successful yet.

Clubs and bars are not the only establishments which encounter customers who try to use fake or altered identifications.

Ed Rickel, owner of Rickel's Retail Liquor store, said the practice is just a part of growing up and that everyone feels they have to try liquor before they are old enough.

He said the store management has the right to hold any license a customer displays if they think it is fake or altered. However, he said they usually just turn the customer away unless they think the driver's license is stolen.

Rickel said minors often claim they don't have their identification with them, yet their billfold is plainly visible in their back pocket when they walk out.

Rickel said he turns away approximately 20 people per week because he is unsure of their age.

"I don't think it is something that is an every-night occurrence," said Don Stehley, owner of Stehley's Retail Liquor store.

He said it is hard to tell whether someone is using a fake driver's license or not, and if the management is not sure, they will ask for an additional piece of identification.

He said the biggest problem for liquor stores is not people who present fake identifications, but people who try to buy liquor without any form of identification.

If a liquor store is caught selling liquor to minors, the Alcohol and Beverage Control Board (ABC) can take some action against them. They can close the store for a period of time, revoke its liquor license, fine the owner or take a combination of these actions.

Bill Strukel, chief enforcement officer of ABC, said that last year there were 97 liquor stores in the state cited for selling to minors, and in approximately 20 to 30 percent of these incidents some type of fictitious identification was used.

He said there were no such statistics about private clubs, but he estimated there were between 15 and 20 clubs cited for permitting minors to enter last year.

"There are some private clubs that willingly serve to minors with wanton disrespect," Strukel said, adding that they often "do it out of greed."

Clubs and liquor stores have to be particularly wary in college towns, he said, because of the large number of customers who may not yet be of age.

He said club and liquor store owners should ask for more than one form of identification if they doubt the validity of the identification presented by the customer because minors usually carry no more than one form of fake identification.

Campus

Peters series to begin today

Patricia Cross, Harvard University educator, will deliver the first "Chester Peters" Lecture today at 3 p.m. in Forum Hall. Cross will discuss higher education in the 1980s.

Regent to speak at Noon

Norman Brandeberry, Board of Regents member, will discuss tuition and other matters of interest to students today at noon in the Cateskeller. Brandeberry's speech is part of the "Let's Talk About It" series sponsored by the Union Program Council.

Boston poet to read in Union

Poet Linda Gregerson of Boston, Mass., will read from her widely acclaimed first collection of poems, "Fire in the Conservatory," today at 4:30 p.m. in Union Room 207.

Horticulture student wins award

A K-State horticulture student won a $200 scholarship from the National Council of Therapy and Rehabilitation through horticulture at the National Convention for Horticulture Therapy at Purdue University Sept. 26 through Sept. 30.

Carla Koehn, fifth-year senior in horticulture therapy, was nominated last spring for the scholarship by her adviser, Richard Manson.

The selection process for the scholarship is based on grade point average, campus involvement and financial need.

Owner of Lindy's answers to arson charges

By The Collegian Staff

A first appearance for the owner of a Manhattan business gutted by fire Oct. 1 was scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in Riley County District Court. A preliminary hearing for a second man charged in the alleged arson fire was set Tuesday for 9 a.m. Nov. 27.

George Arthur Durbin III, 44, 1801 College Ave., was arrested shortly after 11 a.m. Tuesday and charged with aggravated arson in connection with the fire at his business, Lindy's Army and Western Store, 231 Poyntz Ave. He remains free on $25,000 bond. No preliminary hearing had been set for Durbin by late Wednesday afternoon.

Thomas Lynn Pimbley Jr., 34, who police said lived in a rental storage facility on Sixth Street, remained in the Riley County Jail Wednesday in lieu of $50,000 bond on a charge of aggravated arson.

Manhattan Fire Chief Bill Smith said the ongoing investigation of the blaze by the state fire marshal's office was requested by one of the insurance companies handling the case. Smith would not elaborate on earlier reports that the fire was started by a natural gas leak.

"The insurance companies were here in the community and they were aware there was a fire," Smith said. "I assume all responsible parties know about (the fire)."

Durbin owns the business, but not the building in which it was located, Smith said. Sally Schuckman, 2904 Arbor Drive, owns the structure on the southeast corner of Third Street and Poyntz Avenue, he said.

A map of the proposed downtown mall indicates that the building where Lindy's was located would be taken in by the project.

The early-evening blaze forced the evacuation of two adjoining businesses and caused smoke damage to neighboring businesses and apartments. Damage was estimated at $162,000 to the store, other buildings and contents.

Student Senate invites public to hear Regent Brandeberry

By The Collegian Staff

Regent Norman Brandeberry will address Student Senate twice Thursday, first in a reception for him at 6:30 p.m. and again senate's open session period. The reception is open to the public.

In formal business, senate will consider the 1983-84 Final Allocations bill on which six student organizations are requesting funding. In first reading of the bill last week, senators could only ask questions about the recommendations, and this week, they will be able to express their views on the bill before voting.

The Business Council is seeking

$2,300 to help finance the beginning of a College of Business magazine which would be modeled after the Kansas State Engineer magazine. The magazine would be available to students, alumni and interested corporations. Finance committee decided not to make any recommendation without further research.

The Early Childhood Laboratory is seeking $1,158 for salaries, but senate's Finance Committee has only recommended them $888. The Graduate Council is seeking $866.86 to pay an outstanding bill from August. The committee has recommended no funding.

Off-Campus Student Association and Student Governing Association are seeking $517 and $1,535 for advertising costs. The committee recommended that the first group receive $330 and SGA receive the full amount it asked for.

The International Coordinating Council is seeking $414.50 for conference costs, but the committee recommended $369.50.

Several SGA accounts have been recommended to receive funding including the Reserves for Contingencies, $3,863.27; Reserves for Capital Outlay, $5,079; and Reserves for Maintenance of Standing Programs, $2,000.

Campus Bulletin

TODAY

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Suzanne E. Jessup at 10 a.m. in Blumont 368.

INFORMATIONAL MEETING for the UPC Travel Aspen/Snowmass trip is at 7 p.m. in Union 207.

NATIONAL ORGANIZATION FOR WOMEN meets at 7:30 p.m. at 2407 Charolais Lane. All interested persons are welcome.

KSU PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Union 206.

SISTERS OF THE SPHINX meet at 8:30 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

MICROBIOLOGY CLUB meets at 8:45 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

HORTICULTURE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Waters 244.

STUDENT DIETETIC ASSOCIATION meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 204.

ASSOCIATION FOR COMPUTING

MACHINERY meets at 4 p.m. in Union 206. Program topic is "Buying a Micro-Computer: What to Look For, What You Should Know."

SAILING CLUB meets at 8:45 p.m. in Blumont 122.

AICHE meets at 1:30 p.m. in Ackert 120.

HOME EC ED meets in the Justin Hall parking lot at 3:40 p.m. to car pool to the American Institute of Baking for a tour.

SOCIETY OF PROFESSIONAL JOURNALISTS, SIGMA DELTA CHI meets with Lloyd Ballhagen at 5:30 p.m. in the JMC library.

WESTERN OUTPOST

JEAN SALE

501's	16.88
Levi Bootcut	16.64
Lee Straight Leg	15.53
Lee Bootcut	11.50
Wrangler Pro Rodeo	15.53
Womens 501's	20.61
Prewashed 501's	21.60
Lee London Riders	23.38
Ms. Lee St. Leg	19.94

SALE ENDS OCT. 16TH

OLD TOWN MALL

523 S. 17th
539-3132

Thursday

Bocker's
Two

T.N.T.

Tacos "N"

TEQUILA
50¢ TACOS
with drinks
$1.00 Margaritas
4-6 p.m.

RAMADA INN

Fall Fashions . . . for that nip in the air.

Large group of Ladies
Sweaters

Our new Fall fashions are here at Calhoun's. With cold weather near, we have the perfect sweater for those cold days ahead. Any occasion will be perfect with these wool or acrylic blend sweaters. Designed with patterns, trims, solids, or combinations. Available in a variety of colors.
Sizes: S-M-L

25 % off

Prices effective thru Oct. 16th.

Calhoun's
Your Family Clothing Store

CIVIL ENGINEERS . . .

You're Needed All Over the World.

Ask Peace Corps volunteers with degrees in Civil Engineering why they travel half way around the globe to Africa and Asia . . . why they work with water, sanitation, road construction, and structural projects overseas. They'll probably say they want to help people, use their skills, learn a new language, and gain valuable career experience. Ask them why Peace Corps is the toughest job you'll ever love.

Sign up for interview and pick up an application now:
PLACEMENT OFFICE
Wed. & Thurs., Oct. 26 & 27

PEACE CORPS

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-4555. Newsroom phone number is 532-4556, advertising 532-4660.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 100, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.

Editor.....Paul Hanson
Managing Editor.....Sandy Lang
Photography Editor.....Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager.....John McGrath

OCTOBER SALE

10% Off

ALL CORDUROY

Sale includes: blazers, skirts

Slacks, bermudas and dresses

Thursday, Friday,
Saturday Only!

OPEN:
Mon.-Sat. 9:30-5:30
Thurs. til 8:30

Woody's
ladies

1225 Moro
Aggieville

COMING TO LAWRENCE FOR THE GAME THIS WEEKEND? AFTER THE GAME . . .

SEE THE STARS COME OUT

THE UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS
THEATRE PRESENTS

THE ANTA
TOURING COMPANY

IN GEORGE M. COHAN'S
THE TAVERN

8:00 p.m. Saturday, October 15, 1983
Crawton-Preyer Theatre/Murphy Hall
Tickets on sale in the Murphy Hall Box Office
All seats reserved Call 913/864-3982

Public: $8, $6, $4; Special discounts for senior citizens and K-State Students

Partially funded by the Kansas Arts Commission and the KU Student Activity Fee

Support the ANTA Touring Company when it visits KSU to stage Christopher Durang's A HISTORY OF
THE AMERICAN FILM

Levi's

1st Quality

Saddlemans
Boot Cut
Jeans
$13<sup>99</sup>

Recycled
Levi's Jeans
Not 1st
Quality
$9<sup>99</sup>

Recycled
Levi's Cords
Not 1st
Quality
$5<sup>00</sup>

SALE ENDS SUNDAY, OCT. 16, 1983

Thursday 10-8

Weekdays 10-6

Sunday 12:30-5

FASHION WORLD

3015 Anderson Ave. Next to Valentino's Village Plaza

Short library hours

K-State has a particular problem which hinders the learning capacities of its students. The problem is that Farrell Library is not open late enough.

Currently, the library closes at 10:30 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and at 5 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. These hours were instigated largely as a result of the budget cuts during the past two years.

Officials apparently consider scant hours of library operation a good way to cut back on utilities and operating expenses. We disagree.

We don't argue against the motive of cutting expenses; the University must make ends meet. We do question closing the entire library early to accomplish the goal.

In years past, the basement of Farrell was used as a late-night study center. It was open until 1 a.m. on Monday through Friday, while the main part of the library would close two hours earlier. That way, students could go to the basement and continue studying after the rest of the building closed. Few people would still be studying by the time the basement finally closed.

With the necessity of study time outside of class proportional to the hours spent in the classroom, many students cannot finish their studying before 10:30 p.m. In addition, many students live in atmospheres which make studying difficult, if not impossible.

Despite the few people who persist in noisily talking and laughing in Farrell, the library is a productive place to study. Reference materials are available as well.

There are some money-saving alternatives to closing the entire building. The stacks and upper floors could be closed at a reasonable time and the first two or three floors left open later. Despite the fact that this would cut off many of the research materials, there would still be tables at which students could study.

The library must be accessible to students who need the late-night study centers and cannot study where they live. The lower floor of the Union is a poor alternative at best.

The current library closing times simply do not work out for the good of all parties involved.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

Seeking young voter involvement

WASHINGTON — Moguls at ABC News somehow overlooked Susan Fitz-Hugh in selecting 40 political leaders, pollsters and consultants for a recent discussion of America's voter turnout problems. As a result, the best and the brightest who participated may have botched their mission entirely.

Former presidents Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford and a virtual Who's Who among Washington-based political puppeteers gathered in the Russell Senate Office Building's Caucus Room to consider America's vapid interest in elections. Sponsored by Harvard's Kennedy School of Government, and set before ABC's cameras, the "Symposium on Voter Registration" made for good television (the all-star rap session will be rebroadcast later this season).

As if to justify the pow-wow, ABC News had released some disheartening poll data. In a late June survey, it found that only a third of Americans under 30 vote regularly and fewer than half say they will next year. ABC News discovered that if the nation were divided equally between voters and non-voters, the latter group would be peopled almost entirely by those under 40 — a sobering reminder for anyone concerned about the nation's future.

It was perhaps inevitable that the celebrity symposium would produce only lackluster results. Discussion centered on proposals for longer polling hours and easier registration (nothing ingenious) and the networks' nervous habit of "projecting" winners before polls close. According to one participant, little or nothing was said about younger Americans.

That's where someone like Fitz-Hugh might have provided some insight. Executive secretary of the state Board of Elections in Virginia, where voter registration ranks near the nation's lowest, Fitz-Hugh recently told a new state commission examining voter fatigue that the chief problem is neither logistics or alienation. Instead, she said, it's education.

"Our students learn more about socialism and communism than they do about democracy," she said in Richmond last week. "I think we are missing the boat in this country."

Fitz-Hugh's words, though sounding like a fundamentalist's, were well chosen. They implied that young Americans learn about democracy only in contrast to communism and without much instruction in our system's inherent strengths and weaknesses.

Lacking any sense of democracy's frailties — something known to every Athenian in the fifth century B.C. — it's no wonder that Americans see voting as a going-through-the-motions obligation.

Though most know from high school civics that theirs is the land of personal freedom and free enterprise, few could discuss the institutional challenge their system faces.

For example, few civics classes ever grapple with the implications for a democracy under which only half the populace participates. In the same vein, if democracy (by Aristotelian definition) means that government favors the many instead of the few, can the United States still regard itself as such?

Further, if Americans won't participate, what is the effect on democracy of multinational firms, whose number and influence are on the rise? And how democratic is the increasing cost of political participation? If the price of political office exceeds the average citizen's means, what sort of "democracy" results?

We don't have the answers. But we think the questions are obvious and simple ones that are key to the nation's future and to helping young Americans understand that democracy is not some monolithic (and, hence, easily ignored) object of devotion. It, like any relationship between people, is imperfect and requires work and attention to succeed. Otherwise, the freedoms to which young Americans owe their minimal allegiance will disappear.

Within a year, the League of Women Voters will contract with RKO radio stations to encourage 18- to 24-year-olds to vote. The effort is noble and badly needed. But the campaign can only work if young Americans see a reason to vote which stands larger than the issues, the names, the faces and the jingles.

Letters

Equus received poor review

Editor,

I would like to respond to a poorly written review by Tom Downing which appeared in the Friday, Oct. 7 issue of the Collegian. I saw the K-State Players' version of "Equus" the same night Tom did, and I must say I enjoyed it. Are we talking about the same play? There must have been something exciting about "Equus" that night. I mean, not just any play gets a standing ovation. Surely it was more exciting than looking at the progress at Nichols Gymnasium. Surely, Tom enjoyed the play slightly.

I'll agree that "Equus" did have some flaws in the area of variety. But what kind of reviewer elaborates on all negative aspects of a production and not a single positive one? Why did he linger on the alleged upstaging of actors and the misdirection of Charlotte MacFarland? I personally didn't notice any bad staging. So Charlotte did make some changes in the script — big deal! That is her right. Who is interpreting this play anyway? Tom Downing or Charlotte MacFarland? What's so silly about Stout's flesh-colored underwear anyway? I saw nothing wrong with the other costumes that Tom dogged so badly. I thought Seaton's portrayal of Dysart was commendable, as was Stout's portrayal of Alan. Nothing positive was said about their performances in the review. Couldn't Tom give them at least one break? I don't have anything against Tom Downing or the Collegian, but I do have something against bad reviewing.

Michael Swain
Freshman in theatre

Petty parking tickets

Editor,

I would like to take this opportunity to commend the city of Manhattan on the imaginative method it has chosen to pay for the police protection it provides in Aggieville on weekend nights.

I can imagine the conversation that brought this idea to light.

City Official No. 1 — The cost of providing patrols in Aggieville is staggering. There has got to be a way of recovering some of this money.

City Official No. 2 — Well, we could raise the mill levy again, or a sales tax increase might work but I have elections coming up and I want to get re-elected.

City Official No. 1 — What we need is something like a sin tax or a use tax. (After several moments of thought.) Eureka! Parking tickets!

Yes, voters of Manhattan, the city's coffers runneth over at the expense of those who commit the unpardonable sin of parking more than 12, count them, inches from the curb. Each ticket nets the city $4. In fact, this revenue-producing program has been so successful that one of Riley County's finest has been given the exclusive duty of measuring the distance from the curb to the wheel of each vehicle he suspects of committing this sin. I would be curious to know how much revenue this guardian of justice raised the first hour he was on duty. On subsequent occasions, I have observed this same humorless chap working as a team with another officer, enabling them to write tickets in half the time it would take one officer. Isn't that a fine example of efficiency? Meanwhile robberies, burglaries, rapes and other serious crimes go on.

Stephen Parker
Junior in business administration

Applause for Equus

Editor,

We felt privileged to attend the final performance of "Equus" Saturday night. I'm glad we disregarded the critical review in the Collegian on Friday and went anyway.

The underlying theme was brought out meaningfully by the actors and actresses in the difficult roles they portrayed. The emotions Alan displayed in his role moved me to empathy. No one I have never met has given me so much. The scenery and props were effective and innovative.

Instead of a slap in the face they received Friday, the actors deserve hands put together in applause. Bravo! Bravo!

Cara Smith
Sophomore in public relations and three others

Campaign promises

Funny thing how most students are only aware of student government during elections. You can't miss it then; the candidates trash every tree on campus with their names and pretty faces.

Banners, posters, advertisements. "So-and-so" for senator, or vote "me," were spread from Cardwell to Calvin halls last February.

Every year, the campus is eyewitness to one big popularity contest...er, political campaign; college style.

In reviewing the activities that surrounded the last election, some interesting information was found.

Promises. Campaign promises from our very own senators. Their terms are half up, so let's review what they do and run a check on what they SAID they'd do, and what they've done.

Those who join the rank of "student senator" must be of the "right stuff." The requirements to become an elite are simple.

Lamma, gamma, bamma.

If you represent an organized living group, you've got a few hundred ballots in the bag.

Smile a lot.

If you have that "all-American, I'm a concerned student" look, and are photogenic, it could attract some votes.

Brains?

You don't have to be brilliant because all you're doing is "representing" the students' views, right?

Wit.

The most important; a person's campaign strategy — witty lines and campaign slogans. I'd love to see this one: "My Dad will pay you to vote for me."

During elections, it's excitement, debate and discussion. That's DURING elections, after elections reality sets in. Reality in the form of meetings.

Meetings for this committee, meetings with that group. Ad hoc this, ad hoc that. Then of course there's the biggie: Student Senate's weekly...er, weekly meetings.

They're really a trip. If you've never attended one you must go sometime. They sit around in the Big Eight room in the Union every Thursday beginning at 7 p.m. They each have their own personalized name card that apparently was the result of a third-grade class project, so the times some have been out drinking before the meeting, they can identify themselves by name.

Now everything is real formal. It's called parliamentary procedure and sometimes they have abrupt discussions over the procedure itself and who's right about what's proper or not. That's when they really show their stuff and get fired up. You've got to be proper, you see.

The power is in the hands of the senate chairman — by way of one large wooden mallet. It's effective too. Bang that sucker on the table for a minute and you can get any normal person to shut up. It takes two minutes for the senators.

Roll call is vital. Tardy marks, or something of the such, are recorded and with three marks you're "up for impeachment." A few senators deserve stars but I don't think they have a chart for that yet.

The meeting progresses and reports are made, issues discussed, and re-discussed, until they're disgusted. You know exactly when it's eight o'clock, that's when most of the dedicated senate aides get up and walk out. (They're just taking it for one hour of "easy credit," so I've been told.)

Is this theatre-in-a-round what the senators campaigned to be a part of? The senators made comments in the Collegian's soapbox before elections last February. Have they lived up to their campaign lines?

Here's a sample of a few quotes from candidates who later were elected and now serve as our senators.

Senator: "Solid leadership is essential in attaining goals that are important to students today."

"Solid leadership" one said. Solid as a rock. Rocky as the leadership. Leadership that's rocky, I guess.

Senator: "There are still many student problems that senate needs to act upon."

"Senate needs to act," one said. Act how? Act knowledgeable.

Senator: "Many students are in the dark about Student Senate and its functions. I will serve the position well and strive to strengthen the link between the students and their government."

"Students are in the dark on senate's functions," one said. In the dark? Where? It's dark in Aggieville. Senate has functions in Aggieville? — at least some senate committee meetings are often conducted at Aggie Station, aren't they? Senator: "I pledge to devote the time and energy necessary to become a committed student leader." (This one sounds better with the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" playing softly in the background.)

Ah, the pledge. The devotion. The time? The energy? The commitment to leadership? — the press pledges to watch you.

Senator: "I will see that the students' views and opinions are heard and that actions will be taken on their behalf."

This one will make a good speech writer, maybe even a good student senator, some day. Senator: "Senate needs new faces and fresh ideas in order to meet the increasing demands of the students. I believe I can tackle this job."

All right, were you trying out for a make-up commercial, the football team, or Student Senate?

Senator: "I have learned how important the student's voice is. I would represent 300 students, making their voices heard."

What, is this guy in choir or something? I just wonder if this senator actually collects the views of 300 students each time he must vote. Senator: "It will be my and 58 other senators' responsibility to see that your money is spent wisely."

...And it will be my, and 18,410 other students' responsibility to see just how wisely you spent our money.

Overall, most comments, at the time, reflected a feeling of wanting to communicate with the students. They say that's why they wear those neat generic-style "student senator" buttons on Thursdays, (besides the fact they get a "bad" mark if they're caught without it.) Students are to identify them and give them their views and opinions. There's also a Student Governing Association table in the Union on Wednesdays.

Last week, someone told me that students don't really care about what our senate does. Is that true? Or are the senators too far away from really relating to most students? Election campaigns are examples of how outspoken and enthusiastic they are capable of being. Let's keep them that way.

VIVIAN... THAT'S THE LAST TIME WE FLY CONTINENTAL UNTIL THEY SETTLE THIS PILOTS STRIKE...

Gail Dawson, freshman in pre-professional business administration, leaves the Stonehouse Child Care Center with her son Scott Wednesday.

Student parents balance obligations

By KAREN BELLUS
Collegian Reporter

Editor's note: This is the first of a two-part series dealing with the special problems and concerns of non-traditional K-State students — those who are also parents and older students who return to school after an extended period outside the academic community.

Many students have difficulties managing their time between studies, jobs, friends and social activities.

However, the average student has much more time when compared to students who also are parents.

"Parents have to juggle their time between housework, child care, school, many times a job and their spouse," Ann Bristow, assistant professor in psychology, said.

"Time has been our biggest problem, especially when trying to schedule classes for the next semester," Gail Dawson, freshman in business administration, said.

Dawson and her husband, Ken, junior in electrical engineering, both attend classes at K-State, work an average of 13 hours a week at outside jobs and take care of their 2½-year-old son, Scott.

"For a marriage to work you must spend time together, and we try to schedule our classes at the same time so we can have some time to ourselves, but that doesn't always work," she said.

The Dawsons are just one example of the different lifestyles that parents — both married and single — confront while attending school.

Bristow, who also is chairman of a child care task force formed by the Kansas State University Commission on the Status of Women, said there are few campus resources for student parents.

"We've found a lot lacking on campus as far as child care is concerned," Bristow said. "A lot of women and men who want to come back to school never get their foot in the door because of child care."

The task force submitted requests last spring to the University that included the appointment of a full-time administrator to set up a parent-run baby sitting cooperative at Jardine Terrace and another "drop-in" child care cooperative at a central location on campus, such as the Union.

"We have yet to receive any feedback (from the University)," Bristow said.

Bristow said one problem with such requests is that funding for campus child care is partially subsidized through Student Senate. In the past year, senate cut funding for the centers because of budget cuts and the feeling that such facilities benefited a minority of students.

Child care is not usually a "financial reality" for the average student, Bristow said. Baby-sitting or day-care services cost an average of $200 per month, and many students cannot afford that expense, she said.

In addition, she said, day-care services can't meet all the needs of the student parent. Finding someone to care for a child during evening classes or tests, and study sessions can pose both time and financial problems for student parents.

In the past, there have been attempts to start student parent support groups on campus, however, these students obtained little success due to what Bristow called the "inaccessibility" of student parents.

"If you have a child, you must try to schedule your classes so that one of you can be available if your child gets sick or has to go to the doctor, and that isn't always easy to do," Gail said.

"There are not very many young married students on campus, and existing student organizations aren't geared to the time element of parents," she said.

Gail said she and her husband begin their day at 6 a.m. and make a 20-minute drive from Wamego to campus. They leave Scott at the Stonehouse Child Care Center, which is operated by the Department of Family and Child Development.

During the day, the couple juggle their time on campus between classes, studying and jobs. At 5 p.m., they pick up their son and return home where Gail must fix dinner, do housework and spend time with Scott.

"It is usually 8:30 (p.m.) before I can sit down and study. Ken and I never can sit down and study at the same time because one of us needs to spend time with Scott," she said.

Single parents many times have an even harder time attending school because they usually do not have anyone to share the responsibilities of raising a child, earning a living and going to school.

"For the single parent, child care is the major concern. It must be inexpensive and accessible so that the parent can be near their youngster," Bristow said. "Also, budgets are on such a limited budget that almost all child care (facilities) needs to be subsidized."

Nora Olin, junior in special education, is now rearing her 2-year-old son alone while her husband, who is in the Army, is overseas. She does not have an outside job and takes her son to a day-care center while she attends classes.

"I find myself choosing between my kid and my books," she said. "Studies have to take a back seat, because my kid comes first."

"I could probably get better grades if I worked harder, but that would mean giving up time I spent with my kid. Right now, his father isn't here, and I have to be both father and mother."

Family, friends bid final farewell to 'modest, unassuming' governor

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Kansans bid farewell Wednesday to Robert Blackwell Docking, the Arkansas City banker and oilman with the common touch who history will record was the state's most popular politician.

Gov. John Carlin and two of Docking's closest Democratic political allies and friends delivered eulogies at a memorial service in the Capitol rotunda, the last of three services for the former governor, who died last Saturday after battling emphysema for years. He would have been 58 Sunday.

Carlin said Docking "loved the people and the people loved him." John D. Montgomery, Junction City editor and state highway director during the Docking administration in 1967-75, said he "never lost sight of the 'little guy,' the taxpayer."

Norbert Dreiling, Hays attorney and chairman of Docking's four successful gubernatorial campaigns, said, "His record as governor has already become a benchmark by which responsible public service is measured."

Nearly 500 people stood in the second floor rotunda or around the third floor railing looking down on the memorial service, which lasted slightly more than a half hour.

U.S. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, former Republican Govs. William Avery, John Anderson and Robert Bennett, all present state officers, the entire state Supreme Court and a dozen family members, including Docking's wife, two sons and mother, attended. They were seated in chairs in front of a speaker's podium, along with state officials and members of the judiciary.

Funeral services were Monday in Arkansas City and burial was Tuesday in Kansas City, Kan.

"He was a visionary who led Kansas by setting aside plans from the past in favor of his hopes for the future," Carlin said in his eulogy.

"His enthusiastic pursuit of excellence, in everything he undertook, created standards for his family, his friends and all Kansans to strive for. Gov. Docking would not accept mediocrity and he never reflected it."

"Certainly a man of such extraordinary ability and purpose should be fully recognized by the government he led so well. ...It was for the citizenry that Bob Docking served Kansas."

"We shall miss him, and in his memory we will reaffirm our belief in the principles of life for which he stood."

Montgomery said: "...The statistics will not show the fine personal qualifications that made Kansans respect and love him so much. He never forgot a friend and he never carried a grudge."

"He inherited from his banker father business acumen and from his mother southern charm. His wife, Meredith, gave him the loving support that made tough decisions easier to solve.

"Bob Docking had a passion for honesty and integrity. He inspired loyalty and he disliked mediocrity."

"When I say this last goodbye, Robert, I die a little."

Dreiling said: "For eight years this family called Docking gave the best that it had for the public good."

"Modest and unassuming, the private and public Bob Docking were one and the same. He was genuine, for real. What you saw is what you got."

"His sense of obligation as a citizen in a democratic society involved more than a spectator sport. In speech after speech, he exhorted his fellow citizens to become involved..."

"Bob Docking was able to retain true humility despite all the trappings of office. He insisted that the goal was the important consideration and that we should not take ourselves too seriously. With him, there was no room for vanity or false modesty."

The Army and Air National Guards of Kansas and the Kansas Highway Patrol formed a 19-man honor guard for the service, which included a presentation of the U.S. and Kansas flags. Flags at all state and federal facilities in Kansas are to be flown at half staff in memory of Docking through Friday.

Fact: Your dollars fight heart disease

American Heart Association

FREE FISH

$10.00 Value
with Purchase of Any
Complete Aquarium Set Up
20 gal or Larger

During The Entire Month of October

FOUNTAIN FALLS
TROPICAL FISH SHOP

2007 Ft. Riley Blvd.
539-1676

M-S 10:30-6:00
Sun 12:00-5:00

Free
6 oz. or 8 oz.
CREDKEN Shampoo
$3.95 Value
with your first style

by

John Paul Roche

at
Roche's Hairstyling
1127 1/2 Moro
539-7751
Offer ends Oct. 15

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity
Rep. — TOM SEELE
• Supplemental Retirement Annuities
• Investment Options
• Free Transfer Privileges
• State Deferred Compensation
• Life Insurance
1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 613278-7095

THE GASLIGHT
BOUTIQUE
NIGHTWEAR
by
ST. EVE
and
Gilead
1118 Moro

BUSHWACKER'S
• THE •
FUNDRINKERY

Thursday
75¢ Well Drinks
9-11

Happy Hour: 4-9
2 fers on hiballs
75¢ draws $2 blended drinks

Drink of the Week:
Chicken Phlucker

Colossal Hot Dog
& a Stein for $2
during all World Series games

531 N. Manhattan

Bar 539-9727

Office 539-4321

Before or after the K-State
vs. KU Game

Vista
RESTAURANTS

TWO DRIVE-UP WINDOWS AT ALL OF OUR LOCATIONS FOR FASTER SERVICE!

• Spirit Banner Contest •

Organizations!! Design an original banner boosting Wildcat spirit for the Nebraska game—October 29th. All banners will hang in the stadium for the game. $100 & $50 cash prizes for 1st and 2nd place winners. Entries judged on design, slogan, spirit and visibility. $5 fee per entry. For information call Mary Wiklander 532-6266 at Hollis House. Entry deadline Oct. 21. Sponsored by Student Foundation.

SPIRIT BANNER

TAKE 2

Briefly

By the Associated Press

Fans fight over performer's attire

OESTER HURUP, Denmark — First the gloves, then the belt, then the blouse and so on as Stella Skaerbaek doffed her duds and pitched them to an appreciative audience.

But the fans liked her so much they wouldn't give her clothes back.

The young men at the Ranchero discotheque jostled each other for souvenirs while she danced. Then a fight broke out and police suggested that the strip tease fans leave quietly.

When they left, so did Miss Skaerbaek's $420 stage wardrobe.

"It happened because about 25 rockers came to the Ranchero on their motorcycles from another part of north Jutland," police Commissioner Verner Laursen said Wednesday. "They grabbed her clothes as she dropped them."

Laursen said Miss Skaerbaek didn't have to go home unclad.

"She didn't wear the same clothes to work that she wore while she was working," he said.

Candidate gets strange publicity

WATERBURY, Conn. — Republican mayoral candidate Henry Capozzi's campaign billboards are getting voters' attention — but not all of them for the right reasons.

Some of the signs are located in Southbury and Woodbury — out of Waterbury's voting district.

And one sign, listing the central Connecticut city's GOP ticket, is located next to a billboard for the local United Way campaign that asks in bold letters: "Who Cares?"

Justice drops reminder of gender

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor has ribbed The New York Times, reminding the newspaper that the nation's highest court is no longer an all-male club.

In a letter to the editor published in Wednesday's editions, O'Connor noted that a recent Times article referred to "the nine men" of the Supreme Court.

"According to the information available to me, and which I had assumed was generally available, for over two years now SCOTUS (Supreme Court of the United States) has not consisted of nine men," O'Connor said.

"If you have any contradictory information, I would be grateful if you would forward it as...the undersigned would be most interested in seeing it," she said.

The Times' article was about shorthand names used in Washington, such as SCOTUS, and in her letter O'Connor referred to herself as FWOTSC — apparently First Woman on the Supreme Court.

Band suffers uniform errors

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — The 130 members of the Rocky Mountain High School band expected to strut their stuff in new cardinal-red duds this fall.

Instead, they're canceling performances so they won't have to show up in blue jeans and white shirts.

The $33,000 worth of new red-and-white uniforms were ordered in the spring and due last summer. They may arrive in time for the last game of the football season.

The first setback occurred when the band learned Raeford Fabric Co. of New York was out of the requested red material.

Then came word that the 300 yards of fabric had been dyed the wrong shade.

"When they finally had the material, they did it wrong," said band director Larry Buchanan. "This is the only company that carries uniform material. When they run out, the whole world runs out."

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

- |                     |                  |                  |                 |
|---------------------|------------------|------------------|-----------------|
| ACROSS              | 52 Pickling herb | 3 Comic King     | 21 Women's —    |
| 1 Throne            | 53 Great Lake    | 4 Victim of      | 24 Apply a bit  |
| 5 Craggy hill       | 54 Rainbow       | Romeo            | of paint        |
| 8 Concerning        | 55 Cruel         | 5 "...the ends   | 25 Flightless   |
| 12 Easter bloom     | 56 " — in the    | of — "           | bird            |
| 13 Tint             | Clowns"          | 6 Ump's cry      | 26 Pioneer      |
| 14 — avis           | 57 Actor Cobb    | 7 Coral feature  | jacket          |
| 15 Swift horse      | 58 Vast expanses | 8 " — Lonesome   | material        |
| 16 Nice season      | DOWN             | Tonight?"        | 28 Scoreboard   |
| 17 Pitcher          | 1 Bridge feat    | 9 Tenspois       | reading         |
| 18 French           | 2 Emerald        | 10 Deuce topper  | 29 Mesmerize    |
| household           | Isle             | 11 Paddles       | 30 Pioneer      |
| 20 Near passages    |                  | 19 Oriental game | Carson          |
| 22 Mauna —          |                  |                  | Health          |
| 23 Reminder of      |                  |                  | resort          |
| 24 Across           |                  |                  | 36 Bussed       |
| 24 Amount owed      |                  |                  | 37 Dallas       |
| 27 Some deer        |                  |                  | campus          |
| 32 Mass unit: abbr. |                  |                  | 38 Battery      |
| 33 Great weight     |                  |                  | terminals       |
| 34 Gymnastics       |                  |                  | 41 Elevator     |
| feat                |                  |                  | button          |
| 35 Hunting ammo     |                  |                  | 42 Ascots       |
| 38 Movie dog        |                  |                  | 43 Concerning   |
| 39 Kipling title    |                  |                  | 44 Catchall     |
| 40 Campaign         |                  |                  | abbr.           |
| 42 Thin paper       |                  |                  | 46 Donate       |
| 45 Orbit point      |                  |                  | 47 Director     |
| 49 Pen fillers      |                  |                  | Kazan           |
| 50 Metallic         |                  |                  | 48 Right angles |
| element             |                  |                  | 51 Fury         |

Avg. solution time: 24 min.

RIAL AIM SCAM
ORCA GOA HARA
CARTOONS ARID SNEES TUMBLE
NASALEI
FACT ALAN NEE
OPA AVENA ELM
GAR PERTASTIS
PAS TERM
PLEBES HUMAN
RITE CAROLINE
OREL ODA ERST
DADE TAM TEAS

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP

10-13

XPH JHWM WFXL JHUPWMQU'G TFGZB
TWB QM ULFCX: W UCWMZ UWGH.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — KIDS WITH COMBINED BANK ACCOUNT SHOWED MUCH COMMON CENTS.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: U equals C.

Pumpkin Patch 10
Sponsored by Memorial Hospital Auxiliary

Eat a meal at fast food prices. Wild rice & chicken casserole dinner. 5-7:30 Friday and 12-2 Sat. Sandwiches & snacks served throughout.

Oct. 14
Noon-8 p.m.
Oct. 15
10 a.m.-4 p.m.
Cico Park

BALLARD'S BACKROOM SPECIALS!!

Ladies Fashion Sweat Suits (reg. to $22.95) $16<sup>95</sup>

Crewnecks & sweatpants (reg. $8.50) $5<sup>00</sup>

Topstitch Football Jerseys and Baseball Undershirts $4<sup>00</sup>

Ballard's
IN AGGIEVILLE

The Royal Lichtenstein Quarter Ring

SIDEWALK CIRCUS

Friday, Oct. 14—Noon
Between Union & Seaton Hall

Sponsored by Am. Baptist Campus Ministries, St. Frances Episcopal Min., Ecumenical Campus Ministry

London Fog

DOUGLAS

There's nothing quite like the elegant good looks of a classic trench coat from London Fog®. This new edition is meticulously tailored with all the de rigueur details... from new longer belt and belted sleeves to epaulettes and gun flap. To make it a year-round travel companion, the coat is easy care polyester/cotton, the zip-out liner is warm Orlon® acrylic pile. London Fog lets you laugh at all kinds of weather.

London Fog

We've got you covered for the 80's.

West Ltd.

327 Poyntz
Downtown

CHIROPRACTIC CARE

WE PROVIDE CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS FOR $12.00. OTHER FEES PROVIDED ON REQUEST.

- SPORTS INJURIES
- HOME, AUTO & WORK ACCIDENTS
- KSU STUDENT, FACULTY AND STAFF
- BONE, MUSCLE, NERVE AND JOINT DISORDERS

DR. WALDO E. SCHELLENGER
AVENUE CHIROPRACTIC OFFICE
1500 POYNTZ AVE.
MANHATTAN, KANSAS 537-8305

ESCAPE TO ASPEN/SNOWMASS WITH UPC TRAVEL January 1-8, 1984

$323/295 (with your own equipment)
INFO. MEETING & SIGN-UP TODAY!

TRIP INCLUDES:
ROUND TRIP MOTOR COACH
TRANSPORTATION TO AND FROM
SNOWMASS-ASPEN
5 NIGHTS LODGING AT
THE WOODBRIDGE CONDOMINIUMS
IN SNOWMASS
4 DAYS LIFT TICKETS (GOOD AT SNOWMASS, ASPEN AND BUTTERMILK)
4 DAY EQUIPMENT RENTAL
FIRE PARTY
2 WILD WEST PARTIES
UPC TOTE BAG
WINE AND CHEESE PARTY

INFORMATION MEETING:
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13 7:00 PM
UNION ROOM 207
SIGN-UP BEGINS:
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1983
8AM-3PM K STATE UNION
3RD FLOOR ACTIVITIES CENTER
1ST DAY—KSU STUDENTS ONLY
2ND DAY—KSU FACULTY AND STAFF
3RD DAY—GENERAL PUBLIC

McGAIN

AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

ANTA TOURING COMPANY'S Hilarious New Musical

"A HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN FILM" by Christopher Durang

MONDAY, OCTOBER 17, 8 p.m.
Tickets Available McCain Box Office
Noon-5 p.m. M-F 532-6428

the casual encounter 1208 Moro Aggieville

CORDUROY SPECIAL

Save on Corduroy jeans by Lee and Levi's $17<sup>99</sup>

This weekend only at the casual encounter

1208 Moro in Aggieville

County renovation adds office space

By AMY HOOVER
Collegian Reporter

Last May, Riley County started action on a plan that has been in the making for seven years. With this plan, the county will be expanding administrative space and capabilities.

County offices currently occupy the corner of Fifth Street and Poyntz Avenue. The county is now renovating the Wareham Hotel Annex on Fifth and Humboldt streets for additional use, Eric Shoultz, assistant county engineer, said. The annex was temporarily being used by the Riley County/Manhattan Health Department before renovation began.

The annex, the Riley County Courthouse and the Courthouse Annex will form a plaza with the closing of Fifth Street. With landscape and parking, the project will occupy the entire block between Poyntz and Humboldt.

Contractual agreements are for completion of renovation one year from now.

"But we're expecting to receive the building and have it on the line for use in February," Shoultz said.

Construction on the building's exterior is near completion and construction on the roof begins in a week.

"We hope to have it all sealed up by the first flake of snow," Shoultz said.

Completion of the plaza, including landscape, will be in two years, he said.

Construction costs are about $1.2 million for the Wareham Annex, $800,000 for renovation of the current courthouse, $150,000-200,000 for parking and landscape and $100,000 for purchase of the Courthouse Annex.

"We're not sure how much rehabilitation will be done on the annex because we don't know how far the budget will go," Shoultz said.

The buildings are being funded entirely through savings.

"No bond money is involved," he said. "This project has been in the mill for seven years. The state statutes relate how to levy taxes so that when a tax is levied, it is for a certain item and must be used for that item."

"So we've been taxing for building funds and saving it (the revenue received). Since we can only use that money for building funds, we've saved enough in seven years."

Shoultz compared the project to driving an old Volkswagen and saving money to buy a better car.

"We've been driving the Volkswagen for a long time," he said.

We're not going to violate the exterior of the building (the annex) and the inside will be innovatively designed. We're going to set up larger offices. Now it's just a maze of rooms, not conducive to large, public meetings," he said.

The current courthouse building will have three courtrooms with jury capacity and a fourth without jury capacity.

"All administrative functions will be moved — assessor, appraiser, clerk. The county attorney and possibly one other county agency will go across (to the new building)," Shoultz said.

"We have records going back to the 1850s in here. They will be moved to the new building in the room that used to be the ice room for the ice company. This is perfect because if an atomic bomb hit, it might crack a wall, but that's all."

"About 15 percent of the new building will be for records and 15 percent will be left for future growth," he said. The third floor of the building will not be completed until it is needed.

"We expect to be able to go 70 years before we need another facility," Shoultz said.

The new building will have a three-story atrium. An atrium is used in providing fresh air, which is required by law. Although this type of construction is expensive, the cost of the addition is offset by the cost of any other means of bringing fresh air into the building.

"Usually an atrium is just for looks but this one is functional. It would cost more to violate the outside (of the building) for airways," Shoultz said.

"This is mainly an economic move to expand. We're investing in our own land versus someone else's."

The present building is too viable as an office building to turn it into a museum like most counties do. This move will allow the same number of people to operate more efficiently, he said.

"We won't have to hire new people to operate the new offices. This will help keep overhead (costs) low."

Furniture and other materials will be reused and recycled for the new building, Shoultz said. The biggest purchase will be new chairs for the larger rooms.

"This building costs the same but I feel it is a tremendously better building than a metal building in looks, functional aspects and energy aspects," he said. "It is an ideal building to fulfill our needs for a long time."

"Like any business, we're trying to lower our overhead and increase service. This takes capital investment. It all equates to lower taxes in the long run."

Seven years of saving finances county plaza

By The Collegian Staff

Riley County is planning to close approximately half of Fifth Street in order to develop a downtown courthouse plaza next spring, said Rosalys Rieger, Riley County Commissioner.

The plaza would combine the Riley County Courthouse, Courthouse Annex and Wareham Annex in a "largely pedestrian area."

"We hope to develop a greenspace, pedestrian area that would anchor the downtown mall and provide an oasis for the downtown area," she said.

The proposed plaza would include trees, shrubs and park benches. A landscape parking area also is to be included, although Rieger stressed the plaza is to be primarily a pedestrian area.

The county has hired the architectural firm of Ron Reed Inc. to draw up plans for the plaza.

However, actual work on the courthouse will not begin until spring or until current remodeling of the county administrative offices are finished and occupied. The county has not yet designated an exact area for the plaza, Rieger said.

During the spring of 1982, informal proposals for a courthouse plaza were presented to the county commissioners. At that time, the commissioners agreed to the concept of a courthouse plaza.

However, no legal action to close the street has been taken by the commissioners yet because no formal proposal for such a plaza has been presented by the county, Rieger said.

"Even though the plaza would be built by Riley County, only the city has the authority to close the county-owned street," she said.

Rieger was unable to give an estimated cost of building such a plaza.

HAND EMBROIDERED MEXICAN DRESSES

- 100% Cotton
- Colors: White, Hot Pink, Black, Burgundy, Navy, Red
- Sizes: Small, Medium, Large

$30 each

$25 each for 2 or more

Unconditional Money Back Guarantee

Montezuma's Revenge
P.O. Box 50150
Austin, Texas 78763

Same day shipping with money order.

Check orders shipped upon clearance.

Please send me _____ dress(es).

size _____ color _____ 1st choice 2nd choice

name _____

address _____

city _____ state _____ zip _____

THE MEN OF ALPHA KAPPA LAMBDA WOULD LIKE TO CONGRATULATE THE NEWLY PLEDGED LITTLE SISTERS OF ATHENA.

Stephanie Anderson

Charlene Bogner

Lisa Chase

Joan Giler

Jan Joyce

Larissa Kimura

Cammy Litchfield

Alison McKenny

Jan Pollma

Becky Quaney

Joanie Schiffler

Julie Malcom

Kim Shever

Katrina Weisher

Kori Waddill

Have story
or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

comprehensive health associates

- free pregnancy tests
- outpatient abortion services
- alternatives counseling
- referrals
- gynecology
- contraception

1-435 & Roe - Overland Park - 642-3100

ALL YOU CAN EAT
MOUNTAIN
OYSTERS!

• Only $3.95
Thurs. nites
6-10 p.m.

ROCKIN' K BAR

TONITE IS LADIES NITE!

Local DELIVERY Available

PIZZA Shoppe

6th and Kasold
Lawrence, KS.
Westridge
Shopping Center

842-0600

MEAL FOR 4
Single Topping
KINGSIZE PIZZA
4 DINNER SALADS &
PITCHER OF PEPSI
$10.50
Plus Tax
DINE-IN ONLY

West Coast Saloon

WE WELCOME ALL
AGGIEVILLE DRINKERS

4 Pool Tables
Foosball
& The Best Juke Box
In Town

Open 10 a.m.-midnight on Game Day

2222 IOWA IN LAWRENCE
NEXT TO MINSKY'S

Welcome To Jayhawk Country

SATURDAY FOOTBALL SPECIAL

Rax Roast Beef Sandwich

Only 99¢

(no coupon necessary)

Come Taste the

Rax Experience!

707 W. 23RD • IN THE MALLS SHOPPING CTR.
Lawrence, KS. 66044

Rax
RESTAURANTS

THE SANCTUARY WELCOMES THE WILDCATS TO LAWRENCE!

11 a.m.: Luncheon Buffet

1 p.m.: Bus Ride To The Game and Back
To The Sanctuary

After The Game: Dinner Buffet

That Night: Entertainment on The Deck Featuring The Lively Blues & Jazz of Chuck Berg & Jim Stringer and Disco Downstairs Playing The Latest Tunes & Oldies

* Reciprocal With Over 180 Clubs *

1401 W. 7th
(bet. Michigan & Florida)
843-9703

the Avalon
TONIGHT

STARVIN' MARVIN

and the DEXYTRIMS
Rock 'n Roll

—PLUS—

LADIES NIGHT

$1.00 HOUSE DRINKS

50¢ DRAWS

NO COVER CHARGE

for all Ladies

7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

THIS WEEKEND

JIM SWENEY

and the JUMPSHOTZ

Don't Miss TGIF on FRIDAY

1122 Moro UPSTAIRS 539-9703

green's fine wines

come experience green's selection of fine wines and high proof spirits

800 West 23rd (913) 841-2277

HEY K-STATE

CHECK OUT THE PLADIUM, 901 MISSISSIPPI—
FOR $4.00 YOU GET A PARKING SPOT AND 4
DRINKS. WE'RE ONLY A FEW BLOCKS FROM KU MEMORIAL STADIUM, AND AFTER THE GAME COME EXPERIENCE THE EXCITING
SOUNDS OF THE PLADIUM
CLIQUE.
DOORS OPEN AT 7:30

The Pladium
901 Mississippi

Lawrence, Kansas

Critic gives books, playbills in contribution to library

By TOM DOWNING
Collegian Reviewer

Norman Nadel was a critic-at-large for the Scripps-Howard newspapers, a symphony trombonist, an army bandmaster, and former drama critic for the New York World-Telegram. He is a photographer, lecturer on theater, and last spring was visiting professor at K-State.

Nadel returned to Manhattan this weekend to go through his donation of more than 250 books and 1,000 playbills (programs of opening night plays.) The books will be available at Farrell Library's newly expanded special collections department.

"This small gift might encourage other gifts," Nadel said. "I see it as a catalyst to get other people thinking that they might give books."

There were other schools he considered giving the books to, but Nadel decided to donate them to K-State.

"I kept coming back here because the potential for growth was good."

Nadel's hope is that students use the books and learn from them.

"Since I'm not regularly reviewing, I just don't need this much reference material at hand all the time," he said.

Expressing confidence in the Farrell staff, Nadel said he knows his donation will be in good hands.

"I like the library here. I think it's a good library. I feel encouraged," he said. "They'll take good care of the collection. I want them to be used, and they (the staff) feel the same way."

Nadel has visited many college campuses lecturing and teaching theater and music. In May, he plans to teach a short course in dramatic criticism in London.

His photography exhibit, "Close Perceptions," is on display in the lobby of McCain Auditorium through Nov. 4.

"My photographs are my representation of things. My feeling about them in pictures. I'm trying to articulate a point of view."

Nadel has been taking photographs since he was 12. His father was an engineer and inventor who designed cameras.

He became interested in the ways that ordinary subjects appear when they are viewed and composed photographically. Nadel developed this interest by watching the way small children look at things.

"I kept thinking, What are they looking at?"

Nadel uses a camera with a macro, or close-up, lens. Due to severe allergies his prints are processed commercially.

"I don't use any darkroom manipulation. I try to get the honest image — as close as I can to the way that it looked," he said.

He said subjects of pictures like "Frozen Dew on a Blue Volvo" show a perspective of life that other people might rush past in an attempt to get an interesting picture of something out of the ordinary.

Nadel commented about the K-State Players' recent production of "Equus."

"I saw it Saturday night and despite some unsatisfactory acting, it still worked as a play. All of us were genuinely caught up in this. We were profoundly moved about it."

"It's hard even for a skillful professional company to do, and they pulled it off," Nadel said. "Charlotte's (MacFarland) ideas were sound even though she didn't succeed in getting them all across. The approach to the play was and is a valid one."

Nadel has no plans to return to K-State in the near future. But he said, "Everyone's talking like I'm coming back...so I guess I am."

Quintet highlights '50s music, pop in noon Catskeller performance

By MELISSA BRUNE
Collegian Reporter

The Streetside Quintet performed a variety of music from the '50s to contemporary pop in the Catskeller Tuesday.

The five vocalists forming the group, which has been together for three years, are: Matt Hinkin, junior in journalism and mass communications; Pete Buchanan, sophomore in general business; Kevin Shull, junior in music education; Peter Kahler; and Leroy Burke.

Around 60 students were on hand for the group's performance of such tunes as "At the Hop," "I Do," "Angel Eyes" and "The Lion Sleeps Tonight."

Although the quintet does not limit itself to '50s music, the members enjoy performing songs like these.

"Our main thing is harmony," Buchanan said. "Personally, I like the sounds of the chords. Another reason we stick to '50s is that it appeals to everyone."

The use of puppets added variety to the show as the group performed a selection from "The Muppet Movie." Ralph the Dog and Kermit the Frog sang a duet about their troubles with women entitled, "I Hope that Something Better Comes Along." Hinkin and Burke handled puppets while Kahler and Shull sang the lyrics.

The quintet performed a medley of commercial tunes, beginning with the current theme song for Wendy's. They also sang the Oceans of Fun, Mr. Bubble and Kidalong Kids themes. They would like to add the new Hi-C Drink commercial to their medley, Hinkin said.

Shifting to a more contemporary style, Burke performed a solo on Lionel Richie's "My Love." The group also performed "Lady," a tune by the Little River Band.

"There's not one person who sings the melody on every song," Hinkin said. Although Kahler is considered the lead singer, Hinkin said the lead part shifts so everyone has some exposure.

"He (Kahler) is the one that runs the group," Hinkin said. "We don't start with music in front of us. Kahler gets recordings of old songs like the Beach Boys. We just pick it up off the recordings, and then we edit the songs."

This is not the first time the group has performed in front of an audience, however, it is its first Nooner performance.

"We're all used to singing in front of people," Buchanan said. He said that the quintet has been singing together since the five were in high school.

In addition to performing at the Nooner, the Streetside Quintet also sang at Arts in the Park last summer and numerous other events.

"We've been invited to sing at banquets and house meetings, clubs and Mothers' Weekends, and we are available to do more," Hinkin said.

BALLOON BOUTIQUE
DON'T FORGET OCT. 16th,
BOSS'S DAY!

619 N. 3rd 539-0106

Apple
STATION
RESTAURANT & BAR
OH MY...
IT'S BOTTOMS UP
EVERY THURS.!

- 3 Fers
(well drinks 9-10:00)
- 2 Fers
(well drinks 10-12:00)

50¢ TGIF HORS D'OEUVRES & DRINK SPECIALS!

Laventhol & Horwath
Certified Public Accountants

A Member of Horwath & Horwath International With Affiliated Offices Worldwide

L & H IS NOT FOR EVERYONE,
BUT IT MAY BE RIGHT FOR YOU.

Accounting firms, like people, have distinctive styles and personalities. At Laventhol & Horwath, we go beyond the routine to provide an extra dimension in service to all clients, large and small. We take special pride in the quality and variety of service to our entrepreneurial clients — the mainstream of our practice.

Our ideas, attitudes and approaches are different and may not appeal to everyone. But for the right people, we'll provide the foundation for a successful future. We're looking for smart, responsive, well-rounded business people. If you're looking for a distinctive opportunity with one of the fastest growing accounting firms in the U.S., then we'd like to talk to you.

Send your resume in confidence to:

Lawrence D. Morris, Jr.
Director of Recruiting
Laventhol & Horwath
1100 CharterBank Center
920 Main Street
Kansas City, Missouri 64105

We are an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

PUBLIC NOTICE

Stereo Factory has been authorized by Technics to sell thousands of dollars worth of Technics stereo gear that was recovered from a hi fi dealer who recently went out of business. Most of these Technics are new, in a box and will be sold at dealer cost and below ... with owner's manuals and original warranties. Saturday at ten AM, Stereo Factory in Aggieville, Manhattan will open its doors to the public for this factory authorized Technics buy out sale. All Technics home stereo items involved in this sale will be at dealer cost or below. In the first car stereo booth all demo units on display will be at dealer cost or below, also. All sales are on a first come first serve basis. All sales must be cash, check, Visa or Mastercharge and all sales are final. No trade-ins, no layaways. Stereo Factory has been authorized by Technics to sell thousands of dollars worth of Technics stereo gear recovered from a hi fi dealer who recently went out of business ... and we will sell it ... at dealer cost and below ... Saturday from ten til five ... only at Stereo Factory in Aggieville, Manhattan, because we are stereo.

Examples of the Values

TECHNICS

Your Cost is DEALER COST

Turntables — 16 models to choose from

	Reg.	Dealer Cost
SL B200 .....	110.00	74.00
SL-5 .....	200.00	136.00
SL-6 .....	260.00	177.50
SL-10 .....	620.00	397.00
SLBL-3 .....	180.00	124.00
SLB-100 .....	90.00	65.00

Cassette Decks — 5 models to choose from

RSM 205 .....	130.00	93.00
RSM 222 .....	300.00	199.50

Receivers — 3 models to choose from

STEREO FACTORY

1126 Moro
Aggieville

Limited to Store Stock
10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday Only

MANHATTAN
SHOE REPAIR

Open daily 8-5:30, Saturday 8-1
Drive-Up Convenience
401 Humboldt 776-1193

WE'LL KEEP YOU
IN THE BLACK

kinko's copies

Monday-Thursday 8-8 Saturday 10-5
Friday 8-6 Sunday 12-5
1126 Laramie in Aggieville
537-7340

BUSHWACKER'S
THE
FUNDRIKERY
50¢ OFF any lunch
at the
BUSHWACKER EATERY
Try our Hot Hoagie

Open 11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m., 5 p.m.-1 a.m.
531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

Manhattan's
Favorite Radio Station...

97fm

We Play Your Music!

Looking to get involved?

Applications are being accepted for Coordinator of Finances and Elections Committee Members.

Applications due Friday,
Oct. 21 at 5:00 p.m.
at SGA Office.

For more info call 532-6541.

THE GASLIGHT
BOUTIQUE

SOCKS SOCKS AND MORE SOCKS IN PLAIDS, STRIPES,
SOLIDS, ARGYLES,
HEATHERS,
NORWEGIAN
AND EVEN DUCKS!

1118 Moro

Moonlight
Sale
THURSDAY ONLY
3 - 11 pm

SWEATERS
BUY 1 GET 1 FREE

10% OFF REG. MERCHANDISE

SWEATERS

5.99 & 9.99 REG. $25.00

SKI JACKETS

19.99 REG. $60.00

DRESSES & JUMPSUITS

19.99 REG. $60.00

CORD PANTS

9.99 REG. $20.00

BLOUSES

9.99 REG. $20.00

SWEAT TOPS & PANTS

9.99 REG. $30.00

1130 Moro
Open
Mon-Sat 10-6:00
Thurs 10-8:30
Sun 12-5

carouse

Aggieville
Open
Mon-Sat 10-6:00
Thurs 10-8:30
Sun 12-5

Hawaiian union leader defies AFL-CIO

By The Associated Press

HONOLULU — The former construction worker who runs the AFL-CIO in Hawaii is defying the authority of national AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, who wants him to step aside until a federal perjury indictment against the Hawaiian official is settled.

Walter H. Kupau, state AFL-CIO president for 14 years, got a cheer when he told delegates at the Hawaii AFL-CIO convention that he didn't "accept threats" and that he wouldn't quit.

"If he (Kirkland) wants to do something, let him do something. I'm not going to walk away from a challenge."

Now he is waiting for Kirkland's reaction.

"He moved, I jumped, and now it is his move," Kupau said in an interview at the Carpenters Union headquarters here.

"When you get elected on the local level, you have to reflect the wishes of those that elected you," said Kupau, 47. A ring of keys jangled from his hip as he shifted in his seat in his second floor office. Like many of his men, he wore an open-neck shirt and blue jeans.

Kupau was unanimously elected to a new two-year term at the convention Sept. 10. Kirkland sent an emissary, Alan Kistler, who read a letter to delegates and Kupau in which Kirkland asked Kupau to take a leave of absence "until the criminal charges against you are dismissed or you are otherwise exonerated."

"If you do not do so, I will have no choice but to take all necessary steps to bar you from holding office in the Hawaii state AFL-CIO," the letter said.

"They are defying my right to be elected and serve in union office," Kupau said in the interview.

But Kirkland noted in the letter that he wasn't seeking to interfere in Kupau's re-election, acknowledging that was "totally the business of the delegates."

Kirkland and other AFL-CIO officials are pondering their next move.

Rex Hardesty, spokesman for the national AFL-CIO in Washington, has said the "president's office holds absolute authority."

Kirkland was touring Central America this week as a member of the Kissinger commission and was unavailable for comment. But in Washington, sources within the federation who declined to be identified indicated that there was no imminent move to expel Kupau, and that AFL-CIO officials wanted to learn more details of the indictment.

Kupau has been active in Hawaii's labor community for 23 years, rising from Waikiki construction worker in 1960 to financial secretary of Local 745 of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

Kupau said the organization he now leads represents about 40 unions with an estimated 46,000 members. He is paid about $60,000 by the carpenter's union, but the position of state AFL-CIO president is unpaid.

A federal grand jury indicted Kupau Aug. 18 on seven counts of perjury in connection with threats allegedly made to a non-union contractor, Walter Mungovan, on the island of Maui in 1981. Kupau has pleaded innocent to the charges. A trial date has been set for early November.

The indictment alleges that Kupau lied in a Feb. 23, 1981, affidavit on the purpose of union picketing at Mungovan's business. Kupau said in the affidavit that pickets at Mungovan's construction site were protesting substandard wages paid by the contractor, but federal prosecutors allege that the informational picketing was an attempt to pressure Mungovan into signing a union contract.

Mungovan, who testified at the federal trial, has been given a new identity and relocated away from Hawaii under the federal Witness Protection Program.

Soviets may halt talks if U.S. deploys missiles

By The Associated Press

GENEVA, Switzerland — Soviet and U.S. negotiators met Wednesday to discuss limiting medium-range missiles in Europe and scheduled their next session as usual, despite reports of a possible breakdown in talks.

But senior Kremlin spokesman Leonid Zamyatin, visiting West Germany, warned that the Soviets would leave the negotiating table if no results were forthcoming and if NATO's new Pershing missiles are deployed in Western Europe in December as planned.

U.S. officials in Washington said Tuesday that the Soviet Union was threatening to break off the talks if NATO goes ahead with deployment.

In Bonn, the West German government said talk of a breakoff in the negotiations was part of a "war of nerves" designed to heat up anti-missile protests, but that the government is "firmly convinced that both sides in Geneva remain willing to negotiate."

In Moscow, West German Parliament members met with Soviet officials and said they do not expect the Soviet Union to pull out of the missile talks even if NATO goes ahead with the deployment.

Zamyatin told a German-Soviet colloquium in Hamburg that the Soviet Union came to Geneva with the goal of "reducing existing atomic potentials in Europe" but is now ready to "continue the negotiations in order to reach a reduction and limitation of medium-range missiles."

However, should "a situation arise" whereby new Pershing 2 rockets are deployed in Europe, there "would be no continuation of the Geneva talks," he said.

Zamyatin is chief of the International Information Department of the Soviet Communist Party Central Committee, and his statements are believed to reflect high-level Kremlin thinking.

Officials report third rape in Manhattan in five days

By The Collegian Staff

A 23-year-old woman became Manhattan's third rape victim in five days in an attack outside her home in northwest Manhattan early Tuesday morning.

The woman was attacked as she approached her front door, said Lt. Steve French of the Riley County Police Department. The suspect was hiding in some shrubbery near the front door of the house.

French said the woman screamed as the man grabbed her. The man told the woman he had a gun and he would kill her if she screamed again, he said. The woman was knocked to the ground, and he used her shirt to cover her eyes, French said, adding that the rape victim never saw a gun.

The rape occurred in a secluded area near the woman's house, French said.

The suspect was reported to be a black male, 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighing approximately 200 pounds. He has a short afro haircut and was wearing a white T-shirt.

According to the police report, a woman caller who lives in the 1600 block of Cedar Crest reported to police at 12:09 a.m. Tuesday that she heard a woman scream. A short while later she called again and reported that she saw two subjects running through her backyard toward Dickens Avenue.

The police said they assume the two subjects running through the woman's yard were the rape victim and the suspect.

The police responded to the prowler call and found nothing unusual.

The police received the rape call at 12:42 a.m.

"The rape took place quite a distance from the address of the prowler call," French said.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING STUDENTS

PRE-ENROLLMENT COUNSELING URGED

Make an appointment NOW with:
PROF. HUNT IN Durland 263

Preferential treatment at pre-enrollment time for those counseled now.

1st. Quality Women's Shoes - Everyday For Only $14.90

JUST IN!
AGAIN!!
DON'T MISS THESE!!

4 MORE CASES of the last of Dr. Scholl's.

This time it's the basic Pump in black or brown; 1 1/2" heel; lots of narrows!

ONLY $18.90! VALUES WELL OVER $40.00

We still have a few of the Scholl Pigskin Casuals also.

LADY FOOT SHOES - 221 Poyntz

DIAMOND GALLERY
"Wholesale to the Public"

We are Diamond & Karat Gold Jewelry experts.

WE OFFER A FULL REFUND GUARANTEE—SEE HOW MANY JEWELRY STORES ARE THAT CONFIDENT IN THEIR DIAMONDS.

Gold Wedding Bands

14 Karat	From $48.00
10 Karat	From $30.00

90 Day Layaway
Trade-ins Welcome
We buy Jewelry

1817 Ft. Riley Blvd.
539-0240 Open 10-6 Mon.-Sat.

"UPC... We do it right!"

UPCOMING EVENTS

Thursday, Oct. 13

Outdoor Rec—Outdoor Awareness Day: Pedestrian Island 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

Issues & Ideas—LTAI—Tuition: Stay the Course? with Norman Brandeberry: Catskeller 12 noon.

Kaleidoscope—Blood Wedding: LT 3:30, FH 7:30 p.m.

Travel—Snowmass/Aspen Info Meeting: Union Rm. 207 7 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 14

Travel—Snowmass/Aspen sign up begins: Activities Center 8 a.m.-3 p.m.

Feature Films—Still of the Night: FH 7 & 9:30 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 15

Feature Films—Alice in Wonderland: FH 2 p.m.

Feature Films—Still of the Night: FH 7 & 9:30 p.m.

Sunday, Oct. 16

Feature Films—Alice in Wonderland: FH 2 p.m.

Monday, Oct. 17

Kaleidoscope—Effie Briest: FH 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday, Oct. 18

Coffeehouse—Nooner—Kevin Chase: Catskeller 12 noon.

Kaleidoscope—Effie Briest: FH 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday, Oct. 19

Kaleidoscope—The Weavers: FH 7:30 p.m.

Reminder

Sign up to perform at this year's first Open Mike Night (Oct. 20) in the Activities Center, 3rd Floor, K-State Union.

♿ Spaces available at our events.

k-state union
program council

Let's Talk About...

Tuition: Stay the Course?

Norman Brandeberry
Member, Board of Regents

TODAY
Catskeller, 12 noon
Free Admission

Fassbinder

Offie Briest

Monday and Tuesday
October 17 and 18
7:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.50

Part of the German Director Fassbinder Series.

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

Thursday, Oct. 13
3:30 p.m. Little Theatre
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
$1.50

Part of the International Film Series.

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

OUTDOOR AWARENESS DAY

Join us for a day of exhibits and find out what activities and organizations are available to you that share your interest in the great outdoors.

k-state union
upc outdoor rec.

TODAY, Oct. 13
10 a.m.-3 p.m.

Union pedestrian island

(Union Courtyard in case of rain.)

Saturday, Oct. 15
2:00 p.m.
Sunday, Oct. 16
2:00 & 7:00 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.50

k-state union
upc feature films

Friday & Saturday
Oct. 14 & 15
7 & 9:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.50

k-state union
upc feature films

Dupree runs out of luck; Switzer punts star off squad

By The Associated Press

NORMAN, Okla. — Marcus Dupree, the outstanding sophomore tailback at the University of Oklahoma, was dropped from the team Wednesday by Coach Barry Switzer for failing to return to campus the past three days.

Dupree left the team after Oklahoma's 28-16 loss to the University of Texas in Dallas last weekend and has not rejoined the Sooners, Switzer said.

"As of now, he's off the team," Switzer told The Associated Press. "He's probably off hiding, in seclusion somewhere with his friends. I don't know."

Dupree had been given permission to visit his family in Philadelphia, Miss., after the Texas game, but did not return for practice Monday and was still missing Wednesday.

Switzer's office said Dupree's mother, Cella Dupree Connors, telephoned to say she was told Dupree was all right and still in Mississippi. But Mrs. Connors told The AP she was unsure of her son's whereabouts on Wednesday.

Dupree stayed in Mississippi on Monday, but was to have taken the "first plane back" to Norman on Tuesday morning, his mother said. A friend was to have taken Dupree to the airport in Jackson, Miss.

Switzer would not rule out the possibility that Dupree could return to the team, but said, "When he didn't show up Monday the team was very upset. The only way he could come back is if they want him and I don't think they do."

Dupree, who suffered a bruised knee in a 24-14 loss to Ohio State on Sept. 17 and missed the following game with Tulsa, has gained 369 yards on 63 carries this season and managed only 50 in 14 carries against Texas.

"He doesn't want to play football. He's told too many people that and there have been too many indications of that," Switzer said. "This is really a tragic waste. He's obviously a superb talent, but the kid's got some problems."

Dupree's absence from the team capped a tumultuous season in which the highly touted 19-year-old was criticized by Switzer, the media and some of his teammates for his attitude toward the game and training.

He gained 905 yards his freshman season and racked up 239 in the Sooners' 32-21 loss to Arizona State in the Fiesta Bowl on New Year's Day. But Switzer blasted Dupree after the game for being tackled from behind several times and hinted his star pupil was out of shape.

The 6-foot-3, 235-pound Dupree pulled a hamstring in the Fiesta Bowl, causing him to miss the entire 20-day spring workout session, further angering Switzer.

Then, during the summer, Sports Illustrated magazine reported that Dupree "hates it at Oklahoma, and his relationship with Switzer, which was barely cordial to begin with, has seriously deteriorated."

Both player and coach denied the report, but Dupree then missed the first day of fall drills and canceled several scheduled interview sessions.

Last week, Dupree was quoted in USA Today, the national newspaper, as saying he considered leaving school earlier this season and enrolling at a school in Mississippi.

Dupree has been mentioned as a prospective target of the young United States Football League, which last year signed undergraduate Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker from the University of Georgia.

But Commissioner Chet Simmons, contacted at USFL headquarters in New York, said he had not been aware that Dupree was off the team and reiterated previous statements that the league would have no interest in signing him "until his class is graduated or until his eligibility expires."

"We would not touch him," Simmons said. "I'm disappointed he's off the team, for whatever reasons there are. Everybody in this league is well aware of what our policies are."

"If anybody starts to talk to him, that team will be subject to very, very severe disciplinary action, and any contract signed by him would be disallowed by this office," Simmons said.

Staff/John Slezzer

Diving effort

K-State's Renee Whitney reaches for the ball in time to keep it in play during last night's volleyball game against the University of Missouri. The Wildcats lost three straight matches to the Tigers 15-9, 15-9, 15-10 at Ahearn Field House.

FINANCE CLUB

Professional Meeting

Featuring: John Pittman from B.C. Christopher Speaking on: "Financial Futures Markets"
Thursday, Oct. 13th
7:00 p.m.
Union Room 208

TV SPORTS: World Series

Friday 7:00
Saturday at Noon
Football
NU vs. MU
Saturday at 2:30

BEAT KU WEEK!

- ★ Tapes of previous KSU victories in football, basketball, volleyball
  - ★ "Eat 'Em Up" shirts on sale
- Betcha didn't know ...
KU coach Mike Gottfried has never defeated the Wildcats—let's keep it that way!

OCTOBER BANDS:

"Powerglide"
This Thurs., Fri., Sat.
"Sneak Preview"
20th, 21st, 22nd
"Kidd Band"
27th, 28th, 29th

GRAND SLAM
4 for 1's tonight

Laramie at 12th—Aggieville
Office: 539-0525, Bar 539-9849

Thursday
Jack nite
&
Black Velvet
1.50 ea (9-3)

at
COWBOY PALACE

Where it don't make no difference
209 Payne 539-9828
4:00pm to 3:00am

DARK HORSE

TAVERN

Thursday
$ Dollar Days $
$1 Cover
$1.25 Pitchers
7-Midnight

619 N. Manhattan

Love
is Blind . . .

But you don't have to be.
We Specialize in Contact Lenses . . .

Tinted (to change
the color of your eyes) Extended Wear (to sleep with) Bifocal (for reading difficulties)

Regular Type (for near and far sightedness)
Toric (for astigmatism)
Oxygen Permeable
(rigid)

Replacement Lenses and Solutions in Stock.

Dr. Paul E. Bullock, P.A.

Practice of Optometry

776-9461

404 Humboldt

TAKE YOUR PURPLE
PRIDE TO KU!
K-WHO??

PURCHASE ANY CLOTHING ITEM WITH "K-STATE" PURPLE AND RECEIVE A 20% DISCOUNT!
(NOW UNTIL SAT., OCT. 15th!)

"WE'RE MORE THAN JUST A JEAN STORE."
THE JEAN STATION

MON.-SAT.
10-6

THURS.
10-8:30

KAMAN SCIENCES WILL BE INTERVIEWING ON YOUR CAMPUS

OCTOBER 26

For Details, See Your Placement Office Today!

Kaman Sciences Corporation — a subsidiary of Kaman Corporation — is a leader in sciences and technology for business and industry. Headquartered in Colorado Springs, Colorado, Kaman Sciences plays an integral role in the development of some of our nation's most important Research and Development programs.

If you have a BS, MS or PhD in:

- Electrical Engineering
- Physics
- Mathematics
- Computer Sciences
- Or in related engineering disciplines

We would like to talk with you. We want to tell you about our work in diversified areas of analytical and experimental research, including high technology applications in electromagnetic theory. You'll also learn the entire scope of Kaman Sciences and of the opportunities with us in: Colorado Springs, Santa Barbara, Santa Monica, Albuquerque, Arlington, VA and Burlington, MA.

Take the time to sign up for an interview at your Placement Office. If you cannot meet with us when we are on campus, send your resume and/or letter outlining your qualifications and interests to:

Mrs. Diana Shuck
Professional Placement
Kaman Sciences Corporation
P.O. Box 7463
1500 Garden of the Gods Road
Colorado Springs, CO 80933

KAMAN SCIENCES CORPORATION

Invest In Your Future ... At Kaman

SCI-TECH BOOK SALE

65-90%
SAVINGS
OFF
ORIGINAL
PUBLISHED
PRICES

Come pick up a stack of high-level scientific and technical books from leading publishers. Our selection ranges through numerous disciplines including physics, chemistry, medicine, mathematics, engineering, computers and more. Your savings range from a tremendous 65% to an unbelievable 90%.

BOOKS PRICED
FROM .99¢ - $5.99

k-state union
bookstore

0301

During the KSU / KU Game

We'll be Open for
42 HOURS

From 6 a.m. Saturday to 12 Midnight Sunday

- 2 Drive-up windows for fast service
- Breakfast served from 6 a.m. - 10:30 a.m. Saturday
2 a.m. - 10:30 a.m. Sunday

Vista
RESTAURANTS

1527 W 6th

Pro athletes unfairly blamed for high salaries

Money, money, money. These words were the opening lyrics for a song in the early '70s. But today in the world of competitive sports, money seems to determine the destiny of many professional clubs and athletes.

An example are three well-known baseball players: Dave Winfield, New York Yankees; Mike Schmidt, Philadelphia Phillies; and Gary Carter of the Montreal Expos. They will make more money than the 45-man roster of America's team, the Dallas Cowboys.

Another professional athlete, basketball player Scott Wedman, formerly of the Kansas City Kings, now with the Cleveland Cavaliers, last season earned a salary of $700,000 while the team owner claimed a $3.5 million loss the year before.

What in the world is happening in the world of sports?

Every year with the end of baseball comes the talk of the upcoming free agent market. And with the beginning of pro basketball, everyone is reading about rookies or well-established pros holding out on a team until all financial considerations are par to the player's expectations.

The Kansas City Chiefs football team are experiencing a holdout, Gary Barbaro, who is demanding that the team pay him more money before he returns. The Chiefs have made their final offer to Barbaro's agent, in turn, he felt the Chiefs' offer was inadequate for his client.

SEAN REILLY
Sports Editor

As of Tuesday night, the Chiefs did not trade Barbaro to another team and he mentioned he will now seek employment in the United States Football League.

Call them greedy, callous to consideration of fan participation, just down and outright un-American — right — wrong.

I once believed that the professional athletes, who I admired and still do, were great until the demand for high salaries became more essential to their well being rather than their playing for entertainment.

No more, correct, I no longer hold athletes responsible for the salary they ask for and receive. How can you blame an individual for what others give?

Once when viewing a news interview on television between a sportscaster and George Brett of the Kansas City Royals baseball team, the interviewer asked Brett several questions.

One of those questions concerned Brett's request for more money from the Royals. What seemed more ridiculous was the fact that Brett's million-dollar contract was beginning its first year.

Brett responded to the sportscaster, "I simply asked for more money from the club. Never did I mention that I would become a holdout from the team."

"Let me ask you," Brett said to the sportscaster, "If you thought you might be able to receive more money in your salary from the TV station wouldn't you ask for more? Sure you would."

As simple as Brett's logic may seem, it is true.

Orioles whip Phillies, 4-1

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Rookie Mike Boddicker pitched a three-hitter and drove in a run in only his second major league at-bat as the Baltimore Orioles evened the 1983 World Series at one game apiece Wednesday night with a 4-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Boddicker, a right-hander throwing a "fosh ball" — a combination forkball-changeup — allowed only an infield single by Joe Morgan in the fourth inning, a two-out single by Gary Matthews in the seventh and a bloop single by Bo Diaz in the eighth. Facing only three more batters than the minimum 27, he struck out three of the first four batters he faced and Orioles' outfielders were called upon for only four putouts.

JV football travels to Omaha for game against Nebraska

By KEVIN DALE
Staff Writer

K-State's junior varsity football team — after having an undefeated season last year — will begin its 1983 season this week with a game against the University of Nebraska-Omaha junior varsity. The game is at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Omaha, Neb.

The "Cats defeated Nebraska-Omaha last year 28-7 and are looking to start this season on a winning note.

Junior varsity consists of mainly freshmen and sophomores who are not red-shirted or who are not on the varsity travel squad. The team is coached by Bob Lindsey and other graduate coaching assistants.

"I am just the head coach by name," Lindsey said. "All of the graduate assistants get together and coach the team."

The coaches try to keep the junior varsity offensive and defensive schemes down to the basics of the varsity.

"We have a few running and passing plays and a few basic defenses, but we do not get as complicated as the varsity," Lindsey said. "We stay for a while after the varsity practice so that our players will know their assignments and also we try to teach them something about the team we are going to play."

He said the scouting of opponents is not as involved as with the varsity but they still try to find out a little about them.

"Usually we will give the other team a call," he said. "We will tell them what we are going to do and they will tell us what they are going to do."

"We don't spend long hours watching films like the varsity coaches do. All we try to do is get some kind of idea of what we are going to run into so the players will be ready."

The main purpose of junior varsity is to give some younger players a chance to get some game experience and possibly have a shot of moving up to varsity.

"We have people move from junior varsity to varsity all the time," Lindsey said. "If a varsity player gets injured a junior varsity player may move up depending on the depth at the position."

"The junior varsity games are the only ones some of these guys get to play in so they go out there and really go at it. They all come to play."

Lindsey said the atmosphere of junior varsity is a little bit lighter than varsity, even at the games.

"The players want to win and the close games can get intense," he said. "But usually things are not as serious as they are during a varsity game."

Junior varsity plays small junior colleges and area colleges along with some Big Eight Conference junior varsities. This year, the team has a schedule including Nebraska-Omaha, Haskell Indian Community College, University of Nebraska junior varsity, and Highland Community College.

The junior varsity team also combines with the red-shirts to run the opposing team's offenses and defenses for varsity. Lindsey said it's possible for a player to learn a lot about football by being on the scout team.

"It really depends on the player," he said. "He can just stand out there and go through the motions or he can really pay attention to how the different schemes work and what we try to do against them. If the player puts a lot into it he will come out a better football player."

During practice, junior varsity players work with varsity players in individual position drills. In these drills, younger players get a chance to learn some fundamentals of the game from more experienced players.

"The junior varsity players work hard in practice," Lindsey said. "They do everything the other players do — they are trying to get a chance to play varsity ball and right now this is the only way they are going to get to play in a game."

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

ANNOUNCEMENT 01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale — Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. Monday-Friday, 50¢ for students with ID and $1 for all others. (281f)

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours: Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Mares, 1631 Humboldt, 539-5299. (32-59)

BUS TRIP for KU-K-State game, October 15, $22. For more information, call 349-2221. (34-39)

HEY YOU Washington County K-Staters! Get naked at the KU victory party at Penny's. See you 'Cats after the game Saturday. Be there... Kathy T. will! (38)

ATTENTION 02

TRAVEL—We will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (11f)

ENGLISH GRADUATES! Thinking of Graduate School? Small is beautiful. Graduate Assistantships—Spring 1984. Selection begins immediately. Division of English and Foreign Languages, Emporia State University, Emporia, KS 66801. Write or call 1-316-343-1200. ext. 216. (35-39)

FANTASY-GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

SKYDIVE!!

The KSU Parachute Club will meet tonight in U206 at 8 p.m. Be there or be square!!

FOR GREAT music at your next function, dance or party, dial 539-7512 for D.J. Dave Guthals. (34-41)

COZUMEL—YUCATAN Peninsula—Mexico, Yucatan Field Course: Natural History. Three biology credits, Winter Intersession, January 2-15 from Johnson County Community College. For more information, 1-888-0170. (37-39)

GUITAR LESSONS—All styles, all ages. Will consider teaching in your home. Call 537-0913. (38)

FOR RENT—MISC 03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11f)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Huitt Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11f)

HALLOWEEN COSTUMES—Sales and rentals, masks, make-up, accessories. The Emporium, 11th and Moro in Aggieville. (35-49)

FOR RENT—APTS 04

EFFICIENCY APARTMENT, $225, furnished. Call KSU Foundation, 532-7166. Available immediately. (34-38)

BRAND NEW two bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. Call 776-3804. (35-44)

CLOSE TO campus—large, very nice, two bedroom plus den. Sharing can make this economical. 539-2731. (35-39)

LARGE, VERY nice, one-bedroom apartment in quiet location, close to campus. $240 per month. 776-0409. (37-39)

FOR RENT—HOUSES 05

FOUR to six bedroom house, three blocks from KSU. Stove, refrigerator, washer, dryer, $575/week plus utilities. Available immediately. 776-1649. (35-39)

THREE BEDROOM, one block from campus. $330/week plus utilities. Available immediately. 537-6168 or 776-1110. (36-39)

COUNTRY MOBILE home, place for horse, garden. Ten minutes from Manhattan. Prefer married couple, 1-494-2489. (37-39)

FOR SALE—AUTO 06

1973 PONTIAC Lemans Sport Coupe, 86,000 miles, silver with red interior, very good condition. Will accept any reasonable offer. Call Tracy at 776-4912 afternoons, 539-1945 evenings. (37-38)

SOUND 1972 Chevy Impala—V8, four door, air, automatic, power steering, cruise, $750 or best offer. 539-2114. (37-39)

1961 MGA convertible roadster. Excellent condition. Also good transmission and rebuildable block for MGB. 776-0717. (37-41)

1974 FORD Ranchero Squire, power brakes, power steering, air conditioning, automatic, tilt wheel, power windows, cruise. Includes top. $1,300 or best offer. 1-456-8212 evenings. (38-39)

VW BAJA Bug—Good condition, runs well. Must sell, sacrifice for $600. Call 539-8438. (38)

1976 FIAT X16, excellent condition. New paint, engine, interior, $2500. Call 532-6364. (38-39)

FOR SALE—MISC 07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risqué greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (lt. blue), USC (white)-others, $12.50 each postpaid. S-M-L-XL. Send check to L.M.G. Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-601-635-1085. (38-45)

PIONEER PL-800 linear tracking turntable, one year old. Includes cartridge and needle. For information and price, call David at 776-7039. (36-39)

GE MICRO cassette tape recorder with extra cassettes, battery powered. Call 539-3635. (36-39)

EMBROIDERED DRESSES—Beautiful hand-embroidered dresses from Mexico. Pure cotton, comfortable, inexpensive. Great for gift-giving. Write for information. Montezuma's Revenge, Box 50150, Austin, Texas 78763. (38-45)

DINETTE SET—Dark pine with four matching mate chairs. Very good condition, $175. Call 539-4203 after 6:00 p.m. (36-40)

REGISTERED QUARTER horse, three years old, and all riding gear. $600/make offer. 776-1460. Kurt. (36-38)

VW BUG ACCESSORIES

Chrome wheel rings, door handles, hub caps, valve covers, upholstery kits, walnut dash knobs.

1-494-2388 J & L Bug Service.

PC 100 C Printer for TI 59 or 58 C and three rolls of paper, built in battery charger. 539-3635. (36-39)

CHEST OF drawers, wooden desks, dressers, oak chairs, swivel desk chair, and miscellaneous items. Call 776-9705. (37-39)

EXCELLENT CONDITION Boston Acoustics (80's) two-way speakers, (one pair), $160. Call Peter at 537-9218 evenings. If no answer try 776-5061. (37-39)

ELECTRIC BOHN typewriter, Royal manual typewriter, Record-A-Call answering machine, good condition, cheap! 539-2449, Tim. (36-40)

DELUXE OLIVETTI typewriter. Perfect condition. Call 532-6715, ask for Pete. (38-42)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES 08

1982 LIBERTY, two bedroom, central air, appliances, low utility bills, Colonial Gardens, $10,900 negotiable. 776-0055. (34-38)

NEED TO sell in two weeks—1980, 14' x 60' Sharo, furnished. Call 539-2784 after 4:30 p.m. (35-40)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES 09

1977 Suzuki, 11,200 miles, very good condition. Need money, must sell, $650. Call 539-4866 anytime. (37-41)

1980 YAMAHA XS 650 special, twin, oil cooler, windshield, may wheels, helmets, 7,500 miles. Nice bike, best offer. 537-9346. (37-39)

FOUND 10

FOUND—EYEGLASSES with initials KJP. Claim in Kedzie 103. (38-40)

GARAGE SALES 12

YARD SALE: Saturday, October 15, 9:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m., 1935 College Heights. Items include: furniture, record albums, ceramics, original art, household items, clothing and more. (37-39)

SATURDAY, October 15, 8:00 a.m.-12:00 noon—Gun case, couch/sleeper, baby items, women's/children's clothes, china, carpet squares. Corner Givens and Wornack. (38-39)

HELP WANTED 13

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write J.C. Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

BARTENDER WANTED for part-time employment at Last Chance Club. Must be 21 years of age. Apply in person after 1:00 p.m., 1215 Moro. (35-39)

TWO SALARIED positions available January 1, 1984. Music/Choir Director and Organist. Peace Lutheran Church, 2500 Kimball. Resume due October 21. Job description available upon request, 539-7371. (35-41)

POSITIONS AVAILABLE. Twenty-five undergraduates to serve as Learning Skills Seminar Leaders for Fall 1984. Applicants should have strong backgrounds in mathematics and/or the social sciences and good study skills. 10-12 hours weekly. Salary of $750 for Fall Semester. Selected applicants must successfully complete a training class, EDAP-311, Guidance for the Paraprofessional (3 hours academic credit) during Spring Semester, 1984. Contact Academic Assistance Center, room 204, Holton Hall, 532-6492. Apply by November 1. KSU is an equal opportunity employer. (35-39)

STUDENT IN Chemistry or Chemical Engineering, preferably a sophomore on work study, for computer work involving organic chemistry data. Applications available in 105 Durland Hall, Department of Chemical Engineering, K.S.U., is an equal opportunity employer. (37-39)

CHURCH NURSERY Attendant 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. September-May, $3.35/hour. Call 776-6790 between 8:30 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. Monday-Friday. (38-41)

PIZZA DELIVERY—Wage plus commission and tips. Needs car and liability. Apply in person, 716 North Third, 4:00-8:00 p.m. (38)

LOST 14

LOST FRIDAY: Gold bracelet with two pearls. Sentimental value. Please call 776-2124. (36-38)

LOST: PEWTER Wildcat lapel pin between Union-Kedzie. Keopsake. Modest reward: 532-6890, 537-7657. (37-39)

FRIDAY, October 7th, Eisenhower—Text book. It's very important that I get it back. Call 776-0713. (38-39)

PERSONAL 16

JANET WOODMAN—Lost your phone number. Call Dave, 776-4740 evenings. (35-38)

WANTED: IN all seriousness, female grad student seeks companionship of male (26-45 years) who understands time limitations, is intelligent, gentle and fun to be with. Write Pat at the Collegian, Box 4. (38-40)

TO: "The Blazer," Killer, M.U. Schrommer, and all you other unfortunate souls that headed the wrong way on I-70 in Fall '83. Come party with us on October 15 on the hill. Pre and post of course at my place. P.S. Hobbit too! (37-39)

JANEL LEVALLLEY... Good luck in the marathon this weekend! From: Kathy R. (38)

CHRISTIE H.—Happy 20th, C & H! Hope this is one you'll remember for a long time to come. L.A. (38)

BRIAN, HOPE your Birthday is special cause you're so special to me. Love, Lisa. (38)

AXO KONI—Happy 19th! Even though it'll be late, you can be sure we'll celebrate! Good luck on tomorrow's tests. AX love—Mom. (38)

AXO KRISTI—Happy 20th Birthday, Dot. We are looking forward to a great year with our new addition to the family! Love, Mom and Grandma. (38)

BIG BROTHER and Thermo Whiz Kid: You are receiving your first personal. You let it slip you're turning 23 soon, so happy 23rd when it comes. Remember two things: Never make it "Thunder or Fort Riley" bets when it's lightning out, and I want to be friends with all of you, not just your good side. Your Monday night football partner. (38)

ROOTY-POO, Rooty-Poo, I do love you. "Always and Forever" "You Are" "My Love." (38)

K.A.B.C.—Hope your weekend goes well! I'll miss you. We can have this if we both want it. Thanks for being there! How about a red Fiero? Maybe white? How about just us? Bermuda is nice this time of year. So is Arrowhead! Love, J.R. (38)

KAPPA ALPHA Theta's: U-Sing is slowly approaching, a song is in the air. Our voices joined together, and our hearts will get us there. All we have is each other, let's "Froogie" into the night, with a Song for the Asking, and let's win this Sunday night! Kappa Sigs. (38)

DEAR STAN—Happy two year anniversary! Hope there will be many more. I.L.Y. very much. Love, Cher. (38)

PAULA KAY—If what you say is true, then I think I do too. Let's make it work!—J. (38)

HEY CHIPPY—We're holding the chicken for ransom. Love, Eddie Haskell and The "Beav." (38)

MARK WEBB—Remember, it will always be three years and three months. Happy Birthday! L.Y.—S. (38)

ROOMMATE WANTED 17

ONE—THREE non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplace. Prefer ASI major or vet. Free stall, pasture for horse, cattle, dogs. $175/month, beef included. 776-1205. (35-38)

Captain Cosmo

By Doug Yearout

Bradley

By Mich Johnson

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Reagan approves bill for War Powers Act

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan signed legislation Wednesday authorizing U.S. Marines to stay in Lebanon for 18 more months, but denounced some of its provisions as arbitrary and inflexible and said they could encourage enemies to fire on Americans.

The measure, the product of long negotiations between the White House and Congress, marks the first time the 10-year-old War Powers Act has been invoked to govern the war-making powers of the president.

Reagan, who had promised in advance to sign the compromise measure, said the bill provides "important support for the United States presence and policies in Lebanon, and facilitates the pursuit of United States interests in that region on the bipartisan basis that has been the traditional hallmark of American foreign policy."

He said he signed the legislation "in full support of its policies, but with reservations about some of the specific congressional expressions."

A spokesman for House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., brushed aside the president's objections. "The most significant fact is not what he said, but what he did," said Christopher Matthews.

O'Neill's spokesman also reiterated the pledge the speaker made to his House colleagues to "personally monitor the president's compliance with the resolution" and to seek the immediate return of the Marines if the provisions of the resolution are not followed.

Despite demands from Congress, Reagan had refused to invoke the War Powers Act when the Marines first came under fire Aug. 29 in Beirut in fighting that eventually killed four Americans.

The law requires that U.S. forces involved in hostilities must be brought home within 90 days unless Congress declares war or votes to allow them to remain.

In a statement, Reagan argued that "isolated or infrequent acts of violence" do not necessarily constitute hostilities, even if there are casualties.

Faculty Senate approves procedures for trial hearing on Mahaffey case

By MICHELE SAUER
Staff Writer

Faculty Senate unanimously approved Tuesday procedures for the Committee to Hear a Case of the Dismissal of a Tenured Faculty Member to follow.

Ben Mahaffey, associate professor of forestry, who was suspended from University duties Sept. 1 and recommended for dismissal, appealed the action to senate. Because Mahaffey is possibly the first tenured professor to be fired in University history, no appeal procedures were known and senate had to draw up its own. To do so, it established the committee.

"We took the procedures intact," said Richard Gallagher, senate president and professor of electrical engineering. "Major discussion (in the senate meeting) centered around the confidentiality, or lack of confidentiality, of the hearing."

The committee shall be established according to Board of Regents' policy and will be a peer review of the faculty member's case.

According to the procedures, the committee will be comprised of six tenured faculty members, none of whom are administrative members.

One of the six will be the non-voting chairman.

All committee proceedings will be open, unless the faculty member requests them to be closed but committee deliberations will be closed.

Senate also approved the panel of 12 tenured faculty members to serve on the committee for the Mahaffey case and from the 12, "six will be selected to hear the case," Gallagher said.

"There are many variables in the timetable. It could be November or December before the hearing," he said.

Within 10 class days after the 12-member panel is named, a case's two parties, the administration and the faculty member, will meet to decide who will be on the committee. The two parties will then take turns removing three names each, one at a time, from the 12-member panel.

The six left comprise the committee to hear the case.

Within five days after the committee is chosen, the members will select the non-voting chairman.

Within five days of the chairman's selection, the chairman will provide to each party a copy of the grounds for the dismissal, a list of the membership of the committee and a notification of the date, time and place of the pre-hearing conference.

In other action, senate approved sending a statement to President Acker concerning scheduling of events during final exams.

"We are asking him not to schedule events during final exams," Gallagher said. "The senate is showing support for the statement. John Eck (chairman of the academic affairs committee and professor of physics) wrote a statement, and we are sending the major parts of Eck's letter to the president of the University."

According to Eck's letter, the Faculty Handbook states "University-sponsored events, on and off campus, shall not be scheduled to conflict with final examination sessions." Exceptions to these scheduling restrictions can be made only if approval is "obtained from the University provost and the Faculty Senate president." The approval must be obtained at least 18 weeks in advance of the event.

"We wish to reaffirm our support for the procedures detailed in the Faculty Handbook concerning the scheduling of events during final examination week," Eck wrote. "We feel these procedures are academically sound and fair to both faculty and students and seek your administration's support for the elimination of the abuses and blatant disregard for these established procedures."

AED

presents:

Dr. Richard Baker Jr., an orthopedic surgeon and sports medicine specialist will give a presentation

Tonight at 7:00

Union 205

Collegian Classifieds Where K-State Shops

Brother's
AGGIEVILLE

TONIGHT

DRINK 'N DROWN
with the BRATS

TGIF
with Brother's this FRIDAY

Support the FUI Leukemia Run
Tonight we'll donate 10¢ per pitcher

1120 Moro 539-9064

GET FRAMED!
Have your picture taken for Royal Purple

Today:
Theta Xi 8:30-10:00
Triangle 10:00-12:30
Boyd Hall 1:30-5:30

Tomorrow:
Boyd Hall 8:30-12:30
Clovie 1:30-5:30

Off-Campus people can still get pictures taken
Oct. 10-28

Union 209 539-5229

Bring your stamped fee card.

When it comes to pizza, PTA comes to you.
Pizza Transit Authority

BETTER PIZZA
BETTER DEAL

For Those Who LOVE Pizza . . .

A large one topping pizza and 4, 14 oz. Pepsi's
for $7.00

Diet Pepsi Also Available.
537-9500

1127 Moro Aggieville 013C
Not good with any other special.
Limit one coupon per pizza.
Expires Oct. 16, 1983

When it comes to pizza, PTA comes to you.
Pizza Transit Authority

BETTER PIZZA
BETTER DEAL

. . . AND For Those Who Are HUNGRY

A large three topping pizza and 4, 14 oz. Pepsi's
for $10.00

Diet Pepsi Also Available.
537-9500

1127 Moro Aggieville 013C
Not good with any other special.
Limit one coupon per pizza.
Expires Oct. 16, 1983

AIR Bards

WIN: • 1st Prize—a keg of beer
• 2nd Prize—a pizza party

Fall Flash Bash

*ENTER THE STUDENT FOUNDATION AIR BAND CONTEST NOVEMBER 4 AT 5TH STREET EXCHANGE.

*ENTRY FEE—$15.00 PER BAND (INCLUDES ADMISSION TO DANCE AND FREE BEER ALL NIGHT.)

*BANDS MAY ONLY USE HAND HELD PROPS.

*FIRST 8 BANDS TO REGISTER WILL BE THIS RARE OPPORTUNITY TO COMPETE AT OUR ALL UNIVERSITY DANCE.

AIR BAND REGISTRATION FORM
RETURN WITH $15 TO HOLLIS HOUSE BY FRIDAY, NOV. 4

NAME _____ PHONE _____

ADDRESS _____ # BAND MEMBERS _____

SPONSORED BY THE STUDENT FOUNDATION
HOLLIS HOUSE—532-6266

Home Town Chicken

We're home town folks and we care about quality and value. That's the difference . . . We use only fresh whole chickens, and we cut them ourselves (into eight pieces instead of the usual nine) to give you bigger pieces of white meat. Then, using just the right combination of seasonings, we cook it up fresh and delicious. Try Shorty's... taste the difference yourself. At Shorty's we care because we want to be your "Home Town Chicken Store."

2-Piece Snack Box $1.29
Each snack box contains two pieces of Crispy or Southern style chicken and a Biscuit.

2-Piece Dinner Box $2.09
Two pieces of Crispy or Southern Chicken, plus Fried Potatoes or Granny's Rice, Coleslaw, and a Biscuit.

3-Piece Dinner Box $2.49
Three pieces of Crispy or Southern Chicken, plus Fried Potatoes or Granny's Rice, Coleslaw, and a Biscuit.

All-You-Can-Eat Salad Bar 99¢
When you purchase two pieces chicken or more.

shorty's

Open: 7 Days
10:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

3002 Anderson
Manhattan, KS
539-0575

Rivalry

KU vs. K-State, what more need
be said?

Sports, page 12

Israel faces crisis as economist quits

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Finance Minister Yoram Aridor resigned Thursday, hours after he proposed a revolutionary scheme which would have linked the Israeli economy to the American dollar.

Aridor's plan to solve Israel's economic crisis was immediately assailed from all sides. Opponents said it would surrender Israeli independence and turn the country into America's "51st state." The Cabinet called an emergency session to discuss it, and a few minutes after the meeting began Aridor emerged and announced his resignation.

With Aridor gone his "dollarization" plan collapsed — within 12 hours of its first publication. But Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's newly installed government faced its first Cabinet crisis.

The dollarization drama began Thursday morning when the daily Yedioth Ahronoth reported that Aridor was proposing to cure Israel's money troubles by wiring its economy into the American dollar.

Aridor confirmed the report, saying he believed dollarization — his own term — would reduce Israel's triple-digit annual inflation to the level of inflation of other Western economies.

As Aridor explained it, Israel's existing system of automatically compensating salary earners for inflation had led to "terrible distortions in the economy." Wages and prices were constantly pushing each other up, and "somewhere along the line we have to break this vicious circle."

Thus he proposed linking all salaries and debts to the dollar and abolishing compensation for inflation.

The proposal was met with outrage from within the Cabinet as well as from the political opposition. Aridor's critics charged that the plan would leave Israel entirely at the mercy of American benevolence.

Staff/Allen Eyestone

Wildcat pride

Wildcat dancer, Cathy Spain, junior in finance, concentrates on a routine Thursday afternoon at the band practice field. The dancers were working out with the KSU Marching Band and Pridettes in preparation for the halftime show at the K-State vs. University of Kansas football game Saturday in Lawrence.

Attack injures Marine on guard in Lebanon

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — An assailant in a speeding car hurled a hand grenade at American Marines guarding the temporary offices of the U.S. Embassy in Beirut on Thursday, slightly wounding one of them, an Embassy spokesman said.

John Stewart, the spokesman, said the grenade was thrown at the main Marine security checkpoint in front of the Durafor building. "The Marines had no time to react. The car sped off toward the (heart of the) city," Stewart said.

He said "one Marine was slightly injured," but would not give the name or the rank of the wounded guard.

U.S. Embassy offices were set up at the beachfront building after the bombing of the U.S. Embassy, about 400 yards away, on April 18. That bomb demolished the entire facade of the embassy, killing 63 people, including 17 Americans.

A spokesman for the 1,600-man U.S. Marine contingent in Beirut, Maj. Robert Jordan, said the wounded Marine was a member of the peacekeeping force guarding the embassy and not one of the regular embassy guards.

Jordan said the Marine was wounded "in the upper left leg and ankle" in the attack at 7:30 p.m. (1:30 p.m. EDT). He was evacuated to the U.S. Marine compound at Beirut airport for treatment "and he is in good condition."

Four Marines have been killed and 40 wounded in grenade attacks and bombardments on the positions of the U.S. peacekeepers since Lebanon's latest round of violence began Aug. 28.

Inside

Several students are planning a cruise to Lawrence this weekend in their customized "party wagon." See page 8.

Education 'cheap' in Kansas says Regent Brandeberry

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Reporter

Program cuts, fewer building projects and higher tuition are in the future for Kansas Board of Regents institutions.

That's what Regent Norman Brandeberry told listeners at noon Thursday in the Union Catskeller. Brandeberry was a speaker in the "Let's Talk About It" series, sponsored by the Union Program Council the second and fourth Thursdays of each month.

"The Legislature has an intent that students should pay at least 25 percent of the cost of their educations," Brandeberry said. "If we're going to try to maintain somewhere around the range of 25 percent and if inflation and education costs keep going up, tuition will have to go up."

Students have yet to pay 25 percent of their education costs, Brandeberry said. The least students have paid was in 1977 when 19.9 percent of the cost came from tuition, while the most students will pay is 24.5 percent in 1984, he said.

"The education students get in Kansas is cheap," Brandeberry said.

Regents compare tuition charged at Kansas schools with that charged at similar institutions in other states, Brandeberry said. Students in Kansas are paying less tuition than students in other states, but faculty members are paid less, he said.

"It's just not a healthy situation right now," he said. "If you want to keep good people you have to pay them."

If the regents were to gain approval of a proposed seven percent increase in operating expenses, Brandeberry said, that would mean $30 million would have to be raised. Students may have to fund the increase, he said.

Although no closings of universities are planned, programs will have to be cut if expenses continue to increase while enrollment decreases, Brandeberry said.

Regents already have examined the architectural programs at K-State and the University of Kansas with an eye toward combining some facets of the two, he said. Should some programs be shifted to other universities, alumni may be angered, he said.

"But that's the way the mop flops," Brandeberry quipped.

Only two building projects are on the regents' drawing board, Brandeberry said. One is a $24 million library at KU and the other is a $29 million chemistry, biochemistry and plant science facility at K-State, he said.

Funding for the KU project is expected between 1985 and 1988 and money for K-State's facility is expected to be allocated through 1989, Brandeberry said. In addition, less than half the funding necessary to fix the 69 percent of leaky roofs on regents' buildings is available, he said.

Renovation of Weber Hall, high on the list of University administrators' priorities, is still being considered by the regents, Brandeberry said.

Brandeberry had few kind words about the rebuilding of Nichols Gym. A 1955 K-State graduate, Brandeberry said he played basketball in the facility which was gutted by fire during a Vietnam War protest in 1968.

"If it (a funding request) occurred right now, a different decision might be made," Brandeberry said. Because Nichols was outdated, he said he was "more or less happy when it burned down."

No state funding will be used to build the proposed coliseum at K-State, Brandeberry said. The regents will pay to heat and cool the facility, but not during athletic events or other activities not directly benefiting students, he said.

"There's no doubt in my mind that the coliseum will be built," Brandeberry said. The project would be a worthwhile one for K-State, he said.

Reagan gives go-ahead for re-election committee

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan gave the go-ahead on Thursday for the establishment of a campaign committee for the re-election of himself and Vice President George Bush. Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., who will head the effort, said "I have no doubt...that Ronald Reagan will be a candidate for re-election."

Laxalt, the general chairman of the Republican party and the chairman of both previous Reagan campaigns for the presidency, said he would formally establish the re-election panel on Monday and file the necessary documents with the Federal Election Commission.

Also on Monday, the president will sign a letter formally authorizing the step, Laxalt said, noting that "He will legally be a candidate at that point."

Laxalt spoke to reporters in the White House driveway after Reagan gave him the green light. The White House press staff took pains to call attention to his visit.

He said that Reagan would delay a full declaration of his candidacy until the current congressional session ends, probably shortly before Thanksgiving.

Laxalt said the president felt that a formal announcement sooner would tend to "impair his credibility" by casting every step he takes and speech he makes in a political light.

"I think that his position in delaying his final announcement until after Congress adjourns is entirely appropriate," he said.

The meeting was held on Thursday specifically to gain Reagan's approval for the formation of the committee. However, the groundwork had already been laid by the president's closest political advisers.

Office space near the Capitol has been selected, White House staff members have been assigned to leave the government payroll on Monday to begin campaign work.

Staff/Chris Stewart

Top job

Randy Lundin and Ed Lundin, employees of Keys Roofing and Insulation Co., replace shingles on the roof of President Duane Acker's home.

Reagan nominates security adviser as Watt's replacement at interior

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Environmentalists and members of Congress were stunned Thursday at the announcement that President Reagan's national security adviser, William Clark, will be nominated to succeed James Watt as secretary of the interior.

Many environmentalists charged that Clark had no background in conservation issues and his appointment would allow Watt's deputies to carry on his policies with Clark serving simply as a caretaker.

But conservative leaders in the Senate praised the appointment of Clark, a longtime associate of President Reagan. And Watt reacted with pleasure to the announcement.

"Judge Clark is a fantastically fine guy," Watt told reporters in California, where he announced his resignation Sunday. Watt called Clark "a prince of a fellow" and said the president couldn't have made a better choice.

Environmentalists had a far different reaction.

"It is a preposterous appointment and an insult to the American environment," said William Turnage, executive director of the Wilderness Society. "It is the third time that President Reagan has appointed Mr. Clark to a job for which he has no apparent qualifications."

"William Clark's only qualification for this position is blind loyalty to Ronald Reagan," said Geoff Webb of Friends of the Earth.

William Butler, a vice president of the National Audubon Society, said he was "thunderstruck" by the appointment.

"The policies of the Interior Department will not change and the momentum of Secretary Watt will continue with his lieutenants clearly running the Interior Department while Bill Clark serves as a caretaker secretary," Butler said.

In Congress, Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., said, "It is apparent that the president plans to continue his environmentally dangerous, often incompetent and uninformed and pro-industry policies."

Brandeberry speaks to student senate

By LAURI DIEHL
Collegian Reporter

K-State is unlikely to lose funding because of enrollment decreases this year, Regent Norman Brandeberry told student senators Thursday night.

"In my opinion, if K-State does lose funds the loss will be very minor," he said. "Our evaluation (for funding) is based on three-year trends and it (K-State funding) may even gain a little."

Brandeberry spoke about the history and purpose of the Kansas Board of Regents and answered questions from senators.

He said he does not attribute the decreased enrollment to tuition increases.

"A lot of the decrease here was due to the University tightening the screws in some academic programs," he said.

Questions were also raised about the proposed coliseum.

"No state funds will go into the coliseum," Brandeberry said. "That money must go to academic areas."

Heating and cooling costs for the building would be a problem, he said.

"The University of Nebraska coliseum costs about $900,000 to $1 million annually to heat and cool," he said. "I think the coliseum is a great idea, but I do not think the taxpayers should have to pay to heat and cool it. We cannot take the money away from academic programs."

Brandeberry said earlier in the day during another lecture that the regents will pay for the heating and cooling of the coliseum but not during athletic events or activities not directly benefiting students.

Brandeberry also discussed the cutting back of some academic programs at certain regent schools.

"At one of the three major universities, there is a program with only five students in it," he said. "That makes the cost per student very high." That same program is offered at two other regent schools with enrollments of about 30 students each, he said.

Programs with little participation will be shifted to other schools, Brandeberry said.

"This is not a witch hunt," he said. "The Board of Regents is not going to say all engineering majors will go to the University of Kansas and all business majors to K-State. But we are not going to have five students at one institution costing what 30 cost somewhere else."

In formal senate action, the only item of business was voting on final allocations.

Early Childhood Lab requested allocations of $1,158. Senate's Finance Committee recommended an allocation of $888. Corrine Nelson, senator from the College of Home Economics, moved to amend the motion to the original request.

Mark Terrell, Finance Committee chairman, spoke in favor of the amendment.

"The service is directed toward students," he said. "If they have to stay home with their children, they cannot go to school."

Tracy Turner, senator from the College of Arts and Sciences, said he agreed the project served students, but money generated by user fees should be used to fund the lab.

"All we are trying to do is replace part of the student government money with student fee money," he said. "It is still student money."

The amendment was defeated and the recommended allocation of $888 for Early Childhood Lab was approved.

Requests by the International Coordinating Council for $369.50 for conference costs, Off-Campus Student Association for $330 for advertising costs and Student Governing Association for $1,535, also for advertising were passed with little discussion.

Citizens complain to KCC about phone costs

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The ever-increasing cost of telephone service is making it harder for elderly and poor Kansans on fixed incomes to afford a service vital to their safety, a handful of witnesses on Thursday told the Kansas Corporation Commission.

Those testifying included state Rep. George Teagarden, D-LaCygne, who said poor and elderly people in his district were "getting scared" by constant increases in utilities. He said many may be forced to give up their telephones, despite the need to be able to call emergency medical help.

"These people, the elderly on fixed income and the poor, are having to dig deeper and deeper because things like utilities just keep going up," Teagarden said. "A lot of elderly on fixed incomes are getting scared because they just can't keep up with the basic costs of living."

"More increases will make it very hard for some of these people to maintain their telephone service which is a vital service to them and very important in emergency situations."

The testimony came as the corporation commission opened to the public its hearings on a request by Southwestern Bell to impose a $2 monthly fee on all Kansas residents to pay for the cost of maintaining access lines to the intrastate long distance telephone network.

Southwestern Bell wants residential customers to pay the $2 monthly fee regardless of how many long distance calls a customer makes. Currently, long distance calls are charged on a use basis with customers paying per call.

Business customers would pay a $6 fee for access to intrastate long distance telephone networks, under Bell's plan. The company says the access fee on residential customers is needed to prevent costs from rising radically to big businesses.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

SIGNUP FOR THE OPEN MIKE NIGHT sponsored by UPC Coffeehouse continues from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. until Oct. 19 in the Union Activities Center.

OLD SPURS: Today is the last day to sign up for party pies from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Union Activities Center.

KSU AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS are available in Anderson Hall, Room 104, and in the SGS office and are due Wednesday, Oct. 26.

COORDINATOR OF FINANCES AND ELECTION COMMITTEE member and chair applications are due in the SGS office by 5 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21.

TODAY

CHRISTIAN ACTION FELLOWSHIP meets at 7 p.m. in Union 213 for a worship gathering.

PI TAU SIGMA meets at 6 p.m. at 1948 Anderson for a barbeque. Actives should be there at 5:30 p.m.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Deborah Leah Goodman at 9 a.m. in 304 Blue-Mount Hall. The topic is "Self-concept and Level of Threat in Learning Activities: Potential Inhibitors of Adults' Participation in Education."

SATURDAY

VIETNAMESE STUDENT ASSOCIATION meets at 1:30 p.m. in Union 205.

ALPHA ZETA sponsors a dance from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Knights of Columbus building. All ag students, faculty and guests are welcome. Cover charge is $1.50.

SUNDAY

TAU BETA PI meets at 1 p.m. at the north doors of Durland Hall for the K-hill pledge project.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB meets at 2 p.m. at 1433 LeGore Lane for an Oktoberfest celebration.

BLUEMONT BICYCLE CLUB meets at 3 p.m. in the University for Man parking lot for a Tour de Manhattan followed by a light snack potluck at 5 p.m. by the Johnny Kaw statue in City Park.

ECUMENICAL CHRISTIAN MINISTRIES meets at 5:30 p.m. at 1021 Denison for a Sunday supper and program.

K-LAIES meet at 7 p.m. in the Union K, S and U rooms.

CIRCLE K meets at 7 p.m. in Union 206. Everyone is welcome.

CHRISTIAN ACTION FELLOWSHIP meets at 9 p.m. at Danforth Chapel for a prayer meeting.

SIGMA NU LITTLE SISTERS meet at 5 p.m. at the house.

TAU BETA PI meets at 5:30 p.m. at Valentino's for a pizza party. All members are welcome. Price is $2.50.

STUDENT FOUNDATION meets at 7 p.m. in Union 213.

KAPPA SIGMA STARDUSTERS meet at 7 p.m. at the house.

FULL MEAL DEAL

$1.89

Single Burger

French Fries

Drink

5 oz. Sundae

Try Our Drive-Up Window

* Reg. U.S. Pat. & TM. Am. D.Q. Corp. © Copyright 1974 Am. D.Q. Corp.

1015 N. 3rd
Manhattan

"LET'S ALL GO TO DAIRY QUEEN"

WE'LL KEEP YOU IN THE BLACK

kinko's copies

Monday-Thursday 8-8
Friday 8-6
Saturday 10-5
Sunday 12-5
1126 Laramie in Aggieville
537-7340

SALE

Your choice of Baggy Blue Jeans for only: $22.99
Choose From:
Zena Baggies
Chic Baggies
Sasson Baggies
Lee London Riders
Come for yours today!

Jeans Junction

1207 Laramie St. Aggieville
539-2011
Mon-Fri 10-6 Sat 10-5 Sun 12-5

HEADED FOR LAWRENCE?

For a tailgate party before the big game the new OhSe Smokehouse has already done the work for you. With our Tailgater you get a platter of smoked meat brisket, turkey, and ham-plus baked beans, coleslaw, plenty of bread and our sauce, all in an easy-to-carry box. Enough for four pre-game appetites. Use our drive-through window or call ahead, it's ready to go right now.

OhSe SMOKEHOUSE

RESTAURANT & BARBEQUE

2700 IOWA / LAWRENCE, KANSAS / 841-6475

Village Plaza

SUPER WEEKEND FRI. 14,
SAT. 15, SUN. 16

SUPER WEEKEND

Nylon Wind Breakers
Tank Tops
Muscle Tees
ALL 1/2 PRICE
IN STOCK ONLY

DON'T FORGET OCT.
OLD SHOE TRADE CONTEST

Village Plaza
3039 Anderson
537-9201
Mon-Sat 10-6
Thurs 10-8
Sun 1-5

SUPER WEEKEND

Pitcher of Coke with purchase
of Med. or Lg. Pizza
Dine in only.
Expires 10/16/83

Liter of Coke
with purchase
of Med. or Lg. Pizza
Take out or delivered.

537-4350 Restaurant

SUPER WEEKEND

BOOK SHOP
COOKBOOK
COUPON

Bring in this coupon for 10% off any cookbook in stock.
Valid Oct. 14, 15, 16

Mon-Sat 9-9
3047 Anderson

Sun 9-6
537-8025

SUPER WEEKEND

Check out our Octoberfest Cheese
Specials & visit the Sausage Wagon
Sat., Oct. 15.

SUPER WEEKEND

Come in for a demonstration and enter the FREE Seika TV Watch Sweepstakes.

539-1751

SUPER WEEKEND

Levi's
Boot Cut Jeans
1st Quality
$13.99

Style #517

FASHION WORLD

CHEAP & EASY!

Buy your Halloween costume—cheaper than rental! How? Easy—Go to Pastense.

11-5 Mon.-Sat.
418 W. 6th—Topeka

EAT WITH US SUNDAYS!

MRKS
• Sandwiches & Kurly K Fries
5-8:00 p.m.

• Hickory Smoked Bar-B-Que
5 p.m.-10 p.m.

• All You Can Eat Bar-B-Que $6.50
• Dinner Menu
5:30-8:30 p.m.

Aggieville

BEAUTY SUPPLIES

OVER 1000 SALON ITEMS IN STOCK

WHITE TAG SALE
10% to 30% OFF
FRI.-SAT. ONLY
(Look for the Sale Tags)

GLAMOUR WORLD BEAUTY SUPPLY
1104 WATERS

WEST ON ANDERSON AVE. BEHIND CURTIS MATHIS TV
DAILY 9:30-6 537-3233 Sat. 10-5

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.

Editor: Paul Hanson
Managing Editor: Sandy Lang
Photography Editor: Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager: John McGrath

State education committee supports competency testing

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A legislative study panel on Thursday endorsed the continuation of a statewide program of minimum competency testing for elementary and secondary school students.

In addition, the Special Committee on Education called for a bill to be drafted for a teacher scholarship program, which would provide $1,500 a year to some scholastically qualified students who are enrolled in teacher training programs in a four-year public university or private college in Kansas. The proposal is patterned somewhat after a scholarship program for medical students.

However, the committee did not act on either proposal. The panel will review bill drafts of both at their meeting next month and decide whether to have the measures introduced in the 1984 Legislature, which convenes in January.

Still, panel members made it clear that they supported continuation of competency testing in mathematics and reading in Kansas' elementary and secondary schools.

"I'm convinced the committee thinks competency testing is a good deal and should be continued," said state Sen. Joseph Harder, the panel chairman. "The only questions are over the mechanics of how it is to be implemented."

A two-year testing program ended with the close of the last school year, and the committee's proposal called for a five-year program to be authorized starting with the next school year, 1985.

"This is an evaluative, assessment mechanism so we can determine whether our schools are putting out a quality product," said Harder.

"It's even more important that we continue now because of the Nation At Risk," Harder said, referring to a report by a national education committee which concluded that public school quality was declining.

Specifically, the committee asked that a bill be drafted to authorize a five-year testing program for grades 2, 4, 6, 8, 11. Tests in reading and math would be given annually. The program would be mandatory for all accredited private and public schools in Kansas.

The tests are to measure a student's competency in basic skills at their grade level.

Minimum competency testing was first established in Kansas in 1978, when lawmakers created a two-year pilot program for the 1978-79 and 1979-80 school years. In 1981, the Legislature established another two-year program and ordered that a committee review the testing project at its conclusion and recommend whether it should be continued.

The program is expected to cost about $230,000 a year.

The teacher scholarship proposal was prompted by concern among committee members over the potential of a teacher shortage in the future and the need to attract more highly qualified persons into the profession.

German protesters demonstrate against deployment of missiles

By The Associated Press

BREMERHAVEN, West Germany — Helmeted riot police dragged away 255 anti-nuclear protesters Thursday but 2,500 others blockaded a U.S. Army base and temporarily sealed off a major German port. Some demonstrators handed flowers to police.

The demonstration was the start of a three-day protest against NATO deployment of new U.S. nuclear missiles in Western Europe. It marks the start of a series of anti-nuclear protests scheduled around West Germany in the next 10 days in what the peace movement bills as its "hot autumn."

The protesters were carted away from the Carl Schurz Barracks and adjoining Midgard Harbor, where U.S. ammunition and supplies are unloaded. The protesters went limp in a display of passive resistance, while other demonstrators shouted,

"Let them go!" and chanted "We don't want your weapons."

Police Chief Eckart Naumann said all but 55 of the protesters detained were released. The 55 were identified as "troublemakers" and will be held until the protest is over, he said.

Armored police personnel carriers were backed by some 6,000 officers, including 5,000 riot police and border guards brought in from surrounding cities to prevent violence during the three-day blockade.

Police said the heavy security was a response to unsigned leaflets distributed in recent weeks by anti-nuclear activists who urged violence against the base. But there has been no violence so far.

A U.S. Army spokesman confirmed that ground traffic had been halted to and from the base.

comprehensive health associates
• free pregnancy tests
• outpatient abortion services
• alternative counseling referrals
• gynecology
• contraception
1-435 & Roe / Overland Park / 642-3100

BALLOON BOUTIQUE
DON'T FORGET OCT. 16th,
BOSS'S DAY!
619 N. 3rd 539-0106

The DOWN UNDER
515 RICHARDS DRIVE — UNDER WILDCAT LANES

FRIDAY
MAKE YOUR OWN TACOS
4 p.m.-7 p.m.
Gary returns with hits from 50's & 60's.
7:30-???

DOWN UNDER CLUB
515 Richards
(under Wildcat Lanes)
For reservations call 539-0230

TGIF DRINKING TEAMS!
TODAY:
DELTA SIGS
VS.
AGRs
ATOs
VS.
DELTS
LAST WEEK'S WINNERS:
KAPPA SIGS!
KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE

The Sanctuary Bar & Grill

WELCOMES THE WILDCATS TO LAWRENCE

- BAR OPENS AT 9:00 SERVING THE BEST BLOODY MARY'S IN TOWN.
- 11:00 a.m. LUNCHEON BUFFET ..... $3.95
- BUS RIDE TO GAME & BACK 1:00 P.M.
- COCKTAILS SERVED ON OUR BEAUTIFUL REDWOOD DECK — ALL DAY.
- 5:45 DINNER BUFFET ..... $6.50

YOU'LL FIND US AT 1401 WEST 7th St. BETWEEN MICHIGAN & FLORIDA STS.
RECIPROCATING WITH OVER 180 CLUBS IN KANSAS phone 843-9703

Oktoberfest

A FUN MONTH IN MANHATTAN
Westloop & Village Plaza Calendar of Events

Saturday, October 15th
VILLAGE PLAZA

German Sausage Wagon, eat in or carry out, in front of Bit-O-Gold Cheese, Inc.

Flea Market including Arts and Crafts

Friday, October 28th and Saturday, October 29th
WESTLOOP

Pumpkin Crazy Carve contest. Free beer, popcorn and peanuts.

Monday, October 31st
VILLAGE PLAZA

Pictures taken of children in Halloween costume. Free candy.

sponsored by
Manhattan
chamber of commerce

Some people will do just about anything for a Swannie's Yum-Yum!

225 Poyntz
Downtown
776-4549

Remember SWANNIE'S BACKDOOR:
Open 10 p.m.-2 a.m.
Mon.-Sat.

COMING TO LAWRENCE FOR THE GAME
THIS WEEKEND? AFTER THE GAME

THE UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS
THEATRE PRESENTS
THE ANTA TOURING COMPANY

IN GEORGE M. COHAN'S
THE TAVERN

8:00 p.m. Saturday, October 15, 1983
Crafter-Preyer Theatre/Murphy Hall
Tickets on sale in the Murphy Hall Box Office
All seats reserved Call 913/864-3982

Public: $8, $6, $4; Special discounts for senior citizens and K-State Students

Partially funded by the Kansas Arts Commission and the KU Student Activity Fee

Support the ANTA Touring Company when it visits KSU to stage Christopher Durang's A HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN FILM

BUSHWACKER'S
• THE • FUNDRIKERY

—Friday—
Old Time
Rock n' Roll
&
Free
Hors d'oeuvres

Happy Hour: 4-8
2 Fers on HiBalls
75¢ Draws
$2 Blended Drinks

Drink of the Week: Colossal Hot Dog & a Stein for $2 during all World Series games
Chicken Phlucker

A Reciprocating Club Office 539-4321 Bar 539-9727
531 N. Manhattan

40 HOME MADE FLAVORS

Malts—
Milkshakes
Cones—Dishes—
Banana Split

Location—New First Bank Center
Clafin and Denison
Hours: 10:00 a.m.-Midnight Mon.-Sat.
10:00-10:00 Sunday

ALLEY SPECIALS

FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR
$1.25 House Drinks 55¢ Draws
Hors d'oeuvres 4-8

SAT. LATE NITE HAPPY HOUR
$1.25 House Drinks 10-12
55¢ Draws $2.00 Pitchers

THE BEST PAIR IN TOWN

TAVERN SPECIALS

FRIDAY TGIF TILL 7:00
Receive a FREE Painters Hat with each regular price pitcher

SAT. KEEP ON TRACKIN TO MEL'S
HAPPY HOUR
9 A.M.-6 P.M.

Rape prevention

A rape in a northwest Manhattan neighborhood early Tuesday morning was the third reported in five days. All Manhattan residents must be alert to this problem and be aware of what they can do to combat it.

It has been stressed by various groups that women be aware of the possibility of rape and take precautions. The recent occurrences put even more emphasis on the need for education and prevention.

However, a greater responsibility must be accepted by each of us in terms of the security of others.

Residents must be alert to anything that looks or sounds out of the ordinary. Screams in the night are a pretty good indication that something wrong is happening and should be investigated by the police. All it would often take to stop a rape would be a yell from someone nearby. And this scream could be accomplished in about the same time it would take to dial the 911-emergency number.

If there is a chance of a rapist getting caught or even being identified, the rapist will often flee. Of course, a certain amount of precaution must be taken when resorting to such a move.

Paul Hanson, Editor.

But women cannot depend on any inherent goodness or concern among people in our society and must protect themselves from the possibility of rape. This can be done by walking with another person instead of alone late at night and by keeping to well-lighted areas on campus. Escort services sponsored by various residence halls are available so that women will not have to walk alone at night. The Rape Prevention and Counseling Center at K-State can suggest further preventive measures that should be taken.

We find it deplorable that the full responsibility for rape prevention should be on the women's shoulders. Women should not have to face this alone; each of us must join in the battle. Yet the fact is that the rapes are occurring, and, as yet, no arrests have been made.

One way to cut down on the number of crimes is for citizens to aid the police by reporting situations which seem unusual. Until society undergoes such drastic change that people can walk safely at night in any situation, people will have to go out of their way to prevent the opportunity for such crimes.

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor.

Shoes and hats

Have you ever heard the old saying about clothes, "Don't throw it away, if you keep it long enough it will come back in style"?

Well, a few weeks ago my mom and I were going through some of her clothes and shoes. I asked her why she kept some of these things. She still had clothes she had worn during the war. I'm talking about the BIG war, World War II.

She told me that she had learned a long time ago that styles in clothing come and go in cycles and if you stop to think about it, she's right (as usual).

Especially shoes. Shoe styles really come in cycles. My mom has spike heels that she wore before I was born. I wore these shoes just last year. They're really great, as shoes go; I hate to think she might have thrown them away.

Throw away shoes? Impossible. Why it's a sin for a woman to throw away a perfectly usable pair of shoes. Do you know how long it takes a woman to find a shoe in just the right color and style, not to mention the right size? Or how long it took her to find that gorgeous pair of burgundy suede, spiked heeled, pointed toe pumps to go with her only burgundy dress? It probably took hours, maybe even days. And the cost? Well, you could probably finance a good drunk on what she paid. Throw them away? Were you born yesterday or are you just naturally dumb?

Women are notorious for having a lot of shoes. In fact, wives really take a lot of guff from their husbands for the amount of money they spend on shoes. Never mind the fact that he has a 12-pack of beer every night, or plays cards with the boys on Saturday night. All a husband has to do is open the closet door and watch the shoes fall out and his point is made.

We all know however, that clothes make the man, and with women entering the job market at an

DARCY WARD
Collegian Columnist

astronomical rate, clothes now make the woman, too. And as any woman knows, shoes make the outfit. With, of course, a purse to match.

So not only do we have shoes for every outfit, we have a purse to go with each pair of shoes.

Now for the clincher. Hats are making a comeback. I'm not talking about the cowboy hat you wear to the rodeo or the "screw KU" hat you bought at the last KU game. I'm talking about real honest to goodness hats, made of felt or various other materials and decorated with ostrich feathers and little black veils.

Yes, people, you will now be seeing more women in hats than ever before. And any woman knows that a hat must match the shoes which matches the purse which matches the dress which matches with skin color and jewelry and anything else it might match with. It's all very complicated, but we try.

I can't help but think that Lady Di, who put the milliners back on their feet in England, has something to do with this fad. Maybe it's an English plot.

While we're not seeing a lot of hats right now, the industry is booming. Milliners are wondering what women are doing with their hats. Perhaps they're hanging in the closet, next to the purses that match the shoes.

Actually, I think women are so out of practice wearing hats. Most really don't know where or when to wear them. Let me give you some advice. Don't wear hats to McDonald's. Hats should be reserved for the finer places of life.

Don't wear hats to the movies. You might start a riot. It's really hard for the person behind you to see through that thing on your head.

If you're going to wear a hat, wear the rest of the look, too. A dressy hat with blue jeans is tacky, girls, just tacky. Use a hat with a suit, dress or coat. You might even wear gloves and a scarf. Make it look like you planned your wardrobe, not like the wardrobe planned you.

The question arises, "Can you wear your hat inside?" Well, yes and no. You can wear a hat inside during the day, except inside your home, which is kind of a dumb idea anyway. You could wear it at the office, but I don't know why you would want to. Of course, if you did, it could make for interesting looks and possible conversations. Hey, maybe that's the way to get the attention of that guy in your biology class. Wear a hat to class.

As for evening wear, keep it small, and with a dinner suit. Hats at a cocktail party usually just get in the way.

Finally, what do you do with a hat if you have to take it off? Hatracks are virtually a thing of the past. Men wear fewer hats now, so many businesses have removed their once-prominent hatracks. Maybe we could invent a portable hatrack. We could call it a hatrack pack. It could look like an umbrella and could also be used for self-defense.

So now we have hats to match the purse, which match the shoes, which match the dress which must somehow match the checkbook. Looking good is pretty expensive. I hope the public appreciates us.

Unanswered questions

Why was that young woman crying the other night in the parking lot at the downtown Safeway store, as she was being slowly led by the older woman toward a car?
Was she drunk? Was she sick? What was the matter?

C.J. Prusik asks whatever happened to ornamental hoods on automobiles? And I ask whatever happened to running boards?

What was that young man staring at in the sky above McCain Auditorium last week? He stood staring in one direction for at least five minutes in the middle of the afternoon, his neck arched backwards, his mouth half open, his head not moving. I looked in the same direction — but could see nothing. What was it he was looking at?

How many people laughed in the streets of Cairo yesterday? Or in Bombay? Or in Amsterdam? Or in any other city of this world?

Why do I never see a newspaper item about a thing such as that?

A young couple was sitting on one of those benches outside the Student Union the other day. Their heads were very close together. Her hand was on his arm.

He was whispering something to her.
Both of them looked extraordinarily

JOEL CLIMENHAGA
Collegian Columnist

ly sad, as if the weight of the whole world was on their shoulders.

As I walked by he kept whispering to her.

Suddenly, she smiled.
What did he say to her?

Taking my daughter up to the high school the other morning, I saw an older man dressed in a dark suit running as hard as he could down the street. Not jogging. Not exercising. Running as hard as he could!

Where was he running to that early in the morning? Or perhaps the real unanswered question is what was he running from?

What would happen if the sun traded places with the moon?

Would that change all the fairy tales to make the cow jump over the sun? Or would it end up being a flying red horse instead?

Would the day become night? And the night become day?

Would love be harder to find? Or any less blessed when found?

Would red be a different color, after all? Would the knife at your throat seem less horrible to me? Would that sweet, smiling child become a monster? That monster become an angel? Would these words become more important? Or would they be less meaningful?

Since the sun and the moon would have changed, would black and white change? What will happen to gray now?

Is it possible the world will not die?

From where do these tears come? These happinesses? How can I go on leaving my life in your hands?

Why are there no answers in opposites?

Can we ever understand one another?

Why do I have hope?

If there is any answer at all to this last question, it is that I must believe in something.

Why is it that people complain when the weather is hot?

Why do people complain when the weather is cold?

How many people laughed in the streets of Manhattan, Kansas, yesterday? Or in Fargo, North Dakota?

If there is anything I have said here which offends you, that is your problem — not mine.

There is nothing about you which offends me.

Why policy won't sell

WASHINGTON — September was the cruelest month yet for those who want to chart America's economic future. Their cause, "industrial policy," took a thrashing from Right and Left.

Yet October, and the prospect for consensus in Congress on the need for government activism in the economy, won't necessarily bring a better reception. Outside the incestuous confines of Washington and academia, industrial policy may always have an image problem.

In a Sept. 30 speech in San Francisco, James C. Miller, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, condemned the notion that America needs a central authority to select and subsidize industries most likely to be internationally competitive. Miller warned implicitly that such a body, "insulated from politics," would encourage "despotism."

Only two days earlier, Charles L. Schultze, the former chief economic adviser to Jimmy Carter, had expressed his own doubts that a collection of government, business and labor leaders could pick "winners" more efficiently than the marketplace without protecting "losers" against foreign imports. Having challenged the very premise of industrial policy in a paper for the Brookings Institution, Schultze blamed recession and the dollar's strength — not, for example, private mismanagement — for industry's troubles.

The professor's critique came just as the AFL-CIO was preparing to release a report echoing many Democrats' calls for massive government participation in industrial development. It could only have been a blow to those who are trying to inject credibility and clarity into what appears to be a confusing and partisan concept.

MAXWELL GLEN
& CODY SHEARER

Yet industrial policy enthusiasts face a more significant obstacle to public support. That is the highly-hyped emergence of modern-day Horatio Algiers.

Take Bill Gates. Eight years ago, while a sophomore at Harvard, the Seattle native concocted an easily understood language, called BASIC, for programming personal computers. Today, Gates' dorm room/lab has evolved into Microsoft Corp., a supplier of software for almost half the personal computers shipped in America and a $70 million company this year.

Take Mitch Kapor. Five years ago, Kapor interrupted a career that had included transcendental meditation and psychological counseling to buy a personal computer and refresh programming skills he'd learned in high school. Last week, Kapor's 18-month-old company, Lotus Development Corp., went public, basking in profits ($2.8 million during the first six months of this year) principally from the sales of a computer program designed by the 32-year-old Long Island native.

Or take Walter Martin, Paul Moriates and Andy Udleson. Two years ago, the young trio (none is over 26) pooled savings and founded Flying Foods to supply gourmet restaurants with fresh — and imported — fish and vegetables. According to Venture magazine, Flying Foods is now a $3 million company, with offices in five cities.

These successful entrepreneurs, and others like Apple Computer's Steve Jobs and Fred Smith of Federal Express, have come to rival professional athletes and actors in star quality. More than any disciple of Adam Smith, they've helped to convince many Americans that free enterprise survives rather well in the shadow of adversity. Unfortunately for advocates of industrial policy, such dedication has only helped to sap their momentum.

Industrial policy suffers for a number of reasons, not the least of which is its proponents' continuing proclivity for vague and often impractical explanations. Everyone involved still seems to have his or her own idea about what an industrial policy should be. Moreover, despite calls for a "national development bank" and "infrastructure refurbishment," staff members now drafting House and Senate industrial policy statements aren't likely to give their proposals any teeth in the present fiscal climate.

But as "losers" give way to "winners," government, not private industry, will ultimately shoulder the biggest burden of easing workers' transition from job to job. Managing that burden may eventually come to be what industrial policy is all about, and at some point even the skeptics will have to take it seriously.

Lecturer says new learning policy alters role of colleges, universities

By DAVE MANCHON
Collegian Reporter

The role of colleges and universities is changing dramatically and permanently under the impact of the "learning society," a senior lecturer on education in the Harvard University graduate school said Thursday afternoon.

K. Patricia Cross, in an address titled "The Impact of the 1980s on Higher Education," told approximately 150 students and faculty in Forum Hall she believes K-State will be a leader and not a follower in the "learning society."

"If we look to the broad future rather than the narrow future of individual colleges we would see a greatly increased need for learning, along with a new perspective in lifelong learning," Cross said.

Cross delivered the first Chester E. Peters Lecture in Student Development. The series, named for the vice president of student affairs, is funded by a bequest from Joseph D. Rei, a former K-State student and past director of Haymaker Hall.

Cross said the necessary perspective missing in education is a lack of attention to the world growing outside of higher education.

"It's no longer a question of preparing our students to live in a changing world, but a question of preparing colleges to live in a changing world," Cross said.

Cross also said she believes there is a danger that with the new enthusiasm to develop managers who can run colleges, educators will fail to develop leaders who will see new frontiers in education.

Cross offered six propositions that, if taken together, would have a profound effect on higher education.

Cross' first proposition states that higher education no longer enjoys a monopoly on the provision of educational services.

"Colleges used to compete among one another for students," Cross explained. "Today, students who enroll in the college classes voluntarily choose that option from a large number of possible alternatives, including courses offered by employees, labor unions and a host of other providers."

Cross said higher education provides only a third of all organized instruction for adults and the other two-thirds is provided by a vast array of schools and non-collegiate providers who offer educational benefits.

"My second proposition is that the roles of educational providers, which once was distinct, are increasingly becoming blurred," Cross said.

Cross said she believes these roles of the various educational providers are no longer clear, but tend to be blurred.

Cross' third proposition states that higher education no longer has the commitments of students and faculty.

"The rise of part-time learning seems universal for all providers of the educational services," she said.

"The proportion of part-time students has increased from 32 percent to 42 percent."

Cross said she believes higher education faces unaccustomed competition for the time and attention of students because many also have job and family interests.

"My fourth proposition states that learning has become a lifelong necessity for almost everyone," Cross said.

Cross explained that very few jobs are immune from the necessity for re-training and constant upgrading of skills and knowledge.

"There has been a pronounced tendency to increase the separation between the three compliments of life: education, work and leisure," Cross said.

"The result has been termed the linear life plan in which education is for the young, work for the middle and enforced leisure for the old."

Cross said she believes the linear life plan in the United States warns that most of our serious problems stem from the way in which education, work and leisure are distributed among age groups.

Cross' fifth proposition states the distinction between lifelong learning and adult education deserves consideration. Cross said she believes lifelong learning begins at birth and ends at death.

K. Patricia Cross

"There is no way to keep up with the explosion of new knowledge. It is created faster than it can be learned or taught," Cross said. She said she believes the problem for the future is not the supply of information, but rather its selection.

"People need to know how to select appropriate information from the overwhelming array available and use it in conceptual thinking," Cross said.

"My final proposition is that education will claim new roles in the society of the future," Cross said.

Cross offered a number of predictions for the future of the educational industry.

"Students are changing," Cross said. "They know now or they should know college is not a four-year retreat from the real world." Cross said she believes students will be more likely to regard themselves as permanent students of the university and less as just candidates for alumni reunions.

J. Riggs west inc.

THIS WEEKEND 3 BIG SHOWS
FREE ADMISSION
Friday 8:30 p.m.
Saturday 3 p.m. & 8:30 p.m.
TRICK SHOT EXHIBITION

LOU
"Machine Gun"
BUTERA

WORLD TRICK-SHOT
CHAMPION CHAMPION

WORLD'S FASTEST POOL PLAYER

317 Payntz—Downtown Manhattan

$100 Pitchers
THURS. 7-10
FRI. 2-6
We're proud to serve
Bud, Bud Lite
& Busch on tap.

This is a rare chance to ask one of the legends of Pocket Billiards any questions you might have, so come on in and play some pool with an ex-world champion.

Why pay more for insulated boots?

$25

- Genuine Leather
- D & EEE widths

Sale ends October 23.

You could pay more, but why?

Payless Shoe Source

Near Bluemont & Tuttle Creek Blvd.

(Adjacent to Wal-Mart Shopping Center)
Open 9 am - 9 pm Daily, 12 - 6 pm Sunday

© 1983 Volume Shoe Corporation

WORD OF FAITH
Satellite Network
PRESENTS:

Dino

Expertise... Enthusiasm... Christian Dedication...
Placed Dino in the Front Ranks of Today's Performing Artists.

LIVE SATURDAY - OCTOBER 15TH

ON OUR GIANT SCREEN

COMING SATELLITE EVENTS: NOV. 13-16 ROBERT TILTON NOV. 19 THE IMPERIALS

LIVING WORD CHURCH

Highway 177 South, Manhattan, Kansas
7:00 p.m.

For Information: 776-0940 or 539-4828

Auntie Mae's Parlor

AGGIEVILLE

TODAY

TGIF HAPPY HOUR

Free Hors d'oeuvres
50¢ Drinks
$2.00 Pitchers
$1.25 House Drinks
3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Friday and Saturday
LATE NIGHT HAPPY HOUR
11:30 p.m. - 12:30 a.m.

616 N. 12th 539-9967

DANCE CONTEST
November 7-8, 1983
Brother's Tavern
in Aggieville

Strut Your Stuff With UPC Special Events,
Brother's Tavern, and Bud Light

First Prize: Two tickets and backstage passes to the Stray Cats Concert at Ahearn. Plus two autographed copies of their latest album.

Listen to KSDB and read the Collegian for more details.

special events

1004

MCCAIN
AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

the piano King
of Kansas City Swing...

Jay "hottie" McShann
Friday, October 28, 8 p.m.

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office, noon-5 p.m. M-F, 532-6428

Briefly

By the Associated Press

Beach Boy praises Watt resignation

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — A member of the Beach Boys says he was elated by the resignation of Interior Secretary James Watt, who banned the band from a Fourth of July concert in Washington.

"When I caught the headlines on newstands I almost fainted. I was so elated," said Al Jardine, who was in Grand Rapids on Wednesday to perform in a celebration marking the opening of the Amway Grand Plaza Hotel Tower.

Watt, who resigned this week in a flap over a comment he made about the composition of one of his advisory commissions, refused to permit the Beach Boys to perform at a concert on national park property. He said rock bands attracted "the wrong element."

"Until the novelty wore off, I felt sorry for the guy because it showed how far off base he was about American life," Jardine said Wednesday with national radio talk show host Larry King and The Grand Rapids Press. "And this was a man at the helm of an important political post."

Blind woman delivers newspapers

PITTSBURGH — Claire Michaels shoulders a canvas bag before dawn each weekday and sets out with her guide dog to deliver newspapers — her way of proving that despite blindness, "There's nothing I can't do if given the chance."

With the help of Cinder, a black Labrador retriever, Miss Michaels, who was blinded by injuries from a car accident 10 years ago, negotiates broken sidewalks and steps. The dog fetches errantly thrown papers to make sure her mistress tosses them correctly.

"The only thing I've proved to me is there's nothing I can't do if given the chance to do it," said Miss Michaels, 30, whose day begins at 5 a.m. "I'd rather have a real job. I just can't seem to convince people I can do other things."

Casket rentals prove popular

INDIANAPOLIS — With Halloween coming up, Charles Owens' company has a lay-away plan fit for just about anyone alive — rent-a-casket.

"Theatrical companies, office parties, birthdays, country clubs," Owens said Thursday. "We rent for any purpose you would dream of — except burial. Our units are brand new and we wouldn't want to get into that end of it."

Since he first placed a tiny newspaper ad a week ago, Owens — "an auctioneer by trade" — estimates he's had 65 responses. The ad says in capital letters "CASKET RENTALS" and gives no other information but two phone numbers.

"The results have been fantastic," he said. "Within the first four days of the ad, we had a lot of phone calls. People are coming in. Every now and then, someone will call to see if this is a legitimate business."

The caskets come in three sizes and rent from $75 to $25 for 24 hours.

Owens, 35, said he got the rental idea after liquidating "one of the larger funeral homes in the city."

Owens, who expects "somewhat of a letdown" in business after Halloween, has 14 rentable caskets, but only six or seven were available Thursday. The rest were rented. He estimated he has rented "at least 10 caskets" since he started, but doesn't want to say how much money he's made.

The caskets are available in several colors. A couple are upholstered in velvet. There is an "old wooden one and one of the old metal ones. We also have some vaults, but they're quite heavy."

"Most people are very sincere when they call," says Owens. "Some have asked about renting for cremation. They want to display the body and then after cremation return the casket to us."

Woman's legal aid to needy stirs controversy

By The Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — To Rosemary Furman, it's a matter of "giving the people back their courts." To the Florida Bar, it's a case of practicing law without a license for which she should be punished.

Whatever the issue, Furman's business of providing legal forms to the poor and illiterate for a fraction of the fee a lawyer might charge has generated controversy.

She now faces a four-month prison term for violating a 1979 order by the Florida Supreme Court to stop giving legal advice. She will go to federal court next month to get a jury trial in her battle.

Furman, a 56-year-old widow, says her 22 years as a legal secretary and court reporter left her with an overriding impression: "Lawyers are stupid."

They spend their time, she said, getting secretaries and assistants to fill out forms, check details, file papers and perform other routine chores that require little training and no hefty fees.

If the forms were readily available, 70 percent of the court case load and lawyers' revenue would be eliminated, she contends.

Eleven years ago, she opened Northside Secretarial Service in Jacksonville. The business, she says, has helped thousands of people gain access to the courts — for such simple procedures as uncontested divorces, adoptions and name changes — through forms she provides and helps fill out for $50.

Four years ago, she ran afoul of the Florida Bar, which said she was giving legal advice, something only licensed lawyers can do.

The state Supreme Court agreed, and in 1979 laid down guidelines: Furman was allowed only to provide the forms and type in information provided by customers. She could not discuss their "remedies, rights and responsibilities," said Catherine Dickson of the Florida Bar, who specializes in cases of unlicensed practice.

"The people I cater to — filling station attendants, mill hands, waitresses — they don't understand," Furman said Wednesday, explaining they don't know legal jargon such as "petitioner" and "respondent" and need someone to translate it.

Attorney Charles Arnold, representing the bar in the Furman case, said judges began noticing irregularities in cases brought before them by Furman's customers. An investigation was launched and Furman was charged in September 1982 with violating the Supreme Court order to stop practicing law.

During a hearing in June, a dozen of the customers summoned by the bar testified that they had been given inaccurate legal advice. Some of them said they had been advised to give false information.

"Her argument that cheapness is a substitute for competence is completely without merit," Circuit Judge A.C. Soud said Monday in recommending that the Supreme Court hold Furman in contempt for violating its 1979 order.

Soud, the court's special referee in the matter, also recommended four months behind bars, saying that was the only way to stop her.

Soud's recommendation is not binding on the high court.

Collegian Classifieds Where K-State Shops

Drawing everyday for a $10.00 Gift Certificate for Donut Hole Goodies.

11th & Moro
Aggieville 537-4808

GRAND OPENING SPECIALS

- ★ 99¢ Sandwiches (regularly $1.59)
- ★ Glazed Donuts $1.59 a dozen
- ★ Ice Cream 35¢ a dip (Specials Good All Week)

Mon.-Thurs. 6:30 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
Fri. 24 Hours
Sat. till 6 p.m.

1st Quality Women's Shoes - Everyday For Only $14.90

SHOES! SHOES! SHOES! BOOTS! BOOTS! BOOTS!

WE'RE STOCKED TO THE WALLS with the most beautiful, high quality shoes and boots we've ever had: Town and Country, Dr. Scholls, HipOppo-Tamus, Famolare, Red Cross, Revelations, Gloria Vanderbilts, Inspirations, Auditions, Hush Puppies, Beacons, etc...etc...Remember all shoes are only $14.90 or $18.90 a pair! BOOTS are priced from $29.90 to $59.90...values to $120.00!!

COME ON DOWN!

LADY FOOT SHOES - 221 Poyntz

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO HAVE THESE GUYS HANGING AROUND YOUR ROOM?

The 1983 Lite Beer All Stars

Tastes Great Team

First Row: Billy Smith, Jim McQuinn, Frank Robinson, Lee McQuinn
Second Row: Steve Muehl, Thomas J. Jones, Mickey Soriano
Third Row: Don Roberts, Doug Powell
Top Row: Gail Gorman, Bill Lecher, Ray Roberts

Lite
BEER

Less Filling Team

Front Row: Billy Smith, Dick Roberts, Rod Auerbach
Second Row: Rodney Dangelward, Lynn Carter
Back Row: Gordon Gorman, Max Throbsen
Top Row: Keith No. Nardolow, Jim Shugart, Matt Smith
Top Row: Ben Dussan, Tommy Harnish, John Madden

ACTUAL SIZE 29" x 22"

ORDER YOUR LITE ALL-STARS POSTER TODAY!

1983 LITE
ALL-STARS POSTER OFFER
ONLY $1.00

Enclosed is my check or money order payable to "1983 Lite All-Stars Poster" for:

Poster(s) @ $1.00 each = $
(Quantity)
Total Enclosed = $

To order your 1983 Lite All-Stars Poster, please fill in the following information. Please mail my order to:

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____
(No P.O. Boxes)

CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

Mail this coupon with a check or money order for the total amount to:

1983 Lite All-Stars Poster
P.O. Box 61325
D/FW Airport, TX 75261

Please allow six to eight weeks for shipment. Offer good only in U.S.A. Void where prohibited by law. No product purchase necessary. Price includes postage and handling charges. No cash, credit cards, stamps, or C.O.D.'s accepted. Offer expires December 31, 1983.

410725

PC-4

Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, WI

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

- 1 Facile
- 6 Chum
- 9 Choose
- 12 Less strict
- 13 Certain serve
- 14 My —
- 15 Massacre
- 16 Trap
- 17 Liquid
- 18 element
- 19 Strength
- 20 Finished
- 21 Actress
- 22 MacGraw
- 23 Road warning
- 24 Singer Billy et al.
- 25 Ivy
- 27 Film award
- 29 Tarzan, e.g.
- 31 Actor Don
- 35 Run, as color
- 37 Fingerprint
- 38 Taj —
- 41 Soak flax
- 43 Yank's foe
- 44 Deserter's status (abbr.)
- 45 National song

DOWN

- 47 Fragrant flower
- 49 Leaves out
- 52 Mine
- 53 Call for help
- 54 Mideast peninsula
- 55 "— Sails in the Sunset"
- 56 Hill
- 57 builder
- 57 Vote in

DOWN

- 1 Pacino and
- 2 Newsman
- 3 Study
- 4 Llama's home
- 5 Lock
- 6 Picasso and
- 7 Land unit
- 8 Stellar lion
- 9 Green shade
- 10 July

DOWN

- 11 Layers
- 17 Secured the boat
- 19 Duplicate, of sorts
- 21 Actress
- 22 Pert talk
- 24 Traffic tie-up
- 26 Preserve, in a way
- 28 West Pointer
- 30 Everything
- 32 Bright color
- 33 — and cry (uproar)
- 34 Wane
- 36 Hemingway
- 38 Significant
- 39 Cognizant
- 40 Watered the garden
- 42 Not these
- 45 Shortly
- 46 Actor
- 48 "This — recording"
- 50 Tic — -toe
- 51 Pose

Avg. solution time: 26 min.

SEAT TOR ASTO
LILY HUE RARA
ARAB ETE FWER
MENAGE FLYBYS
LOA LOU
DEBT ROEBUCKS
AMU TON KIP
BUCKSHOT ASTA
KIM RUN TISSUE APOGEE
INKS TIN DILL
ERIE ARC EVIL
SEND LEE SEAS

10-14

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP

10-14

OQL TMDDLGO, XLBB-ZSLGGLZ HMB
TCSHR MG WRHXR CG C JQMJ GQLMW.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — THE MEAN AUTO MECHANIC'S
DUSKY DAY IN COURT: A CRANK CASE.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals I.

Student gets county approval on park plan

By LUCINDA ELLISON
Manhattan Editor

Citizens in the Keats area occupy the only community in the county without a county park — but that may soon change.

Last week, a plan developed by Bill Sullivan, graduate student in landscape architecture, was approved for the development of a county park near Keats, said Rod Meredith, director of Riley County Parks Department. The 15.2 acre tract of land is located 7½ miles west of Manhattan, off of Riley County 442 (Anderson Avenue).

Sullivan, who also is a student senator, designed the plans for the park with input from citizens of the area, the Riley County Park Board and the Riley County Board of Commissioners.

The park, which will take a number of years to complete due to funding, will be meant for use by all residents of Riley County, Meredith said. The project includes plans for a softball and a baseball diamond, three tennis courts, a "tot lot" (playground), a basketball court, regulation horseshoe pits, a community building, a concession stand and restroom facilities.

Top priority for completion on the list of items is the construction of the softball diamond and a temporary parking lot. These two items have been funded and both are scheduled for completion sometime next spring, Meredith said.

Completion of other facilities in the park are arranged according to a comprehensive recreation plan, which is subject to change. Facilities will be constructed depending on funds budgeted each year by the county commission, other funds available and the growth of the community.

The county currently has a one-half mill levy budgeted for county parks maintenance and development each year, Meredith said. The amount usually ranges between $45,000-$60,000.

The project was proposed by the Wildcat 4-H club and the Keats Lions Club, he said. Both organizations wrote letters requesting such a plan to the Riley County Commission in 1980. Although the commission formally made a commitment to fund the proposal in May of that year, the appropriate tract of land was not purchased until December of 1982.

The land was purchased for $45,000, with half of that amount being funded through a Federal Heritage Conservation Commission grant and the other half being supplied by the County Park Fund, Meredith said. The grant is a federal fund but is handled through the state government. The grant only funded acquisition of the land, he pointed out, and the cost of development will have to be budgeted for each year by the county.

"There was an extensive appraisal done of the property and the surrounding area before the grant was applied for," Meredith said. "They (the Riley County Park Board) looked at three or four other properties to compare it to; that was one of the requirements of the grant."

In late May, Meredith contacted the head of the landscape architecture department in search of a graduate student to develop the site. Sullivan applied for the position and was chosen.

From there, according to Sullivan, he met with citizens of the Keats area.

"We discussed a program, or a list of the facilities, requirements and elements that should be in the park," Sullivan said. "I really had to work to cover my bases between keeping the people happy and keeping the county happy."

Sullivan then proposed a plan, and after meeting with the Keats committee to make revisions, the design was presented in two separate meetings of the general public. After a few more revisions, Sullivan said the master plan was presented to the Riley County Park Board, who recommended the plan be adopted by the county commission. On Oct. 6, the plan was formally approved by the commission.

According to Sullivan, he had to keep several considerations in mind while designing plans for the park.

"They (Keats committee) really wanted to fit a lot of elements on a 15-acre site. I tried to arrange the facilities in such a manner to provide open space," he said.

Because the original concept of the park was for a "lively, active, effervescent park," Sullivan also had to arrange the facilities to portray this concept.

Another consideration was the image of the area, he said.

"I wanted to present a very positive, strong facade to the community. In order to do that, I used a real strong border of shade trees between the road and the park," he added. His plans also call for additional shrubbery around the parking lot to make this area more appealing.

Because lights for the tennis and basketball courts and the ball diamonds are in later stages of the plan, Sullivan also dealt with this in his plans.

"I didn't want the lights from these courts and fields to shine into people's houses at night," he said. The planting scheme of trees and shrubbery was designed to block light out of the surrounding area.

In addition, he is working on three other park designs for the county, including redevelopment of one in Ogden and one in Randolph, and the development of a new park in Ogden.

"Contact with the public is tremendous," he said.

KEATS COMMUNITY PARK MASTER PLAN

Design by W.C. Sullivan III

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity
Rep. — TOM SEELE
• Supplemental Retirement Annuities
• Investment Options
• Free Transfer Privileges
• State Deferred Compensation
• Life Insurance
1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 66606-7089

We're the ONLY Place to really watch
TV SPORTS:
World Series
Friday 7:00
Saturday at Noon

Football
NU vs. MU
Saturday at 2:30

Friday & Saturday
"POWER GLIDE"
Good-time, fun rock 'n' roll!
$2.00 Admission
—Members $1.00

The Sports Fan-atic

DARK HORSE

TAVERN

TGIF!

$2 Pitchers

1-6

**&

Free

Popcorn

619 N. Manhattan

MRK'S

GUEST D.J.!

DENNIS

JARMON

Deft

is today's Guest D.J.!

$2 TGIF PITCHERS

2 P.M.-7 P.M.

Musical Instruments Hayes House of Music

We Will Not Be Undersold
$10 Monthly Rental
We Rent Everything

223 Poyntz
Manhattan, KS 66502
913 776-7983

2011 W. 6th
Topeka, KS 66606
913 234-4472

523 N. Washington
Junction City, KS 66441
913 238-1014

Country Western nite!
SATURDAY

2 furs
from 7:00-9:00 p.m.
Wear your western hat and get 50¢ off drinks
all nite!

The DOWN UNDER
515 RICHARDS DRIVE — UNDER WILDCAT LANES

The Men of Alpha Tau Omega
would like to congratulate our new little sisters of the Maltese Cross

Lisa Otko
Melissa Custer
Michelle Richmeier
Kim Kunz
Teresa Condrey
Patricia Jones
Holly Justice
Melinda Swan
Trish Walters
Marnie Patterson
Kathy Belt
Lori Morrison
Jennifer Van Dyke
Anita Brandt
Nancy Wernes
Angie Applebee
Kelly Knadle
Nancy Cheray
Janice Blankenship
Peri Parenteau
Wendy Halford
Heidi Huffaker
Erin Mulcahy

Julie Fraser
Jan Gomez
Ann Gladbach
Dana Spour
Dana Schindler
Jackie Gideon
Dawn Szepe
Kristi Strong
Lori Elrod
Natalie Hunter
Debbie Paap
Julie Stephens
Toni Boller
Patty Bunten
Cheri Scott
Anne Coleman
Kristi Barancik
Julie Blanchett
Melinda Butel
Stephanie Jones
Shawn Pine
Ann Kukuk
Lori Ann Stein
Cell Senovic

MCCAIN
AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

ANTA TOURING COMPANY'S
Hilarious New Musical

"A HISTORY
OF THE AMERICAN FILM"
by
Christopher Durang

MONDAY, OCTOBER 17, 8 p.m.

Tickets Available McCain Box Office
Noon-5 p.m. M-F 532-6428

The Royal Lichtenstein Quarter Ring
SIDEWALK
CIRCUS

Friday, Oct. 14—Noon
Between Union & Seaton Hall

Sponsored by Am. Baptist Campus Ministries, St. Frances Episcopal Min., Ecumenical Christian Ministries

Born-again jalopy jaunts to Lawrence

By STEVE MILLS
Collegian Reporter

Every year the K-State vs. University of Kansas football game brings out the partying spirit in students. Signs, banners and painted faces proliferate, but this year 11 students have developed a unique way to kick off a traditional party weekend.

What was a beat-up 1964 Chevrolet Impala has been transformed into the "party wagon" with the help of a purple paint job, white tires, a hole in the roof and a rumble seat in place of the trunk.

"Pulled it into the garage one night ugly as hell, and now it's purring like a kitten," John Stimach, junior in engineering technology, said. "We did it so we would have something to party around in and take to the games," Tim Hamm, junior in engineering technology, said.

"We bought the car from a friend's neighbor for $150," Hamm said. "Then we took the car home and it was painted purple by my roommate's brother for $40." All of the owners' names were also painted on the car.

Jim Burdolski, junior in general business administration, said he stretched the truth about the car when buying insurance for it.

"I didn't tell him (the banker) everything. I told him I had a '64 Impala, and I'm going to drive it until Christmas. So we got three months' liability insurance for $80," Burdolski said.

The "party wagon" cost its 11 owners approximately $24.60 each after all expenses and is proving, in terms of novelty, to be worth the investment.

While driving down Anderson Avenue one day three of the owners found themselves in a predicament.

"The light was yellow and we were trying to stop, and then we speeded up because there were no brakes. So we had to put our feet out to stop the car," Hamm said.

"We have also been pulled over by the cops, but they only ticketed us for not having any tags," he said.

The car, as advertised on KSDB-

FM, will lead a caravan of cars from East Stadium parking lot at 8 a.m. Saturday to the K-State vs. KU game at Lawrence.

The car may make it to Lawrence, Hamm said, but he's not sure it will return safely.

"We figure if we leave the car somewhere (at KU) where no one is watching it, something like the tires being slashed will happen," Hamm said.

If it survives this weekend, the "party wagon" will road trip to an away K-State basketball game. The owners are also hoping for permission to participate in the Homecoming parade Nov. 12.

Have story
or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

Staff/Bob Spencer

Nine of the 11 owners of the "party wagon," a modified 1964 Chevrolet Impala, show off their car. The car will lead a caravan of cars from East Stadium parking lot at 8 a.m. Saturday to the K-State vs. University of Kansas game at Lawrence.

Radio operators to simulate flood

By KAREN BELLUS
Collegian Reporter

Manhattan residents will need to dig out their polyester, high-water pants, as Manhattan will be devastated by a flood Saturday.

Although the Riley County Amateur Radio Emergency Services (local ham operators) plans to be ready for the disaster, there is no cause for alarm.

The "flood" is part of a nationwide emergency preparedness drill designed to test the ability of ham operators to communicate, said Myron Calhoun, associate professor in computer science and ARES coordinator.

"The purpose of this test is to test communication skills — primarily communication over long distances," Calhoun said.

On Saturday the members of the Riley County ARES will participate in the 37th annual Simulated Emergency Test. The test is sponsored by the American Radio Relay League.

The Riley County ARES, the local Red Cross, the Riley County Emergency Preparedness Office, the Riley County and K-State Police departments, the local hospitals and other local businesses and agencies will volunteer equipment and personnel in testing the effectiveness of the disaster communications system. These agencies would all be affected by a disaster.

When the imaginary flood hits unannounced on Saturday, local ham operators will activate their base, mobile and portable radio stations, Calhoun said. Most will use noncommercial power sources such as emergency generators and batteries in order to make the "emergency" as real as possible.

The local ham operators will relay simulated emergency messages to various officials who would supply the necessary aid in an actual emergency. The ARRL's National Traffic System, a nationwide network for sending long-distance radio messages, will handle interstate messages, Calhoun pointed out.

For those who like to compete, he added, the ARRL has devised a point system to rate the amount and methods of communication. Ham operators can receive points for their use of emergency power, communication with the community and the amount of successful radio relays.

SERVE IN APPALACHIA

December 26, 1983 - January 1, 1984
January 2-8, 1984

NEEDED: Catholic men to work with the Glenmary Home Missioners, a society of Catholic priests and Brothers, serving the poor of Appalachia. Please send information about your winter volunteer programs. Please send information about Glenmary's work with the rural people of Appalachia and the South.

Reverend Jerry Dorn
Glenmary Home Missioners' Room
Box 46404
Cincinnati, Ohio 45246

95

Name _____ Age _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

The Avalon
"BEAT KU"

Friday and Saturday
JIM SWENEY

and the JUMPSHOTZ Pop, Rock

TGIF AT THE AVALON 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.
NO COVER CHARGE • 2 FOR 1 DRAWS
FREE HORS D'OEUVRES • $1.25 HOUSE DRINKS

1122 Moro

UPSTAIRS IN AGGIEVILLE

539-9703

More People are Telling us —

"My Favorite Spot on the dial
is 101 +

Because you play the Hits."

KMKF 101+

THE BLUE RIVER PUB
PRESENTS
THE CHICAGO KNOCKERS

Professional Women Mud Wrestlers

Thursday Night
8 p.m.

Oct. 20th

Blue River Pub

Next to Tuttle Creek Dam
537-9877

Featured Bout
"BOOMER"

Tickets available at
The Ranch Saloon,
Blue River Pub &
S Bar J Western Wear.

TO CHABOD'S
K-State Post Game Party
$1 Cover 25¢ Draws
7-11 p.m.

1½ miles north on Mass. St.
from the bridge
Lawrence, Ks.

© 1983 Adolph Coors Company, Golden Colorado 80401 • A Brewer of Fine Quality Beers Since 1873.

College life challenges older students

By KAREN BELLUS
Collegian Reporter

Editor's note: This is the second in a two-part series dealing with the problems and concerns of non-traditional K-State students — those who are also parents and older students who return to school after an extended period outside the academic community.

Sheila looks around the classroom as she finishes her exam. Once again, she is one of the last to finish. As she glances over the key to the exam in the hall outside the classroom, she overhears the plans of other students around her: Dark Horse, Kite's, formals, functions.

Unlike the other freshmen around her, Sheila will go to her apartment, fix a small supper for herself and perhaps call her daughter.

Sheila is not the typical freshman. She is not 18 years old and she does not live in a residence hall.

Sheila is a 45-year-old mother of three.

Sheila, a hypothetical returning student, could be one of the more than 1,600 undergraduate students attending K-State who are 25 years old and older, according to Margaret Nordin, associate director of student development. A majority of these students are between the ages of 25 and 35.

Although this group of students makes up approximately 10 percent of the undergraduate population, the students' needs can be very different from the average undergraduate, and many times services that they need are not as available to them.

The FENIX program was created in the fall of 1979 to help with such needs and to refer students to other services.

"The FENIX office was created as a counterpart to Chrysalis, the program that introduced freshmen to K-State. Just as Chrysalis is a symbol of birth, FENIX is a symbol of regeneration, of renewing and reaching out of the ashes for new opportunities," Nordin said.

Nordin said that FENIX works mostly as a referral service.

"We tie in with other services already available to these students. We frequently work with the Women's Resource Center, University for Man, Student Development Minister Don Fallon and Mental Health," she said.

The students in this category also have formed a support group to help deal with the various problems that older students may encounter. The Association of Adults Returning to School is an outgrowth of the FENIX office. The organization formerly operated under the names of Students Older than Average and the FENIX Organization.

"We're just like any other group on campus. We try to help each other with classes and other problems,"

AARTS President Cheryl Shell, senior in elementary education, said.

"The difference between older students and other undergraduate students is that school is often second priority. The average AARTS student has acquired the trappings of society: husbands, wives, jobs, children, property, and that student has to juggle responsibilities more," she said.

Because of their experience and other responsibilities, older students often find it difficult to adjust to courses that "are geared to the 18-year old living in a resident hall," Nordin said.

As a result, older students are often subject to areas of stress that the traditional undergraduate is not. Financial aid and sudden changes in life style are the main problems with which older students must contend.

"Re-entry students often don't really know how to go about getting financial aid. In high school, students are told exactly what they need, but FENIX students sometimes don't know where to begin," Nordin said.

Willis White, senior in arts and sciences, returned to school in January 1983 after serving in the U.S. Marine Corps for 28 years, 26 of which were active.

White said he had no difficulty with financial aid. As a veteran he could obtain work-study through the Veterans' Administration.

"I really didn't have a problem (with financial aid). I went through the VA and if they couldn't answer my questions they could direct me to another office that could," he said.

"I'd say my main problem was having someone to talk to, to make friends with. Through the FENIX program I could meet with people my own age and discuss problems that we had in common," he said.

Nordin said that drastic changes in life style such as becoming divorced, being widowed or having children leave home cause many people to consider returning to school. However, actually getting enrolled may be a big step to some.

"Often I may talk to some people two or three years before they finally decide to enroll. I refer them to other offices that may be able to help them. If a person is from out of town, I try to set up appointments for them so they can see who they need to in one day," Nordin said.

"I would like to tell others that are considering returning to school that they shouldn't be leery of school. You should take something that you've always wanted to learn or know about, regardless of whether it applies to a degree. Just take the class and get back into school," White said.

Congratulations
KIM ELLIOTT
on being selected
1984 Pahlennic
Rush Coordinator

Love,
Your Kappa Delta Sisters

Don't Forget:
Free 6 or 8 oz.
Redken Shampoo
with your first style
Roche's
Hairstyling
in Aggieville

Tickets now on sale to see
The Complex
Improvisational Theatre
in
"An Evening in Limbo"

presented by the K-State Players

8 p.m. Fri., Oct. 21 & Sat., Oct. 22

Purple Masque Theater in East Stadium. Tickets $3

Tickets available at door or Central Ticket
Office in Ahearn Gym.
For more info call 532-6875.

THE COMPLEX
IMPROVISATIONAL
THEATRE

Denver area residents protest bomb factory

By The Associated Press

GOLDEN, Colo. — Time was when the wind-blown stretch of Colorado prairie called Rocky Flats was as desolate as its name sounded. Then, in the late 1940s, surveys from the Atomic Energy Commission came to build a nuclear weapons plant.

Today, 30 years since it began operations, many Denver residents fear Rocky Flats as the bomb factory, in the spreading city's backyard. More than 100,000 people live within 10 miles of the plant.

The plant is no stranger to demonstrations, and organizers expect thousands of anti-war and anti-nuclear activists to join hands and encircle the 6,500-acre plant grounds Oct. 15. It is to be the first of anti-arms demonstrations scheduled in the nation in coming weeks.

The plant makes plutonium triggers for nuclear bombs, hence the fear of radioactive contamination. Federal officials and Rockwell International, the company that runs Rocky Flats for the government, say they're running a safe operation. Safety improvements have been made, they say, and health and security measures are strict.

But there are worries: At least one death was traced to Rocky Flats, cancer rates are higher near the plant, and plutonium was discovered, through autopsies, in the bodies of nearby residents in recent years.

Jerry Langheim, a spokesman for Rockwell International, said the plutonium levels determined by autopsies were the same as those found in bodies around the world because of radioactive fallout from nuclear bomb tests.

The bodies of the Coloradans, however, showed a higher concentration of "weapons-grade" plutonium 239, the particular isotope used in 93 percent of the work at Rocky Flats, than of isotope 240, which is more commonly found in bomb fallout, according to a 1975-82 federal-state study by Dr. John Cobb, professor of preventive medicine at the University of Colorado Medical School.

In addition, Cobb reported, the percentages of 239 and 240 found in the bodies were similar to those found in the soil at Rocky Flats.

When the AEC announced its plans to build the Rocky Flats plant 16 miles northwest of Denver in 1951, its 1,000 jobs were greeted as good news by some. Others were uneasy.

Then Gov. Dan Thornton worried that it would be as much a bomb target as a place to make them. "I wouldn't be against moving the state capital to Gunnison," a city 145 miles away in the mountains.

Initially, not much was known of the plant, except that parts for nuclear weapons were made using some radioactive materials.

The first word that plutonium, a man-made element known to cause cancer in test animals, was used at Rocky Flats came in 1957, when plant officials revealed that two workers had been injured in an explosion in a "glove box" where workers handled radioactive materials through lead-shielded gloves.

Mr. Steak

DINNER SPECIAL

DINNER FOR TWO
$9.95

Both 7 oz. Filet Dinners
For One Low Price
MR. STEAK'S FAVORITE
SIRLOIN NOTED FOR ITS
TENDERNESS

The Steak for you from America's Steak Expert. Featuring 2-1/2" x 7-1/2" broiled to your taste.

Dinner includes bread, choice of potato or seasoned rice, tossed salad or soup.

OFFER GOOD
Thru October 28

Westloop Manhattan

FILET DINNER
$4.99

Mr. Steak 7 oz.
Filet Dinner
MR. STEAK'S FAVORITE
SIRLOIN NOTED FOR ITS
TENDERNESS

For the lowest possible price from America's Steak Expert. Featuring USDA Choice 1-1/2" broiled to your taste. Dinner includes bread, choice of potato or seasoned rice, tossed salad or soup.

OFFER GOOD
Thru October 28

Westloop Manhattan

AMERICA'S STEAK EXPERT
1305 West Loop Mr. Steak Manhattan, K.S.

Welcome
Wildcats!

704 Massachusetts
Downtown Lawrence

THE GRINDER MAN

FAMOUS GRINDER MAN
SANDWICHES

	6"	12"	6"	12"
	MINI	MAXI	MINI	MAXI
THE GRINDER.....	$1.65	$3.00	HAM ON RYE.....	1.85 3.55
HERO.....	1.75	3.25	ROAST BEEF.....	2.00 3.80
PEPPERED BEEF.....	2.00	3.80	TURKEY.....	1.85 3.55
ITALIAN MEATBALL.....	1.75	3.35	CLUB.....	1.95 3.65
ITALIAN SAUSAGE.....	1.75	3.35	PASTRAMI.....	1.85 3.55
COMBINATION MEATBALL AND SAUSAGE.....	3.35	3.35	REUBEN.....	2.10 3.99
PEPPERONI & ITALIAN CHEESE.....	1.60	2.90	CANADIAN BACON.....	2.00 3.85
ITALIAN STYLE HAM.....	1.85	3.55	Three Foot Long.....	29.95
GENOA.....	1.95	3.75	Six Foot Long.....	54.95
VEGETARIAN.....	1.50	2.70	HOT DOG.....	.89
AMERICAN HAM.....	1.85	3.55	KRAUT DOG.....	.99
			SALAD BAR.....	2.39

ALL YOU CAN EAT

FRIDAYS
Taco Buffet
$3.95

5 to 8 PM
ALL YOU CAN EAT

One Free Beer with Taco Buffet!

REMARKABLE REVENUES

This Friday, ending from 5 to 8 PM, at Fridays Restaurant for yourself with Taco Buffet, Sausage, International Chili and Sour Cream Dip. Drink up to 80¢ steak and 75¢ fries.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING STUDENTS

PRE-ENROLLMENT COUNSELING URGED
Make an appointment NOW with:
PROF. HUNT IN Durland 263

Preferential treatment at pre-enrollment time for those counseled now.

PERSONALIZED KSU WILDCATS CHECKS

75¢ for 200, acceptable with your account at any bank. Checks include single copy deposit slips, register and white cover with purple KSU Willie Wildcat on front.

JOHN W. BRADSHAW
1234 W. LINCOLN
ANYTOWN, U.S.A. 01234

101

12-5678/1234

DOLLARS

BANK OF ANYTOWN
ANYTOWN, U.S.A. 01234

12345678901 01 234 56 0101

Send for free samples or fill out order below and mail to Kansas Bank Note Co., Fifth & Jefferson, Dept. KSU, Fredonia, KS 66736.

Name _____ NO _____ UP _____
Address _____ 101 or Higher _____
City & State _____ Zip _____ Code _____

QUANTITY _____

ENCLOSE $750 FOR EACH UNIT OF 200 TOPBOUND CHECKS. IMPRINTED WITH NAME, ADDRESS, CONSECUTIVE NUMBERS, AND MICR ENCODING. SINGLE COPY DEPOSIT SLIPS, CHECK REGISTER AND COVER INCLUDED WITH ORDER. DUPLICATE AND 3 TO PAGE BUSINESS CHECKS ALSO AVAILABLE. ASK ABOUT OUR MEMO PADS AND GIFT CERTIFICATES.

IMPORTANT - ALONG WITH YOUR PAYMENT YOU MUST ALSO ENCLOSE ONE OF YOUR EXISTING CHECKS (VOIDED) AND A DEPOSIT SLIP TO PROVIDE BANK NAME, ACCOUNT NUMBERS AND PRINTING COPY YOUR CHECKS WILL BE PRINTED JUST LIKE THE SAMPLE CHECK YOU SEND. US. SO MAKE ANY DESIRED CHANGES ON THAT CHECK.

SUNDAY SUPPER

5:30 p.m. 1021 Denison Ave.
50¢ or Free

Program begins at 6:45

Solar Energy—One Answer to the Energy Shortage

Sponsored by
CUMENICAL
CHRISTIAN
MINISTRIES

GET FRAMED!

Have your picture taken for Royal Purple

Today:

Boyd Hall 8:30-12:30
Clovie 1:30-5:30

Monday:

Edwards Hall 8:30-12:30
Ford Hall 1:30-5:30

Off-Campus people
can still get pictures taken
Oct. 10-28

Union 209

Bring your stamped fee card.

539-5229

Weekend Special!

Call us.
539-0561
517 North 12th St.

Hours:
4:30pm-1am Mon-Thurs.
11am - 2am Fri & Sat.
11am - 1am Sun.

We use only the freshest
ingredients and 100%
real dairy cheese.

We promise free delivery
and fast 30 minute
service to your door. All you have to do is call!

Prices do not include
applicable sales tax.

Our drivers carry less
than $10.00.

Limited delivery area.
© 1983 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

Our Superb
Cheese Pizza
12" cheese $5.15
16" cheese $7.35

The Price Destroyer:
9 items for the price of 5
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Olives, Onions, Green
Peppers, Ground Beef,
Sausage, Ham, Extra
Cheese

12" Price Destroyer $ 9.40
16" Price Destroyer $13.60

Additional Items
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Ham, Onions, Anchovies,
Green Peppers, Olives,
Sausage, Ground Beef,
Jalapenos, Extra Cheese,
Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $ .85 per item
16" pizza $1.25 per item
Pepper/quarts available

$2.00
Off!

Good Friday, Saturday,
& Sunday only.
$2.00 off any 16"
2-item pizza plus 1 qt.
of Pepsi.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 12/31/83

Fast, Free Delivery
Good at listed
locations.

34099 / 6311

Stray Cats 'Rant and Rave' rocks with simple, fun music

By ANGIE SCHARNHORST
Album Reviewer

If there were only one word to be used in summarizing the music of the Stray Cats on "Rant and Rave," their latest LP, that word would be "simplicity."

But that's not an insult — the Cats are known for simplicity.

Champions of the back-to-basics music revival, the trio has released an album full of upbeat, danceable melodies and ineloquent lyrics. Although simplistic music and less than eloquent lyrics sound as if they would add up to bored listeners, the opposite is true.

The Stray Cats, with the aid of producer Dave Edmunds, have simplicity down to a fine art form. As it is an integral part of rockabilly, simplicity means the band is doing its job well.

For anyone unfamiliar with the Stray Cats, the trio relies almost solely on three instruments for accompaniment — guitar, upright bass and drums. "Rant and Rave," like its preceding American release, "Built for Speed," capitalizes on the straight-forward sound that the three instruments, when blended, produce. The LP may even be stronger, overall, than the band's first album.

Review

One important fact that is often overlooked in music is that lyrics don't always need to be superlative in order to convey a message. This is definitely true in the case of the Stray Cats. Although there is nothing which appears on "Rant and Rave" that would ever be quoted in a book of poetry, with the help of music, the lyrics are more than adequate.

The LP features the work of Brian Setzer, primary songwriter and vocalist for the Cats. Heavily influenced by such '50s rockabilly stars as the Burnette brothers, Setzer's lyrics deal with such topics as rock'n'roll, women and cars.

Judging from their music, the Stray Cats are in the business for the pure fun of it. Their albums come across that way, also.

One of the most enjoyable tracks on "Rant and Rave" is "Look at that Cadillac." The song highlights the resonant saxophone playing of Mel Collins, an extra on the LP. The song tells the story of a liquor store employee who is saving his money for a black Cadillac.

*Well, there's a big black Cadillac
Parked in the street over there
It's the finest looking car
That ever rolled off the line
Any other car
Would just be wasting your time
Oh, one fine day
I'm gonna make the Cadillac mine
I gotta get a Cadillac*

Overall, the LP is filled with amusing lyrics, although most are unenjoyable without their musical background. This is exemplified by other solid tracks on the LP, including "Too Hip, Gotta Go," and "Something's Wrong With My Radio," in which Setzer complains that the music on the radio isn't fast enough.

The Stray Cats, with the release of "Rant and Rave," have set a precedent that will be hard to live up to. With an LP that is as fun as this one is, they'll have a hard time following it with anything better.

Calendar

Today, Oct. 15

MUSIC

Jim Sweeney and the Jumpshotz; Avalon

MOVIES

Never Say Never; Wareham Mr. Mom; West Loop Romantic Comedy; West Loop

Flashdance; Varsity Return of the Ninja; Campus

The Still of the Night; Forum Hall, 7 and 9:30 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 16

MUSIC

Jim Sweeney and the Jumpshotz; Avalon

MOVIES

Never Say Never; Wareham Mr. Mom; West Loop Romantic Comedy; West Loop

Flashdance; Varsity Return of the Ninja; Campus

The Still of the Night; Forum Hall, 7 and 9:30 p.m.

Alice in Wonderland; Forum Hall, 2 p.m.

Spotlight is a calendar of entertainment and cultural events in the Manhattan area. The arts and entertainment staff encourages anyone to bring or mail items of interest to the Collegian Newsroom, Kedzie Hall, room 116.

Uganda exiles doctor; U.S. prison term waits

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — A doctor who skipped the country 12 years ago and reportedly was a personal physician to deposed Ugandan dictator Idi Amin headed back to Chicago on Thursday to begin serving a lengthy prison term for murdering his socialite wife.

Dr. John M. Branion Jr., who fled the United States in 1971 after being convicted of killing his wife, Donna, was taken into custody Wednesday at Uganda's Entebbe airport, said Cook County Lt. James Keating.

Two sheriff's investigators, who flew to Uganda last Saturday, accompanied Branion to London, where he spent the night in jail before heading back to the United States.

Authorities said Branion had been expelled from Uganda, where international law enforcement authorities say he once spent seven years as Amin's personal physician.

A 57-year-old general practitioner, Branion vanished while free on a $5,000 appeal bond. He had been sentenced to 20 to 30 years for murdering his wife, who was shot four times with a handgun in their South Side home on Dec. 22, 1967.

Authorities said the shooting was prompted by a marital squabble.

Branion will appear in court today and likely will be transferred to prison immediately after, said Greg Ginex, an assistant state's attorney. "There's nothing for him to do but serve his time," Ginex said.

Ginex said county officials heard

Branion was living in Uganda in late 1979 or 1980 but repeated attempts to have the doctor returned home were unsuccessful.

"We were told he wasn't there," Ginex said, adding there were further complications because the United States does not have an extradition treaty with Uganda.

But, Ginex said, Ugandan officials told American authorities several weeks ago, "If you want to get him, we are expelling him and you can get him at the airport."

Ginex said officials were told Branion "fell into disfavor."

However, Western diplomatic sources in Uganda said he most likely was stripped of his Ugandan citizenship because he concealed his murder conviction when he applied for it.

Little was known about Branion's whereabouts for many years.

Authorities, who pieced together a record of his travels with the help of Interpol, the global police intelligence agency, say they believe Branion arrived in the Sudan soon after his disappearance and then surfaced in Uganda, where he remained from 1972 until 1979, serving Amin.

Interpol reported Branion was under "house arrest" — virtually a prisoner — during those years in Uganda.

When Amin was ousted in 1979, there were reports Branion fled to South Africa. Interpol said the doctor surfaced in Malaysia and was living in Kuala Lumpur.

T.G.I.F.

Bookers Two

THE SPREAD SEVEN

Hors d'oeuvres
$1 per plate
4-7 p.m.

Come Dance to

CLASS ACT

Fri. & Sat. Night
10-1 A.M.
No Cover

RAMADA INN

Buy a Whopper and get a Whopper Jr. FREE.

Please present this coupon before ordering. Limit one coupon per customer. Not to be used with other coupons or offers. This offer expires 10/20/83. Good only at the Burger King restaurant, 3rd and Poyntz, downtown Manhattan, Ks.

BURGER KING

Burger King—Reg. U.S. Pat. & TM Off 1982 Burger King Corporation

COUNTRY RITZ

ANTIQUES & ACCESSORIES

GRAND OPENING

Country living is a special, satisfying way of life. You don't have to live in the country or even have a house decorated entirely with that style of furnishings to enjoy the simplicity and pleasure that a link to the past offers.

Country Ritz offers quality American and European antique furniture made of walnut, oak and pine, antique stained glass and quilts, for an authentic reminder of another era.

We also offer furniture, baskets, rag rugs, folk art, brassware, teddy bears, dolls, candles and candlesticks and much more for your enjoyment.

Country Ritz wants to help whet your appetite as you discover the enjoyment that comes from owning or giving the finest antiques or embracing newly-crafted items, already collectables because of the care that an artisan of today has taken.

Stop in during our grand opening this Friday and Saturday and discover only the finest items, which is what Country Ritz is all about.

Store Hours:
Monday thru Saturday 10 a.m. till 5:30 p.m.
Thursdays till 8:30 p.m.

Free Gift Wrapping

1217 MORO IN AGGIEVILLE 913-539-8209

8th & VERMONT In Downtown Lawrence HAWKEYE'S AND CHEVY'S

(18 Bar)

(21 Club)

FRIDAY

Hawkeye's
$1.25 Pitchers
till 9:00 p.m.
$2.00 Pitchers
till 12:00 a.m.

Chevy's
$1.00 Drinks
till 11:00 p.m.
$1.75 Drinks
till close

SATURDAY

Hawkeye's
$1.25 Pre-game
$1.50 till 9:00 p.m.
$2.25 till close

Chevy's
$1.00 Drinks
till 11:00 p.m.
$1.75 Drinks
till close

201 & 205 8th St.
Lawrence, Kansas

Eat—Ribs—Ham—Pork—Beef Drink—Miller—Pabst—Lite—Bud

The BBQ

Where The Action Is . . .

Downtown
Lawrence

719
Mass.

10:30 a.m.
till
11:00 p.m.

TOM DOWNING
Collegian Reviewer

McCain events: money well spent

Christopher Durang's musical takeoff on American films, "A History of American Film."

Besides being a dream come true for young performers, the ANTA touring company has much to offer an audience.

Groups like ANTA aren't someone's return on their investment. Unlike other forms of entertainment, this company makes no profit off your $7 student admission price.

The National Shakespeare Company, The New York City Opera, ANTA, and the other McCain attractions also make nothing off their trip to the "Land of Ah's."

Consider these facts: Sources of funding for the arts are dwindling. Costs for touring theater productions soar out of the reach of many companies. Competition in the entertainment industry has never been better — movies, cable TV and music demand a share of our entertainment dollars.

Few things rival the experience of a live performance. This is no startling conclusion.

Our actions however, indicate that some people don't believe this. As consumers, we're willing to spend money for movies, records, drinks — but spend $7 per ticket for a play we know nothing about? Never.

Our reluctance to take a chance on the theater has always puzzled me.

I've been telling people about ANTA for several days now, and everyone asks, "Are they good?"

Most people want to experience something of value — a baseball game, a concert pianist, a modern dance troupe; we expect to get our money's worth.

But when it comes to theater, some audiences just won't accept anything less than a Broadway blockbuster. Why not just go and see what happens?

Probably because there are too many "I can't go because..." excuses.

One popular excuse is that it's too expensive.

When you consider the costs of touring productions as compared to the costs of other forms of entertainment, the ticket price seems quite reasonable. For example, The Czech Philharmonic will cost McCain $30,000.

One hundred percent of your money goes to pay to bring them all the way from Czechoslovakia. The movies at Forum Hall cost only $1.50 and that seems like a bargain. But most of the time, you pay roughly half, or 75 cents, to the Union Program Council as profit.

According to UPC, they pay a guarantee of anywhere from $750 for "Tootsie" to $300 for "Animal House." The film distributor gets either the guarantee or 50 percent of the gate. They don't have to charge $1.50. Filling the 550 seats in Forum Hall, multiplied by four showings, equals more than the guarantee.

They aren't bad guys for doing this. After all, the Union provides affordable entertainment, thank goodness, for broke college students. They have some flexibility: they could charge more; they could charge less. But McCain can't afford to charge less, and if they charge more, nobody could afford to go.

We can be reasonably sure that the major studios aren't helping to develop American actors and American playwrights — they are spending and investing our money on themselves.

On the other hand, groups like ANTA must rely on private donations, government grants and the price of your ticket just to survive.

Which product is overpriced? It seems to me it's the producers of first-run movies, concerts, records — all produced for profit — who are ripping us off; not the struggling performing arts.

Theaters like McCain Auditorium charge you only what they need to meet expenses. Everyone else charges what they damn well please.

NASA shuttle officials debate delayed launch

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Dozens of experts analyzed records at a Utah rocket plant Thursday to learn why a faulty rocket nozzle nearly spelled trouble in August for the space shuttle Challenger and its crew. NASA held on to fading hopes the mystery can be resolved so the next shuttle can be launched Oct. 28.

Some officials said the problem almost certainly will delay the next liftoff one to four months. A decision on whether to delay may not be made for several days.

The rocket specialists, from several aerospace companies, were poring over documentation to determine whether Batch 1042 of Fiberite, a carbon phenolic material, contained bad ingredients. They worked with conflicting data.

The protective lining on one of Challenger's two bell-shaped solid rocket nozzles was made from Batch 1042. Engineers examining the nozzle after its recovery from the Atlantic Ocean discovered that the three-inch coating had burned down to two-tenths of an inch. Normally only about half the lining erodes away under the searing exhaust temperatures of 5,700 degrees Fahrenheit.

Astronaut Daniel Brandenstein, who piloted the flight, told CBS News Wednesday that the nozzle would have burned through if the rockets had fired for another 2.7 seconds. He said a burnthrough would have been "catastrophic" and spelled "curtains" for the five astronauts.

A NASA official labeled that conclusion as conjecture, although agency engineers said a burnthrough might have occurred if the boosters had fired another 15 to 20 seconds. Even if there were a burnthrough during the firing period, they said, a shuttle crew could shed the boosters and — depending on the point of flight — fly on into orbit with the ship's three main engines, or make an emergency landing.

The two solid fuel boosters burn slightly more than two minutes and then are jettisoned. The liquid-fuel main engines burn for another six minutes to reach orbit.

When the nozzle erosion was detected, NASA immediately turned attention to the shuttle Columbia, poised on a Cape Canaveral, Fla., launch pad to hoist the $1-billion European-built Spacelab into orbit on Oct. 28. One of its booster nozzle liners also was made from Batch 1042.

Investigation has centered on the possibility of bad material or a mishap in the curing process at the booster manufacturer's plant, Morton-Thiokol of Brigham City, Utah. Test firings of two nozzles using the material brought different results. One, on Sunday, produced considerable erosion. A second, on Wednesday, produced hardly any, adding to the scientific puzzle.

BEER
Sold at cost plus
5%
Revco Drug Store
Village Plaza

---

FREE SPIRITS
buy your
HALLOWEEN
COSTUMES
at
PASTENSE

11 a.m.-5 p.m. 418 West 6th Street
Mon.-Sat. Topeka, Ks.

THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW

Late Show 11:30 p.m.
Friday & Saturday
Rated R

Varsity
1125 MORO

Air Bards

WIN: • 1st Prize—a keg of beer
• 2nd Prize—a pizza party

Fall Flash Bash

ENTER THE STUDENT FOUNDATION AIR BAND CONTEST NOVEMBER 4 AT 5TH STREET EXCHANGE.
*ENTRY FEE—$15.00 PER BAND (INCLUDES ADMISSION TO DANCE AND FREE BEER ALL NIGHT).
*BANDS MAY ONLY USE HAND HELD PROPS.
*FIRST 8 BANDS TO REGISTER WILL HAVE THIS RARE OPPORTUNITY TO COMPETE AT OUR ALL UNIVERSITY DANCE.

AIR BAND REGISTRATION FORM
RETURN WITH $15 TO HOLLIS HOUSE BY FRIDAY, NOV. 4

NAME _____ PHONE _____
ADDRESS _____ # BAND MEMBERS _____

SPONSORED BY THE STUDENT FOUNDATION
HOLLIS HOUSE—532-6296

THE K-STATE MARCHING BAND IN CONCERT

Thursday, Oct. 20
8:00 p.m.
McCain Aud.
FREE

Featuring Color Guard,
Pridettes and Feature Twirler

STRAY CATS

IN CONCERT 1983 Homecoming

Friday,
November 11
8:00 P.M. Ahearn Fieldhouse

Tickets go on sale
Sat., Oct. 22—12 Noon
K-State Union Box Office
20 ticket limit

Tickets: $10, $9.50, $9.00
K-State Students
(2 per I.D.)
$11, 10.50, 10.00
General Public

presented by

k-state union
upc special events

1004

'Bragging rights' on line Saturday at KU in annual intrastate game

By SEAN REILLY
Sports Editor

While Saturday's game between K-State and the University of Kansas will not have a Big Eight Conference championship or postseason appearance on the line, fans across Kansas nevertheless will traverse Highway I-70 to Lawrence to witness the annual clash for state bragging rights.

Kickoff for the contest, which will mark the 81st meeting between the schools, is set for 1:30 p.m. in Memorial Stadium.

KU leads the series 55-21-4, including wins in three of the last four meetings. However, the Jayhawks lost last year's battle 36-7 before a sellout crowd in Manhattan and a national television audience through the telecast of WTBS, Atlanta.

"This rivalry makes it a good game to be a part of because neither of us predominately has been a postseason team, said K-State Head Coach Jim Dickey. That makes the game even bigger because it's the most important game of the year for both of us."

Coach Dickey also said he realizes what the benefits derived from a victory over KU can do for his team which is now 2-3 overall, including an 0-1 Big Eight mark after falling 29-10 last week against the University of Oklahoma.

"It's important for several reasons — recruiting, coaches' sanity and bragging rights," Dickey said.

1982 was a bad year for the 1982 Jayhawks, which, out of 97 Division I-A teams, ranked 84th in rushing offense, 91st in scoring, 94th in total offense, 96th in rushing defense and 81st in total defense. The head coach at that time, Don Fambrough, could only find consolation in that his team finished second in the nation in defense against the pass.

Fambrough, however, was fired just as the NCAA investigators were arriving along with Mike Gottfried, who would take over as head coach for the Jayhawks.

When Gottfried first arrived at Kansas from the University of Cincinnati where he was the head coach, a story soon circulated that he had called Frank Seurer, KU's quarterback, into his office and asked him what was the most passes he threw in a game. Seurer replied that the highest was 36. Gottfried, who has a reputation for opening up the game, then responded that this number was rather low, and this season thus far, he has lived up to its "Air Gottfried" billing.

Gottfried unleashed Seurer, who currently stands in fifth place on the Big Eight Conference's all-time passing list after passing for 279 yards last week's 38-35 loss to Iowa State University. He only needs 158 yards to surpass the Nebraska great David Humm, who threw for 4,976 total yards.

Despite an impressive victory over USC two weeks earlier, the Jayhawks have had bad luck in close games. They have come within 12 seconds of having a 5-0-0 record. Instead, they are 2-2-1 with all of their losses coming with the opponents making game-winning field goals with less than 10 seconds left in the games.

"Our backs are against the wall now. We lost a game we should have won. We made mistakes on every phase of the game. I'm sure it was a great win for Iowa State, but it was unfortunate it was against us," Gottfried said.

"One week you have an entire band waiting for you, the next week all you have is a dog barking at you," Gottfried said of the USC victory and ISU loss.

In the game against ISU, Bruce Kallmeyer's 57-yard field goal set a KU school record. He now owns the Big Eight career field goal mark with 45 three-pointers and is three shy of tying Larry Roach's season record of 19 set two years ago.

Kallmeyer also is second in the nation in scoring (12.8 points per game) and second in field goals (16-of-19).

In the Jayhawks' stunning defeat of then-10th-ranked University of Southern California, Seurer completed a career-best 26 of 38 passes for 385 yards — another career best, including a touchdown, and was named Sports Illustrated's Offensive Player of the Week.

"I felt his presence," Seurer said about his deceased father after the victory over USC. Just before the start of the football season, Frank Seurer Sr., was stabbed to death in the kitchen of the restaurant he owned and operated in Lawrence.

In the same game, KU flanker Darren Green caught a total of seven passes for a school-record 197 yards. Another Jayhawk who had an outstanding game was Kallmeyer, who kicked two field goals from the 24 and 28 yard lines, breaking a 20-20 tie.

Starting at quarterback for the Wildcats will be Doug Bogue, who will have to contend not only with the Jayhawk defense but with the reminder that his father is a former all-conference quarterback at Kansas.

"This will be the biggest game of my life. I've waited my entire career to play Kansas and this finally will be it."

Dickey, who will be looking forward to improving his 21-39-1 career record, said he is anticipating KU will use the same defensive scheme he saw earlier in the season.

"Offensively we need to work very hard against their wide tackle six defense," Dickey said. "It's very similar to Kentucky's defense, which really gave us a lot of trouble."

The fact that 54 of K-State's top 87 players are Kansas natives should add to the rivalry in Saturday's contest.

"This is going to be a highly emotional game, but it's also going to be a game of execution play after play, and we need to be well-prepared."

However, the 'Cats will be without the service of linebacker Stu Peters, who has been in and out of action all year because of a foot injury, until further notice.

Dickey said a decision to apply for a hardship ruling for Peters has not been considered.

Others who are questionable for the game include defensive back Nelson Nickerson and tailback Greg Dageforde. Les Miller, a freshman defensive lineman, has been put back into the lineup after an injury to his knee earlier in the season.

There are several injured players for KU who will not play in the game against the 'Cats or are listed as questionable. Rod Demeritte, KU's starting cornerback, will miss the remainder of the season because of a broken bone in his left ankle, Gottfried said.

Demeritte suffered the injury in the Jayhawks' loss to ISU. Several other KU players also suffered less severe injuries.

"I can't really explain it," Gottfried said. "The injuries seem to have hit us all at once."

Other injured Jayhawks include defensive ends Rod Timmons, Ken Davis, Charles Cooper and Elvis Patterson and offensive lineman Paul Fairchild. All are listed as questionable for Saturday's game.

K-State's volleyball squad looks to finish in top three at Oral Roberts Invitational

By VIKKI WATSON
Staff Writer

Following its 9-15, 9-15, 10-15 loss to the Missouri Tigers Wednesday, the women's volleyball team will next compete Oct. 14-15 in the Oral Roberts Invitational in Tulsa, Okla.

The Wildcats, now 10-8 overall and 1-4 in the Big Eight Conference, will face the University of Oklahoma on Friday at 2 p.m., followed by Texas Lutheran College at 4 p.m., and Texas Tech at 8 p.m. On Saturday, K-State will face the University of Tulsa at 9:30 a.m. and the University of Texas-El Paso at 11:30 a.m. Playoffs begin at 3 p.m., and the championship match starts at 7 p.m.

K-State placed fourth in last year's 12-team invitational, and on Friday, the 'Cats will be looking to avenge an earlier loss to OU this year.

"We played well at the tournament last year," said Scott Nelson, head volleyball coach. "Our goal this year is to finish among the top three teams. We are in an extremely tough pool, and Texas Lutheran traditionally is one of the best teams in the Texas area."

"We know about Oklahoma, too, since we lost to them two weeks ago," Nelson added. "I think we'll have a better performance this time, and we're anxious to play Oklahoma again."

In Wednesday's Missouri match, sophomore Donna Lee led the squad with nine kills, while senior Sharon Ridley and sophomore Shantelle Hietbrink recorded eight kills and 13 digs each.

Lee and Hietbrink lead the conference in digs with respective averages of 3.1 and 2.9, while K-State ranks as the Big Eight's top defensive team with 16.8 digs per game. The 'Cats also rank second in hitting efficiency with a .239 average.

K-State's next home match will be Tuesday against Fort Hays State University.

Aikens, Wilson 'strike out' in court

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY — Willie Wilson, last year's American League batting champion, and teammate Willie Aikens of the Kansas City Royals each pleaded guilty Thursday to a federal misdemeanor charge of attempted cocaine possession.

Both players were released on $5,000 personal recognizance bonds and sentencing was set for Nov. 17.

The charges carry maximum penalties of one year in prison and a $5,000 fine. However, Assistant U.S. Attorney Amanda Meers said she would not rule out the possibility that both would be placed on immediate probation.

John Schuerholtz, the Royals' general manager, said the club "was saddened by the entire situation."

Schuerholtz, reached in Philadelphia where he is attending the World Series, said, "We're looking forward to it being put behind us, so we can all look ahead as an organization to playing baseball and winning ballgames again."

Whether the players face further disciplinary action by the American League team or Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was unclear.

Chuck Adams, a spokesman for Kuhn, said from World Series headquarters in Philadelphia that the commissioner had no comment. AL President Lee MacPhail, also attending the World Series, could not be reached for comment.

Meanwhile, a six-month federal investigation of local drug trafficking could reach its climax Monday when information is presented to a grand jury in Kansas City. The names of several other current or former Royals — including pitcher Vida Blue, outfielder Jerry Martin and infielder U. L. Washington — have been linked to the probe.

However, federal authorities declined comment when asked if the investigation still might involve members of the baseball team or Blue, who has since left the Royals.

Wilson, an All-Star outfielder, arrived at the courthouse with his wife and two attorneys a few minutes after the U.S. attorney's office charged him and Aikens with attempting to possess cocaine.

Aikens, a first baseman, walked into the courthouse with his lawyer a short time later.

Both declined comment.

"You gotta be kidding, man," said Aikens, when asked if he had anything to say.

Meers told the court that arrangements for the pleas had been made, including the government's promise that no further charges of possession or distribution of narcotics would be filed against the players in connection with the current investigation.

Meers said there was no minimum sentence for the charges.

"It could be anywhere from a suspended sentence to probation or anything in between," she said.

Wilson and Aikens both waived their right to trial after U.S. Magistrate J. Milton Sullivan made certain they understood the case against them.

Meers said the players were heard trying to make arrangements for a cocaine purchase in telephone calls "intercepted by the FBI."

She said that on June 18 Wilson "...made a call to a residence in Johnson County (Kansas) for the purpose of obtaining one-fourth ounce of cocaine."

Steve Casteel, special agent with the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, said the street value of a quarter ounce of cocaine would range from $770 to $1,050.

Stephen Fehr, a lawyer for the Major League Players Association, attended the hearing.

"I'm just here as an interested observer," said Fehr, whose brother, Donald, is the union's general counsel.

The players' union blocked Kuhn's only attempt to suspend a player for drug involvement.

Baseball, unlike the National Football League and the National Basketball Association, does not have an agreement with the players' union for dealing with players convicted of drug charges.

Wilson has been one of the top players in the game since becoming a regular in 1979. He led the AL with 83 stolen bases that year. In 1982 he won the AL batting crown in controversial fashion, sitting out the last game of the season while his closest competitor, Robin Yount of the Milwaukee Brewers, went 4-for-5 to finish at .331 to Wilson's .332.

Pigskin Picks

Following Texas' 28-16 thumping of Oklahoma last week, the Longhorn's fullback Ervin "Blue" Davis commented that Texas "has more fullbacks than a skunk's got funk."

Such a statement would be appropriate for the Collegian's up-and-down panel of prognosticators which had seven of eight members finish with a winning mark.

Joel "The Polish Predictor" Torczon, who has won or tied for first place in four of the first six weeks, and Andy "Crash" Nelson, who did the same in three others, are tied for this week's lead each with 9-3 records. Each also are deadlocked for the overall lead with 46-23 marks — a .667 showing.

Four people are right behind with 8-4 records, including Tex

Hanson, Judi Wright, Kevin Dale and Sean Reilly. Dan Owsley finished with a respectable 7-5 mark and Brian La Rue with a not-so-respectable 6-6 showing. La Rue has got to quit being a Northwestern faithful; who would ever pick the "Mild"-cats over Iowa?

Owsley trails Nelson and Torczon by four games with a 42-27 overall record, with Hanson and La Rue not far behind at 41-28. Along with Reilly, Wright is "wright" behind at 40-29, and Kevin Dale brings up the rear at 38-31.

The folks in Ames, Iowa, and Boulder, Colo., have the dubious honor of having their teams being chosen for "Crummy Game of the Week" honors.

TOP 20
1. Nebraska (4)	86
2. Texas	78
3. North Carolina	71
4. West Virginia	67
5. Auburn	59
6. Ohio St.	57
7. Florida	54
8. SMU	52
9. Georgia	45
10. Arizona	43
11. (tie) Oklahoma	35
Michigan	35
13. Miami (Fla.)	34
14. Iowa	23
15. Alabama	21
16. Arizona St.	20
17. Washington	16
18. (tie) Maryland	15
Oklahoma St.	15
20. Brigham Young	11

Dan Owsley

K-State 19 vs. Kansas 31
Iowa State 27 vs. Colorado 20
Oklahoma State 21 vs. Oklahoma 20
Nebraska 43 vs. Missouri 27
Wichita State 20 vs. Indiana State 21
Texas 28 vs. Arkansas 14
Ohio State 21 vs. Illinois 17
Notre Dame 17 vs. Army 17
Washington 24 vs. Green Bay 31
L.A. Raiders 21 vs. Seattle 14
Dallas 24 vs. Philadelphia 17
Kansas City 17 vs. N.Y. Giants 17

Joel Torczon

K-State 20 vs. Kansas 27
Iowa State 31 vs. Colorado 23
Oklahoma State 27 vs. Oklahoma 24
Nebraska 27 vs. Missouri 17
Wichita State 17 vs. Indiana State 24
Texas 23 vs. Arkansas 14
Ohio State 17 vs. Illinois 10
Notre Dame 30 vs. Army 12
Washington 27 vs. Green Bay 31
L.A. Raiders 20 vs. Seattle 24
Dallas 23 vs. Philadelphia 20
Kansas City 24 vs. N.Y. Giants 20

Kevin Dale

K-State 17 vs. Kansas 14
Iowa State 10 vs. Colorado 21
Oklahoma State 17 vs. Oklahoma 28
Nebraska 24 vs. Missouri 27
Wichita State 7 vs. Indiana State 10
Texas 35 vs. Arkansas 24
Ohio State 24 vs. Illinois 21
Notre Dame 28 vs. Army 10
Washington 35 vs. Green Bay 14
L.A. Raiders 21 vs. Seattle 10
Dallas 35 vs. Philadelphia 23
Kansas City 14 vs. N.Y. Giants 21

Judi Wright

K-State 24 vs. Kansas 21
Iowa State 14 vs. Colorado 21
Oklahoma State 24 vs. Oklahoma 19
Nebraska 28 vs. Missouri 13
Wichita State 10 vs. Indiana State 14
Texas 38 vs. Arkansas 21
Ohio State 36 vs. Illinois 17
Notre Dame 14 vs. Army 17
Washington 28 vs. Green Bay 24
L.A. Raiders 34 vs. Seattle 14
Dallas 32 vs. Philadelphia 28
Kansas City 21 vs. N.Y. Giants 20

Tex Hanson

K-State 24 vs. Kansas 21
Iowa State 10 vs. Colorado 17
Oklahoma State 16 vs. Oklahoma 29
Nebraska 47 vs. Missouri 12
Wichita State 10 vs. Indiana State 9
Texas 69 vs. Arkansas 21
Ohio State 27 vs. Illinois 21
Notre Dame 20 vs. Army 20
Washington 21 vs. Green Bay 20
L.A. Raiders 34 vs. Seattle 10
Dallas 21 vs. Philadelphia 20
Kansas City 12 vs. N.Y. Giants 11

Sean Reilly

K-State 17 vs. Kansas 24
Iowa State 12 vs. Colorado 21
Oklahoma State 24 vs. Oklahoma 21
Nebraska 35 vs. Missouri 21
Wichita State 10 vs. Indiana State 21
Texas 25 vs. Arkansas 18
Ohio State 25 vs. Illinois 14
Notre Dame 18 vs. Army 21
Washington 25 vs. Green Bay 14
L.A. Raiders 24 vs. Seattle 28
Dallas 35 vs. Philadelphia 28
Kansas City 24 vs. N.Y. Giants 21

Andy Nelson

K-State 17 vs. Kansas 21
Iowa State 7 vs. Colorado 14
Oklahoma State 21 vs. Oklahoma 20
Nebraska 42 vs. Missouri 21
Wichita State 3 vs. Indiana State 7
Texas 31 vs. Arkansas 24
Ohio State 23 vs. Illinois 21
Notre Dame 20 vs. Army 10
Washington 28 vs. Green Bay 12
L.A. Raiders 31 vs. Seattle 30
Dallas 21 vs. Philadelphia 20
Kansas City 21 vs. N.Y. Giants 17

Brian La Rue

K-State 17 vs. Kansas 16
Iowa State 21 vs. Colorado 24
Oklahoma State 19 vs. Oklahoma 17
Nebraska 35 vs. Missouri 31
Wichita State 10 vs. Indiana State 14
Texas 10 vs. Arkansas 17
Ohio State 28 vs. Illinois 24
Notre Dame 14 vs. Army 3
Washington 27 vs. Green Bay 28
L.A. Raiders 24 vs. Seattle 17
Dallas 10 vs. Philadelphia 10
Kansas City 15 vs. N.Y. Giants 12 (OT)

K-STATE

Offense
SE -30 Mike Wallace, Jr., 6-2, 175
TE -42 Eric Bailey, Jr., 6-3, 225
WT -47 Jeff Koyl, Jr., 6-5, 273
WG -60 Randy Voelker, Jr., 6-4, 254
C -72 Jim Northcutt, Jr., 6-5, 240
SG -70 Calvin Switzer, Jr., 6-1, 256
ST -48 Damian Johnson, Jr., 6-5, 280
FL -60 Eric Mack, Sr., 6-3, 206
QB -7 Doug Bogue, Sr., 6-1, 195
TB -41 Greg Dageforde, Sr., 6-0, 203
FB -39 Charles Crawford, Jr., 6-1, 199
PK -10 Steve Willis, Jr., 6-2, 194

Defense
LE -97 L.E. Madison, Sr., 6-0, 217
LT -96 Reggie Singletary, Sr., 6-0, 254
NG -60 Mark Newton, Sr., 6-3, 262
RT -61 Bob Daniels, Jr., 6-3, 230
RE -32 Greg Strahm, Sr., 6-3, 233
LB -60 Bill Kooley, Sr., 5-11, 209
LB -31 Bob Kerr, Sr., 6-3, 208
LCB -16 Ivan Pearl, Sr., 5-6, 176
RCB -3 Nelson Nickerson, Jr., 5-10, 171
FS -17 David Ast, Sr., 6-0, 192
P -2 Scott Fulhage, Jr., 5-11, 187

KANSAS

Offense
SE -60 Bob Johnson, Sr., 6-1, 180
TE -40 Sylvester Byrd, Jr., 6-3, 215
LT -72 Renwick Atkins, Sr., 6-5, 265
LG -60 Paul Fairchild, Sr., 6-4, 257
C -66 Bennie Simceka, Jr., 6-4, 265
RG -75 K.C. Brown, Sr., 6-4, 260
RT -78 Reggie Smith, Sr., 6-4, 260
FL -32 Darren Green, Sr., 5-10, 170
QB -10 Frank Seurer, Sr., 6-2, 194
TB -4 Kerwin Bell, Sr., 5-8, 185
FB -39 E.J. Jones, Sr., 6-0, 210
PK -3 Bruce Kallmeyer, Sr., 5-10, 180

Defense
LE -32 Elvin Patterson, Sr., 5-10, 190
LT -37 Carley Alexander, Sr., 6-3, 230
LG -60 Eldridge Avery, Jr., 6-3, 230
RG -60 Ken Davis, Jr., 6-3, 275
RT -48 Mike Arbanas, Sr., 6-4, 230
RE -51 Len Gant, Jr., 6-1, 210
LLB -56 Darnell Williams, Jr., 6-3, 210
RLB -60 Willie Pless, Sr., 6-0, 210
LC -33 Jeff Colter, Sr., 5-11, 173
RC -38 Rod Demeritte, Sr., 5-10, 180
FS -34 Clyde Johnson, Jr., 5-11, 215
P -31 Clint Colburn, Sr., 6-0, 175

K-State's fall baseball season to end with weekend games

By GARY VAN CLEAVE
Collegian Reporter

If the spring baseball season is anything like the exhibition season K-State is going through now, Big Eight Conference foes may be in for a surprise when the Wildcats start conference action in April.

In the past couple seasons, K-State mustered little success in the Big Eight because of pitching. Offensively, the Wildcats were sound, but pitching was giving up more runs than the Wildcat batters could score.

The 1983 exhibition season, which concludes Sunday at Frank Meyers Field, has been one which has been the opposite of the past — one with the K-State pitchers dominating the scene, but the Wildcat bats were rather silent.

"The hitting has not come around like we expected," K-State Coach Bill Hickey said. "I think it's just a process where the coaching staff is going to have to spend a lot of time with our hitters."

"We are swinging at too many bad pitches and maybe that's our (coaches) fault because we've talked to the hitters about being over-aggressive at the plate," Hickey said. "We have to make some corrections. That is one area where we are very concerned about right now."

The Wildcats are 10-1 during the fall season — the only loss being a 9-5 defeat on Friday at the hands of Garden City Community College.

Saturday, the 'Cats play host to Labette County Community College, and on Sunday, Dodge City Community College will visit Meyers Field. On both days, the Wildcats will play a triple-header beginning at 1 p.m.

"Going into the last weekend of the fall season, I think we have learned quite a bit about our ballclub," Hickey said. "We've found out that our freshmen are going to help us this year in pitching and defensively. We've been able to put them in ballgames against some of the junior college teams we've played and they've performed excellently."

"Rick Carriger and Tim McKinnis have both pitched some excellent ball. John Tirrell and Otto Kaifes have played well," Hickey said. "Spurgeon (Scott) continues to be a threat at the plate, so we're very excited about the young kids."

Another Wildcat that Hickey is excited about is a 6-foot-2, 185-pounder from Overland Park.

"One particular walk-on player who we're very high on right now is Tom Meyer," Hickey said. "We think Tommy has a good chance to play quite a bit for us this year in the outfield and behind the plate catching."

"He's got some adjustments to do with the bat right now, but that's a thing that's going to take some time," Hickey said.

Hickey does plan to make some changes going into this weekend's action. Earlier in the fall season, Hickey would only let pitchers go a maximum of two innings to allow everyone on his pitching staff to get in some work. That may not, however, be the case this weekend.

"We'll probably see some people on Saturday throw full ballgames," Hickey said. "We are going out with the intention of winning."

This week, Hickey and his staff (assistants Kenny Henderson and Marty Wolever) have worked on hitting, whereas last week it was pitching Hickey was stressing, and that, Hickey said, may have been why the Wildcat hurlers had a rough time with Garden City.

"I threw my pitchers all week last week. I mean, we worked hard all week. We worked on a lot of instructional stuff and they threw intra-squad practice twice last week," Hickey said.

"We threw Lichter (Lynn) first and I think his arm was a little tired. They (Garden City) hit a couple home runs off him and we were down 7-0 by the second inning," Hickey said. "It was probably my fault because they threw so much during the week. If they got behind the hitters, they'd start throwing harder and Garden City had a good-hitting ballclub — probably the best we've seen all year."

"This week has been a funny week because of the rain, but we haven't missed any practices," Hickey said.

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95,
10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15;
Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15;
Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15;
Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.65 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.25 per inch; Five consecutive days: $3.95 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $3.75 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENT 01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. 50¢ for students with ID and $1 for all others. (281f)

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours. Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Maries, 1631 Humboldt. 539-5200. (32-50)

BUS TRIP for KU-K-State game, October 15, $22. For more information, call 349-2221. (31-39)

SIGMA NU Little Sisters—Short but important meeting Sunday at 5:00 p.m. Please be there. (39)

PICK UP your (K-Who?) shirt at Balfour. (39)

FREE FILM—Mohammad, Messenger of God. "The Message." Starting: Anthony Queen. The most popular film. Place: Little Theatre, KS Union. Time: Saturday, October 15, 7:30 p.m. Sponsored by Muslim Community Association. (39)

ATTENTION 02

TRAVEL—We will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours. 776-4756. (11f)

ENGLISH GRADUATES! Thinking of Graduate School? Small is beautiful. Graduate Assistantships—Spring 1984. Selection begins immediately. Division of English and Foreign Languages, Emporia State University, Emporia, KS 66801. Write or call 1-316-343-1200, ext. 216. (35-39)

FANTASY-GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

FOR GREAT music at your next function, dance or party, dial 539-7512 for D.J. Dave Guthals. (31-41)

COZUMEL—YUCATAN Peninsula—Mexico. Yucatan Field Course. Natural History. Three biology credits, Winter intersession, January 2-15 from Johnson County Community College. For more information, 1-866-0170. (37-39)

HURRY TO Balfour! To introduce you to our new arrivals, all Footjoy athletic shoes and racquetball shoes and gloves are 20% off now through October 29th. (39-49)

FOR RENT—MISC 03

COSTUMES—FROM gossamer suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11f)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11f)

HALLOWEEN COSTUMES—Sales and rentals, masks, make-up, accessories. The Emporium, 11th and Moro in Aggieville. (35-49)

FOR RENT—APTS 04

BRAND NEW two bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. Call 776-3804. (35-44)

CLOSE TO campus—large, very nice, two bedroom plus den. Shining can make this economical. 539-2731. (35-39)

LARGE, VERY nice, one-bedroom apartment in quiet location, close to campus. $240 per month. 776-0409. (37-39)

FOR RENT—HOUSES 05

FOUR to six bedroom house, three blocks from KSU. Stove, refrigerator, washer, dryer, $575/week plus utilities. Available immediately. 776-1849. (35-39)

THREE BEDROOM, one block from campus. $330/week plus utilities. Available immediately. 537-6188 or 776-1110. (36-39)

COUNTRY MOBILE home, place for horse, garden. Ten minutes from Manhattan. Prefer married couple. 1-494-2469. (37-39)

FOR SALE—AUTO 06

SOUND 1972 Chevy Impala—V8, four door, air, automatic, power steering, cruise. $750 or best offer. 539-2114. (37-39)

1961 MGA convertible roadster. Excellent condition. Also good transmission and rebuildable block for MGB. 776-0717. (37-41)

1974 FORD Ranchero Squire, power brakes, power steering, air conditioning, automatic, tilt wheel, power windows, cruise. Includes top. $1,300 or best offer. 1-456-8212 evenings. (36-39)

1976 FIAT X19, excellent condition. New paint, engine, interior. $2500. Call 532-6364. (38-39)

1968 AMX classic 390—automatic, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, stereo, 5,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Excellent condition. $3,400. Might trade. 537-4782. (39-48)

FOR SALE—MISC 07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risque greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (lt. blue), USC (white) others. $12.50 each postpaid. S-M-L-XL. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-601-835-1065. (32-45)

PIONEER PL-1800 linear tracking turntable, one year old, includes cartridge and needle. For information and price, call David at 776-7039. (36-39)

GE MICRO cassette tape recorder with extra cassettes, battery powered. Call 539-3835. (36-39)

EMBROIDERED DRESSES—Beautiful hand-embroidered dresses from Mexico. Pure cotton, comfortable, inexpensive. Great for gift-giving. Write for information. Montezuma's Revenge, Box 50150, Austin, Texas 78763. (36-45)

We have new Gibson guitars
starting at $299.00.
20% off guitars.
Hayes House of Music

223 Poyntz
776-7983

DINETTE SET—Dark pine with four matching chairs. Very good condition. $175. Call 539-4203 after 6:00 p.m. (38-40)

PC 100 C Printer for TI 59 or 58 C and three rolls of paper, built in battery charger. 539-3835. (36-39)

CHEST OF drawers, wooden desks, dressers, oak chairs, swivel desk chair, and miscellaneous items. Call 776-9705. (37-39)

EXCELLENT CONDITION: Boston Acoustics (60's) two way speakers, (one pair), $160. Call Peter at 537-9218 (evenings). If no answer try 776-5061. (37-39)

VW BUG ACCESSORIES

Chrome wheel rings, door handles, hub caps, valve covers, upholstery kits, walnut dash knobs.

1-494-2388 J & L Bug Service.

ELECTRIC BOHN typewriter. Royal manual typewriter. Record-A-Call answering machine, good condition, cheap! 539-2449. Tim. (38-40)

DELUXE OLIVETTI typewriter. Perfect condition. Call 532-6715, ask for Pete. (38-42)

FENDER STRATOCASTER, black, E.C. $400. Phone 537-2820. (39-41)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES 08

NEED TO sell in two weeks—1980, 14' x 60' Shario, furnished. Call 539-2784 after 4:30 p.m. (35-40)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES 09

1977 Suzuki, 11,200 miles, very good condition. Need money, must sell, $650. Call 539-4868 anytime. (37-41)

1980 YAMAHA XS 650 special, twin, oil cooler, windshield, may wheels, helmets, 7,500 miles. Nice bike, best offer. 537-9346. (37-39)

FOUND 10

FOUND—EYEGLASSES with initials KJP. Claim in Kedzie 103. (38-40)

FOUND in Weber Hall: Jacket, eyeglasses, cord for calculator and textbook. Come to Weber Hall, Room 117 to identify and claim. (39-41)

LADIES WATCH found in parking lot south of student dorms. Can identify and claim by calling 537-1667. (38-41)

ONE OF two males on a motorcycle leaving campus on College Heights Rd. at 10:40 a.m. on October 12, 1983 lost his prescription glasses. I found them. To claim call Mike at 532-5506 or 539-6400 after 5:00 p.m. (39-41)

CALCULATOR FOUND outside King Hall, October 12. Call 532-2211 to identify and claim. (39-41)

GARAGE SALES 12

YARD SALE: Saturday, October 15, 9:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m., 1935 College Heights. Items include: furniture, record albums, ceramics, original art, household items, clothing and more. (37-39)

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 15, 8:00 a.m.-12:00 noon—Gun case, couch/sleeper, baby items, women's/children's clothes, china, carpet squares. Corner Givens and Wornack. (38-39)

HELP WANTED 13

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write J.C. Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

BARTENDER WANTED for part-time employment at Last Chance Club. Must be 21 years of age. Apply in person after 1:00 p.m., 1215 Moro. (35-39)

TWO SALARIED positions available January 1, 1984: Music/Choir Director and organist. Peace Lutheran Church, 2500 Kimball. Resume due October 21. Job description available upon request. 539-7371. (35-41)

POSITIONS AVAILABLE: Twenty-five undergraduates to serve as Learning Skills Seminar Leaders for Fall 1984. Applicants should have strong backgrounds in mathematics and/or the social sciences and good study skills. 10-12 hours weekly. Salary of $750 for Fall Semester. Selected applicants must successfully complete a training class. EDAP-311, Guidance for the Paraprofessional (3 hours academic credit) during Spring Semester, 1984. Contact Academic Assistance Center, room 204, Holton Hall, 532-6492. Apply by November 1. KSU is an equal opportunity employer. (35-39)

STUDENT in Chemistry or Chemical Engineering, preferably a sophomore on work study, for computer work involving organic chemistry data. Applications available in 105 Durland Hall. Department of Chemical Engineering, K.S.U. is an equal opportunity employer. (37-39)

CHURCH NURSERY Attendant 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. September-May, $3.35/hour. Call 776-8790 between 8:30 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. Monday-Friday. (38-41)

LOST 14

LOST: PEWTER Wildcat lapel pin between Union-Kedzie. Keapsake. Modest reward. 532-6890, 537-7657. (37-39)

FRIDAY, October 7th, Eisenhower—Text book. It's very important that I get it back. Call 776-0713. (38-39)

PAIR OF grey-framed glasses in brown vinyl case, on campus between Union and Marriott Hall on October 12. Please call 532-3911 if found. (39)

PERSONAL 16

WANTED: IN all seriousness, female grad student seeks companionship of male (26-45 years) who understands time limitations, is intelligent, gentle and fun to be with. Write Pat at the Collegian, Box 4. (38-40)

TO: "The Blazer," Killer, M.U. Schrommer, and all you other unfortunate souls that headed the wrong way on I-70 in Fall '83. Come party with us on October 15 on the hill. Pre and post of course at my place. P.S. Hobbit! too! (37-39)

RWC—ONLY two days away from two years! I think we'll last forever. How about you? Happy Anniversary!—KDK. (39)

TO THE PI Kapp Dates, Laura, Carrie, and Mary: From the boredom of Manhattan to the glitter of KC. We will show you how to party. From the PI Kapp Three. (39)

AGR-KENT J—I enjoyed meeting you. You are really special—so was the other night! Don't forget me, I won't forget you! (39)

TONY KASTENS—Looking forward to steaks and wine tonight! I'm going to win our bet. I know everything about you! Tona. (39)

DELTA SIGMA Phi-Brad K—I hear your cry. I'll be there with a surprise! Love, MCM. (39)

AG ED ST—Best of luck during ST. Welcome to the real world—almost. Your favorite GAT. (39)

PRAIRIE DOG: The past two and one-half years have been great. I hope you have a happy 23rd! Enjoy your day and be ready to roll in the hay! Love, The Gem Girl. (39)

KAPPA SIG: Thanks for the flowers and the good times. Get psyched to sing Sunday night. We'll be great together! Love, your Flat Foot Floogies. (39)

AWESOME ALPHA Chis—We made it thru midterms first rate, we are proud of our sisters and the Alpha Chi Omega Founder's Date. BHOC. (39)

KAPPAS—WHETHER working or playing, whether on or off duty, whether winning or losing, we plainly can see. The Kappas and Farmers are leading the way, so get psyched and excited 'cause Sunday's the day! Men of Farm House. (39)

THERE WAS a cheerleader named Mary Ann who always says the "Gats Can." So she won't be in doubt about the K-State Roll!—this limberlock's from your # Man. Fantastic T. (39)

KSU MARCHING Band—Tomorrow at eight we board the buses to take us down to Snob Hill. We won't need hard hats or protection of any kind—don't worry. We'll just show them what the pride is all about. Get psyched—we'll protect you Tubs. (39)

BETAS: THROUGH late night practices and raids at midnight, picnics and Swannies and candlelight, lots of work and even more fun, Chi-O's and Beta's will be number one! (39)

ALAN KRAFT: With your eyes of blue and your smile so fine, the Chi-O's and Betas will be first in line. We love you Alan! Chi-O's. (39)

TO SOMEONE who notices: Some think their not so choice remarks are complimentary. Not so. Just a smile, hello, or note like yours. I think you're special. Thanks. (39)

DANETTE: HAVE a happy, happy birthday—Laura. (39)

ICHABODS: K-State Post Game Jam. $1 cover, 25¢ draws, 7:00-11:00 p.m. One and one-half miles north of the bridge. P.S. Nan and Laurie are foxes. Ben, Scott, Spencer and Mark are whimps. (39)

DEBBIE S.—Today's the day! Happy Birthday! from your old roommate, L.A. (39)

TO MY bland chem DWE: "Hey, baby. I love you! Looking forward to spending the best of times this romantic weekend with my bestest friend! (Are you gonna boo?) P.S. Thanks for just being you. (39)

FANGMAN—WHEN are you going to get your room done? F.P. (39)

MICHELLE—The sixteenth is almost here and you know this means one year. I.L.Y.—Mike the Pike pleb. (39)

ROOMMATE WANTED 17

MALE ROOMMATE—need to share three-bedroom home with private bedroom. $100 a month rent. Call 539-6711. (32-39)

MALE ROOMMATE wanted to share four bedroom apartment through May. Good location. Call 539-6849. (36-40)

ROOMMATE NEEDED for November 1. Cozy home near campus, own room, partially furnished, washer and dryer, $120/month, no pets, graduate student preferred. 537-0340. (38-42)

ONE-THREE non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplaces, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (39-43)

SERVICES 18

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Unique skin care and glamour products. Call Floris Taylor, 539-2070, for facial. (1-75)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South 4th Street, Suite 25. (11f)

GRADUATING THIS semester? Let us help you with your resume. Resume Service, 1221 Moro, Aggieville, 537-7294. (11f)

TYPING—LOWER rates. IBM electronic typewriter for faster service. Satisfaction guaranteed. Call Linda, 776-6174. (71f)

MARY KAY Cosmetics: Free facials, 10 percent off products with student I.D. New fall glamour products now in. Call Elaine Berryhill, Independent Beauty Consultant. 537-3233 days. 1-456-7251 evenings. (30-50)

COSTUMES by the thousands. Complete rabbits, chickens, gorillas, tigers, bears and more. Playboys, Play Boy Bunnies, French maid, dance hall girls, much more. Ask for whatever you'd like to reserve now for Halloween. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (9-50)

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY does typing—all types. Reasonable—all work guaranteed. Nancy, 776-6084. (39)

PLANNED PARENTHOOD—Kansas City: Reproductive health services including: contraceptive counseling and supplies, pregnancy testing, abortion counseling and services, comprehensive GYN care. Five locations. Call (816) 756-2277 for the location nearest you. (39)

TYPING—LETTERS, term papers, resumes, etc. Reasonable rates. Call Sherry, 539-9131 after 5:30 p.m. (21-50)

TYPING: FAST, experienced, professional: letters, resumes, reports, technical papers, etc. satisfaction guaranteed. Call 776-6166 anytime. (30-54)

TYPING WANTED—Theses, papers, technical reports, architectural designs. Fifteen years experience, satisfaction guaranteed. Call 539-6528. (32-50)

PAYING TOO much? Call Don McMaster at Farm and Home for Auto, Health and Renters insurance. I can probably save you money! 776-0089. (34-43)

TYPING—ALL kinds. Guaranteed. Reasonable rates. Twelve years experience with theses. Call Rita, (1) 293-5304. (35-49)

TYPING WANTED: Dissertations, theses, papers. Fast, professional service. Twenty years experience. Call Katherine, 539-8637. (39-59)

WANTED 21

WANTED: TWO very attractive female companions needed for semi-formal dance on October 29. If interested call 532-5426, ask for DJ or Spike. (38-40)

WANTED TO BUY 22

NEED TO buy KSU vs. NU football tickets. Call 539-0326 after 5:30 p.m. (38-40)

NEEDED—TWO tickets for NU game. Please call 539-9147. (39-41)

NEED FOUR tickets to NU-KSU game. Prefer together or in pairs. Pair, 537-0965, between 5:00 and 7:00 p.m. (39-42)

Professor helps students reduce stress

By KATHY BARTELL
Collegian Reporter

Getting "psyched up" for tense situations and important events may reduce the learning efficiency of some students and shorten their lives.

That is an opinion held by Dave Danskin, professor of student development, and supported by many students.

Danskin said people tend to get overly tense when they face pressured situations such as taking a test or giving a speech.

"We think we have to get psyched up because that's all we have ever known," Danskin said.

"Quickie Minis: Some Strategies for Managing Stress," a pamphlet by Danskin and Scott Rogers, graduate student in counseling and student personnel, says the body will react in a pressured situation as if it had been threatened. The heart rate will speed up, arm and leg muscles will become tense and the blood pressure will go up, along with a number of other physiological changes. Danskin said a reaction like that to a non-physical threat is harmful to the body.

"Getting psyched up is like driving a car with the brakes partly on; it's going to wear out," Danskin said.

While occasional tense situations can be harmful, the real harm comes when people react in this way to small things, such as waking up late or not finding a needed book at the library, Danskin said.

"Ideally I would like to have all students be aware that it's the 100 to 150 times a day that we face small hassles to which we tend to react with too much stress that adds up," Danskin said.

Besides being harmful to the body, stress also can impede learning, Danskin said.

There are a number of studies which show children who were taught to relax have higher IQ scores, a higher reading rate and a better self-concept than children who spent the same amount of time on their studies but were not taught to relax, Danskin said.

To control tension, Danskin suggests a series of stress management exercises. The exercises take just a few seconds and can be done as part of daily activities, Danskin said.

"Doing little exercises every day will help you to learn it better so when you need it, you will know what to do," Danskin said.

He gives about 25 stress management presentations per year to various groups and has spoken to Student Senate and home economics seniors this year.

"I don't know how to present it (stress management) to students so that it's a grabber for them," Danskin said. "The payoff is not immediate. The payoff is that they will be able to live longer and be happier, and they can concentrate better and learn material better."

Danskin said many students who come to him for advice on stress management are already showing signs of stress disorders.

"Most of the students who come to me come because the stress has gotten to be too much," Danskin said. "Many clutch on tests, that's very common. A lot of it is specific problems; there hasn't been any preventative stuff yet."

Some of the common symptoms of stress disorders are headaches, insomnia and intestinal problems, Danskin said. Between 125 and 150 million people have stress-related disorders, and the number is increasing, while the age of onset is decreasing, he added.

"I would like students to be able to avoid that," Danskin said. "The majority of students who graduate from K-State will have some kind of stress disorder."

"There is the fear that if I relax, I will like it so well that I'll just goof off," Danskin said. "That has never happened with anyone I've worked with. You can still get things done; without the drain on yourself. You can do stuff; with more contentedness, ease and assuredness."

"If I had my way, I would have a bell rung on campus every hour and have everybody on campus do 10-minute quickie stress exercises," Danskin said. "This would be a better place to live, and we would be smarter and healthier."

Danskin said some people have found that jogging, meditation, or religion have helped to relieve tension in their lives.

"I want people to find the right thing for them," he said. "I just want them to try this and see if it helps."

ACT scores show decline

By The College Press Service

Students who took the American College Test last year received record-low scores, according to a recently released report.

ACT averages returned to their lowest points ever — 18.3 out of a possible 36 — among students who took the college admissions test for the 1982-83 school year.

"Since the 1975-76 school year, test scores have really been on a plateau," said Patricia Gartland, ACT assistant vice president. "Scores went down steadily from 1969-70 to 1975-76, when they hit their lowest level ever at 18.3."

From their 1969-70 high of 19.9, ACT average test scores have remained between 18.3 and 18.6. This year's scores dropped one-tenth of a point from the 18.4 student average during the 1981-82 academic year.

"No one is really sure why scores dropped in the early seventies, nor do we know why they stopped dropping and leveled off since 1975," Gartland said. "Theories for the lower scores have pointed to everything from ineffective teaching in elementary and secondary schools to too much television viewing and a decline in reading."

One study has even correlated the general decline in standardized testing to the period of above-ground testing of nuclear weapons from the mid-1940s through the early '60s.

Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) and other admissions test scores have declined and leveled off in approximately the same pattern as the ACT.

BUSHWACKERS

• THE • FUNDRIKERY

50¢ OFF any lunch
at the
BUSHWACKER EATERY
Try our Hot Hoagie

Open 11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m., 5 p.m.-1 a.m.
531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

SATURDAY NIGHT SPECIAL!

Steak

8 oz. Thick & Tender
TOP SIRLOIN STEAK $5.95

Cooked to Order
Served with Tossed Salad,
Baked Potato, Corn on Cob,
Homemade Rolls and Ice Cream

ALSO!...
25¢ BEERS
(Coors-Michelob)

5 P.M. TO 8 P.M.

REYNARD'S EAST
Restaurant

BACKROOM
IN THE WAL-MART SHOPPING CENTER

CLIP THIS COUPON

LUGANO
with a BASKET
of STEAK
FRIES $1.99

Hibachi Hut

608 N. 12th Expires 10/21/83 539-9906

COMMONWEALTH THEATRES
MOVIE MARQUEE

West Loop WEST LOOP CENTER	Daily at 7:00 & 9:00
"Romantic Comedy" PG
West Loop WEST LOOP CENTER	Daily at 7:10 & 9:10
"Mr. Mom" PG
Campus HEART OF ASHLAND	Daily at 7:00 & 9:00
"Flashdance" R
Wareham 410 POTRIZE	Daily at 7:00 & 9:30
"Never Say Never Again" PG
Varsity 1128 BOND	Daily at 7:00 & 9:00
"Revenge of the Ninja" R

Loneliness Is God's
Opportunity To Show His Fullness
And Your
Opportunity To Find Relief For
Your Distant
Pain.

Together You Can
Be A Winning
Combination.

Reference (John 14:1-27)

The Assembly

1400 Vattier on campus
ALL FAITHS CHAPEL

Sunday Morning 10:30 A.M.
Sunday Evening 6:00 P.M.

★ Announcing the challenge of the century. ★

SILVER BULLET

TALE OF THE TAPE

Height: 10.16 cm

Weight: 2.41 kilograms

Stride: 6.35 cm

Length: 20.32 cm

Best Clocking: Broke the 3 minute meter (3/20/81)

THE WORLD FAMOUS
COORS LIGHT RACING TURTLE
TAKES ON ALL COMERS

WATCH THE KSU TURTLE TEAMS TAKE ON SILVER BULLET!

DATE: THURS. OCT. 20 TIME: 7:30 PLACE: MR. K'S

Winning turtle and trainer get picture in paper and prizes!

It's a pleasure serving you . . .

Junction City Distributing

238-6137

No contest

KU tears away
the 'Cats hope for a win
Sports, page 10

Staff/Andy Nelson
ABOVE: Fans mass on the hill above Lawrence Memorial Stadium Saturday. RIGHT: Kelly Wolf, freshman in finance, explains the previous play to Bill Connolly, junior in industrial engineering, from the hill overlooking the stadium.

Hill provides field for partying fans

By LUCINDA ELLISON
Manhattan Editor
and
MICHELE SAUER
Staff Writer

LAWRENCE — Beer, blankets and barbecues — these were all a big part of the traditional intrastate football clash between K-State and the University of Kansas in Lawrence Saturday.

Although these things couldn't be found inside the football stadium, the hill overlooking the game was overrun with party-loving fans.

Students, residents of Lawrence and even a few dogs gathered on the sunny slope to view the game. But in the end, many had no idea of the outcome.

"I found out the score three hours after the game," said Sandra Ridge, K-State junior in labor relations.

Julie Thompson, sophomore in architectural engineering, said she found "watching the men go by" just as enjoyable as the game.

"All I saw was a bunch of inebriated people. They weren't watching the game. Everyone was just having their own party," Thompson said.

Barbecuing hot dogs for lunch, drinking beers from coolers and kegs and throwing frisbees served as diversions from the rivalry on the turf.

As spectators entered Lawrence, signs saying such things as "Declaw the Mousehounds" decorated the town. On the hill, KU fans wore hats saying "I hate K-State" and buttons with the slogan "Pound the Purple Pussies" on them. Despite these antagonistic greetings, there were no major disturbances or fights, according to the Lawrence Police Department and the KU Police.

Although the game was barely visible from the hill, students found other ways to follow the action down below.

"I knew when they were scoring, but that's about it," said Jeff Coverdale, junior in pre-professional secondary education. "You had to have a radio."

No figures were available as to the number of people on the hill, but estimations ranged between 3,500 and 5,000.

Why do people go to the hill to watch the game?

"You can party up there, and you can't in the stadium," Coverdale said. "I just went to have a good time and party with my friends."

Marine death toll rises in Lebanon

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — One U.S. Marine was killed and three were wounded Sunday in seven hours of sniping and rocket-propelled grenade attacks on Marine positions at Beirut international airport, spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said.

It was the third consecutive day of attacks on the Marines and raised the toll of Marine combat deaths to six since the American peacekeeping contingent arrived here 13 months ago. A seventh Marine perished when a mine he was attempting to defuse exploded.

Jordan said the Marines serving with Alpha Company at the southernmost end of Beirut's airport first came under fire at about 4:20 p.m. (10:20 a.m. EDT) and that firing from small arms and rocket-propelled grenades continued until after 11 p.m. (5 p.m. EDT).

Jordan said the Marines fired back with anti-tank rockets and small arms.

He said the dead Marine suffered a head wound, one injured man had an "urgent" head injury and another was in serious condition with an arm wound. Two of the injured Marines were flown to the Iwo Jima, the main hospital ship for the 1,600-man American force, and the third was treated on shore, said Jordan.

At one point, Jordan reported that five Marines had been wounded, but he later corrected that to three.

None of the Marines was immediately identified. A total of 54 have been wounded in the past 13 months.

On Friday and Saturday, snipers concentrated on the Marine positions at the opposite end of the airport. One Marine was killed and another was wounded in both legs Friday, but there were no American casualties Saturday.

Attacks also were reported against Lebanese army positions on the mountain ridgeline above the U.S. Marine camp, and the government-run television said one Lebanese army soldier was killed by artillery fire from positions held by Druse militiamen.

Renewed fighting was reported in the Kharoub region, just above the Israeli defense line along southern Lebanon's Awali River, where Christian and Druse militiamen have been fighting for days.

In southern Lebanon, Israeli occupation troops fired at a hostile crowd after a confrontation with Shiite Moslems at a religious festival in the city of Nabatiyeh.

Lebanese state radio said seven people were wounded. The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said none of its soldiers had wounded any Lebanese, and an investigation showed the injuries resulted from an atmosphere of panic when the religious ceremony was interrupted.

Israeli workers strike, protest high inflation

By The Associated Press

TEL AVIV, Israel — Nearly a million Israelis — 70 percent of the workforce — went on strike for two hours Sunday to protest government economic moves which threaten to increase the cost of living by 10 percent, union officials said.

The union strike was peaceful and virtually complete, said officials of the Histadrut labor federation. The union represents 1 million salaried workers in the public and private sector, or about 70 percent of the nation's work force.

In Jerusalem, the Cabinet failed to announce a replacement for former Finance Minister Yoram Aridor, who quit Thursday in the worst economic crisis in the Likud coalition's six years in power. Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's preferred candidate, Deputy Premier David Levy, refused the job.

Workers from the government, municipal offices, state television and radio, and public public companies walked off their jobs, most between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Schools closed early when teachers struck.

Some shops closed, but most store employees are not unionized.

El Al, the national airline, put a tape recording on its telephone switchboard saying "We are on a national strike. Please call back after 1 p.m." An El Al spokesman said the shutdown came during slack hours and did not seriously dislocate schedules.

Israel Radio was off the air for two hours.

In the port city of Ashdod, the strike went on all day.

The state manpower office said it would dock the pay of all state employees who joined the strike.

The Histadrut took action after the government last week devalued the shekel 23 percent, hiked the price of basic foodstuffs 50 percent and said it would not grant the full compensation that salaried Israelis are used to receiving for inflation.

The increases are expected to boost the average family's cost of living by 10 percent, and that of poor families by 12 percent.

But the biggest test is still to come, when the stock exchange reopens.

Germans pray amid deployment of missiles

By The Associated Press

JUELICH, West Germany — Twenty-thousand protesters jammed this Rhineland town and 4,000 marched in West Berlin on Sunday to pray for peace and denounce the deployment of new U.S. nuclear missiles in Europe.

The Rhineland protesters, including many elderly people, rode scores of chartered buses to Juelich for a prayer service organized by the Evangelical Church as part of the nationwide "peace week."

The prayer program said the goal was to present "a clear no" to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's plans to deploy 572 U.S.-built missiles in Western Europe starting next month to counter a Soviet buildup of SS-20 missiles already in place.

Sunday was dubbed "Opposition Day of Christians and Religious Associations" by the Bonn coordinating committee of the week of anti-nuclear protests that began Saturday. "Peace services" were held in several cities nationwide.

In West Berlin, 4,000 people participated in a "procession for peace," wading through the divided city from the Evangelical Trinity Church to the Catholic St. Canisius Church.

At stops along the way, participants read from Christ's Sermon on the Mount and from statements on peace and disarmament by various Christian groups.

In Heidelberg, 300 people laid wreaths and said prayers outside the main gate of the U.S. Army headquarters there, Heidelberg police said. The demonstration was peaceful.

The prayer services contrasted sharply with protests around West Germany the day before, when demonstrators sought to stop traffic with human blockades at U.S. military bases in Bremerhaven, Ramstein and West Berlin.

Slattery favors federal funds to aid UFM tech programs

By WAYNE PRICE
Collegian Reporter

U.S. Congressman Jim Slattery was in Manhattan Friday to tour the University for Man's greenhouse facilities and to speak to members of local investment clubs about the federal deficit.

Sue Maes, UFM director, said Slattery was asked to be an honorary member of the financial committee of UFM's appropriate technology program because of his interest in such technology and his position as a member of the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

Appropriate technology means the UFM greenhouse, which has solar panel collectors, and is connected to UFM's main building and the edible garden surrounding the building.

One of UFM's main concerns is finding appropriate funding to continue the program, especially because of a lack of funding for such programs by the Reagan administration, said Gary Coates, appropriate technology program director.

Slattery was asked to be an honorary member in July and accepted the invitation Aug. 17. The congressman said he believes UFM should receive federal funds.

"I think the University For Man program is doing an awful lot of good and I think there should be some government funding for that program. We're going to support the concept of that program in whatever way we can," he said.

Slattery stressed the need to document UFM achievements as much as possible to make his case easier when seeking federal funding for the program.

"We're invariably called upon to justify the appropriations," Slattery said. "It's very helpful to us if we can have documentation to justify the expenditure of federal money."

Friday night Slattery spoke to a group of investment clubs at the University Ramada Inn about the seriousness of the increasing federal deficit.

Slattery told the group the deficit is the most important problem facing Congress but nobody seems to be dealing with it.

"The $200 billion deficit we're experiencing now is three to four times larger than any deficit that has occurred in our nation's history prior to 1980.

"To put it another way, by 1980-81 we had accumulated about $1.2 trillion worth of debts. It had taken us since 1776, over 200 years, to accumulate that kind of debt. That's the good news. The bad news is that we're going to double that in five or six years."

One of the problems with government spending is that the process is on "automatic pilot" because 45 percent of the budget is indexed to the Consumer Price Index, Slattery said. He said when he returns to Congress in January about 50 percent of his spending decisions have already been made as a result of fluctuations in the CPI.

"About half" of the congressmen are actually concerned about the budget, Slattery said.

"There are those frankly that have never worried about deficits and are not worried too much about them now," Slattery said. "The half (which are concerned) that I'm talking about come from both political parties and they occupy that middle ground of the political spectrum. But you have the extremes to the left and extremes to the right who are not committed to the problem.

"The bottom line is this — you can buy the president's defense build-up, pay the interest on the national debt, pay the entitlement programs and abolish everything else. Just wipe it out. Fire every government employee of the United States, cut all education programs, federal grants, everything — and you'll still have a $100 billion deficit."

Staff/Andy Nelson
An ambulance leaves the Sigma Chi fraternity house with three residents who were injured by a gaseous bomb. The bomb allegedly was thrown into the back hallway of the house late Sunday evening.

Bomb injures fraternity members

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Reporter

A military eye irritant bomb thrown through the back door of the Sigma Chi fraternity house, 1224 Fremont Street, sent three house members to a local hospital Sunday night with undisclosed injuries.

The incident also forced evacuation of the house until the gas could be dispersed.

House members identified the injured as Kevin Burke, junior in mechanical engineering; Gary Plumm, freshman in business administration pre-professional; and Steve Purdum, freshman in pre-veterinary medicine.

An emergency room official at The Saint Mary Hospital, where the three were taken, would say only that the men were in stable condition. No Riley County Police Department officers were available for comment Sunday night.

Firefighters from the Manhattan Fire Department were called to the scene, but there was no fire, Capt. Larry Wesche said. Firemen used fans to clear the gas from the house so residents could return later Sunday night, he said.

"I was standing right by the window, but I turned the other way when I heard it hit," said Ron Morris, senior in marketing and a house member. "I heard a thump when it hit the wall, then there was a pop and a gushing sound."

Morris said he thought the fire extinguisher in the hallway near the door had fallen, but he discovered otherwise when the fire alarm in the basement went off. The evacuation was orderly, he said.

Residence halls recruit 1984-85 staffs

By LYNN VONDER HEIDE
Collegian Reporter

Residence hall staff members for the 1984-85 school year will be recruited this week.

Staff Recruitment Week is held in October and hiring is completed in December because those chosen for employment must attend a staff class in the spring, Bob Felde, assistant director of housing, said.

"Staff Recruitment Week is the time when the housing office asks the individual halls to pay special attention to recruitment," Felde said. During this week current staff members answer questions about the responsibilities of the job.

The housing department selects 50 to 60 students from about 200 applicants to staff the residence halls.

"We hire people based on their potential," Felde said. "We operate under the assumption that in the next six months these people will be maturing and refining their skills."

"We also take into consideration the leadership they have shown in the halls," Felde said, although prior residence in a hall is not a requirement.

"A residence hall staff position is a helping position; it's there to be a service to students," Felde said. "It's a multi-faceted job that includes administrative work, para-professional listening and counseling, crisis response, referral and problem-solving."

Staff applicants must have junior, senior or graduate standing and a grade point average of at least 2.0.

The responsibilities of a staff person, according to housing department literature, include being on duty approximately one evening a week and a few weekends a semester. Staff members must also attend hall staff meetings which are held at least once a week, fall workshops, a spring retreat, a three credit-hour class in the spring, hall floor meetings and any other meetings the hall director requires. Staff members must keep the residents on their floor informed of hall activities and policies, and encourage participation in hall activities, such as intramural sports.

Staff members must establish and maintain a united atmosphere on their floor, as well as serve as an intermediary between students and hall administration. They must also, if necessary, counsel residents in academic and personal matters.

Applications are due the week after Staff Recruitment Week, Felde said.

The students receive three credit hours for taking EDAP-311, "Guidance for the Para-professional." Communication skills are taught in the staff class, as well as semi-professional counseling and student development concepts.

"We teach student development concepts so that our staff members will understand the difference between a freshman and a senior in terms of their development," Felde said.

The class also deals with personal development in areas such as careers and study skills. If a staff member is comfortable with his own abilities, he can help others in their development, Felde said.

The crisis management section of the class prepares staff members for crisis situations which may occur in a residence hall.

Policies and structure of the housing administration are presented to staff students and they discuss reasons for the policies.

Staff members also learn about campus and community resources, such as Lafene Student Health Center, Center for Student Development, Career Planning and Placement and Minority Affairs. The housing department wants its staff members to know about agencies so they can refer others to the agencies' services, Felde said.

"Other universities have training programs," Felde said, "but ours is probably more extensive than most."

Student Senate passes final funding package

By The Collegian Staff

The Final Allocations bill before Student Senate last Thursday night passed after Business Council withdrew a $2,300 request for funding a College of Business magazine.

Business Council withdrew the request because more "definite, concrete evidence was needed," said Frank Gunn, junior in accounting and a senator for the College of Business Administration.

With the council's request withdrawn, the bill was passed with few dissenters. One senator displeased with the bill, however, was Gary Wall, graduate in agronomy and a graduate senator.

Wall, who was recently elected vice president of the Graduate Council, represented the council in its request for $866.86 to pay a bill incurred this summer. Senate's Finance Council recommended zero dollars for the council and senate approved the recommendation.

Graduate Council was seeking the $866.86 even though the bill was approximately $205 because that was the amount it returned as leftover money from last year. Money left over after paying the bill would be put in the council's per diem account, which is used to help fund graduate students' conference costs.

Because he became a senator and the council's vice president at the same time senate was closing accounts, Wall said he was unaware that he could request to keep the leftover funds. Thursday night he was making such a request, he said.

"We had a bill in excess of our budget for the graduate student handbook," he said. "We are trying to channel the funds returned by council into expense money for graduate students attending national and international meetings."

Other funds on the bill were senate's Reserves for Contingencies, which was allocated $1,693.47, bringing the account to a total of $20,088.44; Reserves for Capital Outlay, which was allocated $5,080.40, bringing the account to a total of $9,190.64; Reserves for Maintenance and Long Standing Accounts, which was allocated zero dollars, leaving the account at a total of $8,480.

Mark Terill, Finance Committee chairman, said after the meeting that the maintenance and long standing fund was already at "a healthy amount" and didn't need further allocations. Senate tries to maintain the contingencies fund at about $20,000 and other funds at $10,000, he added.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

SIGN-UP FOR THE OPEN MIKE NIGHT sponsored by UPC Coffeehouse continues from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. until Wednesday in the Union Activities Center.

KSU AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS are available in Anderson Hall, room 104, or in the SGS office and are due Oct. 26.

COORDINATOR OF FINANCES AND ELECTION COMMITTEE member and chair applications are due in the SGS office by 5 p.m. Friday.

KSSSLHA SIGN LANGUAGE LUNCHEON is held at 11:30 a.m. every Tuesday in Union Stateroom 2.

BLOODMOBILE PRE-SIGN-UP is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 18-21 and Oct. 24 on the first floor of the Union.

TODAY

COALITION FOR HUMAN RIGHTS meets at 12:30 and 7:30 p.m. in the Catakeller to hear Roberto Vargas speak.

HOME EC COUNCIL meets at 5:30 p.m. in Justin 254.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 213. Royal Purple pictures will be taken.

PHI CHI THETA meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 203.

RHO-MATES meet at 6:45 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

BETA ALPHA PSI meets at 7 p.m. in Union 212.

FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at 7 p.m. in Union 206 for new member initiation.

STAR RIDERS meets at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

CROP PROTECTION CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Waters 133.

KSU MARKETING CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in the Union Big Eight room.

FTD STUDENT CHAPTER meets at 7 p.m. in Waters 244. Membership fees are due.

TAU BETA PI meets at 7:15 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 206.

KSU RACQUETBALL CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

MORTAR BOARD meets at 9 p.m. in Justin Hall.

TUESDAY

ASSN. OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union stateroom 3.

ADULT AND OCCUPATIONAL GRADUATE CLUB meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union 203. Jule Boomer from the Manhattan Vo-tech school will speak about "Counseling and Vocational Education."

Happy Birthday Sweetheart!

-Wichita E.N.

P.S. Better late than never!

Monday

Hi Rollers

$1.50

(9-3)

at

COWBOY PALACE

Where it don't make no difference

209 Payne 539-9828

4:00pm to 3:00am

BEGINNING COUNTRY SWING

DANCE CLASSES

• MON. 7-8:30

• TUES. 7-8:30

• TUES. 9-10:30

• WED. 7-8:30

Limited space available so sign up at the Rockin K today. Four week course begins week of Oct. 24 for $12 per person; $20 per couple.

ROCKIN K BAR

712 N. Manhattan • 539-9033

GET FRAMED!

Have your picture taken for Royal Purple

Today:

Edwards Hall 8:30-12:30

Ford Hall 1:30-5:30

Tomorrow:

Ford Hall 8:30-5:30

Off-Campus people can still get pictures taken Oct. 10-28

Union 209

539-5229

Bring your stamped fee card.

MCCAIN AUDITORIUM

SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

ANTA TOURING COMPANY'S

Hilarious New Musical

"A HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN FILM" by Christopher Durang

MONDAY, OCTOBER 17, 8 p.m.

Tickets Available McCain Box Office

Noon-5 p.m. M-F 532-6428

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.

Editor Paul Hanson

Managing Editor Sandy Lang

Photography Editor Jeff Taylor

Advertising Manager John McGrath

GET A LARGE 15" Pepperoni, Sausage or Beef Pizza

For only $3.99 Reg. 5.40

Expires 10-20-83

537-1035

2026 N. Tuttle Creek Blvd. Next to the new Shop Quik

PIZZA TO GO

WE MAKEM YOU BAKEM

Specials not good with other promotional activities. Other stores in Washington Idaho Montana Oregon Kansas California S. Dakota Wyoming Colorado and N. Dakota

Monday-Thursday 4:10 p.m. Fri-Sat 11 a.m.-12 p.m. Sun. 11-10 p.m.

AT PIÑATA:

PENNY SALE!

1¢ 1¢

1¢ Sale on our 6 Featured "Special" Specials

(Buy 1 and get 2nd Special for 1¢—equal or less value)

Changed Daily Mon.-Fri. 11-2 October 17-21

Piñata.

Open Daily at 11:00 a.m. Bluemont and North Manhattan

539-3166

OCTOBER SPECIAL

Good October 17-31

Breakfast at Vista

Mon-Sat 6-10:30 Sun 7-10:30

OCTOBER SPECIAL: 2 Scrambled Eggs, Crispy Hash Browns, Homemade Biscuits and Fresh Hot Coffee.

99¢ Regular $1.65

Add bacon, ham or sausage for just $1.00 more!

Vista RESTAURANTS

1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

Enjoy our full breakfast menu ...including Sunrise Sandwiches!

K-State marketing club

presents:

XEROX

Monday, Oct. 17th 7:00 p.m.

Union Big 8 Room

Topic: Career Opportunities

*Royal Purple pictures will be taken Monday also.

Elderly report suffering more crimes

By The Associated Press

BARNSTABLE, Mass. — The attack by "a monster in a choirboy's body" came swiftly and without warning one spring night on Cape Cod.

"I thought a truck had hit the house," said the 73-year-old woman who was at home alone. "The door flew open and the chain broke."

Two young intruders, one 19 and the other 17, entered the living room. The younger one grabbed a wooden chair and smashed it across the woman's back as she tried to flee. She was knocked to the floor, her hip broken.

The 4-foot, 10-inch woman spent the next 14 weeks in the hospital, and two months after that in bed. Because she fears for her life since the assault, her name has not been made public.

Kurt Gavin Brown, 17, of Hyannis, convicted of hitting her with the chair, was sentenced last week to 60 to 90 years in prison by a judge who says crimes against the elderly have gotten out of hand.

"As a juvenile, he has a history of violent crime that would make John Dillinger look like a wimp," said Barnstable Superior Court Judge Augustus F. Wagner Jr. as he imposed the long sentence.

He called the slightly built defendant "a monster in a choirboy's body" who had been to court as a juvenile 41 times on 71 separate charges, many of them violent crimes beginning when he was 10.

Michael Rand, a statistician for the Department of Justice in Washington, has figures to back up Brown's contention that violent crimes against the elderly are on the increase.

Rand said 139,000 violent crimes against the elderly were reported in 1979, 165,000 in 1980 and 195,000 in 1981. And James Allan Fox, a criminologist at Northeastern University in Boston, said the increase runs counter to figures showing violent crime declining nationally.

"Prior to 1979, the figures on crimes against the elderly were relatively stable," Fox said. "Part of the increase may be because the number of elderly people is increasing."

The violent nature of the attack on the Barnstable woman May 30 — as well as the severity of Wagner's sentence — shocked this vacation resort community a few minutes from Hyannis.

District Attorney Phillip Rollins recommended 45 to 70 years in prison. Brown will be eligible for parole at age 57.

"His parole officer hasn't been born yet," Rollins said.

Wagner, 42, sitting in his office one day last week, said the sentence was one of the toughest he has ever imposed, but he figures, "There has to be a message to society."

"These elderly people are being victimized," he said. "Why they're being singled out is perplexing. Elderly people are living in fear." The victim, he said, described herself as "an independent and well-adjusted old lady now reduced to a helpless cripple."

Kissinger professes hope for Nicaragua

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger returned to the United States on Sunday, speaking optimistically of peace for Central America after a hostile reception from Nicaragua.

A bipartisan presidential commission headed by Kissinger capped its six-day, six-nation tour with a nine-hour visit Saturday to Nicaragua, a nation closely tied to Cuba and the Soviet bloc. When the panel arrived in the capital of Managua, it faced massive anti-American demonstrations and a hostile government reception.

The 12-member commission, set up by the Reagan administration to work out long-range U.S. policy, conducted its tour during a week of new attacks staged by U.S.-backed rebels in Nicaragua.

On his return, Kissinger told reporters at Andrews Air Force Base that while Central America is "an area in crisis," it "also is an area of great hope." He said the commissioners have agreed to meet with Nicaraguan-backed guerrillas fighting in El Salvador.

"The United States does not accept the proposition that it must accept a choice between peace and democracy (in Nicaragua). ... We can have both," Kissinger said, speaking for the commission.

He emphasized that other Central American governments have expectations of "a cooperative effort" with the United States.

On Saturday in Managua, Kissinger looked grim after a 45-minute meeting with the head of Nicaragua's ruling Sandinista junta, Daniel Ortega Saavedra. While the two met, at least 50,000 demonstrators nearby staged a three-hour rally that one participant said was designed "to repudiate the American aggression against us."

"We are without great expectations of the commission, but we did not discard the political solution to the problem," Ortega said.

"I said in El Salvador we should not be asked to choose between security and human rights, and I say here we should not be asked to choose between peace and democracy," Kissinger said.

A commission official said the stop in Nicaragua was the "toughest day of the trip." U.S. Secret Service agents were not permitted to take their submachine guns off the plane and one agent had his pistol confiscated.

Rebels opposed to Nicaragua's Sandinista government earlier in the week blew up oil pipelines northwest of Managua and destroyed 3.2 million gallons of fuel in the port city of Corinto. The U.S.-backed Nicaraguan Democratic Force, a group of exiles based in Honduras, claimed responsibility for both attacks.

The New York Times in Sunday editions quoted unidentified Reagan administration officials as saying the CIA recommended and helped plan the attack on Corinto. The newspaper quoted the officials as saying the CIA recently stepped up efforts to train rebels in sabotage techniques and commando tactics.

Ice floes sink Soviet freighter, trap 45 others

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Massive ice floes have crushed and sunk one Soviet freighter and threaten 45 other vessels trapped in the swiftly freezing East Siberian and Chukchi seas, in what could become a Soviet shipping disaster.

News that 50 ships were trapped in the Northern Sea Route skirting northeast Siberia near the Bering Strait first was reported last week in the government newspaper Izvestia. It said grinding ice already had sunk the freighter Nina Sagaidak, but rescuers from sister ships saved its crew and cargo.

The official news agency Tass said Sunday that five of the ships, including the crippled and listing freighter Kolya Myagotin, were freed Sunday, but said winds hampered further rescue operations.

It was not clear whether human error was responsible for the crisis. Merchant marine directors may have erred by dispatching the ships from Pevek too late in the season or by failing to take into account an unusually cold summer.

The ships set out from the port of Pevek during the summer months for the annual voyage to resupply remote Siberian outposts, taking advantage of the few months when the route is relatively ice-free. But the Soviet press says cold weather and shifting winds left the route clogged with ice this summer.

It is highly unusual for the Soviet press to report such a crisis. Foreign observers in Moscow speculated the government preferred to disclose it before Western news agencies found out independently.

Manhattan's Favorite Radio Station...

97fm

We Play Your Music!

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity Rep. — TOM SEELE

- Supplemental Retirement Annuities
- Investment Options
- Free Transfer Privileges
- State Deferred Compensation
- Life Insurance

1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 612/276-7095

comprehensive health associates

- free pregnancy tests
- outpatient abortion services
- alternative counseling
- referrals
- gynecology
- contraception

1-435 & Roe Overland Park 642-1100

MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT

1+1

MONDAYS!

7 P.M.-10 P.M.
Buy any draft item
get one free!

KITE'S BAR AND GRILL

Apple STATION RESTAURANT & BAR

Welcome To . . .

5¢ BEERS TONITE!

• 5¢ Second Beers 7-12

• Mon. Nite Football

Washington vs. Green Bay Tonite!

IF YOU CROSS THE BORDER... DO IT LEGALLY WITH AN INSTANT PASSPORT PHOTO FROM . . .

kinko's copies

1126 Laramie—Aggieville 537-7340

DARK HORSE TAVERN

Monday
$2.25 Pitchers
7-10
619 N. Manhattan

Try our NEW Chicken Sandwich $1.29 Reg. $1.79

Tender white fillet of breast, in a delicate coating, fried to golden perfection. Served with lettuce, tomato and mayonnaise!

Special good 10:30 am to close. Not valid in combination with any other offer.

Vista RESTAURANTS

191 Tuttle Creek Blvd

INTRODUCTORY OFFER

Locations in: Manhattan, Emporia, Lawrence, Topeka

Pizza Transit Authority

Making Tracks and Kicking Off The BIG 8 Season by Bringing Back MUNCHY MONDAY & TUESDAY NIGHT FEVER . . .

1127 Moro Aggieville 537-9500

$2 OFF on any Large one or more topping pizza MONDAY ONLY 537-9500 Expires Oct. 24, 1983

$2 OFF on any Large one or more topping pizza TUESDAY ONLY 537-9500 Expires Oct. 25, 1983

Not good with any other special. One coupon per pizza.

MRKS PROGRESSIVE PITCHERS MON. NITE!

• $1.50 Pitchers 7-8:00

• $1.75 Pitchers 8-9:00

• $2 Pitchers 9-10:00

REMEMBER 2 FER TUESDAY!

National Collegiate Fun Weeks Steamboat Springs, Colorado

January 2-7 & January 9-14

YOUR WINTER BREAK GREAT SKI ESCAPE INCLUDES:

- A full one year membership in the American Ski Association. ($20.00 value)
- Six days/one nights lodging in either base hotel or deluxe condominium accommodations on the mountain.
- Full 4 day scenic picture 10 lift ticket for use Tuesday through Friday.
- Additional day lift tickets available at a $10.00 per person discounted group rate.
- FREE beginner lesson and Headwall lift privileges in exchange for your first lift ticket day.
- Intermediate and Advanced group lessons at discounted rates of $10.00 for half days and $22.00 for a full day.
- Welcome orientation meeting for all trip participants.
- American Ski Association welcome and mid-week exclusive "members only" group parties including entertainment, complimentary 3.2 beer, pop, and drawings for Great Ski Escape souvenirs.
- Group only mountain ski race with valuable prizes.
- All taxes for included services.
- Two official National Collegiate Fun Weeks luggage tags.
- 24 hour availability of Steamboat Tours staff during your stay.
- Reduced rates on ski equipment rentals.
- Upon arrival, a Sunchaser "goodie bag" full of local information, restaurant and bar lists.
- Steamboat wide discount coupon book, party admission coupons and more!

$156 Hotel per person $171 Condo per person

FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS CALL SUNCHASER TOURS TOLL FREE 1-800-321-5911 OR YOUR LOCAL TRAVEL AGENCY

Sunchaser Tours Inc., P.O. Box 8338, Fort Collins, Colorado 80525

SKOAL BANDITS presents:

SPRING FLING DAYTONA BEACH SWEEPSTAKES***

Grand Prize: 10 Free Trips To Daytona Beach During Spring Break 1984 Plus Other Great Prizes.

Entry forms available at:
Information Desk—Union
Shop-Quik—Denison and Claflin
Shop-Quik—1127 Bluemont
Mini-Mart—1102 Laramie
Dutch Maid—1522 Poyntz

*No purchase necessary. Must be 18 or over to enter.

SKOAL BANDITS

A pinch is all it takes!

© 1983 U.S. Tobacco Company

Controlled retaliation

For the first time since the Marines entered Beirut, they have reported killing enemy troops. After being fired upon by snipers on Friday, when one Marine was killed and another wounded, American troops returned fire. Marine sharpshooters reported that they killed five of the snipers on Saturday.

We learned late Sunday afternoon of the death of at least one more Marine in an attack by the snipers.

Apparently, then, the Marines' aggressive action will do little to change the sitting duck image of the American peacekeeping force. Reportedly, the snipers were trying to force the American troops into a battle situation.

It seems fairly certain that this lure-into-battle strategy will eventually succeed as top administration officials have already admitted the likelihood of such.

Keeping in mind the intent of the Lebanese snipers, balanced against the utter insanity of the American presence in Lebanon, the American leadership in Beirut is at least to be commended for its degree of levelheadedness in the situation. The Marines did return fire, but they only used sharpshooters.

The decision illustrates the objective, and thus the inherent weakness of the Marines in Lebanon. They could have fought the snipers with more powerful weapons than sharpshooters' rifles; their "only" mission, however, is to maintain the peace without overly endangering the lives of the civilians.

While the Marines are in Lebanon, and unfortunately, they will likely be there for at least another year, they must prove that they are not sitting ducks waiting to be shot. Limited retaliation is the way to communicate this fact to their enemies in Lebanon.

Our soldiers must not be dragged into a large-scale battle unless they experience such an extreme situation that the lives of all the Marines are endangered. In this case, even any remaining dreams of a sustained peace will have been extinguished, and then we will again be fighting a war. Or perhaps we'll get wise and all the Marines will then be brought home immediately.

And though we believe the Marines absolutely do not belong in Lebanon at present, we agree they must have the freedom to shoot back, as in the case of the snipers, if they are endangered by a small group attempting to draw them into battle. Passivity never solved a problem like the one encountered at the Beirut airport. Only controlled retaliation will work.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

Here and now briefs

SEABROOK, N.H. — On Oct. 7, 1979, a long-planned occupation of the nearby nuclear power complex began inauspiciously and went straight downhill.

Only 3,000 anti-nuclear activists gathered under the banner of the "Clamshell Alliance" on that cold and wet weekend. When they crossed tidal marshes aboard flimsy rubber rafts, Mace-wielding police easily repelled them. The two-day non-violent "action" failed miserably, and the plant's completion seemed inevitable.

Four years later, the fate of the controversial Seabrook nuclear power station is more in doubt than ever. The plant's Unit I reactor, several years behind schedule and only 80 percent complete, is unlikely to go on line before March 1986. Unit II, meanwhile, is less than 25 percent complete and by many accounts doomed. Seabrook's owners, a coalition of 16 New England utilities, voted unanimously last month to "delay" further work on Unit II. Many of the power companies want to halt work permanently.

Ironically, Seabrook's critics say its owners and contractors have imperiled the project through miscalculation and mismanagement. Initially estimated at less than $1 billion, construction costs are sure to surpass the revised estimate of $5 billion and, according to the state public utilities commission, reach $9 billion unless Unit II is canceled.

"It's self-destructing," said Chris Spirou, the Democratic minority leader in the New Hampshire House of Representatives. "It's not the Clamshell Alliance or the anti-nuclear people who are chipping away at this project, but those who, behind the scenes, were gung ho about it at first and who now see problems."

MAXWELL GLEN & CODY SHEARER

Spirou has asked Gov. John Sununu to convene a special session of the legislature before next fall to deal with skyrocketing electric bills expected to result from completion of Unit I. The Public Service Company of New Hampshire, which holds controlling interest in Seabrook, says monthly bills will rise 40 percent; other observers say the figure is closer to 100 percent.

The threat of rate shock isn't immediately pressing. But Seabrook's remaining backers know that their project will soon be cut down to size.

Does he or doesn't he? Frantic guessing about Ronald Reagan's second-term plans has put the spotlight on Vice President George Bush, the president's heir apparent. Yet if Bush knows something everyone else doesn't, his personnel decisions don't show it. During the last year, Bush's staff has undergone continuing turnover. Moreover, only three slots have been reserved for Bush confidants at the as-yet-unopened Reagan re-election campaign committee.

As the "media candidate" of 1984, Sen. John Glenn carries the burden of performing as well in public as on camera. And, as his uninspiring performance at a New Hampshire campaign stop Sept. 30 suggests, the Ohio Democrat may already have proved he's not up to the task.

At Manchester's New Hampshire College, Glenn put more than 1,000 initially excited students to sleep with a lackluster speech on their least favorite issue — education. To make matters worse, Glenn afterward would neither meet students nor answer their questions.

"My friends and I were hoping that (Glenn) would take us off our feet, but he was a bore," complained Al Benowitz, an apparently frustrated student.

Campaign Footnote: Approximately 25 New Hampshire organizations, ranging from banks to garden clubs, have offered to sponsor a presidential debate before that state's primary next March.

Just as Walter Mondale began his pitch to Maine Democrats at the state convention in Augusta Oct. 1, Gov. Joseph E. Brennan was outside the convention hall telling about 50 local nuclear freeze advocates that President Reagan's recently adopted "build-down" arms control proposal is a wolf in sheep's clothing.

"Under build-down, you trade in two bows-and-arrows for a machine gun," Brennan said. "The way I do arithmetic, that's a buildup."

What Brennan didn't tell the audience is that "build-down" is a concept of Republican Sen. Bill Cohen (R-Me.) whom Brennan is expected to challenge next year.

A secret ambition

Many of us have some kind of hidden or secret ambition — back there in the privacy of our dreams; an ambition to do something other than what we do ordinarily in whatever our day-to-day occupation is.

Some of us have wished to be a famous movie star. Others perhaps have wished to be a commercial fisherman in the Caribbean, a forest ranger in the Canadian Rockies, or a big-league ballplayer. Whatever the concept, most of us have wanted at least once to do something we have never done before.

I've had several such dreams, such ambitions. Something I've wanted to do — even if only for one time — is to be a disc jockey on a program of jazz.

The first time I ever heard jazz was also the first time I ever saw a man dance with a woman. I was 6 years old. If it had been under the control of my parents, I would never have been able to hear jazz. They were religiously fundamentalist; opposed to dancing and its music (as well as to card-playing, movies, smoking and drinking). Missionaries in Africa — in what was then Southern Rhodesia, now Zimbabwe — they tried to protect me from what they called "worldly things," but they did not always succeed.

Dalton Brewer was a cattle inspector for the Rhodesian government in 1929. He was my very good friend, so much so that I always thought of him as Uncle Dalton. His father was a rancher, whose land was near the Limpopo River, just across the border from the Union of South Africa. Dalton Brewer's job was to help keep roving herds of cattle free of disease-carrying tsetse flies and ticks by supervising the cattle's being put through disinfecting dips. It was work well-suited to the son of a rancher.

JOEL CLIMENHAGA
Collegian Columnist

Millie, whose last name I remember as Saltonstall (but my oldest brother tells me that's wrong), was the daughter of an upper-crust banking family in Bulawayo, a city 40 miles from where I lived in the Matopo Hills at what was called Matopo Mission. Her parents had come to Southern Rhodesia from England. She and Dalton were an improbable pair — in terms of social caste. But they got together and started to keep company, as it was referred to in those days.

One summer afternoon in 1929 — that would have been in January or February as Southern Rhodesia was south of the equator — Millie drove out to Matopo Mission from Bulawayo to meet Dalton. He lived in a little hut eight miles away, and in order to be with her that day, he had pedaled to the mission on his bicycle. He had arrived first. He and I were sitting on the steps to the main front porch of the mission building, talking about something (perhaps he was trying to get me to count to a thousand; he was the person who helped me unlock that mystery) when Millie drove up in her touring car. My father was either down in the mission school or out somewhere on the mission farm. Whatever, he wasn't in that mission driveway when Millie arrived. My mother was in the back part of the mission building, and she, too, was not in that driveway when Millie arrived. Had my parents been anywhere in the immediate vicinity, I doubt I would have seen what I did that day.

I saw Dalton Brewer and Millie dance with each other by that touring car in the mission driveway. Millie had brought along a portable wind-up gramophone (that's what it was called in that British colony; in this country it's referred to as a phonograph), which she put on the hood of the car. The record they played was "Tea for Two." And they danced to it. And that was the first time I ever heard jazz.

Ever since, when I hear "Tea for Two," I see in my memory Dalton Brewer and Millie dancing with each other, and I also visualize in my imagination a picture of Millie later, somewhere in private, sitting on Dalton's knee (just as the lyrics of the song suggest).

As I commented earlier, if it had been under the control of my parents, I would never have been able to hear jazz. So much for parental wish — even in those old-fashioned days. I did listen to jazz. And it has been an integral part of my life ever since.

Now, if I could just be a disc jockey on some jazz program — even if for only one time. Maybe some day that will happen. If it does, the first selection I'll play is going to be "Tea for Two."

Letters

Follow stateroom rules during lunch

Editor,

Last Wednesday afternoon, around 12:30, I could not locate an empty table for my lunch, so I approached a girl who was studying all by herself on a table and asked if anybody else was coming to join her. She gave me a vague look and declared, "I am studying." Obviously, I knew it, but all I was looking for was a place where I could sit down and eat my lunch and there seemed to be no empty table. When I told her this, she gave me a dirty look and hissed, "Why don't you go to some other table? Can't you see I'm studying?"

Again I explained to her that I could not find any empty table and besides, studying in the stateroom is not allowed during lunch hour. She still refused to let me use the table, which made me angry. So I sat down and told her that whether she liked it or not, I was going to eat my lunch at that table, upon which she got mad and verbally abused me. I did not pay any attention and concentrated on my lunch. Finally she could not stand it anymore and left with her books.

What should be done about such people who insist on studying in the stateroom during lunch hour? Not only do they violate the rule, but they also insist on having the tables to themselves.

On Friday afternoon, the same girl was again studying in the stateroom, occupying one whole table to herself during the lunch hour. Fortunately for her, I happened to find an empty table. Some people just do not know when to give up. Perhaps some "bouncers" should be hired to throw such people out of the stateroom.

Chetan Mehta
Graduate student
in mechanical engineering

Society at fault in alcohol abuse

Editor,

Re: Brian La Rue's column of Oct. 3, "Drinking age proposals."

Brian's column as a whole was very enjoyable. His "clowning around" was particularly amusing and made a very good point: namely the absurdity at raising a big fuss over the whole thing in the first place. It's not the age at which people drink that is a problem, but that they get drunk when they drink.

Toughening drunk driving laws is a rational way to begin dealing with the problems. But that's really only added incentive to those who are already smart enough not to drink and drive. Education is a good idea, but what are you going to teach? Ever try telling a drunk anything and have much success if the statement doesn't suit his or her fancy?

This problem brings us back to the real problem: getting drunk. The real problem is that getting drunk is wrong in and of itself. The Rev. Richard Taylor and Brett Lambert seem to think it's wrong only when a drunk runs over someone or gets violent at a bar, etc. The trouble, as you stated Brian, is in society. We've totally lost our concept of God and sin. It's not "In God We Trust" anymore; it's "In Me I Trust and Screw You if You Don't Like It," or for some, "I Don't Care That Society is Going to Hell."

I say come on good people. Let's put our trust back in God, love our neighbor, and show each other that getting drunk, getting stoned out of your mind, or any other kind of drug abuse is not just wrong; it's unnecessary to have a good time. Christ can show us how to do anything right.

Mike Roeder
Sophomore
in mechanical engineering

Letter Policy

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be signed by the author and should not exceed 300 words. The author's major, classification or other identification and a telephone number where the author can be reached during business hours must be included.

Students participate in drinking test

By CAROL BELL
Collegian Reporter

A "think, drink effect test" was conducted in the basement of Moore Hall Friday afternoon to support Alcohol Awareness Week.

"The purpose of the experiment was to determine what effect environment, expectations and actual physiological factors would have on memory," Virgil Wiebe, sophomore in political science and organizer of the event, said.

The experiment began with a memory exercise in which a list of 20 words was read to the subjects. The subjects then counted backward from 10 to one and were given 10 minutes to write down as many words as they could remember.

"I talked to one of my psychology instructors and he told me what type of test to use in this situation," Wiebe, president of Moore Hall, said. "We counted to clear a person's short-term memory."

The 12-member volunteer group was then divided equally between males and females. Group one, consisting of two females and four males, was told they would receive

Study shows alcohol affects memory

beer and group two, divided the same way, was told they would get a beer substitute. Actually, half of the people in each group received beer and the other half of the group did not.

"We bought it (the substitute beer) at a health food store. It is everything you ever wanted in a beer except the alcohol," Wiebe said. "It even tastes like beer."

The subjects were given six glasses of beer and were allowed about 15 minutes to drink each one. They also participated in three memory tests similar to the one they took before the experiment began. The subjects listened to music and were allowed to play cards, quarters (a drinking game), read, move around and dance.

"Most people figured out which group they were in, but when it came to which group the others were in, it was more difficult," Wiebe said.

Other people in the hall were assigned to the duty of observers.

They were around throughout the test and made notes of the people and their actions.

"In general, the observers were able to tell the people who had beer from the people who didn't. Although they did assign some drunk characteristics, such as giggling, to some of the subjects that were not drinking," Wiebe said.

The memory tests were analyzed for correctness and to see if the alcohol had any effect on a person's memory after the experiment was over.

"The trend (of the tests) for all groups — those expecting beer and those not expecting it, as well as those who got it and those who did not — was that they did better on the second test and worse on the last one," Wiebe said.

"On the last test though, the alcohol had the greatest influence. There was a sharp drop in comparison (between the subjects who had beer and the subjects who did not) no matter what they had been previously told (whether they were to have received beer or not)," he said.

"I figure their (the subjects) expectations had the most impact on the first test," Wiebe said. "But once they figured out what they were drinking and how the test worked, the alcohol had the main impact."

The experiment ended with everyone receiving a breath test. The subjects drinking the non-beer all had blood alcohol level readings of zero. While, on the average, the rest were close to legally drunk.

"The blood alcohol level of group one who received beer was .106 and the level for group two (who received beer) was .09," Wiebe said. "Both groups were close to legally drunk." In Kansas, a person with a blood alcohol level of .10 is considered legally drunk.

"There were some problems with the test," Wiebe said. "Some of the words on the memory tests are such that they could be remembered easier. And the breath tests varied due to body weight and the fact that some people were not able to finish all the beer they were given."

Continuance of covert aid to receive House debate

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's policies in Central America face another congressional test this week as the Democratically controlled House votes on efforts to cut off all covert aid to anti-communist rebels in Nicaragua.

The vote will measure whether attitudes toward U.S. support for opponents of the government in Nicaragua have changed since Korean Air Lines Flight 007 was shot down by the Soviet Union last month.

Sources said House leaders deliberately held off votes on the cutoff until the initial furor over the Korean plane abated. Congress returns this week after a long Columbus Day holiday recess.

In a bitter, emotional battle, reminiscent of the Vietnam War years, the House voted 228-195 on July 27 to cease about $19 million in secret CIA support for an estimated 11,000 "contras" seeking overthrow of the Nicaraguan government.

But that proposal — attached to an intelligence authorization measure for the end of fiscal year 1983 — went nowhere in the Republican-controlled Senate. So the United States has continued helping the guerrillas, which have had only sporadic success in military operations against the Sandinistas, who are in turn supported by the Soviet Union.

Now, House leaders are preparing for another assault of the secret aid as part of debate on broader legislation authorizing American intelligence operations for the coming fiscal year.

Democratic House sources said the cutoff is expected to be approved again on a party line vote, but that will likely set up a confrontation with the Senate, which is expected to support Reagan and approve continued CIA assistance.

Under the House proposal, a separate $80 million would be provided in overt assistance to U.S. allies in Central America to help them interdict supplies from Sandinistas to communist-led forces in El Salvador, Costa Rico and Honduras.

Dole lays plans for possible campaign bid

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — After Sen. Robert Dole's miserable performance in the 1980 Republican presidential primaries, he swore that if he ever again sought the White House, he would do the job right.

That would include a solid staff, enough money to make a respectable effort and not trying to juggle a Senate career with a grueling campaign schedule, the Kansas Republican said at the time.

Dole quietly has done what little he can to lay the groundwork for such a campaign next year — just in case President Reagan eventually decides against seeking re-election.

There is no publicly acknowledged contingency campaign plan — such as Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker has — nor has Dole chosen to retire from the Senate as Baker has.

Moreover, he has said often that he fully expects Reagan to run again, and hopes that he will.

But neither has Dole made any secret of his White House aspirations. He has gone to lengths to be one of the most visible lawmakers on Capitol Hill, has geared up fund raising at his political action committee, Campaign America, and has been keeping up a full travel schedule with frequent stops in early caucus and primary states like Iowa and

New Hampshire.

If Reagan indeed is running, delaying the formal announcement is a fine tactic, Dole said in a recent televised interview.

"If he does not run, there'll probably be a group of us heading to Iowa," Dole added.

Reagan gave the go-ahead on Thursday to set up a re-election campaign committee on his behalf, and GOP general chairman Sen. Paul Laxalt said the president will sign all the necessary papers on today to be a candidate — technically and legally.

But Laxalt, of Nevada, said Reagan will delay any formal declaration for re-election until next month at the earliest and said it was smart for the president to allow himself room to maneuver.

And until Reagan declares to the voters he indeed is a candidate, there remains the chance he won't.

The man who has directed all of Dole's Senate campaigns, as well as his vice-presidential bid in 1976, said the senator's "strategy is just to build up an army of followers that could be mobilized quickly."

Dave Owen, a former Kansas lieutenant governor and current state GOP chairman, added: "Dole's always been a prolific traveler. He goes by and strokes those people he's going to have to count on."

Dole has a computerized list of supporters which is constantly expanded and updated, Owen said, adding that Dole — while he could be ready to run next year — is mainly looking ahead to a possible 1988 presidential bid.

"Very subtly, he cooperates with some of the people in the Senate in key states so he could tap into their organizations very quickly," were Reagan to announce his retirement, said another close Dole associate, who insisted on anonymity.

"He in his own mind has got a plan. But does he have an organization, something on paper? I don't think so," the source said.

Campaign America, Dole's fund-raising apparatus, pulled in $321,000 in the first half of this year — more than twice its income for the comparable period last year — according to reports on file with the Federal Election Commission.

Many of the steps he has taken could serve a dual purpose, aides point out: If Reagan does run, the efforts will give Dole a good shot at succeeding Baker as the party's leader in the Senate.

Although his aides concede Dole probably would start any Republican primary race in third place, behind Vice President George Bush and Baker, Dole has told staff members "that's not such a bad place to be — things can change rather rapidly."

Are you troubled by DRAFT REGISTRATION?

Help is available from these draft counselors:

Rev. Mike Klassen
539-4079

Rev. Don Fallon
539-4451, or the

Central Comm. for Conscientious Objectors

2208 South Street
Philadelphia, PA 19146

This ad sponsored by the Friends (Quaker) Meeting, Mennonite Fellowship, and members of the Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of Manhattan.

STORY OR PHOTO IDEA?

CALL COLLEGIAN 532-6556

MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR

Open daily 8:50-5:30, Saturday 8-1
Drive-Up Convenience
401 Humboldt 776-1193

Monday Night Football

75¢ Hi-balls
$2.00 Pitchers
1st and 4th quarters

World champion Washington Redskins vs. Green Bay Packers

World Series Specials

Tuesday — 7:00 p.m. if necessary
Wednesday — 7:00 p.m. if necessary
Every night of the Series pick the winning team and win a FREE DRINK
Plus $10.00 FREE DRINKS for predicting the correct score.

— Drink of the Week —
Gin & Tonic 1 last fling
ONLY $1.00

The Palace GIFTS AND NECESSITIES

Your Halloween Spook-tique

Masks • Make-up • Cards
Party Goods • Decorations

Everything to make your Halloween spook-tacular!

704 N. Manhattan

In Aggieville

Open Mon. - Thurs. 11:00-8:30

539-7854

UFM

Mid-Fall Catalog

now available

K-State Union, Farrell Library

First K-State Union Registration

Thursday, October 20, 9 a.m.-2 p.m.

BUSHWACKER'S

• THE • FUNDRIKERY

Monday

Bushwacker Beer Bust

75¢ Draws all night

Happy Hour: 4-9

2 Fers on hi balls

75¢ draws $2 blended drinks

Don't be in the dark

Drink of the Week:
Tiger's Tail

Colossal Hot Dog
& a Stein for $2
during all World Series games

A reciprocating Club
Bar 539-9727

Office 539-4321

531 N. Manhattan

FIRST SEMESTER SPECIALS!

Pick your favourite Course

Schedule: MTWTh 9pm-12am ShowBiz

Intro to Italian $1.25
(Pizza by the slice & a beer + 2 tokens)

Advanced Italian $8.00
(Large 1-ingredient pizza)

In depth Studies $2.00
(Pitcher of beer)

Electronics Lab $1.00
(8 game tokens)

*Each course lasts the whole semester
**Prerequisite: None

519 Richards Drive

Briefly

By the Associated Press

Hay wagon mishaps injures 22

RAMER, Ind. — A pickup pulling a hay wagon went out of control, injuring 22 youngsters at a church-sponsored hayride. Nineteen youngsters were treated and released after the Saturday night accident in Warren County, deputies said. Three remained hospitalized Sunday, one in serious condition and two satisfactory. Those on the hayride, sponsored by the Christ Gospel Church of Kramer, ranged in age from 7 to 20. About 30 people were on the ride.

Wood waste becomes fuel source

KETTLE FALLS, Wash. — Washington Water Power Co.'s Kettle Falls generating plant may be a forerunner for solving the state's energy problems, Gov. John Spellman said at dedication ceremonies. The $90 million wood-waste-fired plant, the first of its kind in the nation built solely for producing electricity, "is something that is highly positive in the energy field," Spellman said Saturday. The 42.5-megawatt plant, which took nearly 2½ years to build, was completed two months earlier than scheduled. It has the capacity to generate enough electricity to supply 18,000 customers by burning wood wastes such as sawdust, bark and shavings from mills.

Six injured by spooked horses

CHULA VISTA, Calif. — Six people celebrating the city's annual Founders' Day were injured when the horses pulling their surrey got spooked and galloped off, police said. The horses may have been scared by shots fired to signal a footrace being held near the surreys Saturday, Sgt. Gill Bretsch said. The animals crashed into a rare 1924 Stanley Steamer that was part of an antique car show, and one of the animals was trapped under the auto, Bretsch said. The six people were thrown from the surrey and suffered bruises and possible broken bones, and the horses were treated for leg gashes.

Phone fix to follow grape picks

NORTH BASS ISLAND, Ohio — It's harvest season on this island of vineyards, so some busy folks may not know their telephones have been out for a week — unless they heard about it through the grapevine. The phone system on this Lake Erie island is owned and operated by the North Bass Telephone Association, composed of the island's 30 residents, and they have better things to do right now than fix the phone cable to shore. Kelly Faris, the principal of the high school on nearby South Bass Island, said the cable probably won't be repaired until the grape harvest slows. The North Bass residents "seem to be fairly self-sufficient," Faris said. "They seem to be doing all right." As for transport, Martha Stonerook, a marine radio operator at Port Clinton, about 14 miles from North Bass, said, "At the moment, they can't get a boat out there because the boats are all sitting in the mud at docks. The water has been low."

Board halts student groups' funding

By The College Press Service

The Pennsylvania Board of Governors has stopped the state's Commonwealth Association of Students from collecting a mandatory $2 fee from students, thus stripping one of the most active and effective state student associations in the country of its money-raising mechanism. Since 1978, students have paid CAS a $2 fee each semester, but could ask for a refund if they didn't want to support the organization, which lobbies at the state capitol in the name of 14 Pennsylvania colleges and universities. But now the Board of Governors, which oversees the administration of the 14 schools, has put all the money CAS has collected this fall in escrow, and told CAS officials it will no longer let the schools collect the fees for CAS. Some critics maintain that the board was retaliating against the group, which has been very effective in lobbying against tuition hikes and for various student issues. The move could set a "dangerous precedent" for all the 70-some state student associations across the country. The Board of Governors says it was acting only to comply with a recent court ruling stripping the New Jersey Public Interest Research Group of its student funding. "Our legal counselor felt we were on very dangerous ground," said board member Evelyn Crawford, chairman of the committee that recommended stopping the fee collection system. The New Jersey District Court will soon rule in a similar "negative check-off" case against the PIRG at Rutgers University, she said. She said she believes the system violates students' rights.

The PIRG case is being pursued by the Mid-Atlantic Legal Foundation, a group of conservative lawyers that is pressing the case as part of a nationwide legal assault on the Ralph Nader-founded PIRGs. The case goes to trial in December. Applying an as-yet-unmade decision is "a smokescreen to abolish CAS as a student organization," said CAS spokesman John Ross. "We recently stopped (the board) from implementing a $75 mid-year tuition hike. We've fought for additional funding. We've lobbied on financial aid issues, and I think they'd just like to crack down on us." Crawford said the board still may let CAS collect fees if it finds a way to let students decide if they want to contribute as they register. Yet, the board next month may also decide to divorce itself completely from collecting fees for CAS.

If that happens, it "could encourage other campuses to make the same move" if their state student associations get too effective, said Bob Bingham, head of the National State Student Association in Washington, D.C. "I always see it as a potential danger when one state student group gets squashed," he said. He especially fears for the "two dozen or so state student organizations which are highly active and functioning." CAS's Ross, who stressed that students at all 14 campuses vote every two years whether to renew the negative check-off system, said CAS "could survive without the university collecting fees for us. But if that happens, we'll be spending all our time and resources fund raising instead of working on student concerns."

Reagan waits to formally declare candidacy

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Lacking only a formal declaration from their candidate but working with his blessing, President Reagan's advisers are filing today, 1,000 days into his first term, the documents which legally will make him again a presidential candidate. Two of the president's key advisers said Sunday they were positive the president would seek a second term, despite Reagan's refusal to make that declaration himself. "He is going to run, and those who work with him on a day-to-day basis all feel that way," chief of staff James Baker said. "I'm 100 percent convinced the president will be a candidate for re-election," said Edward Rollins, the presidential assistant who has been chosen to run the campaign. But, said Baker, "in his own mind" the president will not consider himself a candidate until he makes a formal announcement of his plans to seek a second term next year. Today, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a longtime Reagan friend who will become general chairman of the Reagan-Bush '84 committee, will deposit with the Federal Election Commission the documents establishing the committee and making Reagan, legally, a candidate. Acting every bit the candidate, Reagan is using nearly every public opportunity to draw attention to what he sees as the economic improvements of the past three years — a key theme to a new campaign effort, aides say. On Saturday, he said in his weekly radio address that "the quality of American life is improving again." Reagan and his aides say he is reluctant to declare his candidacy because such a step would leave him open to allegations that each action he takes in the future was dictated by political motives. The White House sent two key political operatives, Baker and Rollins, to television studios in Washington on Sunday to appear on network interview programs. Rollins, the president's assistant for political affairs, will leave the White House payroll today to become director of the committee to re-elect Reagan and Vice President George Bush. Baker said the White House was studying Federal Communications Commission requirements that opposing candidates be given equal broadcast time, to determine if these provisions apply once the legal documents are filed today or whether they do not take effect until the president announces his candidacy. The White House chief of staff said he did not think that the president's age will be a factor in his re-election decision. Reagan is 72, and would be nearly 78 years old when leaving office if he is re-elected in 1984 and serves a full four-year term.

The shortest distance between two schools is Long Distance.

With friends at other schools you can compare what's in... and what's out.

Discuss the itinerary for your next trip, and encourage your friend not to be quite so well prepared. ("I just don't think you'll need your skis in New York City...")

Solicit and/or provide solace and encouragement in the depths of a mid-term all-nighter.

The fact is, being away at different schools just gives you that much more to talk about. Luckily, when you call anyone in Kansas after 11 pm weeknights, or anytime between 11 pm Friday and 5 pm Sunday, you can talk 10 minutes for $1.68*. Or less, depending on where you call. Going away to school is even more fun when you share it with a friend. Especially a friend who's away at school!

Reach out and touch someone.

Southwestern Bell

*Price applies to calls dialed One-Plus without operator assistance. Same rate applies from 11pm to 8am every night. Tax not included.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

- ACROSS
- 1 D.C. title
  - 4 Milkfish
  - 7 Game of chance
  - 11 Ill-humored person
  - 13 Actor Young
  - 14 Swan genus
  - 15 Verdi opera
  - 16 Plato's "H"
  - 17 Companion of curry
  - 18 Attain
  - 20 Pack
  - 22 Josh
  - 24 African antelopes
  - 28 Manager
  - 32 "In — dark night of the soul..."
  - 33 She gets what she wants
  - 34 "— said it!"
  - 36 Famous Salvador
  - 37 Winglike
  - 39 Walked heavily
  - 41 Male goose
  - 43 Author Levin
- DOWN
- 1 Cicatrix
  - 2 Famous canal
  - 3 Nothing, in Madrid
  - 4 "The — of Reason"
  - 5 At — end
  - 6 Marble
  - 7 Sergeant's command
  - 8 — Baba friends
  - 9 Fabled bird
  - 10 Pay dirt
  - 12 Nostalgic reverie
  - 19 Hawk parrot
  - 21 Palm leaf; var.
  - 23 Thirsty
  - 25 A tide
  - 26 Roy's partner
  - 27 Slipped
  - 28 Dross
  - 29 Indian weight
  - 30 Dash
  - 31 Lamour, to friends
  - 35 Swiss canton
  - 38 Yes, in the Psalms
  - 40 Actor Carney
  - 42 Part of R.F.D.
  - 45 Sand hill
  - 47 Soviet city
  - 48 Poi source
  - 49 Mop
  - 50 Carpenter, for one
  - 51 Anagram for rag
  - 52 Ending for Brooklyn or Jersey
  - 54 Comic book sound
- Avg. solution time: 23 min.

ADEPT PAL OPT
LAXER ACE LAI
SNARE BROMINE
MUSCLE OVER
ALI SLO JOELS
VINE OSCAR
APEMAN AMECHE
BLEED DAUB
MAHAL RET REB
AWOL ANTHEM
JASMINE OMITS
ORE SOS SINAI
RED ANT ELECT

Answer to Saturday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP

10-17

UPZXX EJFKXV RCSJB'U OZBS OCU
CVRZUP EZXFPVJU.

Yesterday's Cryptogram: THE BIGGEST, WELL-DRESSED OIL BARON IS KNOWN AS A CHIC SHEIK.
Today's Cryptogram clue: O equals W.

International students host cultural festivals

By SUZANNE LARKIN
Collegian Reporter

"One, two...one, two. Forward, forward, forward and spin," echoed through the back yard of 1433 LeGore Lane Sunday where the International Student Club had their Oktoberfest.

The commands were given by Leslie Allen, junior in journalism and mass communications and president of the International Student Club, while she and another club member demonstrated polka dancing.

The club, now three years old, has from 50 to 60 members, said Mary Cook, graduate in guidance education and chairman of the club's social committee.

"This club promotes understanding and development of cultural exchange among internationals," added Donna Davis, an instructor in student development and the club's adviser. We help meet the needs of foreign students and American students who want to learn about each other and how their countries function."

The club sponsors an annual Edward J. King potluck dinner. The dinner honors King, who donated the funds for the construction of the International Student Center, and consists of different dishes representing the countries of club members.

"This year we will be organizing coffee hours, an international dessert function and a dance, and we also will be celebrating other holidays from various countries, such as the German Oktoberfest," Allen said.

Along with numerous games and polka dancing, a German menu was selected and prepared by a member of the club — Axel Ehrmann, freshman in mathematics.

"We have tried to match the foods, (but) we have had to substitute (American spices for German spices) in our German recipes as best we could, but it is not quite as authentic as the real food served in Germany," Ehrmann said.

Ehrmann, who is from Berlin, Germany, prepared German potato salad, imported sauerkraut, bratwurst, streusel kuchen, and apple cake.

"Activities and organizations such as this one are very beneficial, because we can learn so much from people of different countries about themselves, their countries and how they live," Allen said.

Campuses adapt to liquor restraints

By The College Press Service

Recent experiments in clamping down on student drinking performed by a many schools this fall have inspired a series of tough new rules on student behavior, but an initial check with colleges across the country indicates students are willingly adapting to their drier campuses.

"We didn't have the beer suckers that have always been around before," said Mike Jewell, a member of the University of Kentucky's Phi Delta Theta house. His house and all the other Kentucky fraternities agreed to hold dry rushes for the first time ever this fall.

Bar owners near the University of Oklahoma campus arranged to accommodate a crowd of 5,000 students at a rally to protest the state's new 21-year-old legal drinking age law, but only 150 students showed up.

Dry rushes and parties elsewhere unfolded without controversy.

"I think (the fraternities) are finding it brings good results and keeps the people away who only come for the free beer anyway," said Jonathan Brant, head of the National Interfraternity Conference.

Not all student groups are happy about the way schools are going about controlling student drinking, however.

"We're all for" controlling drinking, said Bob Bingaman, head of the State Student Association in Washington, D.C., which coordinates state student activities around the nation and also helped Kansas and Georgia students ward off drinking age hikes last spring.

"But students are responsible enough to sensitize themselves without having legislatures making decisions for them," he said.

Both legislators and school administrators are making those decisions nevertheless, at an increasing pace over the last year.

Maryland, Oklahoma, Arizona State, Alabama, Virginia, St. Bonaventure and many others have simply banned drinking on at least parts of their campuses. Fraternities like those at Kentucky and North Dakota State voluntarily have begun dry rushes and special alcohol-free activities.

At Loyola College of Maryland, students must now don special wristbands to get liquor at campus parties. Students caught violating the new policy — by giving a wristband to an under-aged drinker, for example — can be kicked out of student housing.

When the University of Maryland's under-aged population increased from only 25 percent of the student body to over 60 percent this year, Sandy Neverett, the assistant resident life director, said, "We just decided to put an end to all drinking on campus, rather than try to deal with all the enforcement problems."

"Since the majority of students can't legally drink anyway," said Anona Adair of the University of Oklahoma, "there simply cannot be any alcohol on campus."

The crackdown is extending off-campus.

Town police have been spot-checking parties at Millersville State College in Pennsylvania this fall, hunting for under-aged drinkers and enforcing the city's new noise law.

Illinois State University students now must get permission from town officials 15 days before holding any outdoor parties. Then, they have to have security guards at the parties.

Marquette, Mich. officials passed a tough new noise and litter ordinance designed to control parties on and near the Northern Michigan University campus.

"We're seeing a real turnaround in the way alcohol is being viewed not only by administrators, but by students themselves," said Gerardo Gonzalez, president of the group

BACCHUS. Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students is a national group aimed at controlling student drinking.

"More and more schools are integrating new policies to limit drinking, and show that alcohol doesn't have to be an inherent part of college life," he said.

The control efforts began in earnest on many campuses during the 1982-83 academic year and have accelerated since, as more states raise their legal drinking ages and more college towns are emboldened to try to control student noise.

Approximately half the states now have drinking ages set at 21, compared to 20 states a year ago. Several other "21 states" have also closed loopholes that allowed 18-year-olds to drink wine and beer.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★
★ All CMPS ★
★ students need ★
★ to make ★ ★ appointments ★
★ soon for ★ ★ pre-enrollment ★
★ advising. ★
★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

HALLOWEEN PARTY COMING UP?

Have an original costume
w/basics
from Footlights
We have leotards and tights
to create your perfect
Halloween outfit!

FOOTLIGHTS

EXERCISE & DANCE WEAR

10:30-5:30 MON.-SAT.

THUR. 'TIL 8:00

1110 LARAMIE

537-3106

CHIROPRACTIC CARE

WE PROVIDE CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS FOR $12.00. OTHER FEES PROVIDED ON REQUEST.

- SPORTS INJURIES • HOME, AUTO & WORK ACCIDENTS
- KSU STUDENT, FACULTY AND STAFF
- BONE, MUSCLE, NERVE AND JOINT DISORDERS

DR. WALDO E. SCHELLENGER

AVENUE CHIROPRACTIC OFFICE

1500 POYNTZ AVE.
MANHATTAN, KANSAS

537-8305

RUSHWACKER'S
• THE • FLUNKY
50¢ OFF any lunch
at the
BUSHWACKER EATERY
Try our Hot Hoagie

Open 11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m., 5 p.m.-1 a.m.

531 N. Manhattan

Bar 539-9727

Office 539-4321

Monday Madness

$7.00

Mondays Only...

Pay only $7.00 for a 16",
1-item pizza plus 1
free quart of Pepsi (Price
includes tax).
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 12/31/83

Fast, Free Delivery™

517 North 12th St.

Phone: 539-0561

34069/6311

Name _____

Address _____

Fast...Free Delivery™

Call us.
539-0561

517 North 12th St.

Hours:
4:30pm-1am Mon-Thurs.
11am-2am Fri. & Sat.
11am-1am Sun.

Our Superb
Cheese Pizza
12" cheese $5.15
16" cheese $7.35

The Price Destroyer™
Limited portions of 9
items for the price of 5.
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Olives, Onions, Green
Peppers, Ground Beef,
Sausage, Ham, Extra
Cheese

12" Price Destroyer™ $9.40

16" Price Destroyer™ $13.60

Additional Items

Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Ham, Onions, Anchovies,
Green Peppers, Olives,
Sausage, Ground Beef,
Jalapenos, Extra
Cheese, Extra Thick
Crust

12" pizza $ .85 per item

16" pizza $1.25 per item

Pepsi/quarts available
Prices do not include
applicable sales tax.
Our drivers carry less
than $10.00.

Limited delivery area.

©1983 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

memo:
DON'T FORGET
TO PICK UP
CAMPUS
DIRECTORY

You can get your Directory in Kedzie
Hall Room 103.

ONLY 50¢

with a Validated Student I.D.
Other Directories are $1.00 each.

LADIES SHOES

Savings up to 75% off
Now through Saturday

All on racks for easy selection

Brown's
SHOE FIT COMPANY

311 Poyntz

Downtown

DANCE CONTEST
November 7-8, 1983
Brother's Tavern
in Aggieville

Strut Your Stuff With UPC Special Events,
Brother's Tavern, and Bud Light

First Prize: Two tickets and backstage passes to the Stray Cats Concert at Ahearn. Plus two autographed copies of their latest album.

Listen to KSDB and read the Collegian for more details.

k-state union
special events

1004

Czech artwork to leave U.S. after final showing in Union

By KIM HUTCHISON
Staff Writer

K-State is the last stop for the Czechoslovakian art exhibit before it is returned to the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Art Service.

"This display is unusual because we were able to acquire it," Charles Stroh, head of the art department, said. According to Stroh, the art department depends on Student Government Association for funds to bring in exhibits. However, some exhibits must be scheduled one to two years in advance.

"We took a chance scheduling this exhibit without knowing if we would be able to pay for it," Stroh said. SITES' exhibits range between $800 to $45,000 rental fee. This exhibit was one of their less expensive ones.

SITES provides exhibits, like the one in the Union, to galleries throughout the country. The service assembles exhibits, puts them on tour, and then disassembles them before they are sent back to the galleries.

"Only one gallery in the United States handles Eastern European artwork. It is the Jaque Baruch Gallery in Chicago," Stroh said. This gallery exclusively exhibits work by Czechoslovakian printmakers.

In 1979, SITES put this exhibit on tour for two years. However, because of the popularity of the exhibit, SITES arranged for the exhibit to tour an additional two years, Stroh said. The last scheduled stop for the exhibit was in Illinois.

"We have it primarily because it had completed its tour," Stroh said. The exhibit will remain in the Union through Oct. 28. The work then will be returned to SITES.

"K-State will be the last to see this exhibit before it is dismantled and sent back to Chicago," he said. SITES classifies this exhibit as needing moderate security.

"Student attendants are in the room while it is open to the public," Stroh said.

The exhibit is a collection of the works of eight Czechoslovakian printmakers ranging in age from 30 to 70 years. They are established artists representing two to three generations. The small group includes both masters and apprentices, Stroh said.

According to Stroh, there are four printmaking processes. These are called relief, stencil, planographic and intaglio. This exhibit features two types of prints — planographic and intaglio.

Planographic includes the technique better known as lithography. This process works on the principle that grease and water repel each other. The design is drawn onto a limestone surface with a greasy crayon. The stone is then moistened with water. An oil-based ink is rolled over the surface, clinging only where the crayon has marked. The design is then printed on paper.

Intaglio refers to how the mark is put into a copper printing plate. This can be done by etching, engraving, dry pointing and mezzotinting.

Etching is a process where ink is rubbed over a plate into grooves and wiped off the surface. The plate is then printed under great pressure, actually embossing the paper into the design.

The tools used in intaglio will give different effects to a print. Engraving with a hard steel tool results in sharp lines, while dry point, scratching with a needle, gives a soft fuzzy effect. Mezzotint is characteristic by its tonal gradations of black and white.

"There are three major centers for printmakers — Poland, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia," Stroh said. All are closely related.

"We are unable to see their work very often because of the problems in exporting, censorship and politics of acquiring artwork from Eastern Europe," he said.

The artists often translate social, cultural, religious, personal and political issues into their prints that they don't express in their paintings, Stroh said.

"There is this socio-political attitude found in prints that isn't in their (artists) paintings because of the audience who buys them," he said.

"Some of the comments I've heard about the display are 'it's harsh' and 'difficult to deal with,'" Stroh said. He said he believes that these comments stem from our lifestyle compared to that of an artist working in a suppressed communist regime under complex living conditions.

"This is an extremely unusual display and we are fortunate to have it at K-State," Stroh said.

Symphony demonstrates skill; 'fresh outlook' enhances show

By SUE SCHMITT
Arts and Entertainment Editor

Thursday evening's free concert presented by the K-State Symphony drew a larger crowd than expected.

Only the bottom section of McCain Auditorium was open for seating, and by the beginning of the concert, only a few seats near the middle were empty.

Rather than squeeze between rows to find a seat, many resorted to standing along the aisles. Although by the end of first piece played by the orchestra, those standing found seats as the balcony was opened.

"Overture" from "The Barber of Seville" by Rossini opened the concert. Although the string section of the University symphony was not comparable to the Saint Louis Symphony, only a few intonation problems hampered the section's performance.

The overture was a fitting start for the hour performance.

The quiet, slow "Adagio for Strings" by Barber contrasted with the overture. The piece was marked by melodic lines and tender phrasing. The symphony showed its dynamic control in the piece's fade-out ending.

A grand piano was rolled to the front of the stage for the finale — the well-known composition, "Piano Concerto in B-Flat Minor" by Tchaikovsky. The concerto featured pianist Robert Edwards, associate professor of music and the chairman of keyboard studies in the music department.

The concerto was the most memorable piece of the concert. It was very colorful, and the contrasting styles made it an entertaining piece.

Edwards proved himself an extremely talented pianist. His dramatic style of playing fit the piece. The piano and the orchestra complemented each other's work.

There were two kinds of people in the audience. Those who enjoy music, and those who had to be there for class credit. While parents controlled their children who grew restless through the concert, students who had to be there showed their embarrassment and dismay at being in McCain when they could be doing something else.

The concert lasted only an hour; shorter than most symphony concerts. Because of the brevity of the performance and the orchestra's fresh outlook on music, it provided a good hour on entertainment at a price that couldn't be beat.

Calendar

Today, Oct. 17
THEATER
ANTA Touring Company — 8 p.m., McCain Auditorium
MOVIES
Veronika Voss (German Director Fassbinder Series) — 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall
ART
Contemporary Czechoslovakian Printmakers — Union Art Gallery through Oct. 28
Calligraphy Display by Jane Van Millegan — Union Second Floor Showcase

Tuesday, Oct. 18
MUSIC
Nooner: Kevin Chase — Catskeller
MOVIES
Return of the Ninja — Varsity
Flashdance — Campus

Never Say Never Again — Wareham
Mr. Mom — Westloop
Romantic Comedy — Westloop
Veronika Voss (German Director Fassbinder Series) — 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall

Wednesday, Oct. 19
MUSIC
Pressure — Avalon
The Clocks — Brother's
MOVIES
Veronika Voss (German Director Fassbinder Series) — 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall
Thursday, Oct. 20
MUSIC
K-State Marching Band in Concert — 8 p.m., McCain Auditorium
Pressure — Avalon
The Clocks — Brother's

THE PIZZERIA 776-0004

(The Pizza Appreciation Nights)

We deliver New York Recipe Pizza

The Pizzeria	776-0004	Mon. Only
$6.80 tax included	one topping large 16" pizza + 3 soft drinks	Expires 10/31/83
extra topping $1.15 tax included	one coupon per pizza
The Pizzeria	776-0004	Wed. Only
$6.80 tax included	one topping Large 16" pizza + 3 soft drinks	Expires 11/2/83
extra topping $1.15 tax included	one coupon per pizza

ROBERTO VARGAS

FIRST SECRETARY OF THE EMBASSY OF NICARAGUA, REPRESENTS THE NICARAGUAN MINISTRIES OF CULTURE AND LABOR, PUBLISHED POET.

Catskeller

Monday, Oct. 17

Poetry Reading
12:30

Discussion of Sandinista Policy
7:30

SPONSORED BY THE DEPARTMENTS OF:
ENGLISH MODERN LANGUAGES
HISTORY PHILOSOPHY
POLITICAL SCIENCE
GEOGRAPHY

PT SHOW ALIQUA POLITICAL SCIENCE HONORARY, AND THE COALITION FOR HUMAN RIGHTS.

BEER

Sold at cost plus 5%

Revco Drug Store
Village Plaza

LUNCH COUPON

LUGANO
with a BASKET
of STEAK
or FRIES $1.99

608 N. 12th Expires 10/21/83 539-9905

OPEN CEREMONIES PARADE COORDINATOR

Is needed for K-State Open House 1983-84

Applications are Available
in Anderson 104
Oct 21st is Deadline
For Applications

You'll be seeing some new faces at the Bookstore. Maybe even your own.

Choose your Halloween personality from our wide selection of famous, infamous and bestial masks. We also offer our wigs, artificial features, MAKE-UP (water, grease, pancake, rouge) in every imaginable color—you name it! Clown white, lipstick, and nail polish (black/green/red/glitter) we've got it!

10% discount on all merchandise (except special orders and sale merchandise for anyone in costume Oct. 28th).

k-state union bookstore

0002

Vista Restaurant makes Halloween giving easy . . . and safe, too. Just get Vista Value Wooden Nickels for your Trick or Treaters . . . a bag of 10 for only $1.50 (a $4.00 value). Vista Nickels are good all year for FREE Vista Creme Cones! For a real treat anytime . . . come to Vista.

Offer good while supply lasts. Price effective through 10/31/83

Vista RESTAURANTS

Emporia • Lawrence • Topeka • Manhattan/1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

Seminar focuses on rural education

By RHONDA WESSEL
Agriculture Editor

University objectives may not only be concerned with post-secondary education, but may also include working in a partnership with rural secondary schools to increase study skills and reading abilities.

"Universities and rural schools can be effective partners when working together, but school administrators must first come together and define their own particular need assessments," said Clyde G. Colwell, assistant professor of curriculum and instruction and instructor of the content reading program at Manhattan High School.

Colwell was one of approximately 100 speakers who will make presentations during a seminar titled Rural Schools: The Heartland of America Education Conference.

The conference is being conducted at the Manhattan Holiday Inn and the Union Oct. 15-18, and is a joint meeting between the Rural Education Association Conference and the Rural and Small Schools Conference sponsored by the College of Education, the Center for Rural Education and Small Schools, and the Division of Continuing Education.

"The content reading program at Manhattan High School involves three major steps. First, the teacher must assess the student's reading needs, then concentrate on the instruction methodology and formulate a classroom application," Colwell said.

The program branches off from these three basic ideas into a remedial reading program and special electives in an accelerated reading program headed by a reading specialist, Colwell explained.

The content program at Manhattan High School is in its fourth year. Each year approximately 10 new teachers are trained to present material to enhance students' content reading. The teachers involved have their tuition and books paid for by the school district or federal grants and receive six hours credit for participating in the program for one year. Approximately 45 of 100 teachers have been trained in the content reading program so far, Elizabeth Ince, reading specialist at Manhattan High School, said.

"We decided that we should do an in-depth study of the need assessments at Manhattan High and find out just what the teachers wanted. We came up with the premise that — yes, Manhattan High had a need for content reading, but they wanted something with length, incentive and a follow-up," Ince said.

Next, the school administrators went to various reading conferences in the United States to learn more about setting up a content reading program. The school also worked on the funding for the program and then went to Colwell to establish the program, Ince said.

"Because of the program, we feel that we have an outstanding school. We have strong administrative leadership, high expectations, and our teachers feel that they are making a difference," Ince said.

"Initially, we spent about $4,000 on the program, but by the time we purchased some other equipment and materials the first year's cost was about $8,000. The tuition was the primary cost factor involved," Ince said.

Ince said there are several things which should be avoided when starting a similar program.

"It must be teacher-initiated as opposed to the university coming to them (local school administrators) with the idea. It must be longer than one or two days for it to really be incorporated into a teacher's method of processing material, and those teachers involved must be totally committed to the program," she said.

The program has only been partially effective according to standardized tests taken by students.

"Our strongest area is in teacher evaluation and student attitudes while our greatest difficulty is in standardized tests. They don't show the gains because they don't emphasize the material like the content teachers," Colwell said.

"The program can be set up for any type of education, not just for content reading, and it will be applicable in any type of school environment," Colwell said.

"We are now working with several rural school districts. Some which can't afford to fund the program themselves are turning to a co-op type situation," Colwell said.

"The teaching of reading skills should not stop at the sixth grade level. There is a definite and legitimate reason for teaching content reading beyond the elementary level. In some studies of the reading abilities of high school seniors, the difference in ability of the highest ranking senior and the lowest ranking senior has ranged in ability as much as a 10-year difference," Colwell said.

FASHION MARKETING CAREER DAY

Friday-October 21 K-State Union

8:30-9:00 Registration

9:00 Chet Peters—Vice President, Student Affairs: Leadership Development

10:00 Missy Richards: Non-Traditional Career Opportunities

11:00 Errol Cade, K-Mart-Apparel: New Strategies for the Future

12:00 Luncheon—Flint Hills Room

Fashion Show

Keynote Speakers:

Amy Pritchett, Executive Personnel, Dillard's Department Stores

Kathleen Lowman, Assistant Director of Career Planning & Placement—K.S.U.

For more information contact: Luncheon Cost $4.50

Marlene Johnson

Justin 223

532-6993

Deadline for luncheon payments, Tues., Oct. 18th

Reagan may name envoy as security adviser

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has decided to appoint Robert McFarlane, his special Middle East envoy, to be his national security adviser, filling the post being vacated when William Clark becomes secretary of the interior, White House officials said Sunday.

Reagan was not expected to announce his decision until today at the earliest.

One official, speaking on the condition that he not be identified by name, said the president's key foreign policy and national security advisers had been notified of the president's decision, reached during the weekend.

"All that remains is the president making it formal," said another official.

The officials said that Reagan had not taken the final step of actually offering the job to McFarlane, who, in addition to the Middle East job, is the deputy national security adviser.

The president, returning from Camp David, Md., where he spent the weekend, was asked by reporters whether he had spoken with McFarlane about the job. "Nope," Reagan replied.

Earlier in the day, White House chief of staff James A. Baker III said on the CBS News program "Face the Nation" that Reagan "has not made a decision as yet."

But, said one White House official, "the foreign policy advisers were told it would be McFarlane and that he'd have the same role in the White House as Clark had."

"It is pretty clear to everybody" that McFarlane is getting the job, he said, adding: "It's just a question of his being asked and accepting it and the president announcing it."

Officials made it clear they did not see any likely snags.

Because Clark, a longtime friend of Reagan, had extraordinary access to the president, there was concern whether McFarlane, who worked in the Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford administrations, would have the same opportunities to present foreign policy options to Reagan.

The other leading candidate for the job, Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, was said by one White House source to be in line for an additional job in Washington, to boost her foreign policy role. However, the details of that job were said to have not been determined.

She had strong backing from Reagan's more conservative supporters, who had lobbied strenuously to have her placed in the Clark job, according to White House officials.

McFarlane, 45, has served as a national security special assistant at the White House from 1973 to 1977, and was on the Republican staff of the Senate Armed Services Committee during the Carter administration.

He returned to the executive branch with Reagan's election, serving as the State Department counselor until moving to the White House, as Clark's deputy, on January, 1982. Last July, he took on the additional duties of special envoy to the Middle East. He is a former Marine lieutenant colonel.

Clark, who is not expected to face serious opposition in the Senate, is being nominated to replace James G. Watt, who resigned a week ago.

Clark was said to have sought the Watt job, tired of the pressure and long hours of the job as assistant to the president for national security affairs.

Cardiovascular diseases will cause half of all deaths this year.

American Heart Association

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

Our instructors and students have had recent education on the new Fall trends.

Call today for a new Fall look 776-4794

All services performed by students who are closely supervised by instructors

CRUM'S BEAUTY COLLEGE 512 Poyntz

STRAY CATS

IN CONCERT 1983 Homecoming

Friday,
November 11
8:00 P.M. Ahearn Fieldhouse

Tickets go on sale
Sat., Oct. 22—12 Noon
K-State Union Box Office
20 ticket limit

Tickets: $10, $9.50, $9.00
K-State Students
(2 per I.D.)
$11, 10.50, 10.00
General Public

presented by

k-state union
upc special events

1004

Staff/Jeff Taylor

K-State's Greg Dageford loses control of the ball after a pitch from quarterback Doug Bogue. Darnell Williams, KU linebacker, scrambles for the recovery shortly before halftime.

Jayhawks crush Wildcats, 31-3

By KEVIN DALE
Staff Writer

LAWRENCE — Behind the passing of Frank Seurer and the receiving of Bob Johnson, the University of Kansas had little trouble Saturday as whipped K-State 31-3 before a crowd of 49,300 in Memorial Stadium.

"They just whipped us in every phase of the game," Dickey said. "They were more aggressive, and they beat us on the line — both on offense and defense."

The Wildcats may have, in fact, beaten themselves as they let KU off the hook on several long drives by turning the ball over or by being penalized.

In the first half, the Wildcats drove to the KU 39-yard line only to have a Doug Bogue pass intercepted by Jayhawk Jeff Colter. Another first-half drive ended at the KU 35 when tailback Greg Dageford could not handle a bad pitch from Bogue and freshman Darnell Williams fell on the ball for KU.

In the second half, K-State had an 85-yard touchdown pass called back because they had an ineligible man downfield.

Bogue hit Mike Wallace cutting across the middle and Wallace outran the KU secondary to the 5-yard line where Elvis Patterson finally caught him. Wallace had enough momentum to drag Patterson into the end zone. But the play was nullified by the penalty, and instead of six points, the Wildcats had a third-and-20 on their own 10.

"We were moving the ball and making yardage," tailback Mark Hundley said, "but we just stopped ourselves with penalties and turnovers. The touchdown they scored before the half and the one we had called back were big plays, but that didn't change the outcome. We just got beat."

It was Seurer and his corps of talented receivers that ruled the skies as the Jayhawks rolled up 531 total offensive yards.

Seurer threw 20 completions out of 35 attempts for 321 yards and two touchdowns, which makes him the KU all-time career

Staff/John Sleezer

With a message to the 'Cats printed on his shirt, KU's mascot oversees the coin toss.

passer with 5,140 yards, surpassing the previous record of 5,133 set by David Jaynes.

On the receiving end of most of Seurer's passes was senior split end Bob Johnson, who set two KU single game records. His 10 catches were the most by a Jayhawk, as well as his 208 yards he accumulated.

The 'Hawks picked up the Wildcat blitzes and alternated throwing to their receivers and runningbacks to confuse the K-State defense, which used five defensive backs for most of the afternoon.

"We were a little confused at first," K-State cornerback Nelson Nickerson said. "But we did start to straighten out. Not taking anything away from Seurer, he's a great quarterback, but we helped him out a lot. We had some breakdowns in coverage and their receivers made some real good catches.

The Wildcats ran up the first points of the afternoon as they drove to the KU 9 on their opening drive. Facing a fourth-and-one, K-State elected to go for the field goal and Steve Willis connected from 26 yards to give the 'Cats a short-lived 3-0 lead.

KU struck back on its next possession, which featured a no-huddle offense, on a 4-yard Seurer-to-Darren Green touchdown lob that climaxed a 9-play, 80-yard drive. Bruce Kallmeyer, who would later kick a 28-yard field goal midway in the second quarter, connected on the extra point to give the 'Hawks a 7-3 lead and the momentum it needed to avenge last year's 36-7 drubbing at the hands of K-State.

Asked about the no-huddle offense used at the outset of the game, KU Head Coach Mike Gottfried said, "Our offense is to the point where they can do things on their own. The idea was if we could get a drive going without a huddle, we might be able to unnerve their defense a little bit."

Even though KU rolled over the 'Cats for the rest of the game, Gottfried said he did not believe it was a cakewalk for his team.

"I don't think it was easy," he said. "In fact, it was pretty tough. We blew some opportunities early, and the penalties kept hurting us. They're a fine team. A very well-coached team. It wasn't easy."

Johnson also said he did not think it was an easy game for the Jayhawks.

"It was not an easy afternoon," he said. "We went out and executed real well and everything fell into place, but they made us work for everything we got."

It was Johnson's touchdown at the end of an 81-yard touchdown drive by KU with only 45 seconds remaining before halftime that dampened the 'Cats' spirits.

With a 10-3 lead, KU took over at its own 19. Five plays later, the Jayhawks were faced with a second-and-10 at the K-State 36. With everyone thinking pass, Kerwin Bell ran off-tackle and raced 27 yards to the K-State 9 before Adrian Barber was able to bring him down. Seurer then hit Johnson with a 9-yard touchdown pass with three seconds remaining. Kallmeyer then kicked the extra point to give the 'Hawks a commanding 17-7 lead.

"That play (Bell's run) right before the half probably broke us mentally," Dickey said, "but we hadn't been playing very good up to then."

Bell led all rushers with 13 carries for 114 yards. This was Bell's first 100-yard game since he had six of those as a freshman.

"My runs today really helped my confidence," Bell said. "I thought we played an all-around good game."

Dickey said the game was won in the trenches as the KU line outplayed K-State on both sides of the ball.

"They really manhandled us on the line," he said. "We knew they had a mature offensive line, but we felt we would have some success against their defense. Our quarterback did not have time to throw the ball, and we had little success running."

In fact, out of the 34 rushing plays ran by KU, only one was stopped behind the line of scrimmage.

"Our defense didn't look quick," Dickey said. "It was like we were wading in sand. We were very tentative on our blitzes."

Dageford led the Wildcat rushers with 76 yards on 13 carries, and Charles Crawford chipped in with five totes for 26 more, but the 'Cats 123 total yards rushing and 133 yards passing on eight-for-16 passing was no match for the 'Hawks.

The 31-3 loss was the worst defeat for K-State in the 81-year series since 1975, when KU shut out the 'Cats 28-0.

Staff/John Sleezer

Staff/Jeff Taylor

LEFT: KU quarterback Frank Seurer surges over the goal line for a touchdown with 10:25 left in the game. Seurer set a KU passing record with 321 yards. ABOVE: K-State's Eric Bailey has the ball knocked away by KU's Steve Cole with 45 seconds remaining in the game.

Baseball team finishes season at 16-1

By GARY VAN CLEAVE
Collegian Reporter

The next time K-State's baseball team takes the field for a game, the Big Eight Post-Season Basketball Tournament will be getting under way at Kemper Arena in Kansas City, and the Royals will be beginning spring training in Fort Meyers, Fla.

Sunday afternoon, the Wildcats concluded the fall exhibition season with a triple-header with Dodge City Community College at Frank Meyers Field.

The Wildcats ended the 17-game fall schedule on a winning note, as they defeated the Conquistadors 6-0, 2-1 and 4-0.

"Today was a tough day. We played three games yesterday (Saturday) and three more today, and we were able to come back and win these ballgames," Bill Hickey, K-State baseball coach, said. "This team from Dodge City wasn't a bad ballclub. They're a young ballclub."

Saturday, the Wildcats also swept Labette County Community College by 7-4 and 8-7 scores.

Sunday, the Wildcats' bats came alive in the first game. K-State racked out nine hits off Dodge City pitching. In the meantime, Gerry Zimmerman checked the Conquistadors on just one hit in his six innings' work.

K-State scored twice in the second inning. Jay Kvasnicka and Dwayne Belcher reached on one-out singles, and Kent Schaefer drilled a triple down the left-field line scoring both baserunners.

The Wildcats didn't let up and tallied three more runs in the fourth inning. Eric Gossett led off with a single, Scott Spurgeon walked and both crossed the plate on a triple by Belcher. Schaefer then picked up his third run-batted in of the game on a sacrifice fly.

The final K-State run came in the fifth inning. After two men were out, Todd Thamer beat out an infield single and scored on Mark Goodwin's triple.

While the Wildcats' offense was scoring runs, K-State's defense was not giving up runs. If Zimmerman wasn't striking out somebody (struck out nine), he was backed up by a stingy defense, topped by a short-handed dive by Thamer at shortstop. After grabbing the hot grounder, Thamer still managed to get up and throw the runner out by a half-step at first base.

"Zimmerman threw well after the first inning. After that he got his rhythm back and he pitched real well," Hickey said.

With the 16-1 finish, Hickey looks towards the first week of March with great hopes, as the Wildcats kick off the spring schedule with Baker University.

K-State's Tom Meyer looks up in disgust after being tagged out at third base during the third game of a triple header.

Staff/John Sleezer

Orioles defeat Phillies, capture Series crown

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — The Baltimore Orioles rode two home runs by a suddenly revitalized Eddie Murray and one by Rick Dempsey into a new era Sunday, beating Philadelphia 5-0 and winning their first World Series in 13 years.

The five-game victory, capped by Scott McGregor's five-hitter in the finale, completed first-year Manager Joe Altobelli's ascension to the throne vacated by Earl Weaver, who retired last winter after managing the American League club for 14½ seasons.

Altobelli was an old company man in one of baseball's supreme organizations, having worked as a minor-league coach and manager for years in the Orioles' system.

In fact, they were all company men. Guys like Dempsey, who had caught more games than any other Oriole and who, despite only hitting .231 during the season, contributed a double in addition to his home run, giving him five extra-base hits — a record for a five-game Series. And guys like McGregor, who nailed down the Orioles' third Series championship and first since the Weaver-led team of 1970.

Altobelli had continued Weaver's platoon system, using six outfielders regularly, and they contributed enough to offset the disadvantage of having to play the Series without a designated hitter. They were Altobelli's interchangeable parts, never begrudging the other man his chance.

Good company men, like Jim Dwyer and John Lowenstein, each of whom had a Series homer.

It was in 1979 that the Orioles made their last Series appearance, but they lost to Pittsburgh in seven games after being up 3-1.

This time, they didn't let the World Series ring escape.

After losing the first game 2-1 at Baltimore, the Orioles won game two at home, then swept three in Philadelphia. They became only the fourth team to win in this manner and the first since the New York Mets did it to an earlier Baltimore club in 1969.

McGregor, who had lost three straight post-season games dating to Game Seven of the 1979 Series, was the quintessential Orioles pitcher, a member of a staff that turned in a post-season ERA of 1.11 — 10 earned runs in nine games.

Never overpowering, the crafty left-hander was a 2-1 loser in Baltimore's opening games of both the American League playoffs and the Series, compiling a post-season ERA of 1.84.

He had five quick runs in support Sunday, and that was more than enough.

Murray, who came into the game with two hits in 16 series at-bats, roared back with a vengeance. He hit a 2-2 pitch from rookie right-hander Charles Hudson, who lost for the second time in the Series, into the right-field seats to start the second inning for the first of his three hits in the game.

Dempsey, the Series' Most Valuable Player who drove in the winning run with a double in game two and started the winning rally with another double in game three, led off the third inning with a homer to left. He hit a 1-0 pitch from Hudson, who had lasted only four and one-third innings in game two and went just four Sunday.

To that point, there had been nine home runs in the Series, five by Baltimore, and they were all solo. But Murray, who had 33 homers and 111 runs batted in during the season, changed that in the fourth.

The Orioles thus became the first American League team to win the World Series since the New York Yankees won consecutive championships in 1977 and 1978.

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.65 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.25 per inch; Five consecutive days: $3.95 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $3.75 per inch (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENT 01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m. 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. 50¢ for students with ID and $1 for all others. (281f)

THE K-STATE MARCHING BAND IN CONCERT

Thurs. Oct. 20
8:00 p.m.
McCain Auditorium
FREE

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours. Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Maries, 1631 Humboldt. 539-5200. (32-50)

ATTENTION 02

TRAVEL—We will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours. 776-4756. (11f)

FANTASY GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

FOR GREAT music at your next function, dance or party, dial 539-7512 for D.J. Dave Guthals. (37-41)

HURRY TO Balfour! To introduce you to our new arrivals, all FootJoy aerobic shoes and racquetball shoes and gloves are 20% off now through October 29th. (39-49)

FOR RENT—MISC 03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11f)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th. 539-7931. (11f)

HALLOWEEN COSTUMES—Sales and rentals, masks, make-up, accessories. The Emporium, 11th and Moro in Aggieville. (35-49)

FOR RENT—APTS 04

BRAND NEW two bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. Call 776-3804. (35-44)

LARGE, ONE bedroom, laundry facilities, three blocks from campus. Available mid-December. $275/month and electric. 539-8968. (40-44)

FOR RENT—HOUSES 05

FIVE BEDROOM, quiet neighborhood. No lease, $500 per month. Call Brian 1-456-7423 after 5:30 p.m. (40-44)

NICE, THREE bedroom house, Northview. Garage, appliances, new carpeting, paint. Couples, older student. Lease, $395. Call 776-9765. (40-44)

FOR SALE—AUTO 06

1961 MGA convertible roadster. Excellent condition. Also good transmission and rebuildable block for MGB. 776-0717. (37-41)

1968 AMX classic 390—automatic, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, stereo, 5,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Excellent condition. $3400. Might trade. 537-4762. (39-49)

1980 DATSUN 4x4 with top. Good condition. 776-8182 after 5:00 p.m. Monday-Friday. Weekends anytime. (40-44)

1973 FIAT 124—Excellent condition, new brakes and battery. Good mileage. 63,000 miles, $575. Call 539-3378. (40-41)

1979 BLUE MGB. Excellent condition, low mileage. Call 776-8055 after 7:00 p.m. (40-44)

FOR SALE—MISC 07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risqué greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (grey), North Carolina (lt. blue), USC (white) others. $12.50 each postpaid. 5-M-L-X-L. Send check to L.M.G. Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-601-835-1065. (32-45)

EMBROIDERED DRESSES—Beautiful, hand-embroidered dresses from Mexico. Pure cotton, comfortable, inexpensive. Great for gift-giving. Write for information. Montezuma's Revenge, Box 50150, Austin, Texas 78763. (36-45)

DINETTE SET—Dark pine with four matching mate chairs. Very good condition. $175. Call 539-4203 after 6:00 p.m. (36-40)

ELECTRIC BOHN typewriter. Royal manual typewriter. Record-A-Call answering machine. Good condition, cheap! 539-2449. Tim. (38-40)

VW BUG ACCESSORIES

Chrome, wheel rings, door handles, hub caps, valve covers, upholstery kits, walnut dash knobs.

1-494-2388 J & L Bug Service.

DELUXE OLIVETTI typewriter. Perfect condition. Call 532-6715, ask for Pete. (38-42)

FENDER STRATOCASTER, black, E.C. $400. Phone 537-2620. (39-41)

NEW ONKYO CP-1000A turntable. Cartridge included. Call Chuck at 776-2265. (40-41)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES 08

NEED TO sell in two weeks—1980, 14' x 60' Shiro, furnished. Call 539-2784 after 4:30 p.m. (35-40)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES 09

1977 Suzuki, 11,200 miles, very good condition. Need money, must sell, $650. Call 539-4866 anytime. (37-41)

FOUND 10

FOUND in Weber Hall: Jacket, eyeglasses, cord for calculator and textbook. Come to Weber Hall, Room 117 to identify and claim. (39-41)

LADIES WATCH found in parking lot south of student dorms. Can identify and claim by calling 537-1607. (39-41)

ONE OF two males on a motorcycle leaving campus on College Heights Rd. at 10:40 a.m. on October 12, 1983 lost his prescription glasses. I found them. To claim call Mike at 532-5506 or 539-6400 after 5:00 p.m. (39-41)

CALCULATOR FOUND outside King Hall, October 12. Call 532-2211 to identify and claim. (39-41)

HELP WANTED 13

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

TWO SALARIED positions available January 1, 1984. Music/Choir Director and Organist. Peace Lutheran Church, 2500 Kimball. Resume due October 21. Job description available upon request. 539-7371. (35-41)

CHURCH NURSERY Attendant 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. September-May. $3.35/hour. Call 776-8790 between 8:30 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. Monday-Friday. (38-41)

WORKSTUDY POSITION available—Must have Workstudy, 10-12 hours weekly. Apply In-structional Media Center, Blumont Hall, Rm. 018. Ask for Ron or Janette, 532-5926. (40-44)

LOST 14

SILVER WATCH with sentimental value. Lost enroute from Fairchild Hall to 2000 College Hills, Thursday. If found, please call 539-8463. (40-41)

NOTICES 15

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY does typing—all types. Reasonable—all work guaranteed. Nancy, 776-8084. (40)

FLAPJACK FEED! All you can eat! Includes sausage and eggs. Tuesday, October 18, 4:30-6:30 p.m. in the K-State Union Stateroom. (40-41)

PERSONAL 16

WANTED: IN all seriousness, female grad student seeks companionship of male (26-45 years) who understands time limitations, is intelligent, gentle and fun to be with. Write Pat at the Collegian, Box 4. (38-40)

DELTA SIG Scott Sawyer—The arrival of my new pledge son was really neat, but the day we meet will be a big treat. Love, Mom. (40)

GINA—HOPE you had a Happy 18th Birthday! Love, 538. (40)

SAES—GOOD luck on your game today. Love, your little sisters. (40)

PUMKIN—IT'S been one fantastic year. We're perfect together, so let's stay together, forever. ILY, Squirrel. (40)

LONELY? WANT a tall good looking companion to share the long nights with you? To be continued... tomorrow—same time, same place. (40)

MY DEAR Daughter—Over the years my feelings remain the same. Relax and we'll make it through. Your Warrior Mom. (40)

SIGMA CHI Football Players. Good luck against the SAES today in the finals. We know you guys are the greatest! Love, the little Sigmas. (40)

BETHANY—THANKS for the flowers! They brightened up my day. You're a great sister. Love, Cynthia. (40)

CRYSTAL LOU—From road trips to K.C., late night walks and talks, and everything else—you're the best. Happy 20th Birthday. Luv ya—Di. (40)

ROOMMATE WANTED 17

MALE ROOMMATE wanted to share four bedroom apartment through May. Good location. Call 539-6849. (36-40)

ROOMMATE NEEDED for November 1. Cozy home near campus, own room, partially furnished, washer and dryer, $120/month, no pets, graduate student preferred. 537-0340. (38-42)

ONE-THREE non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplace, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (39-43)

FEMALE WANTED to share nice house, $85 plus one-half utilities. Good location. 537-1570. (40-44)

TWO FEMALE roommates wanted—$100 plus one-fourth electricity. Available November 1st. One-half block from campus. 539-6553. (40-42)

SERVICES 18

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Unique skin care and glamour products. Call Fiona Taylor, 539-2070, for facial. (17-19)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South 4th Street, Suite 25. (11f)

GRADUATING THIS semester? Let us help you with your resume. Resume Service, 1221 Moro, Aggieville. 537-7294. (11f)

Typing—LOWER rates. IBM electronic typewriter for faster service. Satisfaction guaranteed. Call Linda. 776-6174. (71f)

MARY KAY Cosmetics. Free facials. 10 percent off products with student ID. New fall glamour products now in. Call Elaine Berryhill, independent Beauty Consultant. 537-3233 days. 1-456-7251 evenings. (30-50)

COSTUMES By the thousands. Complete rabbits, chickens, gorillas, tigers, bears and more. Flappers, Play Boy Bunnies, French maid, dance hall girls, much more. Ask for whatever you'd like to reserve now for Halloween. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (9-50)

Typing—ALL kinds. Guaranteed. Reasonable rates. Twelve years experience with theses. Call Rita. (1) 293-5304. (35-49)

Typing WANTED. Dissertations, theses, papers. Fast, professional service. Twenty years experience. Call Katherine, 539-8837. (39-59)

Typing—LETTERS, term papers, resumes, etc. Reasonable rates. Call Sherry, 539-9131 after 5:30 p.m. (21-50)

Typing: FAST, experienced, professional: letters, resumes, reports, technical papers, theses, satisfaction guaranteed. Call 776-6166 anytime. (30-54)

Typing WANTED—Theses, papers, technical reports, architectural designs. Fifteen years experience, satisfaction guaranteed. Call 539-6528. (32-50)

PAYING TOO much? Call Don McMaster at Farm and Home for Auto, Health and Renters insurance. I can probably save you money! 776-0089. (34-43)

NOW HAIRSTYLING—Perms $17.50 up; cuts $5.50 up; kids cuts 10 and under, $5.50, walk-ins, appointments. Hours: 8:00 a.m.-7:00 p.m., Tuesday-Friday; Saturday 8:00 a.m.-5:30 p.m., 110 North 3rd, 776-7808. (40-50)

WANTED 21

WANTED TWO very attractive female companions needed for semi-formal dance on October 29. If interested call 532-5426, ask for DJ or Spike. (38-40)

WANTED TO BUY 22

NEED TO buy KSU vs. NU football tickets. Call 539-0326 after 5:30 p.m. (38-40)

NEEDED—TWO tickets for NU game. Please call 539-9147. (39-41)

NEED FOUR tickets to NUKSU game. Prefer together or in pairs. Pat, 537-0865, between 5:00 and 7:00 p.m. (39-42)

WANT TO party? Sell us a block of 20 KSU-NU General Admission football tickets for $300 and have yourself a ball. Call (402) 483-2581. (40-44)

NEED ONE to four KSU vs. NU football tickets. Please call 537-4842. Keep trying. (40-44)

WANTED—TWO tickets to the N.U. game. Would appreciate call. Call 539-7568. (40-44)

Captain Cosmo

By Doug Yearout

Bradley

By Mich Johnson

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

ABOVE: Paul Hadfield, member of the Royal Lichtenstein Circus, balances on a bicycle rim as he performs atop the high wire. TOP RIGHT: Paul's brother John Hadfield performs a juggling act for the crowd which gathered for the show Friday between the Union and Seaton Hall.

Tiny circus sparks laughter

Political humor and pratfalls attracted more than 500 people at noon Friday to the courtyard between the Union and Seaton Hall for the Royal Lichtenstein Circus, a scaled-down version of larger shows.

Billed as a "giant one-quarter ring" circus, the Royal Lichtenstein featured a tightrope seven feet off the ground, two dogs, a pony and a bear dressed as a woman.

In addition to the animal performances, members of the Santa Barbara, Calif.-based group presented juggling, comedy and magic acts, as well as mime fables.

Ringmaster Nick Weber, 44, the only continuous member of the 12-year-old circus, used a somewhat caustic brand of humor about everything from the University of Kansas to President Reagan to elicit laughs from the crowd.

"The first thing you have to do is get down and shake out all the fleas you picked up at the University of Kansas," Weber told a poodle named Jingle Bells. "Pay attention. You're acting like a Republican."

Politicians write most of the political humor used in the show, Weber said.

"My position is, if they (politicians) are going to write material, I'll use it," he said. Outgoing Interior Secretary James Watt was the best comedy writer on the Reagan cabinet, he added.

The circus performs one show a day, eight months a year, mostly on college campuses, Weber said. Performers are hired from audiences and stay with the show for one season, he said.

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Reporter

Most of the comedy exhibited at K-State will get laughs from audiences at other campuses, Weber said.

"Pretty much, unless for one reason or another it is a very conservative campus," he said. "College kids normally know it's OK to laugh."

Friday's performance wasn't all fun and games. John Hadfield, a group member from Delaware, re-enacted one of magician Harry Houdini's escape tricks.

A 100-gallon milk can was filled with 95 gallons of cold water. Hadfield then plunged into the tank which was subsequently padlocked in four places.

The crowd waited and counted the seconds until a water-logged Hadfield burst from the tank and out from behind a curtain concealing the container. The escape took nearly two minutes.

But the art of escape wasn't the only message the group delivered. One of the mime fables, "A Tale of Two Towns," had a clear message which Weber addressed after the act.

In the tale, a resident of a town that used the barter system for trade visited a second town where money was most important. The resident entered a cafe and danced around dispensing little, fuzzy rabbits to pay for his supper.

The resident danced out the door, thinking he had paid for his supper and was later arrested for not paying his bill with cash.

While he was in jail, however, the rabbits he turned loose ate all of the currency in the town, converting its residents to traders-in-kind.

"I can see you don't stand for socialism in the middle of Kansas," Weber said.

"UPC... We do it right!"

UPCOMING EVENTS

Monday, Oct. 17

Contemporary Czechoslovakian Print Makers: Union Art Gallery thru Oct. 28
Kaleidoscope—Effie Briest: FH 7:30 p.m.
Arts—Calligraphy display by Jane Van Milligen: Union 2nd Floor Showcase thru Oct. 21

Tuesday, Oct. 18

Coffeehouse—Nooner—Kevin Chase: Catskeller 12 noon.
Kaleidoscope—Effie Briest: FH 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday, Oct. 19

Kaleidoscope—The Weavers: FH 7:30 p.m.

Thursday, Oct. 20

Arts—Midday Arts—Florence Schwab, harpist: Union Art Gallery, 12 noon.
Kaleidoscope—The Weavers: LT 3:30, FH 7:30 p.m.
Outdoor Rec—Trapshoot Info Meeting: Union Rm. 213, 7 p.m.
Coffeehouse—Open Mike Night: Catskeller, 7:30 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 21

Outdoor Rec—Trapshooting sign up begins 8 a.m.-4 p.m. in Activities Center thru Oct. 26.
Feature Films—The Year of Living Dangerously: FH 7 & 9:30 p.m.
Feature Films—Midnight Cowboy: FH 12 midnight.

Saturday, Oct. 22

Special Events—Stray Cats tickets on sale at 12 noon in Union 1st Floor Box Office: $10, $9.50, $9 tickets for KSU students.
Feature Films—Seems Like Old Times: FH 2 p.m.
Feature Films—The Year of Living Dangerously: FH 7 & 9:30 p.m.
Feature Films—Midnight Cowboy: FH 12 midnight.

Sunday, Oct. 23

Feature Films—Seems Like Old Times: FH 2 & 7 p.m.

♿ Spaces available at our events.

k-state union
program council

NOONER!!

This Tuesday!

Kevin Chase
singer/songwriter
Catskeller, 12 noon

coming soon!

Boplicity
jazz fusion
Oct. 25

k-state union
upc coffeehouse

Fassbinder

Effie Briest

Monday and Tuesday
October 17 and 18
7:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.50

Part of the German Director Fassbinder Series.

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

Wasn't That A Time!

Wed., Oct. 19
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
Thurs., Oct. 20
3:30 p.m.
Little Theatre
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
$1.50

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

In the spirit of the original Coffeehouse . . .
UPC Coffeehouse proudly presents the semester's first

OPEN MIKE NIGHT
Thursday, Oct. 20, 1983
Catskeller 7:30 p.m.

Sign up for performance times in the Activities Center, 3rd Floor, Union.

Sing a song
Tell a joke
Read a poem
Perform magic

k-state union
upc coffeehouse

TRAPSHOOT

Sunday, October 30 2:00 p.m.
Tuttle Creek Trap Park

Info meeting:
Thurs., Oct. 20
Union Rm. 213
7 p.m.

Sign up:
Oct. 21 thru Oct. 26
8 a.m.-4 p.m.
Union Activities Center

—50 targets attempted
—Loan guns available
—Rain or shine
—Shells available
TROPHIES WILL BE AWARDED

$10.50

k-state union
upc outdoor rec.

STRUT YOUR STUFF WITH THE CATS

Looking Up

Basketball practice begins for the 1983-84 season.

Sports, page 6

New rural education policy gains support

By RHONDA WESSEL
Agriculture Editor

The U.S. Department of Education has affirmed its support for improving the quality of education for rural students by adopting a new rural education policy.

Robert M. Worthington, assistant secretary for vocational and adult education of the Department of Education, announced the policy Monday. He was speaking after a luncheon in the Union Main Ballroom before a delegation of the Rural Education Association and Rural and Small Schools Conference.

The conference is sponsored by the College of Education, Center for Rural Education and Small Schools, and the Division of Continuing Education and will continue through Wednesday Oct. 18.

This was the first public announcement of the new Department of Education policy titled, "Rural Education and Rural Family Education Policy for the 1980s. The policy was signed by Education Secretary T.H. Bell on Aug. 23, 1983.

The new policy defines rural population as an area "comprised of all persons living outside urbanized areas in open country or in communities of less than 2500 inhabitants. It also includes those living in areas of extended cities with a population density of less than 1,000 inhabitants per square mile," Worthington said.

The policy states that the Education Department recognizes the impact of rural America on the social and economical impact on the American society, he said.

Worthington said he believes the changing society has shifted educational concerns from rural issues to those of the cities.

Although the department is still concerned with the needs of urban education, it will strengthen educational assistance to rural areas, he said.

"The Department adopts the following policy: rural education shall receive equitable share of the information services, assistance, and services and funds available from the Department of Education and its programs. To the extent that the resources are available, the Department of Education is prepared to uphold these initiatives," Worthington said.

The department will also encourage parent participation, provide the needed technology, teachers, assimilated information and support for the rural education institutions, he said.

Worthington cited various reasons for the adoption of this new policy.

"The rural America continues to experience a disproportionate share of the educational and economical deprivation that exists in this country,"

"Though there have been gains made during the last decade in these areas," he said, "rural education tends to lag behind the rest of America in educational achievement and economical well being."

Worthington said these characteristics contribute to the "rural image" problem.

"In many peoples mind, 'rural,' too often means a lack of ability, culture, and other qualities rather than a viable alternative to an urbanized center," Worthington said.

"That connotation is most unfortunate. It is untrue. It must be countered with fact. Rural American is very heterogeneous," he said.

Because rural areas are comprised of small communities in low-density areas, there is a greater chance of isolation and makes it more difficult to provide high-quality services. This may be the reason for rural students to display lower achievement levels than their urban counterparts, Worthington said.

Costs of maintaining rural schools are also presenting an increasing problem for higher-quality education.

"Although rural areas are rapidly growing in population, their tax bases are not growing," he said.

Operation, resource, and transportation costs are increasing more rapidly for rural schools than are the same costs for urbanized institutions.

"On the plus side, rural America builds a richer and a more deeply rooted cultural heritage and more stability than the transient urban centers," he said.

"Rural Americans are characteristically more sensitive, more responsible, more caring and are among the finest people anywhere," Worthington said.

Crack down

Lou Brayton, employee of university facilities, digs tar out of cracks at Memorial Stadium Monday afternoon. The cracks between sections will be filled with a rubber material to accommodate shifting of the stadium due to expansion and contraction.

Staff/Chris Stewart

Three victims of gas bomb gain release from hospital

By The Collegian Staff

Three members of the Sigma Chi fraternity were treated and released Sunday from a local hospital for injuries they suffered after a military-type eye-irritant bomb was thrown into their house.

Kevin Burke, junior in mechanical engineering; Gary Pflumm, freshman in business administration pre-professional; and Steve Purdum, freshman in pre-veterinary medicine, were taken to The Saint Mary Hospital by ambulance for treatment of eye and respiratory injuries resulting from the bomb.

The three have returned to the house and "are all fine today," said house member John Rode, junior in finance. The smell and taste of the gas lingered in the house Monday, Rode said.

Damage from the incident was limited to a hole burned in the back hallway carpet where the canister landed and a screen broken as members escaped from the house, Rode said. Members were able to return to the house, 1224 Fremont St., about 10 p.m. Sunday, two hours after the bombing occurred, he said.

An investigation of the incident continues, but no suspects had been located Monday evening, said Riley County Police Department Lt. Steve French.

Officials charge man with sale of secrets

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — An American was charged with stealing secrets about the Minuteman missile and other U.S. weapons research and selling them to a Polish spy for relay to the Soviet Union, government officials disclosed Monday.

An army expert said the material described Defense Department efforts to enable the Minuteman to survive a nuclear first strike by the Soviets, according to an FBI affidavit filed in court.

James Durward Harper Jr. of Mountain View was charged with stealing secrets from May 1979 to the present for more than $250,000, according to the FBI.

Harper, arrested Saturday, was arraigned Monday and faces a capital crime espionage charge, which could bring a life term in prison if convicted.

The affidavit said the FBI obtained information from a high-ranking officer in the Polish intelligence service.

The FBI said Harper, 49, passed sensitive or classified U.S. information involving Minuteman and ballistic missile defense systems. The Minuteman missile is the backbone of the strategic missile force.

Utility official denies Wolf Creek charges

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A spokesman for the Kansas City Power and Light Co., on Monday labeled as "incredible" charges made last week that the Wolf Creek nuclear power plant will only have an operating life of 17 years — less than half the 35 years estimated by the utility.

In addition, other statements by the Kansas Natural Resource Council — including suggestions the plant will cost more than $3 billion when it finally starts operation in May 1985 — were challenged by Turner White, spokesman for KCP&L.

"The claims made by the Natural Resource Council and Nuclear Awareness Network are incredible," White said. "There's no basis at all in fact that Wolf Creek will operate only 17 years. For financial-consideration purposes, the plant is expected to operate 30 years and it could be more."

White also criticized the resource council's claim that rates will shoot up 50-100 percent when the plant starts operation.

"For KCP&L customers, rates are expected to go up 40 to 50 percent," White said. "There's not basis for saying 50 to 100 percent."

He also said construction costs for Wolf Creek are currently $2.45 billion and there is no reason to believe they will reach $3 billion, as the resource council charged.

However, Wilson Cadman, president of Kansas Gas & Electric, co-owner of Wolf Creek, projected the plant will cost slightly more than $2.5 billion in testimony before the Kansas Corporation Commission in May.

In addition, estimates of plant construction costs have jumped steadily in the decade since Wolf Creek was first proposed. In fact, the current estimate of $2.5 billion is more than triple the projected cost of $783 million, issued by the utilities in 1973, shortly after the plant was proposed.

Inside

Chilly, steady winds accompanied the K-State Sailing Club's first team regatta at Topeka's Lake Shawnee on Sunday. The newly-formed group sailed away victorious in only one event during the day-long event. See page 5.

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A new policy to help prevent Kansans with delinquent utility bills from losing natural gas or electric utility service during the winter was officially adopted by the Kansas Corporation Commission on Monday.

"In adopting this rule, the commission does not intend to relieve gas and electric customers of their obligation to pay, current or future charges for utility service," the KCC order said. "The commission is attempting to provide a reasonable method for reconnection of utility service and payment of both arrearages and current billings."

The winter shut-off policy automatically will be in effect each year from Nov. 15 through March 31. It applies both to customers who

Gas explosion demolishes grocery

By The Associated Press

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W.Va. — A natural gas explosion and fire destroyed a supermarket Monday, injuring at least 14 people, authorities said. A medical examiner said rescue workers told him to expect "between five and 15 bodies," but no deaths were immediately confirmed.

The drivers of at least two cars in the store's parking lot were missing, said state police Trooper A.W. Robinson. A third driver initially listed as missing was found Monday evening.

"There is no building left," said state police Trooper R.D. Estep. "It was a large gas line in the immediate area that evidently had a leak in it."

Bill Reed, district manager for Columbia Gas of West Virginia, said a major gas line about 40 miles from the grocery store was hit about noon by construction crews working on an Appalachian Corridor G highway project.

KCC policy may prevent utility cutoff

have been disconnected and those who are threatened with utility shutoffs because of unpaid bills.

Under the new policy, customers must make a "good faith" effort to retain their utility service. Specifically, a customer must:

— Notify the utility of his inability to fully pay his bill.

— Enter into a "level payment plan," in which he makes equal monthly installment payments on future bills. Customers must provide the utility with adequate information to develop the payment plan.

— Make an initial payment of 45 or 25 percent of his most recent monthly bill, whichever is greater. In addition, a customer must make a payment of one-twelfth of his delinquent account. The overdue amount will then be paid off in equal installments over 12 months.

Apply for federal, state and local funds which are available for utility bill assistance.

The commission said customers will not be eligible for the so-called cold weather rule if they default on a payment plan or if they illegally divert utility service.

Utilities are required under the commission plan to notify their customers of the winter shut-off policy before the cold weather period, must tell customers of all agencies offering aid for utility bills, and are to attempt to call customers by telephone before disconnecting them.

Finally, utilities are not permitted to shut off service to a customer if the temperature is expected to fall below 32 degrees during the next 24-hour period.

Based on information from Kansas utilities, the KCC staff estimates there are about 12,000 customers across the state without electric or natural gas service.

The winter shut-off policy is the product of public hearings conducted last May in which utilities and social agencies presented their views.

Last winter the KCC adopted an emergency rule governing utility disconnections because of concerns that rising natural gas prices could leave many Kansans without a heating source during the coldest months of the year.

The emergency rule was in effect until March 15, and about 3,900 customers obtained utility service under that policy, according to Tom Taylor, a KCC spokesman.

U.S. evacuates injured as battle breaks out

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Artillery and small-arms battles broke out Monday in Christian and Shiite Moslem slums south of Beirut, and U.S. Marines at the airport eased an alert and evacuated two wounded men from front-line bunkers.

Residents in Ain Rummaneh, a Christian area along the old "green line" which bisects Beirut into Christian and Moslem sectors, reported a Lebanese army tank fired its cannon on the neighboring Shiite sector of Chiyah.

Sniper fire and artillery barrages also were reported in the surrounding Shiite areas of Bourj el-Barajneh, Sfeir, Metahan, Sannin and Barid.

There were no immediate reports of casualties.

Smoke hung over Souk el-Gharb, the mountain-ridge town held by the Lebanese army above the Marine base, and the sound of heavy artillery and rockets could be heard from the airport below.

Associated Press photographer

Don Mell reported from the airport that mortar shells fell about a half-mile from Marine positions in the area between Lebanese army posts in Khalde and the Druse-controlled town of Shweifat.

Despite the shelling, Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said American officials eased the alert imposed on the Marine encampment Sunday, when unidentified gunmen killed a Marine and wounded five. The lull allowed rescue squads to evacuate two of the wounded

Marines, who had been stranded at the airport's southern edge.

In Washington, the Pentagon identified the Marine killed in the Sunday attack as Capt. Michael J. Ohler, 28, of Huntington, N.Y., on Long Island. The attacks Sunday brought combat casualties sustained by the Americans to six killed and 56 wounded since the Marines arrived 13 months ago as part of a multinational force requested by the Lebanese government. A seventh Marine was killed when he stepped on a mine in September 1982.

Campus

Former medium to talk at chapel

Ben Alexander, former spiritualist medium, will speak about spiritualism, including witchcraft, trance mediums, magic charms, astrology, clairvoyance and ouija boards, at 7 p.m. today at All Faiths Chapel. Alexander's talk is sponsored by Manhattan Christian College.

K-State's 1982-83 chapter of the Association of General Contractors has been chosen as that organization's outstanding chapter in the nation for the third consecutive year.

Merrill E. Blackman, faculty adviser and associate professor of architectural engineering and construction science, and 1982-83 chapter president Perry Hossfeld, Holton, will accept the award at the October meeting of the National AGC Education Committee in San Antonio, Texas. The award includes a $300 check for the chapter and a plaque for the Department of Architectural Engineering and Construction Science.

Professor to rural support project

Cornelia Butler Flora, professor of sociology, has been named to the Technical Committee of the Farming System Support Project based at the University of Florida.

The 15 members of the committee are named on a rotational basis. Six members are from universities and private firms and nine are from Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Flora was selected to represent rural sociology for a three-year term. She has published two articles in the "Rural Sociologist" about farming systems and is program leader of the K-State Farming Support Project through the office of International Agricultural Programs.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

SIGN-UP FOR THE OPEN MIKE NIGHT sponsored by UPC Coffeehouse continues from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. until Wednesday in the Union Activities Center.

KSU AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS are available in Anderson Hall 104 or in the SGS office and are due Oct. 26.

COORDINATOR OF FINANCES AND ELECTION COMMITTEE member and chair applications are due in the SGS office by 5 p.m. Friday.

KSSSLA SIGN LANGUAGE LUNCHEON is held at 11:30 a.m. every Tuesday in Union Stateroom 2.

BLOODMOBILE PRE-SIGN-UP is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 18-21 and Oct. 24 on the first floor of the Union.

MARKETING CLUB MEMBERS: Sign up now in the marketing department office for the field trip to Kansas City Nov. 3. For more information see the marketing club bulletin board.

PRE-PHYSICAL THERAPY CLUB: Sign up for Kansas City trip by Wednesday in the arts and sciences office, Eisenhower Hall.

TODAY

ASSN. OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union stateroom 3.

ADULT AND OCCUPATIONAL GRADUATE CLUB meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union 203. Julie Boomer of the Manhattan Vo-tech school will speak about "Counseling and Vocational Education."

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS GRADUATE STUDENT ASSOCIATION meets at 1 p.m. in Union 213.

AG COMMUNICATORS OF TOMORROW

meets at 6:30 p.m. in Kedzie 216.

NATURAL RESOURCE MANAGEMENT CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Call Hall 228. Don Wixom of the Sunset Zoo will speak.

BLOCK AND BRIDLE meets at 7 p.m. in Umberger Williams Auditorium. Pictures will be taken at 8 p.m.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 212 for a tea for new members. Executive council meets at 7 p.m.

FELLOWSHIP OF CHRISTIAN ATHLETES meets at 8:30 p.m. in Danforth Chapel.

LITTLE SISTERS OF THE STAR AND LAMP meet at 9:30 p.m. at the Pi Kappa Phi house. Officers meet at 9 p.m.

DAIRY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 7:30 p.m. in Call Hall 140.

LITTLE SISTERS OF THE GOLDEN ROSE meet at 7:30 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures. Be a few minutes early.

KSU AMATEUR RADIO CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Seaton 164K.

PRE-NURSING CLUB does not meet tonight as scheduled.

SPURS meet at 9 p.m. in the Union Big Eight room.

SHE DU'S meet at 9 p.m. at the Delta Upsilon house.

Officials nearly cause demise of student group

By The College Press Service

Pennsylvania administrators nearly gutted one of the largest and most effective student groups in the country because the administrators' lawyer apparently misrepresented the outcome of a court case.

Wayne Richardson, lawyer for the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education, told the system's board of governors that a New Jersey court's "recent decision" against the way another school collected its student fees meant Pennsylvania ought to change how it helps the huge Commonwealth Association of Students collect student fees.

The board of governors, acting on Richardson's advice, voted to stop collecting the $2-a-semester fee for CAS, effectively freezing the group for the moment.

But the court decision, in truth, never had happened.

The board of governors, which oversees the administration of all 14 Pennsylvania state colleges, "nearly sent CAS down the tubes based on this misinformation," John Ross, spokesman for CAS, said. CAS lobbies in the state capitol for student issues on behalf of about 70,000 students.

CAS, moreover, has been an unusually effective lobbying group. It mobilized enough student pressure last year, for example, to stop state schools from imposing a $75 mid-year tuition hike.

It also successfully opposed some of the education policies of Gov. Richard Thornburgh.

That may have been its biggest mistake. Evelyn Crawford, head of the board of governors committee that recommended stopping the collection of CAS fees, said she endorsed it because of CAS' "lobbying against our present governor last November."

The other reason she endorsed it was "because our attorney told us we were on very dangerous legal ground" by keeping the current funding system.

"(Richardson) premised his opinion upon a recent decision of the 3rd District Court of Appeals," says the system's official statement explaining the fee cut-off, "in which the court held that Rutgers University violated its students' First Amendment rights" by using a negative check-off student fee system to help fund the New Jersey Public Interest Research Group.

In the negative check-off system, used on many campuses, a part of a student's fees automatically goes to a certain group unless the student specifically denies the group money. Students can get refunds from the group by checking a box on their tuition bills or filling out refund request forms.

The 3rd District Court, however, did not decide anything about the constitutionality of the funding system. Last December, it merely directed a lower court to hear the case and consider the PIRG's educational and political activities.

The lower court will open the trial Dec. 5.

Richardson, however, led his clients — the board of governors — to believe the case was over and that CAS' negative check-off system was unconstitutional.

"I'm sure some of the board members weren't aware (that Richardson was expressing opinion, not fact)," Ross said.

"I believe, and still believe, what (Richardson) told us: that the circuit court ruled Rutgers was violating its students' First Amendment rights," Ed Buch, student board of governors member, said.

Richardson "is totally incorrect and premature" in drawing conclusions from a case that has yet gone to trial, Ed Lloyd, lawyer for the New Jersey PIRG in the negative check-off case, said.

In a phone interview, Richardson first reiterated his contention there has been a final ruling in the case, but ultimately said he presented the board with "my impressions of what (the appeals judges) ruled."

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity
Rep.—TOM SEELE
• Supplemental Retirement Annuities
• 5 Investment Options
• Free Transfer Privileges
• State Deferred Compensation
• Life Insurance
1335 Topoka Ave., Topeka, KS 613/276-7095

comprehensive health associates
• free pregnancy tests
• outpatient abortion services
• alternatives counseling referrals
• gynecology
• contraception
1-435 & Roe • Overland Park • 642-3100

Seeing is Believing Get yours at
OPTICAL
DISPENSARY
Drs. Price and Young
1119 Westloop Place
913/537-1331

SALE
Your choice of Baggy Blue Jeans for only: $22.99
Choose From:
Zena Baggies
Chic Baggies
Sasson Baggies
Lee London Riders
Come for yours today!
1207 Laramie St. Aggieville.
339-2011
Maver Charge • Las Vegas • You

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★
All Computer Science Majors need to make appointments soon for pre-enrollment advising.
★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

BUSHWACKER'S
• THE FUNDRINKERY
50¢ OFF any lunch at the
BUSHWACKER EATERY
Try our Smuggler Bar Burger 75¢
Open 11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m., 5 p.m.-1 a.m.
531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

Bloodmobile
Oct. 25-28
Pre-signup table in the Union Oct. 18-21 & 24 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

MCCAIN AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD
the piano King of Kansas City Swing...
Jay "hootie" McShann
a Mid-America Arts Alliance program
Friday, October, 28, 8 p.m.
Tickets Available at McCain Box Office, noon-5 p.m. M-F, 532-6428
This program is made possible by support from the Kansas Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts, through participation in Mid-America Arts Alliance, a regional arts organization.

IF YOU CROSS THE BORDER... DO IT LEGALLY WITH AN INSTANT PASSPORT PHOTO FROM .....
kinko's copies
1126 Laramie—Aggieville
537-7340

The DOWN UNDER
Male Burlesque
Tuesday 7:30-9:30
Ladies Only
Downunder Club
515 Richards (Under Wildcat Lanes)
For reservations call 539-0230

Brother's
AGGIEVILLE
TODAY 1 p.m. to Midnight
LADIES GET 50¢ STEINS
Wednesday and Thursday
THE CLOCKS —PLUS—
Wednesday
LADIES NIGHT
Thursday
DRINK 'N DROWN
Friday and Saturday
TGIF and TGIS with THE SHAPES
1120 Moro 539-9064

Looking to get involved?
Applications are being accepted for Coordinator of Finances and Elections Committee Members.
Applications due Friday, Oct. 21 at 5:00 p.m. at SGA Office.
For more info call 532-6541.
SGA

AT PIÑATA:
PENNY SALE!
1¢ Sale on our 6 Featured "Special" Specials
(Buy 1 and get 2nd Special for 1¢—equal or less value)
Changed Daily Mon.-Fri. 11-2
October 17-21
Piñata.
Open Daily at 11:00 a.m. 539-3166
Blumont and North Manhattan

Kansas State COLLEGIAN
THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 030) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.
OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.
SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.
SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.
THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.
Editor.....Paul Hanson
Managing Editor.....Sandy Lang
Photography Editor.....Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager.....John McGrath

TUESDAY IS BURGER DAY ALL DAY
TREAT THE DORM
Go for it
BRING A GANG—
37¢ each
Regular Hamburgers
Cheese Xtr
SAVE MONEY—LIKE OLD TIMES--
Frosty Mug of Beer—
FAST DRIVE-THRU
BRANDING IRON—421-N-3RD

Briefly

By the Associated Press

Niven memorial fund established

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — It was a scene reminiscent of the glittering parties of the film "To Catch a Thief" — the rich and famous were there, and so was Cary Grant.

But it was only fitting. The gala benefit, called "An Evening in Monaco," was in honor of Princess Caroline, daughter of the late Grace Kelly, Grant's co-star in the 1955 movie.

Among those at the benefit were Robert Wagner and President Reagan's daughter, Patti Davis.

Wagner, accompanied by actress Jill St. John, starred in the television series based on "To Catch a Thief."

Proceeds were to be shared by the International Foundation for Learning Disabilities, the newly created David Niven Scholarship Fund and the Princess Grace Foundation.

Wagner spoke for the Nivens in accepting "the honor" at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. A dollar amount was not disclosed.

Betty Ford visits with prisoners

FRONTERA, Calif. — Former first lady Betty Ford ventured from her home in the resort of Rancho Mirage to spend the day in prison.

"I felt a very strong kinship" with the prisoners at the California Institute for Women, Mrs. Ford said.

The inmates welcomed the former first lady at graduation ceremonies Sunday for a popular course in stock market investments.

"I think I can relate to women in trouble because I've been in trouble myself," said Mrs. Ford, referring to her fights against breast cancer, alcohol and drug addiction.

She recounted "the shame and guilt" of alcoholism and told the inmates, "I hope today is the first day of a wonderful second chance for you."

The stock market course was taught by Ira Distenfield, a Beverly Hills broker. He conceived it 14 years ago and has spent $50,000 offering it at prisons nationwide, hoping to inspire convicts to work within the system.

Diane Adams, 41, an Alameda County real estate agent before she was convicted on "an organized-crime-related thing," said many of the women in the class "are here for what you might call 'creative financing, so they already had the interest.'"

Submarine to honor dead senator

GROTON, Conn. — The late Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who was a fervent supporter of the Trident submarine program, has joined the Americans "of great character" whose names are painted on the hulls of Navy vessels.

The late senator from Washington was honored when the nation's fifth Trident, the USS Henry M. Jackson, was launched under clear blue skies Saturday at the Electric Boat shipyard.

Outside the shipyard, hundreds of anti-nuclear protesters gathered as they have at past launches to condemn the Trident. Authorities said 48 people were arrested for crossing police lines.

Fourteen Ku Klux Klan members demonstrated nearby in support of the submarine program.

President Reagan, in a letter read at the ceremonies, said the submarine was joining others named "for men of great character: George Washington, Woodrow Wilson, Thomas Edison, Daniel Webster. Henry Jackson belongs among these Americans. This living vessel is a fitting monument to him."

The Trident launched Saturday was the first named after a person. The previous Tridents have been named after states.

Jackson, a Democrat, died Sept. 1 at age 70. Eight days later, Reagan ordered the name on the Trident be changed from the USS Rhode Island to the USS Henry M. Jackson.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Fortified wine

5 Mauna —

8 Chalices

12 Assam silkworm

13 Stop

14 Singer

15 Al Capone's nickname

17 Fetid

18 German valley

19 Before

20 "Blue — Shoes"

21 Marsh

22 Word before luck or roast

23 Chef's pride

26 Egotistical

30 Inland sea

31 D.C. bigwig

32 Medicinal plant

33 Projectile

35 Stare angrily

36 Mr. Culbertson

37 Reverence

38 Abrade

41 Period

42 Distant

45 Broad-topped hill

46 Song hit of 1926

48 "The Red"

49 Service org.

50 Prefix for bus or present

51 Proceed with difficulty

52 Son of Odin

53 Hammer head

DOWN

1 Nuisance

2 Killer whale

3 Coin of Iran

4 Road coat

5 Absorb knowledge

6 Single occasion

7 Fruit drink

8 Sergeant's command

9 Jetty

10 Barren

11 Take the part of

16 Nourish

20 The sun

21 Halloween disguise

22 Enclosure

23 Wanamaker or Jaffe

24 Mr. Onassis

25 — Vegas

26 Understand

27 Labor org.

28 Farm breeder

29 Daughter of Loki

31 Cunning

34 — de France

35 Vacillate

37 Garden bower

38 Ball of thread

39 Lively dance

40 Surrounded by

41 Comfortable

42 Actor's goal

43 Teenage problem

44 Check

46 Except

47 Dandy

Avg. solution time: 26 minutes.

SEN AWA FARO
CRAB GIG OLOR
AIDA ETA RICE
REACH STOW
KID ELANDS
STEWART AREAL
LOLA YOU DALI
ALARY TRAMPED
GANDER IRA
LAUD TROTS
AGIORUB CRAW
NATO ANA HERA
TREK LEM LOB

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

10-18

CRYPTOQUIP 10-18

UWSCT IPCNU XIP POTIXI'D JQNOH
OCDXNSQXWN: J XSHWN XSXWN.

Yesterday's Cryptogram — STOIC PENCIL MAKER'S WORK WAS ALMOST POINTLESS.
Today's Cryptogram clue: I equals H.

SPECIAL PROGRAMMING

97fm

Listen To JOHN COUGAR in Concert
Sunday, October 23rd 8:30-10:00pm

Catch A Profile Of YES
Sunday, October 30th 8:00-10:00pm

WE PLAY YOUR MUSIC!

OPEN CEREMONIES
PARADE COORDINATOR

Is needed for K-State
Open House 1983-84

Applications are Available
in Anderson 104
Oct 21st is Deadline
For Applications

BUSHWACKER'S
• THE • FUNDRIKERY

Tuesday
Bushwacker Blaster
nite—$1.25 all nite

Happy Hour: 4-9
2 Fers on Hiballs
75¢ draws $2 blended drinks

Drink of the Week:
Tiger's Tail

Colossal Hot Dog
& a Stein for $2
during all World Series games

A reciprocating Club
Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321
531 N. Manhattan

MRK'S

Welcome To...

2 FER
TUES!

• 2 Fer
Draws &
Pitchers
Every
Tuesday
7-10:00

Wednesday Is
Ladies Nite!

You'll be seeing some new faces at the Bookstore.
Maybe even your own.

Choose your Halloween personality from our wide selection of famous, infamous and bestial masks. We also offer our wigs, artificial features, MAKE-UP (water, grease, pancake, rouge) in every imaginable color—you name it! Clown white, lipstick, and nail polish (black/green/red/glitter) we've got it!

10% discount on all merchandise (except special orders and sale merchandise for anyone in costume Oct. 28th).

k-state union
bookstore

0302

ENGINEERS

November 1

SUNDSTRAND ON CAMPUS

Sundstrand, a leading high technology company, is involved in the design, manufacture and sale of advanced electrical and mechanical aerospace systems for commercial and military jet aircraft as well as missiles and space applications.

Sundstrand is a Fortune 500 company headquartered in Rockford, Illinois with annual sales over $960 million. We have manufacturing and service locations worldwide and use state-of-the-art technologies to design, manufacture and deliver our products.

We offer a competitive salary, a solid benefit package including health and dental, an educational reimbursement program and a liberal holiday schedule.

Sundstrand Corporation
4747 Harrison Avenue
P.O. Box 7002
Rockford, IL 61125

An Equal Opportunity Employer

BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES/FISHERIES...

You're Needed
All Over the World.

Ask Peace Corps Fishery volunteers why the rural farmers of Nepal, Zaire and Samoa need them to help introduce fish pond management, and harvesting techniques. They'll tell you they are helping to increase the world's food supply. And they'll tell you they are helping improve the diets and futures of people in developing nations. Ask them why Peace Corps is the toughest job you'll ever love.

Sign up for interview and pick up an application now:
PLACEMENT OFFICE
Wed. & Thurs., Oct. 26 & 27

PEACE CORPS

Breaking up a monopoly

Recently, the government stepped in and broke up a monopoly for the good of the citizens. Now the people are fighting to keep their local telephone rates from skyrocketing as a result of that breakup. The monopoly breakup is likely to prove more valuable to businesses rather than the average citizens who use telephones.

The Kansas Corporation Commission, as a member of the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners, has asked Congress to act to keep the local telephone rates from exceeding the budgets of the average consumer. Proposed legislation would prevent the doubling of local phone rates due to the breakup of AT&T by the Federal Corporation Commission.

According to the FCC, the breakup was done to give other firms a share of the long-distance profits and to lower the long-distance rates through increased competition in the field. Telephone companies, however, seem intent on certain profit margins. They are likely to simply make up the lost revenue by squeezing more money out of local phone rates and their average consumers, the ones who make comparatively few long-distance calls.

Businesses are the ones who will profit most from the breakup. The common consumer is the one who is being hurt.

Paul Hanson, Editor

According to the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners, the poor, unemployed, young and customers in high cost areas, including many rural areas of Kansas soon may not be able to afford regular phone service.

We doubt the need for Southwestern Bell's rate hike request. Sure, the Bell system lost a big chunk of its income when it lost exclusive long-distance service. But the proposed $2-a-month charge for residential customers for long-distance access shows that the phone company is, in reality, still a monopoly.

Many businesses get their livelihood from using long-distance lines. They profit from calling their clients.

The average customer uses the service only a fraction as much as businesses, and then primarily for leisure or necessity. He will not be helped by the reduced long-distance rates as much as he will be hurt by the increased local rates.

At the base, then, we must decide whether to treat telephones as a service or a utility.

The breakup is complete; the damage is done. The least the various regulatory agencies can do is to fight to prevent further rate increases which local companies will doubtlessly continue to push.

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

Seeing through a pane of glass

The subject today is one that is close to my heart, or should I say, face. The pair of which I am about to speak is one many fellow four-eyes can probably relate to — some in total disgust. I'm talking about the most uncomfortable of all apparel next to girdles and jock straps. Yes, folks, today's subject is eyeglasses. Boo, hiss, puke.

Now I know what you're thinking. By looking at my picture accompanying this column you can tell I don't have glasses on. Very good, you get an A for the day. However, looks can be deceiving. Thanks to modern technology and a student loan, I now have contact lenses. I am forever indebted to the inventor of these marvelous little pieces of plastic that rest on my eyes.

Before contact lenses were around I was in total misery. I absolutely deplored wearing glasses. The only thing worse than wearing glasses is not being able to see two feet in front of me, which is why I choose the glasses — I am not totally dumb. (Please don't argue the point.)

I have had contacts for about four years. So I have been relieved of the burden of eyeglasses, except for the last few weeks. Due to some trouble with my eyes, I have had my contacts in less, and my glasses on more. During this time, I have been frequently reminded of why I bought contacts.

First, I'd like to distinguish between light eyeglasses and mega-eyeglasses. Light eyeglass wearers can have decent frames of wire or light plastic. These come in fashionable styles and are less uncomfortable.

Mega-eyeglass wearers like yours truly have lenses so thick you could mistake them for a small dinner plate. These kind of lenses tend to be accompanied by ugly black frames or at least plastic frames and are usually worn by the class nerd. Actually, it's not quite that bad. There have been great strides for those of us who wear thick lenses. It helps, but not enough.

Thick glasses are heavy and plastic frames make them even heavier. How would you like to wear a window on your nose? The nose,

DARCY WARD
Collegian Columnist

now there is an interesting part of your anatomy. If our creator had intended us to wear glasses he sure made the nose wrong. Glasses have a tendency to slide down the nose, only to rest on the cheeks. Cheeks were not made to wear glasses, either.

Being inventive, spec wearers have developed several distinct techniques in order to return the glasses to its original position. Some take the direct approach and simply place the index finger on the nose piece and push the glasses back to where it belong. Others take a more indirect approach. They gently grasp the lens with their finger and thumb and ease the lens off the cheek and back on the nose. This approach seems a bit more sophisticated than poking yourself between the eyes. Others remove their glasses, rub their eyes and then replace their glasses. This may fool non-wearers, but experts know what they're doing.

Dirt is also a big annoyance for those who wear glasses. Glasses seem to attract dirt, which tends to distract the wearer. This dirt gets wiped off by several different methods. Paper towels and Windex, napkins, shirttails and the reliable sleeve are all used. Anything wearable by either the eyeglass wearer or a friend is vulnerable for use to clean smeared, dirty, grungy glasses, so beware.

The ultimate annoyance connected with wearing glasses is steam. There is nothing like entering a warm building after being out in the cold, unless you wear glasses.

Imagine stepping into a nice warm building only to be blinded by steam. Kind of takes all the joy out of warmth. I have been told by fellow four-eyes that if you walk into the building backwards, your glasses will remain fogless. Personally, I'd feel a little funny about entering a building backwards; I like to see where I'm going, not where I've been.

If that's not enough, try opening the dishwasher or draining potatoes or pasta while wearing specs. The minute the lid comes off your eyesight goes — fogged again.

Glasses should also come with a built-in pair of rain wipers. Rain collects on eyeglasses a lot like it collects on windshields. If you don't have wipers, you can see out of neither.

Eyeglass frame manufacturers are very concerned with their image. The industry now has designer frames. Personally, I'm waiting for Polo frames. I can't wait to have a Polo emblem on the lower right hand corner of my lens. Like, it would be totally awesome.

To be perfectly honest, I suppose the real reason most people hate to wear glasses is vanity. As children, we made fun of youngsters who wore glasses, calling them four-eyes and other names. Until it happened to us. Then our friends told us our glasses made us look intelligent or more mature. Lies, all lies. Glasses make you look like someone who is wearing small windows to the world. They do very little for most people's appearance and less for their comfort.

As in most cases, there are exceptions to the rules; some people don't look bad in glasses. Unfortunately, I'm not one of them. Specs may, however, improve your outlook on life; you'd be surprised what you miss if you can't see.

Like everything else in life, wearing glasses has its pros and cons. For me, the cons far outweigh the pros. In fact, my glasses alone probably outweigh the pros. So, I'll stick with my contacts and keep my true identity as Darcy-four-eyes out of sight.

Letters

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be signed by the author and should not exceed 300 words. The author's major, classification or other identification and a telephone number where the author can be reached during business hours must be included. All letters submitted become the property of the Kansas State Collegian.

Parking tickets are seldom wrong

Editor,

Miss Dalke sure has a way of putting her foot in her mouth. She should be careful; James Watt might get jealous.

I would like to say that K-State does not employ "meter maids," but ticket writers. These individuals make sure that people who park on campus obey the rules. I myself drive to class so I know how hard it is to find a parking spot. This problem is further complicated by people parking in the wrong place or parking without permits.

I have become angry trying to find a spot to park, but eventually I do find one. Despite the fact that this year is worse than previous years, the problem has existed for quite a while and every year someone writes an article about it. Maybe it's to take up space, I don't know. I'm sure that everyone is familiar with the problem and is trying to fix it. We are, however, in the real world here and not in a fantasy land where everything works out like we think it should.

I am positive that the K-State Police Department is not San Quentin. At least it wasn't yesterday (and we didn't change staff)! I must admit that the dispatchers and officers

Good writing by Edee

Editor,

While some of the Collegian's editorial columnists leave something to be desired, i.e. — Brian LaRue, Joel Climenhaga and Darcy Ward — I feel that Edee Dalke does an exceptionally good job of keeping the K-State student informed about current issues. Edee's columns range from "Watching the Smith Circus" to "The Neighborhood Bar," all of which are written in a clear and informing manner. By doing this, I feel that she is a credit to the editorial page and the Collegian.

So Brian, set down that glass of iced tea; Darcy, stop looking for a parking place; Joel, put the 1949 road atlas aside, and take a look at some good reporting — Edee Dalke.

David Weber
Junior in computer science and one other

Halting Salvadoran refugees

LOS ANGELES — As one reason for supporting his hard line on El Salvador, President Reagan has offered the prospect of refugees flooding this country to escape communism.

But if pre-empting uncontrolled immigration is his purpose, then the president's policies are a failure. Central Americans have fled to the United States by the hundreds of thousands, and a large number — possibly as many as 500,000 — have come from El Salvador, a nation of only 4.7 million.

Here, in Reagan's former hometown, some 200,000 Salvadorans are said to live, with 50,000 squeezed into Los Angeles' downtown Pico-Union district.

While on Pico Boulevard commercial symbols of El Salvador's growing U.S. presence stare openly at passers-by, the sidestreets overflow with families who hike in Pico-Union's dilapidated apartment buildings, often in one room. As mostly undocumented aliens, the occupants are hiding from U.S. authorities.

"The Salvadorans are a frightened refugee population," said Aurora Martinez, a retired nurse who coordinates health care efforts for Pico-Union's Oscar R. Romero clinic. "They exhibit all the worst symptoms of a stressed, war-torn population."

Origins only exacerbate the bleak employment picture. Says social worker Cynthia Anderson, referring to proposed federal restrictions on employers who hire undocumented workers: "With the passage of the Simpson-Mazzoli bill in the House, no employer wants to hire an illegal alien and get fined."

Few Salvadoran refugees, however, seem prepared to return home just yet, or even if and when Central America's strife subsides. But, they say, serious peace negotiations to end El Salvador's civil war might encourage more potential refugees to stay home.

MAXWELL GLEN
& CODY SHEARER

Donald Woods, a South African journalist once imprisoned for his anti-apartheid activities, has formed an organization to inform foreign journalists and government officials about developments in his home country. The new group, Lincoln Trust, will have its U.S. office in Washington.

John Tower's decision to step down from his Senate seat after nearly four terms has irked White House officials. Tower, a Texas Republican and chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, had already received substantial political assistance from the administration in anticipation of a tough re-election fight next year. As an expression of its interest in Tower's stand on immigration issues, the White House is said to have established its latest task force, the Southwest Border States Working Group, to deal with border problems.

Philippine opposition leader Benigno Aquino's brutal assassination at the Manila airport should have fueled the imagination of anyone who remembers the Nicaraguan revolution.

In 1978, a similarly charismatic opposition figure, La Prensa editor Pedro Chamorro, was gunned down on the streets of Managua. As is likely in Aquino's death, Chamorro's killers were never identified but were nonetheless linked to the nation's long-ruling dictator (in Nicaragua's case, Anastasio Somoza Debayle).

It's generally concluded, too, that Chamorro's death served most to unite all of Nicaragua against Somoza's rule. Time will tell whether history repeats itself in the land of Ferdinand Marcos.

British disarmament activists are apparently finding rock bands reluctant to play benefit concerts. One reason seems to be that some of the more outspoken groups — The Clash, The Specials and Peter Gabriel, for example — have recently disbanded. Another reason, however, is more telling about Britain: At two recent "rock the bomb" festivals, divisions among concertgoers led to mud-hurling and minor skirmishes.

"Tell us about it Reuven" — Among those sought lately by the New York Times for comments on the case of jilted television anchorwoman Christine Craft was NBC News President Reuven Frank.

"You're dealing with local management, many of whom came out of the sales department," Frank said. "To them, news is a product. They are trying to satisfy the customer."

Less than one month before the Craft controversy, veteran television journalist Roger Mudd heard from NBC News that his younger co-anchor on the network's nightly news show, Tom Brokaw, would become sole anchorman after Labor Day.

College Press Service

"WOULD ANYBODY REALLY OBJECT TO HAVING A MIDTERM EXAM NEXT WEEK SOMETIME?"

Competition: Race with the wind

By KELLY ROBINSON
Staff Writer

The wind was not exactly blowing in K-State's direction Sunday as the K-State Sailing Club lost to the sailors from "down the river" in the University of Kansas — K-State Regatta at Lake Shawnee in Topeka.

"We lost the overall regatta," said Brian Herbel, senior in marketing and founding member of the club. "But we did very respectable for our first time out in competition."

Sunday's regatta was the first team competition for the newly-formed club. The first outing was a non-competitive sail and picnic at the Stockdale area of Tuttle Creek Sept. 11. Since then, the club has been practicing nearly every weekend.

According to Herbel, the weather Sunday was "a bit chilly" but a good steady wind helped to create ideal conditions for sailing.

Skipper Jeff Oaklief, junior in pre-design professions, and Ron House, senior in architectural engineering, sailed away with K-State's only victory of the day in the 16-foot, two-person "Flying Junior" boat competition.

"It was great," Oaklief said. "I loved it."

Oaklief said his strategy for the race consisted of simply being alert to the wind shifts and "zig-zagging" the boat into the winds in order to use them advantageously.

A sailing regatta is a series of races around a triangular course.

"Basically, what we had was two classes of boats," explained Herbel, "the single-person boats and the two-person boats. And we have four races with each type of boat."

Both universities entered two teams in the competition, Herbel said.

Trophies were awarded to the winners of each division and an overall team trophy was presented to KU at the end of the day for accumulating the least number of points. The final score was 33.5 to 44.5.

Herbel said that since KU was providing all the sailing craft for the regatta, boats were switched between every race "in case some were faster than others."

"It took us awhile to adjust to their boats," Herbel said, adding that once KU gained a sizable lead, it seemed to take a little bit of wind out of the Wildcat sails.

But members of the K-State club are far from ready to drop the anchor. Janna Lee, senior in marketing, another club founder, is optimistic about the day's results.

"I was very happy, just that we were there," Lee said. "We got our club started and in its first race. We're feeling pretty good about it."

Next year the regatta rivalry will be sponsored by K-State's sailing club and will be at Tuttle Creek Reservoir, Herbel said.

But for now, the club is preparing for its next excursion Oct. 28 to the Frostbite Regatta at Lake Fort Gibson, Okla.

The competition will be the last event for the club until the sailing season resumes next spring.

Sandy MacClymont, junior in elementary education, leans out while racing her boat during one of four races between the K-State Sailing Club and the University of Kansas Sailing Club.

A sailor walks down the dock to prepare for an upcoming race.

Three "Phantom" class boats head toward a mark during the fourth race at Lake Shawnee in Topeka Sunday. The University of Kansas loaned boats to the K-State club to enable the schools to compete against each other.

Staff photos by Andy Nelson

Tuesday is
Ladies Nite
1 free drink
&
$1 bar drinks
(all night, ladies!)

at
COWBOY PALACE
Where it don't make
no difference
209 Peymtz 539-9828
4:00pm to 3:00am

HALLOWEEN PARTY
COMING UP?
Have an original costume
w/basics
from Footlights
We have leotards and tights
to create your perfect
Halloween outfit!

FOOTLIGHTS
EXERCISE & DANCE WEAR
10:30-5:30 MON.-SAT.
THUR. 'TIL 8:00
1110 LARAMIE 537-3106

8:00
TONIGHT
COLLEGE
REPUBLICANS
Speaker Vern Chestbro
(Executive director of the Republican Party)
Union 206
—Wear buttons—

FREE FISH
$10.00 Value
with Purchase of Any
Complete Aquarium Set Up
20 gal or Larger
During The Entire Month of October

FOUNTAIN FALLS
TROPICAL FISH SHOP
2007 Ft. Riley Blvd.
539-1676
M S. 10:30-6:00
Sun 12:00-5:00

DARK HORSE

TAVERN
TUESDAY
2 fers
7-10
619 N. Manhattan

GET FRAMED!
Have your picture taken
for Royal Purple

Today:
Ford Hall 8:30-5:30

Tomorrow:
Ford Hall 8:30-5:30

Off-Campus people
can still get pictures taken
Oct. 10-28
Union 209 539-5229
Bring your stamped fee card.

Bowling Specials

Every Monday thru Thursday
8:15 am. - 5:45 pm.
60¢ per game

Every Friday
Purple Pin Bowling
8:15 am. - 5 pm. and 11 pm. - 1 am.
Get a strike with a colored headpin and win a free game!

Every Saturday
Rent-a-Lane 9 am. - Noon $2.25 per hour per lane (approximately 38¢ per game)

k-state union
recreation area 0202

MVP award given to Dempsey for World Series

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — The Baltimore Orioles call it the "Baseball Soliloquy in Pantomime."

It used to be Rick Dempsey's act. He especially liked to perform it during rain delays at Fenway Park in Boston, where he did it twice. He'd stuff towels under his shirt, turn his hat backward and slide like a maniac through the standing water on the tarp covering the field.

It was a hard act to follow, but now Dempsey has a new one. And it's even harder to follow.

With a .385 average and five extra-base hits, including a home run in the decisive Game Five Sunday night, Dempsey was named Most Valuable Player in the Orioles World Series triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The 5-0 victory Sunday capped a four-game sweep of the Phillies after losing Game One and also culminated the most dramatic offensive outburst of Dempsey's career.

"I've never had a day where I won a World Series and got some MVP votes at the same time," Dempsey said.

Besides his homer, Dempsey also doubled and scored a run in Game Five, giving him four doubles, two RBI and three runs scored for the Series. Eddie Murray, breaking out of a 2-for-16 Series slump, blasted two towering home runs, and Scott McGregor, the crafty left-hander, tossed a five-hit shutout.

"It seemed like the little guys were the ones who did it in this Series, not the big guys," said Dempsey, who had hit a measly .231 during the season with only four homers and 32 RBI.

Tyrone Jackson, Eddie Elder and Alex Williams fight for a rebound underneath the basket during the first day of men's basketball practice.

The team is practicing in preparation for the season opener at the Horizon Classic in Rosemont, Ill., Nov. 25 and 26.

Basketball tryouts this week

By The Collegian Staff

K-State men's junior varsity basketball team will conduct tryouts for students Wednesday and Thursday, Hank Harris, coach of the junior varsity squad, said.

"Tryout is open to all students interested in playing JV basketball," he said.

"With a strong intramural program here, I believe there some good athletes out there that have not come out for some particular reason.

"I am interested in getting the better athletes, for a top quality program," he said.

Harris also said those individuals who play exceptionally well could contribute to the varsity squad.

"The junior varsity program is definitely part of the varsity team and they can add a lot to the varsity squad. Everyone has an equal chance to make the team," he said.

Currently, the basketball team has two individuals on the varsity squad who were originally junior varsity players and made the varsity team as walk-on players.

"Hal Bentley and Mark Bohm are both in their third year and both are receiving partial scholarships," Harris said.

Bentley had originally been offered a scholarship in football but he gave up the scholarship to play basketball for K-State.

Bentley and Bohm averaged 16 and 10 points a game, respectively, last season for the Wildcats.

Spikers win first place in weekend tourney, host Fort Hays tonight

By GARY VAN CLEAVE
Collegian Reporter

"We won. We won!"

Not only were folks in Baltimore saying this after the last World Series game Sunday, but K-State's volleyball team was saying those exact words in Tulsa, Okla., last weekend after winning its first regular-season tournament in four years.

K-State won the Third Annual Oral Roberts University Invitational Classic, and to say the least K-State volleyball Coach Scott Nelson was very happy with the results.

"This should boost our confidence and our ability to play and win," Nelson said. "We struggled the first day with the same kind of situations we've struggled with most of the year. We have committed unforced errors at critical points and they have cost us."

"Saturday, we executed the game plan and kept errors to a minimum. If something broke down, it didn't chain react to more errors," Nelson said. "We made the proper adjustments on our blocks to control the opposition's hitters. We made the defensive plays, then transitioned to put the balls away for points."

The Wildcats were entered with nine other teams, including the University of Oklahoma and the University of Kansas from the Big Eight Conference. Friday, K-State played in pool play and opened by defeating OU 15-12 and 15-13. The win against the Sooners avenged an earlier conference loss to the Big Red.

K-State then lost back-to-back matches to Texas Lutheran and Texas Tech. Against Lutheran, the Wildcats fell 19-17, 14-16, 15-7, and dropped to Tech 17-15, 15-6.

Saturday, the Wildcats ended the pool play by downing Tulsa 16-14, 15-4, as K-State finished third out of the five pool teams.

In the quarterfinals, the Wildcats then won 15-11, 15-11, and defeated Texas Tech in the semifinals 15-11, 15-12. That set up a championship match between the Wildcats and Texas Lutheran, with K-State quickly taking a 15-4, 15-8 decision. The championship match took only 37 minutes to play.

"We had excellent leadership and play from our senior co-captains (Cathy Sittenauer and Sharon Ridley)," Nelson said. "Renee Whitney made some great set selections and mixed up our offense very well. Time and again, she set up our offense."

"Her (Whitney) blocking for points and digging and Sharon's hitting were the major factors in our win in the finals," Nelson said. "We also had good team help from our substitutes."

Nelson also said Ridley, whose hitting percentage in the tourney was .312, was this week's Player of the Week. She also had 55 digs, 61 kills and nine service aces — all team highs for the tournament.

In the semifinal and final matches, Ridley turned in 23 kills and 18 digs, and had a hitting percentage of .500.

Whitney also came up with 20 digs against Texas Tech and Texas Lutheran.

The Wildcats' record is now 15-10, and they will hit the courts again at 7 tonight at Ahearn Field House in a match with Fort Hays State.

Ex-Royal pleads guilty to cocaine possession

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY — Vida Blue, a former Cy Young Award-winning pitcher, pleaded guilty to a drug charge Monday and spent more than two hours before a federal grand jury which is conducting a cocaine investigation.

Last week three of Blue's former Kansas City Royals teammates pleaded guilty to drug charges stemming from the cocaine investigation.

Blue, 34, who won the American League Cy Young award in 1971, pleaded guilty to a federal misdemeanor charge of possessing three grams of cocaine.

The grand jury went into session a short time later, and Blue entered the grand jury room early Monday afternoon. The grand jury recessed for the day without returning indictments after a brief recess late in the afternoon.

Willie Wilson, the 1982 American League batting champion, first baseman Willie Aikens and outfielder Jerry Martin pleaded guilty last week to charges of attempting to possess cocaine.

All four have been released on $5,000 unsecured bonds and face maximum penalties of one year in prison and $5,000 fines. Sentencing for all four is scheduled for Nov. 17.

ISU runners stifle cross country teams

By TIM FILBY
Collegian Reporter

K-State's cross country teams ran into trouble Saturday at the Cyclone Invitational hosted by Iowa State University at Ames.

After dominating several earlier meets this season, the teams ran into stiff competition at the ISU meet as the men's squad placed fourth out of eight teams and the women finished a distant second behind the host Cyclone squad.

"We had the worst afternoon," Coach Steve Miller said. "Things could not have gone worse for us."

Iowa State dominated the men's competition as it placed three runners among the top five finishers and finished with 34 points. Oral Roberts University came in second behind ISU with 59 points and the University of Nebraska placed third with 63 tallies. K-State finished fourth with 84 points and Northern Iowa University rounded out the top five with 130 points.

In the individual competition, Iowa State runner Yobes Ondieki took honors as he ran the 10,000-meter course in a time of 29 minutes and 47 seconds finishing ahead of teammate Joseph Kipsang, who finished in 30:40.

For K-State, Alfredo Rosas was the top finisher as he placed seventh with a time of 31:23 while teammate Bryan Carroll finished eighth in 31:24. Bob Leetch edged out teammate Mike Rogers for 22nd place as he finished in 32:14.3 compared to Rogers' 32:14.7 finish. Ron Stahl placed 24th in 32:17. Steve Smith and Paul Taylor rounded out K-State finishers, placing 32nd and 44th, respectively.

Miller said a problem with the team was it tried to run in two groups and the groups did not get into a good position.

He said another problem was the team seemed to let down when it fell behind.

"I kind of hate to say this, but at about five miles, when it became apparent that the Iowa State guys were going to win, the kids kind of had a big letdown," Miller said. "We just lost our concentration. It was really discouraging."

Miller said he hopes the team can bounce back from its disappointing performance.

"If we have character and if we are the kind of team I think we can be, we'll be okay," he said.

Iowa State's women squad — ranked third in the nation — dominated the field the way K-State's women often have done in earlier meets. The Cyclones finished with 27 points, far ahead of K-State's 56 tallies, and ISU runner Bonnie Sons won individual honors with a time of 17:26, finishing ahead of teammate Francine Sandoval.

"Frankly, Iowa State really outclassed us," Miller said.

Betsy Silzer led K-State runners as she finished third in a time of 17:31. Renee Williams was the next K-State finisher as she placed 11th with a time of 17:54. Barb Ludovise finished 13th and Jacque Struckhoff finished 14th with respective times of 18:07 and 18:12. Nancy Hoffman placed 15th in 18:17. Lauretta Miller and Anne Stadler rounded out K-State finishers placing 16th and 17th, respectively.

Miller said poor positioning was a problem for the women as well.

"The problem was our pack was in the wrong place," he said. "Right ahead of us was a pack of Iowa State runners and they finished seventh, eighth, ninth, 10th and 12th."

K-State's next competition is the Big Eight Conference meet in Lawrence on Oct. 29.

"Both teams are really looking forward to the Big Eight meet," Miller said. "I'm the eternal optimist. I think we'll bounce back."

Seurer, Johnson team up for KU's big plays

By KEVIN DALE
Staff Writer

Frank Seurer drops back to pass. He scans the field, spots senior split end Bob Johnson who has beaten his man, Seurer lets go a rifle pass, Johnson reaches out, grabs the ball, and brings it safely to his chest — a first down.

This combination had connected 19 times for 399 yards before Saturday's intrastate football rivalry between the University of Kansas and K-State. Before the afternoon was over, the duo had broken the Wildcats' back with one big play after another.

Johnson hauled down 10 Seurer passes for 208 yards — both KU single-game records.

"I really don't care about the records," Johnson said. "I just wanted to win this game. Without the win, the records would mean nothing."

Seurer had 20 completions in 35 attempts for 321 yards and two touchdowns in less-than-perfect passing conditions. At game time, the wind was blowing from the southwest at 16 mph. Even so, Seurer-to-Johnson plays were good for 19, 26, 48 and 53 yards and seven first downs. On KU's 81-yard scoring drive at the end of the first half, the twosome connected three times for 54 yards of the drive, with the final play being a 9-yard touchdown pass to Johnson.

Both Seurer and Johnson left the game with seven minutes remaining as Seurer became KU's all-time leading passer.

Seurer's 5,140 total passing yards — and he has five games remaining — broke Jaynes' mark of 5,133.

"I'm not sure if they kept me in so I could break the record," Seurer said. "It is a real honor to be in the same category as all the great quarterbacks that have gone to KU."

Johnson played high school football in San Antonio, Texas, where he was a quarterback. He said he believes being a quarterback in high school has helped him as a receiver.

"It helps me to read the zones and the different coverages so I can get open. Also, I know what is going on in the quarterback's mind as the play develops."

Johnson said having a great passer like Seurer deliver the ball makes his job a lot easier.

"When he's on, Frank is unstoppable," Johnson said. "When he's not on, he is still good. When he is on top of his game, I think he is one of the best, if not the best, in the nation."

"I have been around Frank for a long time (that) I know what he is going to do. We worked all summer long on trying to improve communication between the quarterbacks and the receivers, and we are really starting to get it together."

"All I have to do is get open, and I know the ball will be some place where I can catch it."

Sometimes Johnson doesn't have to be open for Seurer to get him the ball, as on the 53-yarder they completed against K-State shows.

"I wasn't open at first," Johnson said. When Frank let go of the ball, the defender and I were step for step. He was playing me and not the ball, so when it got there, I had to move around him and try to reach the ball."

As the pass arrived, Johnson stretched out and made a diving fingertip catch at the K-State 13-yard line.

Just as Johnson gives the credit to Seurer, Seurer gives it right back.

"Bob is something else," Seurer said. "We have great receiving. The defenses can't key on just one guy or someone else will beat them. Our offensive line dominated them and gave me all the time in the world to throw. When I have that much time, it's just like playing catch with my receivers."

Frank Seurer

Staff/John Sleezer

Tension stems from child abuse probe over church's controversial methods

By The Associated Press

ISLAND POND, Vt. — When Juan Mattatall got his 4-year-old daughter back from the Northeast Kingdom Community Church, it was one of the happiest days of his life.

But for some people in this village it was an unpleasant reminder of the tension between the town and the fundamentalist sect, which is the subject of a child-abuse investigation. And it served as a reminder of recent charges against two church elders accused of beating a 12-year-old and a 13-year-old.

"I'm just really disgusted that there's always something boiling, but never enough to blow the top off," Lisa Hilliker said as she fastened a seat belt around her 1-year-old daughter. She said she resents the fact that some of her closest friends joined the church — a group that "totally baffles me."

"I thought of petitioning...but there's nobody around, including me, that has the backbone to do anything about it."

The Northeast Kingdom Community Church, which had been based in Tennessee, moved to this remote northeastern Vermont community five years ago and bought 11 businesses and 14 sprawling homes for its approximately 325 members.

Island Pond, part of the town of Brighton, which has a population of 1,557, has been embroiled in controvery off and on ever since.

The most dramatic episode occurred Oct. 10, when Mattatall, a church defector, was reunited at a police roadblock in Nova Scotia with his daughter, Lydia, who had allegedly been abducted.

Mattatall had been searching around the world for Lydia for two years when a viewer tipped a Canadian television station to the child's whereabouts.

"It was the happiest moment I can remember, except for the time I was reunited with the other four," Mattatall said from his South Burlington home.

He had been granted temporary custody of his five children after a bitter court battle in which he accused church members of beating the children with rods to discipline them.

Canadian police detained Mattatall's wife, Cynthia, church elder Charles Wiseman and his wife, Mary, under suspicion of kidnapping. However, officials decided not to prosecute the case as a kidnapping and the three were released.

Mattatall said church members told Lydia that church founder Elbert Spriggs and his wife were her parents and that her real mother was her nursemaid.

Mattatall also said Lydia told him she had been beaten "a lot."

"She's been beaten with that rod daily," he said. "Her bottom is really hardened and calloused."

Essex County State's Attorney David Weinstein said the state is conducting a "very extensive" investigation into reports of child abuse.

Church members have refused to discuss their practices with reporters. But a few members agreed to answer questions if their names were not used.

One father of three, who works in the church-owned shoe repair shop, said he sees nothing wrong with using a rod to discipline children.

"Were you ever spanked as a child?" he asked, leaning forward on the counter. "And didn't you feel grateful afterwards?"

He said the Bible commands parents to discipline their children, citing the passage that says "Spare the rod and spoil the child."

"We do it out of love," he said. But authorities have received numerous complaints of prolonged beatings.

Wiseman pleaded innocent to simple assault in August in the alleged beating of a 13-year-old who had 89 welts, according to an affidavit. Church elder Timothy Pendergrass pleaded innocent that month to simple assault in the alleged beating of a 12-year-old church member.

Town Manager Robert Shepeluk said some church-owned businesses have refused to abide by zoning ordinances. "Sometimes they say they don't have to follow man's laws — only God's laws," he said.

"There is definitely tension in the community."

Rumors that local opposition has prompted the sect to plan a move to Canada were fueled by the Lydia's discovery in Nova Scotia.

"It's in the Bible — when you're persecuted somewhere you should move on," said Gary Long, who works in the church's natural foods store.

But Wiseman said of the expanding community in Canada: "We are just visitors here right now. We are not moving from Island Pond, but we hope to grow here."

Church members, many of whom are young with small children, generally keep to themselves and few townspeople frequent church-owned businesses. Most of the men wear their hair long and have full beards.

Former member Dante Garganese, 27, said his two sons, still members of the church, are well taken care of and love their life in Island Pond. He said his decision to leave the church "had nothing to do with" church members.

"From the time the kids are 1½, they are given little chores to do," he said. "They make them feel important."

He said he doesn't object to any church member hitting his children with a rod if they misbehave.

Professor wins Nobel for economics study

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Gerard Debreu of the University of California at Berkeley won the 1983 Nobel Prize in economics Monday for showing mathematically how the market system achieves a balance between supply and demand.

It was the sixth straight year an American won at least a share in the prestigious award, the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science.

The 62-year-old professor's studies once were rejected as too theoretical to have any practical application. However, they laid the groundwork for a generation of economic researchers and now are cited in every modern economics textbook.

"In the beginning, we did not recognize the importance of Dr. Debreu's work," said Professor Assar Lindbeck, who chaired the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences committee which picked Debreu for the award. "Now we realize its true value."

In an interview from his home in Oakland, Calif., Debreu said, "I am very pleased. It is, as a scientist, the highest recognition he or she can receive."

In explaining his work, Debreu said: "An economic system is composed of a very large number of agents, consumers and producers who make their decisions independent of each other. My goal is to explain how those agents make those decisions, how their decisions are compatible with each other and how they form an equilibrium for the economic system. To do that in a rigorous way, one has to build a mathematical theory, which has been the work of many of my colleagues and myself."

The academy's five-member economics committee said Debreu's research showed more clearly how, through the working of supply and demand, resources will be used in the most efficient ways.

Debreu's models led to the findings of both James Tobin of Yale University and George Stigler of the University of Chicago, winners of the 1981 and 1982 economics prizes, Lindbeck said.

This year's Nobel Peace Prize winner was Lech Walesa, leader of the outlawed Polish trade union Solidarity. American genetic researcher Barbara McClintock won the science prize and British author William Golding won the literature prize.

Of the 15 Nobel Prizes awarded so far, Americans have won at least a share in 12 of them.

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadlines are noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

ANNOUNCEMENT

01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m. 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. 50¢ for students with ID and $1 for all others. (281f)

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours: Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Mares, 1631 Humboldt, 539-5200. (32-50)

GET JOSH McDowell's four books on the secular religions, non-Christian religions, the cults and the occult when you register for KGB3 this week. For more information call Mark Austin, Rick Schultze or Lori Lang at 539-4641. (41-44)

ATTENTION

02

TRAVEL—We will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (11f)

FANTASY GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

FOR GREAT music at your next function, dance or party, dial 539-7512 for D.J. Dave Guthrie. (37-41)

HURRY TO Balfour! To introduce you to our new arrivals, all Footstep aerobic shoes and racquet ball shoes and gloves are 20% off now through October 29th. (39-49)

THINKING ABOUT going to KC 83? Register this week and you'll receive Josh McDowell's four books on "Understanding Today's Religions" in one hardback volume, free! For more information call Mark Austin, Rick Schultze or Lori Lang at 539-4641. (41-44)

FOR RENT—MISC

03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzelli's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11f)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11f)

HALLOWEEN COSTUMES—Sales and rentals, masks, make-up, accessories. The Emporium, 11th and Moro in Aggieville. (35-49)

FOR RENT—APTS

04

BRAND NEW two bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. Call 776-3804. (35-44)

LARGE, ONE bedroom, laundry facilities, three blocks from campus. Available mid-December. $275/month and electric. 539-6966. (40-44)

VERY NICE, one-bedroom apartment, one block from campus, $240 per month. Call 776-0409. (41-45)

FOR RENT: Mont Blue studio apartment—spring semester. Call 539-2019 after 5:00 p.m. (41-44)

FOR RENT—HOUSES

05

FIVE BEDROOM, quiet neighborhood. No lease, $500 per month. Call Brian 1-456-7423 after 5:30 p.m. (40-44)

NICE, THREE-bedroom house, Northview. Garage, appliances, new carpeting, paint. Couples, older student. Lease, $395. Call 776-9765. (40-44)

FOR SALE—AUTO

06

1961 MGA convertible roadster. Excellent condition. Also good transmission and rebuildable block for MGB. 776-0717. (37-41)

1966 AMX classic 390—automatic, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, stereo, 5,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Excellent condition. $3400. Might trade. 537-4782. (39-48)

1980 DATSUN 4x4 with top. Good condition. 776-8182 after 5:00 p.m. Monday-Friday. Weekends anytime. (40-44)

1973 FIAT 124—Excellent condition, new brakes and battery. Good mileage. 63,000 miles, $575. Call 539-3378. (40-41)

1979 BLUE MGB. Excellent condition, low mileage. Call 776-8055 after 7:00 p.m. (40-44)

1972 MGB convertible. New paint, new top, is in great shape. Call 539-3092. (41-45)

1975 TRANS Am, power steering, power brakes, power windows, runs great. Call 776-9044. (41-44)

FOR SALE—MISC

07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risqué greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (lt. blue), USC (white) others. $12.50 each postpaid. S-M-L-XL. Send check to L.M.G. Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-601-635-1085. (32-45)

EMBROIDERED DRESSES—Beautiful, hand-embroidered dresses from Mexico. Pure cotton, comfortable, inexpensive. Great for gift-giving. Write for information, Montezuma's Revenge, Box 50150, Austin, Texas 78763. (36-48)

DELUXE OLIVETTI typewriter. Perfect condition. Call 532-6715, ask for Pete. (38-42)

FENDER STRATOCASTER, black, E.C. $400. Phone 537-2820. (39-41)

NEW ONKYO CP-1000A turntable. Cartridge included. Call Chuck at 776-2265. (40-41)

FOUR NU vs. KSU football tickets, $30 each. Call 776-1244 or 539-9166. (41-43)

PHONE—"HUMMINGBIRD," beige, brand new, retail $60 with 25 ft. cord, selling for $45. Contact Anne at 532-6446, 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.; 776-2046 after 5:00 p.m. (41-42)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES

08

1972 AUBURN, 14' x 70', two bedroom. Includes appliances, washer, dryer and air. Call 539-2458 after 5:00 p.m. (41-44)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES

09

1977 Suzuki, 11,200 miles, very good condition. Need money, must sell, $650. Call 539-4968 anytime. (37-41)

1973 YAMAHA 250 street, 9,900 miles. Good shape, $400. Negotiable. 537-2087 evenings. (41-43)

FOUND

10

FOUND in Weber Hall: Jacket, eyeglasses, cord for calculator and textbook. Come to Weber Hall, Room 117 to identify and claim. (39-41)

LADIES WATCH found in parking lot south of student dorms. Can identify and claim by calling 537-1607. (39-41)

ONE OF two males on a motorcycle leaving campus on College Heights Rd. at 10:40 a.m. on October 12, 1983 lost his prescription glasses. I found them. To claim call Mike at 532-5506 or 539-6400 after 5:00 p.m. (39-41)

CALCULATOR FOUND outside King Hall, October 12. Call 532-2211 to identify and claim. (39-41)

A KNIFE was found in the alley behind Seaton. Can identify and claim by calling John at 539-2743. (41-43)

BROWN JACKET found October 10th in Fairchild Hall. Call 537-9024 to identify and claim. (41-43)

TODD HUGHES—Your Cross pen is in 303 Willard. Please bring I.D. (41-43)

HELP WANTED

13

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

KANSAS STATE University's Special Services Program is seeking applications for a temporary part-time Math Coordinator's position. The application deadline for this position is 5:00 p.m., October 24, 1983. Position Description—Responsibilities for this position include managing a laboratory setting with under-prepared students in the area of basic math and algebra skills. Small group math and lab sessions will be conducted on a daily basis. Applicants should have teaching experience and an awareness and sensitivity of the needs of educationally disadvantaged students, and adaptability to individualized and group instruction. Knowledge of computer assisted instruction in math is highly desirable. A Master's degree in math is preferred. Annual salary for the temporary (7 month, part-time (0.8) position is $5,040. Send letter of application and resume with names and addresses of three references to: Educational Supportive Services, 201 Holton Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, KS 66506. KSU is an EO/AA Employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply. (41-43)

TWO SALARIED positions available January 1, 1984: Music/Choir Director and Organist. Peace Lutheran Church, 2500 Kimball, Resumes due October 21. Job description available upon request. 539-7371. (35-41)

WORKSTUDY POSITION available—Must have Workstudy, 10-12 hours weekly. Apply Instructional Media Center, Blumont Hall, Rm. 016. Ask for Ron or Janette. 532-5926. (40-44)

FITNESS INSTRUCTOR needed—morning and afternoon shifts at Magic Mirror Figure Salon. Call now for interview. 539-1993. (41-42)

BARTENDER, EXPERIENCE preferred. Call Cindy, 539-0230. (41-43)

LOST

14

SILVER WATCH with sentimental value. Lost enroute from Fairchild Hall to 2000 College Hgts., Thursday. If found, please call 539-8463. (40-41)

HP-34C: Lost in Durland or Seaton. Please call 776-0441 or 532-5560. (41-43)

NOTICES

15

FLAPJACK FEED! All you can eat! Includes sausage and eggs. Tuesday, October 18, 4:30-6:30 p.m. in the K-State Union Stateroom. (40-41)

PERSONAL

16

PSYCHED AND Pining Donna and Haley—Thanks for all your spirit and enthusiasm. You two put a very special spark in U-Sing I love ya. Kathleen. (41)

FARMHOUSE—WE'RE sad that it's over. We had lots of fun! The Kappa's and Farmer's were ranked #1. Thanks! We love you! The Kappas. (41)

DAVID YOST—Thanks for the love, I couldn't ask for a better best friend. Love, Julie. (41)

CYNTHIA C. What in the world was your driver's license and car key doing on top of the observation tower! Signed Mushuga. (41)

TRACI F. How did the morals get so low? Jeff. (41)

SQUID-FACE DI—Hope your day was "great." We love you! Happy 20th. Your favorite roomie and Sues. (41)

MICKY CONNELL, Happy 24th Birthday! You get a year of "BYE," for your B-day. No, not of me! It's a magazine silly! Friends Forever! Julie. (41)

TO THE CHI-O's—No matter how the judges scored it, you're always #1 with us—The Betas. (41)

WANTED: ANOTHER "boring evening with cute, intelligent yet student. Prepaid requirement of three candles. Female preferred. Typical Ch.E. Student. (41)

REBEL ROUSERS!—Congratulations on a great season—Hey guys, not everybody makes it to the semi-finals. We're looking forward to volleyball, softball and whatever else may come along. Sorry we missed the swimming. Lovingly, The Rousersettes. (41)

AKL Hill Partiers—Thanks for such a great time. Hope we can do it again soon. Glenda. (41)

ANNE G.—Happy sometimes-annual Let's Appreciate Anne Day. Proverbs 17:17. Nancy. (41)

LOVELY PEOPLE—Here's your solution! Come to the A-PH-O plant sale and get a tall, good looking companion plant. October 19th-21st, Union. (41)

HEY BIG Guy—Ya, you in the KSU house. What's the deal? Some pal you've been—doesn't your phone work or are you trying to avoid me? Call me if you want to talk about it. Sally. (41)

VRG—THE times we've shared have been wild—losing boots to stealing shopping carts! Have a super birthday, ex-roomie and best friend! Love you, Betsy. (41)

DEBBIE S.—Hope your week-end was great and your birthday a happy one, wishing you many more! Mary S. (41)

J. JEFFERY: Happy 21st Birthday. Hope you have a special day. Love, J.W. (41)

VICE COMMODORE Jeff Oakleaf—Congratulations! We knew that you would win! Must have been your day—glow orange suit, huh? You done good! Me and Nancy. (41)

FATEMA DIOR—The question is, who does your hair? (41)

SPANKY—YOU'RE the best. Love ya, Buff. (41)

ROOMMATE WANTED

17

ROOMMATE NEEDED for November 1. Cozy home, near campus, own room, partially furnished, washer and dryer, $120/month, no pets, graduate student preferred. 537-0340. (38-42)

ONE-THREE non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplace, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (39-43)

FEMALE WANTED to share nice house, $85 plus one-half utilities. Good location, 537-1570. (40-44)

TWO FEMALE roommates wanted—$100 plus one-fourth electricity. Available November 1st. One-half block from campus. 539-6553. (40-42)

TO SHARE new apartment one-half block from campus. Full carpet, dishwasher, airheat, one-third utilities, $155 rent. Call 537-9011. (41-44)

NEEDED—FEMALE roommate A.S.A.P. Nice, clean home, good location! Call 537-2222 between 1:00-5:00 p.m. every afternoon. (41-44)

MALE ROOMMATE needed to share nice two-bedroom apartment. Call 537-4159 before 8:30 a.m. or after 5:00 p.m. Keep trying! (41-42)

SERVICES

18

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Unique skin care and glamorous products. Call Floria Taylor, 539-2070, for facial. (17-75)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180, 103 South 4th Street, Suite 25. (11f)

GRADUATING THIS semester? Let us help you with your resume. Resume Service, 1221 Moro, Aggieville, 537-7294. (11f)

COSTUMES BY the thousands. Complete rabbits, chickens, gorillas, tigers, bears and more. Flappers, Play Boy Bunnies, French maid, dance hall girls, much more. Ask for whatever you'd like to reserve now for Halloween. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (9-50)

VW BUG ACCESSORIES

Chrome wheel rings, door handles, hub caps, valve covers, upholstery kits, walnut dash knobs.

1-494-2388 J & L Bug Service.

MARY KAY Cosmetics: Free facials, 10 percent off products with student I.D. New fall glamour products now in. Call Elaine Barryhill, independent Beauty Consultant. 537-3233 days, 1-456-7251 evenings. (30-50)

Typing—LETTERS, term papers, resumes, etc. Reasonable rates. Call Sherry, 539-9131 after 5:30 p.m. (21

Judge ponders FmHA's foreclosure methods

By The Associated Press

BISMARCK, N.D. — A federal judge said Monday he plans to decide quickly whether to issue a nationwide injunction against the Farmers Home Administration halting current procedures for foreclosing on farms.

U.S. District Judge Bruce Van Sickle heard arguments at an hour-long hearing, and said later he wanted to make "a decision at the earliest possible moment."

If Van Sickle were to grant the farmers' request, his decision would apply to an estimated 230,000 farmers in 44 states, according to court documents. Farmers in Florida, Minnesota, Alabama, Kansas, Georgia and Mississippi would not be included because statewide class-action requests already have been filed or granted there.

Van Sickle issued a similar temporary injunction against the lending agency May 5, applying it to about 8,400 North Dakota farmers who have FmHA loans.

The suit, originally filed on behalf of nine farmers, asks the court to order enforcement of a 1978 law, which they contend requires U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block and the FmHA to forgo foreclosures and defer loan repayments at a farmer's request if he is financially strapped by uncontrollable circumstances.

Burt Neuborne, national legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union in New York, said Monday that Van Sickle probably will rule immediately after a period for filing additional written arguments ends in about 10 days.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Gary Annear argued that Van Sickle should rule against the farmers' suit and asked him to refuse to give any decision on national status because the farmers' written arguments were not filed in time to meet court deadlines.

The farmers also have asked Van Sickle to make his current injunction permanent. The judge said Monday he was prepared to rule on that request "within a matter of days."

In documents filed earlier this month, Sarah Vogel, an attorney for the farmers, asked Van Sickle to order FmHA to provide farmers 30-day advance notice when the agency intended to foreclose, cut off living and operating allowances or demand immediate repayment of the balance of a loan.

By June 30, the agency was in the process of forcing the closure of nearly 16,500 farming operations nationally, Ms. Vogel wrote.

Before the agency could take those steps it should be required to allow the farmer a hearing before an independent administrative judge.

Microcomputer Workshop
Hardware, Software,
BASIC, $35.00
P.F.L.
1715 Laramie 539-2731

COIN-A-MATIC
All New Equipment
8 a.m.-9 p.m. everyday
1615 Yuma (Behind Kream Kup)

BEER
Sold at cost plus
5%
Revco Drug Store
Village Plaza

MCPRINT
Instant printing
COPIES
ENVELOPES
BUSINESS CARDS
1211 Moro 539-5749

Court upholds law on creationism

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — The state Supreme Court, in a 4-3 split decision, today upheld the right of the Legislature to require balanced treatment of evolution and creationism in Louisiana's public schools.

"Whether the Legislature requires teaching of a course, the establishment of a particular curriculum, or the balanced treatment of a pair of concepts, it is essentially a question of a Legislature's authority...to establish and maintain education within the state," the majority opinion said.

The ruling was a victory for proponents of creationism, an issue that has been tied up in Louisiana courts since 1981 when the Legislature made teaching it part of the law.

The ruling did not consider the merits of any scientific or religious questions about creationism. It focused entirely on the narrow legal question of whether the Legislature could pass such a law.

The court said the regardless of other legal questions, "We are focusing on the Louisiana Constitutional authority of the Louisiana Legislature to provide for educational policy to be carried out" by the state Board of Elementary and Secondary Education.

The case now apparently goes back to federal court for hearings on the merits of teaching creationism, which has been challenged as a violation of the separation of church and state.

Louisiana is now the only state with a creationism law, although the law was suspended pending the final legal outcome. Arkansas had the first one, but it was struck down by a federal judge who said it was designed to advance religion.

Under Louisiana's law, any school which taught evolution was required to teach creationism too.

Creationism is the version of the beginning of the world that is favored by fundamentalist religious forces. It maintains that everything was created by a divine being several thousand years ago. The theory of evolution views creation as a gradual scientific development over millions of years.

Kansas State Travel

EUROPE

RT FROM KC VIA

INAUGURAL SPECIAL

LONDON (air only) ..... $599
COMPLETE AIR & LAND PACKAGES
7 days FROM $821

FRANKFURT (air only) ..... $699
COMPLETE AIR & LAND PACKAGES

CRUISE

mls SUNWARD II
THE MOST POPULAR 3 AND 4 NIGHT CRUISE IN THE CARIBBEAN.

DEPART EVERY FRIDAY OR MONDAY ON A MATCH-LESS COMBINATION OF SEA AND SUN. VISIT NASSAU AND THE OUT ISLANDS FOR NON STOP ACTION OR RELAXATION. IT'S WHAT YOU'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR.

 NORWEGIAN CARIBBEAN LINES FROM $275

SALE

Air Fare Sale (Restrictions Apply - Subject to Change)

Round Trip from Kansas City

New York—$198	San Francisco—$198	Tampa—$279
Chicago—$142	Washington D.C.—$190	London—$582
Los Angeles—$198	Philadelphia—$264	Phoenix—$160

537-2451
WestLoop Center

AGGIE HAIR PORT

Where you get the best hairstyles in town. If you don't believe it, try us.

776-7377

Auntie Mae's Parlor

AGGIEVILLE

TONIGHT

IMPORT BEER NIGHT

Featuring Bottles of Mae's favorite Beers from across the seas.

$1.25

7 p.m. to Close

WEDNESDAY HIGH ROLLERS

—Not for Big Spenders—

616 N. 12th 539-9967

ONE WEEK ONLY!

40% off our entire stock of Leather
Coats

Everyone loves the fashion look of leather and the luxury of wearing it. All of our leather coats have a natural fit of fine quality leather—something we insist on. Neat, well-fitting styles, fully lined for light weight warmth and suitable for every occasion. Styles that fit you...like blazers, jackets, ladies pant coats, and long trench coats.

Available in copper, brown, black, cobra, casablanca red, and taupe.

Ladies Sizes: 6-18
Men's Sizes: 38-46

Prices effective thru Oct. 23rd.

or use our Lay-a-way Plan.

Calhoun's
Your Family Clothing Store

Silver Bullet Refused Entry to Daytona 500. Threatens Lawsuit!

SILVER BULLET TRIUMPHS AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE. WINS FIRST "COMMAND PERFORMANCE" TURTLE RACE.

SILVER BULLET RACING TEAM HEADS FOR BONNEVILLE

Silver Bullet Shatters Land Speed Record. Savors Triumph in Swim Across Salt Lake.

Coors Light Turns Down $1MM Stud Fee for Silver Bullet.

COORS LIGHT "SILVER BULLET" RACING TURTLE ACCEPTS CHALLENGE TO RACE AT MRK'S

Coming . . . Silver Bullet Turtle Race Thursday, October 20 7:30 p.m. Mr. K's!

It's a pleasure serving you . . .

Junction City Distributing Co. 238-6137

Faced

Intramural football final set for
tonight.

Sports, page 10

Group adopts new program to battle rape

By LUCINDA ELLISON
Manhattan Editor

Rape — it's a vicious violation. Recurrence of this crime can leave a community nervous, paranoid and just plain scared. But the city of Manhattan is starting to fight against the recent rape epidemic.

"Let's make the rapist a little nervous rather than making the women nervous," was one comment heard Tuesday in a meeting of about 20 concerned Manhattan residents. The meeting, which began at 11:30 a.m., was held at the Manhattan Psychiatric Clinic, 117 S. Fifth St. Those present discussed several options in beginning a community campaign against rape.

The meeting was planned during a similar gathering Friday morning at the St. Mary Hospital.

So far this year, 17 rapes have been reported in Riley County, 14 of which were in Manhattan.

Because of the substantial number of recent rapes, those present noted a need for immediate action.

"The time may be ripe now," said Judy

Davis, director of the Regional Crisis Center.

Another resident said he felt disappearance of the problem may dissolve some concern about the crime. "If there are no more attacks, this group is not going to meet in this room anymore, and the other group won't meet out at Saint Mary's (Hospital) anymore. And the problem is going to go away," said Bob Shoop, associate professor of administration and foundations.

After much discussion, the committee formed several subcommittees to implement a whistle alert program. The campaign also would include block organization within the community to aid in cases of attacks, and distribution of leaflets to educate the public.

Additional plans to promote the campaign were made, including a resolution between the City and Riley County to recognize the committee. The committee also discussed a public forum to kick off the campaign on Nov. 1.

Although other alternatives were suggested, such as a neighborhood watch, escort services and information on rape trials and sentencing, the group chose to research and implement the whistle alert campaign.

"I think we can make the whistle campaign, and obviously the leafletting reaches everyone," Davis said.

According to Mary Klacsmann, traffic director of KMKF/KMAN, the radio stations' general manager, Lowell Jack, had offered to aid in establishing the whistle alert program. "We would heavily publicize it (the program)," she added.

Several members cited advantages of the program.

"It (the program) emphasizes women's mobility rather than staying inside," said Ann Bristow, assistant professor of psychology. Others stressed the fact that the campaign would allow women to take control over the issue.

In hashing out problems of the campaign, several concerns and reservations were raised by others present.

"It seems like such a futile effort," said Linda Teener, of the Pawnee Mental Health Center. She also added the mechanism could provide a false sense of security and wouldn't offer any protection to the victim.

Another woman stressed the fact that the whistle, if worn on a neck chain, could also be used in strangling the victim.

"There isn't an answer," Davis said. "Anything you can use on a rapist, he can use on you."

According to Shoop, the University of Kansas had used and dropped a whistle alert program. One negative aspect of the program was that the whistle became a focus of news announcements, rather than the crime itself.

A second fault of the program results from abuses of the whistle through pranks. The "cry 'Wolf' syndrome" became a common problem, Shoop said.

"It has to be an ongoing thing," he said. "You can't have a six-month or one-year campaign." The campaign would have to continue over a long period of time due to the high turnover rate of the population in the community, he added.

Careful advertising, through a communitywide effort, would have to be implemented in order to make the program a success, Davis said. The advertising would have to aim at heightening awareness.

Davis also said long-term involvement through K-State, the "Welcome Wagon" and other facilities would be necessary for an effective program.

The committee also touched on other bases, such as distribution of the whistles, information concerning the campaign and funding the program. Particular stress was placed on insuring that all community members were aware of the problem and the city's efforts to combat it.

"The newspapers have been covering this (the rapes) and there are still people hideously incognizant of it," Davis said. "The only way I know (to inform the public) is to knock on every door."

The committee scheduled a follow-up meeting to receive reports from various subcommittees for 11:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Manhattan Psychiatric Clinic. A meeting for "Men Against Rape" is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Manhattan public library basement.

Nicaraguan official EPA warns of potential 'greenhouse' effect blasts U.S. policies in campus speech

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Reporter

About two weeks ago, officials in Nicaragua captured the occupants of a Cessna aircraft shot down during a bombing mission. The aviators started talking and what they said has come true thus far.

Roberto Vargas, first secretary at the Nicaraguan Embassy in Washington, told a gathering of about 100 people Monday night in the Union Catskeller that the two men in the plane were CIA-trained rebels who supported deposed Nicaraguan leader Anastasio Somoza.

The men told officials that various Nicaraguan ports were going to be targets of bombings and that the U.S. plans a major offensive against the Sandinista regime in mid-November, Vargas said.

Various Nicaraguan ports were subsequently bombed, he said.

Vargas called the port bombings "(James Bond) 007-type explosions" and said his government is "waiting for the major invasion."

While blasting Reagan administration policies toward the Sandinista government, Vargas said the regime is not Soviet-backed.

"We have watched the escalation since President Reagan took office," Vargas said. "The U.S. has supported Somoza since the '30s, and now they're doing it for continuity."

Western European countries and Cuba have helped Nicaragua establish a literacy program which has substantially decreased the number of functionally illiterate Nicaraguans, he said.

"What we consider participatory democracy is giving literacy to our people so we can choose the way we want to run our country," Vargas said.

Still, Vargas denied that the Sandinistas are partners with the Eastern Bloc.

"Do they (U.S. officials) really think there's a 'red' in every bed?" Vargas asked. "We turn around and say, 'Hey, man, are you prejudiced or something? We can handle our own revolution.'"

The Sandinistas don't like the Eastern Bloc and have modeled their educational programs and laws after those of the United States, Vargas said.

"Thousands of Nicaraguans speak English, but I don't know anyone who speaks Russian," he said.

Vargas accused the United States of trying to "tear down the model" of Nicaragua because Cuba and other nations besides the United States have helped set up aid programs.

"We don't want to jump back into another superpower's arms," Vargas said. "That's what the U.S. doesn't want — a model."

Nicaraguan leaders presented a peace plan to the United States in recent negotiations calling for a friendship pact between neighboring Central American countries, a halt to the flow of arms and withdrawal of all foreign troops, Vargas said.

"The U.S. looked at it and said, 'Oh, not bad,'" Vargas said. "But then they wondered how it would look to pull out 5,000 troops."

"If you buy a house, you're going to live in the damned thing or burn it down like you did in Vietnam."

The United States has spent $1 billion in El Salvador and the result has been death and destruction, Vargas said.

"We have roads, hospitals and schools, all set up by those dirty Cubans," Vargas said. "We don't have a billion dollars like El Salvador."

Vargas conceded that there are problems in Nicaragua caused mostly by the "military forced upon us." Censorship, which he said he doesn't like because he's a writer, exists, but is necessary in times of a threat to the national security.

"Your own country has practiced this (censorship) in times of war," Vargas said.

Somoza rebels are kept in jail, but Vargas said that action is acceptable.

"Somoza took care of jail overcrowding," he said. "He killed everybody."

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The only way to avert catastrophe from an inevitable buildup of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere is to learn to live with major changes that will start showing up in a decade and eventually disrupt food production and melt polar ice caps, government scientists said Tuesday.

Scientists at the Environmental Protection Agency pictured a world in the next century in which New York City could have a climate like Daytona Beach, Fla., and today's Midwestern wheat belt could shift significantly northward into Canada.

"We are trying to get people to realize that changes are coming sooner than they expected," said John S. Hoffman, EPA director of strategic studies. "Major changes will be here by the years 1990 to 2000 and we have to learn how to live with them."

The EPA report, titled "Can We Delay a Greenhouse Warming?" concluded that no matter what restrictions are placed on the burning of fossil fuels, the warming of the earth's atmosphere is inevitable.

The "greenhouse" effect is the name given to the buildup in the atmosphere of carbon dioxide gases, which act like the glass in a greenhouse by allowing the sun's rays to warm the earth and then trapping the heat.

Carbon dioxide is produced primarily by the burning of fossil fuels — coal, oil and natural gas.

While the greenhouse phenomenon has been described by scientists for years, the EPA study is the most pessimistic yet on the potential impact.

The study said there was a great amount of uncertainty over how fast the earth's temperature will rise, but that best estimates predicted an increase of 3.6 degrees in the average temperature by the year 2040.

Even if the burning of all coal was stopped in the next 20 years — a highly unlikely possibility — that 3.6-degree warming would be put off only to 2055, the study said, adding that no strategy would offer more than a few years delay.

"Our findings support the conclusion that a global greenhouse warming is neither trivial nor just a long-term problem," the report concluded.

KSDB adopts 'homemade' automation unit

Staff/Jeff Taylor

A computer screen, used to display information relevant to the operation of KSDB-FM, remains on although it is only used while students are not available for standard operation procedures. Rob Birkes, freshman in radio and TV, takes a request from a listener.

By BECKY SCHOOF
Campus Editor

A "homemade" automation system has been designed for use at KSDB-FM. The system will allow the student-run radio station to remain on the air during breaks in school when students aren't available to work.

"We're not trying to kick out any of the students. What we're trying to do is just keep the station on 365 days a year or close thereof, so we're not dependent on student power during off-times," Leroy Buller, assistant professor in journalism and mass communications, said.

The system was designed by David MacFarland, associate professor in journalism and mass communications, Buller and George Scheets, graduate in electrical engineering. Their idea for automating the station began in December 1983.

"We came up with the idea of automating the radio station with a Vic-20 (computer). So we started doing some research on it and I was at the periphery," Buller said. "George was coming up with the circuitry and Dave was coming up with what we wanted the system to do."

"Then we started writing the thing (program) when school let out last spring," he said. "They pulled me in because I've had some experience in programming — mostly home computer stuff."

"I got in there and started doing some of the programs. We did some innovative things with it and tried to get the thing to work properly."

The project grew throughout the summer and a working version of the system was produced. Ideas and "fail-safe devices" were added to the program and mistakes were cleared up.

"Now, it's a pretty mammoth program," Buller said. "We're constantly refining it."

"What we want to do eventually is teach automation and this (machine) will help us do it."

The system is capable of turning on and off 16 different functions, including four reel-to-reel tape machines and four cart machines.

In order for the computer to know when to play another song, a sub-audible tone is imbedded in the music.

"When the tone appears, that tells the computer, 'Hey, this song is about over' and will go to the next song," he said.

For imbedding the tone, a tone generator was developed which also filters out the tone so it can't be heard by listeners.

If a song is ending and the machine is programmed to play a public service announcement followed by another song, it can do it without removing any of the "aliveness" on radio.

A "real" announcer is also a personality. He's got wit, charm, everything else. Why can't you put that wit and charm on a tape where you can program a computer when to call up that tape and have the wit and charm?" Buller said.

There are tentative plans for marketing the system and negotiations are in the works for three prototype units to be used in the state.

"We need to put these things out and let them 'cook' in a real commercial environment," Buller said.

If production should begin on the system and sold commercially to stations, KSDB will likely benefit.

"Most of the money made by this device is going to come back to the University, especially KSDB," he said. "That is our design. We feel since we used university facilities to develop it, the University, especially KSDB, should benefit the most from it."

The system is designed for use by smaller market radio stations.

Buller said the system will sell for considerably less than machines designed for larger stations, which cost between $30,000 and $50,000.

The lower cost of the system will be important to the smaller markets, if the system does go into production. But other advantages include a relatively small installation time and no need to buy additional equipment.

Buller said installing the system should take a station engineer eight hours and he thinks it is even easier to hook up than other automation systems.

"What's so neat about this whole thing is it started out as just an idea and we saw the idea grow and grow and grow," he said. "What was so fun was to learn, research this, find out how it worked and then see it grow into something very viable."

"It's really kind of scary just to sit back and see where we were and now where we are. It's incredible."

Senate defies Helms, votes for new holiday

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate, in a bitter revival of the civil rights debates of the 1960s, crushed 76 to 12 on Tuesday efforts by Republican Jesse Helms to block establishment of a federal holiday honoring the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Leading a small group of conservatives, the North Carolina Senator said King's affiliations with "far left elements and elements of the Communist Party USA" disqualified him for status as a national hero.

Supporters of a holiday to celebrate the civil rights leader's birthday denounced Helms for running a "smear campaign."

A few hours after Helms' arguments on the Senate floor, a federal judge rejected his appeal for release of sealed FBI files on King. Helms said the documents would further his case that King, a Nobel Prize winner, was influenced by top aides in the civil rights movement who were communists. He argued that the Senate should have access to wiretap files from 1963 to 1968 before voting.

Not only did U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. deny Helms' request to unseal the documents, he also ruled that Helms had no "protectable interest" that would give him legal standing to intervene in the 1977 case which sealed them.

King was assassinated on the balcony of a Memphis, Tenn., motel April 4, 1968.

The Senate was scheduled to vote today on the holiday legislation itself, and Republican officials said it is expected to be approved by a wide margin.

Campus

Setser receives award of distinction

Donald W. Setser, professor of chemistry, has been named to a newly established Distinguished Professorship in Chemistry at K-State.

Setser has performed pioneering work with the excimer laser, and the professorship represents the University's recognition of Setser's contributions to education and research in physical chemistry, including chemical reaction dynamics, molecular energy transfer, laser chemistry, photochemistry and spectroscopy.

The professorship was implemented by the Chemistry Advisory Council, which has raised a $50,000 endowment. Interest from the endowment will supplement Setser's salary.

Professor has book published

Benjamin C. Kyle, professor of chemical engineering, is the author of a new book about thermodynamics, "Chemical and Process Thermodynamics," which has been published by Prentice-Hall Inc., Englewood Cliffs, N.J.

Kyle has taught thermodynamics periodically over 25 years. He developed notes for the book while teaching classes. The subject deals with heat in motion or energy exchanges. The major applications for engineers are the processing of fluids, the formation and separation of solutions and the harnessing of chemical reactions.

Kyle, who took two years to write the book, used the manuscript as a text in his thermodynamics class to gauge student response and make revisions.

Getty Refining aids cancer research

The Getty Refining and Marketing Company of Tulsa, Okla., has recently contributed to K-State's Center for Basic Cancer Research in the Division of Biology. Terry C. Johnson, director of the Cancer Center and the Division of Biology, said the cash gift represents the second annual gift awarded by GRMC to the center.

The center is funded primarily through private gifts and pledges. An integral part of the center is the new Anti-Cancer Drug Laboratory, a research and teaching facility in Ackert Hall.

City considers rail service; adopts resolution as model

By The Collegian Staff

Although there are no plans to resume passenger railroad service through Manhattan, the City Commission adopted a resolution Tuesday night calling for Amtrak service between St. Louis and Denver.

City Commissioner Gene Klingler said the resolution will serve as a model for other cities in Kansas seeking more passenger rail service.

During the annual meeting of the Kansas League of Municipalities in Wichita earlier this month, Manhattan officials conducted a session to determine if other cities would be interested in this service, Klingler said. Representatives of 14 cities attended the session.

"Amtrak has promised us nothing," he said. "I just think the time is right on it."

Universities and military installations along the route would provide a market for the railroad, the resolution states. In addition, the majority of Kansas residents live within a one-hour drive of the Union Pacific's main line, which could be used for the service.

In other action, an ordinance prohibiting parking along the south side of Grandview Drive from Sunset Avenue to Wickham Road received second reading.

Residents of the Grandview Drive area complained at the Oct. 4 commission meeting that cars parked on the south side of the street create a traffic hazard.

Reputed K.C. crime boss surrenders 22 hours late

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Carl Civella turned himself in a day late Tuesday, and a federal judge said the reputed organized crime boss probably just got "cold feet" at the prospect of a 75-year prison term.

Civella surrendered about 10:10 a.m. Tuesday, about 22 hours after he was scheduled to surrender at the U.S. Medical Center for Federal Prisoners in Springfield, Mo.

Civella, convicted in July of conspiring to skim gambling profits from a Las Vegas casino, was to undergo a 90-day medical evaluation at the prison. At the end of the evaluation, U.S. District Judge Joseph E. Stevens Jr. may modify the 75-year sentence he gave Civella on Friday.

Civella's attorney, Byron Neal Fox, said his client called him Tuesday morning and said, "Come and get me."

Fox said Civella described himself as exhausted.

comprehensive health associates

- free pregnancy tests
- outpatient abortion services
- alternatives counseling
- referrals
- gynecology
- contraception

1-435 & Roe - Overland Park - 642-3100

BEER
Sold at cost plus 5%
Revco Drug Store
Village Plaza

FACTORY OUTLET SALE!
6 HOURS ONLY!
SAT., OCTOBER 22
9 a.m. to 3 p.m.
T-SHIRTS JACKETS
SWEATERS SPORTSHIRTS
Over 20,000 items
ALL BELOW COST
$1.00 to $8.00

js Jostens Spiritwear
423 Houston Manhattan, Kansas
Elks Building - Old Stag Room

SORORITY BARTENDERS WED. NITES!

KDs Tonite!

Remember 2 Fers
Thurs. 7-10!

MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT...

THE KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE

PLEDGE NITE OUT THURS. 10-12:

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BLOODMOBILE PRE-SIGN-UP is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today through Friday and Oct. 24 on the first floor of the Union.

MARKETING CLUB MEMBERS: Sign up now in the marketing department office for the field trip to Kansas City Nov. 3. For more information see the marketing club bulletin board.

PRE-PHYSICAL THERAPY CLUB: sign up for Kansas City trip by Wednesday in the arts and sciences office, Eisenhower Hall.

SIGN-UP FOR THE OPEN MIKE NIGHT sponsored by UPC Coffeehouse continues from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. today in the Union Activities Center.

KSU AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS are available in Anderson Hall 104 or in the SGS office and are due Oct. 26.

COORDINATOR OF FINANCES AND ELECTION COMMITTEE member and chair applications are due in the SGS office by 5 p.m. Friday.

TODAY

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of David J. Flowers at 10 a.m. in the Blumont Hall A&F conference room.

ASSN. OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD meets at 3:30 p.m. in Union 204.

MID-CONTINENT ATARI COMPUTER USERS GROUP meets at 7:30 p.m. in Fairchild 205B.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB meets at noon in Union Stateroom 1.

INSTITUTE OF ELECTRICAL AND ELECTRONICS ENGINEERS meets at 4 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures and at 4:30 p.m. in Durland 152.

FRENCH TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

DAUGHTERS OF DIANA meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Sports Fan-atic.

THURSDAY

PRE-NURSING STUDENTS meet at 1 p.m. in Union 202.

PHI ALPHA THETA (history honor society) meets at 2:30 p.m. in Union 207 to hear Dr. Peter Sugar of the University of Washington speak on "West's View of Ottomans in the 16th Century."

K-STATE PLAYERS meet at 4 p.m. in the Purple Masque Theatre, East Stadium.

AG STUDENT COUNCIL meets at 6 p.m. in Waters 137.

OPEN MIKE NIGHT sponsored by UPC Coffeehouse is at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Caskeller.

COLLEGIATE 4-H meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 206 for a recreational meeting.

LITTLE AMERICAN ROYAL COMMITTEE meets at 7 p.m. in Call Hall 140. Bring committee files.

ICTHUS FELLOWSHIP meets at 8 p.m. in Union 212. Bob Anderson, director of Baptist Student Union, will speak on "Building Lasting Friendships." Everyone is welcome.

STUDENT FOUNDATION meets at 5 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures. A pizza party will follow.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CIVIL ENGINEERS meets at 7:40 p.m. in the Durland II Auditorium.

BIG LAKES DEVELOPMENTAL CENTER has a plant sale from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the University for Man house, 1221 Thurston.

value packed

SHOES
$14.99 - $18.99
Lady Foot Shoes
221 POYNTZ

Tonight (starting at 7:30)
PIKE LITTLE SISTER OLYMPICS
Advance Tickets $1.00
At the door $1.25 | $2.25 PITCHERS
when wearing Greek letters

Sponsored by Big Brother Big Sisters of Manhattan and Cystic Fibrosis

Tomorrow
GRAND SLAM 4 FER 1'S
"SNEAK PREVIEW"
Top 40 Rock 'n' Roll

The Sports Fan-atic

It's Magic...

3+2 FERS

WED. NITES!

- 3 Fers 8-9:00
- 2 Fers 9-10:00
- On Draws

ROCKIN' K BAR

LADIES NITE THURS.!

"We can get a Coke and keep the Old Fashioned Coke Mug"

Both 89¢

DAIRY QUEEN
brazier.

OPEN 10:30 A.M. TO 11 P.M.
TIL MIDNIGHT FRI. & SAT.

1015 N. 3rd
Manhattan

* Reg. U.S. Pat. Off. Am. D. & C. Corp.
© Copyright 1976, Am. D. & C. Corp.

1ST ANNIVERSARY SALE

Help us celebrate
10% OFF
Storewide
thru Saturday

Keep warm with the Hottest Ski Fashions

Save 20% ON
ALL SKI JACKETS

- * Whitestag
- * Gerry
- * Obermeyer

Sale prices good 10-19 thru 10-22

AGGIE SKI and SPORT
1212 Moro—Aggieville
Mon.-Sat. 10-5:30
Thurs. till 7:30

537-9105

Boockers two

SHRIMP FEED
featuring
Spiced Shrimp Bowls
4-7 p.m.
All you want for only
$1.50 per dozen

COUPLES

Would you like to meet other couples, enjoy fun and fellowship and share who you are with others with similar situations?

THEN JOIN US
7:00 p.m., Oct. 21 at 2219 Alta Dr.
(The home of Rod & Sharon Saunders)
Bring a main dish and a salad; we'll serve the drinks and dessert.

CUMENICAL CHRISTIAN MINISTRIES

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.

Editor..... Paul Hanson
Managing Editor..... Sandy Lang
Photography Editor..... Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager..... John McGrath

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB

BAKE SALE

Honey Cracked Rye
Raisin Bread
Donuts
Brownies
and much more!

105 Shellenberger
Wednesdays 3:30-5:30
(while goods last)

Committee proposal may place limits on state lobbyists

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Legislature's Special Committee on Conflict of Interest and Ethics agreed Tuesday to draft legislation expanding the state's conflict law to include spouses and close relatives of public officials and state employees, and prohibiting relatives from lobbying.

The panel, headed by Rep. Robert Frey, R-Liberal, will study the proposals today and perhaps decide whether to recommend them to the 1984 Legislature convening in January.

If an amendment is recommended to expand to immediate families the prohibitions on accepting gifts and gratuities from special interest groups, it would make illegal what First Lady Karen Carlin did last summer when she accepted a $12,000 fee for raising $90,000 to finance a state tourism film.

The proposal being drafted would extend the state's conflict of interest law to cover spouses, children, parents, brothers and sisters of elected and appointed state officials and state employees, as well as others who live in their home. It now applies only to the officials and employees.

The second proposal to be studied would prohibit lobbying by the same group of relatives. It would require passage of a new law, not just amendment of a present statute.

Both changes were suggested by Rep. Vic Miller, D-Topeka, and seemed to have support of a majority of the other five committee members attending Tuesday's meeting, including the backing of Frey. He said after Tuesday's meeting that sentiment of the committee seemed to be to recommend broader legal changes than when the panel first began its work last summer.

However, Sen. Jim Allen, R-Ottawa, took exception to the suggestion that spouses and close relatives of public officials and state employees be subject to the conflict of interest law, passed in 1974 in the aftermath of the Watergate scandal. Allen said it "goes too far" and he doesn't think there is that much of a problem.

And, Sen. Ron Hein, R-Topeka, objected to prohibiting relatives from working as lobbyists. "I think you're just arbitrarily discriminating against women who are married to legislators," Hein said.

The decision to have the possible legislation drafted and considered today came after the committee heard the chairman and the general manager of the Kansas Turnpike Authority say they approved a $5,000 donation sought by Mrs. Carlin to help produce the state promotional film because they considered it "good business."

Although Mrs. Carlin asked that the contribution be switched from going toward support of a governors' conference and instead make it go toward helping produce the film, they did not consider it a political donation in any way, just helpful to Kansas tourism, said Nick Badwey of El Dorado and Rod Fogo of Wichita.

Not only did donating to the film help promote tourism, which is a major factor in what kind of business the turnpike does, but the KTA also got credit as a sponsor of the Midwestern Governors Conference in Lawrence last week, Badwey and Fogo added.

Badwey, chairman of the authority, and Fogo, chief engineer-general manager of the turnpike, appeared before the committee to explain how the KTA came to contribute $5,000 to the film, "This is KS," which was shown at the governors' conference.

The involvement of Mrs. Carlin in raising the $90,000 to pay for that film, her $12,000 fee for doing the solicitation and the film itself have become very controversial — and in major part led to creation of the legislative committee last summer.

Attorney General Robert Stephan concluded Mrs. Carlin, wife of Gov. John Carlin, broke no state law in raising the money for the film and in accepting the fee for doing it, but said it smacked of impropriety in a report he issued Aug. 22 following an investigation.

Badwey and Fogo recounted for the committee the events which led to the Turnpike Authority making its $5,000 contribution.

"The decision to participate in the production of the film was made by me without a thought of politics and only because I thought it was good business for the turnpike and for the state," said Fogo, an 18-year employee of the KTA.

He is empowered to spend up to $10,000 of KTA money, he told the committee, without prior board approval, but the board always looks at his expenditures after the fact.

That's what happened in this instance, with the KTA approving the $5,000 donation to the film and the governors' conference on a 3-2 vote after it was made. Two Republican legislators who are on the KTA by reason of their legislative positions, Sen. Robert Talkington of Iola and Rep. Rex Crowell of Longton, voted against it.

State Transportation Secretary John Kemp and the two public members of the board, Badwey and Richard Rock of Arkansas City, all appointees of Carlin, approved it.

Here is the chronological genesis of the contribution, as explained by Badwey and Fogo:

— Last March, Badwey was in Topeka. Having just learned the state was to host the governors' conference, he approached Shirley Allen, Carlin's administrative assistant, about doing something to help.

— Badwey asked Fogo if it was a "reasonable thing" for the KTA to do and Fogo agreed that it was.

— In early August, Mrs. Carlin contacted Badwey and asked him "what we had in mind" as far as making a contribution. Badwey said he thought the KTA might pay for a luncheon or dinner, or "something like that" at the conference. She asked him "how about $7,500?" Fogo said $7,500 "wasn't out of line," but Badwey went back to Mrs. Carlin and said, "How about $5,000?" She accepted.

— Badwey took it to the KTA's five-member board and, "We all agreed it would be helping our state have a good image."

— Later, Mrs. Carlin called Badwey asking him if the KTA would be interested in helping finance the promotional film. "I said I didn't think so. I said $5,000 is enough," Badwey related. However, Mrs. Carlin said that was no problem, because it would be the same $5,000, he said, and that KTA still would be an official host for the governors' conference.

"We got two for one and that's always a good business deal," said Badwey.

Engineer cites 'money, thrill' as motive for sale of secrets

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — The lawyer for a "Silicon Valley" engineer arrested for allegedly passing U.S. missile secrets to Polish agents said Tuesday his client was out for "money and the thrill of it."

"It's sort of romantic to run around different airports and meet people," said William Dougherty, a Southern California lawyer who has handled other espionage cases.

Why did he want to leave the clandestine, storybook existence — peopled by shadowy characters dubbed "The Big Man" and "The Minister" — that brought him a fortune that Justice Department sources now put at $1 million?

"I hate to use the cliché, but he wanted to come in out of the cold," Dougherty said by telephone from Villa Park. "He said he wanted to work for them (the U.S. intelligence community)."

For 25 months, the lawyer met his client in Southern California bars, coffeeshops and airports, passing on government queries and relaying answers to federal agents through questionnaires and tape recordings. Throughout this period, Dougherty said, he did not know his client's identity.

The suspect steadfastly refused to disclose his identity unless he got immunity from prosecution, and the Justice Department would not grant the request until he revealed his name, Dougherty said.

So federal agents, working with information gleaned during the negotiations plus tips from a source in the Polish intelligence service, ferreted out his identity, put him under surveillance and arrested him Saturday.

James Durward Harper Jr. was charged with espionage Monday.

"I didn't know his name until yesterday morning at 10 o'clock," said Dougherty.

Two more Lebanese soldiers die; airport chosen as site for talks

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Snipers killed two Lebanese soldiers and wounded an Italian member of the multinational force Tuesday, and the government said Lebanon's warring sects will hold their long-delayed national reconciliation conference at Beirut airport.

A statement on state-run Beirut radio said President Amin Gemayel will participate in the meeting Thursday of Moslem, Druse and Christian leaders, aimed at ending eight years of turmoil. It said U.S. Marines and other members of the multinational force patrolling the capital will guard them.

The conference was called for in the Sept. 26 cease-fire that reduced but did not halt three weeks of civil war. Bickering over where and when to hold the conference has delayed the conference.

It is unclear why the airport site was chosen. Anti-government gunners have been shelling and sniping at the 1,600 Marines deployed at the airport for weeks. Two Marines have been killed and six wounded since last Friday.

Violations of the cease-fire persisted Tuesday. State radio said two Lebanese army soldiers were killed at positions near Chiyah, a stronghold of Shiite Moslem militiamen. It also reported gun-fights between army positions at Souk el-Gharb overlooking the airport and surrounding Druse areas.

An Italian soldier suffered a gunshot wound in the right shoulder on the road linking Beirut to the airport, a spokesman for the Italian contingent said. He said the man did not require hospital treatment.

Government sources said official invitations for Syria and Saudi Arabia to send observers would be sent today.

FELIZ CUMPIEANO
"Gordito"
Tus Townmates
(411)

TONIGHT
BBQ BUFFET
RIBS, BEEF & CHICKEN
$3.95

All you can eat
5:30-7:30

At the Ramada Inn 17th & Anderson

MEL'S
THE BEST PAIR IN TOWN

Sweaters...
wonderful and warm
in a vibrant mix of color, fiber and design.

Aggieville

ALLEY SPECIALS
WED. DOUBLE TROUBLE
2 Fers or Tall Doubles 10-12:30
THURS. SUDS NITE
55¢ Draws $2.00 Pitchers
80¢ Bottles $1.25 Imports
FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR
$1.25 House Drinks 55¢ Draws
Hors d'oeuvres 4-8
SAT. LATE NITE HAPPY HOUR
$1.25 House Drinks 10-12
55¢ Draws $2.00 Pitchers

MEL'S
THE BEST PAIR IN TOWN

TAVERN SPECIALS
WED. FISHBOWL FEVER
70¢ Fishbowls 7-midnight
FRIDAY TGIF
Progressive Pitchers
$1.50 2 p.m.-4p.m.
$1.75 4 p.m.-5 p.m.
$2.00 5 p.m.-6 p.m.
SAT. KEEP ON TRACKIN TO MEL'S
HAPPY HOUR
9 A.M.-6 P.M.

GET FRAMED!
Have your picture taken for Royal Purple

Today:
Ford Hall 8:30-5:30

Tomorrow:
Goodnow Hall 8:30-5:30

Off-Campus people can still get pictures taken Oct. 10-28 539-5229

Union 209 Bring your stamped fee card.

FALL INTO FASHION WITH US!!

GUYS LEVI BOOT-CUT $16 <sup>99</sup>	GUYS LEE PREWASH IN SELECTED STYLES $22 <sup>99</sup>
GALS LEE BASIC RIDER (Selection of Style) $19 <sup>99</sup>	GUYS BRITANNIA $19 <sup>99</sup>
BUY ONE GUYS SHIRT &amp; GET A 2ND (OF = VALUE OR LESS) HALF PRICE!!	GALS CALIFORNIA STRAIGHTS &amp; SUPER STRAIGHTS $18 <sup>99</sup>
CHOOSE FROM A SELECTION OF GALS SWEATERS &amp; TOPS NOW 1/3 OFF!!	GALS ZENA AND CHIC $5.00 OFF!
WE'RE MORE THAN JUST A JEAN STORE"	BUY ONE GALS SWEATER AND GET A 2ND (OF = VALUE OR LESS) HALF PRICE!!

THE JEAN STATION
MON.-SAT. 10-6 THURS. 10-8:30

AGRICULTURALISTS...

You're Needed All Over the World.

Ask Peace Corps volunteers why their agriculture degrees or farm backgrounds are needed in developing nations. Ask them how their knowledge of crops, livestock production, farm mechanics or beekeeping methods help alleviate hunger, increase personal income and develop technical skills. They'll tell you of the rewards of seeing direct results of their efforts. They'll tell you Peace Corps is the roughest job you'll ever love.

Sign up for interview and pick up an application now:
PLACEMENT OFFICE
Wed. & Thurs., Oct. 26 & 27

PEACE CORPS

The right to home education

The Kansas Supreme Court is reviewing a Johnson County District Court case from last January in which the judge refused to permit a couple to teach their children at home in lieu of sending them to a public school.

The case deals with the Kansas law on compulsory education, and whether home instruction can constitute a private school.

According to Kansas law, children between the ages of 7 and 15 must attend a public school or a "private, denominational or parochial school." Any non-public school must be held for about the same amount of time as a public school and be taught by a "competent instructor."

The argument for the couple is that they have the right to educate their children as they see fit. The state's interest is that the children receive an adequate education. The argument against the couple is that the mother is not a qualified educator, therefore the children are not being taught as well as in the public system.

The issue, however, should not deal with whether the mother is a "qualified teacher," in the sense of whether she has a college degree and formal teacher training. The basis of the decision should be whether the children are receiving an adequate education.

Instead of ruling on the basis of the qualifications of the instructor, the ruling should be based on whether the children have been educated up to the level of children their age in the public school system.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Only through testing of the children can a fair decision be reached. Each case of this type should be treated individually. This can be done through a universal testing program to be administered to all children whether in a public, private or home school situation.

If a student does not have as good a grasp of subjects as his public school counterparts, the student's education should be examined. If the teaching is inadequate, the student should be placed into a different school situation for his own good. However, the state should not step in where there is no need for intervention.

The only checks the state should make are whether the child is being taught the basic subjects, such as reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, history and grammar, and whether the student is learning them at least as well as he would in a public school.

With the questions concerning quality of public education and what can and cannot be taught in public schools, parents are seeking alternatives to public education for the good of their children. If the parents are capable of teaching the children and want to give them the individualized attention they could not receive in a public classroom situation, they should have every right to do so.

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

Stepping to a peacetime draft

Guess what's back?

It's made of paper. It's used as a piece of identification. It was once burned in protest.

Yes, draft cards are back. Well, technically, since there is no draft, you really can't call them draft cards. I guess I could call them "Official Notification of Compliance by Registration with the Selective Service" cards.

The Associated Press reported Wednesday that the Selective Service is printing the cards at the bottom of the notification letter sent to every male who registers with the Selective Service. The cards can be clipped out and carried in a wallet.

Wil Ebel, Selective Service spokesman, said the reason the cards are being issued is because of convenience. The cards are more convenient to carry than the registration confirmation letter when a young male has to prove he has registered with the Selective Service in order to receive federal student financial aid and in order to be eligible for some jobs programs, Ebel said.

I thought all a student had to do to prove compliance with the Selective Service Act in order to be eligible for federal financial aid was to sign a statement on a form stating the student has complied with the law, or hasn't for some reason (being a female is a sure-fire way to keep from complying with the act).

I don't know about the jobs programs stuff, but I thought the same bureaucratic machine which makes it possible for colleges to check students' compliance could do the same thing for the jobs programs. If it doesn't do so now, couldn't the Selective Service do the same thing for these programs that it does for the Department of Education in checking for compliance with registering for the draft?

It seems like the Selective Service has dreamed up another way to waste taxpayers' money by redesigning a letter which serves no purpose. The fact that the cards don't have to be carried at all times weakens the reason for even making them available.

I don't know where my compliance letter is. It's at home somewhere, or it's in a safety deposit box at the bank. The only reason I would need to even look at the thing would be just to see what it looks like. I don't know my registration number and I really don't care what it is. I've registered and I've signed the necessary paperwork so I can receive federal financial aid. Why bother to send out little cards which can be lost — and maybe used fraudulently?

BRIAN LA RUE
Collegian Columnist

I suspect the real reason these cards are being sent out is to get Americans ready for a peacetime draft. Before you start calling me a Communist or a bubble-headed liberal, let me state my case.

First, the old draft law went out of existence in 1975. America was sick of Vietnam and the Watergate era. I believe the peacetime draft was discontinued partially in response to the repercussions to end the Vietnam era; partially because the military had a hard time keeping qualified people in its ranks. A military with people who want to be in it had to be better than a military which had people in it to serve their time and get out, some critics argued.

Well, I guess things didn't work out too good. Perhaps this "volunteer military" was seen by some as an admission of America's weakness (e.g. the attacks against American embassies and the hostage crisis in Iran). The military was regarded as being a less than worthy profession. Salaries for an enlisted man were fine — as long as he didn't have a wife and children to support. Stories about military personnel who had trouble making financial ends meet were commonplace.

I guess the military wasn't the place to "be all you can be."

Americans became repulsed at this "sign" of "weakness" and wrote their congressmen, who saw a way to gain some votes. Add this to worries about the strength of the military, and voilà! the Selective Service Act was born.

I remember some people griping about signing up, despite the reassurance that this didn't mean you would be drafted. I had some doubts, but I registered, figuring that if there was a draft, I probably wouldn't be drafted. I also figured that since I have been provided with many opportunities which others die for in other countries, I owe some sort of responsibility to defend my country in case of war.

Then came the Solomon Amendment, which tied registration with federal financial aid to students. It was declared unconstitutional in June by U.S. District Judge Donald Alsup. In July, the U.S. Supreme Court stayed Alsup's ruling but is allowing the amendment to be enforced while it reviews the whole matter.

Protests were staged against the controversial rule, but none have caught on like the anti-draft protests of the 1960s or the anti-nuclear weapons protests of the 1980s. Some college students complied with registration for patriotic purposes; some complied because it was the law; some complied because they need financial aid in order to attend college.

The military has all the recruits it can handle, thanks to unemployment and inflation. More money is being pumped into new equipment and better salaries. However, if the economy improves, the military might become understaffed again.

Now comes the new cards. I haven't heard many people comment one way or another on this new development, but I hope people are thinking about it.

Look at the international news. American soldiers are in Lebanon, acting as "peace keepers" in a conflict which may have no end. American military advisers are in El Salvador, and it looks as though soldiers may be on their way soon. Some are already calling El Salvador "America's next Vietnam."

The step to moving into a peacetime draft is to get people accustomed to carrying around cards in their pocket. While I cannot prove a draft will occur within the next five years, I've got a hunch it will.

After all, 1984 is just around the corner.

World Series wrap-up

As a Phillies' fan who went public with that hope in a recent column, what can I say about the just-concluded World Series?

Last week was a sad one if you were a Phillies' fan. On the other hand, it was pleasant for Orioles' supporters. As is true of any game, afterwards someone always celebrates. Also, someone always cries.

JOEL CLIMENHAGA
Collegian Columnist

The Orioles were far and away the better club this time around. They are the champions — this year. Next year may be another story, however. There hasn't been a team become World Series' champions two years in a row since the Yankees did it in 1977 and 1978. Before that, the Cincinnati Reds did it. For the world championship team to repeat itself is something which doesn't happen very often.

At least the Phillies made it to the World Series this year. That's better than they've done through most of their existence.

In 1946, while I was in the Army in Maryland, I went to a whole batch of games the Phillies played. It was a cheap way to spend part of a weekend pass. Soldiers could get a seat in the bleachers for 50 cents. That was quite a bargain, particularly for a Saturday afternoon double-header.

All the Phillies' fans were delirious with joy that year because the team was not going to finish in the cellar! As a matter of fact, for a while it appeared as if they might actually finish in the first division. I don't remember what their final position in the standings was — but it was not in last place. And that caused great rejoicing in the streets of Philadelphia.

Phillies' fans have always had to be satisfied with crumbs.

James T. Farrell undoubtedly is turning over in his grave at my gall in having labeled him, were he still alive, as a possible Phillies' fan. That man in truth never did root for any other than a Chicago team.

It pleased me to see Paul Owens, Phillies' manager, have enough of the historical sense of baseball to put Joe Morgan, Pete Rose, and Tony Perez all together in the starting lineup for the final game of the Series on Sunday. These three men are among the truly great players of the game — and they've been around a long time. (These three men, incidentally, were all members of that Cincinnati Reds team which won back-to-back World Series before the Yankees.)

None of this is intended to bad-mouth the current glory of the Baltimore Orioles.

The players on this team are truly something else. There's no question in my mind but that Rick Dempsey and Eddie Murray are among the finest players in baseball.

And the sharp-shooting management of Joe Altobelli was without doubt among the canniest I've ever seen. I do have a question in this regard, however. Why is it that so often the next year a smart manager like this gets fired (as happened several years ago to Altobelli, when he managed the San Francisco Giants)? I hope that doesn't happen to him again.

What is the attraction and fascination of baseball?

I think I know the answer. The umpire always calls out at the beginning of a game, "Play ball!" He doesn't yell, "Get to work!"

I hope Pete Rose is able to play for as many more years as he wants to. I wouldn't blame him a bit if he went to Japan or the Mexican League when the time comes that a team in the major leagues doesn't pick him up. Personally, I'd like to see him go back to the Cincinnati Reds. I think that would be a fitting place for him to end his career.

To all you Phillies' fans (or those of you who rooted for a team that didn't make it this time) I say, "Just wait until next year!"

And now stack up the wood for the hot-stove league — and let's get into some proper reminiscing. We'll sit here and wait for April to come again.

"IN THIS SEMINAR WE TEACH YOU HOW TO BEG, PLEAD, KICK AND SCRATCH... IN GREY FLANNEL SUITS."

Letters

Burning draft cards

Editor,

Draft cards! What is this? I thought we had learned our lesson concerning draft cards during Vietnam. Have we forgotten that thousands and thousands of people during this time burned their draft cards in defiance of this immoral and oppressive action. And that those who complied with it gravely regret it now? Just go to any VA hospital and ask them.

I can remember when draft registration was first reinstituted in 1960. It was stressed very highly that this was "only a registration" — not indicative of any upcoming draft. What a bunch of bull that was. I suppose that if we're lied to gradually the government thinks we won't catch on. And if they violate our rights gradually we'll be less likely to organize effective protests and legislative action against it.

Well, let me tell you that they're wrong. There are a lot of us who still remember what happened, and there are a lot of us who can still see what's going on despite the opiating nature of the government techniques.

If we have a war, and there are not enough volunteers to fight it, this tells me something about the war. If we must force, through threat of punishment, people to fight, it makes me wonder who it is we're fighting for and where the freedom is that we claim to be defending.

If there is another war soon and I believe in its purpose (which I highly doubt will happen), I will surely participate. But until then, my draft card will burn and I will not leave this country.

Christian B. Wolff
Senior in psychology and philosophy

ASK sees need for tougher standards

By LAURI DIEHL
Collegian Reporter

High-school graduates would have been required to complete 20 hours of requirements, including computer science and a foreign language, if the state Board of Education had accepted an Associated Students of Kansas proposal at its October meeting.

ASK presented a plan at the state school board meeting Oct. 5 that would increase high-school graduation requirements from 17 to 20 hours. Required would be four hours of English, three hours each of science and mathematics, three hours of social studies, two hours of a foreign language, one hour of physical education and a half hour of computer science.

But, an official from Manhattan's USD 383 said he was glad the proposal was rejected and said ASK is overlooking non-college bound high-school students.

"I'm glad the state board was shrewd enough not to accept the ASK proposal," said Tom Hawk, director of secondary instruction and curriculum development for USD 383. "Not every student is college-bound, by enforcing requirements from the ASK proposal, you would effectively exclude these students from high school. About 70 percent of Manhattan high-school

High school requirements may face future changes

students go to college, but we have to remember the other 30 percent."

Tracy Turner, junior in economics and ASK Academic Affairs Committee chairman, said the proposal was based on the National Commission on Excellence in Education report, "A Nation at Risk."

"The commission studied the educational system for a year and a half," Turner said. "The report was very critical of the current system."

Turner said ASK presented its proposal to the state school board because ASK deals with educational matters and the commission's report has come to the attention of political candidates.

"Since this is an election year, many candidates are latching onto the topic (of education)," he said. "ASK is interested because it has the public's attention."

Turner admitted, however, that there may be problems with the ASK proposal.

"College students tend to be the better high-school students," he said. "Also, ASK delegates are some of the better college students. Personally, I am concerned that the proposal does not represent the high-school student, but the upper college students."

Turner said the stricter high-school requirement proposal is a back-to-basics approach.

"When big schools started offering mini-classes, they got into trouble with the basics," he said. "Changing class requirements probably will not affect a 1A school in Western Kansas, but a 6A Shawnee Mission school might see a lot of changes." Kansas high schools are ranked by size on a system with 1A being the smallest and 6A the largest.

The state school board did not accept the ASK proposal, however, and supported a 20-hour plan which allowed for more elective classes.

If this plan receives final approval at the board's November meeting, high-school students will be required to take four hours of English, three hours of social studies, two hours each of science and math, and one hour of physical education. The plan would go into effect in May 1984.

Currently, students must have 17 hours of requirements which include several hours of electives. This differs from the board's plan by requiring only three hours of English, two hours of social studies, and one hour of math.

Turner said he believes the board's proposed requirements are a step in the right direction.

"The committee proposed something for which to strive," he said. "We were not talking about making education good enough, we were talking about making it excellent. When lobbying, you always ask for a little more than you expect to get."

Hawk said the state school board's increased requirements proposal would not affect Manhattan High School.

"The only requirement we do not have is two hours of science," he said. "But there is already a proposal before the Manhattan school board to increase our requirement to two hours."

Christi Hooper, senior in computer science, said the state board's own plan allows students greater flexibility.

"Electives should encourage students to gain skills they can use throughout their life," she said. "With all the proposed requirements (in the ASK proposal), it does not give much opportunity to take electives."

Hawk said high school is the last chance many students get to take vocational, music, or humanities classes.

State court ponders home education ruling

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — In a potentially far-reaching case, the state's highest court was asked Tuesday to decide whether a Johnson County couple violated Kansas' compulsory education law by schooling their two children in their home.

For more than an hour, the Kansas Supreme Court heard attorneys from both sides argue whether a Johnson County District Court judge was wrong when he ruled last January that the children, Anna and Matthew Sawyer of Spring Hill, could not be taught at home.

The question before the court is whether the home instruction given by the parents, Tom and Bonnie Sawyer, was in effect a "private school" in the eyes of the law.

In Kansas, children ages 7 through 15 must attend a public school or a "private, denominational or parochial school." The only requirement is that non-public schools be taught by a "competent instructor" and that classes last for about the same amount of time as in public school, said Christopher C. Iliff, a Kansas City, Mo. attorney representing the Sawyers.

He argued that parents have a constitutional and "fundamental right to educate their children in a way they see fit."

Moreover, Iliff contended that Johnson County authorities failed to sufficiently prove that Sawyer was not a competent teacher. She is not a certified teacher in Kansas, but has 1½ years of college. She was the primary instructor for her two children, 9-year-old Anna and 12-year-old Matthew.

The parents called their home school Longview School, Inc. However, it is not accredited by the state of Kansas.

Iliff said the children were taught most of the same courses offered in the Spring Hill public school system: reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, history and grammar.

The Sawyers moved to Spring Hill, a community of nearly 2,000 about 20 miles south of the Kansas City area, from Tennessee in 1980. The two children were in the Spring Hill elementary school until the start of the 1982-83 school year when the parents began to teach them at home.

A truancy lawsuit was brought by Johnson County authorities in the fall of 1982, and Johnson County District Judge Bill E. Haynes ruled in January 1983 that the children were truants and could not be taught at home.

The children now attend a private, non-accredited denominational school in Johnson County, the Shawnee Christian Academy. Both parents were in the court for today's arguments.

Susan Kulp Stolle, assistant district attorney for Johnson County, urged the justices to uphold the district court ruling. She argued that Sawyer's lack of education and formal training in teaching disqualified her as an instructor for her children.

"The decision of the court was in the best interests of the children," said Stolle.

During questioning by the justices, she conceded that there was nothing in Kansas law to outlaw "home schools" and she agreed that there were no guidelines in the law to determine who is a competent instructor.

Justice David Prager asked whether the district judge had set forth any criteria in his ruling for measuring the competency of Sawyer or other teachers in non-accredited private schools. No, replied Stolle.

Should the judge have done so, asked Prager.

"It would have been helpful," said Stolle.

Iliff told the justices that he was not seeking "some sweeping decision that all home schools are private schools," but merely wanted to force the state of Kansas to adequately justify its decision against the Sawyers. Yet, he too conceded that the potential effects of the case went beyond just the Sawyers.

"The issue here affects all unaccredited private schools," said Iliff.

The justices took the case under consideration after the arguments and should issue a decision at their next opinion date, Dec. 2.

HALLOWEEN PARTY COMING UP?

Have an original costume w/basics from Footlights. We have leotards and tights to create your perfect Halloween outfit!

FOOTLIGHTS

EXERCISE & DANCE WEAR
10:30-5:30 MON.-SAT.
THUR. 'TIL 8:00
1110 LARAMIE 537-3106

Tonight LIVE Can-Can Dance

by the RANCHETTES
Shows at 8:30 p.m. & 10:30 p.m.
NO COVER CHARGE

The Ranch SALOON
539-4989
3 mi. East on Highway 24

MARKETING CLUB MEMBERS

Sign up now for the Nov. 3 Field Trip to Kansas City

We will visit Farmland Indus., IBM, Hallmark, AT&T, and KBEQ.

Sign up in Mkt. Dept. office by Friday, 21st. Check Mkt. Club bulletin board for more details.

Looking to get involved?

Applications are being accepted for Coordinator of Finances and Elections Committee Members.

Applications due Friday, Oct. 21 at 5:00 p.m. at SGA Office.

For more info call 532-6541.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA PLANT SALE

Living groups compete for a five foot Weeping Fig.

Today thru Friday 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. K-Room Union

2 FOR 1 SALE

Oct. 10-Oct. 22

Look into fashion at b & l Optical's 2 for 1 Sale! We have the lenses you need and the frames you want!

Pay full price on a pair of high fashion glasses and get a single pair of single vision glasses for free.

• Oleg Cassini • Zsa Zsa Gabor
• Anthony Martin • Arnold Palmer
• Jordache • Mary McFadden

Some boutique frames not included.

b & l OPTICAL STUDIO
1210 MORO • 537-1574

Mon.-Fri. 9:30 a.m. 5:30 p.m.; Sat. 9:00 a.m. 1:00 p.m.

Manhattan Civic Theatre presents

October 21, 22, 28, 29
November 4 & 5
8 p.m.

The Bat

Tickets $4.00

City Auditorium Basement
Call 776-4815 for reservations

AUSTIN REED OF REGENT STREET

Fall '83 London Pride

The classic look of London Pride has been redefined for Fall '83 by Austin Reed of Regent Street. The traditional look of Britain is captured in this open-bow-tie sportcoat of wool/polyester and linen in a natural shading of autumn tan with slight blue yarn accents.

Our London Pride is showing with this British inspired, but American tailored sport coat exclusively for Borck Brothers by Austin Reed. Let your London Pride show this Fall with a choice from our wide selection of sportcoats tailored in the British tradition of quality.

*210<sup>00</sup>

BORCK Brothers
Humboldt at Third
Ph. 537-8636 fine menswear
And now for women also!

Hours 9:30-5:30 Mon-Sat till 8:30 Thur

FirstBank

First National Bank of Manhattan

is pleased to announce that our

University Bank

is

NOW OPEN

at Denison & Claflin

Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M.
Sat. 8:00 A.M. to 1:00 P.M.

the shoe center BOOT BONANZA

THIS WEEK ONLY

SAVE

10%

Choose From

Zodiac Connie
Dexter Hush Puppies

the shoe center

539-3595
312 Poyntz
Downtown Manhattan
Free parking at our convenient rear entrance

Briefly

By the Associated Press

Dean interrupts 'obscene' show

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. — Former "Saturday Night Live" comedian Garrett Morris cut short his appearance at a college homecoming after 100 patrons walked out and a dean interrupted his act to tell him it was too obscene.

"The trip wasn't lost. I certainly learned a lot," Morris said later. Morris was telling jokes about college, parties and the differences between the sexes Friday night before about 600 people at East Tennessee State University.

Carl Purvis, president of the Student Government Association, said sponsors were looking for an entertainer who "would appeal to an entire audience; who would uphold an exciting, wholesome atmosphere for homecoming."

But people started walking out on Morris and Dorman Stout, the dean of student affairs, interrupted him in the middle of his act and told him to "tone down" his material.

Morris returned to the stage a few minutes later and told the audience, "You're going to get a much shorter show than planned."

After the show, a group of students went backstage to apologize to Morris. Despite the flap, Morris said he was willing to return someday to entertain at the college.

Woman reacts to airing of movie

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio — Barbara Schantz Buffington said a television movie about a female police officer who poses nude for a girlie magazine "tapped the personal feelings and conflicts" she went through during a similar real-life experience.

But Buffington, 27, said "Police Woman Centerfold," aired on NBC Monday night, differed in many ways from her experience as the subject of an April 1982 Playboy magazine layout.

As in the movie, Buffington was whisked off to Chicago in November 1981 for a whirlwind tour and photo tryouts.

But she said her 8-year-old son, Doug, was not beaten up at school and adorned with pinups of his mother, as in a scene from the movie.

She also said of the fictitious Jennifer Oaks, played by actress Melody Anderson, "she stuck to her guns" about posing, while Buffington said she often wondered if she made the right decision.

The movie producers talked with her only briefly, she said, taking most information for the script from newspaper clippings, and she said she was not paid for the use of her story.

Mayor Roger Baker and City Manager Thomas Bay said they watched NFL football on television Monday night instead of the movie. "It's called good taste," Bay said. "It's a matter of taste to have it put on in the first place. NBC doesn't have any taste."

Buffington was suspended for 37 days because of the layout. She has since married and had another child.

Radio search of space to expand

LOS ANGELES — Astronomer Carl Sagan says that earthlings now have 8.4 million radio channels to scan in the search for sounds from life on other worlds.

Sagan, a Cornell University professor and president of the Planetary Society, said Monday that a "universe-scanning system" called META — Megachannel Extra-Terrestrial Assay — has been established at Harvard. It can search millions of frequencies, monitoring 1 to 20 billion hertz, by sweeping a small band of sky near Polaris, the north star.

Because of the vast distances involved, "there would be no dialogue, only monologue," Sagan said. "They talk, and we listen."

With a grant from the Planetary Society, users of the program now can monitor about 8.4 million frequencies the next four years using cheap, lightweight microchip technology, he said.

The Los Angeles Herald Examiner interviewed Sagan by telephone from Ithaca, N.Y., where he spoke on META to the Division of Planetary Sciences of the American Astronomical Society.

Black public college enrollment rises

By The College Press Service

Predominantly black public colleges, which three years ago greeted news of the first round of federal education budget cuts and desegregation decisions with warnings they might not be able to survive, are enjoying significant enrollment increases this fall, administrators report.

Southern University added over 500 new students this fall at its Baton Rouge campus and now has its second-highest enrollment.

At Grambling, enrollment has equaled its 1967 high, and it "could be the fastest-growing small institution of higher education in the country," President Joseph B. Johnson said.

At Langston University in Oklahoma, enrollment has zoomed up by a third. Albany State in Georgia, Delaware State and the University of Maryland-Eastern Shore — all public black colleges — enjoyed enrollment increases this fall.

"I think it's quite positive that out of our 34 members, 19 of our institutions either increased their population or experienced very minor decreases," said Joyce Payne, head of the Office of Advancement of Public Colleges in Washington, D.C.

A significant number of predominantly white public colleges, by contrast, have suffered population declines this fall.

Enrollment at Kansas' largest public campuses fell two percent, for example. West Virginia, South Dakota, Michigan State, Alabama, Bradley, Oklahoma and Kentucky, among others, also lost students.

Even some fast-growing community colleges are having trouble. In Illinois, Waubesa Community College's enrollment is down four percent. Houston Community College barely stayed even with last year.

Overall, the nation's total student population is supposed to stay at or near last year's record 12.4 million, before gradually declining throughout the rest of the decade, according to the National Center for Education Statistics.

But public black colleges are doing well at the moment.

Observers attribute the enrollment increases to a flight from more expensive private black schools, to better "visibility," and even to desegregation consent decrees, which black school administrators once worried would drive their students to newly-accessible, larger white schools.

"Some schools didn't come out well on their (consent decrees), but we did, and the result is more money for enhanced programs and recruiting," Clayton Lewis, communications director at Southern, said.

But Payne said "we're seeing growth in some states not affected by the (desegregation) suits. In Texas, for example, Prairie View and Texas Southern are doing well financially, but there's been a decline in enrollment."

Dillard University, however, has done well in combining increased money with new recruiting. A new foundation grant, for example, will establish a new computer sciences major that, according to research director Dr. Monte Piliawsky, ought to help attract more new students to the campus.

"Grambling," spokesman Ernest Miles pointed out, "has had perhaps more publicity than any other school in Louisiana. We've done four documentaries. We have (public service announcements) on TV and radio. And we put a lot of effort into high-school recruiting. It all starts adding up in visibility."

The boom doesn't extend to private black colleges, however. There are 10 percent fewer freshmen at private schools this year, reports Harriet Schmiel of the United Negro College Fund in New York.

"You're looking at the future with this (declining freshman enrollment), and it doesn't look good," she said.

Schmiel said she believes competition from both black and white public colleges for top black students may make the private black college decline permanent.

"In some states," she said, "there's a very fierce recruitment battle — only I wouldn't say battle since it's very one-sided — to get more black students to go to (predominantly white) state schools."

GM pays record settlement for employee discrimination

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — General Motors Corp., the nation's leading automaker, agreed Tuesday to a $42.5 million settlement of a 10-year-old sex and race discrimination complaint, the largest such agreement in history.

Clarence Thomas, chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, joined representatives from management and unions for GM's employees as the five-year pact was formally signed.

Besides establishing goals for hiring and promotion of women and members of minority groups, the agreement includes a novel $15 million educational package designed to provide scholarships for GM employees and their family members at four-year colleges, two-year colleges and technical schools.

The case stems from discrimination charges brought against General Motors in 1973. Former EEOC Commissioner William H. Brown III brought the complaint, citing Title VII, the anti-discrimination law barring patterns and practices of employment discrimination in a company.

The parties negotiated intermittently over the last 10 years, and an intense effort to bring about a settlement began in June.

Under terms of the education portion of the agreement, 28 colleges and universities will receive endowments of $250,000 each over the five years.

BUSHWACKER'S
THE FUNDRINKERY
Every Wednesday
Top Sirloin Steak Special served with baked potato
$4.95
Open 11:30 a.m. - 2:00 p.m., 5 p.m. - 1 a.m.
531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

The Palace
GIFTS AND NECESSITIES
Your Halloween Spook-tique
Masks • Make-up • Cards
Party Goods • Decorations
Everything to make your Halloween spook-tacular!
704 W. Manhattan In Aggieville Open Mon. - Thurs. til 8:30 539-7654

Burke's
404 Poyntz
Downtown Manhattan

DEXTER DAYS
This week only
Buy a pair of stylish Dexter Shoes for men or women and receive this durable Nylon Sport Bag. Perfect for class, gym, or home...a $10.00 value for...

FREE

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Soothing lotion
5 Satisfied
8 Converse
12 Medicinal plant
13 French friend
14 Wander
15 Ragtime dance
17 Sister of Ares
18 Earhart
19 African antelopes
21 Make choice
22 Grate
23 -tac-toe
26 Univ. in Dallas
28 Bridle straps
31 Jewish month
33 Viper
35 German admiral
36 Jabs
38 Work unit

40 Greek letter
41 German river
43 Money of account
45 "Let the buyer —"
47 Financial
51 Kind of exam
52 Vaudeville dance
54 Part
55 Actress
Arden

56 Years: dial
57 Inquires
58 Old salt
59 Dirk

DOWN
1 — au rhum
2 Astringent
3 Solitary
4 "The Wizard of — Park"
5 — Gandhi
6 Ostrichlike bird
7 — eye (gem)
8 Folds

9 Lively dance
10 Greedily eager
11 Hardy girl
16 Yelps
20 Malay gibbon
23 Faucet
24 Altar
25 Stage dance
27 Employ
29 Income after taxes
30 Red or Coral
32 Entertains
34 Propose
37 To be, in Barcelona
39 Courage
42 Bowler's button
44 Ninnies
45 Adriatic wind
46 Love god
48 Film detective
49 First-rate
50 — majeste
53 Eggs

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

PORT LOA AMAS
ERIA END BORI
SCARFACE OLID
TIAL ERE SUEDE
FEN POT
SALAD SELFISH
ARAL SEN ALOE
MISSILE SCOWL
ELY AWE
CHAFE ERA FAR
LOMA BABYFACE
ERIC USO OMNI
WADE TYR PEEN

Average solution time: 27 min.

CRYPTOQUIP 10-19

DBQ MIQFD, MHIQ HMIIQFPZM PJ AZ
BQF DAQJ.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — YOUNG HENRY THE EIGHTH'S ACRID INSTRUCTOR: A TUDOR TUTOR.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: I equals L.

7TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Valentino's Ristorante
...it's all that
Pizzazz

Free Balloons For The Children

At Valentino's Ristorante, pizzazz is the pure pleasure of getting nothing but the best.

- Famous Valentino's pizza
- Variety of Italian delicacies
- 100% pure beef
- Whole milk mozzarella cheese
- Authentic Italian spices
- Secret recipe sauces
- Produce delivered fresh daily
- Full table service

The dining's superb at Valentino's Ristorante, where pizzazz means perfezione! And that's a very meaningful (and appetizing) experience! So GO!

*Italian pronunciation is PER FET ZEE OH NAY.
English translation is PERFECTION.

Valentino's Ristorante

3019 Anderson Ave.
537-4350

COMING HELP US CELEBRATE OUR ANNIVERSARY

DRAWING OCT. 23 FOR FREE $100.00 PIZZA PARTY

Oct. 17-Oct. 23, 1983 FREE DELIVERY ALL WEEK

Consumer quiz offers insight to small claims court system

By JOYCE CANTRELL
Contributing Writer

Editor's note: This is the second article in a four-week series dealing with consumer issues. The writer is a member of the Practicum for Consumer Relations Board class and serves on Consumer Relations Board.

Take the following quiz to determine how much you know about small claims court.

- The purpose of the small claims court is to provide a formal way to solve certain legal problems.
  - True.
  - False.
- Claims for money or property must be less than:
  - $500.
  - $100.
  - $2,000.
  - $10,000.
- There is a filing fee of:
  - $0.
  - $25.
  - $50.
  - $10.
- In small claims court:
  - You must be represented by an attorney.
  - You cannot be represented by an attorney.
  - If you are the defendant, you may request a public defender.
  - a. and c. above.
- Those who file must be more than:
  - 18 years of age, or be represented by someone over age 18.
  - 21 years of age, or be represented by someone over age 21.
  - 16 years of age, or be represented by someone over age 16.
  - None of the above.
- You can file a claim against someone even if you do not know where the person is currently located.

- True.
  - False.
- A jury of six persons listens to the claims in small claims court.
    - True.
    - False.
  - Even though you may win your case and payment is ordered to be made to you, the court cannot guarantee and is not responsible for collection.
    - True.
    - False.

Answers and explanations to the small claims court quiz:

- False. The small claims court was established as an inexpensive, informal method of solving certain legal problems quickly.
- a. Claims for money or property must be less than $500. You must be able to prove that the person against whom you are filing a claim is legally responsible to compensate you for the loss.
- d. $10. A filing fee of $10 must be paid in order to begin the small claims process.
- b. In Kansas, you cannot be represented by an attorney. This helps to reduce the costs involved since both parties prepare and present their own case.
- a. Those who file must be over age 18, or must be represented by someone over age 18.
- b. False. Any person or business in Kansas may be sued in small claims court if you think they owe you money or property, but you must know the address of the party being sued in order that a notice to appear in court (a summons) can be presented to them.

7. b. False. There is no jury involved. Both parties explain their side of the case to the judge. Evidence, documents or other material needed to support your case may be presented to the judge regarding the case. After hearing both sides, the judge will immediately make a decision or will continue the case to another date.

8. a. True. If you win your case, it's up to you to collect what is owed to you. If the person does not pay as ordered, you should try to collect by calling or writing letters, keeping copies of the letters for your files. If payment still is not made, other legal means are available such as garnishment of wages or other methods. Before deciding to sue someone in small claims court, it's a good idea to consider whether or not the person you are suing will be able to pay if the decision is in your favor.

Before deciding to use the small claims court, make a reasonable effort to contact the other party and work out a compromise. Keep a record of those attempts. If a compromise cannot be reached, the small claims court may be what you need. If more information is desired concerning the small claims court system, consult the brochure, "Small Claims Court," published by the Kansas Bar Association and the Kansas Association of District Court Clerks and Administrators, available in Manhattan at the Riley County Courthouse.

If you have decided to use small claims court and would like some helpful hints on how to prepare your case, "Everybody's Guide to Small Claims Court" by Ralph Warner is an excellent source to consult.

Rapist's escape brings call for prison review

By The Associated Press

OLATHE — The Johnson County district attorney has asked for a review of security procedures at the Kansas Reception and Diagnostic Center following the escape of a convicted rapist Monday.

Dennis Moore said Tuesday he had asked for the review of the maximum-security unit in a letter to Michael Barbara, secretary of the Kansas Department of Corrections.

The escapee, 22-year-old Daniel Wood Jr. of Kansas City, Mo., was captured without incident at a Kansas City apartment Monday evening. He had escaped by climbing two 15-foot fences, and later stole a car to flee to Kansas City.

Authorities said Wood had vowed to escape and take revenge against the rape victim who testified against him and Moore. Precautions were taken to protect Moore and the woman when Wood escaped, police said.

Wood was sentenced Aug. 4 to 60 years to life in prison after his conviction on charges of rape, aggravated sodomy, aggravated kidnapping, aggravated assault, aggravated battery on a law enforcement officer and two counts of theft in Johnson County.

Clip & Save Daze

Maxell
UD-60 Cassette
$1<sup>99</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Audio
Technica
Point 1 Light Weight
Headphones
$25<sup>88</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Sony
AC-9W
6 Volt Adapter
(for Walkman)
$12<sup>50</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

25'
Headphone
Extensions
$3<sup>49</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Fuji
DR-60 Cassettes
$1<sup>65</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

ZEROSTAT
3
By Discwasher
$17<sup>95</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

KOSS
K-20
Headphones
$17<sup>95</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Allsop
3
Cassette Deck
Cleaning System
$6<sup>45</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Audio
Technica
AT-9200
Condenser Microphone
$29<sup>95</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Sony
Walkman 10
The Smallest
Walkman Available
$95<sup>00</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Maxell
HE-44
Demagnetizer
$18<sup>00</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Ortofon
FF15XE
Elliptical Diamond
Phono Cartridge
$39<sup>00</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Audio
Technica
112EP
P-Mount Cartridge
$28<sup>50</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Antennacraft
FM Amplifier
For Your Car
$16<sup>00</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Discwasher
D4
Record Cleaner
$11<sup>00</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Koss
HV/X
High Velocity
Headphones
$49<sup>00</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Fox
XK
Radar Detector
$92<sup>00</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Bose
201
Direct Reflecting
Bookshelf Speakers
$74<sup>95</sup>
Ea.

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Sony
UCX-90
Chrome Bias
Cassettes
$2<sup>70</sup>

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Technics
SL-B200
Semi-Automatic
Turntables
$74<sup>00</sup>

Store Stock Only
COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

Maxell
Posters
50¢

COUPON EXPIRES 10-31-83

STEREO FACTORY

HOURS:
M.-Th. 10-7
Fri. 10-6
Sat. 10-5
Sun. 12-4

1126 Moro
776-5507

We Are Stereo

SAFEWAY

222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson

New Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week

Jonathan Apples	lb. ....	33¢
Pepsi Cola	6 pack 32 oz. Btls. ....	$1.99
	Plus deposit	Save $1.30
Beef T-Bone Steaks	lb. ....	$2.99
Lucky Lager Beer	6 pack 12 oz. cans ....	$1.49

UFM
Registration
for
Mid-Fall Classes
K-State Union
Thursday
9 a.m.-2 p.m.

Faculty YOUR IDEAS are the ones we need!

Union Governing Board (UGB) is a group of ten students, three faculty members, and one alum, who participates directly in the management and operation of the K-State Union. The board works with the staff to see that the Union is the kind of operation K-State should have. If you have a few hours to devote to make the Union a better place, come in and fill out an application.

2 Positions Available — 2 year voting

Application for faculty positions are available in the Union Director's Office. Due Oct. 25

Interviews will begin Nov. 1

k-state union
host to the campus 0600

Dairy act may reduce milk surplus

By ELAINE STRUTT
Collegian Reporter

Dairy producers, red-meat producers and ultimately the consumer will be affected by the Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act of 1983, which passed through the U.S. Senate recently.

The bill was proposed as a means of decreasing the $2.5 billion spent annually by the federal government on the dairy price support program while still helping the dairy industry, said Mike Beam, executive secretary of the Cow-Calf Stocker Division of the Kansas Livestock Association.

The goal of the bill is to stabilize the temporary imbalance in the supply and demand for dairy products, said Mark Scanlan, aide to U.S. Sen. Robert Dole.

The current law calls for a decrease in the effective support price from $12.60 to $12.10 on Oct. 1, Scanlan said. The producer would be eligible for a 50-cent refund per 100 pounds of dairy product if production was cut by eight percent, he said.

Under the bill, a paid diversion program will go into effect from Jan. 1, 1984 until Feb. 28, 1985.

"This program would include a $10 per hundredweight to producers to cut back their milk production between 5 and 30 percent," Scanlan said.

The producer would have two options to determine the production history of the dairy herd. Production records for 1981-1982 could be submitted for the months of Oct. 1, 1981, to Sept. 30, 1982.

Or, the producer could report the average of the two-year period beginning in 1981. This average would be from the same months, also.

The section of the proposed bill of most concern to individuals outside the dairy industry deals with the $10 per hundredweight incentive pay-

Meat producers, consumers affected

ment for reducing output by decreasing herd size.

In order to comply with this provision of the bill, an estimated increase of nearly 1.2 million head of dairy cattle would be taken to market, said Mike Sands, assistant professor of economics.

"If an additional 200,000 head of dairy cattle are slaughtered each quarter over the next year, this would be less than the projected increase," Sands said. "However, this would be an additional 100 million pounds of beef going on the market."

"The result would likely be a reduction of $1.50 to $2.50 per hundredweight on the average price of fed cattle per quarter. The impact on hogs would be a $1 to $1.50 per hundredweight reduction in the average price."

"If we're culling dairy cattle, there's going to be more red meat than there is a demand for."

People within the dairy industry are giving mixed reactions to the bill.

"It places undue hardship on all agriculture products. It puts pressure on other red-meat products. There has to be another solution. And what the solution is — I don't know," said Ed Call, professor in animal science extension.

"The bill would have a depressing effect on the red-meat market," he said. "The dairy industry has an obligation to correct their problem, but they can't do it simply."

"If we get to the point where a lot of dairy producers have to liquidate, it will result in a shortage situation, and the milk price to the consumer could go up," said Dick Dunham, extension specialist in dairy science.

"The real problem is we've been building the surplus for too long without any constructive way to get rid of it," Dunham said. "Now we're faced with getting rid of the surplus. By the time we do, we'll probably have a shortage of milk."

The bill also calls for a cut in support prices from $13.10 to $12.60 on Jan. 1, 1984, Scanlan said.

In addition, the support price would be reduced by another 50 cents, bringing the support price down to $12.10. The additional 50-cent decrease would be used to help finance the paid diversion program.

On April 1, 1985, if the Commodity Credit Corp., purchases are projected to be above 6 billion pounds of milk, the Secretary of Agriculture will implement a second 50-cent cut in the support price, Scanlan said.

By that time, the paid diversion program will have ended, he said, ending the need for the 50-cent self-help fee. However, the support price will still be at the $12.10 figure. If production is not projected to be more than 6 billion pounds, the support price will remain at $12.60, he said.

If CCC purchases are projected to be more than 5 billion pounds on Oct. 1, 1985, another 50-cent cut will be put into effect reducing price support to $11.60, Scanlan said.

If, however, purchases are below five billion pounds, the secretary can raise the price support, depending on the needs of the nation for milk products. This action would act as an incentive for dairy producers to increase production, he said.

"The dairy incentive program has more going for it than reducing the price support," Dunham said.

"The only way cutting prices will eventually reduce surplus is to starve out or financially break some producers where they can no longer operate," he said.

The problem with the program is that many producers are in a position that they can't cut back on production because of the high cost involved, Dunham added.

A new producer has to generate so much each month to meet expenses. If prices are cut, production must be increased to meet those expenses. Older producers who don't have a lot of recent capital investments can justify cutting back in production, Dunham said.

A dairy promotion program funded through a mandatory 15-cent assessment on dairy producers also would be implemented, Scanlan said. If states have a checkoff, the amount of the checkoff can be credited (up to 10 cents) against the national assessment, he said.

An amendment to the original bill requires the Secretary of Agriculture to take into account any adverse effect the reduction of dairy cattle herds would have on beef and pork producers. The amendment was introduced by Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, and provides for an orderly marketing of dairy cattle to prevent dumping during any single quarter, he said.

The bill passed through the Senate on Oct. 7, and is currently awaiting action in the House of Representatives, Scanlan said.

Bloodmobile
Oct. 25-28

Pre-signup table in the Union Oct. 18-21 & 24
from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

HALLOWEEN SPECIAL

PARTY INVITATIONS

25 preprinted invitations . . . $2.50
Choose from three ghoulish designs.

OR

DESIGN YOUR OWN 25 FOR $6.00
Camera-ready, black ink, printed two sides

At your neighborhood
copy shop . . .

OFFER GOOD SEPTEMBER 30 THROUGH OCTOBER 26.
PLEASE ALLOW THREE DAYS ON PERSONALIZED ORDERS.

Love
is Blind . . .

But you don't have to be.

We Specialize in Contact Lenses . . .

Tinted (to change
the color of your eyes)
Extended Wear (to sleep with) Bifocal (for reading difficulties)

Regular Type (for near and far sightedness)
Toric (for astigmatism)
Oxygen Permeable
(rigid)

Replacement Lenses and Solutions in Stock.

Dr. Paul E. Bullock, P.A.

Practice of Optometry

776-9461

404 Humboldt

Equine test track nears completion

By The Collegian Staff

Construction of the equine exercise and physiology research track is almost completed and research at the facility is scheduled to begin Nov. 1.

The research track was donated by the Kansas Quarter Horse Racing Association and Lynn Bradon, owner of Eureka Downs and Bradon Construction Co. The construction company supplied the time and manpower to build the research track.

"We also received a grant from the Quarter Horse Association to conduct cardiovascular and muscle physiology research," said Dennis Sigler, assistant professor of animal science and associate coordinator of the research group.

The departments of surgery and medicine, anatomy and physiology and animal sciences and industry will be involved in the research.

There are three objectives to this study, Sigler said.

"We want to establish an exercise model upon which future studies can be based and by which optimum training programs can be defined," he said.

"Another objective is to characterize effects of an alternative method of training," Sigler explained.

"The third is to initiate investigation into effects of physical exertion and susceptibility of infectious diseases," he said.

Tell us what you're doing!

Call the COLLEGIAN
532-6555

FREE
SPIRITS
Buy your
HALLOWEEN
COSTUMES
at Pastense

11 a.m.-5 p.m.
Mon.-Sat.
418 W. 6th St.
Topeka, Ks.

IF YOU CROSS
THE BORDER...
DO IT LEGALLY
WITH AN INSTANT
PASSPORT PHOTO
FROM .....

kinko's copies

1126 Laramie—Aggieville
537-7340

HAVING A PARTY? CALL US FOR FRESH
BAKED GOODS
AND SANDWICHES.

Mon.-Thurs. 6:30 a.m.-1:00 a.m.

Fri. 24 hours
Sat. till 6 p.m.

TODAY'S SPECIAL!
ICE CREAM
35c a DIP!

11th & Moro
Aggieville 537-4808

Listen To The Best Concert Information On

Concert Talk With Dave & Roger Weekdays At 5:45pm

Concert Talk II With Roger Heaton
Weeknights At 9:35pm

SPEEDWASH

in Aggieville
1118 Moro

- Open 24 Hours
- Free Parking Behind Building
- Newly Remodeled

You can depend on the guys
with the blue bow ties!

ESCAPE TO ASPEN/SNOWMASS
WITH UPC TRAVEL
January 1-8, 1984

$323/295 (with your own equipment)

TRIP INCLUDES:
ROUND TRIP MOTOR COACH
TRANSPORTATION TO AND FROM
SNOWMASS/ASPEN
5 NIGHTS LODGING AT
THE WOODBRIDGE CONDOMINIUMS
IN SNOWMASS
4 DAYS LIFT TICKETS (GOOD AT SNOWMASS, ASPEN AND BUTTERMILK)
4 DAY EQUIPMENT RENTAL
PRE PARTY
2 WILD WEST PARTIES
UPC TOTE BAG
WINE AND CHEESE PARTY

SIGN-UP :
8AM-3PM, K-STATE UNION
3RD FLOOR, ACTIVITIES CENTER

SPACES STILL AVAILABLE!

BEAUTY SUPPLIES
20% OFF with this ad
AT GLAMOUR WORLD
1104 Waters
WEST ON ANDERSON AVE.
BEHIND CURTIS MATHIS T.V.

DARK HORSE
TAVERN
LADIES
NITE!
Ladies get
1 Draw Free
1st pitcher for
$1 & $2
pitchers.
619 N. Manhattan

by Rick & Friends
404 Humboldt ph. 776-5222
Manhattan
Appointments
Closed Mon. Tues.-Fri. 9-6
Sat. 8-3

Scathing satire succeeds due to energetic performers

By TOM DOWNING
Collegian Reviewer

Review

"A History of the American Film" stretches the limits of extremity beyond the breaking point.

Using two-dimensional characters, each a conglomeration of movie types, Christopher Durang has created a satiric musical comedy — sparse in music and scathing in satire.

If you can stand to watch exaggerated characters unworthy of our sympathy, then you would have been prepared for Monday evening's performance by the American National Theatre and Academy company in McCain Auditorium.

ANTA is a group of 15 young actors who have recently completed their professional training at American academic theaters.

Durang's satire is lost on an audience unfamiliar with the movies being satirized. The play succeeded because of the energetic actors.

The main characters Jimmy and Loretta, played by Bruce Longworth and Suzanne Mills, chronicled the history of American films beginning with silent pictures.

Jimmy is a gangster, a successful businessman, a soldier, and an amnesia victim. He marries and regrets it, fathers several children, and drops the atomic bomb on Japan. Like the typical hero, Jimmy never dies, but spends a few weeks in the hospital instead.

His true love, Loretta, is convicted for Jimmy's murder, escapes from a chain gang and through typical movie contrivances winds up connected to the other characters in the play. She becomes an alcoholic, marries a boring underground agent from France and tries to have babies.

Jimmy's brother Hank also goes through this movie character metamorphosis, as do the other characters.

The 12 supporting cast members have the comic timing this play needs to pull off the rapid fire lines and non-stop silliness.

In the old movie tradition, the plot goes all over the place. One musical number, "We're in a Salad," was wonderfully done.

Some cast members were dressed up as parts of a salad. The costumes were vaguely reminiscent of the vegetables being portrayed.

Although the songs are funny and clever they don't come out of the plot line. This gives the play a bumpy feeling.

It took awhile for the audience to get used to this kind of humor. The first 20 minutes brought little audience reaction.

The set was made up of a facade, the proscenium arch one sees in theaters, and acting areas in front and inside the proscenium which became the various places. About 10 feet up on both sides of the facade, there were two doors that opened for some of the shorter scenes.

To show the passage of time after Loretta and Jimmy first meet, a character dressed as God opens the doors and tears off pages of a large calendar and throws the pages off stage.

Later, when Loretta is in prison, she pleads to God for mercy but God appears and says, "No." But for Christmas the Virgin Mary appears and grants governor's pardons for some of the prisoners, including Loretta.

Theater seats were wheeled in and a strobe light flashed to the sound effect of a projector during the movie house scenes. Sometimes these sound effects covered the singing.

Overall, the performance was more disappointing than impressive. At least 15 patrons expressed their opinions of Durang's often offensive satire by leaving before the play was finished. Many more began walking out before the applause was over.

Weaver's film chronicles survival

By GARY JOHNSON
Collegian Reviewer

Review

"We're survivors and that's why we're here. Surviving doesn't mean lying on your back," Weavers' member Fred Hellerman said about the group's 1980 Christmas Eve reunion concert at Carnegie Hall.

Surviving for the Weavers meant enduring the McCarthy era and being accused of being Communists. They persevered through those times when their recording contract was dropped, their records wouldn't be played on the radio, and interviews of them were not allowed. In the midst of that uproar, the Weavers performed a historic Dec. 24, 1955 concert at Carnegie Hall.

Director Jim Brown presents the history of the Weavers' career in his film "Wasn't That a Time!" He adopts a simple style of filming that reflects the Weavers' style of music. At times the approach is similar to home movies, but always the effect is honest and sincere.

Now deceased Weavers' member Lee Hays wrote and narrates the film with the same wit and sagacity that marked his earlier contributions to the group. It was Lee Hays who brought the group back together and was instrumental in arranging its Carnegie Hall reunion concert.

The film traces the events leading up to the reunion concert, starting with the picnic at Hays' home when Ronnie Gilbert, Fred Hellerman, and Pete Seger were reunited, through rehearsing their old repertoire and adding new songs.

Interspersed along the way are interviews with many of the people who were greatly affected by the music of the Weavers. People such as Arlo Guthrie, Mary Travers of Peter, Paul and Mary and Don McLean speak of the importance that the Weavers had in bringing authentic folk music into the American mainstream.

An interview with Holly Near reveals the importance of Ronnie Gilbert's onstage performances where she would throw her head back, in a way that no woman had dared do before, and sing at the top of her lungs.

The film builds to the group's reunion concert. They open with a brilliant rendition of "Wimoweh" that is filled with all the energy and high-spirited zeal that they brought to their music 30 years before. They finish the evening with one of their biggest hits ever, "Goodnight, Irene."

Other songs featured in the film include "When the Saints Come Marching In," which they sing at the opening picnic, "Kisses Sweeter Than Wine," and "Wasn't That a Time."

Nine months after the concert, Lee Hays died and, according to his wishes, was buried beneath a compost pile.

"Wasn't That a Time!" is a film that definitely should not be missed. It is difficult to imagine anyone, no matter what his taste in music might be, who would not be affected by the spiritual energy and enthusiasm that the Weavers' music abounds with.

Singer's music reveals personality

By MELISSA BRUNE
Collegian Reporter

About 150 people listened to Kevin Chase play the guitar and sing original music at the Nooners Tuesday. Chase is a senior in animal sciences and industry.

"This definitely has been the most successful Nooners we've had," said Drew Hartel, Nooners coordinator.

Chase's music tends to be slow, sad songs. He said people from the audience and people he knows always ask him if he is depressed because that is what he shows through his music. Actually, he said, he is not depressed at all.

"I feel lucky to have the life I've had, and I have a good outlook on the future," Chase said. "I'm happy with what I'm doing."

Some of the music Chase has written and performed at the Nooners have titles such as "Thinking About You," "I Cried for You," "Soft Spoken Me, Unknowing You," "Things Won't Be the Same," "The Last Time," and "Still In the Tree."

"I think music is the best way for a person to express himself," Chase said. Most of his music is based on personal experiences.

"My songs tend to reveal quite a bit."

He said his most personal song is "Things Won't Be the Same." The song reveals true happenings from his life and asks the question, "Man's goal in this world is to live, but why does it have to be his life he always has to give?"

Chase has been playing guitar since he was 8 years old. When he was 12, he wrote his first song, which he performed Tuesday. The song, entitled "Dead Dogs," was about his two dogs, which went "squash, squash in the middle of the road," according to the words of the song. He has developed his music since then, but he keeps it personal.

"I really don't like singing other people's music because I feel they wrote it; let them sing it."

He wrote the song "The Last Time" for the K-State Singers, of which he has been a member for two years. Chase said the Singers were like a family, and he wrote the song to tell them how he felt. The song says, "Don't let it be the last time to sing our songs."

Chase said that he has to work to express himself through his music. He often builds songs around a title only, or he works with music that needs words. He said the words and the music to a song come to him as phrases that he builds his songs around.

"It has to say what I'm feeling."

Chase sang a song he had written just the night before, "Still in the Tree." The song created an analogy, comparing love to a fruit tree: "Like the fruit upon the tree, love has its seasons."

He said he believed life has a lot of questions. He would like to pursue his music, but he said it was such a big chance that he is reluctant.

"I think a lot of people think about the same things that I do, but not to the extent that they want to say anything about it."

TONIGHT Reggae Music by
the Avalon
PRESSURE
—PLUS—
BUCK A BOTTLE NIGHT
$1.00 Domestic Bottled Beer
All Night Long
THURSDAY—LADIES NIGHT and PRESSURE
Friday and Saturday—GLOW—Fusion Rock
1122 Moro UPSTAIRS IN AGGIEVILLE 539-9703

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity
Rep.—TOM SEELE
• Supplemental Retirement Annuities
• Investment Options
• Free Transfer Privileges
• State Deferred Compensation
• Life Insurance
1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 613/276-7095

National Collegiate Fun Weeks
Steamboat Springs, Colorado
January 2-7 & January 9-11
YOUR WINTER BREAK GREAT SKI ESCAPE INCLUDES:
• 4 days 3 nights deluxe lodging
• 4 day lift ticket
• FREE one year American Ski Association Blue Ski/American membership
• FREE beginner ski lesson
• 2 nights of parties with entertainment, complimentary 2.5 hour and pop
• Mountain ski race with prizes
• Reduced rates on equipment rental
• Luggage tags, All taxes, Steamboat discount coupon book and MORE!
$156 $171
FOR PROFESSIONAL SKIING AND WINTER SPORTS
CALL TOLL FREE 1-800-321-5911
OR YOUR LOCAL TRAVEL AGENCY
Reserve Your Trip: 7-10 Day Refund Policy, Closes 10/25

BUSHWACKERS
• THE • FUNDRIKERY
PARTY TIME!
Wednesday
Tonic Nite
All tonic drinks $1
Happy Hour: 4-9
2 fers on hi balls
75¢ draws $2 blended drinks
Drink of the Week: Colossal Hot Dog & A Stein for $2
Tiger's Tail During all World Series Games
A reciprocating Club
531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

Brother's
AGGIEVILLE
1122 Moro
**BROTHER'S 11TH ANNUAL HALLOWEEN PARTY—MONDAY, OCTOBER 31ST**
TONIGHT—GIRLS FREE 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. PLUS 1 FREE STEIN
THURSDAY—DRINK 'N DROWN
THE CLOCKS
Tonight and Thursday
This Weekend—THE SHAPES—Rock 'n Roll 539-9064

AIR Bards
WIN:
• 1st Prize—a keg of beer
• 2nd Prize—a pizza party
Fall Flash Bash
*ENTER THE STUDENT FOUNDATION AIR BAND CONTEST NOVEMBER 4 AT THE FORMER 5TH STREET EXCHANGE LOCATION.
*ENTRY FEE—$15.00 PER BAND (INCLUDES ADMISSION TO DANCE AND FREE BEER ALL NIGHT.)
*BANDS MAY ONLY USE HAND HELD PROPS.
*FIRST 8 BANDS TO REGISTER WILL HAVE THIS RARE OPPORTUNITY TO COMPETE AT OUR ALL UNIVERSITY DANCE.
AIR BAND REGISTRATION FORM
RETURN WITH $15 TO HOLLIS HOUSE BY FRIDAY, OCT. 21
NAME _____ PHONE _____
ADDRESS _____ # BAND MEMBERS _____
SF
SPONSORED BY THE STUDENT FOUNDATION
HOLLIS HOUSE—532-6266

Invest in FALL at WEST LTD. Oct. 20-Oct. 27

Traditional Clothing is back stronger than ever this fall. In order to help you make a better investment West Ltd is Reducing the price of all fall Suits & Sports Coats by 20%. Including: Bill Blass, Hart Schaffner, Marx, Cricketeer Robert Surrey

To help you further West Ltd is Reducing all Topcoats by 20%

—London Fog
—Stratojac
—Misty Harbor

West Ltd.

327 Poyntz
Downtown

Victorious volleyballers

Shantelle Hietbrink embraces Renee Whitney after K-State's second-game victory during the volleyball match against the Fort Hays State Tigerettes in Ahearn Field House Tuesday night.

Staff/Allen Eystone

Injured arm sidelines Bogue; Dickey unsure of substitute

By KEVIN DALE
Staff Writer

Wildcat quarterback Doug Bogue was forced to sit out Tuesday's practice due to an injury he sustained to his throwing arm.

Jim Dickey, K-State head football coach, said he plans to work his other quarterbacks according to Bogue's status.

"We're going to start working with rotating our quarterbacks around and getting some playing time with Stan Weber and Donnie (Campbell) and getting a look at them," Dickey said.

Bogue injured his arm last weekend as the University of Kansas Jayhawks whipped the 'Cats 31-3. When asked if he planned to start Bogue in Saturday's game against the University of Missouri, Dickey said he was not sure who was going to start for now.

"It is going to depend on how much he (Bogue) gets to practice this week, his arm is pretty bruised up," Dickey added.

Weber and Campbell are both juniors who have seen very little playing time up to this point. Weber is a good running quarterback and also is a very intelligent player, Dickey said. He has been battling back from a torn ligament in his knee which kept him out of the 1982 season.

Campbell is an excellent drop-back passer with the strongest arm of the three varsity quarterbacks.

The situation with the rest of the injured Wildcats looks pretty positive as the team regained the use of a couple of key players.

Tailback Mark Hundley, who, because of a broken hand, has yet to carry the ball for K-State this year, has returned to the lineup against KU.

"My hand feels good," Hundley said. "I made some mistakes against KU because I was out so long. The cast limits me a little, but I can do most everything I did before the injury. I naturally carry the ball in my left hand so the broken right hand won't affect that."

Linebacker Bill Keeley missed the KU game with a sprained ankle he sustained in practice last week, but he did return to practice on Tuesday.

"Bill didn't move around real well tonight," Dickey said. "But he is moving a lot better than he did on Friday, so we hope he will just get better day by day."

Senior linebacker Stu Peters, who has been bothered by a foot injury, will definitely be out for the rest of the season, and he will apply for a hardship ruling.

"The doctors said the only way that he is going to get well is through rest, and it has really been bothering him since the OU (University of Oklahoma) game," Dickey said. "So we won't get Stu back."

Dickey also said the team morale is low right now, and that the coaches are going to have to work on getting the players up for the rest of the season.

"We didn't have a very enthusiastic practice," he said. "Everyone is walking around with their chins on their chests. We are going to have to bounce back and play better this week."

"We will need to regroup and face the challenge of finishing this season up to have any kind of chance of having some success because it is really easy to go downhill at this point when you're 2-4. We are going to find out real quick what we are made of."

Basketball tryouts

This is a reminder that there will be men's junior varsity basketball tryouts tonight and Thursday night at 6. The tryouts will be in the gymnasium, not Ahearn Field House.

Cocaine abuse infiltrates world of professional athletes

There are now six more candidates for professional sports' Hall of Shame:

— Willie Wilson, Willie Aikens and Jerry Martin. All three Kansas City Royals teammates pleaded guilty to charges of attempting to possess cocaine last week.

— Vida Blue. An ex-Royals' and former Cy Young Award-winning pitcher who pleaded guilty to a federal misdemeanor charge of possessing three grams of cocaine Monday.

— Michael Ray Richardson. The three-time All-Star guard for the New Jersey Nets refused a National Basketball Association order to report to a New York treatment program last week; after he admitted he had succumbed again to cocaine dependency.

— Tony Peters. An All-Pro safety for the Super Bowl champions, the Washington Redskins, he pleaded guilty to drug trafficking at the time Richardson made his announcement.

For their misdeeds, Richardson is the first NBA player to be suspended under a drug policy agreed to on Sept. 28 by the league and players' association, while Peters was fined $10,000, placed on four years' probation and ordered to perform 500 hours of community service. Wilson, Aikens, Martin and Blue all are scheduled for sentencing on Nov. 17 and face maximum penalties of one year in prison and $5,000 fines.

Shocking news? It shouldn't be.

Consider the rash of more than 30 National Football League players who have sought help from the league's rehabilitation program at the Hazelden Foundation in Center City, Minn., since ex-Miami Dolphin player Don Reese shocked the sports world with his Sports Illustrated disclosure of cocaine use on a major scale in pro football.

Or the suspension of four players from preseason exhibition games and the first four regular season games this year: running back Pete Johnson and defensive end Ross Browner of the Cincinnati Bengals, New Orleans Saints' defensive back Greg Stenrick and St. Louis Cardinals' linebacker E.J. Junior. In addition to their suspension, they all had their salaries docked; in Browner's case, this amounts to a hefty $35,225 fine.

Not even "America's favorite team," the Dallas Cowboys, is able to display an untarnished halo. There were five Cowboys involved (but not indicted) in a major federal cocaine investigation, including Tony Dorsett, Tony Hill, Ron Spriggs, Harvey Martin and Larry Betha.

Despite the seriousness of the use of cocaine in pro sports, do people really care or find it really appalling upon receiving the news of a professional athlete snorting nose candy? If not, then they may have proved a case in point.

In a Sports Illustrated article, "What's Happened To Our Heroes?"

Geoff Zahn, the California Angels' pitcher and a devout member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, gave his explanation on why society is becoming increasingly permissive of athletes' misdeeds:

"Society or whatever the force it is — Satanism, humanism — has done an outstanding job of duping people into making things like cocaine, marijuana, intoxication by alcohol socially acceptable. We no longer think of it as something wrong, but as an alternative, as a pressure release."

Another theory that may explain society's permissiveness is that sometimes it's hard to imagine cocaine having a serious effect on a player's performance — despite evidence which proves otherwise.

If Richardson says he doesn't need any help, who knows? Maybe he's right. Anyone that can score 13.2 points per game, dish out 5.5 assists each time out and average 2.37 steals a game — in the NBA, mind you — must be all right.

And how about Darrell Porter, who underwent drug treatment during his days with the Kansas City Royals? He came back from his treatment to win last year's Most Valuable Player award while a catcher for the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

Or George Rogers, a Heisman Trophy running back who, despite having confessed to spending over $10,000 for cocaine his first season with New Orleans Saints, went on to lead the National Football Conference in rushing and win Rookie-of-the-Year honors?

Or the Royals' speedy Wilson, who won the American League batting title in 1982?

Whether or not cocaine impairs an athlete's abilities, one thing is certain that may explain society's ambivalence over the morality of using cocaine: an estimated four to five million adult Americans snort the white powder regularly.

As a matter of fact, such widespread use of cocaine has people barely mentioning the most talked-about "problem" of the '60s and '70s — marijuana — even though it is still illegal and widely used.

The media also has done its share of making cocaine dependency by athletes no longer a shocking issue.

The locker rooms these days are full of journalists who are only concerned with obtaining objective and accurate news and who are viewed as an adversary by many coaches and players alike; this is in stark contrast to the old days when sports writers and pro athletes were such close drinking partners that any news that would harm a player's image would be buried deep in the paper — if it got printed at all.

Such eager reporting of virtually every wrongdoing by an athlete may have led to an overplay, meaning the readers are no longer stunned by an expose of an athlete as they believe nearly all athletes are up to something.

And there's money — lots of it. If Richardson, for example, doesn't get picked up on waivers soon, the Nets will be forced to pay his reported $475,000 annual guaranteed contract. Sometimes one can't help but wonder what an athlete will do with that kind of money.

While these factors point favorably in cocaine being slowly accepted by society, it nevertheless must be realized as a serious problem that needs correctional measures.

League officials are to be commended for their show of disapproval of drug misuse by making the public aware of the situation, administering forms of punishments (including adding a clause which voids a player's contract should he be found misusing drugs), testing, etc., but they need to go one step further: take away titles and awards won by players who have used cocaine as well as other illegal drugs.

Otherwise, we are in for quite a dilemma; the "hero" image will have a new meaning — as well as will the Halls of Fame.

Dupree receives unfair criticism

The props were available for a great show.

The university had a winning tradition. He would follow a line of great stars who had previously performed at the school.

He was big and fast. He would become a star and win awards.

Debuting slowly, he spent his first four performances backstage, but in the fifth performance, a change in the script put him in the spotlight.

He performed well — too well. The director was never satisfied. He always wanted more.

In his second season, he was expected to carry the show. It was unfair. The show received lukewarm reviews. He received most of the blame, even though the supporting cast also was not living up to its advanced billing.

The audience grew restless. Fan mail turned to hate mail. The director continued to find faults in his performances.

He was young. The critics were harsh. The pressure was too great. He left the show.

The curtain fell.

The names were left out of this story because "who" is not important, "what" is.

The story is about a young man, far from home, who, no matter what he did, couldn't live up to everyone's expectations.

The person whom he should have been able to turn to for help turned the other way.

The University of Oklahoma Sooners were supposed to be strong contenders for the national college football championship this season; this assumption was based almost entirely on the previous year's accomplishments of one player — Marcus Dupree.

OU Coach Barry Switzer is a man with his head on the chopping block. Sooner fans have endured two consecutive seasons with four losses in each season, including back-to-back losses to Nebraska; they won't stand for another such season.

Switzer knows his job is on the line. Dupree was the one who could save his job, but Switzer blew it. He constantly shifted the pressure to win that was on him onto the shoulders of Dupree.

No purpose was served by Switzer's constant publicizing of Dupree's practice habits and weight problems. If there were problems, he should have taken care of them in private. All he succeeded in was putting even more pressure on the shoulders of a young man who was homesick.

Switzer is not a good coach, but he is a good recruiter. If a recruit wants giant palm trees in Norman, Okla., there will be giant palm trees in Norman.

Dupree didn't handle the situation very well by running off, but many 19-year-olds don't handle pressure well, either.

Switzer showed what an insensitive, self-serving individual he is by declaring that Dupree was suspended from the team before he even knew what had happened to him.

Switzer is now shifting the blame for Dupree leaving Oklahoma to the media and Dupree's mother. Switzer gave the media most of the ammunition they used to shoot Dupree down, and what mother wouldn't want her unhappy son near home.

Dupree has been condemned for constantly being indecisive. If people got off his back long enough for him to have time to think things out, he'd be much better off.

Dupree doesn't want to sit out next season in accordance with the transfer rule no matter which school he attends.

If the Sooners don't beat Nebraska this year, Switzer should get sacked. The elimination of Switzer would eliminate many of Dupree's problems.

Don't count out an encore performance by Dupree in Oklahoma.

What happened at OU could happen at nearly any university across the country, where the pressure to win has created "win-at-all-cost" mongers out of coaches and increased the pressure on the players to perform well.

It's time for the media, fans and coaches to realize that they are dealing with young men who don't need any added pressures while attending school. College is rough enough as it is.

Intramural face-ball

White Lightning's Bill Annan gets a handful of face as he tried to prevent a pass reception against Marlatt 6, during last night's semifinal intramural football game. White Lightning defeated Marlatt 6, 27-6.

Staff/John Sleezer

Floods dampen working conditions in Thompson Hall

By STEVE MILLS
Collegian Reporter

During the past few years floods have plagued the basement of Thompson Hall.

Although the Division of University Facilities has temporarily relieved the problem several times, James R. Underwood, head of the Department of Geology, said he believes it is time to permanently remedy the situation.

"The night that I spoke to the faculty as part of my interview for my job (in 1977), it had rained five inches that afternoon and the basement was flooded with a couple of inches of water," Underwood said. "In successive years, the flooding has been repeated since I've been here."

"The flooding problem generally occurs with heavy rainfall. However, about six weeks ago we had a flood on a bright, clear day and it was simply a backflow into the building from a blocked sewer line in the city's system," he said.

The flooding is caused by the backup from sanitary sewer facilities and from some storm water, Bruce McCallum, city director of public works, said.

McCallum said the problem can possibly be helped, but he said he is not sure whether it can be permanently solved.

"The problem that we seem to run into is apparently two things," he said. "The basement elevation and basement drainage out of Thompson is almost the same elevation as our sanitary sewer main."

"Consequently, anytime we have flows in that main or any blockage downstream, that's the first place it goes into because of the relative elevation," McCallum said. "The line itself is fairly well near capacity and sometimes it handles water a little bit slower and backs up."

"There have also been some significant additions on that line by recent additions to the University (Durland Hall Phase II). Anytime you add new facilities to the line, you increase the flow in the line," McCallum said. "As they continue to build additions on campus and add to that line, they will be adding to the problem."

Fred Ferguson, director of buildings and utilities, told Underwood that the problem in Thompson could be solved by installing a $1,500 backflow pump. But the pump cannot be installed until July 1984 due to a lack of funding.

"The pump won't solve the city's backup problem, but it will prevent water from getting in the building," Ferguson said.

McCallum said repairs would cost substantially more.

"The only possible thing we could do is to take the existing line and replace it. I'm not sure that the expense of doing that will alleviate the problems we are having at Thompson," McCallum said.

Because of the building's location, McCallum estimates the cost of repairing the problem to be a minimum of $50,000. To fix the line, the city would have to tear up Anderson Avenue, he said.

"We have experienced a couple or more calls on that line from the past year, but that's not anything out of the ordinary," McCallum said. If the city fixed the line, funding would come from the city, he said.

"I'm not sure $50,000 will correct the problem. It may be a situation that no matter what we do the problem will remain because of the elevation difference, and you can't change that," McCallum said.

Not only does Underwood view the flooding as a structural problem but also a potentially dangerous health hazard.

"It worries me because when sewage backs up in the building, it's a tremendous health hazard," Underwood said. "When the sewage backs up, it sometimes causes the whole building to smell bad."

"There is always the danger of electrocution, the inconvenience of the use of space, plus people getting their books and personal items wet (lockers are located in the basement)," he said. "I worry about electrocution because we've got a lot of electrical gear down there, and people are turning on and plugging in things that aren't properly grounded."

"When people's health and safety is involved, I think a $1,500 item is justified," Underwood said. "It's been a frustrating experience because it happens so frequently. We've been collectively working together to try and solve it and the solution continues to elude us."

Citizens dig for profits in backyard gas strike

By The Associated Press

ERIE, Pa. — A backyard boom in natural gas wells has hit Erie County, where homeowners, pizza shops, funeral homes, churches, florists, and schools are drilling to tap into a potential bonanza.

"People are finding out that there's gas just about everywhere you drill," said driller Ron Oberlander, who is backlogged with 19 orders for wells and has a six-week waiting list.

"Drilling for gas isn't a gamble anymore. It's cheaper than a new car, and you can get your investment back in six to eight years. How can you go wrong?" he added as a rotary drill bore through a yard.

But some utilities and gas producers warn of trouble.

"It's a backyard Trojan horse that could cause havoc in the future," said Tim Merrill, executive director of the Pennsylvania Natural Gas Associates, a trade group. "Gas is an explosive commodity. I know how dangerous gas can be."

The gas rush, fueled by a desire to reduce or eliminate soaring utility bills, really hit last year when Pennsylvania issued 789 drilling permits for Erie County and 382 wells were drilled, triple the number in 1979.

Those numbers should be eclipsed this year, state officials say, and most of the action involves shallow wells drawing gas from a shale formation 300 feet to 1,100 feet beneath the surface.

Geologists say the shale formations, which date to glacial times and extend into New York and Ohio, have been producing natural gas in Erie County for 120 years.

Near Lake Erie, the shales are closer to the surface than anywhere else. They have no commercial value because the wells produce small amounts of gas, but people are sinking $7,000 to $15,000 into the ground in hopes of finding a gas supply to heat their homes or run their businesses for 20 to 30 years.

"They are low-volume but long-life wells. The gas bleeds from the shale. There are no guarantees, but a well can last for the life of a home," said John Harper, a geologist with the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources.

"Nobody's going to become a millionaire. But for domestic needs, for small businesses and municipalities, I think they're ideal. As long as you have a reputable driller and plumber, I heartily recommend it," he added.

Nevin Wintrod of Girard spent $8,800 for a 1,000-foot shale well because his yearly gas bill, now $1,600, has doubled in the past five years.

"It's an investment, a hedge against inflation," said Wintrod, a teacher of traffic and industrial safety at Edinboro University. "If it produces enough for us to heat our home, we can recoup the expenses in five years."

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.65 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.25 per inch; Five consecutive days: $3.95 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $3.75 per inch. (Deadline: 11:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

ANNOUNCEMENT 01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, $50 for students with ID and $1 for all others. (281)

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours: Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Maries, 1631 Humboldt, 539-5200. (32-50)

GET JOSH McDowell's four books on the secular religions, non-Christian religions, the cults and the occult when you register for KC83 this week. For more information call Mark Austin, Rick Schulze or Lori Lang at 539-4641. (41-44)

SUSAN WARREN Dancers Fall Concert, Sunday, October 23, 3:00 p.m., McCain Auditorium. Tickets, McCain Box Office, 532-6428. (42-44)

TONIGHT!!!

October 19

All You Can Eat Mexican Sandwich Buffet

4:30-9:30 p.m.

To celebrate the 4th Anniversary of Raul's Escondido

IF YOU want to drink it's your business. If you want to stop, it's our business. Alcoholics Anonymous meets Thursday noon, 1021 Denison. (42)

WOMEN OF BOYD and Putnam: Tom Hawk Photography will be taking your outdoor portraits today from 1:30-5:00 p.m. at the Quinlan Wildlife Area. No appointment necessary, no sitting fee and no obligation. We will also take Ford and West women who were unable to come last week. (42)

ATTENTION 02

TRAVEL—We will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (11)

FANTASY-GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

HURRY TO Balfour! To introduce you to our new arrivals, all Footjoy aerobic shoes and racquetball shoes and gloves are 20% off now through October 29th. (39-49)

THINKING ABOUT going to KC 83? Register this week and you'll receive Josh McDowell's four books on "Understanding Today's Religions" in one hardback volume, free! For more information call Mark Austin, Rick Schulze or Lori Lang at 539-4641. (41-44)

THE K-STATE MARCHING BAND IN CONCERT

Thurs. Oct. 20

8:00 p.m.

McCain Auditorium

FREE

BEN: WILSON has instructions! Meet me at the Complex Show—"An Evening in Limbo" this weekend. Be in front of the Purple Masque at 8:00 p.m. Gus (42)

COZUMEL—YUCATAN Peninsula—Mexico. Yucatan Field Course: Natural History, Three biology credits, Winter Intercession, January 2-15 from Johnson County Community College. For more information 1-866-0170. (42-44)

FOR RENT—MISC 03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wig, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electricals and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzelli's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11)

HALLOWEEN COSTUMES—Sales and rentals, masks, makeup, wigs, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11)

FOR RENT—APTS 04

BRAND NEW two bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. Call 776-3804. (35-44)

LARGE, ONE bedroom, laundry facilities, three blocks from campus. Available mid-December. $275/month and electric. 539-8968. (40-44)

VERY NICE, one-bedroom apartment, one block from campus, $240 per month. Call 776-6409. (41-45)

FOR RENT: Mont Blue studio apartment—spring semester. Call 539-2019 after 5:00 p.m. (41-44)

BASEMENT APARTMENT—Two bedroom, remodeled this summer, two blocks west of campus. Call Jim, 539-1135. (42-50)

APARTMENT ONE block from campus, $130 per month per person. Holds "3." All bills paid, 537-1478. (42-43)

FOR RENT—HOUSES 05

FIVE BEDROOM, quiet neighborhood. No lease, $500 per month. Call Brian 1-456-7423 after 5:30 p.m. (40-44)

NICE, THREE-bedroom house, Northview. Garage, appliances, new carpeting, paint. Couples, older student. Lease, $395. Call 776-9765. (40-44)

FOR RENT—Spacious, furnished, three bedroom home, three blocks from campus, two baths, utility room, garage. References required. Shown by appointment. Call 776-1283 after 5:00 p.m. (42-48)

FOR SALE—AUTO 06

1968 AMX classic 390—automatic, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, stereo, 5,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Excellent condition. $3400. Might trade. 537-4782. (39-48)

1980 DATSUN 4x4 with top. Good condition. 776-8182 after 5:00 p.m. Monday-Friday. Weekends anytime. (40-44)

1979 BLUE MGB. Excellent condition, low mileage. Call 776-8055 after 7:00 p.m. (40-44)

1972 MGB convertible. New paint, new top, is in great shape. Call 539-3092. (41-45)

1975 TRANS Am, power steering, power brakes, power windows, runs great. Call 776-9044. (41-44)

FOR SALE—MISC 07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risqué greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (lt. blue), USC (white)-others $12.50 each postpaid. S-M-L-XL. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-801-635-1085. (32-45)

EMBROIDERED DRESSES—Beautiful hand-embroidered dresses from Mexico. Pure cotton, comfortable, inexpensive. Great for gift-giving. Write for information. Montezuma's Revenge, Box 50150, Austin, Texas 78753. (36-45)

DELUXE OLIVETTI typewriter. Perfect condition. Call 532-6715, ask for Pete. (38-42)

VW BUG ACCESSORIES

Chrome wheel rings, door handles, hub caps, valve covers, upholstery kits, walnut dash knobs. 1-494-2388 J & L Bug Service.

FOUR NU vs. KSU football tickets, $30 each. Call 776-1244 or 539-9186. (41-43)

PHONE—"HUMMINGBIRD," beige, brand new, retail $60 with 25 ft. cord, selling for $45. Contact Anne at 532-6446, 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., 776-2046 after 5:00 p.m. (41-42)

ONE-HALF Arab bay gelding, three years old, green broke. Call 776-9746 after 6:00 p.m. (42-46)

TEAC C-3RX professional deck. Mint. $425. Call 537-9755. (42-44)

TWO BAMBOO chairs, two wicker partitions. Reasonable offer. Aaron, 776-3379. (42-43)

TIMEX COMPUTER with 16K Ram, full size keyboard with 12 key punch pad, software. Asking $175. Call 532-3980, 532-5201. (42-43)

TWO and one-half year old Bassett with papers, $15. Allergies, forced to sell. Call 537-1478. (42-43)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES 08

1972 AUBURN, 14' x 70'; two bedroom. Includes appliances, washer, dryer and air. Call 539-2458 after 5:00 p.m. (41-44)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES 09

1973 YAMAHA 250 street, 9,900 miles. Good shape, $400. Negotiable. 537-2087 evenings. (41-43)

1979 SUZUKI GS550, 18,000 miles, new chain, battery, helmets included. $900 or best offer. 776-1332 after 5:00 p.m. (421)

1975 KAWASAKI 175 Enduro. Excellent condition, must sell. Asking $275. Call 776-9798. (42-45)

FOUND 10

A KNIFE was found in the alley behind Seaton. Can identify and claim by calling John at 539-2743. (41-43)

BROWN JACKET found October 10th in Fairchild Hall. Call 537-9024 to identify and claim. (41-43)

TODD HUGHES—Your Cross pen is in 303 Willard. Please bring I.D. (41-43)

CALCULATOR FOUND outside Umlerger Hall. Call 532-3579 to identify and claim. (42-44)

HELP WANTED 13

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields: $500-$1200 monthly. Signaling. Free information. Write J.C. Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

WORKSTUDY POSITION available—Must have Workstudy, 10-12 hours weekly. Apply Instructional Media Center, Blumont Hall, Rm. 016. Ask for Ron or Janette, 532-5926. (40-44)

FITNESS INSTRUCTOR needed—morning and afternoon shifts at Magic Mirror Figure Salon. Call now for interview, 539-1993. (41-42)

BARTENDER, EXPERIENCE preferred. Call Cindy, 539-0230. (41-43)

KANSAS STATE University's Special Services Program is seeking applications for a temporary part-time Math Coordinator position. The application deadline for this position is 5:00 p.m., October 24, 1983. Position Description—Responsibilities for this position include managing a laboratory setting with under-prepared students in the area of basic math and algebra skills. Small group math and lab sessions will be conducted on a daily basis. Applicants should have teaching experience and an awareness and sensitivity of the needs of educationally disadvantaged students, and ability to individualize and group instruction. Knowledge of computer assisted instruction in math is highly desirable. A Master's degree in math is preferred. Annual salary for the temporary (7 month, part-time) position is $5,040. Send letter of application and resume with names and addresses of three references to: Educational Support Services, 201 Holton Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, KS 66506. KSU is an EO/AA Employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply. (41-43)

BOSTON ADVENTURE—Explore opportunities of exciting city while working as live-in child care worker. Many openings. One year commitment. Contact Allene Fick, Child-Care Placement Service, 149 Buckminster Road, Brookline, Mass. 02146. Phone 1-617-566-6294. (42)

LOST 14 HP-34C. Lost in Durland or Seaton. Please call 776-0441 or 532-5580. (41-43)

CALCULATOR: LOST October 13, possibly in Cardwell Hall. If found, please call 776-2110. Reward offered. (42-44)

PERSONAL 16

WOOF-WOOF—Four years ago Monday was the start of a wonderful relationship. Let's see if we can make it a lifetime. Love, Boo-Boo. (42)

DELTA SIG Mom of S.S.: I can't wait until we meet. I'll have a rose between my teeth and bells on my feet. (42)

CONGRATS PUTNAM for your excellent programming and for your well deserved "Hall of the Month." (42)

TRIANGLE JEFF—Thinking of you too! Thanks for the roses, and I'm looking forward to November 4 and 5. Now put this paper down and get back to the drawing board! Hi Dad, Where's our dinner? (42)

TAMMY JEAN—Here's hoping you have a great day, the inspirational Winebag is on the way, bringing Rona, Wade, and all your friends, to wish you happy birthday once again.—Wade. (42)

DIANA G.—We've come a long way, haven't we? Hope your 19th is super! K.M. (42)

HEY WAVE — Alley Oop, up to our place and we'll give you a long neck you'll never forget! Happy Birthday and thanks for nothing! (42)

SIGMA CHI Kevin L.—The time is growing old so near, when my identity will become clear. Your mom is not very tall, but she knows she has the best kid of all. Love, Mom. (42)

BETA BALLARD. Although they didn't play PYT, seeing you again was the key. Thank for the shirt; it fits great! When do I get a sweatshirt? On our next date? Happy Birthday! HGIL (42)

DELTA SIG—Randy Crane: Mom has something good in the oven for you. Love, Mom. (42)

TROY: HAPPY Birthday, Big Guy! You're a great friend and you'll always have a special place in my heart. K.P. (42)

SCOTT W. and Barton H.—Any plans for Friday night yet? Can football players really swing dance? Two Alpha Xi "Cowgirls." (42)

K.D. Peterson: We hope your 21st was the best it could be with or without a negligee. A.F., S.S., D.B. (42)

ROOMMATE WANTED 17

ROOMMATE NEEDED for November 1. Cozy home near campus, own room, partially furnished washer and dryer, $120/month, no pets, graduate student preferred. 537-0340. (38-42)

FEMALE WANTED to share nice house, $85 plus one-half utilities. Good location, 537-1570. (40-44)

TWO FEMALE roommates wanted—$100 plus one-half electricity. Available November 1. One-half block from campus. 539-6553. (40-42)

TO SHARE new apartment one-half block from campus. Full carpet, dishwasher, air/heat, one-third utilities, $155 rent. Call 537-9011. (41-44)

NEEDED—FEMALE roommate A.S.A.P. Nice, clean home, good location! Call 537-2222 between 1:00-5:00 p.m. every afternoon. (41-44)

MALE ROOMMATE needed to share nice two-bedroom apartment. Call 537-4159 before 8:30 a.m. or after 5:00 p.m. Keep trying! (41-42)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share four-bedroom apartment through May. Good location. Call 539-6849. (42-51)

Captain Cosmo

By Doug Yearout

Bradley

By Mich Johnson

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Staff/Andy Schrock

Hosing

Dalbert Kaiser, employee of R.D. Andersen Construction Co., uses a high-pressure water jet to remove loose rocks and old mortar from the surface of Nichols Gymnasium.

Panel calls for stability in food stamp policy

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Some Reagan administration "reforms" in the food stamp program intended to cut waste and fraud are costing more to administer than they save, state program administrators told Congress Tuesday.

A panel of food stamp officials from eight states urged Congress to observe a moratorium on any further changes in the $12 billion program and to give them breathing room to implement changes already ordered.

"In our judgment what the food stamp program needs most of all now, and deserves, is stability — a period of rest from legislative and regulatory reform," said Donald B. Roark, Mississippi welfare commissioner and chairman of a national food stamp policy committee.

Congress, at the insistence of the administration, has since 1981 ordered some 90 changes in the government's primary food assistance program, most of them aimed at cutting down on the estimated $1 billion in annual losses to waste and fraud.

"Over the last 2½ years, hasty implementation of congressionally mandated changes has actually increased costs and errors," Roark told Sen. Robert Dole, chairman of the Senate Agriculture nutrition subcommittee.

But John Bode, deputy assistant secretary of the Agriculture Department, which administers the food stamp program, said the changes have resulted in "a tighter, more targeted program" with declining error rates.

Roark was particularly critical of requirements for monthly reporting by food stamp recipients of their income and other personal data and of a new system that bases benefits on past income, instead of anticipated income. The changes are scheduled to become mandatory Jan. 1.

"This requirement is causing serious problems for many states across the country," he said. The changes "do not reduce errors, as they were intended to do, but do increase administrative costs and result in the denial of benefits for some needy families."

Woman assaulted

Between 10 and 11 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 8, a white female was sexually assaulted near the Riley County Court House in Manhattan.

The assault occurred when the woman was approaching her car parked on Poyntz Avenue. A black male walked up behind her and told her not to scream as they were going for a walk. The suspect put his right arm around the victim's shoulder and walked her around the Wareham Hotel to the parking lot behind the court house.

At the suspect's car, the victim was pushed into the back seat and forced to perform numerous sex acts. The suspect was described as a black male in his early 20s, 6 feet tall, 200 pounds, with a short Afro hair style and a scar under his left eye. He was wearing a dark T-shirt, blue jeans and dress shoes. The car was described as a 1980 beige Thunderbird.

Anyone with any information on this or any other crime is urged to call Crime Stoppers at 539-7777. The call will remain anonymous and you may qualify for a cash reward of up to $1,000.

Microcomputer Workshop
Hardware, Software,
BASIC, $35.00
P.F.L.
1715 Laramie 539-2731

ATARI USER GROUP MEETING
Oct. 19
Fairchild 208
7:30 p.m.

Congratulations, Kappa Delta, on the 86th Anniversary of Your Founding

Auntie
Mac's Parlor

AGGIEVILLE

TONIGHT

HIGH ROLLERS

Any Single Liquor
Call or Premium
Drink Only

$1.25

8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

Memberships Available
616 N. 12th 539-9967

Wednesday

3 Fers

10 pm-11 pm

2 Fers

11 pm-1 am

at

COWBOY PALACE

Where it don't make
no difference

209 Poyntz 539-9828
4:00pm to 3:00am

The Hair Experts
1209 MORO
MANHATTAN, KS 66502
776-4455

WHERE WE LISTEN
TO YOU,
AND WE CARE ABOUT
YOUR HAIR!

SHUTTLE SERVICE

For temporarily or permanently physically limited students on campus, building to building. Inquire by calling 532-6436.

"UPC... We do it right!"

UPCOMING EVENTS

Wednesday, Oct. 19

Kaleidoscope—The Weavers:
FH 7:30 p.m.

Thursday, Oct. 20

Arts—Midday Arts—Florence
Schwab, harpist: Union Art
Gallery, 12 noon.

Kaleidoscope—The Weavers:
LT 3:30, FH 7:30 p.m.

Outdoor Rec—Trapshoot Info
Meeting: Union Rm. 213, 7 p.m.

Coffeehouse—Open Mike Night:
Catskeller, 7:30 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 21

Outdoor Rec—Trapshooting sign up begins 8 a.m.-4 p.m. in Activities
Center thru Oct. 26.

Feature Films—*The Year of Living
Dangerously*: FH 7 & 9:30 p.m.

Feature Films—Midnight Cowboy:
FH 12 midnight.

Saturday, Oct. 22

Special Events—Stray Cats tickets on sale at 12 noon in Union 1st Floor Box Office: $10, $9.50, $9
tickets for KSU students.

Feature Films—*Seems Like Old
Times*: FH 2 p.m.

Feature Films—*The Year of Living
Dangerously*: FH 7 & 9:30 p.m.

Feature Films—Midnight Cowboy:
FH 12 midnight.

Sunday, Oct. 23

Feature Films—*Seems Like Old
Times*: FH 2 & 7 p.m.

Monday, Oct. 24

Arts—Richae Morrow, pencil
drawings: Union 2nd Floor
Showcase thru Nov. 4

Kaleidoscope—Nosferatu and
Nosferatu the Vampire:
LT 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday, Oct. 25

Coffeehouse—Nooner—Boplicity,
jazz fusion: Catskeller 12 noon.

Kaleidoscope—Nosferatu and
Nosferatu the Vampire:
LT 7:30 p.m.

Spaces available
at our events.

k-state union
program council

JON VOIGHT DUSTIN HOFFMAN
IN

MIDNIGHT COWBOY

Rated R

Friday and Saturday
October 21 and 22
12 midnight
Forum Hall $1.50

k-state union
upc feature films

SEEMS LIKE OLD TIMES

k-state union
upc feature films

Wasn't That A Time!

With Andy Griffith • Lou McLean • Holly Near • Peter Onorati • Mary
Directed by Jim Brown. Written by Lee Hays.
Produced by Lee Hays. Adapted from the book by Lee Hays.
Original Soundtrack Album Available on Capitol Records
PG-13
k-state union
upc feature films

Wed., Oct. 19
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
Thurs., Oct. 20
3:30 p.m.
Little Theatre
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
$1.50

In the spirit of the original Coffeehouse . . .
UPC Coffeehouse proudly presents the semester's first

OPEN MIKE NIGHT
Thursday, Oct. 20, 1983
Catskeller 7:30 p.m.

Sign up for performance times in the Activities Center, 3rd Floor, Union.

Sing a song
Tell a joke
Read a poem
Perform magic

k-state union
upc coffeehouse

The Year of Living Dangerously
Mel Gibson Sigourney Weaver
PG
k-state union
upc feature films

Friday and Saturday
Oct. 21 and 22

7 & 9:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.50

Rated PG

BE A ROCKABILLY REBEL

Intramural Cancellation

Rain keeps activity indoors.
Sports, page 8

City leaders plan another HUD trip

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Reporter

City officials were again in Washington Wednesday to meet with Housing and Urban Development Department officials about the city's request for a $10 million Urban Development Action Grant for the proposed downtown mall.

City Manager Don Harmon and Community Development Director Gary Stith attended a meeting between HUD officials and Forest City Enterprises Vice President Mel Roebuck, mall developer. Harmon and Stith said they hope the meeting will be one of the last in the application process.

But Wednesday's meeting probably won't be the last.

Information received late Wednesday indicated that representatives from Manhattan plan to meet Friday with a HUD official in Washington concerning the proposed mall.

Harmon said no commissioners have informed him of their desire to attend the Friday meeting.

"I don't deny knowledge of it (the meeting), but I'm not the organizer of it," Harmon said shortly after arrival at Manhattan Municipal Airport Wednesday night. "It's not our (the city's) meeting."

Manhattan Mercury publisher Edward Seaton confirmed by telephone later Wednesday night that attempts had been made earlier in the week to set up a meeting Friday with HUD officials.

"Essentially, it's part of an ongoing project to get the grant and though I thought earlier in the week that we'd have a meeting, it doesn't look that way now."

Seaton said he will travel to Washington Friday regardless because he had already made reservations for the trip when he believed the meeting would occur. He did not comment on whether city officials would travel to Washington also.

Stith said he doesn't plan to travel to Washington Friday.

While in Washington, Harmon and Stith met with representatives of Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., seeking her support for the mall project. Kassebaum didn't attend the meeting because the Senate was voting to declare Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday a national holiday, Harmon said.

"I'm still optimistic," Harmon said of the request. "It's going to go right down to the wire."

The city's original request for an $11.5 million UDAG was cut by HUD in late July to $8.25 million. The current meetings are an effort by the city to have the amount raised.

If the UDAG gains HUD approval during this set of meetings, the approval would be only preliminary, Stith said. Still, a two-year delay in receiving funds — a situation facing Muskogee, Okla., officials — wouldn't occur, he said.

"They didn't do their homework," Stith said. "We have."

One of the reasons for Wednesday's meeting was to discuss a list of Forest City's costs if a mall was to be built in a suburban area. Officials at HUD requested the information at meetings earlier this month.

In the list, developer's costs for building the Jones Store Co. and J.C. Penney stores, set to locate in the downtown mall, were listed at zero. The downtown mall cost list showed costs to the developer for building the stores.

Forest City representatives assumed that if the mall was built in a suburban area, they would be able to sell land which the companies could use to build their own stores, Stith said. The Jones Store and J.C. Penney won't buy land or build their own stores in a downtown site, although they want to be located there, he said.

The companies "have a track record with suburban sites" and have not established such a record with projects such as the proposed mall, Stith said.

Staff/John Steeler

Puddle play

Brian Cady, junior in finance, prepares to land in the water during a free-for-all puddle football game, as Bill Cunningham, sophomore in geology, laughs behind him. The puddle game was played behind Weber Hall after heavy rains pelted the area Wednesday.

Car bomb wounds Marines

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Artillery and rocket fire shook Beirut Wednesday and a car bomb wounded four U.S. Marines. The government canceled a scheduled peace conference because three opposition leaders rejected the site.

Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said one Marine received a superficial head wound and three others suffered lacerated eardrums or face and hand cuts when the bomb exploded as a convoy of four American military vehicles passed the Kuwait Embassy on Beirut's southern edge.

A source at the presidential palace said President Amin Gemayel called off the meeting because the opposition rejected his choice of Beirut's international airport as the site.

The source said efforts were under way to set a new date and site.

ASK staff requests increase in student dues

By NANCY MALIR
Staff Writer

The cost-effectiveness of lobbying groups is an issue that tends to generate controversy among their clients, and a current proposal by the Associated Students of Kansas, a state student lobbying group, has the potential for doing just that.

In a meeting with several K-State student government leaders Oct. 12, state ASK staff members proposed a 60-cent semester increase in dues for students in member schools, raising dues to $1 per student per semester.

ASK Executive Director Mark Tallman and Legislative Director Chris Graves prepared a proposed five-year plan to show possible benefits ASK could provide if the increase in dues is approved.

At the earliest, the increase would take effect in the 1985 fiscal year.

According to the plan, another dues increase would not take place until at least 1990, "barring a major emergency."

The proposal states three major goals to the increase:

1) "The alleviating of the immediate need for a dues increase simply to continue operating at the current level.

2) "The providing of adequate funding for current operations through the next five years without seeking dues increases every year or two.

3) "The providing of program improvements in several areas ASK believes important to the group's overall mission."

The more outstanding aspects of the proposal include hiring a part-time secretary at $4 an hour, 20 hours a week, for nine months for the state staff; establishing an internship program so six students — two each fall, spring, and summer session — would be paid $1,000 each for helping with research, testimony and public relations for the state office; and hiring a law student as an elections coordinator at $5 an hour, 15 hours a week, on a year-round basis.

Ad hoc committee to review group's proposals

The proposal also called for the incorporation of ASK, which would allow the group to accept grants from local, state and federal donors.

Salary increases for campus directors and the state staff — comprised exclusively of Tallman and Graves — were also a major item in the proposal.

As proposed, campus directors would be paid the minimum wage for working 20 hours a week, eight months a year.

Over the five-year period, the executive director's salary would increase to $18,000 and the legislative director's to $16,000. Currently, Tallman and Graves are paid $13,248 and $12,096, respectively.

Also included is a reserve fund of $30,000. The proposals are based on the $1 dues increases at the seven member schools.

K-State was the first member school at which Tallman presented his proposal and, through the semester, he said he will meet with representatives from member schools to discuss the proposal.

An ad hoc committee of student government representatives has already been set up at K-State to review the ASK proposals. Student Senate has to approve the recommendations before they could be implemented.

Tallman said an increase of 10 cents is the minimum increase in dues he would like to see for next year.

"To increase the dues to 50 cents will allow us to operate at our current levels next year," he said. "But even if it's raised to 50 cents next year, we may have to come back and ask for another increase the next year."

Because ASK honored a 1980-81 fiscal year promise not to seek another dues increase for three years and then an unanticipated drop in enrollment statewide caused dues amounts to fall, Tallman said the state staff has had to make some spending cuts.

"In order to stay within guidelines, Chris (Graves) and I have taken a 4 percent decrease in our salary. We had to cut out our clerical help last June," he said.

The biggest percentage of ASK's budget, between 75 and 80 percent, pays his and Graves' salaries and the seven campus directors, Tallman said.

Because enrollment dropped sharply, and because ASK has been trying to upgrade salaries and attract better people, the last dues increase was used up fairly quickly, Tallman said.

"Last year, we spent a higher amount than usual because it was an election year. All of our budget items are the same or smaller this year than they were last year," he said.

ASK performed as well as it could on the provided funds last year, Tallman said.

"We're at a fork in the road. We can continue to grow or slide backward.

"I think this is a very important issue, because if we don't deal with funding, ASK is going to erode," he said. "It's increasingly difficult to do more to get students involved in the political process."

Tallman said one of ASK's major weaknesses is reaching the majority of university students because the group has never been given the budget to reach 80,000 students. But, he added, he is proud of ASK's record.

"We can say it's working now, we want it to work better, and we want it to continue to work," he said.

Mark Terril, senior in finance and ASK Financial Issues Committee chairman, said the proposed ASK dues increase is no surprise, but other parts of the proposed five-year plan are.

"I think there are a lot of people with qualms about certain aspects of the five-year plan. For instance, some individuals question the importance of employing an elections coordinator.

"Another thing I question is an increase in the salary for campus directors," Terril said.

Other student government positions also require more than 20 hours of work time per week, but those positions aren't paid the minimum wage, he said.

"I get the feeling that what ASK is going to do is listen to the ad hoc committee's recommendations and base its request on what the committee finds.

"The thing I want to stress is that this was just a proposal and obviously changes are going to have to be made. The ad hoc committee will meet soon to discuss the five-year plan, and I'm sure each of us will bring out problems we have with it, Terril said.

"We'll decide if something more reasonable should be asked for, or if $1 is appropriate."

But, as tight as student government's budget was this past year, the only way to implement the dues increase is by increasing the student activity fee, he said.

"I don't mind raising the fee if the students approve it, but if the fee has to be raised, it should be done so in an amount that would benefit other campus groups as well. I don't want to see it raised just to benefit ASK," Terril said.

He said he would not advocate a fee increase without first taking the issue to the students as a referendum.

"In the past few years, there have been increases in student fees several times. While the coliseum and Holton Hall are beneficial projects, I don't think students have had enough input. I think student input is important," Terril said.

"It would be tough," but, if necessary, senate could work around the current budget in implementing an ASK dues increase, he said. But since enrollment is projected to drop, there could be an equivocal drop in revenue, he added.

"According to the figures I have, enrollment could be down by 1,000 students next year. That could take the activity fee down between $25,000 and $50,000, depending on how many students are full-time," he said.

Brett Lambert, K-State's ASK campus director, said there has to be a dues increase if the organization is going to maintain the accomplishments it achieved this past year.

"I feel good about asking for a raise because I think we can justify it based on the work we've done in the past.

"The overriding principle of the five-year plan is to establish a secure future for the Associated Students of Kansas — a secure future which to date we have not had.

"If we remain stagnant, we lose. Our most successful year was last year, and we're looking forward to an even more successful year this year."

Lambert, sophomore in pre-law, said ASK is one of the lowest-funded student lobbying groups.

"Many states already charge students a $1 a semester and some are collecting $2 a semester.

"Unless we can guarantee some kind of stability, ASK is not going to maintain the kind of leadership we need. We have good lobbyists — their faces are known around the Capitol and that's what we need," he said.

In the spring of 1982, retaining membership in ASK was questioned by some K-State student senators, according to Terril.

"A number of student senators questioned the validity of ASK because it was taking on a number of social issues versus educational issues. Some looked at the possibility of dropping out of ASK. A few wanted to take a closer look at its function," Terril said.

Campus

Wichita artist to conduct workshop

Wichita artist Jane Van Milligen will conduct a workshop about "Calligraphy and Illuminated Letters" Friday in Bluemont Hall 121. The morning session starts at 8:30 and the afternoon session at 1:30. A show of Van Milligen's work is currently displayed in the second floor showcase of the Union.

Faculty members share honor

Two K-State faculty members have been designated Fellows in the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers.

Frederick H. Rohles, director of the Institute for Environmental Research in the College of Engineering, and Paul L. Miller, professor and head of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, were selected on the basis of their research in energy conservation and human comfort.

Much of the data collected by Miller and Rohles have been incorporated into ASHRAE handbooks, which are used by engineers in design of heating and air-conditioning systems.

Grad student tours energy facilities

Kathy Riblett, graduate in mechanical engineering, recently returned from a two-week solar energy technology course sponsored by the United States and Saudi Arabia.

Riblett was one of 12 graduate students selected from universities across the country to participate. The course was funded by SOLERAS, a joint U.S./Saudi Arabian program for cooperation in the field of solar energy. Also chosen were 12 Saudi engineering undergraduate and graduate students.

The course featured lectures and workshops about solar thermal systems, biomass research and wind energy systems. Students toured more than 20 energy facilities in Colorado and California.

St. Louis ag specialist to speak

Dr. Elizabeth Clayton, professor of economics at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, will speak about "The Soviet Union Today" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Denison 113A.

Clayton is a specialist in Soviet agriculture and during the winter of 1983 served as an exchange professor at Moscow State University. Clayton will also present a seminar about "Regional Productivity in Soviet Agriculture" at 3:30 p.m. in Waters 329. Her visit is sponsored by the Graduate School and the Department of Economics.

Wendland memorial established

The parents of Stanley G. Wendland, former K-State student, have established a scholarship in his name. The memorial scholarship will be available to junior and senior students majoring in agricultural economics.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Wendland, Wamego, provided the initial gift endowing the scholarship fund. Their son was killed in an auto accident in January 1983. At the time of his death Wendland was 21 and a senior in agricultural economics.

Recipients of the scholarship are required to have a grade point average of 2.5 and be in need of financial assistance. Preference will be given to Pottawatomie County residents.

Heart researcher to speak Friday

Dr. James L. Funderburgh from the Corneal Disease Research Laboratory of the Swedish Hospital Medical Center in Seattle, Wash., will speak about "Corneal Proteoglycan Synthesis: Environmental Control of a Differentiated Cellular Function" at 4 p.m. Friday in Ackert 221. Coffee and cookies will be served preceding the seminar.

Architecture to offer workshop

The College of Architecture and Design will offer a workshop beginning Nov. 4 for design professionals and educators who wish to update their graphic skills and techniques.

The workshop, offering two hours graduate or undergraduate credit, will stress development of techniques for graphic presentation of design concepts. Sketch presentation, illustration and use of perspective will be addressed during the workshop.

Participants in the workshop will meet in two all-day sessions and will work on an assignment during the two weeks between. All sessions will be at Wichita A.T.V.S., 301 S. Grove.

Senate to hear alcoholism talk

By The Collegian Staff

Elaine Spencer Carver, director of the Alcoholic Abuse Prevention Program in Holton Hall, will speak about the prevention and treatment of alcoholism to Student Senate at 7 tonight in the Union Big Eight Room. October is Alcohol Awareness Month.

In formal business, senate will consider a request from Student Body President Jerry Katlin for $285 to attend the 14th annual Leadership Conference sponsored by the Center for the Study of the Presidency. The conference is in Denver Oct. 28-30, and this year's topic is the separation of power between the president of the United States and Congress.

Senate has provided funding in the past for student body presidents to attend the conference.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

COORDINATOR OF FINANCES AND ELECTION COMMITTEE member and chair applications are due in the SGS office by 5 p.m. Friday.

BLOODMOBILE PRE-SIGN-UP is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today through Friday and Oct. 24 on the first floor of the Union.

AG COMMUNICATORS OF TOMORROW members interested in attending the American Agricultural Editors Association conference in Kansas City on Sunday and Monday should sign the sheet outside Mr. Holt's office by 3:30 p.m. today.

TODAY

PRE-NURSING STUDENTS meet at 1 p.m. in Union 202.

PHI ALPHA THETA (history honor society) meets at 2:30 p.m. in Union 207 to hear Dr. Peter Sugar of the University of Washington speak on "West's View of Ottomans in the 16th Century."

K-STATE PLAYERS meet at 4 p.m. in the Purple Masque Theatre, East Stadium.

AG STUDENT COUNCIL meets at 6 p.m. in Waters 137.

OPEN MIKE NIGHT sponsored by UPC Coffeehouse is at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Canteen.

COLLEGIATE 4-H meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 206 for a recreational meeting.

LITTLE AMERICAN ROYAL COMMITTEE meets at 7 p.m. in Call Hall 140. Bring committee files.

ICTHUS FELLOWSHIP meets at 8 p.m. in Union 212. Bob Anderson, director of Baptist Student Union, will speak on "Building Lasting Friendships." Everyone is welcome.

STUDENT FOUNDATION meets at 5 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures. A pizza party will follow.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CIVIL ENGINEERS meets at 7:40 p.m. in the Durland II Auditorium.

BIG LAKES DEVELOPMENT CENTER has a plant sale from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the University for Man house, 1221 Thurston.

UNIVERSITY FOR MAN registration is from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Union.

BUSINESS COUNCIL meets at 4 p.m. in Union 203.

PRE-VET CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Veterinary Medicine Teaching Building 201.

WOMEN IN COMMUNICATIONS INC. meets at 7:15 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures, immediately followed by a meeting about the national convention in Union 208.

KSU RODEO CLUB meets at 7:30 p.m. in Weber 230. Executive committee meets at 7 p.m.

ANGEL FLIGHT meets at 8 p.m. at Nancy Simon's apartment.

SISTERS OF THE MALTESE CROSS meet at 8:30 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

SAILING CLUB meets at 8:45 p.m. in Blue-mont 122.

ARNOLD AIR SOCIETY meets at 8:45 p.m. in Union 207.

DARK HORSE TAVERN

Thursday
$ Dollar Days $
$1 Cover
$1.25 Pitchers
7-Midnight

619 N. Manhattan

Apote STATION

RESTAURANT & BAR

OH MY...

IT'S BOTTOMS UP

EVERY THURS.!

- 3 Fers (well drinks 9-10:00)
- 2 Fers (well drinks 10-12:00)

50¢ TGIF HORS D'OEUVRES & DRINK SPECIALS!

SUSIE,

Wishing you a very happy and fortuitous birthday!

If you can lift that cat five times, I'll take you out on the town.

ERIC (YEB)

Alpha Chi

BUD LIGHT

Vote for your candidate in the K-State Union Oct. 24, 25 & 26

Silver coins count as positive votes and pennies and bills count as negative.

This Desk Can Reach Mach 2.

Some desk jobs are more exciting than others.

As a Navy pilot or flight officer, your desk can be a sophisticated combination of supersonic jet aircraft and advanced electronic equipment. But you can handle it. Because Navy flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical know-how you need.

In return, Navy aviation demands something of you as an officer: Leadership.

Your path to leadership starts with officer training that's among the most demanding in the military. It's intensive leadership and professional schooling combined with rigorous Navy flight training. And it's all geared to prepare you and other college graduates for the unique challenge of Navy aviation. The program is tough but rewarding.

One important reward for Navy officers is decision-making authority. In the air, and on the ground, you have management responsibility from the beginning. And your responsibility grows as you gain experience.

No company can give you this kind of leadership responsibility this fast. And nothing beats the sheer excitement of Navy flying.

The salary is exciting, too. Right away, you'll earn about $18,300 a year. That's better than the average corporation will pay you just out of college. And with regular Navy promotions and other pay increases, your annual salary will soar to $31,100 after four years. That's on top of a full package of benefits and privileges.

Before you settle down to an earth-bound desk job, reach for the sky. Reach for the coupon. Find out what it takes to be part of the Naval Aviation Team. You could have a desk that flies at twice the speed of sound.

NAVY OPPORTUNITY INFORMATION CENTER W 343
P.O. Box 5000, Clifton, NJ 07015

☐ Please send me more information about becoming a member of the Naval Aviation Team. (0A)

Name _____ (Please Print) _____ Last _____

Address _____ Apt. # _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Age _____ College/University _____

*Year in College _____ *GPA _____

*Major/Minor _____

Phone Number _____ (Area Code) _____ Best Time to Call _____

This is for general recruitment information. You do not have to furnish any of the information requested. Of course, the more we know, the more we can help to determine the kinds of Navy positions for which you qualify.

Navy Officers Get Responsibility Fast.

Love
is Blind . . .

But you don't have to be.

We Specialize in Contact Lenses . . .

Tinted (to change the color of your eyes)
Extended Wear (to sleep with)
Bifocal (for reading difficulties)

Regular Type (for near and far sightedness)
Toric (for astigmatism)
Oxygen Permeable (rigid)

Replacement Lenses and Solutions in Stock.

Dr. Paul E. Bullock, P.A.

Practice of Optometry

776-9461

404 Humboldt

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.

Editor..... Paul Hanson
Managing Editor..... Sandy Lang
Photography Editor..... Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager..... John McGrath

Chief of staff, spouse resign from Governor Carlin's staff

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — William O. "Bill" Hoch, the last key member of Gov. John Carlin's original administrative staff, announced Wednesday he is resigning as chief of staff effective Nov. 18 to enter private business in Kansas City, Mo.

Hoch's wife, Ellen, another member of the staff Carlin put together after winning the office in November 1978, also will leave at the same time. She has been the governor's scheduling secretary.

Press Secretary Mike Swenson said it likely would be some time before the governor announces a successor to Hoch.

There was speculation the job would go to Shirley Allen, his executive assistant who presently is hospitalized here with a broken vertebrae in her lower back, suffered in the same accident Sept. 29 in Washington, D.C., in which Carlin also was injured.

Hoch informed Carlin of his decision Tuesday. He had planned to tell him sooner, but Carlin's injury and preparations for the Midwestern Governors Conference in Lawrence last week delayed it.

He said his decision to leave now was based solely on his desire to start a different career, and in no way was related to adverse publicity of recent months involving First Lady Karen Carlin's fundraising activities or the hiring of her son as a member of the grounds crew at Cedar Crest, the executive mansion.

Hoch confirmed matters between him and Mrs. Carlin have been strained "on occasion," but said he believes they presently enjoy a mutually respectful relationship.

"We have a very open relationship these days," he said. "She tells me what she thinks and I tell her what I think, and sometimes we agree."

Carlin issued a statement acknowledging Hoch's contributions. It said in part:

"It is with deep regret that I announce Bill and Ellen's decision to leave my staff. Each has contributed a tremendous amount of time and effort on my behalf during the past few years.

"Bill has provided invaluable leadership during these last five years. His unique ability to take charge in times of difficulty and manage through them successfully has garnered him the respect of not only those with whom he has worked but of people throughout the state of Kansas."

Carlin had similar laudatory comments for Mrs. Hoch, saying she has "worked with me longer than any other member of my staff." Mrs. Hoch, whose maiden name was Nesselrode, worked for Carlin when he was House speaker in 1977-79.

"While much of Ellen's work has remained behind the scenes, without her diligent efforts, our office would not have functioned as well as it has," he said.

Reagan justifies role of U.S. peacekeepers

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Wednesday that American forces will remain in Lebanon as long as there's a chance that peace can be restored there and he intends to do everything he can "to persuade Syria to quit being a roadblock in this process."

Reagan said great progress has been made since he dispatched 1,600 Marines as peacekeepers to the Mideast nearly a year ago. He pointed to Israel's partial withdrawal, the election of a Lebanese government, and the "successful ousting of 10,000 PLO militia."

"I don't think there's anyway we should just stand by and allow Syria to destroy what so many people want, which is peace and order in that troubled country," he declared.

Fielding questions at his first news conference in nearly three months, Reagan said he would sign a bill, which cleared the Senate 78-22 earlier in the day, to make a legal federal holiday honoring Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the civil rights leader assassinated on April 4, 1968. King would be the first American so honored since George Washington.

The president said he would have preferred something less than a full-fledged holiday, but he recognized King's symbolic importance to the black community.

"Since they seem bent on making it a national holiday...I will sign that legislation," Reagan said.

With a good-natured jibe at the press, Reagan ducked questions about whether and when he might formally declare his candidacy for re-election. Legally, he's already one since his authorization of a campaign committee on Monday.

He said he would make his decision known later. "Down the road someday before my birthday, I will put your minds at rest one way or the other," he said with obvious relish.

Reagan's birthday is on Feb. 6. His associates say they are convinced that he will run.

IF YOU CROSS THE BORDER... DO IT LEGALLY WITH AN INSTANT PASSPORT PHOTO FROM .....

kinko's copies

1128 Laramie—Aggieville 537-7340

ICTHUS FELLOWSHIP

meets tonight at 8:00 in Union 212.

Bob Anderson, Director of BSU, will speak on "Building Lasting Friendships."

Everyone is welcome!

Senate bill establishes holiday in honor of Martin Luther King Jr.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate sent President Reagan on Wednesday a bill establishing a national holiday in memory of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. That supreme honor has been accorded only one other American, George Washington.

Reagan has promised to sign the bill, which designates the third Monday in January, starting in 1986, as a legal holiday in King's name. Final congressional action, sought for years, came more than 15 years after the civil rights leader was assassinated.

King's widow, Coretta, and his son, Martin III, watched from the Senate gallery as the climactic roll call was taken. The family was accompanied by singer Stevie Wonder; Benjamin Hooks, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; and Joseph Lowry, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference that King founded.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., told the Senate that King "deserves the place which this legislation gives him beside Washington and Columbus. In a very real sense, he was the second father of our country, the second founder of a new world that is not only a place, a piece of geography, but a noble set of ideals."

Earlier Wednesday, the Senate, shrugging off a number of bitter-end attempts by conservatives to derail the legislation.

King, a Baptist preacher who emulated Mohandas K. Gandhi's creed of non-violence, won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964. He was slain in Memphis, Tenn., on April 4, 1968.

President Reagan initially opposed the measure, complaining about the cost of creating a 10th paid federal holiday. The Congressional Budget Office has estimated the cost at $18 million annually in premium time for essential federal employees.

Before the final vote, Jesse Helms, R-N.C., persisted in peppering the Senate with proposed alternatives to a King holiday. On Tuesday, Helms lost a major attempt to recommit the bill for further study of Helms' allegations that King was influenced by communists.

SHOES
HERE! $14.90 - $18.90 EVERYDAY
Lady Foot Shoes
221 POYNTE

Auntie Mae's Parlor
AGGIEVILLE
TONIGHT
ALL YOU CAN DRINK
—Cover Charge Required—
at the door
GUYS $5.00
GIRLS $3.00
House Drinks, Wine, Draft Beer
9 p.m. to 11 p.m.
No Cover Charge Later Tonight
for
LATE NIGHT HAPPY HOUR
11 p.m. to Midnight
616 N. 12th 539-9967

BEGINNING COUNTRY SWING

DANCE CLASSES

- MON. 7-8:30
- TUES. 7-8:30
- TUES. 9-10:30
- WED. 7-8:30

Limited space available so sign up at the Rockin K today. Four week course begins week of Oct. 24 for $12 per person; $20 per couple.

ROCKIN K BAR

712 N. Manhattan • 539-9033

MCCAIN AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

the piano King of Kansas City Swing...

Jay "hottie" mc shann
a Mid-America Arts Alliance program
Friday, October, 28, 8 p.m.

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office, noon-5 p.m. M-F, 532-6428
This program is made possible by support from the Kansas Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts, through participation in Mid-America Arts Alliance, a regional arts organization.

BUD LIGHT TKE BUD LIGHT
POWDER PUFF BOWL
7:00 Thurs., Griffith Field
Kappa Kappa Gamma vs. Alpha Xi Delta
Gamma Phi Beta vs. Pi Beta Phi
Here's how it was Tuesday night.
Now it's Alpha Xi Delta and Pi Beta Phi for the Championship! 8:30 Griffith Consolation Game 7:00 Gamma Phi Beta vs. Kappa Gamma Afterwards see all the Replay Action at Sports Fan-atic with a cold Bud Light!

BUD LIGHT

KSU
CHRISTIAN STUDENT fellowship
2001 Evergreen Circle 539-4324
Bible Study and Fellowship
Every Thursday
7:00 p.m. Union 207

Pizza Transit Authority
When it comes to pizza, PTA comes to you.

Four BIG Deals!
537-9500

1127 Moro Aggieville

SAVE $2 ON ANY LARGE 2 OR MORE ITEM PIZZA One Coupon Per Pizza 537-9500 Expires Oct. 31, 1983	SAVE $1 ON ANY 1 OR MORE ITEM PIZZA One Coupon Per Pizza 537-9500 Expires Oct. 31, 1983
FREE DOUBLE CRUST on any pizza more pizza for your money One Coupon Per Pizza 537-9500 Expires Oct. 31, 1983	PTA REAL MEAL DEAL Large 3-topping pizza with 19¢ Small 3-topping pizza with 19¢ 4 Pepsi's or Diet Pepsi's only 2 Pepsi's or Diet Pepsi's only One Coupon Per Pizza 537-9500 Expires Oct. 31, 1983

Moonlight Sale
THURSDAY ONLY
3 - 11 pm

SWEATERS BUY 1 GET 1 FREE
10% OFF REG. MERCHANDISE

SWEATERS 9.99 REG. $25.00	CAPRI CORD PANTS 9.99 REG. $20.00
SKI JACKETS 29.99 REG. $60.00	BLOUSES 9.99 REG. $20.00
DRESSES &amp; JUMPSUITS 29.99 REG. $60.00	SWEAT TOPS &amp; PANTS 9.99 REG. $30.00

1130 Moro Open Mon.-Sat. 10-6:00 Thurs. 10-8:30 Sun. 12-5

carousel

Aggieville Open Mon.-Sat. 10-6:00 Thurs. 10-8:30 Sun. 12-5

Martin Luther King Jr. holiday

Sen. Jesse Helms tried to block it but, because his counterparts refused to back down, Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday will now be a national holiday. However, we believe the move was made for the wrong reasons.

There can be little dispute that enactment of the holiday is a symbolic act, but we think it illustrates the wrong symbol. Martin Luther King deserves outstanding accolades, no doubt, but we question whether this is what prompted the holiday declaration.

The Senate's motives need to be examined. If the Senate seeks to make King's birthday a national holiday merely because a lot of people made a lot of noise about the issue, they should hang their respective heads in shame. They are only putting salve on the wound to quiet the issue of civil rights.

Helms' reason for attempting to block the motion are unfounded and ignore the issue. If it had not been for King's leadership, the nation would have likely suffered a racial civil war.

The Senate is commemorating King's birthday as a substitute to action on civil rights issues. The senators seem to believe that if they honor King, the people who are carrying on King's dream of equal rights will temporarily forget about what they are striving for.

And, unfortunately, in this country, the concept of equal rights remains just that — a dream.

Those who favor the King holiday should re-examine the character of the man they seek to honor. We doubt he sought to secure himself a place in history, and the fact that he was assassinated is relatively unimportant. King wanted to get things changed so blacks would have equal rights and opportunities.

The nation needs to make certain it honors King for the right reasons. King was a great man and his dreams live on in the hearts of many Americans. He deserves to be remembered for his outspoken efforts to achieve change.

But, as we honor King, we need to remember and act on his dreams. If the memory of him instigates and achieves the changes he desired, we will be right in honoring him with a national holiday. However, if we fail to complete the progression he fought so valiantly for, we are only doing lip service by declaring this holiday.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

Creation controversy continues

BRAD GILLISPIE

Editorial Page Editor

As an extension of the recent Arkansas case involving the teaching of creation in schools, the Supreme Court of Louisiana has ruled that the creation theory must be taught alongside evolution in public schools. The case will now go to a federal district court for a ruling.

The argument is an old one, but one that will never be settled until the U.S. Supreme Court lives according to its own previous rulings, looks at the evidence and allows the teaching of creation.

The main mistake of the courts is classifying evolution as non-religious scientific fact and creation as a mere religious belief.

It is true that creation is commonly associated with Christianity, however, creation came about long before Christians began believing it. Christianity is only nearly 2,000 years old, while the Genesis account of creation was written thousands of years before. Christianity may be tied to belief in creation, but creation itself is not exclusive to Christianity.

It is foolish to believe that merely because a group of "religious" people believe a theory (not a "myth," as some claim, for a myth has no supporting evidence), it cannot be taught due to separation of church and state. The fact that something is tied to religion does not automatically disclaim its factual truth and validity.

The facts supporting the theory of special creation are as strong as, if not stronger than, the evidence for a vertical evolution of man, that is, man evolving from apes and lower life forms. However, because people do not want to believe there is a creator greater than they are, they discredit the creation theory and ignore the evidence, labeling it all as religious hogwash.

The courts are also ignoring the 1961 U.S. Supreme Court decision of Torcaso v. Watkins, in which the Supreme Court ruled that secular humanism is a religion in itself. Evolution is more a centerpiece of the secular humanism religion than creation is a basis for Christianity. If the courts are going to rule that creation cannot be taught because of its ties to a religion (Christianity), they must also rule that evolution cannot be taught because of its ties to a religion (secular humanism).

Secular humanism is a religion, in that it provides a belief of a basic life force. Not all religions are tied to the concept of a god. In secular humanism, there is no god. Humanists are of the belief that man came to be through evolution (the concept of the origin of man) and is the center of the universe, not accountable to any supreme being, for there is no supreme being (the concept of god). Moreover, man is not responsible for his actions since he evolved from an animal and is therefore a form of animal himself (the concept of sin). When a man dies, it is the end of his life — there is no heaven or hell (the concept of life after death).

These examples show that secular humanism is comparable to Christianity in that it provides its own answers to all of life's questions. The only difference is that in secular humanism, there is no belief in a god, or supreme being. Because of this fact, people do not consider it a religion.

As stated before, society is mistaken in believing that evolution is an exact, scientifically proven fact while creation is a myth. When Darwin made up his theory, it was a largely a product of his imagination. He himself knew that it could never be fully proven. There was no concrete physical evidence to support his theory when he came up with it, just a few loose links. Scientists set out to prove it true because of man's need to believe in something he could see the "evidence" for.

The proof, however, has never been provided. There is a certain amount of evidence for the argument that man evolved along horizontal lines (from a lower form of man), but evolutionists have little linking scientific proof that man evolved from apes.

The interesting fact is that many of the more prominent evolution scientists are aware that they cannot prove vertical evolution. Many of them have publicly admitted this, as did Darwin himself.

Yet biology books teach evolution as a proven fact. How can the books say this when the scientists openly disagree? It appears that the qualification for presenting a theory as fact is not scientific proof, but public agreement to the theory. What we end up with is a lot of people who firmly believe in evolution despite the fact that the scientists themselves don't see it in the same way.

The final issue is, what are the courts afraid of, in that they will not allow creation to be taught? Are they afraid that some students might see it as the truth and believe in it instead of evolution? What is the danger of presenting both sides of an issue and letting the students make their decisions as to which they want to believe as the truth? The students deserve such an opportunity, as long as neither theory has been absolutely proven and there are facts supporting each.

Pro-creationists are not against the teaching of evolution in public schools. If they were, they would be as closed-minded as the courts and the evolutionists who don't want creation taught. There needs to be equal weight given to each theory. Teaching creation and evolution together and leaving the decision to the students is not being unfair. However, teaching evolution alone and discrediting creation is comparable to brainwashing.

Jane Fonda Enterprises

WASHINGTON — She'll never make the Fortune 500, but her entrepreneurial moxie would match that of the most clever computer marketer. Her name is Fonda, and she's an example of how the avant-garde is looking more and more like the old guard.

In few short years, Henry's daughter Jane has completed an extraordinary metamorphosis to become one of America's busiest and most prominent capitalists. In fact, she's been such an active businesswoman that it's almost difficult to imagine her as a right-wing lightning rod, let alone a two-time Oscar winning actress.

Workout Inc., located off Wilshire Boulevard in Beverly Hills, oversees Jane's three exercise studios in California as well as revenues from book (at $19.95 and $17.75), videotape ($69.95) and album ($12.95) sales. While its executives won't disclose its earnings, Workout funnels a percentage — effectively between $20,000 and $40,000 — every month to husband Tom Hayden's Campaign For Economic Democracy, according to CED director Jack Nicoll. (At one time, CED received the majority of Workout's earnings, but Jane, in a demonstration of steely managerial acumen, changed that in the last year.)

Meanwhile, Simon & Schuster has published "Jane Fonda's Year of Fitness and Health" calendar ($8.95) and plans to release a fitness guide for senior citizens sometime next year (no price yet). Workout will share the profits from, but not the control of, these projects, for which Jane will receive a cut of her own.

MAXWELL GLEN & CODY SHEARER

Next month, Jane's personal fortunes will take another leap with the introduction of a fashion line called "Jane Fonda Workouts." Designed and produced by a California-based firm (Jane, who starred in the movie, "9 to 5," demanded that her manufacturer be both American and unionized), "Workouts" have apparently captured one Southern California chain store's $1.5 million guarantee in exchange for 30 days of exclusive sales rights. Bloomington's and Macy's intend to give Jane's clothes — ultimately as many as 127 different items, including casual wear — separate floor space.

"She's probably going to do everything she can," said a Hayden-Fonda adviser of Jane's newfound enthusiasm for licensing. "This is only the beginning...there's not going to be as direct a political connection as there is with the workout studios. This is a Jane Fonda enterprise."

Alas, that may be disarming to those who have regarded the Santa Monica mother of two as a clear and present danger to the American way. For the Atomic Industrial Forum, some business groups and those bitter folk who hand out scurrilous literature at airports, Hanoi Jane has long been the peril.

Now that Fonda is providing a lesson in free enterprise worthy of Harvard Business School casebooks, her opponents may no longer want to, as one bumper sticker suggests, feed (her) to the whales. How can we afford to "Nuke Jane Fonda" when such a move would undercut our gross national product? How can they draw comparisons between Castro and a woman who's more and more like Mr. Candy Bar, Reggie Jackson?

Indeed, at 45, Jane has learned to play the most conventional roles. In a leotard, she coaches pregnant moms about muscle control and healthy babies. Meanwhile, she's taken a political back seat of sorts to her husband, now a California state assemblyman: Though no Pat Nixon, she's hardly a Mrs. Mao.

Like many once-inflammary left-wingers — Jerry Rubin and Abbie Hoffman come to mind — Jane has only shown that she, too, can work within the system and do quite well by it. Some Fonda-haters may see the difference and feel the satisfaction of a missionary who's won a big convert. Others won't and may always prefer to think of her as the rebel who sat behind North Vietnamese guns and later "killed" the nuclear power industry.

Such unconstructable Fonda-haters will always, in the grand fashion of conspiracy theorists, allege some subversive motive to all of Jane's wheeling and dealing. They can't seem to realize that, these days, a good Commie sympathizer is hard to find.

Letter Policy

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be signed by the author and should not exceed 300 words. The author's major, classification or other identification and a telephone number where the author can be reached during business hours must be included.

Letters

Stray Cats a poor choice

Editor,

In regard to your announcement of the Stray Cats concert, I would first like to congratulate Union Program Council on getting a major popular group to come to K-State.

Unfortunately, I speak on behalf of a large number of people who do not approve of your choice of bands. Looking at the history of your concert choices and the resulting financial flops, we had hoped that maybe you had learned your lesson and would try to find a band that would appeal to as many students as possible.

We also had hoped that you would consult the students (a majority of the students) to find out what concerts they would like to see. Your choice of the Stray Cats has dashed our hopes once again, and again we must protest.

Our reasons are simple. First, is the extent of the Stray Cats' appeal on campus. Stray Cats' fans are a definite minority and the band's rockabilly style of music is not an extremely popular one on campus.

Second, the Stray Cats are not a truly established band. Certainly, they have had a few hits in the top 40, but they have only two albums out. How extensive can their set be with only two albums worth of songs to draw from unless they do remakes of other songs in their style?

Anybody can do remakes. This makes your ticket prices outrageous, especially for a college student. A large number of students do not hold jobs, so money is scarce and concerts are an extravagance a lot of us cannot afford. This has a tendency to make us very picky about the concerts we do attend and we are very smart shoppers always looking for our money's worth.

Although other major bands are still on tour, we realize how hard it is to get them to change their schedules to come to K-State. The time to plan for this is during the spring when the bands are planning their tours — that is when they should be contacted to come to K-State in the fall.

What you need to find is a middle-of-the-road band that will draw in people from all parts of the spectrum. An example would be Shooting Star, a hometown band from Kansas City which has four albums and has shown willingness to do shows in this area.

If you are looking for help in the future, do not hesitate to call. I and quite a few others would certainly be willing to help.

Jim Dick
Sophomore in pre-vet

'Podium panic' highlights lecture by instructor on public speaking

By MIKE HEDGES
Collegian Reporter

Fear of public speaking is the No. 1 fear of adults, Carolyn Sanko, instructor of speech, said at a seminar, "Dealing With Podium Panic," for women Wednesday at the Ramada Inn.

She told a gathering of about 50 women and one man that this fear surpasses even the fear of death.

Sanko said it is normal for someone to be scared to go from "that seat to this podium."

She said women especially need to be able to communicate effectively if they want to be successful in business.

"Women are brought up to feel insecure and that what they have to say doesn't matter to others," Sanko said. "Shyness can be devastating to a career and shyness is made, not born into a person."

"Too many people focus on their weaknesses and not their strong points. We are our own worst enemy."

Negative responses are self-imposed even to the point when people say you look good or sound good, you don't believe them, she said.

"It's important to learn how to accept a compliment."

She emphasized that fear can't be eliminated but can be controlled by the power of positive thinking and "the four P's: Planning, Preparation, Practice and Performance." This helps eliminate fear, doubt and worry.

Sanko said it is important to break fear down.

"Giving speeches is a very threatening situation. We expose ourselves and our egos to a large audience of people. We stand the chance of being rejected," she said.

"To help ourselves, we need to make sure our topic is relevant to the audience in terms of size of audience and whether that audience is mostly male or female."

"Also, be organized, be better informed than audience members and know time limits."

The first thing to do when giving a speech is make an outline. Also, make sure you know the body of the speech before writing the introduction.

"Imagine how hard it is to write an introduction if you don't know what the main points are," she said.

Other things that Sanko mentioned were to not use too many numerical figures, unless you have a visual aid. Even then, always round the figures off. Also, don't have too many main points — two to five is good in a normal six to eight minute speech, she said.

"Audiences are basically fairly lazy listeners. A well organized speech promotes good listening. Remember, audiences need as much direction as possible," Sanko said.

Preparation of a speech is the most important area in giving a good speech, Sanko said.

"Practicing in front of a mirror is a good way to prepare. Your face tells as much as your voice," she said. "Hand gestures are important, but don't plan them because that makes them look mechanical."

She said to avoid memorizing the presentation, with the exception of the introduction. Just let your own personality come through. Also, don't practice behind a podium because the chances of speaking behind a podium aren't that good. It also helps to avoid what she calls "the white-knuckle syndrome."

Eye contact must be kept with the audience 85 to 90 percent of the time, so the audience knows the speaker is interested and the speaker can get feedback from the audience, she said.

Sanko said the speaker should never be intimidated by an audience, "even if they are presidents of corporations."

"Keep in mind that they wouldn't have invited you to speak if you didn't have something they want to know."

"Most of all, believe in yourself. Positive affirmation of self costs a lot less than any suit you are going to buy to look good. Also, don't worry if you fail at first. Just don't give up."

Hooker tricks Ohio city manager

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio — The city manager who last year suspended a policewoman for posing nude in Playboy magazine has resigned after being stopped by police for picking up an alleged prostitute.

Springfield city commissioners met in two executive sessions Tuesday night before announcing their unanimous decision to accept the resignation of City Manager Thomas Bay, 51.

A 28-year-old woman got into a car late Friday on a street in nearby Dayton with a man whom police later identified as Bay, a police report said. When plainclothes officers stopped the car, Bay admitted he was taking the woman to a motel for "a prostitution type activity," the report said.

Bay wasn't arrested, but Dayton court records said the woman, who had been approaching cars, was charged with loitering to solicit, a third-degree misdemeanor.

In a letter Tuesday to Mayor Roger Baker, Bay called his resignation "the only honorable thing to do. Private persons can stumble many times. In public life, you stumble once and that's it."

Baker said the search for someone to appoint to the post probably wouldn't begin until after the Nov. 8 election.

Before coming to Springfield, Bay was city manager of Westerville, a Columbus suburb, and of Pittsburg, Kan.

MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR
Open daily 8-5:30, Saturday 8-1
Drive-Up Conventions
401 Humboldt 776-1193

BEER
Sold at cost plus 5%
Revco Drug Store
Village Plaza

COIN-A-MATIC
All New Equipment
8 a.m.-9 p.m. everyday
1615 Yuma (Behind Kream Kupp)

Faculty YOUR IDEAS are the ones we need!

Union Governing Board (UGB) is a group of ten students, three faculty members, and one alum, who participates directly in the management and operation of the K-State Union. The board works with the staff to see that the Union is the kind of operation K-State should have. If you have a few hours to devote to make the Union a better place, come in and fill out an application.

2 Positions Available — 2 year voting

Application for faculty positions are available in the Union Director's Office. Due Oct. 25

Interviews will begin Nov. 1

 k-state union
host to the campus 0600

THE K-STATE MARCHING BAND IN CONCERT

Tonight 8:00 p.m.
McCain Auditorium
FREE

Featuring our Color Guard,
Pridettes, Feature Twirler, and the super sounds of the '83 Band.

OctoberFest Finale
10% off Sunglasses—except Ray Bans
10% off most frames
10% off second pair
Highest quality lenses
Personalized service
410 Poyntz 776-6255
Downtown Manhattan

VAN SHOES

Now in Manhattan!

Come in and look at our catalog.
All styles, sizes, and colors are available for men, women and children.

Bassetts Bike Shop

217 Poyntz
537-8832

International status of China (Taiwan & Mainland) in world's community

- Speaker: Dr. Hungdah Chiu
- Time : 7:30 p.m. Oct. 22
- Place : K-State Union, Big-8 room

Sponsored by I.C.C. and Chinese Student Assoc.

DANCE!

to:
BOOGIE GRASS FEVER
Fri.—Oct. 21
THE OWENS FAMILY BAND
Sat., Oct. 22
10 p.m.-2 a.m.

Sponsored by Liederkranz
Alma, KS

Fri., Oct. 28
"BEER BASH"
$6 at the door
Dance to
"Southern Star"
All draw beer
FREE
Mixed Drinks $1

Alpha
Delta
Pi

ROCK 'n' ROLL ATHON

Alpha Kappa
Pi

Twenty-five cents from each pitcher will be donated to the Ronald McDonald House and United Cerebral Palsy
Fri. & Sat., October 21 & 22 Sports Fan-attic in Aggieville

Your donations are appreciated.

Association of College

Unions International

Qualifying Tournaments for Regional Competition

Winners to represent K-State at the Regional Level

Tournament	Date & Time	Sign up Deadline	Entry Fee
8-Ball (Singles)	Oct. 22, 10 a.m.	Noon Oct. 21	$3.00 per person
Table Soccer (Singles)	Nov. 10, 7 p.m.	Noon Nov. 10	$1.50 per person
Spades (Doubles)	Nov. 21, 6 p.m.	Noon Nov. 21	$2.00 per team
Table Tennis (Singles)	Nov. 19, 9 a.m.	Noon Nov. 18	$2.00 per person

Sign up at the K-State Union Recreation Desk

 k-state union
recreation area

Briefly By the Associated Press

Carson-ex seeks $2.6 million yearly

LOS ANGELES — Joanna Carson, the estranged wife of "Tonight" show host Johnny Carson, says she needs $220,000 a month to keep up the lifestyle to which she was grown accustomed. She is asking $2.6 million a year in temporary support while her divorce suit is pending against the entertainer who makes $1.5 million a month, her.

Carson says she needs $37,000 a month just to pay for jewelry and furs.

"Throughout the course of our marriage I have dressed stylishly," she explains.

"I have averaged approximately $5,000 per month for clothing and department store purchases."

She also says she needs $71,000 a year to pay for security guards for their home in Bel-Air.

She says the home has extensive landscaping and numerous plants indoors requiring a gardener and an "indoor plant service." Also, she says, she and her husband "have been quite generous with our friends and relatives and have made substantial gifts to them," costing an average of $12,000 a month in 1982.

Monthly sums included household salaries at $4,945; groceries, $1,400; home repair and maintenance, $2,060; uards, $1,125, and telephone bills, $800.

The Carsons, who married on Sept. 30, 1972, both filed divorce petitions in Superior Court on March 9. They cited irreconcilable differences and asked that disposition of community property be decided in court.

Press plays up prince's punch

LONDON — British newspapers ran pictures Wednesday of a snarling Prince Edward throwing a punch at an opponent during an inter-college rugby match at Cambridge University.

Spectators said the 19-year-old youngest son of Queen Elizabeth II appeared to lose his temper after being punched in the groin by an opponent during the last two minutes of a hard-fought game between Jesus College and Girton College on Tuesday.

The prince, playing for Jesus College second team, lashed out at student Hugh Bethel, who was playing for the Girton College second team, hitting Bethel twice in the back.

Bethel, a 19-year-old student at Girton College, carried on playing — such incidents are common in the tough, body-charging game. He said afterwards there had been a "a little trouble" but that he had no complaints.

Man jailed for elaborate schemes

NEW YORK — A 19-year-old man who police said "lives by his wits" has been charged with grand larceny for allegedly bilking prominent New Yorkers of food, cash and a bed for the night after impersonating the stranded son of actor Sidney Poitier.

David Hampton of Buffalo was arrested Tuesday evening, police said, after he called one of the six victims, Columbia School of Journalism Dean Osborn Elliott, and asked to meet him in Greenwich Village.

Police spokesman Sgt. Raymond O'Donnell said he did not know why Hampton called Elliott but said the young man "knew we were looking for him."

Lt. Edward Shea of the police fraud unit said Hampton operated the con by showing up on doorsteps and claiming to be a friend of the victims' daughters from Harvard University.

He allegedly identified himself as the son of Poitier and claimed he was going to meet his father but had no place to stay for the night, police said. Poitier, who won an Academy Award for his performance in the 1963 film, "Lilies of the Field," has no son.

Shea described Hampton as "a guy who lives by his wits," possibly a performer or student "between jobs or between semesters."

Crossword By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Singer

5 Med. school course

9 Atlas feature

12 Dry

13 Singer Perry

14 Exist

15 Island or cocktail

17 Born

18 Runs, as color

19 Patriot

21 Concerning

22 Broadcast

24 Titled woman

27 Square

28 Band instrument

31 High note

32 Mimic

33 Floor covering

34 Ell

36 Little garden

37 Feudal flunky

38 Abhorred

40 Dad

41 Diver's gear

43 Regular show

47 Beach shade

48 Treat

51 To the back

52 Biblical name

53 Actress

54 Common answer

55 Enthralled

56 Judge

DOWN

1 Cote critter

2 Spoken

3 Queue

4 Stick

5 Puts on a show

6 Negating word

7 Dr.'s group

8 — down (made)

less harsh)

9 Work units

10 Region

11 Hammer feature

16 Fruit drink

20 — for tat

22 Lassoed

23 Fired

24 Grass moisture

25 "The Greatest"

26 Searches for escapees

27 Paul's ox

29 Roll

30 Mature

35 Talk it up

37 Merited

39 Circus worker

40 Pod unit

41 Remain

42 Sidewalk eatery

43 Close

44 Unemployed

45 Different

46 Joining

49 — rule

50 Siesta

Avg. solution time: 26 min.

10-20

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 10-20

RFD JZKFR BQTOK AIWQA QDO ZY

RFD HBRRID TJ RFD HWIKDY.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — THE ALERT, ABLE BALLERINA IS ON HER TOES.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: R equals T.

EASTERN EUROPE SPECIALIST
DR. PETER SUGAR
of the University of Washington will speak on the topic of "West's View of the Ottoman's of the 16th century."

Thursday, Oct. 20th
Union Rm. 207

Sponsored by Phi Alpha Theta

SALE
Your choice of Baggy Blue Jeans for only: $22.99
Choose From:
Zena Baggies
Chic Baggies
Sasson Baggies
Lee London Riders
Come for yours today!

1207 Laramie St. Aggieville, 539-2011
Major Charge — Late Fees — Void

THE COMPLEX IMPROVISATIONAL THEATRE

This Fri. & Sat. night
Oct. 21 & 22
Don't miss The Complex Improvisational Theatre in "An Evening in Limbo"

A full evening of outrageous, energetic comedy presented by the K-State Players at 8:00 p.m. in the Purple Masque Theatre in East Stadium.

Tickets $3 at Central University
Ticket Office in Ahearn or at the door

Brother's AGGIEVILLE 539-9064

DRINK 'N DROWN with THE CLOCKS This Weekend — THE SHAPES

It's Coming — BROTHER'S 11th Annual HALLOWEEN PARTY Monday — October 31st

*Don't Miss our Empty Awaiting, Monday, October 31st

LADIES & GENTLEMEN, START YOUR TURTLES!

Silver Bullet Turtle Race
7:30 P.M. Tonite

MRKS

Join The Fun Tonite!

COORS LIGHT SPECIALS:

Pre-Race . . . . . (6:00-7:30)	50¢ Silver Bullets
	$1.50 Coors Light Pitchers
Race Price . . . . . (7:30-10:30)	75¢ Silver Bullets
	$1.95 Coors Light Pitchers
Post-Race . . . . . (10:30-Closing)	75¢ Silver Bullets
	$2.25 Coors Light Pitchers

Plus . . . Free Silver Bullet Posters & Bumper Stickers While They Last!

Mike night gives chance for brief glory to students

By The Collegian Staff

All kinds of talent will be displayed at Open Mike Night at 7:30 tonight in the Union Cat-skeller.

One purpose of Open Mike Night is to give students the opportunity to perform for a short time, without having to take the time and energy necessary to do a Nooner, said Angie Scharnhorst, Union Program Council Coffeehouse Committee chairman.

No auditions are necessary, and students wishing to perform should sign up for an available time slot in the Union Activities Center.

Applications are still being taken, said Scharnhorst, junior in journalism and mass communications. Anyone who wants to perform should tell a member of the Coffeehouse committee, but it isn't necessary to fill out an application.

"We welcome people who come up the night of the show and want to perform," she said.

Students will perform before a live audience for five to fifteen minutes, and any kind of performance is welcome.

Some performers will be students who have previously done Nooners, Scharnhorst said.

Many students have conflicts with their school schedules and cannot see the performances of the weekly Nooner series, and this will be an opportunity for them to see some of these performers at Open Mike Night, she said.

Open Mike Night is to provide students the opportunity to see a wide variety of student entertainment and give others the chance to perform.

U.S. takes sweep of Nobel Prizes

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — American scientists won the 1983 Nobel prizes in physics and chemistry Wednesday, completing the first U.S. sweep since 1976 of all the prestigious science awards.

The announcements by the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences continued an American dominance of the science prizes since World War II.

Laureates announced Wednesday were astrophysicist Subrahmanyan Chandrasekhar of the University of Chicago and William A. Fowler of the California Institute of Technology, who shared the physics prize, and Henry Taube of Stanford University.

Chandrasekhar and Fowler, the second pair of astrophysicists ever to win the Nobel Prize, were honored for pioneering work on the evolution of stars.

Taube won for identifying the process through which sub-atomic particles called ions jump between molecules, helping to explain how plants make food, how batteries work and other common chemical reactions.

Their American citizenship is not the only common thread linking them to this year's previous U.S. winners: Barbara McClintock of New York's Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, in medicine, and Gerard Debreu of the University of California in Berkeley, who won the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science.

Another link is age — Wednesday was Chandrasekhar's 73rd birthday, Fowler is 72, Taube 67, McClintock 81 and Debreu 62. None is of the new generation of scientists.

All five were honored mainly for work done decades earlier. Chandrasekhar, whose best-known work was 50 years ago when he predicted the existence of dying stars known as white dwarfs. Colleagues at the time discounted his theory, but astronomers have since proven not only that white dwarfs exist but they are among the most common in the cosmos.

"My work is usually appreciated after some length of time," Chandrasekhar said in a statement released through the University of Chicago.

"My reaction is one of great humility because so many people are involved," said Fowler, reached by telephone at a conference he was attending at the Yerkes observatory in Williams Bay, Wis.

Taube, telephoned at home on the Stanford Campus, said: "What does one say? Obviously, I'm pleased and of course I was astonished."

Of the five, only McClintock and Fowler are native Americans. Chandrasekhar was born in India, Taube in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, and Debreu in Calais, France.

Before World War II, Americans had won only six physics prizes and three in chemistry. Since 1943, U.S. physicists have won or shared the Nobel 41 times and chemists 23 times.

The Wednesday awards completed the 1983 Nobel announcement series. Each Nobel prize, financed by the legacy of Swedish dynamite inventor Alfred Nobel, carries a record stipend of 1.5 million Swedish kronor, about $190,000. The Nobel Memorial Prize in Economics carries the same stipend, put up by Sweden's central bank.

Band to display 'finesse'

By The Collegian Staff

Free albums.

The first 200 people at the K-State Marching Band concert tonight at 8 in McCain Auditorium will receive a free marching band album, Stan Finck, band director, said.

Besides giving away albums, the band will play songs from its marching shows plus a preview of the music that will be played in future shows. The KSU Color Guard, Pridettes, twirlers and the Wildcat Dancers will be featured with some songs.

Tradition is the major reason the marching band is presenting this concert, Finck said.

"Also, a lot of people enjoy this type of music, but they don't enjoy braving the elements to hear the band at games," he said.

Musical quality is another reason for the concert.

"This gives us a chance to sit down and play the music with a little more finesse than we are able to do on the field," Finck said.

The band will play selections from each show it has performed as well as three songs from shows it will perform at the next home games. The concert will close with the traditional songs "Wildcat Victory" and "Wabash Cannonball."

BLOODMOBILE

Oct. 25-28

Pre-Sign Up Table in the Union Oct. 18-21 & 24 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

Sponsored by Circle K International

ALPHA PHI OMEGA PLANT SALE

Living groups compete for a five foot Weeping Fig.

Today thru Friday 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. K-Room Union

SUSAN WARDEN DANCERS

—in concert—

Sunday, October 23
McCain Auditorium
3:00 p.m.

Tickets: $5 Adults
$3 Students/Seniors
McCain Box Office 532-6428

THE BLUE RIVER PUB PRESENTS THE CHICAGO KNOCKERS

Professional Women Mud Wrestlers

Thursday Night 8 p.m.

Oct. 20th

Blue River Pub
Next to Tuttle Creek Dam
537-9877

Featured Bout "BOOMER"

Tickets available at The Ranch Saloon, Blue River Pub & S Bar J Western Wear.

40 HOME MADE FLAVORS

ICE

CREAM

WORKS

Sundaes
Malts—

Milkshakes

Cones—Dishes—
Banana Split

12 Flavors of Fudge

Location—New First Bank Center
Claflin and Denison

Hours: 10:00 a.m.-Midnight Mon.-Sat.
10:00-10:00 Sunday

ESCAPE TO ASPEN/SNOWMASS WITH UPC TRAVEL January 1-8, 1984

$323/295 (with your own equipment)

TRIP INCLUDES:
ROUND TRIP MOTOR COACH
TRANSPORTATION TO AND FROM
SNOWMASS-ASPEN
5 NIGHTS LODGING AT
THE WOODBRIDGE CONDOMINIUMS
IN SNOWMASS
4 DAYS LIFT TICKETS (GOOD AT SNOWMASS, ASPEN AND BUTTERMILK)
4 DAY EQUIPMENT RENTAL
PRE PARTY
2 WILD WEST PARTIES
UPC TOTE BAG
WINE AND CHEESE PARTY

SIGN-UP
8AM-3PM, K-STATE UNION
3RD FLOOR, ACTIVITIES CENTER

SPACES STILL AVAILABLE!

UPC TRAVEL
1001

BALLARD'S BACKROOM SPECIALS!!

Ladies Fashion Sweat Suits $16<sup>95</sup>
(reg. to $22.95)

Crewnecks & sweatpants $5<sup>00</sup>
(reg. $8.50)

Topstitch Football Jerseys
and Baseball Undershirts $4<sup>00</sup>

Ballard's
IN
AGGIEVILLE

JOB VACANCY

Applications for the State College Work Study Program (SCWSP) are now being accepted in the Office of Student Financial Assistance. The SCWSP is a state funded program to assist in the placement of students in part-time off campus employment positions which directly relate to their area of study. Applications are needed from the following curriculums.

Fashion Marketing
Early Childhood Education
Dietetics and Institutional Management
Business Management
All Curriculums

To qualify, students must have a financial need. Apply in Room 116, Fairchild Hall.

Put a little weekend in your week

MS® MR

Free

London Rider Corduroy

Choose from 12 luscious colors in the Ultra Cord Ground Pick.
Jr. and Jr. Petite sizes 1-13.
$29

BRAND NAMES AT AFFORDABLE PRICES.

Thursday 10-8 Weekdays 10-6 Sunday 12-3:5

FASHION WORLD

3015 Anderson Ave. Village Plaza

Aggie Station
Avalon
Bockers II
Bushwackers
Escondido's
J.D.'s Steakhouse
Kennedy's Claim
Raoul's
Reynard's Back Room
Roger's Tavern
Valentino's

Concentration

Dave VanLandingham concentrates on making a clean spike Wednesday night as his team, Toppers Fright, warmed up prior to its intramural volleyball match. The match was won by default because the other team didn't have enough players. All other intramural sports were postponed.

Staff/Jeff Taylor

Reevaluate coliseum

"Take a long, hard look at your fee card, note the large increase in the cost of attending K-State and find the $16.50 earmarked for a proposed coliseum. By graduation, a student who is now a sophomore will have contributed $118.50." These are the words of Jerry Katlin, student body president.

In case you are not aware, students in February 1979 approved a referendum to provide the necessary funds for building a multi-purpose coliseum to be completed in 1987.

In April of the same year, Student Senate voided the student referendum and resolved to "reaffirm its commitment to a new coliseum at K-State."

The circular coliseum, most of which will be below ground level, is to be located south of the football stadium. It will seat 15,000-17,000.

Total cost of the coliseum was originally estimated to be around $20 million. That has now been reduced to around $16 million do to elimination of unneeded details.

Funding for the coliseum construction is projected to come from a combination of sources including private gifts, students' fees, ticket and parking surcharges, and state appropriations.

The KSU Foundation and bonds backed by student fees were both figured at $6 million a piece, but that has now been raised to $7 million, with the athletic department taking up the final $2 million.

Student fees would be used to pay back the bonded indebtedness over a period of 25 years (assuming 12 percent interest and average enrollment of 15,000 after 1984).

This semester, students paid a $16.50 fee for the coliseum and $16.50 for next semester totaling $33.00. For the entire school year in 1984 the fee will increase to a total $41.50 and $62.00 for the fall of 1990.

In all these facts and figures proposed for a brand-new, modern, attractive coliseum, I wonder if the faculty, staff and students who support this majestic proposal may have forgotten a pertinent matter more important to the University.

Namely, education.

Those who support the coliseum argue the advantages of such a facility such as a new home for the basketball team, a place where concerts could be held and another location for the Landon lectures.

As for the idea of holding the Landon lectures at the new coliseum, why? If there has been any complaint against McCain Auditorium, they have been few if any. Maybe the argument for more seating capacity might be used to move the Landon lecture series out of McCain, then why not Ahearn Field House?

President Reagan's appearance went fine when it was held in Ahearn.

What about scheduled rock concerts in the new coliseum? Many say that Ahearn is not a great place for concerts.

K-State has a history of not being able to sell out concerts. Any concerts could be moved to McCain to serve the purpose. But the directors of McCain refuse to permit such concerts.

The biggest bit of propaganda is the supposed need to accommodate the basketball team, provide a recruiting incentive and to accommodate fans.

It is very doubtful that there will be a large influx of fans which would fill the 15,000-17,000-seat coliseum.

Using the coliseum as an incentive for recruiting purposes, rather than the educational benefits of K-State is a sad excuse to lure a individual. What is more important, sports or an education?

My major concern surrounding the coliseum is the doubt that many people are expressing directly or indirectly.

Let's reevaluate our position before it's too late.

BYU coach aims for 100th victory

By The Associated Press

PROVO, Utah — On the brink of his 100th football victory at Brigham Young University, Coach LaVell Edwards has some advice for younger coaches.

"I could sum it up in one thing: a guy has to be what he is," said Edwards, 99-37-1 in 12 seasons at BYU and 5-1 this year.

"He's got to coach and have a philosophy based on his own personality. You see too many coaches trying to imitate other coaches, trying to be somebody else."

Edwards' blueprint for survival and success has been the forward pass, which annually puts BYU among offensive leaders.

Behind senior Steve Young, the latest in a string of NCAA-leading quarterbacks, Edwards' 18th-ranked Cougars could move a game closer to their eighth straight Western Athletic Conference championship with a victory at San Diego State Saturday.

Edwards embraced the pass when he became head coach in 1972, after serving 10 years as an assistant there.

"We had tried for many years here to run the ball, but we were never very successful because of our speed," Edwards said. "When this opportunity came along, I thought 'Hey, we better approach the game in a different way.' I felt that if we did and got good at it, we'd improve and that's what has happened."

He and his staff have parlayed the passing game to the WAC titles and two Holiday Bowl victories, propelling players to pro football careers and assistant coaches to top jobs elsewhere.

While the nuances of BYU's offense have fluctuated to accommodate defensive changes, Edwards' confidence has remained steadfast since BYU won its first WAC championship in 1974.

The 53-year-old coach, however, cannot generate similar enthusiasm when the subject turns to his ascension to the 100-victory plateau occupied by some 20 active coaches.

"I've never thought in terms of x number of wins, or x number of championships or x number of anything," he reflected.

Softball team closes out season with dismal performance

By TIM FILBY
Collegian Reporter

K-State's women's softball team closed out its fall season last weekend by dropping three of four games against Wichita State University and Oklahoma State University at a WSU triangular and also dropping a double-header at Cowley County Community College.

K-State opened up the weekend action Friday by losing to WSU by a 6-3 score. The Shockers rapped out eight hits against K-State pitcher Alise Willson, while K-State could only come up with three hits, with two of those coming from Rachelle Borders. Willson took the loss to even her fall record to 2-2.

K-State played the second game of the triangular against national power OSU and lost 8-0. K-State's offense again was silenced as Oklahoma State threw one-hit ball against the Wildcat batters. Meanwhile, OSU managed nine hits against K-State pitcher Amy Fischer and was helped out by three Wildcat errors.

K-State coach Ralph Currie said he wasn't pleased with his team's performance.

"We played kind of bad," Currie said. "Sometimes games like that just happen."

Currie said the main reason for his team's poor showing was the two-week layoff the team had before the WSU meet. Another reason was the strength of the meet competition, particularly from Oklahoma State.

"OSU really goes all out in the fall season. They have an outstanding team," Currie said. "They are ranked as one of the top teams in the nation."

On Saturday, the team split a double-header with Cowley County, losing the first game 7-4 and then coming back in the second game to win 6-0.

In the first game, the two teams played an error-plagued game as K-State committed four fielding miscues and Cowley County missed three chances. Currie said a reason for the errors was a stiff wind. Cowley County managed six hits against Fischer, while the Wildcats had five hits, but the 'Cats left seven runners stranded on base.

Currie said a bright spot in the game for his team was the play of two freshmen, Ruth Kiel and Cindy Campbell. Kiel went two for two in the contest while Campbell went two for three.

In the second game, Willson raised her record to 3-2 by tossing a five-hitter. K-State smacked seven hits against Cowley County, three coming from Borders out of four at-bats. Willson also helped her own cause as she rapped out a triple in the first inning. Currie said he was especially pleased with the victory as K-State played seven freshmen in the contest.

However, Currie said he wasn't satisfied with his team's 5-5 record for the fall season.

"I'm a little disappointed with our record because Oklahoma State was the only team that probably should have beat us," he said.

Currie said the main reason for his team's record was the lack of experience of the squad.

"We've got a young team," he said. "We've got only two seniors on the team, and we had a lot of new players."

Another problem for the team was the loss of pitcher Kathy Gilpatrick, a junior college transfer who was hampered by a knee injury. Currie said Gilpatrick is a strong pitcher who could win up to 20 games for his team in the spring season.

"With Kathy playing, she'll be our stopper," Currie said.

BEAUTY SUPPLIES
with this ad
20% OFF
AT
GLAMOUR WORLD
1104 Waters
WEST ON ANDERSON AVE.
BEHIND CURTIS MATHIS T.V.

Big Selections
of
USED ALBUMS
&
NEW RELEASES at $6.60
UNCLE DOG RECORDS
LOCATED ON 3RD ST. ACROSS FROM
THE DAIRY QUEEN — IN MANHATTAN
AUTO SOUND

BUSHWACKER'S
• THE • FLUNDRINKERY
50¢ OFF any lunch
at the
BUSHWACKER EATERY
Try our Smuggler Bar Burger 75¢
Open 11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m., 5 p.m.-1 a.m.
531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

FOUNTAIN FALLS TROPICAL FISH SHOP
Our remodeling is finished!!
Come In and See Our New Stock...
Which includes Birds and a Very Large Selection of Tropical Fish
2007 Ft. Riley Blvd. M. - S. 10:30-6:00
539-1676 Sun. 12:00-5:00

Thursday
Boozers Two
T.N.T.
Tacos "N"
TEQUILA
50¢ TACOS
with drinks
$1.00 Margaritas
4-6 p.m.
RAMADA INN

DISCOUNT SKI TRIPS
Plan your own ski trip
and get discounts on:
* Equipment Rental
* Lift Tickets
* Lodging
* Food & Drinks
* Ski lessons
* And much more
— ONLY —
If you join
SKI CARD INTERNATIONAL
Memberships Available
only at
AGGIE SKI and SPORT
1212 Moro, Aggieville 537-9105
Mon.-Sat. 10-5:30
Thurs. 11:30-7:30

DIAMOND GALLERY
"Wholesale to the Public"
We are Diamond & Karat
Gold Jewelry experts.
WE OFFER A FULL REFUND GUARANTEE—SEE HOW MANY JEWELRY STORES ARE THAT CONFIDENT IN THEIR DIAMONDS.
Gold Wedding Bands
14 Karat From $48.00
10 Karat From $30.00
90 Day Layaway
Trade-ins Welcome
We buy Jewelry
1817 Ft. Riley Blvd.
539-0240 Open 10-6 Mon.-Sat.

GET FRAMED!
Have your picture taken
for Royal Purple
Today:
Goodnow Hall 8:30-5:30
Tomorrow:
Goodnow Hall 8:30-5:30
Off-Campus people
can still get pictures taken
Oct. 10-28 539-5229
Union 209 Bring your stamped fee card.

Rose refuses Phillies' part-time offer, insists he can play on regular basis

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Veteran first baseman Pete Rose refused an offer to be retained as a part-time player, and was released Wednesday by the Philadelphia Phillies.

Rose, 42, insists he can play on a regular basis and will try to sell himself to another team as a free agent.

Rose rejected a part-time role with the Phillies because he is seeking to break Ty Cobb's all-time major league career hit record of 4,191. Rose needs only 10 hits to become the second player in major league history to reach the 4,000 mark.

The Phillies released Rose, who hit only .245 with 17 extra-base hits in 1983, because they planned to use young Len Matuszek at first base next season.

Rose repeatedly has said, "I can still play this game regularly for someone."

There were rumors that Rose might sign with the Atlanta Braves, who have an opening in left field, where he has played in the past.

Rose was signed by the Phillies Dec. 5, 1978, as a free agent, after having played his option with the Cincinnati Reds.

The Phillies signed him to a four-year contract estimated at $3.3 million over four years.

When the contract ran out last season, Rose was signed to a one-year deal with a $300,000 buyout clause, which the Phillies could invoke if they decided not to renew the contract by Nov. 15, 1983.

Rose played in the National League playoffs and World Series this year only because Matuszek was ineligible because he was recalled from the minor leagues after the Sept. 1 eligibility date.

Rose, almost a cinch for the Baseball Hall of Fame, is among the leaders in most offensive categories among active players, including at-bats, runs, hits, singles, doubles and total bases. He is the all-time National League career hit leader and in singles, and is second in runs scored and doubles and fourth in total bases.

Rose got his first big league hit, a triple, off Bob Friend of the Pittsburgh Pirates April 13, 1963. He set the all-time NL record with a single off Mark Littell of the St. Louis Cardinals Aug. 10, 1981. It was No. 3,631 and broke the record held by Stan Musial of the Cardinals.

He moved into second place on the all-time list behind Cobb June 22, 1982, with a double off John Stuper of the Cardinals. It was his 3,772nd hit and put him ahead of Hank Aaron.

Rose also holds the all-time NL consecutive-game hitting streak of 44 set in 1978.

Rose's consecutive game playing streak ended Aug. 24 at 745, 10th on the all-time list. He is the only player ever to have two streaks of 600 games or more.

During the 1983 season, Rose played in his 3,200th game, scored his 2,000th run and collected his 700th double.

He is the only player to have played in over 500 games at five positions, first, second, third, left and right field. He has missed only 92 games in 21 years.

Rose was NL Rookie of the Year in 1963 and the league's most valuable player in 1973. In 1975 he was the World Series MVP.

"I don't like to play part-time," Rose said during a press conference called by Phillies' owner Bill Giles to announce that the veteran player had been released.

"I've been an everyday player for so many years it is hard for me to play three days a week. I'm sure there are some teams out there who want me."

Giles said, "I admire him more than anybody who has ever been in uniform."

In turn, Rose said he wanted to wish the Phillies "nothing but success in the future" and added that he had some fond memories of his years in Philadelphia.

Wathan skips free-agency, signs four-year contract with Kansas City Royals

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Catcher John Wathan decided today not to become a free agent and signed a four-year contract with the Kansas City Royals.

Wathan, 34, met in Kansas City today with General Manager John Schuerholz, and the Royals announced he had signed a contract through the 1987 season. Terms were not disclosed.

Wathan, who hit .245 with 33 runs batted in last season, had said he would file for free agency by next week if he did not have a new contract. He reportedly sought a five-year contract while the Royals had initially offered a three-year pact.

Wathan, who set a record for stolen bases by a catcher with 36 in 1982 despite missing 40 games, gave way late in 1983 to rookie catcher Don Slaught, who has been called the Royals' catcher of the future. Wathan, who became the Royals' regular catcher in 1981, also played first base and the outfield.

"I do not intend to give up the battle for the No. 1 catching job, but I won't make waves about it," Wathan said Tuesday. "I've never made waves. I do intend to play no matter what."

Wathan, who played a reserve role early in his career, had a lifetime .276 batting average entering the 1983 season. He became the regular catcher after Darrell Porter became a free agent and signed with the St. Louis Cardinals after the 1980 season.

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.85 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.25 per inch; Five consecutive days: $3.95 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $3.75 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENT

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, 50¢ for students with ID and 1¢ for all others. (281f)

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours. Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Maries, 1631 Humboldt, 539-5200. (32-50)

GET JOSH McDowell's four books on the secular religions, non-Christian religions, the cults and the occult when you register for KC83 this week. For more information call: Mark Austin, Rick Schulte or Lori Lang at 539-4641. (41-44)

SUSAN WARDEN Dancers Fall Concert, Sunday, October 23, 3:00 p.m., McCain Auditorium. Tickets, McCain Box Office, 532-6428. (42-44)

AUCTION—QUITTING Business—Complete auction of all inventory and fixtures, Friday evening, October 28, 1983, 6:00 p.m., 423 Poyntz, Manhattan, Kansas. The remaining inventory consists of the following: Approximately 6,524 skeins of Persian and tapestry yarn, approximately 5,824 bundles of pre-cut rug yarn in a variety of colors, approximately 2,400 skeins and balls of tatting, pearl cotton and embroidery floss, approximately 2,457 skeins of a variety of types of yarns in all colors and types, 148 pieces of imported needlepoint canvas, knitting needles, cross stitch and other kits, sewing supplies and much more inventory. Fixtures including display cases and racks, stands, tables, pegboard, baskets, display items. Note: The Yarn Shop has always been proud to stock some of the best quality yarn available. A large inventory and sure to be an interesting auction! The Yarn Shop. Auctioneers: Milt Anderson, 776-4834 or 539-7365; Earl Brown, Vern Gannon. (43-44)

GUS: Kawi! Another job? I'll be there at 8:00 p.m.—The Complex Show—"An Evening in Limbo," right? Ben. (43)

ARE YOU ready to party? Putnam Hall presents "The New Wave Function" October 20, 8:00-12:00 p.m. in Putnam's dining room. $1 cover charge for non-residents. Responsible drinking is encouraged! (43)

ATTENTION

TRAVEL—WE will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (11f)

FANTASY-GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

HURRY TO Balfour! To introduce you to our new arrivals, all Footjoy aerobic shoes and racquetball shoes and gloves are 20% off now through October 29th. (39-49)

THINKING ABOUT going to KC 83? Register this week and you'll receive Josh McDowell's four books on "Understanding Today's Religions" in one hardback volume, free! For more information call Mark Austin, Rick Schulte or Lori Lang at 539-4641. (41-44)

COZUMEL—YUCATAN Peninsula—Mexico. Yucatan Field Course: Natural History. Three biology credits, Winter Intercession, January 2-15 from Johnson County Community College. For more information 1-888-0170. (42-44)

UNIVERSITY ORGANIZATION interested in fund raising project call Mildred Polity, 539-7643 day or 539-8622 evening. (43-45)

SINGLE MALE searching for single female born between February 18, 1961 and February 4, 1962. Call 537-8365 for more details. (43-48)

FOR RENT—MISC

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, professional clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11f)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11f)

HALLOWEEN COSTUMES—Sales and rentals, masks, make-up, accessories. The Emporium, 11th and Moro in Aggieville. (35-49)

FOR RENT—APTS

BRAND NEW two bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. Call 776-3804. (35-44)

LARGE, ONE bedroom, laundry facilities, three blocks from campus. Available mid-December. $275/month and electric. 539-0986. (40-44)

VERY NICE, one-bedroom apartment, one block from campus, $240 per month. Call 776-0409. (41-45)

FOR RENT: Mont Blue studio apartment—spring semester. Call 539-2019 after 5:00 p.m. (41-44)

BASEMENT APARTMENT—Two bedroom, remodeled this summer, two blocks west of campus. Call Jim, 539-1135. (42-50)

APARTMENT ONE block from campus, $130 per month per person. Holds "3." All bills paid, 537-1478. (42-43)

FOR RENT—HOUSES

FIVE BEDROOM, quiet neighborhood. No lease, $500 per month. Call Brian 1-456-7423 after 5:30 p.m. (40-44)

NICE, THREE-bedroom house, Northview. Garage, appliance, new carpeting, paint. Couples, older student. Lease, $395. Call 776-9765. (40-44)

FOR RENT—Spacious, furnished, three bedroom home, three blocks from campus, two baths, utility room, garage. References required. Shown by appointment. Call 776-1283 after 5:00 p.m. (42-46)

COUNTRY MOBILE home, place for horse, garden. Ten minutes from Manhattan. Prefer married couple. 1-494-2469. (43-45)

FOR SALE—AUTO

1968 AMX classic 390—automatic, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, stereo, 5,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Excellent condition, $3,400. Might trade, 537-4782. (39-48)

1980 DATSUN 4x4 with top, good condition. 776-1182 after 5:00 p.m. Monday-Friday. Weekends anytime. (40-44)

1979 BLUE MGB. Excellent condition, low mileage. Call 776-8055 after 7:00 p.m. (40-44)

1972 MGB convertible. New paint, new top, is in great shape. Call 539-3092. (41-45)

1975 TRANS AM, power steering, power brakes, power windows, runs great. Call 776-9044. (41-44)

FOR SALE—1978 Monte Carlo Landau. Must sell—real nice. Phone 1-494-8264. St. George. (43-44)

FOR SALE—MISC

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risqué greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper books, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (gray), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (ll. blue), USC (white) others. $12.50 each postpaid. S-M-L-XL. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. CDD orders call 1-801-835-1085. (32-45)

EMBROIDERED DRESSES—Beautiful hand-embroidered dresses from Mexico. Pure cotton, comfortable, inexpensive. Great for gift-giving. Write for information. Montezuma's Revenge, Box 50150, Austin, Texas 78763. (36-45)

FOUR NU vs. KSU football tickets, $30 each. Call 776-1244 or 539-9166. (41-43)

ONE-HALF Arab bay gelding, three years old, green broke. Call 776-9746 after 6:00 p.m. (42-46)

VW BUG ACCESSORIES

Chrome wheel rings, door handles, hub caps, valve covers, upholstery kits, walnut dash knobs.

1-494-2388 J & L Bug Service.

TEAC C-3RX professional deck. Mint. $425. Call 537-9755. (42-44)

TWO BAMBOO chairs, two wicker partitions. Reasonable offer. Aaron, 776-3379. (42-43)

TIMEX COMPUTER with 16K Ram, full size keyboard with 12 key punch pad, software. Asking $175. Call 532-3980, 532-5201. (42-43)

TWO AND one-half year old Bassett with papers, $15. Allergies, forced to sell. Call 537-1478. (42-43)

FIVE FAMILY sale Saturday 22, 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Jardine Terrace, G4 Stereo, winter coats and jackets. Clothes for everyone. Baby crib, records, portable radio, air conditioner, appliances, leather handbags, kids' stuff. Rain or shine. (43-44)

RECORD SALE: Albums by groups like The Rolling Stones, Santana, Fastway, and many more at 1010 Gardenway. $A or call at 537-0248 between 1:00-6:00 p.m. (43-44)

SCUBA EQUIPMENT: U.S. Divers, top-of-the-line, full set. Contact Marcus at 776-8779. (43-44)

BICYCLE 12 speed, eclipse bags front and rear with racks, handlebar bag, rollers for indoor riding. 537-8501. (43-47)

BIRDS—HEALTHY, semi-tame, cheap. Quaker Parakeet, eighteen months old. Senegal Parrot, three years old. 776-0635. (43-44)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES

1972 AUBURN, 14' x 70'; two bedroom. Includes appliances, washer, dryer and air. Call 539-2456 after 5:00 p.m. (41-44)

1973 YAMAHA 250 street, 9,900 miles. Good shape, $400. Negotiable. 537-2087 evenings. (41-43)

1979 SUZUKI GS550, 18,000 miles, new chain, battery, helmets included. $900 or best offer. 776-1332 after 5:00 p.m. (42f)

1975 KAWASAKI 175 Enduro. Excellent condition, must sell. Asking $275. Call 776-9296. (42-45)

MUST SELL: 1976 Yamaha Enduro, see to appreciate, excellent condition; only 1,600 miles. Cathy, 539-9253. (43-44)

FOUND

A KNIFE was found in the alley behind Seaton. Find it and claim by calling John at 539-2743. (41-43)

BROWN JACKET found October 10th in Fairchild Hall. Call 537-9024 to identify and claim. (41-43)

TODD HUGHES—Your Cross pen is in 303 Willard. Please bring I.D. (41-43)

CALCULATOR FOUND outside Umlberger Hall. Call 532-3579 to identify and claim. (42-44)

TWO PAIR eyeglasses. Claim in Kedzie 103. (42-45)

FOUND SUNDAY—Men's 27" 10-speed bicycle. To identify and claim call 537-1356. (43-45)

HELP WANTED

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sighting. Free information. Write J.C. Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

WORKSTUDY POSITION available—Must have Workstudy, 10-12 hours weekly. Apply instructional Media Center, Bluemont Hall, Rm. 016. Ask for Ron or Janette. 532-5926. (40-44)

BARTENDER, EXPERIENCE preferred. Call Cindy, 539-0230. (41-43)

KANSAS STATE University's Special Services Program is seeking applications for a temporary part-time Math Coordinator's position. The application deadline for this position is 5:00 p.m., October 24, 1983. Position Description—Responsibilities for this position include managing a laboratory setting with underprepared students in the area of basic math and algebra skills. Small group math and lab sessions will be conducted on a daily basis. Applicants should have teaching experience and an awareness and sensitivity of the needs of educationally disadvantaged students, and adaptability to individualized and group instruction. Knowledge of computer assisted instruction in math is highly desirable. A Master's degree in math is preferred. Annual salary for the temporary (7 month, part-time (0.6) position is $5,040. Send letter of application and resume with names and addresses of three references to: Educational Supportive Services, 201 Holton Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, KS 66506. KSU is an EEO/AA Employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply. (41-43)

COLLEGE STUDENT to babysit four-month daughter of faculty member in our home. One block from campus, MW, 9:00 a.m.-noon. Call 539-1947 or 532-6350, ext. 16. (43-44)

LOST

HP34C. Lost in Durland or Seaton. Please call 776-0441 or 532-5560. (41-43)

CALCULATOR Lost October 13, possibly in Cardwell Hall. If found, please call 776-2110. Reward offered. (42-44)

KEYS ON A Ch-Tower ring. Lost near ChE office. Reward offered. 532-5584, ext. 56. Huang. (43-45)

PERSONAL

MARK AND Eason: We wanted to give you cookies but they stuck to the vasoline on our hands and they wouldn't stick elsewhere. Have a good one anyway. Love your little sis' Pam, Evie and Kathy. (43)

SHERI—HEY Q.T.I. I just want to wish you good grace on your exam today. Ask God for strength and good memory recall and He will give it to you. I John 5:14-15. I love you! Shirley (alias D-bra) (43)

MOTHER GUIDO Sarducci—Where is God? Well, it all depends if you're comin' or goin'. But remember to drop the pack, 'cause it's a cheap sin. —Rabbi Raoul. (43)

HEY HOOVE—Shape up and get in the groove, 'cause all JIT's are on the move. Even though Yom Kippur has come and gone, this event is #1. —Mel. (43)

TO CERTAIN Sigma Chi pledges (you know who you are): Are they still letting lizards run loose on fifth floor? Don't kill us for the burned cookies, remember, dead little sisters, like dead puppies aren't any fun! Love, J and J. (43)

MUSHUGA—IN return for license and keys, you get explanation Cynthia C. (43)

DRE—IT'S time to check our clocks again 'cause Mr. Monkey is in town. Just watch the bolts (I may have loosened them!) Sue. (43)

ROB—HAPPY 21st. Love ya lots! Sherill. (43)

KRIS—CONGRATULATIONS and good luck to you and Dave. Thanks for being a great roommate. Julia. (43)

GREG AND Dave: With you as our coaches, we just can't lose. What a great combination, ADPI, Sigma Nu's. Our team is psyched and we're ready to win. Bump, set, spike... let the victories begin! Love, your awesome V-Ball Players. (43)

J. CATHEART—The big 23 is here. How does it feel to be older than your sister again? Have a Happy Birthday and enjoy Denver. C. (43)

ATO'S and Little Sisters: Tomorrow's the day, twelve noon they'll begin. Pike Little Sister Olympics are here, and ATO's will most definitely win! (43)

JILL—HAPPY 18th Birthday. The last one and one-half years have been wonderful. MG. (43)

DELTA SIG Mom of S.S.—The pacifier was super, and the sweat was neat. Love, S.S. (43)

ROOMMATE WANTED

ONE TWO female non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplace, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (44-48)

FEMALE WANTED to share nice house, $85 plus one-half utilities. Good location, 537-1570. (40-44)

TO SHARE new apartment one-half block from campus. Full dishwasher, air/heat, one-third utilities, $150 rent. Call 537-9011. (41-44)

NEEDED—FEMALE roommate A.S.A.P. Nice, clean home, good location! Call 537-2222 between 1:00-5:00 p.m. every afternoon. (41-44)

ROOMMATE WANTED To share four-bedroom apartment through May. Good location. Call 539-6849. (42-51)

SERVICES

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Unique skin care and glamour products. Call Floris Taylor, 539-2070, for facial. (1-75)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South 4th Street, Suite 25. (11f)

GRADUATING THIS semester? Let us help you with your resume. Resume Service, 1221 Moro, Aggieville, 537-7294. (11f)

J&L BUG SERVICE

VW Rabbit and Bug repairs. Tune ups starting at $42. Parts—new and used. We buy dead Bugs, Rabbits. 1962 Bus for sale. 1-494-2388 St. George.

TYPING—LOWER rates. IBM electronic typewriter for faster service. Satisfaction guaranteed. Call Linda, 776-8174. (71f)

MARY KAY Cosmetics. Free facials. 10 percent off products with student I.D. New fall glamour products now in. Call Elaine Bernhill, independent Beauty Consultant, 537-3233 days, 1-456-7251 evenings. (30-50)

TYPING—LETTERS, term papers, resumes, etc. Reasonable rates. Call Sherry, 539-9131 after 5:30 p.m. (21-50)

Captain Cosmo

By Doug Yearout

EPA finds dioxin in landfill; Bloodmobile operations expand

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rep. Dan Glickman Wednesday called on Kansas Gov. John Carlin to permanently close the Furley waste site near Wichita, saying discovery of a small concentration of dioxin in a test well there proves the site is not suitable for waste disposal.

"The site was not suitable for a landfill in the first place," said Glickman, D-Kan., who said state and federal environmental officials have failed to make any careful study of how far chemicals from the site may have leaked into groundwater.

Glickman also called for a more detailed and sweeping survey of groundwater around the site and criticized the federal Environmental Protection Agency for failing to provide him with adequate information on the problem.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., also called for additional dioxin testing at the site. In a statement issued by his office, Dole said he had received assurances from the EPA regional office in Kansas City that the agency will immediately begin to determine the origin of the toxin and whether it is spreading.

Glickman's comments came at a news conference in his Capitol Hill office which he said he called "because I want to bring this to (Carlin's) attention directly."

The state said Tuesday that it had found dioxin, a highly toxic contaminant that has been linked to cancer and other chronic diseases, at a concentration of 1.7 parts per billion in water at a test well near the rural site.

Glickman said while there was no evidence of any imminent harm to the few families living in the sparsely populated area, the discovery proves that reopening the site to waste disposal would be unwise.

Chemical Waste Management Inc. has refurbished the site and has applied to the state for permission to resume dumping waste there. Carlin ordered the Furley dump closed temporarily nearly two years ago after it was discovered that groundwater had been contaminated.

Glickman said he was not trying to short-circuit the legal waste site application process, but said in a letter to Carlin that "there is no reason at all to continue the state reviews now that dioxin has been verified...The site should never be allowed to reopen."

By NANCY MALIR
Staff Writer

Continuing a longstanding tradition, Circle K International will sponsor the Red Cross Bloodmobile Oct. 25-28 in the Union.

Circle K has been instrumental in coordinating bloodmobile activities each semester at K-State for several years, Karen Vanmeter, senior in finance, said.

K-State had 1,500 donors take part in last semester's bloodmobile. Vanmeter said Circle K has expanded its operations to accommodate between 1,700 and 1,800 potential donors this semester.

Those wishing to participate in the bloodmobile may sign up until Friday, and again on Monday, on the first floor of the Union.

Persons must meet certain requirements before qualifying as blood donors. According to literature by the American Red Cross, these include the following:

— A donor must be between ages 17 and 65.

— Whether female or male, the minimum body weight is 110 pounds for donors.

— Persons suffering from anemia are not acceptable.

— The use of penicillin and sulfa must be deferred prior to donation for seven days if injections and 24 hours if pills.

— Persons suffering from colds, sore throats and flu symptoms are not allowed to donate.

— Diabetics using injections for treatment are not allowed to donate.

— Operating power machinery, climbing scaffolding, driving a school bus, or piloting aircraft or performing other flight crew duties are to be avoided for specified periods of time following donation, depending upon the activity.

— Persons with a past history of viral hepatitis are deferred from donating blood permanently. Intimate contact with someone suffering from viral hepatitis requires deferral for six months.

— Potential blood donors who have visited countries where malaria exists are deferred for six months after leaving the malarious area, or if anti-malarial drugs were taken, for three years after cessation of this drug therapy. Natives from countries where malaria exists are deferred for three years.

— Persons with active syphilis are deferred, but those with herpes are not.

— Donations are not acceptable during pregnancy.

— Persons who have had major surgery are deferred for three months.

— Persons with symptoms and signs suggestive of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) are excluded from donating.

comprehensive health associates
• free pregnancy tests
• outpatient abortion services
• alternative counseling referrals
• gynecology
• contraception
1-435 & Bee Overland Park 642-3100

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity
Rep. — TOM SEELE
• Supplemental Retirement Annuities
• Investment Options
• Free Transfer Privileges
• State Deferred Compensation
• Life Insurance
1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 913/276-7095

Thursday
Jack nite & Black Velvet
1.50 ea (9-3)
at
COWBOY PALACE
Where it don't make no difference
209 Payntz 539-9828
4:00pm to 3:00am

KSU vs. Fort Scott Match Rodeo

Clubs & Alumni Participating
Sat. & Sun., Oct. 22 & 23
Cico Park 1 p.m.

Gate Admission $1.50—
Under 12 Free

Dance: Sat. 8-12

Blue River Pub:

Boogie Grass Fever

$2 Miller Pitchers

Co-sponsored by B&B Distributing and KSU Rodeo Club

New at Pinata:

CHIMICHANGAS

(chee-mee-chan-gas)

They're fun to say
& great to eat!

Piñata.

Open Daily at 11:00 a.m.

Bluemont and North Manhattan

539-3166

The Avalon

1122 Moro

TONIGHT

PRESSURE

Plays Reggae Music for

LADIES NIGHT—

Ladies get $1.00 HOUSE DRINKS

50c DRAWS • FREE COVER 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Friday—Watch for TGIF SPECIALS with Music by GLOW
UPSTAIRS IN AGGIEVILLE

539-9703

BUSHWACKER'S
• THE •
FUNDRINKERY

Thursday
75c Well Drinks
9-11
Happy Hour: 4-9
2 fers on hiballs
75c draws $2 blended drinks

Drink of the Week: Tiger's Tail Stop by the Eatery

A reciprocating Club
Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321
531 N. Manhattan

"UPC... We do it right!"

UPCOMING EVENTS

Thursday, Oct. 20

Outdoor Rec—Trapshooting Info
Meeting: Union Rm. 213 7 p.m.

Kaleidoscope—The Weavers:

LT 3:30, FH 7:30 p.m.

Coffeehouse—Open Mike Night:

Catskeller, 7:30 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 21

Outdoor Rec—Trapshooting sign up begins: Activities Center, 8-4 p.m. thru Oct. 28.

Feature Films—Midnight Cowboy:

FH 12 midnight.

Saturday, Oct. 22

Special Events—Stray Cats tickets on sale at noon in Union 1st Floor
Box Office. Tickets are $10, $9.50, $9 for KSU students.

Feature Films—Seems Like Old
Times: FH 2 p.m.

Feature Films—The Year of Living
Dangerously: FH 7 & 9:30 p.m.

Feature Films—Midnight Cowboy:

FH 12 midnight.

Sunday, Oct. 23

Feature Films—Seems Like Old
Times: FH 2 & 7 p.m.

Monday, Oct. 24

Arts—Richae Morrow, pencil
drawings: Union 2nd Floor
Showcase thru Nov. 4

Kaleidoscope—Nosferatu and
Nosferatu the Vampyre:

LT 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday, Oct. 25

Coffeehouse—Nooner—Boplicity,
jazz fusion: Catskeller 12 noon.

Kaleidoscope—Nosferatu and
Nosferatu the Vampyre:

LT 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday, Oct. 26

Kaleidoscope—Das Boot:

LT 7:30 p.m.

♿ Spaces available
at our events.

k-state union
program council

1009

In the spirit of the original Coffeehouse...
UPC Coffeehouse proudly presents the semester's first

OPEN MIKE NIGHT

TONIGHT

7:30 p.m. Catskeller

Stop by and see your friends performing, or perform yourself!
Walk-ins accepted.

k-state union
upc coffeehouse

Harpist Florence Schwab

Thurs., Oct. 20
12 noon
Union Art Gallery

k-state union
upc arts

Nosferatu
THE VAMPYRE

Halloween Double Feature

F.W. Murnau's 1922 Classic

&

Werner Herzog's 1979 Remake

"The two best vampire films ever made."

Oct. 24 & 25 7:30 p.m.

Little Theatre $1.50

Rated PG

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope Come in costume and get 50¢ off ticket price.

Wasn't That A Time!

Thurs., Oct. 20
3:30 p.m.
Little Theatre
7:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.50

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

The Year of Living Dangerously

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer presents A McClintock & McClintock Production A Peter Weir Film
MEL GIBSON SIGOURNEY WEAVER

Friday & Saturday
Oct. 21 & 22

7 & 9:30 p.m.

Forum Hall $1.50
Rated PG

k-state union
upc feature films

JON VOIGHT DUSTIN HOFFMAN
IN

MIDNIGHT COWBOY

Rated R

Friday & Saturday
Oct. 21 & 22

12 midnight

Forum Hall $1.50

k-state union
upc feature films

SEEMS LIKE OLD TIMES

Sat., Oct. 22
2:00 p.m.

Sun., Oct. 23

2:00 & 7:00 p.m.

Forum Hall $1.50

k-state union
upc feature films

Committee suggests dropping associate degree programs

By NANCY MALIR
Staff Writer

The Board of Regents Academic Affairs Committee approved recommendations Thursday to cut five physical science associate degree programs from K-State's curriculum.

The committee also approved discontinuing the bachelor's degree in general studies and the Interdisciplinary Associate of Science degree in natural sciences at all regent schools in the physical science disciplines.

Associate programs K-State would lose are general physical sciences, chemistry, geology, geophysics and seismology, and physics. An associate program requires approximately 60 credit hours of undergraduate work.

The recommendations will be considered in an 8:30 a.m. meeting today by the entire Board of Regents.

"We would expect each individual campus to implement the recommended cuts in its own way," Regent Sandra McMullen said.

No more students will be allowed to enter these curriculums following the close of the 1983-84 school year, Joe McFarland, regent director of academic affairs, said.

"A bachelor of general studies is an inappropriate vehicle for students wishing to major in the physical sciences."

"Two years of work in these particular areas is felt not to be adequate preparation for students for positions that require this kind of background," McFarland said.

Speaking in the committee meeting, Regent Archie Dykes said regent schools are "at the point where relatively few small increases in the state's appropriations would result in quantum leaps of the quality of programs that the universities offer."

Dykes then outlined four major areas, that, as a result of a reviewing process by the regents, "have been identified to be critical needs which will require the special attention of the (Kansas) Legislature."

The areas reviewed at regent schools were architecture and environmental design, engineering, engineering-related technologies, library and archival sciences, and physical sciences.

Dykes said a very serious problem facing regent schools is the quality of equipment used in classrooms.

Although certain departments have garnered some funding from private interests to purchase teaching equipment, the schools were still found to be less than adequately financed for equipment maintenance, Dykes said.

Also found was a lack of equipment maintenance personnel in the reviewed departments.

"In all of our institutions, we do not have the kind of technical support that is needed," Dykes said.

Due to private sector competition, the committee found that the engineering and physical science disciplines have difficulty retaining quality faculty, he said.

"I don't believe that faculty enter their field with the idea in mind of eventually leaving, but it comes to a point where people can't afford to remain in an institution when the spread (between academic and private salaries) becomes too thin," Dykes said.

The committee wrote in its report that "institutions must be able to offer competitive stipends to attract qualified graduate students and maintain graduate programs."

Dykes also mentioned the long-term impact of foreign students in graduate programs.

"Since we have a considerable number of foreign graduates in these areas and American students don't see a need to pursue higher degrees, one has to wonder about the end result."

"It's an ominous situation which has the potential to affect the ability of our country in the marketplace for a long time to come," he said.

Dykes reemphasized the need for legislative funding.

"The basic investment in our institutions is there. What we're pointing out is the critical need for a small increment that would make a substantial difference in the quality of programs," he said.

House again votes aid cutoff for CIA-backed Nicaraguans

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A bitterly divided House on Thursday voted for the second time in three months to cut off CIA support for Nicaraguan counter-revolutionaries. The 227-194 vote, largely along party lines, was nearly identical to the earlier tally.

Like the first cut-off proposal, the new one is seen as unlikely to win approval in the Republican-controlled Senate.

There were 209 Democrats and 18 Republicans voting for the cut-off proposal.

The House vote came after a heated debate in which each side accused the other of risking deeper U.S. involvement in Central America's wars.

"Military victory is the administration's bottom line," charged Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, about the expanding CIA backing for Nicaraguan "contras" — or counter-revolutionaries.

Boland, sponsor of the cut-off amendment, said the Reagan administration must stop "waging war in Nicaragua. And make no mistake about it, this is exactly what the United States is doing."

But Republicans said the covert action had succeeded in pressuring the Nicaraguan Sandinista government to curtail its support for leftist guerrillas in El Salvador and to accept new peace proposals from the so-called Contadora nations — Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela and Panama.

Further, declared Rep. G. William Whitehurst, R-Va., an intelligence committee member, if the covert action is stopped, "before this decade is out, you will see American blood spilled in ways no one can imagine."

He suggested that if the covert action was stopped it could lead to direct U.S. military intervention.

The amendment to the 1984 intelligence authorization bill would eliminate the covert aid and replace it with $50 million in open assistance to help pro-U.S. nations in the region stop leftist gun-running.

At the State Department, meanwhile, Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel d'Escoto met with senior U.S. officials and presented what he said were "very concrete and detailed proposals" for achieving peace in Central America. After meeting with Assistant Secretary of State Langhorne Motley and other officials, d'Escoto told reporters it was the first proposal of its kind since Central American peace negotiations began nine months ago.

After an angry debate reminiscent of the Vietnam War era, the House voted 228-195 on July 28 to approve the cut-off. That bill, however, was ignored by the Republican-controlled Senate, and the Senate Intelligence Committee voted 13-2 to provide the CIA $19 million for the covert action.

The CIA estimates the program will cost a total of $48 million in fiscal 1984, which began Oct. 1, intelligence sources said. The program cost an estimated $33 million last year.

On the other side of Capitol Hill, the Senate passed 86-11 an amendment to the 1973 War Powers Act in an effort to provide Congress a means of overruling the president and ordering U.S. troops brought back from hostilities abroad.

The amendment would permit Congress to take such action by passing a resolution that would be subject to veto by the president. To overcome the veto, a two-thirds majority of both houses would be needed.

The measure is intended to circumvent the so-called legislative veto, an action the Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional earlier this year.

The Senate gave final congressional approval Thursday to a compromise $104.4 billion measure that would give the major domestic Cabinet departments $4 billion more than President Reagan requested. Despite the extra money, legislators said the president appeared ready to sign the bill.

By a voice vote and with almost no discussion, the Senate sent the measure to the White House. About 90 minutes earlier, the House had approved the measure to provide money in the current fiscal year by a 323-79 vote.

If the bill is signed into law, it will be the first time since 1978 that separate appropriations will be available for the programs and operations of the departments of Health and Human Services, Labor, Education and related agencies.

Staff/John Sleezer

Helen Moore, winner of the best-dressed turtle award, poses for a picture with trainer Bill Cunningham, sophomore in geology, during the turtle races Thursday night in an Aggieville bar.

Stephan oversees turtle race at tavern

By TOM DOWNING
Staff Writer

Attorney General Bob Stephan was in Manhattan Thursday evening to attend a dinner with some friends and ended up watching his first turtle race.

Stephan said jokingly, "I'm here to make sure they don't put any bets on the turtles. It's obviously a very exciting experience, a little bit crazy but my wife wouldn't believe they were having a turtle race. I said we gotta go. It's fun."

Eighteen turtles, their sponsors and hundreds of students crowded into Mr. K's for the Coors Light Silver Bullet Turtle Race to determine the fastest turtle in Manhattan.

The turtles and their trainers had been preparing for the event since Tuesday. Representatives of the beer's distributor gave turtles to the contestants Tuesday.

Living groups sponsored each racer. At the end of the contest the turtles could be kept or given to Sunset Zoo or the Humane Society.

Marty, winner of the first heat, sported a red-and-white jersey with Beta Sigma Psi letters. He pulled ahead by a foot and a half and made a slow arc to the side toward his cheering section to cross the finish line by eight shells.

In the second heat, Roadrunner assumed an early lead but was overtaken by Hare I am, the Delta Upsilon turtle. Hare I am, dressed up to look like a rabbit, took a long time to cross the circle to victory.

The Delta Tau Delta turtle won the third heat. Bogie sprinted alone to the final ring of the circle.

Winner of the fourth heat was Turtle, sponsored by Sigma Chi and Kappa Kappa Gamma. Turtle ran the fastest in the preliminary rounds but was unable to claim the title.

Clearly the fastest turtle of the evening was Bogie, winner of the final race.

Group urges Reagan to veto bill

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Conservative Caucus delivered 43,700 signatures to the White House on Thursday in a last-ditch effort to persuade President Reagan to veto legislation creating a national holiday in honor of Martin Luther King Jr.

The petitions used King's own words — that people should be judged by "the content of their character, not the color of their skin" — in urging Reagan to return to his original opposition to the measure.

The bill, however, passed the House and Senate by such lopsided margins that Reagan would risk the futile and politically awkward exercise of seeing a veto overridden by Congress and the measure enacted anyway.

At his news conference Wednesday night, a few hours after the Senate voted 78-22 to establish a King holiday, the president reluctantly promised to sign the bill "since they seem bent on making it a national holiday."

Reagan did not make clear who he meant by "they," but said he would have preferred some observance of the slain civil rights leader's birthday short of establishing a 10th national holiday.

The bill declares the third Monday in January, starting in 1986, as a holiday in King's memory. King was born Jan. 15, 1929.

After Howard Phillips, chairman of the Conservative Caucus, delivered the petitions to the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes dismissed speculation that Reagan might change his mind.

"The president will sign it," he said.

Army enforces curfew after coup on island in eastern Caribbean

By The Associated Press

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados — Scattered gunfire broke out in Grenada Thursday after the army killed Prime Minister Maurice Bishop and as many as 10 others in a far left coup.

The army placed the island under curfew and warned that violators would be shot on sight.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the turmoil on the Caribbean island — where there are some 1,000 Americans, many of them medical students — "has raised our concerns to the highest level."

State Department officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said "there are suspicions" but no evidence that Cuba might have played a role in the upheaval.

The gunfire crackled in the early morning, said sources in Grenada's capital of St. George's, but none ventured outdoors because the army led by Gen. Hudson Austin threatened to shoot anyone judged to be disturbing the peace.

"Look, man, how do you expect me to tell you anything with the curfew on?" asked a resident contacted by telephone from neighboring Barbados. "I'm certainly not going out."

The army said in a broadcast that anyone venturing out before 6 p.m. Monday would be "shot on sight." It also urged Grenada's 110,000 citizens to be "vigilant against imperialistic attempts at counter-revolution."

Austin's role in Bishop's ouster and slaying Wednesday surprised many Grenada-watchers, who had expected Bishop's deputy, Bernard Coard, to emerge as the new leader. He has not been heard from for nearly a week.

Austin was an original member of the New Jewel Movement founded in 1973 by Bishop, and is credited with leading the charge on police barracks in 1979 that brought Bishop to power in a coup that overthrew Sir Eric Gairy.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Mike Morgan said in Bridgetown there are some 650 students, nearly all of them Americans, along with 100 faculty and staff at the St. George's University School of Medicine. He said there also were American retirees in Grenada and "an unknown number of tourists could be there."

Diplomatic sources in Barbados, quoting accounts from informants in Grenada, reported that witnesses said Bishop and Foreign Minister Unison Whiteman had been captured and executed Wednesday. Whiteman reportedly led a crowd of several thousand that freed Bishop from house arrest earlier in the day.

Army commander Austin claimed on the state radio late Wednesday that the army opened fire, killing Bishop and others, after Bishop began arming his supporters and two soldiers were killed.

But a witness said Bishop raised his hands over his head in surrender shortly before the soldiers opened fire, a source said.

Army reopens options for females

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Prodded by women's groups, the Army on Thursday reopened 13 of 23 military specialties it had closed to female enlistees on ground they risked involvement in direct combat.

Lt. Gen. Robert Elton, the Army's personnel chief, acknowledged at a news conference that the action was "driven by a number of concerned groups," including an advisory panel which had protested the job closures to Defense Secretary

Caspar Weinberger.

That panel, the Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Services, issued a statement saying that "we applaud the substantial changes that have been made."

The categories reopened to women include such jobs as repairing missile radar and fire control systems, operating heavy construction equipment, and decontamination specialists in nuclear, biological and chemical warfare.

Elton stressed that the Army was sticking to its policy, established by the Defense Department, that women will continue to be barred from serving in combat units such as infantry, artillery and armor.

"We did not look at opening up combat military occupational specialties," Elton said.

However, the Army announced at the same time that it plans to increase the number of enlisted women from the present 66,300 to 72,700 and the number of women officers from the present 9,300 to 10,600 by 1987.

Publisher seeks HUD compromise

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Writer

Manhattan Mercury publisher Edward Seaton is scheduled to meet today with Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., concerning the proposed downtown mall.

Dave Bartel, a Kassebaum aide, said Thursday the only meeting between mall supporters and officials in Washington that he is aware of is the one between Seaton and Kassebaum.

"She (Kassebaum) has sent at least one letter to HUD supporting the project, which she does whenever a city asks for her support," Bartel said.

John Peterson, an aide to Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said he was uncertain, but he believed there might be some Manhattan representatives scheduled to meet with Dole personnel or other officials today. No meetings between mall supporters and Dole have been scheduled, he said.

Dole hasn't indicated whether he is for or against the mall, Peterson said.

Don Dodge, deputy assistant director of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which is reviewing the city's request for a $10 million Urban Development Action Grant for the mall, was unavailable for comment Thursday afternoon.

Various backers of the mall said Thursday they won't attend today's meetings, but all acknowledged they knew the sessions were planned.

City Commissioner Gene Klingler was out of town Thursday afternoon and Commissioner Dave Fiser said he was unaware of the meetings.

The only major hurdles in the way of the UDAG's approval are a review committee's examination, a vote by the J.C. Penney capital appropriations committee to put a store in the mall and an approval by HUD Secretary Sam Pierce, said Karen Daily, a planner in the city community development office.

The J.C. Penney board is scheduled to vote next Thursday on whether to establish a store in the mall, Daily said. An announcement about approval of the UDAG is expected next Friday.

A request for an $11.5 million UDAG was cut by HUD in late July to $8.25 million. The current meetings are an attempt by the city to gain approval for a compromise amount.

Senate discusses finals week change

By KATHY BARTELLI
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate was informed Thursday night that beginning in 1984, December commencement exercises will be offered for graduating seniors. Currently, commencement exercises occur only in the spring.

Kent Barnow, chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee said the University is unable to begin the December exercises this year due to planned construction in McCain during the months of December and January. He said there is a possibility of having two commencement exercises in December because of the large number of people who are expected to be involved.

Barnow, senior in finance, also discussed a possible solution to the dead day problem in the spring semester which the committee is considering.

He said the committee is considering a proposal that would eliminate the current tentative grade policy to allow for a weekend between dead week and finals week.

He said that currently, instructors must submit tentative grades of graduating seniors to the registrar's office prior to dead week. Finals during the spring semester begin on a Friday and end on the following Wednesday to allow instructors time to change the tentative grades as needed depending on seniors' performance on final exams. These changes must be submitted to the registrar's office by 5 p.m. on the Thursday before commencement. This policy allows students to receive their diplomas during commencement exercises.

Under the system being discussed, students would not receive their diplomas at the exercises, but would receive an additional two days to study between dead week and finals if there are no scheduling conflicts.

William Feyerharm, assistant provost, is head of the committee that is studying the proposal. If the committee approves the proposal, Faculty Senate would probably make the final determination, Barnow said. Feyerharm could not be reached for comment.

Also discussed at the meeting was a tentative plan to re-assign to the reserved section one-third of the non-reserved basketball seats.

Student Body President Jerry Katlin said the Central Ticket Office contacted him asking for permission to make the move because of the increase in demand for both individual and group reserved tickets.

Last year, 600 of the 1,050 non-reserved tickets were sold while there were 9,000 requests for the 4,000 reserved seats, Katlin said.

Katlin said he would intend for the proposal, which would allow for 175 extra seats in both the individual and group reserved sections, to be reviewed annually. If at any time the demand for non-reserved tickets increased, the seats could be moved back to the non-reserved section.

Katlin said he would discuss senators' opinions, both pro and con, with Carol Adolph, director of ticket sales, and Dick Towers, Director of Athletics, and they will make a decision sometime next week.

Senate also voted to allocate $285 to Katlin to allow him to attend the 14th Annual Leadership Conference in Denver Oct. 28-30.

Katlin asked senate for 15 cents per mile, or $185, for travel. Katlin sought an additional $100 to cover expenses for the conference, including registration fees, food and lodging.

Illegal instruction of students sparks turmoil

By The Associated Press

MONTREAL — On a rainy afternoon about 30 fourth- and fifth-graders at an elementary school on Montreal's east side are noisily cutting pumpkins from orange construction paper, preparing for Halloween.

"That's the illegal class," says the principal, taking a reporter on a tour of his school on the condition that its name not be disclosed. The principal, the teacher and the parents of these children are all breaking Quebec law by educating the students in English.

An estimated 1,100 students in the Montreal Catholic schools — public schools in Quebec are divided into Catholic and Protestant systems — are studying in English in defiance of the predominantly French-speaking province's language law, enacted in 1977 by the separatist Parti Quebecois government.

The Charter of the French Language — better known as Bill 101 — permits a child to attend English schools only if one of the parents was educated in English at an elementary school in Quebec.

A court decision now on appeal extended the right to any child who had one parent educated in English anywhere in Canada, but most of the "illegal" students were born to parents who arrived in Quebec in the 1950s and 1960s, were too old to attend elementary school but now consider themselves part of the English-speaking community.

"The first paisano who came here from my village was literally forced to send his children to English schools, so it was decided for future generations," says the owner of a men's clothing store who asked to be identified only as Vincent.

"You don't send your kids to another school when you have relatives in the same school," he said. Vincent came to Montreal in 1963 at age 20 from a town near Naples, Italy. His wife immigrated from Italy when she was 17. Now they have sons in first and fifth grades in an English school — illegally.

"It's not that I have anything against Bill 101. Here we do everything in French," Vincent said in an interview at his shop, which like most businesses has been required by law to change its signs to French.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ITEMS FOR CAMPUS BULLETIN should be submitted in the Campus Bulletin mailbox outside the newsroom in Kedzie Hall.

KSU AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS are available in Anderson Hall 104 or in the SGS office and are due Oct. 26.

COORDINATOR OF FINANCES AND ELECTION COMMITTEE member and chair applications are due in the SGS office by 5 p.m. today.

BLOODMOBILE PRE-SIGN-UP is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today and Oct. 24 on the first floor of the Union.

TODAY

TAU BETA PI meets at 5 p.m. in the industrial engineering department office. Pledge books are due.

CHRISTIAN ACTION FELLOWSHIP meets at 7 p.m. in Union 213 for a worship gathering.

VIETNAMESE STUDENT ASSOCIATION meets at 7 p.m. in Union 206 for discussion. All Vietnamese students and faculty welcome.

PRE-PHYSICAL THERAPY meets at 9:45 a.m. at the south doors of the Union for the Kansas City trip.

SATURDAY

BREAD FOR THE WORLD, a Christian citizens' movement, meets from 7:30 to 9 a.m. in Union Stateroom 3. If you are concerned about malnutrition and hunger, both foreign and domestic, come learn how you can be an effective voice in making policy changes.

ORGANIZATION OF ARAB STUDENTS meets at 6 p.m. in Union 212 for the film "Lion of the Desert."

CLOTHING AND RETAIL INTEREST GROUP meets at 9 a.m. at 915½ Clafin to help with the slave day.

KSU RODEO CLUB meets at 1 p.m. in Cico Park for the K-State vs. Fort Scott match rodeo.

ICC AND CHINESE STUDENT ASSOCIATION meets at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Big Eight room. Dr. Hungdah Chiu of the University of Maryland will present a seminar on "The International Status of China (Taiwan and mainland)."

SOCIETY OF WOMEN ENGINEERS meets at 8:45 a.m. at the Durland II north doors for a tour of the Union.

of Southwestern Bell in Topeka. Cost is $1 for members and $2 for non-members.

SUNDAY

ECUMENICAL CHRISTIAN MINISTRIES meets at 5:30 p.m. at 1021 Denison for a Sunday supper and program.

K-LAIRES meets at 7 p.m. in Union K, S and U rooms.

FTD STUDENT CHAPTER meets at 7 p.m. at 1012 Ratione for a picnic.

CIRCLE K does not meet.

DELTA DARLINGS meet at 8 p.m. at the Delta Tau Delta house.

CHRISTIAN ACTION FELLOWSHIP meets at 9 a.m. at Danforth Chapel for a prayer meeting.

SISTERS OF THE MALTESE CROSS meet at 9 p.m. at the Alpha Tau Omega house.

CACIA GIRL PLEDGES meet at 9 p.m. at the Acacia house.

SHOES
$14.90 - $18.90
Value packed
Lady Foot Shoes
221 POYNTEZ

BEER
Sold at cost plus
5%
Revco Drug Store
Village Plaza

Tonight and Tomorrow
Oct. 21 & 22
Don't miss

The Complex Improvisational Theatre in

"An Evening in Limbo"

An unforgettable experience into the imagination and fun of improv. and outrageous comedy presented by the K-State Players.

8:00 p.m. Purple Masque Theatre in East Stadium

Tickets $3 at the Central University Office in Ahearn or at the door

You've seen the bus, now, your chance to see the group...

Drinking • thinkin'G

In combination with other drugs, alcohol can have very serious undesirable results. When used with alcohol, antibiotics may be ineffective and cold and allergy medications may make you too drowsy to stay alert and drive safely. Because alcohol, barbiturates, other sedatives, and tranquilizers all slow down brain functioning, when alcohol is taken with any of these, this "slowing down" of the brain is multiplied. The result can be fatal. In fact, the lethal dose of a barbiturate may be half as much when taken with alcohol as when taken alone.

Before you drink...

- Read the warnings on non-prescription and prescription drug labels.
- Ask your doctor about possible alcohol and drug interactions.
- Check with your pharmacist if you have any questions, especially about non-prescription medications.

Alcohol & other Drug Education Service
101A Holton Hall, 532-6432
Funded by SRS Alcohol & Drug Abuse Services

SALE
Your choice of Baggy Blue Jeans
for only:
$22.99
Choose From:
Zena Baggies
Chic Baggies
Sasson Baggies
Lee London Riders
Come for yours
today!

COUPON
1/2 lb. BELLY BOMB with CHEESE and
a BASKET OF STEAK
FRIES $2.99

Hibachi Hut
Open for lunch Open for dinner
608 N. 12th Expires 10/29/83 539-9906

C'mon in for Breakfast!
SATURDAY AND SUNDAY ONLY!

All You Can Eat:
SCRAMBLED EGGS
PANCAKES
BACON-SAUSAGE
HASH BROWNS
BISCUITS-GRAVY
DRINKS EXTRA

All You Pay:
$2.29
From 6 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.
Kids 7 yrs. and younger
$1.29

We don't just give you breakfast.
We give you a break.
Full Service Breakfast Menu Monday thru Friday

SIRLOIN STOCKADE
100 East Bluemont

GOOD MORNING KΣ!

Dear Kappa Sigs left in the house,
All you'll find in our beds is Keuchman's dead mouse!
We'll party by night, and party by day,
Somewhere down Marai Gras way!
The president, vice president, Campbell, and Scribe,
We're all kidnapped by our Savage tribe!
You missed it, we made it, one and all,
Sit back and poult 'cause we're havin' a ball!!
GOTCHA,

The Bags!

Fall Pledges of 83 are the best!

Quick & Easy PASTA
Healthy Cooking on the run
Creative Soups & Salads
THE WOK

COOKBOOKS!

You're busy and mom isn't here to cook, but Pier 1 has the answer—a large collection of paperback cookbooks geared to your lifestyle. The easy-to-prepare recipes include color pictures. Choose from a large selection.
$5.95 to $6.95

TEA KETTLES

CLOSE-OUT SPECIAL
While supply lasts, our Futons, a Japanese sleeping system, are only
Twin, with cushions $99.99
Double, with cushions $119.99

MUGS

- Pier 1 has mobile mugs for only $1.99. We're the place to buy any kind of mug. from $1.29
- We've just received a new shipment of Copco tea kettles. These two-quart porcelain enamel on steel kettles come in blue, biscuit or brown. A great price, too. $12.95 to $17.99

Pier 1 imports

323 Houston
next to Sears
776-3248

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.

Editor.....Paul Hanson
Managing Editor.....Sandy Lang
Photography Editor.....Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager.....John McGrath

Contractors oppose state wage plan

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A group of about 90 builders and contractors complained Thursday to state officials about a proposed survey to determine minimum wages for workers on state construction projects.

Construction groups warned during a hearing on the proposal that it would lead to higher prices for state-funded building projects and criticized it as adding "one more layer of bureaucracy."

The Department of Administration is proposing to survey contractors to find out the wages paid to workers on state-funded projects in 21 cities across the state. From that information, the state will develop a wage scale setting "prevailing wages" for each type of worker, such as a cement mason or electrician, in different localities in Kansas. That wage must be the minimum paid by contractors on state construction projects in those areas.

For example, the scale would specify a prevailing wage for projects in Wichita. A contractor who wins a state project in the city would then be required to pay workers at least that wage. For projects in another city, such as Topeka, contractors would pay a different wage.

The mandate for prevailing wages on state construction is not new. It was established in a 1891 law in Kansas. However, there has never been a system by which the state specifies the prevailing wage. It is left to the contractor.

At Thursday's hearing, Secretary of Administration Patrick Hurley said the survey is being proposed to erase any lingering questions on exactly what prevailing wages are in Kansas.

"The practical question for you (contractors) becomes, 'How do you know what the prevailing rate is when you bid a contract in order to be in compliance with the law,'" Hurley said. "The answer is you have no way of knowing today."

Contractors, he noted, can be sued for failing to comply with the law.

Construction groups generally opposed the proposed survey, and some took the opportunity at the hearing to call for repeal of the 92-year-old prevailing wage law.

"This wage survey adds one more layer of bureaucracy," said Dan Ramlow of the Kansas Contractors Association.

He said his group, which represents about 125 builders, supports repeal of the prevailing wage statute.

Charles Koehn of Newton, president of the Associated General Contractors of Kansas, opposed the proposed survey form saying it would be a particular burden on small contractors. His group represents 200 contractors, about 50 percent are non-union.

Koehn also warned that the proposal would likely renew efforts to eliminate the prevailing wage law.

"If you proceed with and complete your intention of specifying wages for state building work I predict that serious efforts for repeal of the law will be activated from various sectors of our state," said Koehn. "As a practical matter, I suspect that legislators on both sides of the issue will not welcome this debate just prior to the 1984 elections."

He, like others who testified, contended that specifying the prevailing wage would drive up costs of state construction.

"There is no question in my mind that the inclusion of prevailing wages will substantially increase the costs of state construction — an increased cost which Kansas taxpayers are not willing to pay."

Hurley, in his remarks at the hearing, discounted suggestions that a specific wage scale would increase costs and contended there was no way to predict its effects.

Said Hurley: "It could be argued that, since we currently require you pay the prevailing rate, and since you state in your bid in good faith that you are paying the prevailing rate, if that is all true then the survey would not cost one cent more on that project."

Files show automaker knew of brake defects

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — General Motors Corp. test drivers and internal company documents repeatedly warned of brake locking problems on 1980 X-body automobiles before the cars went into general production, according to GM files made public Thursday.

Documents in the files also stated that key GM executives were warned of the seriousness of the braking problem just prior to production.

GM issued a statement saying the government was presenting a "distorted and one-sided analysis" and that GM had acted properly and had carried out its responsibility on safety.

The documents, released in connection with a suit against GM, showed that the automaker went ahead with production of the front-wheel-drive car in early 1979 without correcting the problems.

The documents, totaling several thousand pages, were ordered unsealed by U.S. District Judge Thomas Jackson, who is hearing a suit brought by the Justice Department, seeking a recall of 1.1 million X-body cars.

The Justice Department also is asking that GM be ordered to pay $4 million in damages, alleging the manufacturer failed to act on the braking problem and later withheld information from federal officials.

GM has denied the allegations, saying the company did not know about the X-body brake problem before production.

Warnings to key GM executives about the braking problem came Dec. 10, 1978 in Phoenix, Ariz., at a meeting that included then-GM President E.M. "Pete" Estes, according to the newly released documents.

Leaders select Mideast site for more reconciliation talks

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The government said Thursday that leaders of the country's warring factions had agreed to a new site for postponed reconciliation talks. Neither the date nor location was revealed, but government sources predicted the talks would begin next week in Geneva.

Opposition leaders had refused to attend Thursday's scheduled opening of the talks at Beirut's airport. Leftist Druse leader Walid Jumblatt, who survived an assassination attempt last December, said the airport was unsafe.

Sniping continued throughout the day. Police said a soldier and a policeman were killed along with three gunmen firing across the "Green Line" from the Shiite Moslem neighborhood of Chiyah on army positions in the Christian area of Ein Rummaneh.

Foreign Minister Elie Salem and Saudi mediator Rafik Hariri went on Lebanon's state television to announce that a new site for the "national reconciliation conference" had been agreed upon.

Neither Hariri nor Salem would say when or where the meeting would be held, but government sources said the talks probably would get under way early next week in Geneva.

Jumblatt said Wednesday that "Geneva could be the convenient place for everyone and the safest place."

The reconciliation conference was called for in the Sept. 26 cease-fire ending the fighting between Druse and Shiite Moslem militias on one side and the Lebanese army and fighters of the right-wing Christian Phalange Party on the other.

VAN SHOES

Now in Manhattan!

Come in and look at our catalog. All styles, sizes, and colors are available for men, women and children.

Bassetts Bike Shop

217 Poyntz
537-8832

"LET'S ALL GO TO DAIRY QUEEN" For a Peanut Butter Chocolate Chip Blizzard!

OPEN 10:30 A.M. TO 11 P.M.
TIL MIDNIGHT FRI. & SAT.

Sm. $1.10 Med. $1.35 Lg. $1.65

1015 N. 3rd,
Manhattan

KSU RUGBY CLUB BENEFIT

Monday, Oct. 24

BROTHER'S TAVERN

Auction at 7:00
Band to Follow

Featuring: An auction of goods donated by Budweiser, Brother's and other area merchants *

Two free kegs * Mojo *
Rent-a-Rugger auction * All for Only $1 * All for a good cause.

"Come Party, and Support Your Ruggers"

SUNDAY SUPPER

5:30 p.m. 1021 Denison Ave.

50¢ or Free

Program begins at 6:45

"The Reagan Budget and the Poor"

Sponsored by
CUMENICAL
CHRISTIAN
MINISTRIES

JOB VACANCY

Applications for the State College Work Study Program (SCWSP) are now being accepted in the Office of Student Financial Assistance. The SCWSP is a state funded program to assist in the placement of students in part-time off campus employment positions which directly relate to their area of study. Applications are needed from the following curriculums.

Fashion Marketing
Early Childhood Education
Dietetics and Institutional Management
Business Management
All Curriculums

To qualify, students must have a financial need. Apply in Room 116, Fairchild Hall.

SATURDAY NIGHT SPECIAL!

8 oz. Thick & Tender
TOP SIRLOIN STEAK

$5.95

Cooked to Order

Served with Tossed Salad,
Baked Potato, Corn on Cob,
Homemade Rolls and Ice Cream

ALSO!...

25¢ BEERS
(Coors-Michelob)

5 P.M. TO 8 P.M.

BACKROOM

IN THE WAL-MART SHOPPING CENTER

1st Anniversary Sale

10% OFF Storewide
20% OFF on All Ski Jackets

Prices good thru Saturday

1212 Moro—Aggieville 537-9105
Mon.-Sat. 10-5:30
Thurs. till 7:30

ALLEY SPECIALS

FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR

$1.25 House Drinks 55¢ Draws
Hors d'oeuvres 4-8

SAT. LATE NITE HAPPY HOUR

$1.25 House Drinks 10-12
55¢ Draws $2.00 Pitchers

MEL'S

THE BEST PAIR IN TOWN

TAVERN SPECIALS

FRIDAY TGIF TILL 7:00

Progressive Pitchers
$1.50 2 p.m.-4 p.m.
$1.75 4 p.m.-5 p.m.
$2.00 5 p.m.-6 p.m.

SAT. KEEP ON TRACKIN TO MEL'S
HAPPY HOUR
9 A.M.-6 P.M.

Student communications

In a college situation, there is a tendency to differentiate between the university and the "real world." This is especially true in the area of college communications.

KSDB-FM, K-State's student radio station, has made some changes to help it better serve the student body. The first of these was construction of the automation unit which allows the station to stay on the air without having students present at all times. Other changes are in progress which will make KSDB more of a full-service, full-time station.

Our campus media, however, must stay committed to remaining student operations from both the view of serving and being operated by students.

The problem of credibility and respect is one that all mediums of communication deal with, but especially affect student operations. Besides often having less money to work with than commercial stations and newspapers, the workers naturally have less experience than the professionals in their respective fields.

Considering the fact that students who run newspaper and radio stations are still learning their trade, it is not unusual that more mistakes may occur in the student communications network than in the comparative commercial fields.

It needs to be pointed out that the situation of students running a newspaper is not much different than what would happen if students formed a semi-professional geophysical or engineering firm. There are bound to be mistakes and that is a part of learning. And we realize that the mistakes of communications students are broadcast or printed in front of the entire university population.

The object of student communications groups is to learn the trade through practical experience while providing a service to the students. The experience aspect is an important reason to change and modernize campus newspapers and radio stations.

When the Collegian went from a tabloid to a broadsheet this semester, an important reason was to enhance the experience of the students. Very few news-editorial journalism students will work on tabloid newspapers after they graduate. They would thus be at a disadvantage when confronted with having work on a broadsheet newspaper. We believe the present format also permits more information to be published in the paper.

The same applies to KSDB. When a station modernizes and updates its system, the students profit from it. Listeners have a better station to listen to, and students who work for the station get experience with a more modern system. If the university is designed to help students prepare for the future then the student communications media are serving their purpose.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

One more time

At the risk of having someone say this column ought to be moved to the sports page, today's subject is baseball — for one more time. Then I'm through concentrating on baseball until next year.

While talking to me the other day, Sean Reilly, sports editor of the Collegian, said, "Somehow I didn't think you'd be interested in baseball."

"Why shouldn't I be?" I asked. "You don't look the type."

That made me wonder just what type likes baseball. It seems to me that baseball isn't too much different than theater, weaving or hiking. That is, all kinds of people like those occupations — and the same is true for baseball.

However, baseball as a game is different than other games — particularly as played professionally. Perhaps the most striking difference is the length of the pennant race. No other sport plays as many games in a single season. Each year, 162 games are played by any team in the major leagues. I believe that helps sustain fan interest. There's always another game tomorrow. Hope doesn't die until very late in either the game or the season. And even the bad teams in any year often prove spoilers to those contending for the top spot.

Of course, basketball and hockey would listen to the play-by-play reports originating in Chicago which were broadcast by a radio station in Los Angeles. And I would sit there with him. He taught me how to keep a proper scorecard. Whenever I wouldn't understand something about the game, he'd explain the rule. I never knew if Hanzig had ever played baseball. He never talked about when he was younger. There we would sit — a small 14-year-old boy and an old man, both the same in heart because of a love for baseball.

In 1938, I created in my own head two baseball leagues — the Continental League and the Federal League. (I found out later that there once had been an actual Federal League.) I visualized these leagues as "major" in stature. I made up imaginary cities with league franchises — eight cities for each league. I created play-by-play records of every game played in those two leagues — a total of 308 games (that was the same number played in the American and National leagues at that time). Naturally, I had a team which I preferred — one located in the imaginary city of San Romani, Fla. The stars of that team were Ranny and Manny Sachon, twin brothers who were a pitcher-catcher combination.

JOEL CLIMENHAGA
Collegian Columnist

Throughout the summer of 1938, as my father moved us from Granville to Stowe, Penn., I created the entire season of those two leagues. Each day, I would "play" all the games — filling up notebooks with pitch-by-pitch records, hits and runs, game results and standings. In that year of my baseball fantasy, Ranny Sachon as a pitcher won 37 games and lost only three, while Manny Sachon hit 76 home runs, breaking all records of any actual league. I even imagined Babe Ruth sending congratulations! I took the San Romani team into the Big Series. Naturally, they won.

That was how I compensated for my bitter disappointment at the New York Yankees having defeated the New York Giants in the World Series the year before. In my leagues, everything came out the way I wanted it to! That was a beautiful summer! Even so, in those leagues constructed in my fantasy there were those who celebrated, those who cried.

After that summer of 1936 during which I had learned to know Hanzig, I wrote regularly to him until he died 10 years or so later. I sent him copies of all the records of the leagues I created in 1938. The letters he wrote to me in reply were in pencil on cheap tablet paper and were filled with misspellings and bad grammar. But that didn't matter to me. All he ever wrote about was baseball. In the way which a 14-year-old often does, I admired that old man. I cherish my memory of him.

After he died, I destroyed all the records of my imaginary leagues.

It would be nice if O.J. Hanzig and I could listen to a baseball game together one more time.

Call Jerry, basketball fanatics

Seating for men's basketball may be restructured without direct student input.

Jerry Katlin, student body president, asked Student Senate for input on a plan to cut by one-third the student individual non-reserve seating in Ahearn Field House. This section has by far the best seating in Ahearn — the center lower section, across from the scorer's table and both benches — and currently seats 1,050.

Under Katlin's proposal, which was suggested to him by the Central Ticket Office, 350 seats would be re-assigned to the student individual reserved and student group reserved sections, with each section receiving 175 seats.

The plan, if adopted, would be in effect for only one year. It would be evaluated on a year-to-year basis.

The reason for proposing the plan?

BRIAN LA RUE
Collegian Columnist

Demand for student non-reserve tickets was down last year — only 600 of the 1,050 tickets were sold. The demand for student group reserve tickets was far greater — 9,000 requests for 4,000 tickets. Under this proposal, 175 tickets would go to the group reserve section to offset this demand.

Katlin said if he received little objection to the proposal, he would recommend that the athletic department implement the plan immediately.

The plan should be rejected for one reason — lack of student input. Katlin did take a straw poll of the senators present last night and collect comments about the proposal, but what about student input? This issue is sure to be a sensitive one, especially with those who camp out for these prized seats.

Students were left out of decisions concerning the renovation of Holton Hall and the proposed coliseum. They should not be left out on this one. Call Katlin today and voice your opinion.

Letters

A justice to rockabilly style

Editor,
In reference to Jim Dick's chiding of both the Union Program Council and the Stray Cats, I would first like to say that Mr. Dick may or may not be correct about a "majority" of the campus disliking the Stray Cats. But I know quite a few people who do indeed like their music.

Jim congratulated UPC on "getting a major group to come to K-State," yet he claimed to "speak on behalf of a large number of people who do not approve of (UPC's) choice of bands." I can relate to what he said, as there are a great many popular bands which I wouldn't pay a quarter to see.

But I concede that these bands might make out well as attractions to other people. I think he needs to make the same concession. How can he be so sure that the Stray Cats won't sell well? True, the Joan Jett gig last year was a bummer. But from what I can tell, the Stray Cats hold a much greater popularity, and I look for them to have a much better showing.

As for his musical critique of the Stray Cats, I'm sorry that I don't believe him to be all that knowledgeable in the musical field — not as far as qualities of originality and style anyway. If most of the popular groups today appeal to him out of originality, I'm afraid he's quite a bad judge of musical forms. Yes, the Stray Cats' music is a take-off of an older style of rock 'n' roll. But the material they create themselves definitely does justice to the original rock-a-billy style, whereas, most other groups today do a sorry injustice to rock 'n' roll music.

So, why not just wait and see how the Stray Cats concert goes — then make accusations?

Kale Baldock
Sophomore in English

Coliseum indicates priorities

Editor,

Three cheers for Sean Reilly, the first Collegian writer to seriously question the proposed construction of a new coliseum. I, for one, was unaware that I had paid $16.50 this semester for a project which I am totally against. It is a sad commentary on the prevalent attitudes of this University's administration that Sean's rhetorical question, "What is more important, sports or an education?" seems to have already been answered — in favor of sports. When was the last time you saw anyone soliciting funds to keep the library open longer hours?

Christina S. Casteris
Graduate student in psychology

Stray Cats a UPC accomplishment

Editor,
Regarding the letter in the Oct. 20 Collegian "Stray Cats a poor choice," we're sure input regarding concert choices is helpful if it is thought out. Jim Dick's letter does not show this careful thought process.

Dick said "Stray Cats' fans are a definite minority and the band's rockabilly style of music is not an extremely popular one on campus." According to the Oct. 15, 1983, Billboard magazine, "Built for Speed" is still at 147 on the album chart and has sold more than 1 million copies. Their latest album, "Rant and Rave," is currently at 14, while the single "(She's) Sexy and 17" is at 10 on the top 40 chart. Dick should review the meanings of "minority" and "majority."

Prior to their last two American releases, Stray Cats had two albums released in Europe. The first two must have done well in Europe for the Cats to gain a recording contract in the United States. Can Shooting Star, Dick's suggestion for a concert, claim this success with their four virtually unknown album releases? Shooting Star is a hometown band primarily to those who claim the Kansas City area as their home. If the rest of the K-State population claims Shooting Star as its hometown band, why couldn't they sell out McCain Auditorium in December 1981, with the top ticket price at $5.50?

Dick suggests "find a middle-of-the-road band that will draw in people from all parts of the spectrum." If such a band exists, who is it? The spectrum is appealed to, but not just in one show. Union Program Council's record for bringing a variety of acts is shown by previous concerts: J. Geils Band, Chicago, Joan Jett and the Blackhearts with Huey Lewis and the News and Ronnie Milsap certainly cover a wide range of tastes.

The average college student, such as Dick, does not understand booking procedures. K-State has limited concert dates available because of facility and scheduling limitations. And being "gateway to Ogden" does not put Manhattan on the prime concert circuit. Concert bands are sought as much as a year in advance. Considering these limitations, booking a top band such as the Stray Cats is an accomplishment of which UPC should be proud.

Anton Arnoldy
Senior in mechanical engineering and one other

Americans don't care about peace abroad

Editor,

I feel compelled, as a "British disarmament activist," to correct the impression given by Maxwell Glen and Cody Shearer (Collegian, Oct. 18).

With regard to their view that "British disarmament activists are apparently finding rock bands reluctant to play benefit concerts," the examples given bear no relevance to the question of disarmament. The Clash and The Specials breaking up over difference of opinion within the bands that had nothing whatsoever to do with the issue. (And it is difficult to picture the breakup of an individual such as Peter Gabriel!)

Recent rallies have had no problem attracting bands to play. Madness, UB40, Style Council, Gang of Four, U2, Fun Boy Three, Stiff Little Fingers, Dexy's Midnight Runners...have all recently appeared.

Concerning the "more telling" point about Britain and the "mud-hurling and minor skirmishes," such alleged incidents are often seized upon by the media in an effort to discredit a movement such as the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, along with stories of Communist funding. (Will you print this next?) They apparently take precedence over the tens of thousands of people who march peacefully in support of the disarmament cause or take part in the numerous peace camps throughout Europe.

To find the space to print such misconceptions does you no credit. Rather, it serves to reiterate the view held by many Europeans that the United States is not concerned with peace and has little regard for the feelings of the population of their supposed allies.

The deployment of Cruise and Pershing missiles on British soil, over which our government has no authority, is seen by many (CND members or not) as outright provocation; not the action of a nation seeking peace. And if we Europeans needed any other justification for the peaceful "Hot Autumn," we need only listen to the president of the United States, who suggests that a limited nuclear war in Europe may be acceptable. To whom?

Yours in anticipation of more thoughtful comment,

Paul Burns
Graduate student in geography

Where did American freedom come from?

Editor,

Regarding Christian Wolff's letter of Oct. 19, "Burning draft cards," Mr. Wolff's attitude concerns me. He mentioned that the draft is an immoral and oppressive action taken by the United States Government. I don't understand what is immoral or oppressive about the United States preparing for the possibility of conflict. He mentioned several times the words freedom and rights. He was saying that his rights are being violated by the U.S. government. I would like to tell him where he got those rights and freedom he is talking about. There have been hundreds of thousands of people who fought and died in America's fight for freedom, from the Revolutionary War to the present.

If our generation refuses to fight for our freedom, then all of those people who have fought and died in previous wars have done so in vain. When we refuse to fight, however, we must also be prepared to lose a lot of the freedom and rights which we are now enjoying.

Michael Holloway
Junior in social science and 19 others

Rape awareness escalates

Counseling offers services for victims

By JOHN CREGO
Collegian Reporter

Rape — it can leave victims devastated and traumatized. But students who are victimized can receive help on campus. Counseling services are available through mental health services at Lafene Student Health Center.

"Women who come to see me after they have been raped need a lot of support," Margaret Grayden, Lafene mental health counselor, said. "They need help in generating anger because a lot of women feel ashamed and they feel guilty. They feel somehow that they have brought it on themselves."

After such an experience, women feel "victimized," Grayden said. The immediate psychological response is a feeling of helplessness and the inability to protect themselves. Victims also feel they are at the mercy of some predator, she added.

"Depending on how psychologically strong or weak her defenses are, this (the victim's feelings) can be more or less devastating for the woman who has gone through a rape. It can take her to the brink, or over, in terms of a psychological breakdown," Grayden said.

"I feel if the woman reports the rape, even if she does not intend to prosecute, she can go through the reliving experience again and this helps her — at least psychologically," she said.

Grayden said notification to the authorities that a rape has happened is a way the victim has of fighting back.

"Some women can grasp this and feel the need to prosecute on the rape charge legally," Grayden said.

"A lot of them immediately need a place where they feel safe," she said. "A lot of victims are terrified to be by themselves. They are afraid it can happen again and they are traumatized because of the rape."

The victim also needs to talk about the incident to help relieve the trauma.

"They do need to talk with someone about it, because it is very important and God knows how many women, particularly young women, are afraid to tell anybody about it," she said.

"This is because they are afraid they have done something wrong, they are afraid their parents will become upset, perhaps angry, and they are afraid of police reports or publicity of the rape. They are just terrified that nobody will understand."

"I think that some women at the university level are a little bit more ready to come in and talk about it," she said.

High-school and younger girls are not treated at Lafene, but they are a part of the community and these cases should also be of concern.

"I think they (younger girls) are particularly at a risk because they have an adolescent attitude toward other people and when parents try to talk with them, they take it as an attitude of protectiveness from the parent," Grayden said.

The information on what to do if a woman is attacked needs to come from the school, she said. During adolescence, the school is a symbol of authority. This also takes some pressure from the parent.

Women cannot and should not stay at home just because there have been a rash of rapes reported lately. But, Grayden added, they should be aware of their surroundings.

Although this crime does happen more than the number of cases reported, women are starting to report it more then they have in the past.

Forum analyzes men's supportive role

By LUCINDA ELLISON
Manhattan Editor

Awareness, education and action were called for during a "Men Against Rape" forum Thursday night in the basement of the Manhattan Public Library. The meeting focused on a need for involvement of men in the city.

"I doubt that this organization has any future beyond tonight," said Marvin Samuelson, associate professor of surgery and medicine. "That's not my intention."

Samuelson organized the forum, which involved four panel members from the community who offered views about Manhattan's recent rape problem.

Brian Harms, of the Regional Crisis Center, informed the group of the crisis center's role after a victim has reported a rape. Harms, graduate in engineering, focused on what men can do in support of a victim.

"A husband or family member assuming a vigilante attitude doesn't help," Harms said. This type of attitude doesn't help relieve any trauma the victim feels.

"Women do not ask to be raped," he said. "Men need to listen to women's fears. If they had talked to women, they would understand there is nothing enjoyable about it (rape)."

"Rape is a crime of violence and not lust. It's not like the rapist does not have an outlet for sexual drive. Instead, it's some kind of psychological or emotional disease to dominate someone, usually women," Harms said.

Sandra Coyner, director of Women's Studies, presented some rape statistics. Estimates made by the Federal Bureau of Investigation suggest one-tenth of all rapes are actually reported. One recent survey stated that 44 percent of all women in the United States face rape or the threat of rape during their lifetimes, Coyner said.

"Women are more afraid, more of the time, than they ever have been," she said.

Linkage in our culture of male sexuality to conquest and violence was one reason Coyner cited for the crime.

Because of the recent rapes in Manhattan, five strategies are being followed, Coyner said. These include prevention, community awareness, catching rapists, care of victims and self defense.

"All of these strategies focus on women. None of these strategies is perfect," she said. "Even all of them together will not stop women from being raped."

Coyner suggested one alternative strategy which focuses on men instead of women.

"We need to understand why some men rape, what encourages male sexual victimization of women and how male victimization of women can be stopped," she said.

Larry Nicholson, director of Douglass Center, and Capt. Larry Woodyard, of the Riley County Police Department, were also panelists at the forum.

Several concerns were raised and questions were asked by those present.

Ann Bristow, assistant professor of psychology, asked citizens to attend sentencing of a convicted rapist at 11 a.m. Oct. 31.

"It seemed very hard for the jury to convict this man, but they did. Because he is a family man, it may be very hard to sentence him," she said. She added that community attendance at hearings and sentencing was also a necessary form of involvement.

Samuelson announced a meeting scheduled for 12:10 p.m. today on rape prevention and awareness in the city library. Barbara Campbell, investigator for RCPD, will offer the program.

Looking for an apartment?
Check Collegian
Classifieds

Arts & Science Students

The College of Arts and Sciences invites all interested students to attend an informal meeting this Sunday, the 23rd, at 9 p.m. in the Big 8 Room of the Union.

If you enjoy our college and wish to share your knowledge with your old high school, then please attend this mandatory meeting.

For more information
call 532-6900

COMMONWEALTH THEATRES
MOVIE MARQUEE

West Loop 7:00 & 9:30 Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:00	Daily at 7:00 &amp; 9:30 Matinee Sat. &amp; Sun. at 2:00
"Under Fire"
West Loop 7:10 & 9:30 Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:10	Daily at 7:10 &amp; 9:30 Matinee Sat. &amp; Sun. at 2:10
"Dead Zone"
Campus 7:00 & 9:00 Matinee Sunday Only at 2:15	Daily at 7:00 &amp; 9:00 Matinee Sunday Only at 2:15
"All the Right Moves"
Wareham 7:00 & 9:30 Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:00	Daily at 7:00 &amp; 9:30 Matinee Sat. &amp; Sun. at 2:00
"Never Say Never Again"
Varsity 7:00 & 9:00	Daily at 7:00 &amp; 9:00
"Flashdance"

Late Show
Friday
& Saturday
Night

"Champagne for Breakfast"

Rated XX
12:00 Midnight

Varsity
1125 MORO

Danline Central America
THE FIRST CASUALTY OF WAR IS THE TRUTH

NICK NOLTE · GENE HACKMAN · JOANNA CASSIDY

UNDER FIRE

A LION'S GATE FILM
"UNDER FIRE" JEAN-LOUIS TRINTIGNANT · RICHARD MASUR
ED HARRIS all stars · Music by JERRY GOLDSMITH · Featuring guest stars PAT METHENY
Directed by JERRY GOLDSMITH · Executive Producer EDWARD TEETS
Screenplay by RON SHELTON and CLAYTON FROHMAN · Story by CLAYTON FROHMAN Produced by JONATHAN TAPLIN · Directed by ROGER SPOTTISWOODE

NOW PLAYING AT A THEATRE NEAR YOU.

LITE BEER AND SHOCKER MOUNTAIN PRESENT

Kansas Ski Week
IN WINTER PARK
January 2-9, 1984

SKI TRIP PACKAGES INCLUDE:

- 8 Days of ski rental
- 3 Nights lodging at condos
- 4 Days of lift tickets (Note cost schedule)
- Transportation
- Party at all times one night with live band from Wichita
- On mountain party bar-b-que
- Ski races and prizes for fastest college skier
- Best college team (4 skiers) fun race winners
- 2 hour ski lesson before December 1st at Shocker Mountain

For more information,
call Shocker Mountain:

(316) 689-3218.

COST SCHEDULE:

- $259 Maximum occupancy without 4 day lift tickets
- $279 Maximum occupancy with 4 day lift tickets
- $279 Minimum occupancy without 4 day lift tickets
- $299 Minimum occupancy with 4 day lift tickets

Universities that will be represented are: Wichita State, Kansas State, Kansas University, Washington, Pittsburg State, Emporia State, Fort Hays State. Open to all Kansas College Students.

To register, contact one of our local representatives:

Todd Burnett	539-3857
Dave Hancock	776-2042
Maura McLaughlin	539-7452
Tammy Miller	539-7847
Chris Pravecek	776-2035
Susie Farris

THE PIZZERIA 776-0004

* Sunday Special ***

$2 off any Large Pizza with 3 toppings or more.

One coupon per pizza Exp. 10/31/83

J. Riggs West Inc.

$100 PITCHERS
Thurs. 7-10 Fri. 2-6

We're proud to serve Bud, Bud Light & Busch on tap.

Custom Cues Billiard Supplies

Like Fatty Sez: J. Riggs West is Billiards at It's Best!

776-8338
317 Poyntz Ave. Downtown

- 18 full size Brunswick pool tables
- Video and electronic games
- Ice cold Busch & Bud on tap
- Sandwiches & snacks
- Scheduled tournaments
- Daily lunch specials
- Cue repair
- Pizza and Nachos
- Pool tables professionally covered and repaired

Vote for your candidate in the K-State Union
Oct. 24, 25 & 26

Silver coins count as positive votes and pennies and bills count as negative.

"Executive Options" for Women

BORCK Brothers

Discover the option of finely tailored women's wear. Borck Brothers offers and declares major dividends this fall with our exclusive "Executive Options" for women.

Humboldt at Third
Ph 537-8636 fine menswear
And now for women also!
Hours 9:30 5:30 Mon. Sat. till 8:30 Thur.

Briefly

By the Associated Press

Tennis spectator sues McEnroe

MINEOLA, N.Y. — A high school teacher has filed a $6 million lawsuit against John McEnroe, claiming the tennis star verbally abused him and threw sawdust in his face at the U.S. Open.

Chris Schneider said he had a courtside seat at the August match and was supporting McEnroe's opponent.

"I was cheering and applauding for Trey Waltke, and only at the appropriate times and not when John was serving," Schneider said by telephone Wednesday. "He said to me, 'Are you going to cheer for my opponent all afternoon?' and I said, 'I'm working on it.'"

Schneider, in his suit filed Monday in state Supreme Court in Nassau County, said McEnroe responded with an epithet during the first-round match and "it escalated from there." Schneider said McEnroe challenged him to fight and then threw sawdust in his face.

John McEnroe Sr., the tennis player's father and attorney, did not return telephone calls seeking his comment.

Refreshments planned after arrests

MINNEAPOLIS — Coffee and doughnuts, compliments of Police Chief Tony Bouza, will be served to police and the anti-nuclear protesters they arrest at next Monday's demonstration at the headquarters of Honeywell, Inc.

"I told the Street Crimes Unit to buy coffee and doughnuts for the cops and those people who are arrested," Bouza said Wednesday. "When they are arrested it will be 'coolish,' and probably nobody will have had coffee yet. Why not?"

Bouza said the refreshments, about $150 worth, will be paid for from a "discretionary slush fund" financed by fees the chief receives for speaking engagements.

Many police officers are upset about their chief's decision. But Bouza said most of the demonstrators are "decent people who are taking part in an act of conscience."

Last March, the police chief's wife, Erica Bouza, was arrested at a similar demonstration at Honeywell. About 200 protesters are expected at Monday's rally.

Baltimore fights back at columnist

BALTIMORE — After Jim Murray of The Los Angeles Times described Baltimore as colorless and Memorial Stadium as a Civil War monument, some people here were so mad they couldn't even think of what to call him.

So they had a contest.

On Wednesday, the day Murray's 10-day-old column was reprinted here in The Sun, a local radio station held a contest to see who could come up with the worst name for him.

The worst name was unpublishable. A form of "green mold" was rejected as not being awful enough.

The Sun reported Thursday it received numerous telephone calls from readers complaining about the column.

"Obviously, he was either lost, locked in a hotel room or in another city altogether," said Mayor William Donald Schaefer. "He could not have been in Baltimore, Maryland."

Murray wrote in the column that the Baltimore Orioles — who defeated the Philadelphia Phillies last week four games to one to become baseball's 1983 world champions — are "a lot like the city. Monotonous.... The weather (in Baltimore) is like the team. Gray. Colorless. Drab...."

"The ballpark looks like the Christians and the lions are coming on next. It's not a ruin exactly. More like a Civil War monument."

Murray was quoted in Thursday's editions of The Sun as saying he was "mystified" by the controversy, but unrepentant.

"I thought it was fairly mild, myself."

Funding drive nets $130,000 for coliseum

By STEVE MILLS
Collegian Reporter

As of last week, the KSU Foundation reported that it has received $130,000 in cash and pledges during the fund-raising campaign for the new coliseum.

"We've had a good initial response during the campus campaign," said Art Loub, executive vice president of the foundation. "Of course, that is not surprising when you consider that the faculty and staff have always provided strong support for K-State's basketball program."

This is the second phase of the planned fund-raising campaign. The first phase was the solicitation of donors from Ahearn Directors (donors who have given more than $3,000 per year to the Athletic Department) and the Foundation Trustees (the governing body of the foundation).

"It (the campaign) really won't be over until people stop sending in pledge cards; we do have pledge cards still out," said Tom Carlin, director of communications for the foundation. "It's hard to put a deadline on when it will really be over because in our past experience in fund raising, money tends to come in over long periods of time.

"The first phase is still underway. Certain areas of the state (the state has been divided into regions for fund-raising purposes) are finished and some are not," Carlin said. "Right now the first and second phases are going on simultaneously."

He said the final third phase is a statewide effort which will begin later this fall. It will be designed to gain donors from across the state and from alumni in other states.

He said that because of the nature of the campaign and the fact that donors often make late decisions to give support, there is often not a definite end to a fund-raising campaign.

He said that based on the results of the campaign so far, the foundation is optimistic of receiving the $7 million campaign goal.

"Two weeks ago at our kickoff banquet, we announced that we had more than $3.5 million in cash pledges. This came basically from the first phase of the campaign," Carlin said.

He said that the third phase will involve meetings around the state to inform people of what is happening and to recruit volunteers to call upon alumni to ask for pledges.

Loub said there has been considerable interest in the seating priority plan which will enable faculty and staff to obtain prime seats in the new coliseum.

"This is the time to act if individuals want to assure themselves good seats," Loub said. "Seat options are an extremely important element of the campaign since we intend to build the facility without state funds.

"We will not be able to seat people in the faculty section unless they have shared in the responsibility of financing the structure," he said.

Loub said he wasn't surprised at the contribution of the faculty and staff.

"As we look at the campaign, the coliseum is a major asset to Kansas State University. The faculty and staff, many of whom have season tickets, are supportive of the basketball program and have been for years," he said.

FREE BEER
Friday starting at 1:00 p.m.
AGGIEVILLE
Mon.-Sat. 10-6:30
Thurs. 10-8:30 Sun. 1-5:00

BEAUTY SUPPLIES
with this ad
20% OFF
AT
GLAMOUR WORLD
1104 Waters
WEST ON ANDERSON AVE.
BEHIND CURTIS MATHIS T.V.

SPECIAL PROGRAMMING
97fm
Listen To JOHN COUGAR In Concert
Sunday, October 23rd 8:30-10:00pm
Catch A Profile Of YES
Sunday, October 30th 8:00-10:00pm
WE PLAY YOUR MUSIC!

BUSHWACKER'S
• THE FUNDRIKERY
50¢ OFF any lunch
at the
BUSHWACKER EATERY
Try our Smuggler Bar Burger 75¢
Open 11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m. & 5:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

- ACROSS
1 Wager
4 Close
8 Peruse
12 Actress
13 Gardner
14 Opera piece
15 "Jane —"
16 (Bronte book)
17 Wallet
18 Obtains
19 Working together
20 Pro vote
21 Dined
22 Swell
26 Tale
29 Light source
30 Longevity
31 Bonuses for a waitress
32 Joke
33 Was deceitful
34 — tree (cornered)
35 Carton
36 Walking aids
37 —doux (love letter)
39 Enjoyment
- DOWN
40 Past
41 Lawrence's place
45 Called
48 Kind of ball or table
50 Fencing need
51 Gaelic
52 Poke fun at
53 Woodland mammal
54 Title paper
55 Slalom curve
56 DOWN
1 Ali —
11 — Moines
Avg. solution time: 24 min.
- Across
10-21
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.
49 Fury

CRYPTOQUIP

10-21

YUU LRYSC CQZRP 40, VKYH, 'CIYV
VQZP OKLPV OP K OYHHUP-KSPH OKR.'

Yesterday's Cryptquip — THE FIGHT AMONG PLUMP MEN IS THE BATTLE OF THE BULGES.
Today's Cryptquip clue: H equals D.

Staff illustration by John Sleezer

Common cold nothing to sneeze about

By ERIN BRUMMETT
Contributing Writer

How do you spell relief? In case of a cold, Roloids may not be the answer, but cold capsules, plenty of fluids, vitamin C and common sense may be.

For some reason, few people seem to escape what we describe as the common cold. Changing seasons, lack of sleep or a fatalistic attitude may all be causes.

Dr. Robert Tout, director of student health services at Lafene Student Health Center, said most students do not begin to take their colds seriously until they begin to take their studies seriously.

"As far as students are concerned, it seems kind of silly for our staff to be spending so much time with colds, but it's a great deal more important than if we were in an unacademic environment.

"This (university) is an example of a situation where a person is daily subjected to something new that he has to concentrate on, in contrast to someone in a routine job such as an assembly line, where his attention span isn't quite as important," Tout said.

Although there is no cure for the common cold, he said Lafene can give symptomatic relief necessary in this type of academic environment.

For those more susceptible to inner ear problems a decongestant can help, Tout advised. Resting is most important to alleviating voice hoarseness, another common cold symptom.

Tout cited "Harrison's Principle of Internal Medicine" for causes of the common cold. He said many viruses can cause the common cold. Rhinovirus, a nasal virus, is an example. More than 100 types of viruses are known to cause colds, and others are sure to be found, Tout said.

The most common way to contact a cold is through a handshake, he said.

He mentioned common preventative measures such as plenty of sleep, drinking a lot of water and vitamin C.

Frequently, people can convince themselves psychologically that they will get a cold, Tout said.

"I don't think there's much question that some people are very psychologically susceptible. Some swear that if they sleep with a window open they'll wake up with a cold, but the virus has to be there in the first place," he said.

He also said individual physiological factors determine more susceptibility in some people than in others.

We all are different psychologically and physiologically, so we all have our own reasons for catching and methods for curing a cold, Tout said.

Priscilla Thiele, junior in pre-nursing, said having a cold can make concentrating on class lectures difficult.

Additional side effects include people's reactions to a sniffing, sneezing cold victim.

"Your good friends can tell and will be more sympathetic to you," Thiele said.

"It's a two-way deal. They also try to avoid contact."

Editor's note: Erin Brummett is a junior in journalism and mass communications and is a member of the Reporting I class.

The DOWN UNDER
515 RICHARDS DRIVE — UNDER WILDCAT LANES

FRIDAY
MAKE YOUR OWN TACOS
4 p.m.-7 p.m.
Gary returns with
hits from 50's & 60's.
7:30-???

DOWN UNDER CLUB
515 Richards
(under Wildcat Lanes)
For reservations call 539-0230

Brother's
AGGIEVILLE

TODAY
THE SHAPES
Rock 'n Roll Friday and Saturday Nights
PLUS
Friday TGIF Show

TGIF
1 p.m. to 7 p.m.
50¢ Drinks • Free
Popcorn • $2.00 Pitchers
FREE LIVE MUSIC
1120 More 539-9064

7TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Valentino's Ristorante
...it's all that

PiZZazz

Free
Balloons
For The Children

BUFFET
ALL WEEK
SPECIAL
PRICE
$3.75
Mon.-Sun.

At Valentino's Ristorante, pizzazz is the pure pleasure of getting nothing but the best.

- Famous Valentino's pizza
- Variety of Italian delicacies
- 100% pure beef
- Whole milk mozzarella cheese
- Authentic Italian spices
- Secret recipe sauces
- Produce delivered fresh daily
- Full table service

The dining's superb at Valentino's Ristorante, where pizzazz means perfezione! And that's a very meaningful (and appetizing) experience! So GO!

*Italian pronunciation is PER FET ZEE OH NAY.
English translation is PERFECTION.

DRAWING
OCT. 23
FOR FREE $100.00
PIZZA
PARTY

Valentino's
Ristorante

3019 Anderson Ave.

537-4350

Drawing 10/23 For Party

COME HELP US
CELEBRATE
OUR ANNIVERSARY

Oct. 17-Oct. 23, 1983 FREE DELIVERY ALL WEEK

Musical Instruments
Hayes House of Music

We Will Not Be Undersold
$10 Monthly Rental
We Rent Everything

223 Poyntz
Manhattan, KS 66502
913 776-7983

2011 W. 6th
Topeka, KS 66606
913 234-4472

523 N. Washington
Junction City, KS 66441
913 238-1014

'Cats to continue conference play with game against MU

By SEAN REILLY
Sports Editor

Saturday's Big Eight Conference football clash between the University of Missouri and K-State Wildcats will mark their 69th meeting. It also will be Homecoming Day for the Tigers and an attendance of 45,000 to 50,000 is expected.

Kickoff time is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. at Faurot Field in Columbia.

Last year's game between the Wildcats and the Tigers, which was K-State's Homecoming, was televised by CBS in what turned out to be a nail-biting contest.

It was Mike Wallace's 33-yard touchdown catch from backup quarterback Doug Bogue that allowed the 'Cats to tie the game at a 7-7, which became the final score.

The 'Cats are currently 2-4 overall and 0-2 in conference play and according to Dickey, they are trying to get back on the winning track against the Tigers, who are now 3-3, including a 1-1 league mark.

This may prove to be a difficult task for the team considering the fact that it was having trouble with team spirit after last weekend's 31-3 loss to intrastate rival University of Kansas.

In their loss to the Jayhawks, the 'Cats were unable to stop the aerial attack of Frank Seurer, who had 321 passing yards.

This week may not look any brighter as the Tigers have a quarterback that just may be as good as Seurer.

Marlon Adler, quarterback for the Tigers, completed 12 of 17 attempts for 179 yards and rushed 18 times for 61 yards despite Missouri's 34-13 defeat at the hands of Nebraska last Saturday.

The junior walkon from Winfield, Kan., now has registered 2,065 passing yards, including an overall 57.8 percent completion mark.

Dickey has nothing but praise for the Missouri quarterback.

"He does a good job, runs option well, throws the ball accurately, hopefully not as accurately as the guy (Seurer) we just played," he said, adding that he has another quarterback problem — on his own team.

Bogue, who suffered a bruised right shoulder in the team's loss to KU, is "still pretty sore," said Jim Dickey, K-State's head football coach, so he said the Wildcats will go with junior quarterbacks Donnie Campbell and Stan Weber against the Tigers.

Neither of the backup quarterbacks have seen extensive action this year. Dickey said he had not decided whether Campbell or Weber would start, although he expects both to see a lot of playing time.

"We'll have to watch them (Campbell and Weber) one more day and see how they're handling things; then we'll make the decision," Dickey said. He added that he had planned to play Campbell and Weber more even before the injury to Bogue.

"We were going to start playing them along with Doug, if nothing else, just to give them some playing time," he said.

After watching films of last week's University of Nebraska-Missouri game in which the Tigers frequently blitzed, Dickey said he expects the Tigers to try the same tactics against K-State.

"I believe that until we get better at pass protection, we will see a good deal of blitzes, but we're working on that every day," he said.

Missouri fans were quoted as saying "cheap, cheap" in reference to the game against Nebraska in which the Cornhuskers won 34-13. It is a sure bet that Missouri and K-State fans can expect to see a fired-up Missouri team this Saturday.

Although the Tigers weren't quite able to pull an upset on Nebraska, their offense, however, may have dominated the Huskers through three quarters as it gained 394 yards, only 11 fewer than Nebraska, the nation's leader in that category. But when it came time for the true test of a capable football team, the Tigers were unable to pass the test with flying colors.

Four times the Tigers made it to the Nebraska 10-yard line or closer, and four times they found a way to turn a potential touchdown into a field goal or less.

At one point, flanker Craig White, who finished with a total five receptions for 93 yards and is one of Adlers favorite receivers, snared a 45-yard Adler pass that set the scenario for Missouri to tie the game at 20-all in the third quarter.

However, the play ended up on the 8-yard line, and two plays later, the Tigers fumbled the snap from center in an attempt for a field goal.

Adler is the key to the Tiger's offense — playing both signal caller and punter. He moved up into seventh place on all-time passing charts, displacing Pete Woods.

Leading the defense for the Tigers is senior defensive end Bobby Bell Jr. This name may sound familiar to Kansas City Chiefs fans because Bobby Bell Sr. played linebacker for the Chiefs and was recently inducted into football's Hall Of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

Bell got to play in the first varsity game of his freshman season — a 47-16 thrashing of New Mexico.

This season, Bell predicts a change for the Tigers, who are currently trying to improve upon last season's 8-4 mark.

Top soccer teams to participate in Chartrand memorial tourney

By TIM FILBY
Collegian Reporter

Some of the area's top soccer teams will gather in Manhattan this weekend for the Fifth Annual Ed Chartrand Memorial Tournament.

"This tournament means a lot to the team," Kurt Krusen, K-State soccer player, said. "This tournament is important to us and to the Chartrand family."

The tournament is played in the memory of Ed Chartrand, a former K-State soccer player, who died in 1978. The Chartrand family is co-sponsoring the tournament along with the K-State soccer club.

The Chartrand family, in addition to the tournament, has sponsored several K-State soccer events in the past, Krusen said. Most recently, Art Chartrand — also a former member of the K-State soccer team — promoted a soccer match against the University of Kansas held in Beloit earlier this season.

Teams from the University of Nebraska, Iowa State University, Wichita State University, Oklahoma State University and the University of Kansas, as well as two club teams — the Wichita Wheathawks and Busch of Kansas City — will compete in the event.

"All the teams in the tournament will be pretty strong," Krusen said. "We expect really good competition from all the teams."

He said all the clubs competing this weekend have traditionally good teams.

"All the teams are so close, it's really hard to say who will win," he said.

Tournament play is scheduled to start at 9 Saturday morning at the L.P. Washburn Recreational Complex and continue through Sunday. Two playing fields will be used in this year's meet to speed up tournament action, Krusen said.

There will be no admission charge for the tournament.

Iowa State's soccer team won the 1979 tournament, K-State won in 1980 and 1981, and KU won in 1982.

Reds, Royals show interest in Rose

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Reds said Thursday they were interested in talking to Pete Rose about returning to the team he left in 1978 after 16 seasons, but that some of his terms may be unacceptable.

Reds President Bob Howsam said he had talked on the telephone with Bill Giles, president of the Philadelphia Phillies, who released Rose on Wednesday. He also said the Reds had left a message asking Rose's lawyer, Reuven J. Katz, to contact the Reds.

Howsam, however, cautioned that the Reds may not be willing to accept all of Rose's terms, especially the one demanding that he be an every-day player.

Rose, 42, has said he would even consider switching to the American League and accepting the role of designated hitter in order to find a team that would play him full-time. Rose wants to break the all-time record for hits by Ty Cobb. With 3,990, he is 201 hits shy of Cobb's record of 4,191.

"Certainly the Reds would be interested in talking with Pete Rose," Howsam said. "But, it seems to be the conditions he has laid down would not fit our situation that we have here in Cincinnati."

"I hope Pete finds what he's looking for, because he's been a good player and good for baseball."

Other teams contacted by The Associated Press expressed similar reservations about signing Rose, who has been a first baseman since he left Cincinnati as a free agent in 1978.

Crunch

K-State's Neil Groom grimaces as he is hauled down by several Haskell Indian Junior College defenders during a junior varsity football game Thursday afternoon. K-State won the contest 28-0 at KSU Stadium. The varsity squad will meet the University of Missouri Tigers Saturday in Missouri.

Staff/Chris Stewart

Pigskin Picks

We will begin with this week's picks with a quote from former Philadelphia Phillies' baseball player Pete Rose.

"You know, some people don't agree with me, but we're still a bunch of grown ups playing a kid's game — not to mention making $10,000 a day."

Well, the prognosticators also are a bunch of people acting like kids, but unlike Rose, we are not making any money. Rather, we are paying the price to show our lack of knowledge.

There is one individual, Dan Owsley, who has finally lived up to his title as a "walking sports encyclopedia" by winning last week's picks with an impressive 10-2 record. He is followed closely by Joel "The Polish Predictor" Torczon 9-3.

Andy "Crash" Nelson and Sean

Reilly were the only other predictors to finish on a positive note as each garnered a 7-5 record, while Tex Hanson showed a lot of balance with a 6-6 mark.

The Three Stooges who bungled this week with 5-7 records include Judi Wright, Kevin Dale and Brian "Go Northwestern Go" La Rue.

Overall, Torczon remains in front of the pack with a 55-26 showing, while Nelson is not too far behind at 53-28. In third place is Owsley with a 52-29 record, followed by Reilly and Hanson at 47-34.

Rounding up the last three places are: La Rue, 46-35; Wright, 45-36; and Dale, 43-38.

"Rout of the Week?" The Nebraska-Colorado no-contest.

"Crummy Game of the Week?" the Northwestern-Minnesota "thriller" (sorry, Brian).

K-STATE

Offense
SE -30 Mike Wallace, Jr., 6-2, 175
TE -43 Eric Bailey, Jr., 6-3, 225
WT -47 Jeff Koyl, Jr., 6-5, 273
WG -49 Randy Vossler, Jr., 6-4, 254
C -73 Jim Northcutt, Sr., 6-4, 240
SG -70 Calvin Switzer, Jr., 6-1, 250
ST -48 Damian Johnson, Jr., 6-5, 280
FL -48 Eric Mack, Sr., 6-3, 268
QB -7 Doug Bogue, Sr., 6-1, 195
RB -41 Greg Dagerford, Sr., 6-4, 203
FB -39 Charles Crawford, Jr., 6-1, 199
PK -10 Steve Willis, Jr., 6-2, 194

Defense

LE -47 L.E. Madison, Sr., 6-0, 217
LT -46 Reggie Singletary, Sr., 6-4, 254
NG -40 Mark Newton, Sr., 6-3, 263
RT -41 Bob Daniels, Jr., 6-3, 220
RE -32 Greg Strahm, Sr., 6-3, 233
LB -48 Bill Kaseley, Sr., 5-11, 200
LB -31 Bob Kerr, Sr., 6-2, 208
LCB -16 Ivan Pearl, Sr., 6-0, 176
RCB -3 Nelson Nickerson, Jr., 5-10, 171
FB -17 David Ault, Sr., 6-0, 181
P -2 Scott Fullage, Jr., 5-11, 187

MISSOURI

Offense
SE -46 Andy Hill, Jr., 5-9, 164
TE -42 Greg Kral, Jr., 6-4, 234
LT -73 Scott Shockley, Sr., 6-5, 270
LG -48 Tom Hornof, Sr., 6-3, 255
C -53 Phil Greenfield, Jr., 6-1, 250
RG -47 Bernard Laster, Sr., 6-1, 267
RT -76 Conrad Goode, Sr., 6-4, 267
FL -47 Craig White, Sr., 6-2, 196
QB -10 Marion Adler, Jr., 6-0, 183
RB -48 Cameron Riley, Jr., 6-1, 191
FB -33 Eric Drain, Sr., 6-2, 207
PK -7 Brad Burditt, Jr., 6-2, 197

Defense

LE -46 Taft Sales, Sr., 6-2, 220
LT -42 Steve Runyan, Jr., 6-4, 245
NG -40 Steve Lamb, Sr., 6-2, 250
FB -38 Rocco Hawkins, Jr., 6-2, 190
RT -46 Robert Curry, Jr., 6-3, 264
RE -46 Bobby Bell, Jr., 6-3, 214
WLB -34 Tracey Mack, Jr., 6-0, 223
SLB -34 Jay Wilson, Sr., 6-3, 215
LCB -30 Terry Matichak, Jr., 6-2, 190
RCB -31 Jeff Hooper, Jr., 6-0, 172
S -4 Jerome Carver, Jr., 5-10, 181
P -10 Marion Adler, Jr., 6-0, 183

Dan Owsley

K-State 10 vs. Missouri 27
Oklahoma St. 34 vs. Kansas 27
Iowa St. 30 vs. Oklahoma 31
Colorado 10 vs. Nebraska 29
SMU 21 vs. Texas 24
Notre Dame 31 vs. USC 21
Wichita St. 24 vs. West Texas St. 17
Penn St. 27 vs. West Virginia 13
Minnesota 31 vs. Northwestern 17
Iowa 13 vs. Michigan 24
L.A. Raiders 37 vs. Dallas 21
Kansas City 38 vs. Houston 17

Joel Torczon

K-State 10 vs. Missouri 23
Oklahoma St. 34 vs. Kansas 30
Iowa St. 17 vs. Oklahoma 31
Colorado 13 vs. Nebraska 43
SMU 30 vs. Texas 31
Notre Dame 27 vs. USC 14
Wichita St. 24 vs. West Texas St. 30
Penn St. 23 vs. West Virginia 27
Minnesota 17 vs. Northwestern 27
Iowa 20 vs. Michigan 21
L.A. Raiders 31 vs. Dallas 27
Kansas City 34 vs. Houston 17

Kevin Dale

K-State 14 vs. Missouri 42
Oklahoma St. 34 vs. Kansas 17
Iowa St. 10 vs. Oklahoma 28
Colorado 10 vs. Nebraska 43
SMU 21 vs. Texas 28
Notre Dame 14 vs. USC 17
Wichita St. 17 vs. West Texas St. 21
Penn St. 23 vs. West Virginia 12
Minnesota 27 vs. Northwestern 10
Iowa 34 vs. Michigan 23
L.A. Raiders 34 vs. Dallas 35
Kansas City 31 vs. Houston 7

Judi Wright

K-State 7 vs. Missouri 36
Oklahoma St. 36 vs. Kansas 7
Iowa St. 7 vs. Oklahoma 36
Colorado 7 vs. Nebraska 36
SMU 14 vs. Texas 17
Notre Dame 17 vs. USC 14
Wichita St. 36 vs. West Texas St. 7
Penn St. 36 vs. West Virginia 7
Minnesota 17 vs. Northwestern 14
Iowa 17 vs. Michigan 14
L.A. Raiders 30 vs. Dallas 28
Kansas City 17 vs. Houston 14

Tex Hanson

K-State 9 vs. Missouri 21
Oklahoma St. 19 vs. Kansas 21
Iowa St. 21 vs. Oklahoma 28
Colorado 6 vs. Nebraska 54
SMU 27 vs. Texas 28
Notre Dame 26 vs. USC 21
Wichita St. 11 vs. West Texas St. 13
Penn St. 23 vs. West Virginia 12
Minnesota 21 vs. Northwestern 3
Iowa 30 vs. Michigan 21
L.A. Raiders 21 vs. Dallas 11
Kansas City 18 vs. Houston 17

Sean Reilly

K-State 21 vs. Missouri 17
Oklahoma St. 25 vs. Kansas 21
Iowa St. 3 vs. Oklahoma 42
Colorado 10 vs. Nebraska 50
SMU 14 vs. Texas 21
Notre Dame 17 vs. USC 14
Wichita St. 17 vs. West Texas St. 10
Penn St. 21 vs. West Virginia 17
Minnesota 28 vs. Northwestern 6
Iowa 24 vs. Michigan 20
L.A. Raiders 35 vs. Dallas 34
Kansas City 21 vs. Houston 24

Andy Nelson

K-State 3 vs. Missouri 38
Oklahoma St. 25 vs. Kansas 27
Iowa St. 14 vs. Oklahoma 42
Colorado 13 vs. Nebraska 50
SMU 21 vs. Texas 17
Notre Dame 3 vs. USC 34
Wichita St. 7 vs. West Texas St. 9
Penn St. 21 vs. West Virginia 28
Minnesota 13 vs. Northwestern 14
Iowa 45 vs. Michigan 42
L.A. Raiders 27 vs. Dallas 30
Kansas City 35 vs. Houston 14

Brian La Rue

K-State 14 vs. Missouri 10
Oklahoma St. 21 vs. Kansas 20
Iowa St. 7 vs. Oklahoma 24
Colorado 14 vs. Nebraska 54
SMU 21 vs. Texas 17
Notre Dame 21 vs. USC 14
Wichita St. 7 vs. West Texas St. 10
Penn St. 13 vs. West Virginia 17
Minnesota 7 vs. Northwestern 35
Iowa 28 vs. Michigan 21
L.A. Raiders 27 vs. Dallas 34 (OT)
Kansas City 34 vs. Houston 17

Past winners not running; event wide-open

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Scotland's John Graham, the runner with the fastest time coming into the 1983 New York City Marathon, said Thursday, "I'm not stupid enough to say, 'I'm going to win.'"

His verbal stance was opposite to that of Rod Dixon of New Zealand and Ron Tabb of Eugene, Ore., both of whom have predicted victory in Sunday's 26-mile, 385-yard trek through New York City's five boroughs.

Dixon, unbeaten in 19 consecutive races on the road, not including his only marathon — in May 1982 in New Zealand — even has boldly said he would break the world best of 2 hours, 8 minutes, 13 seconds set by Alberto Salazar in the 1981 New York City Marathon.

This time, neither Salazar, winner of the race each of the past three years, nor Bill Rodgers, the winner from 1976-1979, is entered, and the race is considered wide-open.

"If Salazar says he's going to run 2:08, you've got to take notice," said the 27-year-old Graham, whose best clocking is 2:09:28 in the 1982 Rotterdam Marathon. "If he says he's going to do it, he'll do it."

"But this year, we don't have Superman Alberto Salazar or Bill Rodgers. So everybody will be pushing early instead of watching Salazar or Rodgers as in the past."

That's why Graham said he foresees a fast race, with the winner clocking between 2:09 and 2:10.

Graham, third in the 1980 New York City race in 2:11:47, has not run a marathon since finishing fourth in the British Commonwealth Games just over a year ago, but said he now is "as fit as I've ever been."

He started this year's Rotterdam Marathon, after being coaxed into it by the promoters to be a "rabbit (a pacesetter)" only two days before the race, but dropped out — as planned — after setting a fast pace for a half-marathon.

He has been training with Britain's Dave Moorcroft, the world record holder for 5,000 meters — and keeping close to him during track workouts "has given me confidence," said Graham.

A former steeplechaser, Graham said, "I have done a lot of work this year for strength and pace, and I think I should do very well Sunday."

Among the top contenders, Graham said he feared Gidamis Shahanga of Tanzania. Shahanga, the 1983 NCAA 5,000-and-10,000-meter champion from the University of Texas-El Paso, won the British Commonwealth Games marathon in 1978 and finished sixth last year, after tiring in the last couple of miles.

"I'll be watching Shahanga," he said. "I don't know exactly what he can do. He could shoot off at a 4:20 pace."

"But I just want to be the first across the finish line," added Graham.

Spikers anticipate match with Tigers

By VIKKI WATSON
Staff Writer

Coming off a recent win over the Fort Hays State University Tigers and its championship at the Oral Roberts Invitational in Tulsa last week, the women's volleyball team will face the University of Missouri Tigers today at Columbia.

It's a much improved team that will take the court against the Tigers, said Scott Nelson, head coach, after watching the 'Cats win six of their last eight matches.

"The way we're playing volleyball, we have a good chance of beating Missouri," he said.

And the way of playing that Nelson describes includes better execution, higher intensity and more confidence than was present in the 'Cats earlier 9-15, 9-15, 10-15 loss to Missouri this year, Ginger Mayson, assistant coach, said.

"We're a different team," she said. "We saw tremendous weaknesses in Missouri (in the first match) and unfortunately for us we just couldn't capitalize on them. We're ready to capitalize now."

"We're playing much better ball," Nelson said. "Our execution is at a much higher level and the team really wants to perform against Missouri. The team knows they're capable of beating Missouri."

Missouri, currently the Big Eight

Conference's second-place team with a 4-1 record, fell to 18-8 overall following a recent defeat against Central Missouri State. K-State ranks fifth in the conference at 1-4 and holds an 16-10 overall record.

The Tigers are the Big Eight's best blocking team and is led by Diane Berg, who leads the conference in blocks and is second in kills. Missouri also boasts 1982 all-Big Eight players Sharen Olmstead and Sandi Orent, along with second team all-Big Eighter Ritchie Ponquinette.

K-State will counter with Sharon Ridley, this week's Big Eight Player of the Week, who is second in the conference in serving aces (.594) and third in digs. The 'Cats are the league's top digging squad with a 16.7 average and Donna Lee leads the conference individually with an average of 3.2 digs per game.

If the improved play — which began during the 'Cats ORU Invitational championship — continues, K-State could very well grab a much-needed Big Eight win, Nelson said.

"It's going to be a very tough match and I know it's going to be very close," he said. "But, the players have gotten a little bit hungrier for wins. They're realizing that they can play a very high caliber of volleyball."

Baseball players file for free agent draft

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Darrell Evans of the San Francisco Giants, who hit 30 home runs during the season, and base-stealing whiz Julio Cruz of the Chicago White Sox declared their free agency Thursday, the players' union said.

The two filings brought to 28 the number of players who thus far have filed to be eligible for next month's free agent reentry draft. Players have until midnight, Oct. 31, to file for free agency.

At the same time, the Los Angeles Times reported Thursday that third baseman Doug DeCinces, who was eligible for free agency, had reached an agreement on a multi-year contract with the California Angels.

"I'm pleased to say my philosophy of keeping a player where he is seems to coincide with the Angels," said DeCinces' lawyer, Ron Shapiro.

The outlook did not look quite so good for Evans' team, the Giants.

Evans went through the reentry draft for the first time in 1978. At that time, Evans' agent, Jerry Kapstein, said he felt Evans had a good chance of re-signing with the Giants, and he did.

"Now, however, I firmly project that Darrell will not be in a Giants uniform in 1984," Kapstein told The Associated Press by telephone from his San Diego office.

"I informed the Giants of this position in August, and we have had no discussions concerning Darrell since that point. And none are planned," Kapstein said.

Clubs have until 48 hours before the Nov. 7 draft to try to re-sign their free agents.

Evans has been with the Giants since he was acquired on June 13, 1976 in a trade with the Atlanta Braves. Primarily a third baseman, Evans played 113 games at first base for the Giants last season, committing only seven errors for a .993 fielding average. Besides 30 home runs, Evans had 94 RBI, including a team-high 15 game-winners.

Cruz, a second baseman, was traded to the White Sox from the Seattle Mariners for Tony Bernazard on June 15. Cruz batted .252 for the season with 52 RBI and 57 stolen bases, 24 with the White Sox.

Of the players who have filed, 16 are pitchers. They include two of the top relievers in the game, Kent Tekulve of Pittsburgh and Rich Gossage of the New York Yankees.

OPEN 24 HOURS ON FRIDAY!

We'll keep'em coming hot and fresh all night long.

Mon.-Thurs. 6:30 a.m. - 1:00 a.m.
Fri. 24 hours
Sat. till 6 p.m.

11th & Moro
Aggieville 537-4808

Having a party? We'll bake up some fresh goodies just right for the occasion!!

KSU Ambassador

Applications are available in Anderson Hall, Room 104 and the S.G.S. Office

Applications due Wednesday, October 26

FACTORY OUTLET SALE!

6 HOURS ONLY!

SAT., OCTOBER 22

9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

T-SHIRTS JACKETS
SWEATERS SPORTSHIRTS

Over 20,000 items
ALL BELOW COST
$1.00 to $8.00

js Jostens Spiritwear

423 Houston Manhattan, Kansas
Elks Building - Old Stag Room

FirstBank
First National Bank of Manhattan

is pleased to announce that our University Bank
is
NOW OPEN
at Denison & Claflin

Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M.
Sat. 8:00 A.M. to 1:00 P.M.

BUSHWACKER'S

• THE • FUNDRINKERY

—Friday—
Old Time
Rock n' Roll
&
Free
Hors d'oeuvres

Happy Hour: 4-8
2 Fers on HiBalls
75¢ Draws
$2 Blended Drinks

Drink of the Week:
Tiger's Tail

Stop by the Eatery

A Reciprocating Club
531 N. Manhattan Office 539-4321 Bar 539-9727

MCCAIN
AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

the piano King
of Kansas City Swing...

Jay "hootie" mc shann

a Mid-America Arts Alliance program

Friday, October, 28, 8pm

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office, noon-5 p.m. M-F, 532-6428

This program is made possible by support from the Kansas Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts, through participation in Mid-America Arts Alliance, a regional arts organization.

FREE GOLD FISH
With Coupon
Expires 10/23/83
1 per customer

Zebra Danio
Neon Tetra
Gold Platty
Suset Platty

2 for $1.00

Peach Face $39.95
Bee Bee Parrots $59.95 each
Senegal Parrot $69.95

Patagonian Parrot $89.95
Green Parakeets $8.98
Gerbils $2.98

GREEN THUMB

Open Monday Thru
Saturday 8 to 5:30
Sunday Noon to 5:30

1105 Waters
539-4751

"Across from ALCO"

Weekend Special!

Call us.
539-0561
517 North 12th St.

Hours:
4:30pm-1am Mon-Thurs.
11am-2am Fri & Sat.
11am-1am Sun.

America knows Domino's Pizza. We've earned our reputation by delivering hot, custom-made pizzas in 30 minutes or less to homes all across the country.

We use only the freshest
ingredients and 100%
real dairy cheese.

We promise free delivery
and fast 30 minute
service to your door. All
you have to do is call!

Prices do not include
applicable sales tax.

Our drivers carry less
than $10.00.
Limited delivery area.
©1983 Domino's Pizza Inc.

Our Superb
Cheese Pizza
12" cheese $5.15
16" cheese $7.35

The Price Destroyer™
9 items for the price of 5
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Olives, Onions, Green
Peppers, Ground Beef,
Sausage, Ham, Extra
Cheese
12" Price Destroyer™ $ 9.40
16" Price Destroyer™ $13.60

Additional Items
Pepperoni, Mushrooms,
Ham, Onions, Anchovies,
Green Peppers, Olives,
Sausage, Ground Beef,
Jalapenos, Extra Crust
Extra Thick Crust
12" pizza $ .85 per item
16" pizza $1.25 per item
Pepp/ quarts available

$2.00 Off!

Good Friday, Saturday,
& Sunday only.
$2.00 off any 16"
2-item pizza plus 1 qt.
of Pepsi.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 12/31/83

Fast, Free Delivery™
Good at listed
locations.
34069 / 8311

Plimsouls' LP reveals talent through well-meshed sound

By ANGIE SCHARNHORST
Collegian Reviewer

Occasionally a band produces an album that, when considering its individual elements (i.e. musical performance, lyrical content), is nothing special, but as an entity is marvelous.

The Plimsouls' "Everything At Once" is a good example.

It would be hard to pinpoint exactly what makes "Everything At Once," the Plimsouls' second release, special. Yet it is. Nothing is really outstanding stylistically about the LP.

Peter Case, lead vocalist of the band, has a typical rock 'n' roller's voice — one with a lot of rough edges. Drummer Lou Ramirez and bassist Dave Pahoa add the necessary background rhythm, but are not flashy instrumentalists by any means. Eddie Munoz plays straightforward lead guitar, also without flamboyance.

That in itself is one reason the LP meshes. The band members are well suited for each other, creating a tight, synchronized sound. This could also possibly be attributed to producer Jeff Eyrich. One mark of a good producer is being able to maintain continuity in style.

Review

The lyrics on "Everything At Once" are adequate, but also nothing extraordinary. When coupled with other elements, however, they become an integral part of the LP as a cohesive package.

Choosing just one or two top tracks to highlight on the album is almost unfair to the band. What is a strong point on one cut is an equal strong point on the others. The same can be said for weaknesses. "Play The Breaks," which has been receiving local radio airplay, is one of the more notable cuts, as well as "Oldest Story in the World," "Shaky City," and "How Long Will It Take."

"Play The Breaks," a story of

"taking it as it comes," best illustrates the Plimsouls' lyrical style.

When you've been in the thick of it for a little too long...
Had your pick of the litter but now something's wrong...

It's time to pick your head up off the ground
And get it straight
You've got to play the breaks

Although there is nothing really innovative about the Plimsouls' music, they must be credited for at least doing what they do correctly. Too many bands are held in a rut by a lack of animation. The Plimsouls overcome this with energy, and their obvious enthusiasm.

Probably the one definite strong point of "Everything At Once" is the band's sincerity. Case sings as if every word is integral, giving a sense of importance to the album. Were it not for the urgency he belies, the LP wouldn't so easily overcome its individual inadequacies.

Acting troupe to appear in Purple Masque

By The Collegian Staff

The Complex Improvisational Theatre will present "An Evening in Limbo" Friday and Saturday in the Purple Masque Theatre.

The Complex is six students who create comic and dramatic situations on the spot, which is called improvisation.

The group has performed this semester for Alcohol Awareness Week, and for the Women's Credit Union, according to Mike Musick, senior in speech, a member of the group.

In previous semesters, the Complex has performed for groups like the Fort Riley Officers Club, the Midwest Crime Stoppers Convention and in local bars.

"This is our first show that has more of a variety of an audience all in one place," John Winningham, junior in theater, said. "It's a more structured show than we've done in the past."

The group hopes to change its image with its performance.

"We want to try and get away from cheap humor," Musick said. "We want to evoke laughter but one that comes from deep inside instead of a cheap laugh because we used profanity or sex."

The performance will be about half improvisation and half prepared skits.

"Some of the skits were written as a result of improvisation. We'll be improving and something will happen. Other scripts are written by members of the group. We'll be doing six or seven types of improv," Musick said.

The performance presents a challenge to the members because it will be the first time the group has performed in a structured situation.

"This is the first time we've done two consecutive shows in the same place. We're using more theatrical techniques that we don't get to use when we're performing at a bar or in front of the Union," Musick said.

Tickets are available in advance through the Central Ticket Office in Ahearn Field House or at the door. Performances will begin each night at 8 in the Purple Masque Theatre. Admission is $3 for students and public.

Local dance company opens fifth season

By The Collegian Staff

Manhattan's professional dance company, The Susan Warden Dancers, will open its fifth season in Manhattan with a concert Sunday afternoon in McCain Auditorium.

The non-profit group, led by Susan Warden, assistant professor in dance, is supported in part by the Kansas Arts Commission.

According to Kent Cartwright, president of the company's board of directors and assistant dean of arts and sciences, Sunday's performance is a transition point for the group.

"The company is a different size this year," Cartwright said. "There are eight dancers plus Susan. That's two more men than in years past. This gives them a richer and deeper visual opportunity."

"Most of it (the concert) will be Susan's choreography, although there will be other choreography by members of the company," he said.

Included in the two-act program is an improvisational piece.

"One of the really terrific things is the ensemble work," Cartwright said. "Most of the dancers have been with Susan for two or more years. They practice improv all the time."

One dance, "Fire," was choreographed by Mary Martin, graduate teaching assistant in English. "Spring Fever," first danced by K-State students in a concert last spring, has been reworked. A men's section has been added to the dance "Trio" because the group now has three men.

Tickets for the 3 p.m. performance in McCain are $3 for students and $5 for the general public.

Stray Cats ticket sales start Saturday

By The Collegian Staff

Tickets for the Nov. 11 Stray Cats concert go on sale at noon Saturday in the Union Box Office.

The Stray Cats is a three-member rockabilly group from Long Island, N.Y., that has recently gained national notoriety. "Built for Speed," the band's first album released in the United States sold more than 1 million copies. The band's newest release, "Rant and Rave" is currently ranked 14th on the charts, Barb Burke, Union Program Council adviser, said.

There will be two warm-up bands at the concert, Burke said. The evening's entertainment will begin with Roman Holiday, a band that has been described as a British version of the Stray Cats.

Following Roman Holiday's performance, there will be a 30-minute set change for the second warm-up band's performance. The band, Fourteen Karats of Soul, will perform about 20 minutes. This six-member black, a capella group toured with the Stray Cats in Europe, Burke said.

"It's a student-oriented concert," she said. "They claim they put on a fun concert."

"We picked them because of their wide appeal for audiences," Burke said. "They should appeal to a wide range of people."

Calendar

Today, Oct. 21

ART
Painting and Drawings by George Thompson — Strecker Gallery

CONCERTS
Gap Band/Zapp W — Kemper, Kansas City

MUSIC
Glow — Avalon
The Shapes — Brothers

MOVIES
Under Fire — West Loop
Dead Zone — West Loop
Never Say Never Again — Warehouse

All the Right Moves — Campus
Flashdance — Varsity
The Year of Living Dangerously — 7 and 9:30 p.m., Forum Hall

Midnight Cowboy — midnight, Forum Hall

THEATER
The Complex Improvisational Theatre — 8 p.m., Purple Masque Theatre

Saturday, Oct. 22

CONCERTS
Gap Band/Zapp W — Uptown, Kansas City

Loverboy/Jean Jett — Kemper, Kansas City

MUSIC
Stray Cats tickets go on sale at noon at the Union First Floor Box Office

Glow — Avalon
The Shapes — Brothers

MOVIES
Seems Like Old Times — 2 p.m., Forum Hall

The Year of Living Dangerously — 7 and 9:30 p.m., Forum Hall
Midnight Cowboy — midnight, Forum Hall

THEATER
The Complex Improvisational Theatre — 8 p.m., Purple Masque Theatre

Sunday, Oct. 23

CONCERTS
Styx — Bicentennial Center, Salina

DANCE
Susan Warden Dancers — 3 p.m., McCain Auditorium

MOVIES
Seems Like Old Times — 2 p.m., Forum Hall

comprehensive health associates
• free pregnancy tests
• outpatient abortion services
• alternatives counseling
• referrals
• gynecology
• contraception
1-435 & Roe Overland Park 642-3100

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity Rep. — TOM SEELE
• Supplemental Retirement Annuities
• Investment Options
• Free Transfer Privileges
• State Deferred Compensation
• Life Insurance
1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 913/276-7095

UNIVERSITY CONVOCATION

"America: A Dying Civilization?"
Max Lerner, Journalist

Journalist, political pundit and dean of the nation's newspaper columnists, Max Lerner has a nationally syndicated column and has written such well-known books as America As A Civilization, The Age of Overkill, Values in Education and The Unfinished Country. Mr. Lerner is professor emeritus at Brandeis University.

Monday, October 24, 1983 10:30 a.m., McCain Auditorium

MR. K'S
TGIF
GUEST D.J.!
TAMMY OTEY
IRENE TASHMAN
West Hall
are today's Guest D.J.s!
$2 TGIF PITCHERS
2 P.M.-7 P.M.!

MANHATTAN TRACK CLUB OCTOBER CLASSIC

Cross Country Meet Oct. 23 1:00—First Race Warner Park

ENTRY FEES

Pre-registered $2
Day of race $2

Registration begins at 12:00 Noon

AGE DIVISIONS/RACE DISTANCES

Various age groups 2 mile distances
High school & under

19 - 29 M, W 3 Miles
30 - 39 M, W 3 Miles
40 - 49 M, W 3 Miles
50 + M, W 3 Miles

AWARDS

Medals will be awarded to top 3 in each age group.
Ribbons will be awarded for 4th thru 6th place.

COURSE

Mile 1—Basically flat, fast.
Mile 2—Hilly, tough... with a fast finish for the 2 Mile race.
Mile 3—First portion is hilly, then moves to flat, fast finish.

MAILING ADDRESS:

Craig L. McVey, Meet Director
1419 Hartford Road
Manhattan, Kansas 66502
Phone 913-539-7357

MAKE CHECKS PAYABLE TO:
MANHATTAN TRACK CLUB

ENTRY BLANK

NAME _____ ADDRESS _____ PHONE _____
CITY _____

STATE _____ ZIP _____

CHECK ONE: MALE _____ FEMALE _____ DATE OF BIRTH _____ AGE ON RACE DAY _____

WAIVER OF LIABILITY: In consideration of my participation in this event, I hereby, for myself, my heirs, my executors, and administrators, waive any and all rights and claims for damages I may have against the sponsors, coordinating groups, and any individuals associated with this event, their representatives, successors and assigns for any and all injuries suffered by me in connection with said event. I attest and verify that I am in good health and am sufficiently trained for this competition. None of the above are responsible for the loss or theft of personal items nor any other form of aggravation in connection with this event.

Signature _____
(If under 18, Signature of Parent or Guardian)

the Avalon Friday and Saturday
GLOW
Fusion Rock
TGIF AT THE AVALON 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.
NO COVER CHARGE • 2 FOR 1 DRAWS
FREE HORS D'OEUVRES • $1.25 HOUSE DRINKS
1122 Moro UPSTAIRS IN AGGIEVILLE 539-9703

DANCE!
to:
BOOGIE GRASS FEVER
Fri.—Oct. 21
THE OWENS FAMILY BAND
Sat., Oct. 22
10 p.m.-2 a.m.
Sponsored by Liederkranz Alma, KS

Fri., Oct. 28
"BEER BASH"
$6 at the door
Dance to
"Southern Star"
All draw beer FREE
Mixed Drinks $1

Alpha Delta Pi Alpha Kappa Pi
ROCK 'n' ROLL ATHON
Fri. & Sat., October 21 & 22
Twenty-five cents from each pitcher will be donated to the Ronald McDonald House and United Cerebral Palsy
Your donations are appreciated.

CHILDREN'S ONCOLOGY SERVICES OF MID-AMERICA, INC.
Ronald McDonald House™

Sports Fan-attic in Aggieville

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 10 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.65 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.25 per inch; Five consecutive days: $3.95 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $3.75 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

GET PERSONAL

with a Collegian Classified Ad
Call 532-6560

ANNOUNCEMENT

01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. 50¢ for students with ID and $1 for all others. (281f)

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours: Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Maries, 1631 Humboldt, 539-5200. (32-50)

GET JOSH McDowell's four books on the secular religion, non-Christian religions, the cults and the occult when you register for KC83 this week. For more information call Mark Austin, Rick Schulze or Lori Lang at 539-4841. (41-44)

SUSAN WARDEN Dancers Fall Concert, Sunday, October 23, 3:00 p.m., McCain Auditorium. Tickets, McCain Box Office, 532-4428. (42-44)

AUCTION—QUITTING Business—Complete auction of all inventory and fixtures, Friday evening, October 28, 1983, 8:00 p.m., 423 Poyntz, Manhattan, Kansas. The remaining inventory consists of the following: Approximately 6,524 skeins of Persian and tapestry yarn, approximately 5,824 bundles of pre-cut rug yarn in a variety of colors, approximately 2,400 skeins and balls of tatting, pearl cotton and embroidery floss, approximately 2,457 skeins of a variety of types of yarns in all colors and types, 148 pieces of imported needlepoint canvas, knitting needles, cross stitch and other kits, sewing supplies and much much more inventory. Fixtures including display cases and racks, stands, tables, pegboard, baskets, display items. Note: The Yarn Shop has always been proud to stock some of the best quality yarn available. A large inventory and sure to be an interesting auction! The Yarn Shop. Auctioneers: Milt Anderson, 776-4834 or 539-7365; Earl Brown, Vern Gannon. (43-44)

SAE LITTLE Sisters: Meet at SAE House, Sunday, at 7:00 p.m. (44)

KANSAS CITY Peace Corps Office wants to locate returned PC volunteers in the Manhattan area. Call Charlotte at 532-6497 by Tuesday, October 24, 1983. (44-48)

ATTENTION

02

TRAVEL—We will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (11f)

FANTASYGRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

HURRY TO Balfour! To introduce you to our new arrivals, all Footjoy aerobic shoes and racquetball shoes and gloves are 20% off now through October 29th. (39-49)

THINKING ABOUT going to KC 83? Register this week and you'll receive Josh McDowell's four books on "Understanding Today's Religions" in one hardback volume, free! For more information call Mark Austin, Rick Schulze or Lori Lang at 539-4841. (41-44)

COZUMEL—YUCATAN Peninsula—Mexico. Yucatan Field Course: Natural History, Three biology credits, Winter Intersession, January 2-15 from Johnson County Community College. For more information 1-888-0170. (42-44)

UNIVERSITY ORGANIZATION interested in fund raising project call Mildred Polley, 539-7643 day or 539-8622 evening. (43-45)

SINGLE MALE searching for single female born between February 16, 1961 and February 4, 1962. Call 537-8365 for more details. (43-48)

FOR RENT—MISC

03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11f)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11f)

HALLOWEEN COSTUMES—Sales and rentals, masks, make-up, accessories. The Emporium, 11th and Moro in Aggieville. (35-49)

FOR RENT—APTS

04

BRAND NEW two bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. Call 776-3804. (35-44)

LARGE, ONE bedroom, laundry facilities, three blocks from campus. Available mid-December. $275/month and electric. 539-8968. (40-44)

VERY NICE, one-bedroom apartment, one block from campus, $240 per month. Call 776-0409. (41-45)

FOR RENT: Mont Blue studio apartment—spring semester. Call 539-2019 after 5:00 p.m. (41-44)

BASEMENT APARTMENT—Two bedroom, remodeled this summer, two blocks west of campus. Call Jim, 539-1135. (42-50)

FOR RENT—HOUSES

05

FIVE BEDROOM, quiet neighborhood. No lease, $500 per month. Call Brian 1-456-7423 after 5:30 p.m. (40-44)

NICE, THREE-bedroom house, Northwest. Garage, appliances, new carpeting, paint. Couples, older student. Lease, $395. Call 776-9765. (40-44)

FOR RENT—Spacious, furnished, three bedroom home, three blocks from campus, two baths, utility room, garage. References required. Shown by appointment. Call 776-1283 after 5:00 p.m. (42-46)

COUNTRY MOBILE home, place for horse, garden. Ten minutes from Manhattan. Prefer married couple. 1-494-2469. (43-45)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share house, own bedroom, three and one-half blocks east of campus. Private parking, large yard. Open November 1, $135 per month plus utilities. 776-0182. (44)

FOR SALE—AUTO

06

1968 AMX classic 390—automatic, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, stereo, 5,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Excellent condition, $3400. Might trade. 537-4782. (39-48)

1980 DATSUN 4x4 with top. Good condition. 776-8182 after 5:00 p.m. Monday-Friday. Weekends anytime. (40-44)

1976 BLUE MGB. Excellent condition, low mileage. Call 776-8055 after 7:00 p.m. (40-44)

1972 MGB convertible. New paint, new top, is in great shape. Call 539-3092. (41-45)

1975 TRANS Am, power steering, power brakes, power windows, runs great. Call 776-9044. (41-44)

FOR SALE—1978 Monte Carlo Landau. Must sell—real nice. Phone 1-494-8264, St. George. (43-44)

1973 DODGE Polara, V8, automatic, power steering, and brakes. In good condition, $550. Call 537-2665. (44-49)

1974 OLDS Cutlass Salon, automatic, power steering, power brakes, 45,000 miles, new tires. $3500 or best offer. 913-238-6993. (34-45)

FOR SALE—MISC

07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risque greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (khaki), North Carolina (lt. blue), USC (white) others. $12.50 each post-paid. S-M-L-XL. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-601-835-1085. (32-45)

EMBROIDERED DRESSES—Beautiful hand-embroidered dresses from Mexico. Pure cotton, comfortable, inexpensive. Great for gift-giving. Write for information. Montezuma's Revenge, Box 50150, Austin, Texas 78763. (34-45)

ONE-HALF Arab bay gelding, three years old, green broke. Call 776-9746 after 6:00 p.m. (42-46)

TEAC C-3RX professional deck. Mint, $425. Call 537-9755. (42-44)

FIVE FAMILY safe Saturday 22, 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., Jardine Terrace, G4. Stereo, winter coats, and jackets. Clothes for everyone. Baby cribs, records, portable radio, air conditioner, appliances, leather handbags, kids' stuff. Rain or shine. (43-44)

RECORD SALE: Albums by groups like The Rolling Stones, Santana, Fastway, and many more at 1010 Gardenway, #A or call at 537-0248 between 1:00-6:00 p.m. (43-44)

SCUBA EQUIPMENT: U.S. Divers, top-of-the-line, full set. Contact Marcus at 776-8779. (43-44)

BICYCLE 12 speed, eclipse bags front and rear with fenders, handbrake bag, rollers for indoor riding. 537-8501. (43-47)

We have new Gibson guitars

starting at $299.00.
20% off guitars.

Hayes House of Music

223 Poyntz

776-7983

BIRDS—HEALTHY, semi-tame, cheap. Quaker Parakeet, eighteen months old. Senegal Parrot, three years old. 776-0635. (43-44)

BICYCLES FOR Sale: 10- and 3-speed mens and womens $35-$150. Limited selection. Call 537-8616. (44-46)

TWO NU vs KSU football tickets. Call 776-7148. (44-46)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES

08

1972 AUBURN, 14' x 70'; two bedroom. Includes appliances, washer, dryer and air. Call 539-2458 after 5:00 p.m. (41-44)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES

09

1979 SUZUKI GS550, 16,000 miles, new chain, battery, helmets included. $900 or best offer. 776-1332 after 5:00 p.m. (42f)

1975 KAWASAKI 175 Enduro. Excellent condition, must sell. Asking $275. Call 776-9298. (42-45)

MUST SELL: 1976 Yamaha Enduro, see to appreciate, excellent condition; only 1,600 miles. Cathy, 539-9253. (43-44)

1973 TR8 Triumph, one owner, both tops, very nice, K-State purple, $2595. The Preston McCall Company, 913-841-6067. (44-53)

FOUND

10

CALCULATOR FOUND outside Umberger Hall. Call 532-3579 to identify and claim. (42-44)

TWO PAIR eyeglasses. Claim in Kedzie 103. (43-45)

FOUND SUNDAY—Man's 27" 10-speed bicycle. To identify and claim call 537-1356. (43-45)

CALCULATOR, FOUND near Anderson Avenue pedestrian light. Call John McCulloch, 532-6730, to identify and claim. (44-48)

HELP WANTED

13

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write JJC, Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

COMPUTER OPERATOR

We are seeking a qualified computer operator to work part time as needed during peak periods which may also include some weekends and holidays. Scheduled hours will vary per week depending upon work load and availability. IBM 4341, Dos—VSE experience N/or Data Processing education required. Starting wage is $6.35 per hour plus shift differential if applicable. Applicants are requested to contact:

Supervisor Employment/EEO
McCall Pattern Co.
615 McCall Rd.
Manhattan, KS 66502
Equal Opportunity Employer M-F

WORKSTUDY POSITION available—Must have Workstudy, 10-12 hours weekly. Apply in Structural Media Center, Blumont Hall, Rm. 016. Ask for Ron or Janette, 532-5926. (40-44)

COLLEGE STUDENT to babysit four-month daughter of faculty member in our home. One block from campus, MW, 9:00 a.m.-12:00 noon. Call 539-1947 or 532-6350, ext. 18. (43-44)

LOST

14

CALCULATOR LOST October 13, possibly in Cardwell Hall. If found, please call 776-2110. Reward offered. (42-44)

KEYS ON a CN Tower ring. Lost near CHE office. Reward offered. 532-5584, ext. 56, Huang. (43-45)

WOMAN'S SUNDIAL digital watch outside Willard 114. Call 776-6151. (44)

PERSONAL

16

STEWART JESKE—You've been a big part of my life for six wonderful years now. I know the years to come will be filled with many more great times together. I wish you all the happiness in the world on your 21st birthday this Sunday and forever. Also, I plan to do everything I can to make it your best ever. Love always, Carrie. (44)

KRIS: HAPPY Honeymoon. French 3(9-30). (44)

HEY ALPHA Xi Actives—Are you anxious for tonight? Wondering who your date is—will he be all right? Well, never fear, dear sisters, cuz everything is set for the best pledgeeagery you've ever seen, on this you can bet! So just be ready at 7:30 to meet your roommate's set-up, and dance and swing the night away. The fun will never let up! Love, the pledges. (44)

FROCKO and Jocko—Grab the bong! Put on your steeled boots and get delicious. The Boys. (44)

SLUGGER: TALK to me ya, you wired noodle. Talking till 1:30 is great. You're even greater. It's been almost six months and the good times keep rollin'—will it never end? Let's celebrate your first personal. ILY, Bun. (44)

SIGMA NU Little Sisters: Don't forget Sunday night. Some person will win a keg. Get psyched for little sister olympics. (44)

Lose your Shirt?

You can get one of ours cheap!
Below cost, The Catch??

It's Saturday,
October 22nd—Only??

Be there or be square.

423 Houston—Stag Rm.
Elks Bldg.—9:00-3:00 p.m.

KAPPA DATES: Jeff, Greg, Pat, Mike N., Mike J., Barry and Doug—Join the Kappa Kappa Gamma's in our blue and blue pajamas and you'll be glad for the rest of your life! Get excited for our nightcap together! From the nuns: Susan, Lori, Maribeth, Chris, Kathy K., Jami and Kathy J. (44)

MIKE PIROTE: You're (pledge) motherless no more, you don't know me real well but what the hell, I've been your really crazy before! Clue #3: I'm 5'10" (44)

ATTENTION: SLOP and Serve Patrons—Special this weekend only, you know you won't be lonely. A meal beyond your wildest dream allows a nightmare it may seem. Bon Appetite! The Kappa Management. (44)

CHI-O-S—Get psyched for the function today! The Phi Kaps. (44)

MR. WINK—Tonight is our big night and it will be perfect. I love you! Mrs. Wink. (44)

KAY—CONCERTS, choking I couldn't help laughing! P.B. Parfaits, where do you check the oil? Ditches, leading to strange houses, tow trucks, finding our way to J. Gells (but not for long), slick roads, Texas Ams (my 21st Topexa theater, etc. It's been a great couple of years! Happy 21st! Julie. (44)

STEBE—THANKS for making KSU wonderful. The stars have never been brighter. Let's make all our dreams come true! I love you, Jen. (44)

SIGMA NUS Jim and Sandy—Can't wait to see you in pajamas tomorrow night! Maria and Becky. (44)

SHARON—TEN years of love and commitment, how good it's been. Each year gets better. How good can it get? Love, Don. (44)

BETAS LAYNE, Ken, and Doug KXG's just can't wait to see the jammies on their cute Beta dates! Donnell, Kristen and Amy Jo. (44)

KAY—HOPE you have a very happy 21st! All my love, "Little One." (44)

STEVE BOWDEN, Just a little note to say you're a #1 son in every way. Love, Mom. (44)

KENNY LEON—Happy 10-22! I'll bring my tape recorder just in case you forget to unplug your phone! Love, Gretch. (44)

TO OUR #1 PKA Dates: We'll be just a swingin' come Friday night. With you as our dates, everything will be just right. Get excited for the hayrides and all sorts of fun, cause the Gamma Phi and Pikes are always number one. (44)

MARLATT 6—As football players you're really great; as our big brothers you're super great! The girls of Boyd 2 give you a cheer. We hope as your 11th sisters to have a #1 year. Congrats on your terrific football season. Love, your favorite 11th sisters! (44)

SET YOUR alarm for the Kite-N-Key Nitecap. Theta's and Kappa's there's "sweet dreams" in store for you! (44)

BOYD FLOOZIES grab your Fioozers. Saturday we'll drink and dance, so let's make the best of our last chance! R and J. (44)

AZD—UNKNOWN barn party potentials. You're six lucky guys whoever you are. But don't worry, we won't be taking a car. Get psyched for the bus ride—yes with kags! So let's get bombed on the way and kick off our boots and play in the hay. Signed Six Clueless Doo Dads, Sandy, Kelly O., Theresa B., Carol T., Jan, and Ann M. (44)

NANCEE—HOPE you have a great day. Happy 20th Birthday! Love, V.S. (44)

FORD SCOPER—I've been looking forward to tonight for quite a while. The Escort. (44)

BODO DEAREST—My horns are headed south to the sea. It shall be a long and weary journey. Twenty some warriors to pillage beside me, in search of some beautiful treasure. Hopefully we shall find pleasure. By the Gods I shall return I am sure. Your Viking son, Sven. (44)

SIGMA CHI Gary Pflum—I can hardly wait until we meet, the day is getting near. So get excited 'cause you and I will have a super year! Love, Mom. (44)

DAVEY SACHSE—Now 22 and eyes of blue, everybody knows you're that sexy DU. Happy Birthday—MJ (44)

JAMES H—Have old used tombstones. Will trade for fifteen-year-old (hot) school bell. Reply thru Collegian. (44-46)

PATTY—WELCOME to K-State! I've been waiting for this since August 17. It's gonna be great! Love always, Michael. (44)

PEON (D.F.)—Congrats on the big "19." Just think, one more step up the ladder. M.P. (44)

CAPTAIN COSMO—I know what you want, but can you be satisfied? Happy 20th. The Older Woman. (44)

GREG FOGEL—Good morning sunshine! How's breakfast in bed? Hope you have a bright day! Love, Mom. (44)

Laurie Williams—There's a bright golden haze, it's the meadow. But I'll never sell my gun, 'cause it ain't worth it.—Curly McClain. (44)

ROOMMATE WANTED

17

ONE-TWO female non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplace, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (44-48)

FEMALE WANTED to share nice house, $85 plus one-half utilities. Good location. 537-1570. (40-44)

TO SHARE new apartment one-half block from campus. Full carpet, dishwasher, air/heat, one-third utilities, $155 rent. Call 537-9011. (41-44)

NEEDED—FEMALE roommate A.S.A.P. Nice, clean home, good location! Call 537-2222 between 1:00-5:00 p.m. every afternoon. (41-44)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share four-bedroom apartment through May. Good location. Call 539-6849. (42-51)

SERVICES

18

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Unique skin care and glamour products. Call Floris Taylor, 539-2070, for facial. (1-75)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South 4th Street, Suite 25. (11f)

GRADUATING THIS semester? Let us help you with your resume. Resume Service, 1221 Moro, Aggieville, 537-7294. (11f)

TYPING—LOWER rates. IBM electronic typewriter for faster service. Satisfaction guaranteed. Call Linda, 776-6174. (11f)

MARY KAY Cosmetics: Free facials. 10 percent off products with student I.D. New fall glamour products now in. Call Elaine Berryhill, independent Beauty Consultant. 537-3233 days, 1-456-7251 evenings. (30-50)

COSTUMES BY the thousands. Complete rabbits, chickens, gorillas, tigers, bears and more. Flippers, Play Boy Bunnies, French maid, dance hall girls, much more. Ask for whatever you'd like to reserve now for Halloween. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (9-50)

TYPING—LETTERS, term papers, resumes, etc. Reasonable rates. Call Sherry, 539-9131 after 5:30 p.m. (21-50)

TYPING: FAST, experienced, professional; letters, resumes, reports, technical papers, theses; satisfaction guaranteed. Call 776-6166 anytime. (30-54)

Census shows decline in school-age Kansans

By DAVE MANCHON
Collegian Reporter

The number of students in primary and secondary schools in Kansas is declining.

This finding from analyses of the 1980 census figures for Kansas was reported by Donald Adamchak, associate professor in sociology and anthropology and director of the Population Research Laboratory, in the current issue of "American Demographics."

In the last decade, the number of students in primary and secondary education has declined from 657,000 in 1970 to 569,000 in 1980.

Adamchak said the school-age population will continue to decline until 1985 when only an estimated 519,000 young people will be in school. After that, the number of students will increase slowly until it peaks in 1995 with approximately 557,000 students.

"The reason there are less young people in school is because there are less young people to go to school," said Margery Neely, professor of administration and foundations. She said she believes there has been a shift in enrollment.

"In the last decade, we have seen an 11 percent increase across the United States in people moving to rural areas," Neely said. "So even though there are less students in school, many schools are seeing an increase in enrollment because people are looking for a more 'quality of life' setting which they would get in a less congested rural area."

The declining school-age population is due to such factors as the aging of the "baby boom" generation and a large number of young people moving out of the state, Adamchak said.

A higher percentage of young people in Kansas complete high school than in the United States as a whole. Neely said she believes this is because Kansans are an able and vibrant group of people who believe in hard work, achievement and the value of education.

"People who graduate from Kansas universities are highly desired by employers on either coast," Neely pointed out.

Neely said the smaller number of students in primary and secondary schools could strike a severe blow to higher education.

"Universities and colleges have been planning for this for a long time," Neely said. "Programs have been cautiously expanded and new faculty have been added so we don't overexpand," she said.

Neely said she believes that as more adults return to school and more people continue their education throughout life, the possibility that higher education will be affected is reduced.

Adamchak also reported that Kansas is becoming more suburbanized and its median age is rising.

"In 1980, nine counties had more than 30 percent of their population aged 60 and over," Adamchak said. "More than a fourth of the population was age 60 and over in 39 of the 105 Kansas counties."

Consequently, K-State has set up the Elder Hostel Program, which offers senior citizens a chance to go back to school.

"This kind of attention to the population growing older and the kinds of reinforcement it's giving, in the public eye, to lifelong learning is an important concept," Neely said.

Staff/Wes Wilmers

Open Mike night

Maria Dreiling, freshman in pre-professional elementary education, sings a country medley accompanied by Chris Effertz, freshman in family life and human development, during Open Mike Night in the Catskeller.

Record rains hit Texas, Oklahoma; flooding kills five

By The Associated Press

Record rains from a dying Pacific hurricane which left 30 people missing in Mexico chased hundreds from their homes Thursday in Texas and Oklahoma where five people died during a two-day deluge.

Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh declared a state of emergency and put the National Guard on standby alert as more than 11 inches of rain in places sent floodwaters up to 8 feet deep pouring across highways and into homes.

The remnants of Hurricane Tico that crashed into the Mexican resort of Mazatlan with 150-mph winds on Wednesday, routing 25,000 people, pushed northeastward into the United States, prompting flood warnings and watches from southern Texas to southwestern Missouri.

Ranchers herded cattle to higher ground as rivers rose and rescuers took to boats to aid stranded residents of low-lying neighborhoods.

Merchants in the central Oklahoma town of Chickasha worked feverishly to build a barrier of sandbags to protect their stores as chest-deep water from the Washita River washed through the five-block business district.

"They've used up almost all the plastic bags in town," said Chickasha city manager Chester Simons.

A record 5.85 inches of rain fell in Lubbock, Texas, where teen-agers were water skiing behind four wheel-drive vehicles on city streets and 90 residents of the Lakeside Nursing home had to be evacuated when a lake in Maxey Park spilled out of its banks.

Watt brags about land acquisition

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Outgoing Interior Secretary James Watt boasted Thursday that he's added more land to the federal estate since William Henry Seward negotiated the purchase of Alaska from Russia in 1867.

"More than Teddy Roosevelt, more than Franklin Roosevelt, more than Lyndon Johnson, more than Jimmy Carter," Watt added.

He didn't mention that with the addition comes a subtraction — virtually as much.

Watt's remarks, in his first capital appearance since announcing his resignation, came as he accepted a donation from the state of Alaska of almost 1 million acres of land to be added to the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

The gift brings to 1.04 million acres the amount of land the Interior Department has acquired, primarily through gifts and land trades, in 1983.

Interior Department officials said the swap was a good deal because the federal government will give up land closer to the population centers of Anchorage and Fairbanks in return for land covering a key migratory route for the 100,000-animal Porcupine Caribou herd.

Watt announced his resignation Oct. 9, in the wake of a furor over a wisecrack about "a black...a woman, two Jews and a cripple" on a coal leasing advisory panel.

BLOODMOBILE

Oct. 25-28

Pre-Sign Up Table in the Union Oct. 18-21 & 24 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

Sponsored by Circle K International

FRIDAYS
Taco Buffet
$3.95

5 to 8 P.M.
ALL YOU CAN EAT

One Free Beer with Taco Buffet

Reservations

The Palace
 GIFTS AND NECESSITIES
 Your Halloween Spook-tique

Masks • Make-up • Cards
Party Goods • Decorations

Everything to make your Halloween spook-tacular!

704 N. Manhattan In Aggieville Open Mon. - Thurs. 11:30-8:30 539-7654

DARK HORSE

TAVERN
TGIF!
$2 Pitchers
1-6
**&
Free Popcorn
 619 N. Manhattan

Don't be a heartbreaker

Exercise regularly.

American Heart Association
WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

FINANCE CLUB
 Professional Meeting
 Featuring:
Kent Mueller
 of Overland Park State Bank
 Speaking on
Commercial Banking
 Tues., Oct. 25 7:00 Union 212

Kitchens Plus
 Celebrate the Grand Opening of
 The "Department" Store
 K.M.K.F. Broadcasting Live—
 Saturday 11:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.
 Many Sale Prices Including:
 Bandanas—in 60 colors—$1.19 each
 Coffee Beans—20% off
 Auntie Em shirts—Reg. $12.00, Sale $9.95
 Hurry! Prices cut Today, Saturday & Sunday Only!
 3rd & Humboldt 537-4046
 Hours: Monday-Saturday 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.
 Thursday evenings until 8:30 p.m.
 Every Sunday Noon to 4:00 p.m.
 The "Department" Store

EAT WITH US SUNDAYS!

• Sandwiches & Kurly K Fries
5-8:00 p.m.

• Hickory Smoked Bar-B-Que
5 p.m.-10 p.m.

• All You Can Eat Bar-B-Que $6.50
Dinner Menu 5:30-8:30 p.m.
Aggieville

Loneliness Is God's Opportunity To Show His Fullness And Your Opportunity To Find Relief For Your Distant Pain. Together You Can Be A Winning Combination. Reference (John 14:1-27)

The Assembly
1400 Vattier on campus
ALL FAITHS CHAPEL
Sunday Morning 10:30 A.M. Sunday Evening 6:00 P.M.

A Pitcher Perfect Deal!

Fill up with Pepsi at the regular $2.50

Get the pitcher for another $1.75

And you get FREE refills with pizza purchase everytime you bring in your ShowBiz Pepsi Pitcher before June 30, 1984

Manhattan
519 Richards Drive
across from the Holidome ph: 776-1170

SHOWBIZ PIZZA PLACE

Billy Bob

★ Support PIKE
LITTLE SISTER
Olympics!

★ Enjoy "SNEAK PREVIEW"
★ Welcome Soccer Players
Saturday enjoy $2.50 PITCHERS of Busch Light

★ Support
ALPHA DELTA PI
Rockin' for Ronald

Crushed

Mizzou makes a muddy mess of the 'Cats.

Sports, page 9

Suicide bomb kills nearly 150 U.S. soldiers

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — At least 147 U.S. Marines and Navy men were killed and scores were wounded early Sunday when a suicide bomber crashed a pickup truck packed with explosives into the lobby of an airport building where the Americans were sleeping. A revolutionary Islamic group claimed responsibility for the blast that leveled the four-story building.

Moments later another suicide terrorist drove a truck-bomb into a building housing French troops. State radio quoted civil defense workers as saying 25 French soldiers were killed and 12 were wounded. The French Defense Ministry in Paris said the death toll was nine dead, 14 wounded and 53 missing.

In Washington, the State Department received a report from Beirut saying a group calling itself the Islamic Revolutionary Movement asserted responsibility for both attacks. According to the report, an anonymous caller telephoned the Beirut office of the French news agency Agence France Presse and said two of the movement's fighters, named as Abu Mazin, 26, and Abu Sija'n, 24, perished in the suicide bombings.

That group had not been heard of before in Beirut. The caller reportedly told AFP the movement would not rest until Beirut was controlled by "revolutionary Moslems and the combative democratic youth."

See related story, page 3

The two bombings were the most savage attacks on the multinational force since it deployed in Beirut last fall at the Lebanese government's request to help keep peace in the capital, ravaged by years of civil war and foreign intervention. The bombing at a Marine command post at Beirut airport caused the largest number of casualties suffered by American forces since the Vietnam War.

The four-story building housing a Marine battalion landing team at the airport and the nine-story structure occupied by the French about a mile north collapsed in the tremendous explosions just after 6:20 a.m. (12:20 a.m. EDT).

"I haven't seen carnage like that since Vietnam," Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan told reporters, his own arms covered with blood from helping carry the dead and maimed. Most of the leathernecks were asleep on cots when the explosion rained tons of concrete and glass shards down on them.

Frantic Marines, some clad only in bloodstained underwear, grabbed shovels to dig for buried comrades crying for help, while others stood sobbing, stunned.

Blood formed puddles on the ground. The area was littered with shattered glass, singed clothes, helmets and cooking pots.

"I know there are no words that can express our sorrow and grief for the loss of those splendid young men and the injury to so many others," President Reagan told reporters in Washington.

Reagan cut short a golf weekend in Georgia and met with national security advisers to handle the latest crisis in Lebanon. He vowed to keep the Marines there despite the bombings, which he called a "despicable act."

Jordan said the blast hurled several Marines clear of the building and that some survived. The truck-bomb, estimated by Jordan to contain at least 2,000 pounds of explosives, ripped a crater 40 feet deep by 30 feet across.

Lebanese army ambulances, bulldozers and vehicles from all contingents in the multinational force rushed to the blast sites to help evacuate the wounded, many of them mangled and moaning in shock. Medics and survivors laid out dead Marines in rows, their bare feet protruding from under blankets.

Some of the rescuers included members of the Lebanese Shiite Amal militia, which has been warring with the Lebanese army around the Marine encampment.

Anti-government snipers shot at Marines attempting to rescue trapped comrades from the rubble, forcing many of the leathernecks to retreat to bunkers and foxholes. But the sniping stopped after three hours and did not stop the rescue effort.

Col. Timothy J. Geraghty, commander of the 1,600 Marines deployed at the airport, told reporters some Marines remained trapped alive in the wreckage six hours after the blast.

Jordan, describing the Marine-compound explosion, said "a truck filled with explosives crashed through the gate, drove into the lobby...and detonated, collapsing all four floors."

Convocation today

Noted journalist Max Lerner will speak to an all-University convocation at 10:30 a.m. today. Lerner's topic is "America, A Dying Civilization?" An open forum with Lerner is scheduled for 1 p.m. in Union 212.

Professor interprets controversial war act

By LAURI DIEHL
Collegian Reporter

Before Sunday's attack on the United States and French peacekeeping forces in Lebanon, seven Marines had been killed in 13 months of the troops' presence in the war-torn country. Because of a congressional extension of the War Powers Act, the Marines will likely be there another 18 months.

The War Powers Act states that the president must consult congressional leaders in any situation in which hostilities appear imminent. Also, he must report to Congress within 48 hours of ordering military operations. If Congress does not approve the continued use of force within 60 days, the president must order troops to disengage from the conflict.

Alden Williams, professor of political science, said the War Powers Act was passed to deal with situations like the one in Lebanon.

"It was not meant to be used in case of nuclear war," he said. "It was to deal with smaller conflicts that could blow up the way the Vietnam War did."

The United States has been involved in 200 identifiable conflicts, only five of which have been declared war. These are the situations for which the War Powers Act was designed, Williams said.

"When Congress passed the act, they were not challenging the president's power to declare war," he said. "They were trying to force the president to consult Congress in cases where war might not be declared."

Williams said President Reagan failed to comply with the provisions of the War Powers Act.

"The War Powers Act would have required the president to report to Congress after 48 hours," he said. "President Reagan did not comply with this or any of the other provisions."

According to an Associated Press story, President Reagan said he did not invoke the War Powers Act when the Marines first came under fire in Beirut Aug. 29 because "isolated or infrequent acts of violence" do not constitute hostilities even if there are casualties.

The act was invoked last week, after the Marines had been in Lebanon for 13 months. When doing so, Congress gave President Reagan 18 months until additional congressional approval is needed to keep the Marines in Lebanon.

Williams said Congress could have prevented the long delay before the act was implemented.

"The Middle East has been an area of imminent hostility every day of every week for thousands of years," he said. "If Congress had meant what they said in the War Powers Act, they would have demanded a consultation and report within 48 hours. The clock would have started ticking then (the 60 days allowed for congressional approval)."

The upcoming 1984 elections may have encouraged Congress to finally invoke the War Powers Act, Williams said.

"The president did not adhere to the provisions of the act," he said. "Now, by giving him an 18-month extension, Congress is giving President Reagan a license for his actions and themselves an out for the election. I think it's a cynical and cowardly dodging of the issue by Congress."

The act states that by concurrent resolution, Congress may direct the president to withdraw troops. Williams said, adding this presents a constitutional conflict.

"A concurrent resolution must pass both Houses and is not subject to a presidential veto," he said. "But a bill that can't be vetoed has no power of law. It's like sending the president a letter telling him they (Congress) don't like what he's doing."

This does not mean Congress is helpless to recall U.S. troops against a president's wishes. Funding is the Congress' ultimate power, Williams said.

"The idea that Congress can just cut off money for any operation is too simple," he said. "The money is already in the pipeline so there is a lag period. But cutting off funding could work, just not that quickly."

Williams said the act can serve to open discussions between Congress and the president.

"The War Powers Act is an invitation to further argument between Congress and the president," he said. "If that argument is helpful, maybe it's a good thing."

Downtown mall issue brews conflicts

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Reporter

Supporters of the proposed downtown mall practiced more shuttle diplomacy Friday with another trip to Washington to seek the support of Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan.

Mayor Wanda Fateley, Manhattan Mercury Publisher Edward Seaton and Chamber of Commerce President Jan Ray met with a Kassebaum aide to discuss downtown redevelopment and a $10 million Urban Development Action Grant request scheduled for final consideration next Friday.

A story in Sunday's Mercury stated that Fateley is concerned that opponents of the project may cause the Housing and Urban Development Department to reject the request by providing HUD false information.

"I consider that a libelous statement," said Commissioner Suzanne Lindamood Sunday night. She had been characterized in the story as the "ringleader of mall opposition."

Fateley said she didn't recall making that statement.

"I got some calls today (Sunday) about the article," Fateley said. "What you see in quotes is what I said. Everything else is the interpretation of a reporter."

Lindamood denied that she backs a campaign to thwart the UDAG's approval.

"I'm pleased if there are people calling and writing in," Lindamood said. "But most certainly I don't believe there's any organized campaign and I'm certainly not behind any."

"If it takes three people from the Chamber to go (to Washington) to oppose my statements and the citizens' phone calls, that's quite something," Lindamood said.

Fateley denied that she said Lindamood supported an opposition campaign.

"It's too bad that they (mall opponents) aren't rich enough to be able to go to Washington, too," Lindamood said.

Fateley said the city paid her expenses, but not those of Ray and Seaton, for the Friday trip. She was quoted as having made certain "that our delegation is aware that a majority of the community and a majority of the commission support this project."

Lindamood acknowledged that most commissioners support the mall, but questioned whether most of the community is of the same opinion.

"I have been wanting to put it (the mall issue) to a public vote and I can't quite recall when that vote was held," Lindamood said.

During a conversation she had with personnel in Sen. Robert Dole's office, an aide said it was understood that all the commissioners and the whole community backed the mall project, Lindamood said.

Washington delegations have made no secret that four of the five commissioners support the mall. Fateley said, but haven't tried to tip the scales in their favor by saying the whole commission, or community, was behind the project.

"I can't be responsible for their (senators') assessment of what the situation was," Fateley said.

Youth group offers picnic fun, games

By JEFF ENDACOTT
Staff Writer

Sunday was a good day for many of Manhattan's little brothers and sisters.

Outside St. Isidore's University Chapel frankfurters sizzled on a grill, cookies were there for the taking, and the fun was non-stop.

After several days of overcast skies, the sun broke through shortly after the beginning of the K-State Newman Club's picnic for those involved in Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Manhattan, Inc.

Claudia Vines, senior in natural resource management, is a big sister and a member of the Newman Club. The club is the organization for Catholic K-State students. Last year was the club members' first try at a picnic for the children, she said.

"It wasn't too great, but we decided to try again," Vines said. Her satisfaction with Sunday's picnic was evident as she watched groups of children and club members use a sheet to bounce a water balloon into the air. The children screamed in excitement as runaway balloons exploded on the ground.

Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Manhattan was formed in 1965. According to the organization's director, Winifred Endicott, 101 children are matched with big brothers or sisters and 64 children remain on a waiting list. "Our purpose is to provide volunteers for children who need one-on-one relationships with role models. Most of the children come from single-parent families," Endicott said.

Newman Club members provided constant entertainment for their guests. Volleyball, kickball and circle games kept almost everyone occupied while the rest enjoyed piggyback rides.

Kevin Lucius, 6, munched a hotdog next to Steve Burghart, junior in electrical engineering. Burghart has been Kevin's big brother since June. They swim, play miniature golf and go to the movies together.

"I try to spend two to three hours a week with him. He really enjoys it," Burghart said.

Vines came to K-State from Wichita, where she had been active in Camp Fire Girls. There is no such organization in Manhattan so Vines decided to volunteer as a big sister.

"I chose an older girl so we could talk, rather than play games," Vines said. Lisa Holland, 15, has been her little sister for three years.

Kent Clark, 13, is waiting for a big brother to "adopt" him. His mother, Karen Clark, recently registered Kent in the program after moving here from Junction City.

"He's kind of shy, and has forgotten what it's like to be around kids and men," she said. Kent talks about getting a big brother frequently, she continued, and hopes his big brother will take him hunting.

Steve Burghart, junior in electrical engineering, and his little brother Kevin Lucius together at the Big Brothers Big Sisters picnic Saturday.

Regents unanimously approve education cuts at K-State

By ALAN STOLFUS
Government Editor

The Board of Regents approved unanimously Friday the program cuts its Academic Affairs Committee had proposed Thursday.

The programs cut include five physical science associate degree programs at K-State and the bachelor's degree in general studies and the Interdisciplinary Associate of Science degree in natural sciences at all regent schools in the physical science disciplines.

There was no discussion Friday morning by the seven regents on the cuts because, as John Montgomery, regents chairman, said, "We spent quite a bit of time yesterday on discussing this."

The cuts will take effect after this academic year and no more students will be allowed in the programs. Students now in the programs will be able to finish their degrees.

The cuts extend from a five-year program to examine every program offered by regent schools, consolidate programs which overlap unnecessarily and weed out unsuccessful or wasteful courses. These cuts are the first phase of that program.

The program considers the productivity of a course, the number of graduates, the need for the program and the extent of duplication at other regent schools.

In addition to the cuts from the program review, the regents adopted a statement encouraging schools to place emphasis on undergraduate education above graduate programs.

"Program review activities have dramatized the dependent relationship between adequate financial support and an academic program of de facto high quality. Caution is urged, as 'quality' has become an overused and sometimes abused word in the litany of higher education," the statement reads.

"All too often, our reviews revealed numerous programs on the verge of attaining excellence. However the barrier between adequacy and excellence will remain difficult to cross unless, and until, additional resources in the form of faculty salaries or equipment can be provided.

"In order to serve a diverse student and faculty clientele, graduate programs have proliferated in recent years. The very nature of outstanding graduate education often requires the allocation of resources significantly greater than that necessary at the undergraduate level.

"With the great proportion of students presently at the undergraduate level, institutions must never be deflected from their primary responsibility: maintaining a rigorous and challenging curriculum for undergraduates. Institutions are encouraged to direct their principal focus to insuring excellence at the undergraduate level."

Because funds are tight, the report continues, the regents have to discourage "the development of new and costly programs, especially at the graduate level."

"In unusual circumstances, but only under conditions of most compelling need, consideration will be given to new programs if all developmental, first-year and recurring costs would be assumed through internal reallocations or non-state, non-student fee funding from external sources."

In other action, the regents approved the allocation of the balance for the fiscal year 1984 Major Repairs, Special Maintenance and Remodeling appropriation. K-State received $25,000 of the leftover $115,295 for the re-roofing of Calvin Hall.

The only other business for which K-State was before the regents was the granting of right-of-way easements to the city of Colby to construct and operate power lines across land owned by the University in Thomas County.

Campus

Noted architect to speak today

Charles E. Peterson, noted architectural historian, restorationist and planner from Philadelphia, will speak at 3:30 p.m. today in Union Little Theater.

Peterson was the architect for the 1931 restoration of the Moore House at Yorktown, Va. where Cornwallis surrendered the British during the American Revolution. He also served on Adm. Nimitz's staff during World War II as chief of the advanced base engineering division and served as president of the Society of Architectural Historians.

Peterson began his career with the National Park Service as architect and landscape architect and prepared development plans for many national parks and historic sites.

Research foundation gets patent

A new patent incorporating minimum tillage performance has been received by the K-State Research Foundation.

The "Undercutter Seed Planter" was invented by Donald A. Suderman, Newton, a former K-State graduate student in agricultural engineering.

Stanley Clark, who was Suderman's major professor, said that the real advantage to the invention "lies in the ability of this planter to introduce the seed accurately in the desired location with a minimum disturbance of the surrounding soil. Thus, moisture around the seed area is conserved and other crop residue is not allowed to penetrate the seed location."

The planter is a minimum tillage device involving a single pass through the field that can till, fertilize, undercut weeds, add insecticide, and still leave a residue on top of the soil to further conserve moisture," Clark said.

Suderman's invention can be used to plant corn, milo, wheat and other grains.

1925 graduate establishes awards

Edgar E. Coleman of Manhattan, a 1925 K-State graduate, has made a $178,000 contribution to the KSU Foundation to establish programs in veterinary medicine and music.

The Edgar E. and M. Elisabeth Coleman Scholarship Fund will benefit fourth-year students of the College of Veterinary Medicine. The M. Elisabeth and Edgar E. Coleman Orchestra Chair Award, given in memory of M. Elisabeth Coleman, will provide financial assistance to musicians performing with the K-State Symphony Orchestra.

Both funds are endowed, meaning that the scholarships and awards will be made from the earnings of the original gift and therefore will continue perpetually.

Area students surpass national ACT average

By WAYNE PRICE
Collegian Reporter

Area students' scores on the American College Test during the 1982-83 school year were higher than the national average scores in math, English, natural science and social studies.

The College Press Service recently reported that the national composite score was at its lowest point ever in 1982-1983, at 18.3 out of a possible 36. This is a drop of one-tenth from the 1982-81 score of 18.4. The service's article stated that both scores reflect a considerable drop from the 1969-70 high score of 19.9.

Figures from the High School Profile Normative Data report for 1982-83, which compiles the scores regionally and nationally, cited the national math score as 16.9, English as 17.8, natural science as 20.9 and social studies as 17.1.

In Kansas, the average math score was 17.3, English 18.2, natural science 21.3, social studies 18.4 and the composite score for the state was 18.9.

Jim Rezac, Manhattan High School principal, said ACT scores from students at that high school were higher than state and national scores. The score for math was 20.8, English 20, natural science 23.4 and social studies 21.9. The composite score was 21.7. Rezac said the Manhattan ACT scores for the 1982-1983 school year were as high as they have ever been, and he said a possible reason for this is that more emphasis is being placed on the basics of education.

"We've been stressing the basics of education more," Rezac said.

'Miss Kitty' to visit, speak at zoo's 50th anniversary

By The Collegian Staff

Amanda Blake, who portrayed Miss Kitty in the long-running television series "Gunsmoke," will speak at a banquet Nov. 1 celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Sunset Zoo.

Blake has long been active in wildlife preservation and is involved with many national and international wildlife and humane societies. She has traveled extensively to Africa and has made it her home for several months.

She will speak about her experiences in Africa. Her presentation will include slides of the wildlife and beauty of East Africa, Kelly Rhodes, chairman of the Sunset Zoo publicity committee, said.

Blake is associated with Park East Tours of New York, an agency recognized for its East African tours.

"She does work with Park East and zoos to set up safaris and expeditions of this sort," Rhodes said.

Park East has designed a 16-day luxury safari to East Africa for the Friends of Sunset Zoo. Approximately 15 people have signed up to go on the safari, which is scheduled for June 8, Rhodes said.

Blake's speech will be "a sort of prelude to the safari. It will let people know what to expect and what they'll see when they go," Rhodes said.

Blake will arrive Nov. 1 and stay in Manhattan two days. Tours of the zoo, meetings with zoo staff and volunteer workers are included during Blake's visit. She will also participate in an Open Line program of KMAN-AM, a local radio station, Nov. 1.

The only opportunity for the public to see Blake will be at the anniversary banquet at the Holiday Inn & Holidome, Rhodes said.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ITEMS FOR CAMPUS BULLETIN should be submitted in the Campus Bulletin mailbox outside the newsroom in Kedzie Hall.

BLOODMOBILE PRE-SIGN-UP continues today from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the first floor of the Union. The Bloodmobile will be on campus Tuesday through Friday. Walk-ins will be accepted.

PRE-NURSING, MED TECH AND PRE-PHYSICAL THERAPY STUDENTS should sign up to work at the Bloodmobile in the dean's office, Eisenhower Hall.

KSU AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS are available in Anderson Hall 104 or in the SGS office and are due Wednesday.

MARKETING CLUB MEMBERS: Sign up now in the marketing department office for the field trip to Kansas City Nov. 3. For more information see the marketing club bulletin board.

SIGMA DELTA PI will be selling T-shirts from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. today through Nov. 1 outside Eisenhower 106. Anyone is welcome to look at sample shirts.

TODAY

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Irwin A. Noyes at 8:30 a.m. in Blumont 257. The topic is "Stages of Concern, Levels of Use and the Innovation Configuration of Microcomputer Implementation in Selected Secondary Schools in Kansas."

PRE-PHYSICAL THERAPY STUDENTS meet from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Union 208 with the director of the Wichita State University physical therapy department.

PRE-NURSING STUDENTS meet from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Union 207 with representatives of the Wichita State University Department of Nursing.

HOME ECONOMIC OPEN HOUSE STEERING COMMITTEE meets at 5:30 p.m. in Justin 254.

BQ SPECIALS
Every Monday Evening
CHOOSE FROM 9 BBQ MENU ITEMS
Plus 2 for 1 Draws on Tap
Hibachi Hut
608 N. 12th 539-9906

SCUBA CATS meets at 7:30 p.m. in Umberger Hall 10.

DAUGHTERS OF DIANA meet at 9 p.m. at the Tau Kappa Epsilon house. Executives meet at 8:30 p.m.

CIRCLE K meets at 7 p.m. on the Union second floor to set up for the Bloodmobile.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA meets at 7:30 p.m. in the Union stateroom.

MORTAR BOARD meets at 9 p.m. in Justin Hall.

TUESDAY

UNIVERSITY FOR MAN REGISTRATION is from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. today and tomorrow in the Union.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Annie Lou (Cowan) Rowlette at 10 a.m. in Blumont 364. The topic is "A Study to Determine the Feasibility of Developing a Model Day Care Center for Older Adults."

FACULTY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at noon in the International Student Center. Dave Wiley of Campus Crusade for Christ will speak.

WARM UP FOR SATURDAY'S GAME!!
100% cotton SKYR T-necks
Wool Sweaters
Long-Sleeved T-Shirts
Wool Hats and Scarves
Wool Socks
1111 Moro Aggville 539-5639
Hours: Mon.-Fri. 10-6; Thurs. 10-8; Sat. 10-5

Monday
Hi Rollers
$1.50
(9-3)
at
COWBOY PALACE
Where it don't make no difference
209 Poyntz 539-9828
4:00pm to 3:00am

CONCENTRATED SHAMPOO 36¢ QUART
Plus Over 1000 Salon and Beauty Items at Discount store prices.
10% OFF
WITH THIS COUPON AT
GLAMOUR WORLD BEAUTY SUPPLY
1104 Waters
West on Anderson Ave.
Behind Curtis Mathis T.V.

the PATHFINDER

OCTOBER SPECIAL
Good October 17-31
Breakfast at Vista
Mon-Sat 6-10:30
Sun 7-10:30
OCTOBER SPECIAL: 2 Scrambled Eggs, Crispy Hash Browns, Homemade Biscuits and Fresh Hot Coffee.
99¢
Regular $1.65
Add bacon, ham or sausage for just $1.00 more!
Vista RESTAURANTS
1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Enjoy our full breakfast menu ...including Sunrise Sandwiches!

MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR
Open daily 8-5:30, Saturday 8-1
Drive-Up Convenience
401 Humboldt 776-1193

HALLOWEEN PARTY COMING UP?
Have an original costume w/basics from Footlights
We have leotards and tights to create your perfect Halloween outfit!
FOOTLIGHTS
EXERCISE & DANCE WEAR
10:30-5:30 MON.-SAT.
THUR. 'TIL 8:00
1110 LARAMIE 537-3106

DARK HORSE TAVERN
Monday $2.25 Pitchers All Night
619 N. Manhattan

GET FRAMED!
Have your picture taken for Royal Purple

Today:
Goodnow Hall 8:30-10:30
Haymaker Hall 10:45-5:30

Tomorrow:
Haymaker Hall 8:30-5:30

Off-Campus people can still get pictures taken Oct. 10-28 539-5229
Bring your stamped fee card.

MEET LOWELL DAVIS
Designer of Porcelaine by Schmid

Just one glance at how Lowell Davis sees life, and you'll become a Lowell Davis collector. Come choose your favorites from his limited edition works and other porcelains.

Wednesday, October 26
11:00 to 1:00 and 2:00 to 5:00
Mr. Davis will be signing all artwork purchased.

Campbell's Complete Tabletop Bridal Registry

Register Wednesday to win a signed Lowell Davis figurine.
Poyntz Avenue at Fifth 776-9067
Layaway plan available.

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.

Editor.....Paul Hanson
Managing Editor.....Sandy Lang
Photography Editor.....Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager.....John McGrath

Reagan scorns 'bestial nature' of assassins

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, scorning the "bestial nature" of assassins responsible for the Beirut bombing-deaths of 147 Marines and sailors, vowed Sunday that international terrorists will not "drive us out" of Lebanon.

The president ordered Marine Commandant Paul X. Kelley to fly to Beirut to determine how American forces could be protected, and he said the United States would respond to the "deliberate and heinous" slayings when the perpetrators are identified.

Grim but resolute, Reagan said, "We must be more determined than ever that they cannot take over that vital and strategic area of the earth or, for that matter, any other part of the earth."

In a statement that followed an extraordinarily long session of the National Security Council, spokesman Larry Speakes said those "who would weaken our determination and disrupt our efforts" to bolster the government of Lebanon would not succeed.

There were calls from the Senate to withdraw the U.S. peacekeeping forces from Lebanon, but Speakes spoke only of resolve and determination to stay.

Reagan registered his outrage and determination in a statement, delivered without notes on the White House lawn. "I know there are no words that can express our sorrow and grief over the loss of those splendid young men and the injury to so many others," he said.

Hours after the Marines were slain in their sleep at barracks near Beirut airport, Weinberger said on CBS-TV's Face the Nation show, "There's a lot of circumstantial evidence. Much of that points in the direction of Iran, as in the case of (last April's bombing of) the American embassy."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters, "We do have intelligence that points to this incident."

Later, at the Pentagon, Weinberger said, "We are trying to work out ways to reduce the vulnerability and improve the Marine position."

He would not be specific, except to imply that the headquarters for the Marine force could be moved offshore to one of the U.S. Navy ships standing off Beirut.

Other Pentagon sources, speaking only on condition they remain anonymous, said one possible course of action under study would be to bring Marines out to the amphibious ships when they are off duty. The Marines could be shuttled back and forth as shifts changed along the perimeter of the Beirut International Airport, officials said.

Asked whether the Marine contingent might be reinforced, Weinberger replied: "I don't see that additional forces would do anything but complicate the problem."

He related Sunday's attack on the Marine compound to a similar bombing of the U.S. embassy in Beirut last April in which 17 Americans and several dozen others were killed.

One of the three groups that claimed responsibility for that bombing was Jihad al-Islami, or Moslem Holy War, which is believed to have some 1,000 Iranians based in Baalbek in its ranks.

U.S. relations with Iran were broken in the revolution that swept the Shah from the Peacock throne and installed a fundamentalist regime guided by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. The U.S. Embassy in Tehran was seized and Americans were held hostage for 444 days until Jan. 20, 1981, the day of Reagan's inauguration.

Bombing sparks reactions from Kansas delegation

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Members of the Kansas congressional delegation reacted with horror Sunday to the terrorist bombing which killed at least 147 U.S. Marines in Beirut.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said in Washington that she felt like fighting back, but she did not know whom to blame.

"It's just a tragic situation," said Kassebaum, who is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "It seems we're caught in so many places in guerrilla- or terrorist-type situations, your reaction is to fight back, but against who?"

Kassebaum said the bombing probably would strengthen calls from members of Congress to pull the Marines out of war-torn Lebanon. However, she said she supported keeping troops in Beirut.

"The decision was made to send them there," she said, "and for better or worse you can't take that back."

U.S. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., was "shocked and outraged" over the bombing, said Walt Riker, a spokesman for Dole in Washington.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., said the bombing was "the most tragic news I have ever heard." Glickman said the United States faced two alternatives: withdraw the Marines to ships offshore in the Mediterranean Sea or add thousands of troops to the existing force. He said he favored putting the Marines on offshore ships to reduce their vulnerability.

"There is no way to protect 1,800 Marines against kamikazes and crazies and people who are fighting a religious war," said Glickman, who was in Wichita over the weekend. "So we can still keep some presence in that area, but I think that it ought to be done in a way to protect our people."

World leaders denounce bombing in Lebanon

By The Associated Press

Leaders of nations around the world denounced the bombings that killed scores of American and French troops in Beirut on Sunday. Pope John Paul II called the attacks an act of war and Israel's new prime minister said they were "a despicable crime."

In Moscow, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said "it appears the Vietnam story begins to repeat itself."

French Premier Pierre Mauroy said the French contingent of the multinational force would remain in Lebanon despite the attack. He said the issue of its withdrawal "is a question that does not arrive at the present time." He declared the bombings "an odious and cowardly attack against France and against peace."

In Rome, Italian Prime Minister Bettino Craxi said in messages to Reagan and Mitterrand that his country also will keep its contingent in Beirut.

The pope, his voice filled with emotion as he stood before a crowd of 80,000 at St. Peter's Square, said "a great sense of sorrow ... surges from the soul."

"It is a new act of war in the moment in which, profiting from a fragile cease-fire, attempts were being made to re-establish dialogue," the pontiff said.

Italy, with 2,100 soldiers in Lebanon, is the largest contributor to the peacekeeping force. The United States sent a contingent of 1,600 Marines, France sent 2,000 men and Britain sent 97. The multinational force went to Lebanon at the invitation of the government in September 1982 after the Israelis invaded Lebanon and drove Palestinian guerrillas out of the capital.

In London, Richard Luce, Foreign Office Minister, said the British government would make no quick decision about the future of its contingent in Lebanon.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar sent messages of condolence to Reagan and French President Francois Mitterrand in which he also called the bombings a "despicable attack."

Pravda repeated its claim that the Marine contingent had violated its peacekeeping mandate by fighting with some Lebanese factions.

"It appears that the Vietnam story begins to repeat itself," it said. "The U.S.A. is getting drawn deeper and deeper into the fighting in the Lebanese mountains while generals get more and more freedom of action."

Pravda also reiterated the Soviet position that "peace and accord in long-suffering Lebanon ... are impossible in the conditions of foreign interference, foreign occupation and U.S. force."

Kissinger calls for cohesion

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger warned Sunday that unless the balance of power in Lebanon is changed, U.S. forces there will continue to suffer casualties and the Lebanese government will weaken.

Kissinger called for a "cohesive" effort by friendly nations to stabilize the area, even if it means increasing the American military presence.

However, he said, unless there is a coordinated effort to strengthen the Beirut government, U.S. Marines should be pulled out.

"If the mission of the United States' forces is to bring about peace, they cannot bring about peace simply by sitting there," Kissinger said on the ABC television program "This Week With David Brinkley."

U.S. troops were sent to Lebanon 14 months ago as part of an international peacekeeping force, also including French, Italian and British troops. Early Sunday, a terrorist bombing at their compound claimed the lives of more than 147 U.S. sailors and Marines.

DRS. PRICE, YOUNG & ODLE OPTOMETRISTS

General Practice
and All Type of Contact Lenses
Soft—Extended Wear—to Sleep with Soft for Astigmatism
Flex—Oxygen Permeable
Fast Replacement
for Lost or Damaged Lenses
Payment Arrangements Available

WEST LOOP SHOPPING CENTER
PHONE 537-1118

UNIVERSITY FOR MAN REGISTRATION

Tuesday, October 25
& Wednesday, October 26
9 a.m.-2 p.m.

K-State Union

Ninety-eight classes, including:

Candy Making	Beginning Crochet
Dress for Success	Dough Ornaments
Omelettes	Calligraphy
Aerobics	Wood Carving
CPR	Stress Management
Weight Control	Nutrition for Runners

Catalogs Available—K-State Union, Farrell Library

MONDAY
Don't forget that
MONDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL
brings
75¢ Fishbowls
&
$2.00 Pitchers

TUESDAY
"POWDER PUFF AWARD BEER-QUET"
$2.25 PITCHERS
7:00 p.m. Video tape replays begin
10:30 p.m. Introduction of Coaches
Trophy Presentation
MVP Presentation
And special thanks to
TKE REFEREES!

BLOODMOBILE

Oct. 25-28

Pre-Sign Up Table in the Union Oct. 18-21 & 24
from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

Sponsored by Circle K International

FINANCE CLUB

Professional Meeting
Featuring:

Kent Mueller
of Overland Park State Bank
Speaking on
Commercial Banking

Tues., Oct. 25 7:00 Union 212

You're Needed All Over the World.

Ask Peace Corps volunteers why their ingenuity and flexibility are as vital as their degrees. They'll tell you they are helping the world's poorest peoples attain self sufficiency in the areas of food production, energy conservation, education, economic development and health services. And they'll tell you about the rewards of hands on career experience overseas. They'll tell you it's the toughest job you'll ever love.

Sign up for interview and pick up an application now:
PLACEMENT OFFICE
Wed. & Thurs., Oct. 26 & 27

PEACE CORPS

Faculty YOUR IDEAS are the ones we need!

Union Governing Board (UGB) is a group of ten students, three faculty members, and one alum, who participates directly in the management and operation of the K-State Union. The board works with the staff to see that the Union is the kind of operation K-State should have. If you have a few hours to devote to make the Union a better place, come in and fill out an application.

2 Positions Available — 2 year voting

Application for faculty positions are available in the Union Director's Office. Due Oct. 25

Interviews will begin Nov. 1

k-state union
host to the campus 0600

Pizza Transit Authority®

Backing The Cats With

MUNCHY MONDAY &
TUESDAY NIGHT FEVER . . .

537-9500

$2 OFF
on any Large one or more topping pizza

MONDAY ONLY
537-9500

Expires Oct. 31, 1983

Not good with any other special.
One coupon per pizza.

$2 OFF
on any Large one or more topping pizza

TUESDAY ONLY
537-9500

Expires Nov. 1, 1983

Not good with any other special.
One coupon per pizza.

Bring them home (continued)

What will it take before the Marines are pulled out of Lebanon? The bombing incident Sunday morning left nearly 150 U.S. Marines dead and nearly the same number wounded, many seriously. Prior to the incident, seven Marines had been killed in Lebanon since last fall.

The hostile attitude toward the Marines in Beirut brings one message to us clearly. The Marines are not wanted in Beirut and they must either fight or die.

The attitude of the Reagan administration is that the troops will remain and yet will not fight unless directly provoked. How many more bombings and sniper attacks will have to occur before action is taken?

The administration and the American people need to realize that the deaths Sunday were not just statistics. There were 150 people killed in that attack. Many of the dead would be considered children by the people of the United States. Many were probably only as old or even younger than most of you reading this now. They died as they lay sleeping in their barracks.

Young Americans are dying in Beirut because of the insanity of certain sects in Lebanon and because of the stubborn pride of the leaders of the United States.

The plea has been made before in this space and it will be repeated as long as there are Americans dying senselessly in Lebanon. Bring them back home! They are serving no purpose except to leave themselves open to gunfire and suicidal attacks.

We agree with Reagan's words, "I know there are no words that can express our sorrow and grief for the loss of those splendid young men and the injury to so many others."

To the question of how "to reduce the vulnerability and improve the Marine position," however, there is an easy answer. Remove them from Beirut.

We were dismayed, though hardly surprised, when Reagan vowed that the assassins would not "drive us out of that area." Will he continue to replace the dead Americans with fresh troops?

The number of deaths at the airport is the most suffered by American troops since the Vietnam war. The two altercations are beginning to look very similar. If the Marines remain in Beirut, how many more must die before the administration decides that we are in a war and it's time to fight?

Let's take the question away from our proud but misguided leaders. Bring the Marines back home...today and alive.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

SEE...I TOLD YOU NOT TO TAKE THOSE TOWELS FROM THAT LAS VEGAS HOTEL.

No downtown mall

Manhattan doesn't need a downtown mall.

I have tried to follow the saga of the UDAG (Urban Development Action Grant) for the past year, and I don't think there is any reason for Manhattan to destroy its downtown for a mall. I don't think a mall is, or will ever be, an improvement for downtown Manhattan.

One reason I don't believe the mall will work is the atmosphere a mall brings with it. Malls seem to be sterile environments, full of the same shops that are in almost every mall everywhere.

Yes, it is fun to shop in the different stores in a mall, but I can't stand the Muzak and the climate-controlled environment. I want to be able to see the sun peek through the clouds. I want to hear the traffic as it makes its way down Poyntz Avenue. I want to hear the birds and crickets as I walk out of a store. I want to be able to look out a storefront window and see the real world — not red carpeting and concrete floors.

While downtown Manhattan isn't exactly beautiful, it does have its charm. The shops and stores remind me of a small town, but with a big difference — the variety of stores is much better here than in many small towns. With a little work, downtown Manhattan could be made more eye-pleasing. Getting rid of the plastic facades and restoring the buildings to their original outer appearance would be one improvement.

Another improvement would be to get rid of the parking meters downtown and add a parking garage behind one of the businesses. One reason I don't do a lot of my shopping downtown is because of the lack of parking along Poyntz. Let's face it — free parking does seem to attract people. Adequate parking will attract people. Free, adequate parking would be a big plus for downtown. The free lot next to Burger King is almost always full. Why not sink some money into more downtown parking?

BRIAN LA RUE
Collegian Columnist

I know that a Jones Store and a larger J.C. Penney store are planned for the downtown mall. I also know that some people have said that a Jones Store and a larger J.C. Penney store would draw more people to downtown to shop. If that's the case, then why haven't these stores been built in the past? It seems to me that these stores, if they were really such great "magnets" to draw in shoppers to this fair city, they would already be here.

Another argument against the mall is the shopping centers located in Manhattan: Village Plaza, Westloop, First Center, Handi-Corner, Wal-Mart, K-Mart and the oldest shopping center in Manhattan, Aggieville.

Each center has unique characteristics. So does downtown. While a mall will bring in different characteristics to Manhattan, it will bring in mall characteristics to Manhattan and take away what could be a rejuvenated downtown.

I have to wonder how much money has been spent by the City Commission in trying to get this mall. There have been many conferences with the developer of the mall. There have been trips back and forth to Washington, D.C., to meet with officials from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in order to work the snags out of the grant. Who has paid for these trips? The city's taxpayers.

Take last week, for example. City Manager Don Harmon and Community Development Director Gary Stith met with Mel Roebuck, vice president of Forest City Enterprises mall developer, and HUD officials in trying to work out snags in the grant application. Wanda Fateley, mayor, Jan Ray, president of the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce, and Edward Seaton, publisher of the Manhattan Mercury, met with Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., on Friday in concern for the project.

It seems like this process has been going on for some time. I'm not saying this is wrong — in fact, a thoughtful plan should take time to develop. What I have to wonder about is the number of delays this grant application has taken. It seems like every other week a city official says that the grant process is almost complete, and then the next report is of a new delay.

A deadline of Oct. 28 has been set for Manhattan to complete the application process for the UDAG and submit it for a final time. It would be appropriate for HUD to quash the application so close to Halloween. The UDAG is not much of a treat and may prove to be more of a trick than it's worth.

Maybe then city commissioners would look at downtown in a new light and try to find a way to preserve the history of Manhattan by preserving its downtown.

Letters

Stray Cats put on good show

Editor,

While I wish not to impose my musical preference on anyone, I would like to congratulate the Union Program Council for signing The Stray Cats to play the Nov. 11 homecoming concert.

This is quite amazing considering the range and styles of all the performers who have met low turnouts at K-State concerts. Practically all styles from Joan Jett to Ronnie Milsap have been unsuccessful from an attendance standpoint.

Realizing the difficulties of signing major acts, I am satisfied with the ticket prices set by UPC, which are comparatively low for most major productions. I also save gas money because most bands play Wichita or Kansas City, correctly assuming that Manhattan is not exactly the "rock seat" of the Midwest.

The Stray Cats are a neo-rockabilly band of the early 1950s' Elvis style, a style that is a definite minority in this plastic age. And true, the Stray Cats play "simple" rock 'n' roll but I find this much more entertaining live than other middle-of-the-road bands.

As far as credentials are concerned, how does a band become "truly established" as Mr. Dick described in his Oct. 20 letter to the editor? The Stray Cats have released four (not two) albums to my knowledge, and have had two top 10 singles and a No. 1 selling album in the United States all at the same time. Surely there is an audience for them to play to. This aside, I would still consider their fun, inspired and exciting stage show worth the price of admission.

Maybe you don't have to be a Stray Cats fan to enjoy this upcoming concert. Maybe you don't have to like rockabilly music to enjoy this show, but if it turns out like those of the past, then I see all hopes for a good four-album MOR band like Shooting Star dashed as well.

J.C. Mika
Junior in architecture

Mass suicide

Some readers of this column have told me that in their opinion a more contemporary tone in my writing would be an improvement.

It isn't hard to understand why readers might consider me oriented to the past. I am. I find the past pleasant to contemplate, particularly when compared to the present. Nevertheless, today I will consider something contemporary.

Last year, I received a letter from an editor of a magazine accepting a poem of mine. He went on to say he hoped to publish the poem "prior to Armageddon." It was clear he meant the phrase as a metaphor for the collision course political leaders have the world on, which can only end up being all-out nuclear war.

I objected at the time — and still do — to the use of the word "Armageddon." Being the son of a man who was a fundamentalist evangelical holiness fire-and-brimstone preacher, I was exposed to eschatological theology from my beginning. I am very familiar with the theological concept of Armageddon.

Belief in Armageddon implies a belief in a thousand years of peace afterwards. True believers in Armageddon want it to come! Belief in Armageddon carries with it the concomitant belief in prophesy, the signs of the times, the Second Coming of Christ, the Rapture, the saving of the saints from the years of tribulation, and all that jazz.

I can't remember a time when among those people who form my ancestral and sociological heritage, Armageddon and all the rest has not been "just around the corner" (just like prosperity was just around the corner among the Republicans of my childhood during The Great Depression). Among my relatives in Pennsylvania and Canada, belief in Armageddon and all the rest is still what seems to me to be their most powerful article of faith.

The threat of nuclear annihilation

JOEL CLIMENHAGA
Collegian Columnist

is very real — something which should be, must be (if we are to survive) taken very seriously.

The trouble with using the concept of Armageddon as a metaphor for nuclear threat is that it isn't serious enough. It isn't accurate enough. To make Armageddon synonymous with nuclear obliteration is a mistake.

Should nuclear exchange occur, there will be no remnant, there will not be some taken away to heaven (or wherever) in order to be free from the years of tribulation.

Armageddon, on the other hand, promises the Second Coming of Christ, promises the Rapture, promises the thousand years of peace afterwards. Using the word Armageddon when what is meant is nuclear confrontation and the subsequent suicide of the human species is to create an illusion — an illusion which, unfortunately, is buried in our Jungian subliminal unconscious — that there will somehow be a remnant. That's what political leaders are doing — trying to brainwash us into believing that somehow after the Bomb there will be survivors (that somehow the moon will go on shining over Miami, so to speak).

Don't misinterpret what I am saying here. I am not taking any "political" side. I do not know of any leader of any nation whose hands are not mired in the development of ever greater and greater nuclear threat. It is not a matter of political ideology. It is instead what seems to me to be a mistaken notion of what constitutes power.

I believe the threat of nuclear suicide should be taken seriously, should be taken factually, should be called exactly what it is.

This is one time when what must be made is a straight prose declaration. This is one time when metaphor does not communicate, when symbol tells a lie, when poetry will not do. This is one time when there is only one way to describe it.

Suicide of the human species. Not to call it holocaust. Not to call it all-out war. Not to call it Armageddon. All those imply that somehow there can be a remnant.

Murder doesn't describe it. Killing doesn't describe it. Not even death describes it. All those imply something left afterwards. The murderer remains after murder. The killer remains after killing. There is no death without life.

The only way to say it is to face the fact unblinkingly — and call it exactly what it is: suicide of the human species.

If only all word-users and word-worshippers were to comprehend that this is one time when there are no synonyms; if only all poets were to realize there is no poem can be written on this subject, then perhaps there would be enough cultural force gathered from the effect of our understanding that even political leaders could grasp that their rhetoric had no more appeal because no one hearing believed it.

Were that to happen, there would be hope once again. There would come the ability to work our way out of this paralyzing mess our "leaders" have us in.

An old statement says, "...and the truth shall make you free." I have tried to tell the truth here.

Parking ticket procedure is unfair

Editor,

I am addressing this problem to the K-State Police Department; it is a very serious problem concerning not only myself but anyone else with brothers or sisters who also attend K-State.

I thought the main purpose in obeying the parking rules and regulations was to avoid getting fined, having grades withheld, and royally disrupting the enrollment process. However, from my personal experience this is evidently not the case.

Twice in the past six months I have been issued traffic citations for automobiles that I don't own and which don't even remotely resemble the car I have registered with the traffic department. I own a 1982 white Volkswagen Rabbit, yet I have been issued citations for an orange Datsun truck and a blue Dodge Colt.

The truth of the matter is, the guilty party in each case was a brother. I have twin younger brothers here at K-State and we all own and operate automobiles. But my vehicle is the only one registered with the traffic department. The traffic department assigns the citations to me because I'm registered like a responsible student and my brothers are not.

On two separate occasions, I have talked with the traffic department to find out why this unfair procedure is used. Each time I was told that although this procedure is unfair, it is the most convenient method for the traffic department to assign its citations when the automobile concerned is not currently registered with it.

I greatly resent this dereliction of duty on the part of so-called "paid professionals" in the traffic department. I hope the department will employ a little more fairness and common sense in the future, as I assumed they had from the first day I registered my automobile.

John King
Junior in engineering technology

New billiard parlor to open in Aggieville

By PATTI SHIPP
Collegian Reporter

Fast Eddy's, a billiard parlor and bar at 1315 Laramie St., will open its doors to the public in about a month, co-owner John Gillman said.

The bar will feature a billiard room, pro shop area, bar, deli sandwich area and video room.

The billiard room, the largest part of the facility, is set off by a sunken floor, Gillman said. It will contain 20 8-foot custom-made pool tables, one 9-foot snooker table and three 7-foot coin-operated pool tables.

The non-coin-operated pool tables will be operated by computer on a time clock, Gillman said. Players will give their names and the computer will start clocking their playing time. When play is completed, the computer will display the amount of playing time, the players' names and the amount of money each player owes.

The price of renting the pool tables will be approximately $1.50 to $1.75 for one person for the first hour, Gillman said. It will cost $3 for two people and $4 will be the maximum cost for any number of players. Subsequent hours of playing time will cost less than the first hour of play, he added.

The pro shop will provide accessories such as cues, cue cases, chalks, books on pool, magazines and newspapers, Gillman said. The pro shop will have three different lines of cues costing from $30 to $1,000. The magazines and newspapers will offer news of tournaments and professionals in the pool world, Gillman said.

The 50-foot bar will serve beer and seat approximately 70 people, Gillman said. Occupancy total for the entire bar is 200, he said.

Fast Eddy's will have a plush decor, Gillman pointed out, with fabric or leather chairs, padded carpeting throughout and brass and oak furnishings.

"Pool has gotten away from the smoke-filled rooms and it is now acceptable for use by the family, for women and in a dating situation," he said, adding that the decor fits this mood.

Fast Eddy's will be student-oriented, Gillman said.

"We are planning on having tournaments and having different leagues within the fraternities, sororities, residence halls and independents," Gillman said.

There also will be films by pool professionals displayed on a video screen and exhibitions by professionals. One exhibition already scheduled is Tom Rossman, the 1982 trick shot champion. He will be at Fast Eddy's the first week in December, Gillman said.

"(The name) Fast Eddy's came from the movie 'The Hustler.' This is what has revived pool," Gillman said. The movie starred Jackie Gleason as Minnesota Fats and Paul Newman as Fast Eddy. After the movie's popularity spread, "pool started catching on and taverns started putting tables in. Different kinds of people began to get involved," he said.

An overall goal of Fast Eddy's, Gillman said, "is to get many new people involved and interested in pool, so that they will participate in the leagues and tournaments and have fun playing pool." Gillman especially wants to get women involved and is planning free lessons for them.

Fast Eddy's will be open 11 a.m. to midnight Sunday through Thursday and 11 to 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday with specials throughout the week, Gillman said.

City dwellers get opportunity for gardening

By MATT MCMILLEN
Collegian Reporter

Although gardening offers recreation, additional income and a way of supplementing the diet, many city dwellers, including K-State students, have no land to plant.

The Manhattan Community Gardens at Ninth Street and Fort Riley Boulevard, with its 2½ acres of land, provides the opportunity for recreational gardening to anyone who wants to get back to nature.

"We're open to anyone," said Aaron Spilka, senior in horticulture and coordinator of the gardens. "We have an area open to children, and we even have raised beds for those who have trouble stooping over."

The gardens contain 184 plots measuring 20 feet by 20 feet each. A storage shed full of gardening tools, fertilizers, wheelbarrows and rotary tillers is available for gardeners to use.

The gardens were begun Feb. 8, 1974, as a community project.

University for Man was instrumental in starting the gardens. It provides a paid student coordinator, usually a horticulture student, to oversee the gardens.

"A committee was formed by those who thought there should be land available to the poor," Spilka said. "It was designed to supplement income and nutrition of those having financial difficulties."

Land was purchased from the Urban Renewal Agency, then run-down houses and trees were removed from the area.

"This site was chosen because it was unfit for permanent construction. It is within 150 feet of a railroad track," Spilka said.

"There was a big debate on who was going to end up paying for irrigation," he said. "Finally, the city agreed to purchase the spigots, which cost $1,000. University for Man pays the water bill."

"We are going to try to get our water subsidized. Schools and churches do."

Since the opening of the gardens, numerous additions and improvements have been made.

"In the spring of 1978, our north garden addition was added," Spilka said. "It's located at Ninth and Fair Lane. In the fall of 1979, we added the west garden, which is across the street from the north garden. That year, we also added our raised garden beds for the elderly."

"Then we added our east garden, which is the smallest, at Eighth and Riley (streets)." Compost bins and a common raspberry bed have also been established.

A variety of vegetables are grown at the gardens, the most popular being tomatoes.

"Peppers are also popular," Spilka said. "It is fun to see people grow different things. We have one man who grows peanuts, and some gardeners grow more specialized vegetables, such as rhubarb."

"It's also a good site for demonstrations. One man grows tomatoes in a circle, and has a can in the ground in the middle of them. He puts water in the can and it filters out to all of the plants," Spilka said.

"We allow people to grow anything they want, as long as it is legal," he said.

comprehensive health associates

- free pregnancy tests
- outpatient abortion services
- alternative counseling
- referrals
- gynecology
- contraception

1415 S. Row Overland Park 642-3100

---

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity Rep. — TOM SEELE

- Supplemental Retirement Annuities
- Investment Options
- Free Transfer Privileges
- State Deferred Compensation
- Life Insurance

1336 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 913/276-7095

*****

Posters & Panes

NOW OPEN

featuring

fine art posters & leaded stain glass

10% off all posters

1112 Laramie Aggieville

*****

Flash Bash '83'

★ Date: Friday, Nov. 4, 8:00 p.m. - 12:00 p.m.

★ Place: Fifth & Houston (Downtown)

★ Entertainment: Air Band Contest

★ Guest D.J. — Ed Klimek

★ Cost: $4.00—includes admission, free beer and pepsi

★ Advance Tickets can be purchased in the Union on Nov. 2, 3, 4.

★ Sponsored by: Kansas State University Student Foundation.

Add Bacon & Cheese to any sandwich

19¢ Reg. 57¢

Special good 10:30 am to close. Not valid in combination with any other offer. Locations in Manhattan, Emporia, Lawrence & Topeka.

Vista RESTAURANTS

1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

MONDAY
TUESDAY
WEDNESDAY
THURSDAY
SPECIAL
OCTOBER 24-27

1126 LARAMIE 537-7340

COPIES 5¢

kinko's copies

Monday-Thursday 8-6
Friday 8-6
Saturday 10-5
Sunday 12-5

2 for 1 Self Serve Copies with this coupon

kinko's copies

FREE PARKING

BUSHWACKER'S

• THE •
FUNDRINKERY

Monday
Bushwacker Beer Bust

75¢ Draws all night
Happy Hour: 4-9
2 Fers on hi balls
75¢ draws $2 blended drinks

Don't be in the dark

Drink of the Week:
CORN SHUCKER

A reciprocating Club Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

531 N. Manhattan

AT PIÑATA:

LUNCH WITH US!

99¢ to $1.80

Choose from 6 featured "Special" Specials
Changed Daily Mon.-Fri. 11-2

You Won't Pay Over $1.80!
(Drinks not included)

Piñata.

Open Mon.-Sat. 11-11, Sun. 11-10 539-3166
Bluemont and North Manhattan

Vote for your candidate in the K-State Union Oct. 24, 25 & 26

Butch Lacey—Acacia
Scott Schaake—Alpha Gamma Rho
Rex Woodell—Alpha Kappa Lambda
Darrin Dressler—Alpha Tau Omega
Phil Bullinger—Beta Sigma Psi
Keith Ely—Delta Sigma Phi
Bob Ring—Delta Tau Delta
Brian Smith—Delta Upsilon
Mike Hadacheck—Farmhouse
Rich Dale—Kappa Sigma
Joe Jerome—Lambda Chi Alpha
Brad Everett—Phi Delta Theta

Brian Wendelburg—Phi Gamma Delta
Rob Perszyk—Phi Kappa Tau
Neil Lansdowne—Phi Kappa Theta
Mike McCluskey—Pi Kappa Alpha
Brent Graubeger—Pi Kappa Phi
Bill Stevenson—Sigma Alpha Epsilon
Kevin Bowen—Sigma Chi
Mike Ward—Sigma
Tom Griffith—Sigma Phi Epsilon
Monte Griffith—Tau Kappa Epsilon
Dan Klassen—Triangle

Silver coins count as positive votes and pennies and bills count as negative.

$100.00 Free Food

CALL NUTRI/SYSTEM TODAY AND LOSE UP TO 30 POUNDS BY THANKSGIVING

The holidays are closer than you think. But you can be ready for the fun because Nutri/System will help you lose up to a pound a day...

- WITHOUT DRUGS, INJECTIONS, HUNGER!
- ENJOY GOURMET NuSYSTEM CUISINE!™ Lose up to a pound a day while enjoying NuSystem Cuisine™ foods... international gourmet delicacies featuring such dishes as Chicken Polynesian and Shrimp Creole.
- PROFESSIONAL SUPERVISION
- EXCLUSIVE WEIGHTMINDER™ ANALYSIS

HANCI BRES MARTIN SAYS:

"I LOST 43 LBS."

NUTRI/SYSTEM FOOD $100 Value

Join the Nutri/System program for this exciting offer. $100.00 value. If food allowance exceeds $25 per week. Client must pay the difference. This offer cannot be combined with any other offer and applies to new clients only. Expires

1109 Waters 776-6600

9-5:00 Mon.

9-7:00 Tues.-Thurs.

9-4:00 Fri.

Over 675 Centers in North America

nutri/system

weight loss medical centers

VALUABLE COUPON

WIN THIS '84 DODGE CHARGER FOR A YEAR!!! WITH YOUR 101 + CARD!

Charger

GET YOUR CARD AT:

Town & Country Hardware	Bushwackers
Furniture Center	J.C. Penney
Browne's Ladies & Children	Pinata
Fashion World	Kitchens Plus
Burnett's Automotive	Pizza Hut
Beifley Jewelers	Casual Encounter
Furniture Center	Country Kitchen
Polly Florist	Bryant Carpets

CARDS ALSO AVAILABLE AT KMF STEREO 101 7

Briefly

By the Associated Press

Dogs tear Harper woman to death

HARPER — A woman who walked outside her home to get the newspaper was attacked and killed this weekend by two pit bulldogs in what a pathologist said was the most gruesome case he's seen in 30 years of practice.

Grace Parsons, 67, died at Harper Hospital Saturday morning from shock and loss of blood, said Dr. William G. Eckert, a Wichita forensic pathologist who was a consultant on the case.

Eckert, who runs the Milton Helpert International Center of Forensic Sciences at Wichita State University, works on major cases throughout the world and has done more than 8,000 autopsies.

"In 30 years of doing this work it's the worst case I've ever had," Eckert said. "Her scalp was torn completely away from her head. There was a large chunk of muscle torn from her arm. The most horrible part of it all was she was alive when she was brought to the hospital in that condition. It really was an earth-shattering case for me."

"No one saw the attack," said Ed Starks, police chief of this south-central Kansas community of 1,800.

Authorities believe the attack occurred between 7 a.m. and 7:30 a.m. Saturday, Starks said, and was not discovered until 8 a.m.

A neighbor across the street looked out her window and "thought the dogs had some trash scattered around," Starks said.

When the neighbor stepped outside to look, "then she could ascertain it was a body," Starks said.

When Starks arrived with an ambulance, he recognized Mrs. Parsons, a nurse's aide who had recently helped him while he recovered from a heart attack.

"This is the worst thing I've been through because it's so personal," Starks said.

Mrs. Parsons was taken to Harper Medical Center, where she died shortly after arriving.

The victim, a widow, lived downtown in a quiet residential area ringed by a few small businesses.

Starks said the dogs, ages three months and two years, were owned by a 19-year-old man who lives down the street. No previous trouble had been reported with the dogs, Starks said.

Police impounded the dogs and would seek a court order to have them destroyed, Starks said. Authorities would announce Monday whether they would file any charges against the owner, he said.

Cold reduces battery efficiency

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — Winter weather reduces battery efficiency, warns the Automotive Information Council here, which suggests that having a battery checked before cold weather sets in could save a time-consuming and expensive road service call.

It may be time to shop for a replacement if your present battery is more than four years old and showing signs of weakness, such as an engine that cranks slowly or dimming headlights, advises the AIC.

Common items can decorate

ITHACA, N.Y. — Many yard and garden plants can provide materials for attractive holiday decorations, says Raymond T. Fox, professor of floriculture and ornamental horticulture in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Cornell University.

Pine, boxwood, arbutus and holly, for example, create interesting effects when used in combination, Fox says. Snow effects may be obtained with plaster of paris, white shoe polish, crystallized Epsom salts or pressurized sprays of white paint or artificial snow.

Charges accumulate against golf club 'crasher'

By The Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — The bearded outdoorsman who crashed the gate of the Augusta National Golf Club, took five hostages and demanded to speak to President Reagan had been hospitalized in the past suffering from alcoholism, a doctor said Sunday.

Charles R. Harris also was despondent over the loss of his job and recent death of his father, friends said.

Harris, 45, remained under observation Sunday at Augusta's University Hospital as federal and local officials prepared charges against him.

Harris rammed a gate at the prestigious club with a pickup truck Saturday and took two White House aides and three others hostage, officials said. He demanded to speak with Reagan, who was vacationing at the club and was on the 16th fairway at the time.

Reagan called Harris five or six times but Harris hung up on the president, apparently because he wanted to speak to him in person, said Richmond County Sheriff J.B. Dykes.

"He didn't say what he wanted. He was just very adamant" in seeking to speak to Reagan, Dykes said.

Dykes said he persuaded Harris to release four of the hostages, but he declined to say how. The last hostage escaped after promising to bring Harris back some whiskey, he said.

Harris faces federal charges of threatening the president and could face a variety of state charges including kidnapping, aggravated assault, criminal trespassing and criminal damage to property, said U.S. Attorney Hinton R. Pierce.

"We're going to go with the maximum charges," said Dykes. "There could be 15 or 20 counts."

Arraignment was scheduled today before a federal magistrate, but Pierce said it would depend on Harris' health. Harris, taken into custody at the golf course, was admitted to the hospital hours later after complaining of chest and back pains. Doctors also said he was hyperventilating.

Laboratory tests suggested he might have a heart problem, and Dr. David W. Cundey, a cardiologist who treated Harris, said he would remain in the hospital until at least today as a precaution.

Cundey said Harris' blood alcohol content was "elevated" when he was examined Saturday night, but he didn't know if the alcohol affected his condition.

"He confirmed for me last night that he had been hospitalized for alcoholism before," said Cundey.

Harris worked at Continental Forest Industries until he was fired last summer for a "work-rule violation," said Michael Culbreth, industrial relations manager. He described Harris as a passionate union official and worker at the company's bleached paperboard mill just outside Augusta.

Just before his dismissal, Harris had been upset by the recent death of his father, Culbreth said.

Defense bills to face Congressional scrutiny

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congress applies its first real test this week on whether simmering anger over the Soviet Union's destruction of a South Korean airliner will boil over into stronger support for President Reagan's rearmament drive.

It was also unclear what effect, if any, the bombing attack which killed at least 120 U.S. Marines in Beirut would have on the $246.3 billion Pentagon spending bill for the budget year which began Oct. 1.

The House is expected to spend at least two days, beginning Tuesday, considering that defense spending measure.

As in previous legislative rounds on the administration's military buildup, challenges will focus on some major nuclear-weapons programs, including the $2.1 billion earmarked for building the first 21 of a planned 100 MX intercontinental missiles.

The MX production survived by only 13 votes when the full House last considered the question in July, leading opponents to predict they would prevail when the money bill came to the floor.

But strong reaction to the Sept. 1 airliner incident and President Reagan's recent arms-control initiatives since then have lent encouragement to advocates that they will be able to pull out another victory.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., D-Mass., an MX opponent, still predicts an "extremely close" fight. He told reporters late last week that he knew of three members who have switched against the MX but was unaware of any who had moved in the opposite direction.

Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., fell short in attempts during the House Appropriations Committee drafting session on the bill last week to strip out money for the MX, Pershing 2 intermediate-range missiles and B-1B bombers.

"I think the committee probably has spoken the view on the floor," said Rep. Jack Edwards of Alabama, ranking Republican on the defense subcommittee chaired by Addabbo.

The committee did eliminate money for starting work on a new generation of nerve-gas weapons, and O'Neill said he "can't conceive" of the House approving any effort to restore the funds on the floor.

Civil rights leader lauds King

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A leading national civil rights leader Saturday called the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. a peaceful warrior who changed the course of America, and decried insinuations that he was a communist sympathizer.

"America honored America by making Martin Luther King's birthday a national holiday," said the Rev. Joseph E. Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"Dr. King was not a communist and they know it," Lowery said.

Lowery spoke at the 16th Annual Freedom Fund dinner sponsored by the Kansas City branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Lowery, a close friend of King, is an Atlanta minister and one of the founders of the civil rights organization.

The U.S. Senate voted Wednesday to establish a national holiday in King's name, and President Reagan said he would sign the bill.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

- |                                    |                          |                             |                           |
|------------------------------------|--------------------------|-----------------------------|---------------------------|
| ACROSS                             | 45 African fly           | DOWN                        | 10 Coarse file            |
| 1 Mulligan, for one                | 49 Abusive woman         | 1 Begone!                   | 11 Anglo-Saxon letters    |
| 5 Chicago player                   | 51 Show excess affection | 2 Bull, in Barcelona        | 17 Sweetheart, in Ireland |
| 8 Monster                          | 52 Nautical word         | 3 Actor Jack                | 19 Containers             |
| 12 Basis of a soft drink           | 53 Irish sea god         | 4 River of song             | 22 Condition              |
| 13 Palm leaf: var.                 | 54 Jewish month          | 5 Army of officers          | 24 Devotee                |
| 14 Campus org.                     | 55 Part of Rand R        | 6 Eskimo knife              | 25 Once — lifetime        |
| 15 Swift horse                     | 56 Printer's measures    | 7 Judge's bench             | 26 Presumes               |
| 16 It breathes in air and in water | 57 Cincinnati team       | 8 In the — (near future)    | 27 Race track employees   |
| 18 Love apple                      |                          | 9 Italian painter (1606-80) | 29 Hawaiian birds         |
| 20 Waves the hair                  |                          |                             | 30 — humbug!              |
| 21 Transgresses                    |                          |                             | 33 Apple-thrower of myth  |
| 23 Collection                      |                          |                             | 36 Scent bag              |
| 24 Seines or stockings             |                          |                             | 38 Supplier               |
| 28 Fluent                          |                          |                             | 40 Kitten's cry           |
| 31 Babylonian god                  |                          |                             | 42 At a distance          |
| 32 Roofing slab                    |                          |                             | 43 Repulsive              |
| 34 Hosp. record                    |                          |                             | 44 Ceramic square         |
| 35 Dozes                           |                          |                             | 46 Enameled metalware     |
| 37 Beach prize                     |                          |                             | 47 Kind of poker          |
| 39 Knave of clubs                  |                          |                             | 48 Deep sea shockers      |
| 41 Great Lake                      |                          |                             | 50 Swamp                  |
| 42 Shore bird                      |                          |                             |                           |
- Avg. solution time: 22 min.
- Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP

10-24

YMAV HBPICHNPE WBCVDIBA NE
CENYCR GNEPHMY; YMWG VDIVRBA.

Saturday's Cryptquip — THE FRIENDLY MARINE-LAND EMPLOYEES HAVE THE SEAL OF APPROVAL.
Today's Cryptquip clue: Y equals M.

KSU RUGBY CLUB BENEFIT

Monday, Oct. 24
BROTHER'S TAVERN
Auction at 7:00
Band to Follow

Featuring: An auction of goods donated by Budweiser, Brother's and other area merchants *
Two free kegs * Mojo *
Rent-a-Rugger auction * All for Only $1 * All for a good cause.

"Come Party, and Support Your Ruggers"

Love is Blind . . .

But you don't have to be.

We Specialize in Contact Lenses . . .

Tinted (to change the color of your eyes)
Extended Wear (to sleep with)
Bifocal (for reading difficulties)

Soft Lenses: Regular Type (for near and far sightedness)
Toric (for astigmatism) and Oxygen Permeable (rigid)

Replacement Lenses and Solutions in Stock.

Dr. Paul E. Bullock, P.A.
Practice of Optometry

776-9461 404 Humboldt

MCCAIN AUDITORIUM

SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

the piano King
of Kansas City Swing...

Jay "hootie" mc shann

a Mid-America Arts Alliance program

Friday, October, 28, 8pm

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office, noon-5 p.m. M-F, 532-6428

This program is made possible by support from the Kansas Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts, through participation in Mid-America Arts Alliance, a regional arts organization.

Pre-Halloween Party at Lords 'n Ladys

$2.00 off any service to anyone wearing a mask.
Friday, October 28
Witch's Brew & Treats For All

REDKEN NEXXUS

776-5651 210 Humboldt

FREE SPIRITS

Buy your HALLOWEEN COSTUMES at PASTENSE

HATS COSTUMES

11 a.m.-5 p.m. 418 West 6th St. Topeka, KS

The Great Glee Club Battle

*** All Faiths Chapel KSU vs NU ***
October 28 8:00 p.m.

Tickets $2.50 each Available at the door or from any Glee Club member

Dance together

By TOM DOWNING
Staff Writer

People were lined up at the box office in McCain Auditorium Sunday afternoon 10 minutes after the performance was scheduled to start.

They were standing in line to buy tickets to see Manhattan's professional dance troupe, the Susan Warden Dancers.

About 400 people attended the company's first major performance in McCain.

The group performed five group dances, two solos and an improvisation. Scott Smith, who danced the solo "Steppin' Out," said it was a difficult dance to perform.

"A month ago I could barely make it through the last third of the dance. I wasn't dancing very well because of the fatigue," Smith said.

Because he was also dancing in the men's trio part of "Trio," a work-in-progress by Susan Warden, "Steppin' Out" was especially demanding.

"I do have a good time doing it," Smith said, even though it was his first solo. "I was apprehensive, nervous, down right scared," he said. "It was a real challenge, and then once I learned the dance, my endurance got better."

"That was the start of performing it — once I had established the mechanics of the piece for myself I could start the real work of performance on the piece."

Besides dedication, there is something else that the Susan Warden Dancers have — togetherness. They work exceptionally well together, as was apparent in the improvisation.

Smith described the essence of the group as "being sensitive to each other. It's like an athletic team to a degree. We're all working toward the same end."

The personalities of the dancers come out clearly in their group improvisation. Imagine eight people standing on a dance floor with only themselves and the moment to create something for the audience. This is what makes improvisational group dancing difficult.

"The more that can come out of yourself — the more honest you end up being, and the more communication there is within the context of the group of dancers," Smith said.

"It's a fascinating medium. It can be really bad and it can be really good. Tossing away the structure opens up all kinds of possibilities."

The company likes to work on improvisation as much as possible, but when the concerts are scheduled close together, the emphasis is on rehearsing the repertory.

Building a repertory of dances is not just Susan Warden's job. But

Staff/John Sleezer

Dancers rehearse the piece "Blueprint" Saturday for the scheduled performance Sunday in McCain Auditorium.

everyone in the company can contribute.

"Any dancer who wants to choreograph is given the opportunity. Some of the pieces go into the repertory," Warden said.

Both "Blueprint" and "Fire" were choreographed by company members and were performed Sunday.

Marty Cohen, managing director for the group, said the dancers are dedicated to Warden's artistic work.

"They work very hard and get paid very little, even though they're professionals," Cohen said.

Dancer Phyllis Andrews said the schedule is usually hectic.

"We haven't had much time to do anything but rehearse. We were in Winfield on Thursday and then got back at three in the morning. We rested up Friday and got into the theater Saturday and early Sunday," Andrews said.

If there is any one thing that appears to hold the company together it is the guiding influence of Susan Warden. She feels the same sense of responsibility to her dancers that she feels for the Manhattan community.

Will the company move out of Manhattan in the near future?

Warden says no.

"We're looking to have a dual residency. We're certainly not cutting off the Manhattan tie," she said.

Cohen said the company will do 17 performances this year; three in Manhattan.

"We feel we're a resource. For instance, when we go on the road, we are a representative of the Manhattan community," Cohen said.

The company also operates a dance studio to help offset production costs.

"The school is not a profit-making operation, it exists to teach dance as community outreach and to further the understanding of dance. It's strictly a means of providing funds to allow the artistic work to happen," Cohen said.

The company functions as a group, each dancer having an equal role. Smith has danced with companies that weren't like this.

"I worked with a ballet company and the structure's a little different," Smith said. "There's a lot of competition. We're striving for a collaborative effort. It's an open forum and we're all equal parts."

"Susan is the main reason I'm here. Watching her choreographic process is an education. And she's probably the best teacher I've ever had as far as a dance as art education goes."

"I think basically she cares about her dancers. It's a people-oriented dance company and a process-oriented dance company as opposed to a box office-oriented dance company," Smith said.

Warden said the dancers have grown not just from a technical dance point of view, but that their self-perception and group awareness has grown tremendously.

The company is also growing. They have expanded their touring to include Oklahoma, South Dakota and Missouri.

Currently, they receive 12 percent of their budget from the Kansas Arts Commission; 20 percent from fund raising; 30 percent from touring.

On tour, the company has to deal with "bad motels, terrible food, long hours and a lot of satisfaction," Warden said.

Staff/John Sleezer

Scott Smith rehearses "Steppin' Out" which he performed in McCain Auditorium Sunday.

'Complex Theatre' takes humor seriously

By TOM DOWNING
Staff Writer

The lights came up and Nancy Sloan sprayed her message among the other slogans painted on the back wall of the Purple Masque Theatre. It said "The Complex."

Before she could write "Improvisational Theatre" and finish the message, a waiter and dishwasher came out into the alley and chased her away.

After they went back into the restaurant, a pile of newspapers moved and an old bum awoke, walked off stage, and the show was underway. This was the first of many big laughs of the evening.

The entire theatre had been transformed to go along with the title of the program, "An Evening in Limbo."

The performance of half prepared material and half improvisation was presented Friday and Saturday evening by The Complex Improvisational Theatre. The show was produced by the K-State Players.

Beer cans, bottles, candy boxes, and milk crates were scattered around the theatre.

The chairs in the center section had been replaced by pillows and bean bag chairs.

Old posters were plastered on the walls, different color paint splatters were painted on the floor and graffiti covered the walls. The entire theatre, including the long entry hallway, had been made to look like a back alley in the imaginary place called Limbo.

Yes, there is a serious side to the members of this comedy group, even if they sometimes have a hard time answering a question without fooling around. They have a clear understanding of what it is they are doing.

Group finds new direction

Humor can be a serious business, especially for Rick Efros who is a full-time intern at a counseling center and is a charter member of the group.

"I'm the old man of the group," Efros said. "I'm a dissertation away from a doctorate. I'm going to be a counseling comedian."

Efros was with the group under its former title, "The Not Ready for K-State Players." He has been performing comedy for four years.

"To me the key thing has been our move to doing improvisation. My first year we just did sketch material," Efros said. "In some ways I guess it became more routine, even though I enjoyed it."

Three years ago the group became the Complex and focused on improvisation instead of prepared material.

"Now there's a real excitement. We don't know what's going to happen. Ultimately — the blend of audience and performer into a single entity each fueling the other one," Efros said.

Performers love to do improvisation because you never know what's going to happen, Efros said.

"I think it's the beauty of spontaneity. It unleashes the free spirit and creative side of me. And, with some clients in therapy I try to do the same for them."

"It's a neat thing for me to experience. I think a lot of people have that bottled up inside them. It's a wonderful thing to be in touch with," Efros said.

Angela O'Hara, sophomore in pre-law, has been with the Complex since last spring.

"There's something underneath all the things we do," O'Hara said, referring to the group's switch to more socially relevant humor instead of trying to get the cheap laugh.

"We want to concentrate on character and subject matter instead of using profanity and sex," Mike Musick, senior in speech, said. This is his first year with the Complex. Musick described what is called "tag-team improv."

"We start off with a situation given to us by the audience. Two people start the scene from there. When someone sees an interesting body position or a prop in an unusual place, they say 'freeze' and take someone's place. Then they start a new scene and the other person has to catch on to what's happening," Musick said.

"We work together on it (tag-team) and pick up on each other's cues and we get to a point where we just click, click, click and we get the audience behind us," John Winningham, junior in theatre, said.

"I think improv helps you a lot more," Nancy Sloan, sophomore in theatre, said. "You learn a lot more than with scripted plays. What we write we think of ourselves. You don't have a director telling you what to do. It leaves a lot more room for creativity."

"I thought it would be challenging," O'Hara said. "The audience's reaction helps a lot. It gives you confidence. And if you have confidence, you're going to perform better."

"From the audience's response you can understand that they're relating," she said.

Winningham indicated the group's nervousness about "An Evening in Limbo."

"We were really apprehensive about this," Winningham said. "We didn't know if people were gonna show up, laugh, just sit there, or even know about it."

"When you hear the people laughing all the doubts are gone and you just throw yourself into it and you really appreciate the audience."

"A lot of people didn't take The Complex seriously. I think this show has changed that."

The production was produced entirely by students, according to Terri Myers, senior in theatre, and president of the K-State Players.

"The practical experience we got from this show taught us more than we could ever learn in any classroom," Myers said. "We'd like to learn from our mistakes and apply it to the next one. We'd love to do this again next year."

Cham Ferguson, a founding member of the Complex, said he took care of the practical aspects of the production.

"I had to do a lot of direction with this show but within the guidelines of the improv spirit," Ferguson, junior in speech, said. "We don't just do improv within one of our shows. The whole spirit and feeling of the group is improv."

"How long we perform, the direction the group heads, what we feel like doing at that moment. The moment is so important," he said.

"First, we did shows in Aggie. Second, we went to Colorado for part of one summer, and third, we are doing improv theater in a theater," Ferguson said.

"I wish I could drop all my other projects and do Complex...and then be an underworld boss," Ferguson said.

"What's next for the Complex? I don't know...but I hope it's good."

Staff/John Sleezer

Cham Ferguson, junior in speech, portrays a bum sleeping in a restaurant during a dress rehearsal of The Complex Improvisational Theatre's production of "A Night in Limbo."

Changed Kansas laws may indicate rising rape awareness

By JOHN CREGO
Collegian Reporter

Rape in Riley County is nothing new. Rape in Riley County is not at an all-time high. Rape in Riley County is not on the increase. But rape in Riley County is a reality.

A recent rash of reported sexual assaults in the county has the citizens of Manhattan suddenly aware that rape is a vicious crime that needs immediate attention.

"At the year's end of 1982, Riley County recorded 10 rape offenses," said Capt. Larry Woodyard of the Riley County Police Department.

"At the year's end of 1981, 24 rape offenses were recorded in Riley County. In 1980, we had 19 rape offenses reported and in 1979 there were six rapes here in Riley County."

So far this year, Riley County has had 17 reported rape cases, three of which occurred in Ogden. In Manhattan, four have been cleared by arrest, four have been listed as unfounded and six are unsolved, according to RCPD.

"Kansas has a new statute that includes two offenses that would not have been classified as a rape situation a year ago," Woodyard said.

"The old rape statute stated there must be sexual intercourse during the attack. The new statute states that acts other than sexual penetration constitute a rape," he said.

If a male touches the genital area of a female with his hand and any penetration, however slight, that occurs constitutes an act of rape, Woodyard said.

"Two of the 17 rape cases had no actual intercourse involved," Woodyard said. "They were touching and would not have been rapes last year."

He said, however, there is a subsection to the same statute involving sexual battery that could be charged for touching through the clothing.

"If the act is done with the intention of sexual arousal for either the offender or the victim, then it is considered a sexual battery," Woodyard said.

"One of the incidents involved a husband and wife," he said. "The new statute now covers spousal rape."

"But the prosecution declined the one case in Manhattan which involved the spousal sexual assault," he added.

The two cases involving touching and the one spousal sexual assault are included in the 17 reported rapes. But they are not counted in the six unsolved cases, he said.

A woman who has been sexually assaulted is not bound by law to report the crime to the police. If she goes to the hospital, the rape is only reported (to the police) on her request, Woodyard said.

"This could possibly be the reason the hospitals and the counselors will suggest there are more rapes than the figures we get. This may or may not be the case. We can only deal with the actual reported cases that come to us," he said.

The most important thing, he said, is the welfare of the victim. When a woman reports a rape to the police, help is available to her. Women police officers help the victim with the investigation of the crime.

"Our department policy is that, if at all possible, we will assign a female police officer to conduct the preliminary investigation," Woodyard said.

The community has an individual that is a victim-witness coordinator who is assigned to each case. She helps the victim through the judicial process.

"We are not a social agency in that respect. We are limited to police work. We can't always say and do the right things to console the victim. But this person works for the county. She is not tied up in the intricacies of the investigation, but she's there to give support," he said.

The police are concerned about the element of time involved in reporting a rape.

"We are concerned in a sense of timeliness because the longer the time, the less valuable trace-evidence that may be left behind," Woodyard said.

He said another concern was if a timely report comes to the department, the police may in fact encounter the suspect.

"If someone is on the streets ac-

Although the number of cases reported in the county has not increased over the last two years, the number reported on campus has.

"In the past two years, I would say there has been a significant increase in the number of reported attacks here on campus," said Caroline Peine, crisis counselor at the Women's Resource Center.

Although the records of the number of attacks should be easy to keep, they aren't. The statistics are kept in a uniform way, but are listed as attacks, Peine said. Because of this, it is difficult to consult records and determine which of these cases were rapes.

"But we've had a remarkably good record here on campus compared with other schools. I can't believe how lucky we've been," Peine said.

Professor writes dictionary for island

By TIM LINDEMUTH
University Relations Staff

Harriet Ottenheimer, professor of cultural anthropology, has become the computer age Noah Webster for the Comoro Islands.

Inhabitants of the island off the east coast of Africa have no modern dictionary of their principal languages, Shingwani and Kingazija.

For the past seven years, Ottenheimer has compiled a dictionary of 6,000 Shingwani words. She estimated the project would have taken several more years to complete, but said she believes it may be published within the next two years with the aid of new computer equipment and a sophisticated software program.

Her first trip to the Comoros was with a research team in 1967 to record and study music.

"I had not intended to make linguistics a major part of my research, but I needed sufficient language fluency to investigate the music," she said.

Comoros to get needed translation

"When we study the culture, we must know the language. It's easy to lose subtle understanding (of the culture) when we have to communicate through another language or through interpreters," she said. French is the most widely spoken second language on the island.

Ottenheimer's work is compiled in 13 hand-written notebooks. Six of the books translate Shingwani to English while the remaining seven index English to Shingwani. She collected words for the books during two trips to the Comoros.

During a visit to the islands last year, her work attracted interest among government officials.

"They asked that the dictionary be published as soon as possible so it can be used on the islands. Officials also indicated they would like me to work on another dictionary of Kingazija," she said.

Ottenheimer returned to Manhattan deciding to speed up completion of the project. She contacted national research funding organizations for possible sponsorship. The National Science Foundation provided her with names of those who have worked on dictionaries, including Robert Hsu, professor of linguistics at the University of Hawaii.

Hsu has developed a computer program to write lexicons which has been used for dictionaries for several Pacific Island and American Indian languages.

"I sent data to Hsu and he ran it through the computer. The results convinced me that this is the right program to use. He will be coming here this fall to help me with the final set up," Ottenheimer said.

Ottenheimer isn't the first to compile a dictionary of Shingwani.

"Other dictionaries are either very small or very old, like an early word list made by an Englishman from South Africa in 1821," she said. "None contains more than a few hundred words, at best, and they generally include no grammatical information. They are out of print and difficult to obtain. A modern dictionary of Shingwani is urgently needed."

Cultural influences of colonialists, traders and mainland Africans contributed to the language development.

"The words, of course, were changed to fit pronunciation patterns. For example a Shingwani word for bottle is 'falasika' from the English word flask," she said.

The language is grammatically similar to the Bantu languages of south and east Africa.

When the dictionary is completed, Ottenheimer said she foresees many uses.

"The Comoro government anticipates that this lexicon will form the basis of a larger, multilingual work which would include the other major dialects and languages of the Comoros as well as French. Their eventual goal is to facilitate inter-island translation and communication in this way," she said.

NDSL default rate declines

By The College Press Service

Students are repaying their National Direct Student Loans at a faster rate than in past years, according to the U.S. Department of Education.

In checking the records of loan repayments at 3,382 colleges, the department found the default rate on NDSLs — a program President Reagan wanted to abolish in 1981 and 1982 in part because so many students weren't repaying their loans — fell from 15.4 percent in 1981 to 10.5 percent of the total amount loaned by the government under the Part of the reason for the decline, however, may be the new ways of accounting for defaults, said Florence Taylor, the department's aid collection chief.

Colleges, which have been responsible for collecting past-due loans, can now turn over the responsibility for collecting the loans to the federal government. When this happens, the government no longer counts the loan as in default, Taylor said.

Still, "getting students to pay back their loans is like getting blood from a turnip for some of these schools," she said.

HAIRCUTS
THESE ARE OUR EVERYDAY LOW PRICES

GALS 8.50
GUYS 6.50

Includes shampoo, cut and blow-dry

317 Houston
539-8601

Vista
RESTAURANTS

WOODEN NICKELS ARE GREAT FOR TRICK OR TREATERS!

Each Wooden Nickel is good for a FREE regular size Vista Creme Cone. You get 10 for $1.50 (a $4.00 value). Good at any Vista Restaurant.

Price good through Oct. 31, 1983. While supplies last.

1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

OctoberFest Finale

10% off Sunglasses—except Ray Bans
10% off most frames
10% off second pair

Highest quality lenses
Personalized service

410 Poyntz 776-6255
Downtown Manhattan

Our instructors and students have had recent education on the new Fall trends.

Call today for a new Fall look 776-4794

All services performed by students who are closely supervised by instructors

CRUM'S BEAUTY COLLEGE
512 Poyntz

You'll be seeing some new faces at the Bookstore. Maybe even your own.

Choose your Halloween personality from our wide selection of famous, infamous and bestial masks. We also offer our wigs, artificial features, MAKE-UP (water, grease, pancake, rouge) in every imaginable color—you name it! Clown white, lipstick, and nail polish (black/green/red/gilt) we've got it!

10% discount on all merchandise (except special orders and sale merchandise for anyone in costume Oct. 28th).

k-state union bookstore

New! Bac'n Cheddar Deluxe.

Arby's

Bacon Lovers, rejoice! Arby's® New Bac'n Cheddar Deluxe. Bacon makes this sandwich absolutely sensational. Arby's starts with lean, tender roast beef, smothers it in hot, tangy cheddar cheese sauce. And then—just before the fresh lettuce, red, ripe tomatoes and creamy mayo go on, Arby's tops it all off with crisp, cracklin' bacon. It's a mouthwatering roast beef sandwich a whole new way. If you love bacon...

Welcome to Arby's. You're right where you belong.

WITH THIS COUPON
1 Arby's® Bac'n Cheddar Deluxe Sandwich $1.45

Offer valid thru November 13, 1983 at participating Arby's. Limit 4 sandwiches. Not valid with any other offer.

WITH THIS COUPON
Any Two Arby's® Sandwiches (Including New Bac'n Cheddar Deluxe Sandwich) $2.65

Offer valid thru November 13, 1983 at participating Arby's. Limit 6 sandwiches in multiples of 2. Not valid with any other offer.

WITH THIS COUPON
Arby's® Bac'n Cheddar Deluxe Sandwich, Bag of Fries, Medium Soft Drink $2.35

Offer valid thru November 13, 1983 at participating Arby's. Limit 4 meals. Not valid with any other offer.

WITH THIS COUPON
2 Arby's® Original Roast Beef Sandwiches $2.00

Offer valid thru November 13, 1983 at participating Arby's. Limit 6 sandwiches in multiples of 2. Not valid with any other offer.

MANHATTAN • 1115 Bluemont

Tigers maul Wildcats 38-0

Missouri sticks K-State with first shutout since '80

COLUMBIA, Mo. — The Wildcats should have listened to their mothers when told to stay in out of the rain. In a rather unimpressive game which was dominated by the Missouri Tigers and a drizzle, the 'Cats lost 38-0.

As scouts from the Independence Bowl looked on, it was a sure bet they were dismayed with K-State's inability to generate any offense, or provide any real opposition defensively against the Tigers' pass offense when compared with last year's team.

It was Missouri's first shutout of an opponent since 1978 when Missouri defeated Kansas 48-0.

Although the Tigers manhandled the 'Cats, their performance was less than perfect. Before a homecoming crowd of 46,248 and rolling up the second highest offensive total this season with 522 yards, Missouri fumbled five times — losing four of them — and was penalized nine times for 70 yards.

"MU is a very good defensive football team, they beat us every way, both offensively and defensively. Our early plan was to blitz and get the early turnovers but that was changed quickly," Jim Dickey, K-State head coach, said.

Missouri proved too much for the 'Cats, keeping K-State's total offensive yardage to 175 — far below its 283.7 yards per game average which puts it 95th in the nation.

In the starting role for the first time this season, Donnie Campbell completed 10 of 27 passes for 66 yards. Stan Weber was later given the quarterback job in the fourth quarter and completed 5 of 8 passes for 66 yards.

"Missouri was just a better football team, they just plain beat us. I haven't played much so I made mistakes, especially in reading their blitzes," Campbell said. "When I got sacked it wasn't the offensive line's fault. I just couldn't read their blitzes well."

Missouri took advantage of the game's weather conditions, cloudy and foggy with intermittent light drizzle and temperatures hovering in the 50s, scoring in the first half on two passes from quarterback Marlon Adler.

Adler's 18-yard pass to tight end Greg Krahle seven plays into the second quarter was Missouri's first touchdown of the game. Krahle got by defender Nelson Nickerson when Nickerson slipped on the grass field while covering Krahle.

Missouri's next scoring drive began on its 47-yard line scoring on the slip of David Ast, who was covering flanker George Shorthouse. Shorthouse caught an 11-yard pass from Adler.

"They had a couple of people who slipped, too," Jerry Boyce, K-State defensive coordinator said. "They just didn't show up like ours did."

In its final scoring, Missouri recovered a Greg Dageforde, K-State running back, fumble on K-State's 10-yard line.

Fullback Eric Drain made a 1-yard plunge to give Missouri a 21-0 halftime lead. If that was not enough, on the ensuing kickoff, Missouri's Brad Burditt kicked the ball forcing it to hug the sidelines around K-State's 1-yard line.

James Witherspoon, kick returner, picked up the ball and began running laterally, picked up no yards and nearly was tackled in the end zone for a safety.

K-State was ineffective in its series of plays leaving Scott Fulhage to punt deep within its own end zone.

"Usually I have 14 yards to work with when punting, but in that situation I had about 11 yards. That three yards off makes a big difference and kicking into the wind was also a factor," Fulhage said.

However, Fulhage was bumped after his first punt from the end zone by a Missouri player thus giving him a second chance

Fullback Charles Crawford typifies the frustration many K-State players felt during the 'Cats 38-0 loss in less-than-ideal conditions at Columbia, Mo.

when the Tigers were called for bumping into the punter — a 5-yard penalty.

The first half ended with K-State having a net yardage of 56 and Missouri with 266 yards.

Missouri began the second half with fumbles on its first three possessions.

The Tigers were finally able to score with 4:54 remaining in the third quarter when Adler went right, scoring from 5 yards out giving them a score of 28-0.

Missouri's next score came off the 'Cats only interception when Campbell's pass was picked off by linebacker Buck Stinson. On that play, center Andy Harding was injured when he tackled Stinson.

"I am not used to tackling anyone," Harding said Sunday from his hospital bed in Lafene Student Health Center.

Unable to score a touchdown, Missouri made the field goal from 37 yards out and the score was 31-0.

The final score of the game came with 7:46 remaining in the fourth quarter. Warren Seitz, in for Marlon Adler, scored from the 1-yard line, 38-0.

In the fourth quarter, quarterback Stan Weber replaced Donnie Campbell.

"I was impressed with Donnie Campbell's throwing. It's very difficult for a quarterback to throw every down. It's simply hard to play if you can't run the football," Dickey said.

Missouri defensive back Terry Matichak climbs over K-State wide receiver Mike Wallace's back to break up a pass attempt from quarterback Donnie Campbell. The 'Cats completed only 15 passes in 35 attempts.

"The opposite is true for Missouri — they were effective running the ball making it tougher on our linebackers on play-action passes.

"It's hard not to run the ball. I hate that I'm right. I wish we could throw without having to run."

In preparation for the game, Missouri had taken the appropriate steps.

"We went out and practiced in the rain on Thursday to put ourselves into the situation if it came up," Conrad Goode, Missouri offensive lineman, said.

Missouri tight end Greg Krahle holds the ball aloft after scoring on an 18-yard pass.

Center suffers neck injuries, no paralysis

By The Collegian Staff

K-State center Andy Harding was taken by ambulance to the University of Missouri Hospital and Clinic after sustaining injuries during the K-State-Missouri game Saturday.

He was injured tackling Missouri linebacker Buck Stinson.

Harding was later released and flew back to Manhattan with the team and was admitted to Lafene Student Health Center. The X-rays taken at the Missouri hospital and clinic showed there were no fractures in his neck.

Stinson had intercepted a pass in the third quarter from Donnie Campbell and ran down the field where Harding made the tackle.

After the collision, Harding lay unconscious.

"I hit him as hard as I could and my neck was shoved to the left and back. I was knocked out for a while and when I woke up, I saw the trainers," Harding said from his hospital bed.

Harding said he tried to move after the tackle but was unable to.

"When I woke up, I tried to move but I was unable to move. I thought I was paralyzed, but I realized I was just strapped down," he said.

Currently, Harding is in Lafene where he will remain until at least tonight or possibly Tuesday morning. Doctors are taking X-rays this morning to recheck Harding's neck. Harding said he has a stiff neck and numbness in his hip.

ABOVE: Tiger quarterback Marlon Adler rolls out to avoid K-State defensive tackle Kyle Clawson. Adler passed for 221 yards and rushed for 32 yards to account for a career-high total of 253 yards. LEFT: Quarterback Donnie Campbell lies crumpled on the ground as Missouri defensive end Bobby Bell celebrates a sack with teammates.

By Sean Reilly

Photos by Andy Nelson

Soccer team finishes third in Chartrand memorial tourney

Andy Clayton, left, of the K-State soccer team uses his head to gain control of the ball from a Kansas City United Soccer Team player during a semifinal game of the 5th annual Ed Chartrand Memorial Soccer Tournament.

By TIM FILBY
Collegian Reporter

K-State soccer player Kurt Krusen said his team could have placed first at the 5th Annual Ed Chartrand Memorial Tournament last weekend at KSU Stadium, but instead ended up with a third-place finish.

"We played pretty well throughout the tournament," Krusen said. "If things had gone just a little differently we could have easily been first."

K-State opened up tournament action Saturday morning with a narrow 1-0 loss to Iowa State University.

"It was a really good game," Krusen said. "Iowa State placed third in the Big Eight last year and they are a team similar to us in that they are a hustling type of team."

The teams battled to a 0-0 tie at the end of the first half. Midway through the second half Iowa State scored the game's only tally on what Krusen called a "defensive lapse" by his team. After Iowa State's goal, Krusen said K-State had one good chance to tie the game when Krusen made a pass to Bobby Yearout in the penalty box. However, Yearout's shot was knocked down on a diving play by the Iowa State goalie, and the Cyclones held on for a narrow victory.

After playing against Iowa State, the team came to life in its next match, a 3-0 win over the Wheathawks, a club team from Wichita, Krusen said.

"We played really, really well in that game," Krusen said.

Like the Iowa State match, the two teams ended up scoreless after the first half. However, in the second half his team began to outplay the Wheathawks after a near miss by Krusen from five yards in front of the goal, Krusen said.

"After that play the team got fired up," Krusen said.

Soon after the missed shot, halfback Andy Clayton dribbled down the field and lofted a pass to Krusen, who headed the ball in for a 1-0 K-State lead. K-State padded its lead moments later on a 40-yard shot fired in by Clayton.

"Andy's shot was incredible," Krusen said.

The team's final goal came from Victor Atughonu, substituting for regular player Kevin Umidon, who scored after stealing the ball at mid-field and outrunning the Wheathawk defenders to the goal. Atughonu then beat the Wheathawk goalie on a one-on-one situation.

K-State next met Kansas City United Soccer in the tournament semifinals and lost to the club team by a 3-2 score.

"It was a rough, physical type of game," Krusen said. "They are an excellent team but they may have been a little overconfident starting out against us."

The teams ended up with a 1-1 tie at the half. Kansas City opened up the scoring early in the game. However, K-State fought back and tied the score on a shot by forward Mark Cady, who took a pass from Krusen in the penalty box and pushed the ball past the KC goalie.

Kansas City took control early in the second half as they scored two goals to grab a 3-1 lead. However, Tom Thomas made the score closer for K-State as he took a pass off a corner kick and scored, making it 3-2. However, K-State failed to pull even with Kansas City, although Krusen said his team had several opportunities to even the score.

Rodeo increases in popularity

By JUDI WRIGHT
Asst. Sports Editor

Rodeo — matching the skill of the cowboy against the determination of the animal — is becoming one of America's popular sports.

Like most sports, rodeo is a team sport but it concentrates mainly on the individual effort of the cowboy. Events that a cowboy can enter include saddle bronc riding, bareback riding, team roping, steer wrestling and bull riding.

Participation is not restricted to the cowboy but is open to the cowgirl as well with events such as barrel racing, pole bending, breakaway calf roping and goat tying.

Rodeo results

Bareback Riding
1. (tie) Jon Greenough Fort Scott
Ronnie Lynch K-State
Saddle Bronc Riding
1. Joe Peabody K-State
Calf Roping
1. Jay Domer K-State
Steer Wrestling
1. (tie) Jeff Brecheisen Fort Scott
Dale Brecheisen Fort Scott
Team Roping
1. (tie) Clint Stave K-State
Randy Fisher K-State
Bull Riding
1. (tie) Kent Helms K-State
Vernon Gardner Fort Scott
Breakaway Calf Roping
1. Cindy Myers Fort Scott
Goat Tying
1. Becky Hereford Fort Scott
Barrel Racing
1. Jeannie Anderson Fort Scott
Pole Bending
1. Vicki Birch K-State

Contestants had to battle more than the determination of the animal on Saturday and Sunday when K-State's rodeo club sponsored an alumni rodeo match against Fort Scott Community College. Weather conditions — cloudy skies and a muddy arena — created other possible setbacks for the participants, who were students and alumni of both schools.

One participant, an alumnus of both K-State and Fort Scott, was John Luthi in the bareback, saddle bronc and bull riding competition. He said he was not bothered much by the arena conditions because he knew everybody was faced with the same problem.

"That (the added weather conditions) is just a part of rodeo," he said.

Jon Greenough, a Fort Scott alumnus entered in the bareback and bull riding, agreed with Luthi and said the muddy conditions "did not help much but it was even — everybody had to deal with it."

Approximately 115 contestants did, in fact, deal with the muddy arena and winners were determined in ten events.

In the men's overall division, Fort Scott won with 1008 points and K-State had 821. K-State won the women's division with 414 points while Fort Scott had 402. For the entire rodeo, Fort Scott won with 1410 points and K-State finished with 1235.

Luthi said the exhibition match between the two schools was originally started — while he was still a student at K-State — as a way to keep the alumni active and let them know what is going on with the K-State rodeo club.

"I think the alumni association is an outstanding program and it's getting better," Luthi said. "I'm proud to be part of the alumni of K-State."

Jay Domer, K-State's men's rodeo team captain, said, "Half the participants or more were alumni from both schools."

"It has been a darn good rodeo. It ran smooth and we had a good crowd."

Nyla Wilson, K-State's women's rodeo team captain, agreed with Domer and said the match had been one of the best K-State has had in a long time.

Because of scheduling conflicts in the past two years, K-State has not been able to compete against Fort Scott so the event has been the K-State students matched against the K-State alumni. Bringing in a different school creates more interest than just a match within the school, Domer said.

Intercollegiate rodeo competition has helped Greenough in his quest to become a professional cowboy because he said the college program has offered him more experience than if he was to attempt entering pro rodeo on his own.

Staff/Jeff Taylor

Members of the K-State Rodeo Club participated in the annual alumni rodeo Saturday and Sunday at Cico Park. Students and alumni pitted their talents against Fort Scott Community College students and alumni in a challenge match.

ESCAPE TO ASPEN/SNOWMASS
WITH UPC TRAVEL

January 1-8, 1984

$323/295 (with your own equipment)

TRIP INCLUDES:

Roundtrip Motor Coach to and from Aspen
1 night's lodging at the hotel Colorado (location of filming for movie "The Shining") in Glenwood Springs, Colorado
4 nights lodging at the Woodbridge condominiums in Snowmass
4 days lift tickets (good at Snowmass, Aspen, and Buttermilk)
4 day equipment rental
Pre-party
2 Wild West parties with bands
UPC tote bag
Beer and cheese party

SIGN-UP:

8 a.m. - 3 p.m. K-State Union
3rd Floor, Activities Center

Spaces Still Available!

The GASLIGHT BOUTIQUE 12 HOUR SALE!

Today Only
10:00-10:00

Garland & Pandora

Solid crew- and v-neck sweaters, reg. $22 now $15

Plaid Blouses & Flannel Shirts selected styles up to $18.75 now $10

Jeans selected styles Brittania Zena & Generra values up to $34 now $19.99

Zena Cords reg. $32 now $25

JF Adams argyle stripe & fair isle values up to $25 now $15-$18

20% Off All Pants

All Summer Fashions 75% off

1118 Moro

"The Fun Place to Shop in Aggleville"

Can YOU
Take TIME
From Your

Busy Schedule For
LOVE & INTIMACY?

Then join the Folks at E.C.M. for a

RETREAT

At Camp Chippewa—near Ottawa, KS—
for a discussion of love & intimacy

Nov. 4 & 6 $20 per person

Leave Manhattan at 5 p.m. Nov. 4—

return to Manhattan by 5 p.m. Nov. 6

Register by calling 539-4281 by Oct. 31

Lowery boots Chiefs to overtime win, 13-10

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Kansas City's Nick Lowery, who missed a 52-yard field goal in regulation play, booted a 41-yarder with 7:19 left in overtime Sunday as the Chiefs defeated Houston 13-10.

The Oilers, who lost their 15th consecutive game, missed a chance to break the string when Florian Kempf missed a 41-yard field goal with four seconds left in the game.

Chiefs' quarterback Bill Kenney drove the Chiefs 60 yards to the winning field goal in a drive highlighted by a 20-yard completion to Stephen Paige on third down from the Oiler 48.

The Chiefs then worked the ball to the Houston 22 before Lowery ended it with his second field goal of the game.

The Oilers fell behind 10-7 at the half on Kenney's 4-yard touchdown pass to Willie Scott and Lowery's 31-yarder.

Houston quarterback Gifford Nielsen was booed in the third quarter before he directed a drive that set up Kempf's 32-yard field goal that tied the game with 8:25 left to play.

The overtime came after both teams missed field goals in the closing minutes. Kansas City's Lowery missed a 52-yard try with 4:04 to play and Kempf's 41-yard kick with four seconds left in regulation time was wide to the right.

The Oilers' game plan of handing the ball to Earl Campbell ended on the second series of the game when the former All-Pro suffered a pulled groin muscle and did not return to the game.

Campbell gained 54 yards on his seven carries.

Houston scored on the same series in which Campbell went down when Nielsen threaded a pass between two Kansas City defenders to Stan Edwards in the end zone on a 3-yard play.

The Oilers dropped to an 0-8 record this season and lost for the second time in overtime. Kansas City evened its record at 4-4.

Oiler fans chanted for second string quarterback Oliver Luck late in the third quarter when Chiefs free safety Deron Cherry intercepted a Nielsen pass at the Kansas City 11 for his sixth theft of the season.

Nielsen ignored the boos, however, and directed the Oilers to the Kansas City 24-yard line in the final seconds. He hit tight end Mike McCloskey with a 9-yard pass on third down at the Chiefs' 30-yard line. The drive was nullified, however, by Kempf's kick that was wide to the right, only his second miss of the season in nine tries.

Campbell, who entered the game as the No. 2 rusher in the American Football Conference, appeared headed for a big rushing day against the Chiefs, who rank 19th in the NFL against the rush.

The Chiefs had a scoring drive stopped at the Houston 29 in the second quarter when linebacker Robert Brazile stripped Theotis Brown of the ball and linebacker Avon Riley recovered.

Chiefs punter Jim Arnold assisted Kansas City's go-ahead field goal in the second quarter with a punt that rolled dead at the Oiler 2-yard line. After three ineffective runs by Donnie Craft, Houston punted to the 44. Kenney completed passes of 24 yards to Henry Marshall and seven yards to Paige to set up the field goal.

Staff/Wes Wilmers

Look out

Danny Blea of the K-State Rugby Club runs off with the ball in excitement at Saturday's game against Kansas City.

New Zealander wins New York Marathon

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — New Zealand's Rod Dixon, fighting off leg cramps and a sore hamstring, wore down first-time marathoner Geoff Smith of Britain and won the New York City Marathon in dramatic fashion Sunday — the first foreigner to capture the prestigious event in the race's 14-year history.

Norway's Grete Waitz, meanwhile, continued her domination of the women's competition, winning for the second year in a row and the fifth time in the past six years.

Dixon, in only his second marathon, was timed in 2 hours, 8 minutes, 59 seconds — the 10th-fastest in history — and nine seconds ahead of the weary Smith, who led from just past the 15-mile mark until the final-quarter mile in the grueling race run in a steady drizzle.

The 33-year-old Dixon fell to his knees after crossing the finish line in Central Park, kissed the ground, then wildly waved both hands into the air. The leg-weary Smith collapsed.

"I couldn't believe I passed him when I did," said Dixon, who had predicted he would win the race and do it with the fastest time in history.

"It took me ages and ages to catch up," added Dixon, the 1972 Olympic bronze medalist in the 1,500 meters who had trained intensely for this marathon in Reading, Pa.

Dixon ran as fast as he could although continually grabbing at his right hamstring.

For Smith, finishing second, in 2:09:08, had to be both rewarding, since it was his first attempt at the 26-mile, 385-yard distance, and frustrating.

Smith, 29, from Liverpool, a former firefighter before coming to the United States and going to Providence College, where he is a senior, stumbled with about one mile left and nearly fell. He regained his composure and determinedly tried to hold off Dixon's surge.

"I was really worried that I was going to have to quit," said Smith, a member of the 1980 British Olympic team in the 10,000 meters. "I was getting leg cramps."

Dixon, who was timed in 2:11:21 in his only previous marathon, in New Zealand in May 1982, reportedly will receive $25,000 for his victory from the estimated purse of $200,000 for the New York City Marathon. Waitz reportedly will get $20,000.

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.85 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.25 per inch; Five consecutive days: $3.95 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $3.75 per inch (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENT 01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale — Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. 50¢ for students with ID and $1 for all others. (281f)

RENTAL COSTUMES — New hours: Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Maries, 1631 Humboldt, 539-5200. (32-40)

KANSAS CITY Peace Corps Office wants to locate returned PC volunteers in the Manhattan area. Call Charlotte at 532-6497 by Tuesday, October 24, 1983. (44-46)

SCREAM! COMING soon! Van Zile's annual Spook House! Watch for more details. (45)

ATTENTION 02

TRAVEL — WE will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (11f)

FANTASY GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

HURRY TO Balfour! To introduce you to our new arrivals, all Footjoy aerobic shoes and new! ball shoes and gloves are 20% off now through October 29th. (39-49)

UNIVERSITY ORGANIZATION interested in fund raising project call Mildred Polley, 539-7643 day or 539-8622 evening. (43-45)

SINGLE MALE searching for single female born between February 16, 1961 and February 4, 1962. Call 537-8365 for more details. (43-48)

IS IT true you can buy jeeps for $44 through the U.S. Government? Get the facts today! Call (312) 742-1142, ext. 3286-A. (45)

FOR RENT—MISC 03

COSTUMES — FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11f)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Huli Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11f)

HALLOWEEN COSTUMES — Sales and rentals, masks, make-up, accessories. The Emporium, 11th and Moro in Aggieville. (35-49)

FOR RENT—APTS 04

VERY NICE, one-bedroom apartment, one block from campus, $240 per month. Call 776-0409. (41-45)

BASMENT APARTMENT — Two bedroom, remodeled this summer, two blocks west of campus. Call Jim, 539-1135. (42-50)

NICE, SPACIOUS, two-bedroom, unfurnished, $295. Available anytime. 776-2171. (45-49)

FOR RENT—HOUSES 05

FOR RENT — Spacious, furnished, three bedroom home, three blocks from campus, two baths, utility room, garage. References required. Shown by appointment. Call 776-1283 after 5:00 p.m. (42-46)

Have story or photo ideas? CALL 532-6556

COUNTRY MOBILE home, place for horse, garden. Ten minutes from Manhattan. Prefer married couple. 1-494-2469. (43-45)

FOR SALE—AUTO 06

1968 AMX classic 390 — automatic, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, stereo, 5,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Excellent condition. $3400. Might trade. 537-4762. (39-48)

1972 MGB convertible. New paint, new top, is in great shape. Call 539-3092. (41-45)

1973 DODGE Polara, V8, automatic, power steering, and brakes. In good condition. $550. Call 537-2665. (44-49)

1979 TOYOTA Corolla hatchback, AM/FM cassette, air, excellent condition. After 7:00 p.m. 776-1495 or 539-8970. (45-49)

FOR SALE—MISC 07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risque greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (lt. blue), USC (white) others. $12.50 each postpaid. S-M-L-XL. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-601-835-1085. (32-45)

EMBROIDERED DRESSES — Beautiful hand-embroidered dresses from Mexico. Pure cotton, comfortable, inexpensive. Great for gift-giving. Write for information, Montezuma's Revenge, Box 50150, Austin, Texas 78763. (36-45)

ONE-HALF Arab bay gelding, three years old, green broke. Call 776-9746 after 6:00 p.m. (42-46)

BICYCLE 12 speed, eclipse bags front and rear with racks, handlebar bag, rollers for indoor riding. 537-8501. (43-47)

BICYCLES FOR SALE: 10- and 3-speed mens and women's $35-$150. Limited selection. Call 537-8616. (44-46)

TWO NU vs KSU football tickets. Call 776-7148. (44-46)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (lt. blue), USC (white), others. $14.00 each postpaid. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-601-835-1085. (45-59)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES 08

TWO-BEDROOM trailer house, excellent condition. Call 776-6143 after 6:00 p.m. (45-54)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES 09

1979 SUZUKI GS550, 18,000 miles, new chain, battery, helmets included. $900 or best offer. 776-1332 after 5:00 p.m. (42f)

1975 KAWASAKI 175 Enduro. Excellent condition, must sell. Asking $275. Call 776-9296. (42-45)

1973 TR6 Triumph, one owner, both tops, very nice, K-State purple. $2995. The Preston McCall Company, 913-641-6067. (44-53)

FOUND 10

TWO PAIR eyeglasses. Claim in Kedzie 103. (43-45)

FOUND SUNDAY — Men's 27" 10-speed bicycle. To identify and claim call 537-1356. (43-45)

CALCULATOR, FOUND near Anderson Avenue pedestrian light. Call John McCulloch, 532-6730, to identify and claim. (44-46)

HELP WANTED 13

COMPUTER OPERATOR

We are seeking a qualified computer operator to work part time as needed during peak periods which may also include some weekends and holidays. Scheduled hours will vary per week depending upon work load and availability. IBM 4341, Dos—VSE experience N/or Data Processing education required. Starting wage is $6.35 per hour plus shift differential if applicable. Applicants are requested to contact:

Supervisor Employment/EEO
McCall Pattern Co.
615 McCall Rd.
Manhattan, KS 66502
Equal Opportunity Employer M-F

OVERSEAS JOBS — Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write L.C. Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

LOST 14

KEYS ON A CN-Tower ring. Lost near CHE office. Reward offered. $32-5584, ext. 56, Huang. (43-45)

NOTICES 15

CHILI FEED! All you can eat! Monday night in the K-State Union Ballroom. 4:30-6:30 p.m. (45)

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY does typing—all types. Reasonable, all work guaranteed. Nancy, 776-8084. (45)

CITRUS AND apple sale! Oranges, grapefruit, apples — one-fourth to one-half cases from $8.50 to $13. Deadline by November 5th. Call 539-9939, ask for Joe Mario. (45-46)

PERSONAL 16

JAMES H. — Have old used tombstones. Will trade for fifteen-year-old (hot) school bell. Reply thru Collegian. (44-46)

LOOKING FOR an "All American Guy." (5'11" or taller, blonde, blue eyes) for one drive thru McDonald's date. No strings attached. If interested, call Dianne. (45)

NAPPIE, PUNK. Screamer. Why those Dano, CPR, Payco effects? I'd rather "pass out," punt, or have an erotic! or possibly the Wednesday night surprise? Scooter (45)

DEREK A. Walters: Happy 22nd Birthday! Hope you're ready for lots of surprises. Love, your little Kappa. (45)

ROSS — THANKS for trying to tear down the "walls." You're really special and I love you. Morgan (45)

BETA SIG-Dan: Is College Heights your favorite street? We thought so! C, G and P. (45)

MY BIG Burrito: Thanks for two wonderful years. Here's to a lifetime of happiness together. I love you more every day! Your Little Muchacho. (45)

TONY ENLOW: Hope you had fun on your birthday. I love you! Trish (45)

TAMMY BARHAM — Just want to say, have a good day! Your secret SUE. (45)

BODO DEAREST — I have returned from the sea. Though the journey was long and weary, the men and I found great pleasure. Foreign ports we've pillaged totally, now they have nothing to treasure. Your son, Sven The Horrible. (45)

SNOOPY — THE Great Pumpkin is coming! See him at the Union on Friday, Linus. (45-46)

ROOMMATE WANTED 17

ONE TWO female non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplace, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month best included. 776-1205. (44-48)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share four-bedroom apartment through May. Good location. Call 539-6849. (42-51)

MALE FOR excellent apartment in great location. $120 per month. Call 776-3241. Keep trying. (45-47)

SERVICES 18

MARY KAY Cosmetics — Unique skin care and glamour products. Call Floris Taylor, 539-2070, for facial. (1-75)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South 4th Street, Suite 25. (11f)

GRADUATING THIS semester? Let us help you with your resume. Resume Service, 1221 Moro, Aggieville. 537-7294. (11f)

Typing — LOWER rates. IBM electronic typewriter for faster service. Satisfaction guaranteed. Call Linda. 776-6174. (71f)

J&L BUG SERVICE

VW Rabbit and Bug repairs. Tune ups starting at $42. Parts — new and used. We buy dead Bugs, Rabbits. 1962 Bus for sale. 1-494-2388 St. George.

MARY KAY Cosmetics: Free facials. 10 percent off products with student I.D. New fall glamour products now in. Call Elaine Berryhill, independent Beauty Consultant. 537-3233 days. 1-456-7251 evenings. (30-50)

COSTUMES by the thousands. Complete rabbits, chickens, gorillas, tigers, bears and more. Flappers, Play Boy Bunnies, French maid, dance hall girls, much more. Ask for whatever you'd like to reserve now for Halloween. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (9-50)

Typing — LETTERS, term papers, resumes, etc. Reasonable rates. Call Sherry, 539-9131 after 5:30 p.m. (21-50)

Typing: FAST, experienced, professional; letters, resumes, reports, technical papers, theses. Satisfaction guaranteed. Call 776-6166 anytime. (30-54)

Typing — ALL kinds. Guaranteed. Reasonable rates. Twelve years experience with theses. Call Rita. (1) 293-5304. (35-49)

Typing WANTED: Dissertations, theses, papers. Fast, professional service. Twenty years experience. Call Katherine. 539-8837. (39-59)

NOW HAIRSTYLING — Perms $17.50 up; cuts $5.50 up; kids cuts 10 and under, $5.50; walk-ins, appointments. Hours: 8:00 a.m.-7:00 p.m., Tuesday-Friday; Saturday 8:00 a.m.-5:30 p.m., 110 North 3rd, 776-7808. (40-50)

SEWING SERVICES for women. Professional service, reasonable prices, satisfaction guaranteed. Call 537-2876 after 4:00 p.m. (41-45)

WORD PROCESSING Services — storage of dissertation, is perfect for revisions. 2312 Anderson, 537-2810. (42-46)

WORD PROCESSING Services will give you fast services on repetitive letters. 2312 Anderson, 537-2810. (42-46)

WORD PROCESSING Services offers computer rental. 2312 Anderson, 537-2810. (42-46)

WORD PROCESSING Services offers typewriter rental. 2312 Anderson, 537-2810. (42-46)

WORD PROCESSING Services gives you resume a professional appearance. 2312 Anderson, 537-2810. (42-46)

ROAMIN' SPA Rental — Rent a hot tub for your next party! Call 776-2293 after 6:00 p.m. week days, anytime on weekends. (42-51)

EFFICIENT, CONSCIENTIOUS typing spoken here. Call Jean at 537-1096 evenings/weekends. (43-47)

SUBLEASE 20

LARGE STUDIO apartment, $185 plus deposit. Call 776-7413 evenings. Available November 1st. (45-48)

WANTED 21

CHRISTIAN FAMILY wants college girl to live in for second semester. No smoking of pets. Board and room in exchange for duties around the house and yard. Qualified applicants are invited to respond by writing P.O. Box 244, Manhattan, Kansas. (43-48)

WERE LOOKING for 200 students and faculty to attend KC83 in December. KC83 will be a gathering of 25,000 Christians who want to make Jesus Christ known on the college campus. For more information and a free mini-poster, call Mark Austin, Rick Schulze or Lori Lang at 539-4641. (45-47)

WANTED TO BUY 22

NEED ONE or two tickets for KSU-NU game. Call Doug at 537-3909. (43-45)

NEED TO buy two NU-KSU football tickets. Call 539-0326. (45-46)

Captain Cosmo

By Doug Yearout

Bradley

By Mich Johnson

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Engineering college receives funds for robotics research

By LAURI DIEHL
Collegian Reporter

K-State has received $47,292 in matching funds from the Kansas Department of Economic Development to be used for robotics research in the College of Engineering.

Members of the mechanical and electrical engineering faculty are doing the robotics research. Garth Thompson, professor of mechanical engineering, said work on the project has already begun.

"A graduate student in both mechanical and electrical engineering is already doing the analysis that is necessary before the actual hardware work can be done," he said.

The research being conducted is on robots used primarily in manufacturing, Thompson said.

"We are not talking about having little R2-D2s running around," he said. "These are industrial robot arms that do repetitive tasks." Examples of such tasks would include loading and unloading, welding, simple assembly and testing operations.

Thompson said one area being researched is model-referenced adaptive control of robotic devices. This deals with the computations involved in moving the robotic arm from one location to another and performing some task.

"The computations that tell the robot exactly where it is are very expensive," he said. "This creates problems in getting fast and accurate movement."

Computers that can do such computations are prohibitively expensive, Thompson said.

"We hope the model-referenced control will result in less computations," he said. "It is a different strategy for computing the control."

Another area of research involves the use of vision systems to guide movement of robotic arms, Thompson said.

"There are a number of ways robotic arms can be operated," he said. "Commands (telling the robot how to move) can be put in through a computer terminal and stored so it can repeat the motions."

"Another way is a teach pendant, which is about the size of an electronic calculator and has buttons that each control a particular motion. The robot can store these commands and can be ordered to repeat the series of motions."

Thompson said the problem with the second system, which is often referred to as teaching by doing, is that each task must be programmed so the robot can be totally defined with a sequence of steps to perform the motions required.

"If the arm was moving 400 items from a conveyor belt to a pallet, it would have to place them in 400 different locations on the pallet," he said. "There would have to be 400 different sequences because you can't put in things like incremental movements."

Incremental movements could be programmed into the computer, but the object to be picked up by the robot arm must always be in the same location, Thompson pointed out.

The research at K-State will use vision sensors to allow the robot arm not only to locate items but differentiate between types of objects, Thompson said.

"We hope to get the robot to dynamically catch things," he said. "Right now, the robot goes out, and if the object is in a different location, it gets nothing."

The funds will help support classes as well as research. Thompson said several departments are interested in offering classes dealing with robotics.

"Industrial engineering is offering a class this semester," he said. "Next fall, there will be a mechanical engineering class on robotics analysis and control."

The funds K-State received from the Kansas Advanced Technology Commission of the Kansas Department of Economic Development were provided by the 1983 Legislature to improve high technology education and research in Kansas.

The legislature provided $610,000 to be divided between four Kansas universities. K-State can receive a total of $175,000. The University of Kansas can receive $220,000, Wichita State University can get $130,000 and Pittsburg State University $85,000.

To receive these funds, each project must get research grants from other sources. The universities may then submit proposals to the Advanced Technology Commission asking for matching funds amounting to two-thirds of the money received through grants.

Senate to allocate $10,000 Nichols account

By The Collegian Staff

Student Senate has $10,000 to spend.

In 1975, K-State students, through senate, committed $10,000 to be placed in an account earmarked for Nichols Gymnasium.

According to the bill passed by senate, the $10,000 was to be a sign of continuing support for Nichols. Jerry Katlin, student body president, said the bill was passed when the fate of Nichols was unsure.

"There were proposals to raze the building, renovate it, and to leave it alone," he said.

The bill stated the $10,000 was to act as a contribution towards expenditures associated with an art gallery section of the Nichols renovation. When the bill was passed, there were architectural plans for the renovation which included an art gallery, Katlin said.

Vincent Cool, associate director of University Facilities, said there are no plans for a separate art gallery in the current Nichols renovation.

"There is space in the atrium where art work can be hung," he said. "The problem there is a minimum of security, but most of the University's art is hung in minimum security areas."

Renovation has begun on Nichols. Katlin said senate must now decide on the best utilization of the $10,000.

"We're at a point where we must decide how to use the money," he said. "We are in the process of getting some people together to discuss this. What we really need is student feedback."

Katlin does not want the money allocated to the senate's contingencies fund.

"I would be opposed to it (being allocated to the fund) for two reasons," he said. "First, a $10,000 surplus might cause senate to fund groups once, but not fund them the next year because the extra money was a one-time thing. The other reason is that putting money back into contingencies would defeat the original purpose of the bill."

Action on the account must be taken soon, Katlin said.

"We have to look into this very quickly because Nichols is being rebuilt," he said. "Also, every year the account sits there, it deflates in value."

Katlin said he hopes to have taken some action by the end of his term.

For openers, this researcher studies jar lids

By KELLY CARLSON
Collegian Reporter

A K-State researcher has a possible solution to two common problems — how to make jar lids easier to open for the elderly and harder to open for children.

Frederick Rohles, director of the Institute for Environmental Research, said opening jars is a universal problem as is evident by the numerous devices available in stores for opening jars.

"The way we got started (on the jar lid research) is that about five years ago, we did a study on habitability among the elderly at an elderly housing complex in Wamego," he said.

"We asked them what was good about their living accommodations, what was bad and what they needed help with. About half the folks we talked to said that opening jars was a problem."

Rohles said the problem hit closer to home when his wife began suffering from minor arthritis symptoms and was unable to open a jar of baby food for their granddaughter.

In his study, Rohles tested the wrist-twisting strength of 100 men and 100 women, ages 62 to 91. He also studied 100 boys and 100 girls between the ages of 44 months to 58 months.

Eight lids of varying sizes were used, including peanut butter, instant coffee, salad dressing, tomato juice and soft drink lids.

The lids were connected to a device called a "torquemeter" that measured the amount of twisting force. A dynamometer also was used in checking grip strength and lateral prehension (pinching reaction).

Physiological factors such as sex, body weight, grasp, hand spread and lid size were taken into consideration as the subjects twisted the lids clockwise and counterclockwise.

Age was an important factor in the study, Rohles said. The older a person gets beyond age 62, the weaker he or she gets. The opposite is true for children.

Rohles said men were consistently stronger than women. Grasp and lateral prehension were the main contributors in the ability to open the lids, whereas hand length and direction of twisting made little difference.

As a result of the study, Rohles suggests the manufacturing of short jars with a large lid of about 2 3/4 to 3 inches in diameter.

"A container with a lid this size could be opened by the elderly, but would probably be too big for the hands of a four-year-old," Rohles said.

Rohles presented the results of his research to the Human Factors Society in Norfolk, Va. Oct. 13.

Research on other various factors such as shape, height ribbing of lids will follow on more sophisticated equipment, he said.

BUSHWACKER'S
THE FUNDRINKERY
50¢ OFF any lunch at the BUSHWACKER EATERY
Try our Smuggler Bar Burger 75¢
Open 11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m. & 5:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

FULL MEAL DEAL $1.89

Single Burger
French Fries
Drink
5 oz. Sundae
Try Our Drive-Up Window

Dairy Queen
brazier.

1015 N. 3rd
Manhattan

LET'S ALL GO TO DAIRY QUEEN!

"UPC... We do it right!"

UPCOMING EVENTS

Monday, Oct. 24

Arts—Richae Morrow, pencil drawings: Union 2nd Floor Showcase thru Nov. 4
Kaleidoscope—Nosferatu and Nosferatu the Vampyre: LT 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday, Oct. 25

Coffeehouse—Nooner—Boplicity, jazz fusion: Catskeller 12 noon.
Kaleidoscope—Nosferatu and Nosferatu the Vampyre: LT 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday, Oct. 26

Kaleidoscope—Das Boot: LT 7:30 p.m.

Thursday, Oct. 27

Issues & Ideas—LTAI—Linda Richter, The U.S. Stake in the Philippines: Catskeller 12 noon.
Kaleidoscope—Das Boot: LT 3:30, FH 7:30 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 28

Arts—Midday Arts—Halloween Make-up Demonstration: Courtyard 12 noon.
Feature Films—Tootsie: FH 7 & 9:30 p.m.
Feature Films—Alien: FH 12 mid-night.

Saturday, Oct. 29

Kaleidoscope—To Have and Have Not: FH 2 p.m.
Feature Films—Tootsie: FH 7 & 9:30 p.m.
Feature Films—Alien: FH 12 mid-night.

Sunday, Oct. 30

Kaleidoscope—To Have and Have Not: FH 2 & 7 p.m.

Reminder

Contemporary Czechoslovakian Print Makers in Union Art Gallery thru Oct. 28.

Spaces available at our events.

k-state union
program council

NOONER!!

This Tuesday!

Boplicity

Jazz Fusion

Catskeller, 12 noon

coming soon!

Jeff Howard
& Andre Kelley
Nov. 1-10

k-state union
upc coffeehouse

PENCIL DRAWINGS

BY RICHAE MORROW

K-State Union
2nd Floor Showcase
Through Nov. 4

k-state union
upc arts

Nosferatu

Halloween Double Feature
F.W. Murnau's 1922 Classic
&
Werner Herzog's 1979 Remake

"The two best vampire films ever made."

Mon. & Tues.
Oct. 24 & 25
Little Theatre
7:30 p.m. $1.50

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope Come in costume and get 50¢ off ticket price.

TRAPSHOOT

Sunday, October 30 2:00 p.m.
Tuttle Creek Trap Park

$10.50

k-state union
upc outdoor rec.

Sign up:
Oct. 21 thru Oct. 26
8 a.m.-4 p.m.
Union Activities Center

—50 targets attempted
—Loan guns available
—Rain or shine
—Shells available
TROPHIES WILL BE AWARDED

Das Boot

The other side of World War II.

The most talked about movie in Germany is now one of the most talked about movies in America.

Wednesday, Oct. 26
7:30 p.m. Little Theatre

Thursday, Oct. 27
3:30 p.m. Little Theatre
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall $1.50

Part of the International Film Series

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

Rated R

STRUT YOUR STUFF WITH THE CATS

'Telle'

Sophomore volleyball player leads team.

Sports, page 8

Reports compare mall profitability

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Reporter

A downtown mall would generate less profit than a suburban mall.

So much less, in fact, that participation by a private developer in the proposed downtown mall would be economically unfeasible without participation by the Department of Housing and Urban Development in the form of an Urban Development Action Grant.

That's what Community Development Director Gary Stith said Monday when questioned about the pro forma, or developer's cost lists, for the downtown mall and a similar facility at a suburban site.

The lists were compiled to help the city and mall developer Forest City Enterprises gain approval of a $10 million UDAG, Stith said. Because private developer participation would be unfeasible at the downtown location without HUD funds, the application can be justified, he said.

HUD officials requested the suburban mall pro forma at earlier meetings with the city and Forest City Vice President Mel Roebuck in Washington. Officials reviewed the documents "in great detail" and have determined there is a need for a UDAG based on the information provided in them, Stith said.

Stith denied that UDAG funds would be used to subsidize Forest City's profits.

Malls at either site would experience losses the first three years, the pro forma indicate. Stith said the losses in the early going could be attributed to lower occupancy by stores.

But what about rent for the two "anchor" stores in the project?

J.C. Penney would rent 67,000 square feet in the downtown mall for $3.85 per square foot annually, according to the pro forma. The Jones Store Co. would rent 72,000 square feet at $4.80 per square foot downtown.

The suburban mall pro forma, however, shows no similar rent figures for either store and lists no income figures resulting from the stores' rent payments.

Forest City representatives assumed that in a suburban site, the anchor stores would build their own facilities, something they won't do in a downtown store, Stith said last week.

Income generated from J.C. Penney's rent is listed in the downtown pro forma as $258,000 for each of the first 10 years. Rent proceeds from the Jones Store start at $259,000 and jump to $346,000 by the fourth year.

An announcement about the fate of Manhattan's UDAG is expected Friday.

Staff/Andy Schrock

Max Lerner delivered the school year's first All-University Convocation speech Monday in McCain Auditorium. Lerner warned the audience of the consequences of an aggressive Soviet Union and of living in a world fraught with terrorism.

Journalist talks of American character

By WAYNE PRICE
Collegian Reporter

We should be aware of the realities of the world and deal with them in a tough-minded way, noted journalist Max Lerner told an audience of about 350 people Monday morning in McCain Auditorium. Lerner was speaking during an All-University Convocation.

Lerner said what is upmost in everybody's mind is the tragedy and outrage over the recent bombing in Beirut that resulted in the deaths of nearly 150 U.S. soldiers. He said he wanted to use the killings as a frame for his talk about whether America is dying and whether America has what it takes to survive in the global landscape of terrorism.

"I'm neither an optimist nor pessimist. I'm a possibilist," he said. "I think it's going to be possible for us to resolve our problems. I think it's going to be possible for us to learn from our experiences and especially from our tragedies — tragedies like the one the night before last."

Lerner, dean of the nation's newspaper columnists and author of a number of books, has taught at Harvard, Williams, Sarah Lawrence, Brandeis, Pomona and the University of Florida. He is currently a Distinguished Professor of Human Behavior in the Graduate School of Human Behavior at the United States International University in San Diego.

Lerner said the problems now facing America involve two questions: What is the nature and grand strategy of the Soviet empire which feels confident that it will inherit the world it believes the West too weak to hold on to? And what are the strengths and abilities inside of our own society in light of the difficult world questions that confront us?

Referring to his book "Age of Overkill," published more than 20 years ago, Lerner said nations can die of rigidity, an excess of standards or no standards at all. Nations die because of a failure of nerve and will when confronting challenges from the outside, he said. They also die because of a failure of belief in their own institutions and failure to have confidence in themselves.

Lerner said any mistakes America has made can be helpful lessons.

Lerner said a lot of people are caught up in the American myth that "life tomorrow will be better for my sons and daughters than what it is for me today and what it was for my father and mother yesterday."

"The sad fact is we don't have equal access entirely for all," Lerner said. "We're only working at it. And we have to work at it very hard. It doesn't mean equality of results — it means equality of opportunity."

Lerner said he disagrees with the idea of competing political parties.

"In matters that I'm discussing now, I'm neither Republican nor Democrat, neither a liberal nor a conservative," Lerner said. "I think those are outmoded concepts. I think those are eroded concepts. Someone once said that a conservative is a liberal who has been mugged and a liberal is a conservative who has lost his job."

"If I had the choice between a tender-minded liberal and tough-minded conservative, I would choose the tough-minded conservative," Lerner said. "But I would always prefer to have a tough-minded liberal if I could find one."

Lerner said a reason why nations die is a failure to hold together in the face of both inside and outside challenges. He said the United States is a self-wounding nation in the sense that wounds are inflicted more by its own doing than by outside enemies.

Lerner gave several examples on how America is self-wounding.

America is undone by a dominant intellectual liberal elite media, he said, that is not tough-minded but tender-minded. America is also undone by the decline of excellence in our whole educational system, he said, because excellence is not stressed.

The lack of a sense of common goals between employer and employee has also hurt America, Lerner said.

"We are undone by the erosion of the work ethic," he said. "We are undone by the adversary relationship of employers and trade unions without any sense of a common goal on the economy as a whole."

Lerner illustrated American character with a story. He said three people, a Frenchman, Englishman and an American, were told they only had six months to live. The Frenchman wanted to look at women on the Riviera, the Englishman said he wanted to have tea with the queen and the American said he wanted a second opinion.

"What happened the other night, of course, happened from enemies outside but the question of how we take what happened from the hands of enemies outside depends on what we are within us, within our civilization," Lerner said.

Death toll nears 200; Marines stay in Beirut

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — One by one, the bodies of American Marines were pulled from their shattered Beirut command post Monday, pushing the toll to at least 191 killed in the bloodiest attack against the U.S. military since Vietnam.

In Washington, as a political furor built over the Marines' mission, President Reagan declared that they will stay because "we have vital interests in Lebanon."

Across America, meanwhile, military messengers fanned out to bring word to scores of families of their loved ones' deaths in the Sunday morning bombing, carried out by an unidentified suicide terrorist who detonated a bomb-rigged truck.

At least 23 French paratroopers also were killed in a similar, almost simultaneous attack at their command post.

Both Iran and Syria rejected U.S. suggestions that those countries were behind bombings. Syria's government newspaper described it instead as a blow by Lebanese nationalists against "occupation forces."

An anonymous telephone caller had claimed responsibility for the attacks in the name of the "Islamic Revolutionary Movement," a previously unknown group.

At Beirut International Airport, near the dust-shrouded rubble of the Marine post, command spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan told reporters: "There's nobody alive in there now. No, it would be a miracle."

New stories emerged of the horror of the first minutes after the explosion.

But Reagan, at a White House news conference, said of the Marines' role, "The mission remains and it remains unfulfilled."

Newscaster, passenger die in auto crash

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — She started as "Honeybee" and became one of NBC News' best-known correspondents, a hard-working and articulate woman from rural Pennsylvania who seemed destined for the top of her profession despite a life marred by personal tragedy.

Jessica Savitch died in an automobile accident Monday at the age of 35, still in pursuit of the "big things" in network TV. Killed along with her was New York Post executive Martin Fischbein, 34.

Her career, as her life, was a journey over peaks and valleys.

The professional low — though she didn't say so herself — may have been the time she spent, while a student at Ithaca College, as "Honeybee," a rock 'n' roll disc jockey in Rochester, N.Y.

At the height of her career, she substituted for John Chancellor and David Brinkley on the "NBC Nightly News" and anchored the Saturday edition of the program. She was favored by many to become the first woman to anchor a network evening newscast on her own.

As recently as August, she lost her weekend job to Connie Chung, who was hired away from the CBS station in Los Angeles, KNXT. Savitch was assigned the twice-a-night "NBC News Digest" report, with a promise that she would take over the Sunday "Nightly News" after the first of the year.

She went to work for NBC News in 1977.

Staff/Chris Stewart

Brisk pace

Dana Clark of Manhattan braves cool temperatures Monday afternoon as he jogs around the track at Memorial Stadium.

Marines arrive on troubled island

By The Associated Press

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados — About 50 U.S. Marines landed here Monday and immediately flew off in three helicopters. The American Embassy said the Marines might be used to help take Americans off the troubled island of Grenada.

An Associated Press reporter saw the Marines, in combat gear, get off a large white U.S. Navy transport plane at Bridgetown's Grantley Adams International Airport and board the two Sea King transport helicopters and a Marine Huey helicopter gunship.

The three helicopters departed at 5 p.m., heading north across the runway and then veering south. It could not be immediately determined if they were headed for Grenada, which is southwest.

"What you are seeing could be used as part one of the options to effect a departure of the Americans (from Grenada) and to ensure their security," U.S. Embassy spokesman Mike Morgan said.

Grenada's new military regime kept its airport closed to commercial traffic Monday, frustrating efforts to arrange the departure of at least 200 Americans who want to leave.

Government-owned Radio Free Grenada said Sunday the airport would open on Monday, but it later announced that the ruling military council feared an invasion by American, British and neighboring Caribbean forces.

Judge overturns New Jersey law; calls moment of silence 'prayer'

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, N.J. — A federal judge on Monday struck down a state law requiring a daily minute of silence in public schools, ruling the measure was unconstitutional because it forced students and teachers into a "posture of prayer."

The law was the only one of its kind in the country which had not previously been overturned, according to the American Civil Liberties Union, which represented an Edison high school teacher disciplined for refusing to implement the silent minute. The ACLU challenged the New Jersey law as a thinly veiled attempt to circumvent First Amendment guarantees of separation of church and state.

U.S. District Judge Dickinson R. Debevoise agreed, ruling "the law does not have a bona fide secular purpose and, in fact, has a religious purpose. It advances the religion of some persons by mandating a period when all students and teachers must assume the traditional posture of prayer of some religious groups..."

He permanently barred the state from putting the law into effect, even though legislators had insisted it was intended only to provide a moment for silent reflection.

Jeffrey May, the teacher who refused to observe the silent minute in his home room class because he believed it was unconstitutional, said he felt "great" about the ruling.

"My career can continue. There is a possibility it might have come to an abrupt end," said May, adding he will ask Edison officials to remove from his file a letter charging him with insubordination and conduct unbecoming a teacher.

Jeffrey Fogel, director of the New Jersey chapter of the ACLU, said the ruling "certainly sends a message around the country."

The ACLU said the New Jersey law was unique in part because recent court decisions overturned similar statutes in New Mexico and Tennessee. Debevoise noted that omission of the word "prayer" from the New Jersey law did not distinguish it from other cases because it appeared to be "a cosmetic change only."

The sponsor of the law, Democratic Assemblyman James Zangari of Essex, said he was "very disappointed" that "a single judge can deny us the right to think. He's assuming that what somebody's thinking is unconstitutional."

Zangari said he would ask his colleagues in the Legislature to appeal the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary. The high court this year overturned a Texas community's school prayer order.

The New Jersey silent minute law was enacted Dec. 16 over the veto of Gov. Thomas H. Kean, and was implemented across the state.

Graduate programs assist students; research benefits undergraduates

By ALAN STOLFUS
Government Editor

K-State administrators believe undergraduate and graduate studies go hand in hand.

Undergraduate studies will be improved by high quality graduate studies, and the quality of graduate studies depends on students entering the programs.

That general response came out when several University administrators were asked to comment on the Board of Regents statement which stressed undergraduate studies over graduate studies.

Robert Kruh, dean of the Graduate School, said undergraduate education is a primary concern at K-State because there is a greater number of undergraduate students.

"But I want to quickly add it's the graduate programs and research programs that make this school a true university."

"A university has a responsibility to add to the knowledge base and that's done by doing research," Kruh said.

Undergraduates are taught by professors who are also performing experiments, he said. What the professors discover is transferred in the classroom so undergraduates benefit from research at the graduate level.

Kruh agreed with limiting the increase of graduate programs because of tight funding but pointed out graduate and research program investments have brought a lot of money into the state.

The regents statement reads that only in "conditions of most compelling need, consideration will be given to new programs if all developmental, first-year and recurring costs would be assumed through internal reallocations or non-state, non-student fee funding from external sources."

Provost Owen Koeppel said graduate studies are just as important as undergraduate studies because the University has three established goals — instruction, research and extension.

New degrees can be created without additional costs, Koeppel said, and cited the textile chemistry degree in the College of Home Economics. No new courses were added but the degree was established by combining courses from the chemistry and textile industry curriculums.

"Degrees don't cost money, but courses do. We could eliminate degrees but still not save any money," he said.

Donald Rathbone, dean of the College of Engineering, said engineering has emphasized undergraduate studies for the past 80 to 100 years and "won't ever go away from that. That doesn't mean we won't go away from a strong graduate level either."

"To develop a good graduate program you need to have a good feeder program — an undergraduate program," he said.

The regents statement shouldn't have too much effect on the engineering college, because Rathbone said the college already has established graduate programs in its departments.

The same is true for the College of Agriculture.

John Dunbar, dean of the agriculture college and director of the experiment station, said the college's emphasis has always been strong on undergraduate studies and high-quality graduate programs.

Judge halts cocaine trial

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — John Z. De Lorean's Nov. 1 cocaine trafficking trial was delayed again Monday by a federal judge who accused CBS News of interfering with the judicial process by broadcasting secret FBI surveillance videotapes of his arrest.

"The CBS interference in that process may have devastating effects," U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi said. "Justice and the judicial system may have been severely compromised."

The judge said he would have to think about when the trial, which had been delayed four other times, could start.

"I do not have a vested interest in the outcome — the verdict of guilt or innocence," Takasugi said. "But I am required to protect the (judicial) process."

Earlier Monday, U.S. Justice Department spokesman John Russell said in Washington that an investigation had been launched into who leaked the surveillance tapes in which undercover agents present De Lorean with a suitcase purportedly containing cocaine.

Russell refused to elaborate on the investigation.

In court, Takasugi appeared shaken by developments over the weekend in which he banned the broadcast of the videotapes but was overruled by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The tapes were broadcast nationally on the "CBS Evening News."

"In the thirst of selling news," the judge said from the bench, "when CBS and its (Los Angeles) affiliate KNXT obtained access to the government's surveillance tapes through unauthorized means, was it truly asking too much in view of an individual's right to a fair trial to take a moral pause...to responsibly withhold its disclosure for just a week?"

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BLOODMOBILE COLLECTION is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today through Friday on the Union second floor. Walk-ins will be accepted.

PRE-NURSING, MED TECH AND PRE-PHYSICAL THERAPY STUDENTS should sign up to work at the Bloodmobile in the dean's office, Eisenhower Hall.

KSU AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS are available in Anderson Hall 104 or in the SGS office and are due Wednesday.

MARKETING CLUB MEMBERS: Sign up now in the marketing department office for the field trip to Kansas City Nov. 3. For more information see the marketing club bulletin board.

SIGMA DELTA PI will be selling T-shirts from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. today through Nov. 1 outside Eisenhower 106. Anyone is welcome to look at sample shirts.

UNIVERSITY FOR MAN REGISTRATION is from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. today and tomorrow in the Union.

STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS: All undergraduate students in a health-related degree program are eligible to apply for a Student Cancer Research Award of $500. These awards have been made available by the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Division of Biology. Applications are now available in Ackert 235. Deadline is Nov. 28.

TODAY

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Annie Lou (Cowan) Rowlette at 10 a.m. in Blue-mont 364.

FACULTY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at noon in the International Student Center. Dave Wiley of Campus Crusade for Christ will speak.

RESTAURANT MANAGEMENT CLUB meets at 6:30 p.m. in Justin 110.

PRE-NURSING, PRE-PHYSICAL THERAPY, PRE-PHARMACY AND MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY STUDENTS: Bob Evans, director of student financial assistance, will speak about "Financing your Education in a Health Professions Program" at 6:30 p.m. in Union 205.

PRE-LAW CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union stateroom 3 to discuss tax law and accounting.

WHEAT STATE AGRONOMY CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 313.

DATA PROCESSING MANAGEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at 7 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

NATIONAL AGRI-MARKETING ASSOCIATION meets at 7 p.m. in Union 207. The National Careers chairman will be there. Dress up for a Royal Purple picture.

FELLOWSHIP OF CHRISTIAN ATHLETES meets at 8:30 p.m. in Danforth Chapel.

PHI ALPHA THETA meets at 11 a.m. in Eisenhower 204.

ASSN. OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union stateroom 3.

ADULT AND OCCUPATIONAL GRADUATE CLUB meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union 203 for a rap session.

SOCIETY OF PROFESSIONAL JOURNALISTS, SIGMA DELTA CHI meets at 4 p.m. in the JMC library for a short business meeting.

CLOTHING AND RETAIL INTEREST GROUP meets at 5 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

KSU RESTAURANT CLUB meets at 6:30 p.m. in the Justin Hall lounge.

HORTICULTURE THERAPY CLUB meets at 6:30 p.m. in Waters 09.

PEP COORDINATING COUNCIL meets at 8 p.m. in Union 205.

SHE DU'S meet at 9 p.m. at the Delta Upsilon house.

SPURS meets at 9 p.m. in Union 206.

Tuesday is
Ladies Nite
1 free drink
&
$1 bar drinks
(all night, ladies!)
at
COWBOY PALACE
Where it don't make
no difference
209 Payne 539-9828
4:00pm to 3:00am

Brother's
AGGIEVILLE
TODAY — Ladies get
50¢ STEINS
1 p.m. to Midnight
WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY
Don't Miss Rock 'n Roll by
THE JACKS
Only 6 Days Until BROTHER'S 11th ANNUAL
HALLOWEEN PARTY!
1120 Moro 539-9064

Calhoun's
Your Family Clothing Store
1110 WESTLOOP
Mon.-Fri. 9-8:00
Sat. 9-6:00
Sun. 12-5:00

The Well-Dressed Wardrobe.

Don't Miss
PRAIRIE STAR BAND
From Kansas City
at
BLUE RIVER PUB
Wed., Oct. 26th through Sat., Oct. 29
Saturday—Costume Contest
Bud Light Fright Night
Get a free mug for attending!!
Thursday—50¢ Fishbowl Night
$2.00 Cover Charge

Kansas State COLLEGIAN
THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.
OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.
SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.
SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.
THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.
Editor: Paul Hanson
Managing Editor: Sandy Lang
Photography Editor: Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager: John McGrath

MCCAIN
AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD
the piano King
of Kansas City Swing...
Jay "hootie" mc shann
a Mid-America Arts Alliance program
Friday, October, 28, 8pm.
Tickets Available at McCain Box Office, noon-5 p.m. M-F, 532-6428
This program is made possible by support from the Kansas Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts, through participation in Mid-America Arts Alliance, a regional arts organization.

FOUNTAIN FALLS TROPICAL FISH SHOP
We Have In Stock Aquariums from 10 to 90 Gallons and Don't Forget All Fish Are Guaranteed One Week
Ask About Our Layaway Plan
2007 Ft. Riley Blvd 539-1676 M.-S. 10:30-6:00
Sun. 12:00-5:00

BALLARD'S BACKROOM SPECIALS!!
Ladies Fashion Sweat Suits $16<sup>95</sup>
(reg. to $22.95)
Crewnecks & sweatpants $5<sup>00</sup>
(reg. $8.50)
Topstitch Football Jerseys and Baseball Undershirts $4<sup>00</sup>
Ballard's
IN AGGIEVILLE

THE MEN OF PI KAPPA ALPHA
and
the SWEETHEARTS OF THE SHIELD AND DIAMOND would like to express our deepest appreciation to the following people, groups and businesses for making the
"1983 PIKE LITTLE SISTER OLYMPICS"
A Great Success
Balfour House of Kansas
Sports Fanatic
Miller Brewing Company
B and B Distributing
City of Manhattan
Manhattan Fire Dept.
Pizza Hut
KSU Rec. Services
Mom Potter (ADPI)
Mom Miller (Pike)
Fred Lechner
Tom Wilkerson
And a special thanks to all participating houses and their little sister organizations.

alpha Chi
BUD LIGHT
Vote for your candidate in the Union
today & tomorrow
8:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m.
Butch Lacey—Acacia
Scott Schaake—Alpha Gamma Rho
Rex Woodell—Alpha Kappa Lambda
Darrin Dressler—Alpha Tau Omega
Phil Bullinger—Beta Sigma Psi
Keith Ely—Delta Sigma Phi
Bob Ring—Delta Tau Delta
Brian Smith—Delta Upsilon
Mike Hadacheck—Farmhouse
Rich Dale—Kappa Sigma
Joe Jerome—Lambda Chi Alpha
Brad Everett—Phi Delta Theta
Brian Wendelburg—Phi Gamma Delta
Rob Perszyk—Phi Kappa Tau
Neil Lansdowne—Phi Kappa Theta
Mike McCluskey—Pi Kappa Alpha
Brent Grauberger—Pi Kappa Phi
Bill Stevenson—Sigma Alpha Epsilon
Kevin Bowen—Sigma Chi
Mike Ward—Sigma
Tom Griffith—Sigma Phi Epsilon
Monte Griffith—Tau Kappa Epsilon
Dan Klassen—Triangle
Silver coins count as positive votes and pennies and bills count as negative.

Congress questions U.S. purpose in Lebanon

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — Shocked and angered by the violence in Beirut, members of Congress demanded Monday the Reagan administration provide a clear explanation of the U.S. purpose there. But most stopped short of calling for an immediate withdrawal.
"I don't think it is a time for Americans to back down from terrorism," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told reporters. "But I think it is time we give the reasons we're over there."

"The president needs to clearly define for the American people why their boys are being sent to die in Lebanon," Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia told the Senate.
Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee predicted a congressional reassessment of U.S. policy in the Middle East as a result of the bombing that devastated U.S. Marines in their barracks at the Beirut airport early Sunday.
"We must find a way to share the burden of peacekeeping," Baker said. "We should not leave at the point of a gun, and I would stoutly resist that."

Baker said his main duty was to "try to keep this thing from turning into a political football."
The bombing, the bloodiest U.S. military loss since Vietnam, came four weeks after the Senate completed congressional action on a hotly disputed resolution authorizing the Marines to remain part of a multinational peacekeeping force in Lebanon for another 18 months.
As both houses of Congress prepared to adjourn for the day in memory of the fallen Marines, Secretary of State George Shultz arranged separate closed-door briefings for the Senate and House. Members of the congressional foreign-affairs committees huddled with Middle East experts, including former Undersecretary of State Joseph Sisco.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said the Armed Services Committee, which he chairs, will hold a hearing today for an explanation of how the administration plans to improve the Marines' security in Beirut.

Slattery defends U.S. role but cites safety as priority

By The Collegian Staff
Second District Congressman Jim Slattery said Monday the nation's top priority is protecting the remaining U.S. troops in Beirut after Sunday's attack on the Marine compound, but he favored their continued involvement in the peacekeeping force.
"I think that our number one priority is protecting the Marines that are there and if that means to secure their safety by removing them to the ships offshore, then let's do that," Slattery said during a telephone interview.
"I am sick and tired of our troops being sitting ducks in Beirut. But I'm not in the position to ask for their removal. We should have them on the ships offshore if we can't have them safe on shore," he said.
Slattery said he shares the concern of "many people of the Midwest" about the presence of U.S. troops in Beirut.

"I don't think (the question of why the troops are there) has been answered," he said.
Slattery said the United States has to provide the incentive for a Middle East settlement and any solution would have to involve all of the Middle East nations.
After having spent Sunday with his family, Slattery said he had not had the chance to confer with other Congressional members about the attack. But the congressman said he believes there will be a growing number of congressmen calling for the removal of U.S. troops from Beirut.
The War Powers Act gives President Reagan the "latitude to respond to these type of situations. The president has to have the authority to respond to these type of situations," Slattery said.
"The Congress is not tying the hands of the president on this question."

Military informs families of Beirut casualties

By The Associated Press
The sounds of grief across America on Monday were car doors slamming and doorbells ringing as Marine officers and Navy chaplains called at the homes of families who lost sons and brothers and fathers in the weekend bombing in Beirut.
The relatives of servicemen who had been killed reacted in anger and anguish after the visits by chaplains and other officers who personally bore the sorrowful news.
"As soon as I saw those two marines coming up to the door, I knew," said Letha Kimm of Atlantic, Iowa, after learning that her son, Marine Sgt. Edward Kimm, 33, was dead. "I don't even know why they had to be over there."

An older son, Clarence Kimm, was killed in Vietnam in 1967. "I didn't expect to lose two boys," Mrs. Kimm said.
"In his last letter, he was just telling us about what he was doing and that he would be coming home in November," Dorothy Olson of Rockford, Ill., said after being told that her stepson, Lance Cpl. John Tishmack, 19, of Minneapolis had been killed.
"He had no business over there. But he wanted to go," Shirley Trahan said after being notified that her son, Pfc. Lex David Trahan, 19, was among those killed. "It's like a bad dream," she said.
She said her son had volunteered for duty in Lebanon despite her misgivings. "I had mixed feelings," she said. "He could see a purpose in being there. I know, knowing him. He loved the Marine Corps. He was very proud of it."

There were delays in the grim news reaching the families, partly because the Marines' personnel records were destroyed in the truck-bombing that demolished their barracks, and partly because of the difficulty in identifying the bodies.
In some homes, however, the laughter of relief broke the tension when families heard their loved ones were safe. Shirley Erikson's son called her in Westland, Mich., to let her know he was safe. Wayne Barker of Chandler, Ariz., got a similar call from his brother.
Katie Morrison of Poughkeepsie,

N.Y., recognized her son, conscious but being carried on a stretcher, in an Associated Press photograph printed in the Poughkeepsie Journal. "He's alive, he's alive, at least he's alive," she said.
Other families, however, waited to hear as names of the victims slowly trickled out Monday afternoon. Some prayed. Some tried to keep busy. All tried not to listen for the dreaded slam of the car door or knock at the front door.
Marine officials told frantic families calling Washington that they would be notified only in cases of death or injury; there would be no official announcements about Marines who were unhurt.

DARK HORSE

TAVERN

TUESDAY

2 fers

7-10

619 N. Manhattan

John's Pizzeria

RESTAURANT

TONIGHT

TACO, SANCHO & NACHO BUFFET

5:30-7:30 p.m.

All you can eat

RAMADA INN

BUSHWACKER'S

• THE • FUNDRINKERY

Tuesday

Bushwacker Blaster

nite—$1.25 all nite

Happy Hour: 4-9

2 Fers on Hiballs

75¢ draws $2 blended drinks

Feeling the homework crunch?

Drink of the Week:

Corn Shucker

A reciprocating Club

531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

comprehensive health associates

- free pregnancy tests
- outpatient abortion services
- alternatives counseling
- referrals
- gynecology
- contraception

1-415 & Bee Overland Park 642-3103

Support the March of Dimes

Birth Defects Foundation

MC PRINT

Instant printing

COPIES

STAT REDUCTIONS & ENLARGEMENTS

1211 Moro 539-5749

AT PIÑATA:

LUNCH WITH US!

99¢ to $1.80

Choose from 6 featured "Special" Specials

Changed Daily Mon.-Fri. 11-2

You Won't Pay Over $1.80!

(Drinks not included)

Piñata.

Open Mon.-Sat. 11-11, Sun. 11-10

Bluemont and North Manhattan

539-3166

STUDENT SEASON BASKETBALL TICKETS

The following plan was adopted by Student Senate and approved by Intercollegiate Athletic Council for the sale of student season basketball tickets

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY Basketball Schedule - 1983-84
Nov	17	Thu	Brandon Univ.	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	25	Fri	Tribune Charities Holiday Classic
	26	Sat	(Utah Illinois Loyola of Chicago)
			at Rosemont, IL
	29	Tue	Oral Roberts University	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
Dec	3	Sat	U.S. International	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	7	Wed	Centenary	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	10	Sat	Wisconsin	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	17	Sat	Nevada Las Vegas	at Las Vegas	10:05 p.m.
	21	Wed	Indiana	at Bloomington	6:30 p.m.
	23	Fri	California State-Northridge	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
Jan	4	Wed	Texas	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	7	Sat	Northern Iowa	at Cedar Falls	7:30 p.m.
	12	Thu	Eastern Washington	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	14	Sat	Southern Colorado	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	18	Wed	Oklahoma State	at Stillwater	7:35 p.m.
	21	Sat	Oklahoma	at Manhattan	2:10 p.m.
	25	Wed	Colorado	at Boulder	9:05 p.m.
	28	Sat	Kansas	at Lawrence	4:10 p.m.
Feb	1	Wed	Iowa State	at Manhattan	8:10 p.m.
	4	Sat	Nebraska	at Manhattan	4:10 p.m.
	8	Wed	Missouri	at Columbia	8:05 p.m.
	11	Sat	Oklahoma	at Norman	4:00 p.m.
	15	Wed	Colorado	at Manhattan	8:10 p.m.
	18	Sat	Oklahoma State	at Manhattan	2:05 p.m.
	22	Wed	Iowa State	at Ames	7:35 p.m.
	25	Sat	Kansas	at Manhattan	2:05 p.m.
	29	Wed	Nebraska	at Lincoln	7:35 p.m.
Mar	3	Sat	Missouri	at Manhattan	2:05 p.m.
	6	Tue	Big 8 Tournament 1st Round	at campus sites
	9	Fri	Big 8 Tournament Semis	at Kansas City
	10	Sat	Big 8 Tournament Finals	at Kansas City

- There will be three types of basketball tickets:
  - Group Reserved
  - Individual Reserved
  - Non-reserved
- One ticket will be sold per fee card with the exception of buying for a non-student spouse, then two may be purchased with one fee card. A married student with a student spouse may buy two tickets but a fee card for both student and student spouse is required.
- The total allotted tickets for the reserve section will be divided into 85% for Group Reserved and 15% for Individual Reserved.
- Tickets for the Group Reserved will be applied for on Monday and Tuesday, October 31 and November 1 in which a lottery system will be in effect.
  - Students will be able to go to the ticket window in Ahearn Fieldhouse where they can fill out an application for no more than 20 tickets and leave the respective fee cards with the person at the ticket window. There will be no guarantee all 20 tickets will be together.
  - While students are applying for Group Reserved Tickets, they will also be asked to draw a number which will be placed on their envelope at that time. This number will be this group's number for lottery purposes.
  - At the end of the two day period, the ticket window will be closed for Group Reserved ticket applications and the Athletic Department will proceed in distributing tickets, starting with the lowest numbered application and moving to higher numbers until the entire 85% of the reserved tickets are allotted. Tickets for Individual Reserved and Group Reserved will be allocated on a 50/50 preference basis, until Individual Reserved are sold.
  - The Athletic Department will notify the Collegian for publication on November 2 the highest numbered application that will receive tickets. Students with numbers lower than the number printed will know that they will receive tickets.
  - Students with numbers higher than the published number can pick up their fee cards from 9:00 a.m.-4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, November 2-4.
  - On Sunday afternoon November 6, the Individual Reserved and Non-Reserved tickets will be sold. Only one ticket per person with each fee card, unless a married student who may purchase for spouse.
    - Non-reserved tickets will be sold at the east ticket window of Ahearn Fieldhouse from 2:00-4:00 p.m. on November 6.
    - Individual Reserved tickets will be sold at the north ticket window of Ahearn Fieldhouse from 2:00-4:00 p.m. on November 6.
    - Any type of "ROLL CALL" or line system will be the responsibility of the S.G.A. Basketball Ticket Sales Committee.

RESERVED
and
NON-RESERVED
$42.25

Does not include the games on Dec. 23 and Jan. 4. Individual student tickets for these games will be available at a later date.

No more phone rate increases

When the Federal Communications Commission broke up AT&T, we thought it was probably a good thing. After all, we surmised, the breakup of a monopoly should result in more competition and lower rates.

Then Southwestern Bell requested a $213.7 million rate hike which would raise every customer's monthly phone bill by $2. But there was a consolation. After all, the long-distance bills would decrease and soothe aching wallets.

But now even that comfort has been taken away. AT&T Communications has brought a $23.655 million rate hike request before the Kansas Corporation Commission. The proposal would raise the initial long-distance minute rate by 3 to 10 cents; raise the per-minute rate by 8 cents; reduce the evening, night and weekend discount rates; increase the cost of using WATS by about 31 percent; and increase the price of private business and government line rates in two steps next year.

KCC has suspended the proposal until June. There is also a national long-distance rate increase proposal on hold until next year.

We want to see justification for the sudden surge in proposals for rate hikes. We were told that the breakup would benefit us in the form of lower long-distance rates. We see only increased rates and questionable service in all facets of telephone communications.

KCC was "totally surprised" by the amount of the request. Kansans should be surprised and outraged that the request was made at all. What is AT&T doing with its money? We had been told by its spokesmen that the local rates would increase but that the long-distance would decrease.

We want to see the decrease in long-distance rates that AT&T promised. KCC should take a stand on this and deny the rate request by AT&T, as well as substantially cut Southwestern Bell's request.

We should not be pawns for the money games AT&T wants to play. If the corporation is experiencing money problems, it should first examine its own financial management. It is time we stopped paying for the errors of corporations.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

Middle East needs careful thought

BRAD GILLISPIE
Editorial Page Editor

Americans are becoming increasingly fond of believing that they can live within their own borders and not be affected by the doings of other countries. The most recent example of this is the reaction to the bombing in Lebanon.

The gut reaction to the bombing and the resulting deaths of (at latest count) more than 180 Marines was to cry out for the withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Lebanon. The demand is justified if one is only looking at the short-term result.

From the short-term viewpoint, the United States has no right to step into the affairs of other nations when our own rights and interests are not directly affected by the conflict. Why should we become involved in Lebanon if the Lebanese army, Syrians, Druse, Muslims and Christians want to battle it out?

There would be few immediate consequences of the resulting battle and fall of the Lebanese government should the United States pull out and leave the government to fend for itself.

However, while the American people and even most politicians are looking at the short term, the Reagan administration is looking at the long-term consequences. As one Republican congressional leader put it, there is no right move to make. Whatever we do now will be wrong in one way or another.

The Middle East has been the hot box of the world since the formation of the nation of Israel in 1947. The first conflict occurred five months after the United Nations officially recognized Israel, when Jordanian and Egyptian forces invaded the newly formed country. Since that time, there have been numerous skirmishes and two open wars between the nations of the Middle East.

Contrary to popular opinion, the battle in Lebanon is not merely a civil war between factions in that country. It is an extension of the same conflict that has been flaring up in that region.

The current battle is between Syria, via the Druse militia, and the Lebanese government. Syria is fighting to gain control of the border between Lebanon and Israel. The Syrians do not want the entire physical territory of Lebanon; they only want political control of the nation in order to put military installations nearer to Israel. And they now have the military strength, due to the Soviet Union's latest shipment of arms to Syria, which includes anti-aircraft installations and surface-to-surface missiles never before deployed outside of the Eastern bloc nations.

The issue the Reagan administration is most concerned about now is world peace. Most people speculate that the next major war will begin in the Middle East. And everybody in the United States should be conscious of the fact that our country will be pulled into it, along with the Soviet Union, directly or indirectly. And in the interest of world peace, Reagan is attempting to prevent the battles from becoming an all-out war. One can easily question whether he is doing it in the right manner.

If the United States should pull out of Lebanon and leave the area, the Lebanese government will quickly fall and Syria will exert its influence in the nation. The new SS-21 missiles which Syria received from the Soviet Union will be deployed near the Lebanon-Israel border and will easily be able to strike Israeli population centers.

Even with the new leadership in Israel, which is more reluctant than Begin to fight wars outside of its own borders, it will not take long before the Israelis are adequately provoked to fight back against the Syrians. They will again enter Lebanese territory. The action would have the potential to pull other Arab nations into a war.

When war broke out between Israel and the Arab nations of Egypt, Syria and Jordan in 1967, and again in 1973 when the Egyptian and Syrian forces invaded Israel, the Suez Canal was shut off to oil shipments. This had a great effect on the oil supply from the Middle East to the Western world. The United States was seriously hit by these wars.

The United States would be affected by the fall of the Lebanese government. The fall of Lebanon and the resulting border war between Syria and Israel could eventually involve the Soviet Union, the United States, and nearly every other nation in the world in one way or another, either militarily through troops and arms deployment or financially through trade problems.

We need to think long and hard before we decide on pulling the Marines out and leaving the nations to settle their own differences. I do not advocate leaving the same number of troops in Lebanon, nor do I advocate pulling all of the Marines out. Something needs to be done, either a withdrawal or a dramatic increase in the Marine force in Lebanon. The United States will suffer from any move our leaders take. We have stepped into a no-win situation which requires an immediate decision.

However, the situation is much more serious and sensitive than the average person in America sees it to be. While we may question our leaders' judgment in leaving the troops in Lebanon, we must acknowledge the fact that they have studied the situation and are much more aware of the consequences than we are.

They are looking at all sides of the issue and examining the available options. We should do the same. Most mistakes are made when one reacts on the spur of the moment, driven by pure emotion. We were all guilty of that when we first heard of the killing of the Marines. But now we must give the situation the careful consideration it deserves.

Letters

Shooting Star not second-rate band

Editor,

I am writing on behalf of many men on my floor in regard to "Stray Cats a UPC accomplishment." Anton refers to Shooting Star as having virtually unknown record releases. Most of the people that I've talked to own at least one Shooting Star album and would jump at the chance to see them in concert. I think making Shooting Star out to be a second-rate pick is a joke. If they have four albums out they must be doing something right. I also think if they were brought back here, it would be a somewhat different story as far as ticket sales. It should be noted that Shooting Star came in December of 1981 when the band had only two albums out, much like the Stray Cats. I am not cutting down the Stray Cats, but I, like Jim Dick, think there could have been a better choice.

Also, the use of the Billboard Magazine rating really has no use here in the Midwest, since the East and West coasts have bigger markets. Joan Jett made the Billboard chart and look at how well she went over here.

One last thing, why is the advertising claim for the Stray Cats claiming them to be "the party band of the year?" Is that a joke?

Bill Mechler
Sophomore in construction science and 17 others

Here and now briefs

WASHINGTON — If Oct. 11-22 marked the culmination of "hot autumn" in Western Europe's capitals, European disarmament activists aren't admitting it. For one, they insist, demonstrations planned for Britain, West Germany and the Netherlands won't turn nasty. If violence breaks out, they say, West Berlin is the likely locale; the city is teeming with conscientious objectors.

...

New lease on life: Former senator Eugene McCarthy, who may run for the Democratic presidential nomination yet again, says his recent heart attack has given him a whole new approach to politics.

"People don't criticize me the way they once did," McCarthy told us. "They give me sympathy."

...

Barely two months ago, Robert Pastor visited Interior Minister Tomas Borge and other Nicaraguan officials in Managua during a fact-finding expedition through Central America. Pastor's visit was somewhat extraordinary, since the University of Maryland researcher was unofficially representing a U.S. presidential candidate, Walter Mondale.

Unfortunately, it's too soon to conclude that a Mondale presidency would herald a dramatic departure from current U.S. policies in Central America. Though Mondale seems to advocate a more "conciliatory" approach to leftist forces in the region, his selection of counselors has given reason for doubt.

Mondale's campaign rhetoric has favored diplomacy over belligerence. Like most of his competitors for the Democratic nomination, he has advocated direct talks with El Salvador's guerrillas and denounced covert U.S. aid for anti-Sandinista "contras." According to one adviser, Mondale would show more respect than Reagan for the Contadora group's efforts and congressional linkage of foreign assistance and human rights.

For guidance, Mondale has turned to Pastor, a deputy to former national adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, and ex-assistant secretary of state Viron "Pete" Vaky. Both men would likely manage Latin American policy in a Mondale administration — though, one senior House committee aide said, not always in concert.

Hence, Mondale's emerging Central American policies may be vulnerable to what might be called "the Brzezinski factor," named after the hard-line and domineering former Carter aide. If Brzezinski's proteges gain the upper hand in foreign policy as they did in the Carter administration, Washington may change its steps, but not its partners, in Central America.

...

President Reagan's Sept. 24 speech on the Korean Air Lines disaster, broadcast via the Voice of America, was, for The Financial Times of London's Tokyo correspondent, Jurek Martin, symptomatic of VOA's metamorphosis into "no more than a cheap instrument of propaganda."

"VOA is being forced down by its own hand to depths hitherto the unique preserves of Radio Moscow and Pyongyang," wrote Martin. "...it is stuffed with anti-Soviet diatribes and homilies on the superior way of American life... (The VOA) is doing the U.S. no service in a world community which has a far deeper appreciation of U.S. values... than the current American regime seems to understand."

...

So much for the electronic battlefield. In a study on "computer survivability" for the Washington, D.C.-based National Defense University, Col. Richard Debastiani found that computer operators would be unable to manipulate their machines "effectively in... chemical protective gear." Moreover, the author warned, "current shelter designs lack adequate protection against (a nuclear, chemical and biological) threat."

...

Good news for Republicans: Four out of five voters under 24 cannot name a single candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, according to a recent ABC News poll. Among voters aged 24 to 29, the percentage is only slightly better — two in three. Only among voters over 60 was a majority able to name a single candidate.

...

It appears that the Reagan administration has done what two years, a million dollars and half of Congress could not.

In 1981, the Federal Trade Commission required used-car dealers to list, on a window sticker, the defects and warranty terms of every auto for sale. Subsequently, the National Automobile Dealers Association, armed with contributions from its members, successfully won a congressional veto of the FTC rule in one of the most highly-publicized episodes of special-interest arm-twisting. Then, last spring, a coalition of consumer groups persuaded the Supreme Court to declare the legislative veto unconstitutional.

Yet, now that the FTC has seen its authority vindicated, it appears unlikely to reinstate the used-car requirements.

Thanks from Castle Crusade

Editor,

Castle Crusade, the committee to save Nichols, would like to thank the student body, faculty, and University officials for their efforts to preserve that landmark. We extend a personal thank you to President Acker for supporting this crusade, and hope this action will set a strong precedent for future decisions concerning environmental quality on the K-State campus.

K-State is a blend of old and new, reflecting the changes that have occurred over the years. It reminds us that we have a great past and a firm foundation on which to build. In order to know where we are going we must know where we've been. One of our goals, as an organization, is to preserve our past and bring an awareness of it to the University community.

The saving of Nichols is an impressive start. In the future, this organization will work to promote the environmental guidelines, set forth by the Long Range Planning Committee, which give guidance to future expansion and maintenance of K-State.

Castle Crusade also promotes continued student awareness and involvement in campus issues of this nature. If students care, they can make a difference.

Barbara Schilling
Fifth-year student in architecture and president of Castle Crusade

U.S. dollars in El Salvador

Editor,

I wept when I saw on TV the dead and bloody bodies of women and children strewn over a street in a Salvadorean village after government planes there dropped 500-pound bombs.

I wrote the president and said that I objected to my tax dollars being used to arm and aid that government, which we are now doing.

As an ordinary citizen, with few in authority that will listen or do anything, I appeal to you to print this letter, so that our fellow citizens might be moved to write the president directly and object to this use of our tax dollars.

I know you retain the ideals of a Jeffersonian free press — please help me in this.

Ken Tomkinson
Vero Beach, Fla.

State official Brier analyzes mail voting

By The Collegian Staff

Voting by mail has become a reality for some Kansas special elections, but Secretary of State Jack Brier said he doesn't believe voters will be able to use this method for partisan elections in the future.

Brier, who spoke to a Monday morning political science class in Kedzie Hall, said the lag between mailing the ballots and the ballots' return would be too great for this practice to be used in partisan elections.

"Politicians can't sling mud for three weeks," Brier said. "They wouldn't know how to respond."

Mail elections were conducted this year in Protection and Olathe with results Brier termed positive in both cases. The Protection vote was a referendum to decide whether to sell city energy lines and Olathe voters decided on a bond issue.

Voter turnout in Protection rose to 89.4 percent from a figure the previous year of 29 percent, Brier said. Turnout in Olathe was 73 percent, up from 25 percent in 1982, he said.

In addition to increased turnout, Brier said, the elections were conducted at one-third the cost of traditional voting.

The greatest deterrent to voter turnout is negative campaigning, Brier said. Intelligent discussion of the issues would lead to more voters, he said.

Kansas voter registration books from 1980 were purged recently showing that 86,000 of those registered hadn't voted since then, Brier said.

Another supporter of voting by mail is Riley County Clerk Wanda Coder. Should a special issue be up for a vote in Riley County, she said she would favor using the mail to decide the outcome.

"It's something that we would negotiate with the petitioners and the secretary of state's office for approval," Coder said. Turnout in the April Manhattan Board of Education election was 47 percent, Coder said. Voting by mail would have to be proved in more special elections before it should be used in political contests, she said.

"Well, if it proves what it has in the other two elections, I think it would improve voter turnout," Coder said.

Soviets to deploy missiles in response to NATO plans

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union, in its strongest response yet to the planned deployment of U.S. missiles in Western Europe, said Monday it is readying its own new missile bases in East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Western military analysts believe the Soviet armed forces already have short-range battlefield nuclear missiles stationed on the soil of their Warsaw Pact allies. But Monday's announcement was the first public acknowledgement by the Kremlin that it was even planning a nuclear role for Eastern Europe.

"Preparatory work is being started on the territory of (East Germany and Czechoslovakia) for deployment of missile complexes of operational-tactical designation," the official Tass news agency quoted the Soviet Defense Ministry as announcing.

It said the preparations were "one of the planned response measures in case the American missiles are sited in Europe."

The plan was formulated in agreement with East Germany and Czechoslovakia, the ministry said. The announcement came as Czechoslovak leader Gustav Husak met in Prague with East German leader Erich Honecker.

The NATO allies are scheduled to begin installing 572 new U.S. medium-range Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in five Western European nations in December. Western leaders say these missiles will counter more than 200 Soviet SS-20 triple-warhead missiles stationed in Russia and targeted on Western Europe.

Western diplomats in Moscow described Monday's Soviet announcement as a further step in a Kremlin propaganda campaign aimed at convincing the West European public and governments to reject the U.S. missiles.

A flurry of Warsaw Pact activity on the missile issue was capped last week by a meeting of the East bloc's defense ministers in East Berlin. On Sept. 14, Warsaw Pact foreign ministers, gathered in Sofia, Bulgaria, called for continued missile talks, but only if NATO delayed its scheduled December missile deployment.

The anti-missile movement in Western Europe staged massive demonstrations this past weekend demanding that the Pershing-cruise deployment be canceled.

The Soviets are believed to already have SS-21 and SS-22 nuclear-tipped rockets in Eastern Europe — with ranges of 70 miles and 500 miles, respectively.

President Reagan has offered to reduce the NATO deployment and leave the Soviets with a missile advantage if the Soviets destroy an unspecified number of their SS-20s.

SALE OF THE WEEK
HIS & HERS
CALVIN KLEIN
HIS 29.95 & HERS 24.95
NOTICE!
This week only, so come today.
Today's Selections
1207 Laramie St. Aggieville.
539-2011
Master Charge — Lay Away — Visa

HALLOWEEN PARTY COMING UP?

Have an original costume w/basics from Footlights. We have leotards and tights to create your perfect Halloween outfit!

FOOTLIGHTS

EXERCISE & DANCE WEAR
10:30-5:30 MON.-SAT.
THUR. 'TIL 8:00
1110 LARAMIE 537-3106

FlashBack '83

★ Date: Friday, Nov. 4, 8:00 p.m. - 12:00 p.m.
★ Place: Fifth & Houston (Downtown)
★ Entertainment: Air Band Contest
★ Guest D.J. — Ed Klimek
★ Cost: $4.00—includes admission, free beer and pepsi
★ Advance Tickets can be purchased in the Union on Nov. 2, 3, 4.
★ Sponsored by:
Kansas State University Student Foundation.

Regents select university president

By The Collegian Staff

Donald W. Wilson, president of Southampton College in New York, has been named the eighth president of Pittsburg State University. He succeeds James B. Appleberry, who resigned to become president of Northern Michigan University.

Wilson, 45, has been president of Southampton since 1979. He has a total of eight years experience as a college chief executive officer, having also served as president of Castleton State College in Vermont from 1976 to 1979.

Wilson's accomplishments at Southampton have included establishing a liberal arts core curriculum, developing an institutional long-range plan and establishing new programs in graphic design, computer science, study skills, cooperative education and internship programs.

He also established a comprehensive development program which raised more than $4 million during a 42-month period and developed a college radio station, performing arts festival and college press.

Wilson also balanced Southampton's budget and generated the largest surplus in the college's history.

He earned his doctorate degree in 1966 from Michigan State University and received his master's degree from Andrews University in Michigan in 1961. He received his bachelor's degree in 1959 from Southern Missionary College in Tennessee.

Prior to becoming president of Castleton State, Wilson was academic dean and vice president for academic development and professor of communications and history at Olivet College in Michigan from 1973 to 1976. From 1968 to 1973 he was dean of Applied Arts and Technology and professor at Ontario (Canada) Colleges.

Collegian Classifieds Where K-State Shops

Western & Dress Boots at Bargain Prices!

Only
$29.90
to $59.90

Values
to $120.00

221 Poyntz, Downtown
Lady Foot Shoes

WESTERN OUTPOST

2ND ANNIVERSARY SALE

BOOTS—Up to 40% off on selected styles Tony Lama, Dan Post, Justin, Wrangler & Acme. All Redwings 20% off.

JEANS—All jeans 10% off mens & womens Lee, Levi & Wrangler.

SHIRTS—Buy two mens shirts & get one free of equal value.
Women's blouses one rack $10.00.

MISC.—Baily felt hats 50% off
Wrangler belts $10.50
Wrangler jean jackets lined $19.50
Unlined $14.50

SALE END SUN. 30th

OLD TOWN MALL

523 S. 17th

M-W 9 to 6
Thurs. 9 to 9

F-S 9 to 6
Sun. 12 to 5

For parties and special occasions, we've got donuts, pastries, sandwiches and other goodies.

11th & Moro
AGGIEVILLE 537-4808

SUPER SANDWICH SPECIAL!

This week sandwiches on homemade rolls for only 99c!! (Reg. $1.59)

Mon.-Thurs. 6:30-1:00 a.m.
Fri. 24 Hours
Sat. till 6 p.m.

SPIRIT BANNER CONTEST

Show your "Wildcat" spirit for the Nebraska game Oct. 29. Enter the Spirit Banner-Take II contest with an original entry.

PRIZES: $100 First Place
$50 Second Place

ELIGIBILITY: Any formally organized student group or housing unit

For information contact:
Mary Wiklander, 532-6266
or stop by Hollis House

SPONSORED BY THE STUDENT FOUNDATION

TUESDAY IS BURGER DAY

ALL DAY

TREAT THE DORM
Go for it

37¢ each

Regular Hamburgers
Cheese Xtr

BRING A GANG—

SAVE MONEY—LIKE OLD TIMES--

Frosty Mug of Beer—

FAST DRIVE-THRU

BRANDING IRON—421-N-3RD

Briefly By the Associated Press

Japanese youth pedals across U.S.

BALTIMORE — A young bicycle designer from Japan has pulled into Baltimore after pedaling 6,700 miles across America in five months.

Hisayuki Hayashi, 24, began his trek in Los Angeles and biked through the Pacific Northwest and the Great Lakes region to New England.

His goal is to travel 12,000 miles within the United States and to see all the major national parks and cities.

"Japan has some pretty parks, but all the time you know about the parks here and how big they are in U.S.," said Hayashi, who is from the island of Kumamoto.

Hayashi's bike is not sleek — it has fat tires and wheels with extra-thick spokes to support four canvas bags containing 80 pounds of gear. He arrived here Thursday and stayed at a firehouse.

"In Japan...people think that the U.S. is very dangerous. But everyone I've met has been very kindorous to me. It's very different," said Hayashi, who learned English on his trip.

Candidate would give up one vice

PHOENIX, Ariz. — When the Arizona Republic newspaper asked mayoral candidates if they had any bad habits they would like to break, Democrat Terry Goddard passed the question at first and then replied, "Reading the Republic editorials."

The Republic has favored the Republican candidate, Pete Dunn. The newspaper also questioned both candidates about their favorite TV shows and what they do in their spare time.

On the bad habit question, Dunn said he has "a messy den, a messy desk and a messy car."

Call, not crash, interrupts tea

HIGH WYCOMBE, England — Bill Herbert and his wife Margaret were having tea in their daughter's home when a neighbor telephoned. "Do you know there's an airplane on your roof?" the neighbor inquired.

The Cessna single-engine plane, piloted by Ronald Compston, was coming in for a landing at an airfield in this Buckinghamshire town 35 miles northwest of London when it got caught in a power line Sunday.

It flipped and landed nose-first on the three-bedroom, two-story house.

Herbert, 62, a retired tree surgeon, said neither he nor his wife heard the plane hit.

"It's amazing that no one was killed," said eyewitness Mick Otten, 23. "I saw the plane drop out of the sky like a stone."

Homecoming rain of fire injures 13

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — A fireworks display that fell "like a rain of fire" injured about 13 people during a homecoming show at the University of Florida, police and witnesses said.

The university police said a burning section of an errant firework fell on the northwest corner bleachers at the university stadium late Friday. Witnesses said soot and sparks continually fell into the crowd at the north end of the stadium.

The department said "approximately 13 people" were treated for burns of the face and eyes.

Gator Growl is the main show of the university's annual homecoming celebration and this year featured comedian Bob Hope and singer Irene Cara. Their performances were over when the accident occurred.

Crossword By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Fellow

5 Dinner check

8 Tijuana tidbit

12 Columnist Barrett

13 Large bird

14 In a line

15 Filmmaker Gance

16 Pasadena stadium

18 Earl Anthony, et al.

20 Commuting groups

21 Bridge star

22 Culbertson

23 Role for Miss Temple

26 Rubdown

30 Annoy

31 Electronic eavesdropper

32 — keyed (restrained)

33 Soaked in liquid

36 Social division

38 River or Sea

39 Old French coin

40 Guide

43 El Paso stadium

47 Honolulu

49 Central American tree

50 Dismounted

51 "Silent" pres.

52 Winged victory

53 Army meal

54 "— Time" (Fisher hit song)

55 Suffix for mob or poll

1 It might be soft-shelled

2 Professional tramp

3 Once again

4 Became dull

5 Looped cloth

6 Minor prophet

7 — boy (waiter's helper)

8 Small drums

9 Irish exclamation

10 Monk's hood

11 Nocturnal birds

17 Epic poem

19 Yale man

22 Label

23 Towel word

24 Before

25 "We like —!"

26 Mire

27 Fourth caliph

28 Old salt

29 Ram's mate

31 "Early to —"

34 Dutch, et al.

35 Rosemary, for one

36 Weight unit

37 Flemish painter

39 Defile

40 Counterfeit

41 Bulrush

42 Ancient Greek country

43 "— Lake"

44 News item

45 Aroused from sleep

46 Malign look

48 Wood sorrel

STEW CUB OGRE

COLA OLA FRAT

ARAB LUNGE FISH

TOMATO CRIMPS

SINS ANA

FISHNETS GLIB

ANU SLATE DOA

NAPS STARE FISH

PAM ERTE

AVOCET TSETSE

FISHWIFE DOTE

ALEE LER ELUL

REST ENS REDS

10-25

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11

12 13 14

15 16 17

18 19 20

21 22

23 24 25 26 27 28 29

30 31 32

33 34 35 36 37

38 39

40 41 42 43 44 45 46

47 48 49

50 51 52

53 54 55

CRYPTOQUIP

10-25

ATEHW KGDC HGPSEUH WGUKE GRPO

HGSGUC EK ATW OUGDC REGA.

Yesterday's Cryptquip — MOST DEGRADING CREATURES IN ANIMAL KINGDOM; MOCK TURTLES. Today's Cryptquip clue: E equals O.

Group studies low morale of state employees

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Inadequate salaries, a "defunct" merit pay system, soaring health insurance costs, dissatisfaction with the state's retirement program and staffing shortages are major factors contributing to low morale among state workers, a legislative committee was told Monday.

"You need two things for good morale: Good, fair salaries and the proper tools to do the job," said Thomas Swearingen of Lawrence, president of the University of Kansas Classified Senate.

"I think we're cutting to the quick. It's very tight," Swearingen added, referring to a four percent general budget reduction imposed on state agencies during the state's financial crunch last fiscal year.

"I think there's no doubt if we'd have had to make another four percent cut it could not have been done."

There also is a perception that the state of Kansas doesn't really care about its employees, Jo Ann Klesath of Topeka, executive director of the Kansas Association of Public Employees, told the interim Committee on Efficiency in State Government.

"Unfortunately, that (caring) is a quality that I have not seen nearly enough of in state government, and I think it is a huge factor in producing low morale and reducing motivation in state employees," she said.

Klesath listed five reasons for discontent among state employees:

- Failure to fund its merit pay system in recent years.
- Ever-increasing cost of health insurance and limited accessibility to Health Maintenance Organizations, especially in Topeka.
- Lack of a system of comparable pay for comparable worth of jobs.
- Failure to publicize and fund a program to reward employees who make cost-saving suggestions.

— Lack of managerial skills by supervisors.

The committee also heard from officers of two construction companies regarding possible waste in the state's bidding and building system.

Jan Douglas, Merrill Harris and Dean Ferrell, all of Topeka, said they believe that if there are excessive costs in Kansas construction projects they are built in at the agency level, where the first plans are drawn, and not in the state architect's office.

They said that on occasion there is only one vendor who bids on subcontract work, sometimes inflating costs. They cited the new medium security facility being built at Lansing. Only three vendors in the United States can provide the type of security equipment being used, and only one of them bid on the Kansas project.

The contractors intimated the three companies may just share the business and don't bid against each other.

Grant said Kansas-National Education Association, of which KNEA is an arm, believes too much of the state's educational budget is being spent on administration and not enough on rewarding teachers and other employees.

He cited as an example the federal government's 20 percent allowance for administration of federal educational block grants. In Kansas, Grant said, only four to five percent is actually spent on administration and the state Education Department takes the rest for its programs. He said that other 15 or 16 percent should go to the local school districts.

Grant said the morale of Kansas teachers is surprisingly high, considering their work load and the percentage of school districts' budgets that go for what K-NEA considers top-heavy administrative staffs.

Prosecutors present evidence in Tylenol case

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — An extortion letter demanding monthly payments from unidentified banks was found in the Kansas City, Mo., apartment of James Lewis, who is accused of trying to profit from last year's Tylenol murders, prosecutors said Monday.

Lewis is on trial in federal court on charges of trying to extort $1 million from Johnson & Johnson, the parent company of the firm that manufactures Extra-Strength Tylenol.

The letter, seized by Kansas City authorities and revealed in court Monday, demands $5,000 a month and threatens to insult bank customers if the money is not paid.

"I have a list of all of your major loans as filed with the county," the letter says. "I also have a partial list of your major depositors. If you would like to prevent me contacting each of these people and insulting them in your bank's name, or having my computer send these customers letters on your company's letterhead, then do the following."

The letter went on to demand

$5,000 "on the 10th day of each month by wire" to unidentified banks and bank account numbers, but it was not established in court whether the letter had ever been sent to any banks or banking officials.

Federal prosecutors have charged that Lewis mailed a separate letter to Johnson & Johnson last year after seven people in the Chicago area died after taking cyanide-filled Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules.

That letter demanded $1 million "to stop the killing."

The three-page, typewritten letter found in Lewis' Kansas City apartment was introduced as evidence as the federal government closed its case against Lewis, although prosecutors were unable to establish that Lewis had written it.

Lewis' attorney, Michael Monico, has acknowledged that his client wrote the letter to Johnson & Johnson. He contended last week that the letter was written to besmirch Lewis' wife's former employer.

COPIES

5¢

kinko's copies

Monday-Thursday 8-8
Friday 8-6
Saturday 10-5
Sunday 12-5

2 for 1
Self Serve
Copies

with this coupon

kinko's copies

1126 LARAMIE 537-7340

FREE PARKING

GET FRAMED!

Have your picture taken for Royal Purple

Today:
Haymaker Hall 8:30-5:30

Tomorrow:
Haymaker Hall 8:30-5:30

Off-Campus people can still get pictures taken Oct. 10-28 539-5229

Union 209 Bring your stamped fee card.

1126 LARAMIE 537-7340

FREE PARKING

Kansas State Travel

ARIZONA

Round Trip Air from Kansas City to Phoenix only $160

Complete 3 day, 2 night package, including 2 nights at the Pointe Resort and a Rental Car with unlimited miles.

$100 per person double occupancy

HAWAII

$515 per person double occupancy

Five Nights—Six Days

Including: • R.T. Air from Kansas City • Lei Greeting • Five nights at Sheraton Moana Hotel • R.T. Transfers and luggage handling

SALE

Air Fare Sale (Restrictions Apply—Subject to Change)

Round Trip from Kansas City

New York—$198 San Francisco—$198 Miami—$279

Colo. Spgs.—$100 Washington D.C.—$190 London—$569

Los Angeles—$198 Philadelphia—$264 Frankfurt—$759

537-2451 WestLoop Center

Lutheran Campus Ministries and Local Manhattan Lutheran Congregations invite you to a CELEBRATION!

The 500th Anniversary "Luther"

Remembering Luther's contributions

Christian mission in the '80's

November 6 and 7, 1983

Kansas State University Manhattan, Kansas

MARTIN LUTHER 1483-1983

Sunday, November 6

Worship Services—Local churches, guest speakers (see schedule below)

5:00 p.m.—Panel of Bishops, KSU Union Ballroom

6:00 p.m.—Light Buffet Reception, KSU Union Ballroom

7:30 p.m.—Anniversary Celebration, KSU Union Forum Hall

Speaker: Dr. Joseph Sittler, "Being Christian Today"

Monday, November 7

11:30 a.m.—Discussion and luncheon with Dr. Sittler, KSU Cottonwood Room. Contemporary issues: justice, peace, and nuclear power.

Luncheon carried from Bluemont Room

7:30 p.m.—Lecture, Dr. Joseph Sittler, "Christianity's Mission in the '80's," KSU Union Forum Hall.

Light Buffet tickets available at the Campus Ministry Center, 1201 Denison, 539-4451 and local Lutheran Churches: Peace, First, and St. Luke's. Reservations taken until November 1. All other events without charge.

Schedule of Events

Monday, October 31, 7:00 p.m.

Film: "Where Luther Walked," Forum Hall, K-State Union

Response: Lutheran-Catholic Dialogue

Tuesday, November 1, 12:00 noon

Film: "Where Luther Walked," Room 213, K-State Union

Response: Dr. Robert Linder, KSU Department of History

Wednesday, November 2, 7:00 p.m.

Film: "Bonhoeffer"—The holocaust and the church, Little Theater, K-State Union

Response: KSU faculty and students

Thursday, November 3, 7:00 p.m.

Film: "Nambis—A Cry for Freedom"—Apartheid in South Africa and the Church, Little Theater, K-State Union

Response: KSU faculty and African students

Sunday, November 6—All Saints Sunday

Morning Worship: "Sinners and Saints"

First Lutheran: 8:30 and 11:00. Adult Forum: 9:30. Dr. Joseph Sittler: LSTC

Peace Lutheran: 8:00 and 10:30. Adult Class: 9:15. Bishop Roger Gieschen

St. Luke's Lutheran: 8:15 and 10:45. Adult Class: 9:30. The Rev. Gene Schmidt

Olshburg-Walsburg: 9:30 and 11:00. Bishop Wayne Weissenbuehler

*5:00 p.m.—Panel of Bishops: KSU Union Ballroom

Dr. Joseph Sittler: "The Word of God and the Bible"

The Rev. Gene Schmidt: "Justification by Faith through Grace"

Bishop Wayne Weissenbuehler: "Priesthood of Believers"

Bishop Roger Gieschen: "Freedom and Service"

*6:00 p.m.—Anniversary Reception: Light Buffet, K-State Union Ballroom

*7:30 p.m.—Anniversary Celebration: Forum Hall, K-State Union

Lecture: "Being Christian Today," Dr. Joseph Sittler

Mass choir, Greetings from Bishops, Lutheran Hymn Fest

Monday, November 7

*11:30 a.m.—Discussion: Contemporary issues: Peace, Nuclear Power, Justice

Dialogue with Dr. Joseph Sittler, Cottonwood Room, K-State Union (luncheon carried from Bluemont Room or Cafeteria)

*7:30 p.m.—All-University Lecture—Forum Hall, K-State Union

Dr. Joseph Sittler: "Christianity's Mission in the '80's"

*Major lectures or events

Speaker

Dr. Joseph Sittler

Distinguished Professor in Residence, Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago

Delegate: Ecumenical Conference on Faith and Order, World Council of Churches, Lutheran World Federation

Recent publications:

The Care of the Earth, 1964

The Anguish of Preaching, 1967

Essays on Nature and Grace, 1972

Grace Notes and Other Fragments, 1981

Sponsored by Lutheran Campus Ministries at KSU and Local Lutheran Congregations—First, Peace, St. Luke's—with a grant from Aid Association for Lutherans.

Entertainment schedule offers variety of styles

By The Collegian Staff

From dance to choral music; jazz to opera, this week is rich in entertainment.

The K-State Choir and Chorale will present a free concert at 8 tonight in McCain Auditorium. The groups will perform a variety of music ranging from classical music to folk music and spirituals. The works of Handel and Nystedt will be featured in the evening of entertainment.

Also today, Boplicity will perform a Nooner in the Catskiller. The group plays jazz fusion.

Thursday, students from the K-State Opera Workshop will perform at 8 p.m. in the Chapel Auditorium. The workshop will present scenes from three operas. The concert is free.

The annual K-State/Nebraska "Great Glee Club Battle" will be at 8 p.m. Friday in the All Faiths

Chapel. Tickets will be available at the door or may be purchased from a glee club member.

The K-State Student/Faculty Dance Concert will be at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday nights at the Manhattan Middle School. Dances choreographed by students and faculty will be performed. Ballet, modern dance and jazz dance will be featured.

The Jay McShann Jazz Trio will round out the week's performances. McShann, a Kansas City jazz pianist, will perform at 8 p.m. in McCain Auditorium. Tickets are available at McCain Box Office. In addition to the Friday night performance, McShann will also conduct a master class Friday afternoon. The class is open to the public. Prior to the concert, Matt Betton will speak on Kansas City jazz history at the Green Room Lecture at 7:15 p.m. in McCain.

Bad check habit proves costly, risky

By MICHELE SAUER
Staff Writer

If you can't make it through the month on the money you have left, you are not alone. Hundreds of students every semester write checks with insufficient funds in their accounts.

You are also not helpless. A free financial counseling service is available on campus through the Family Center.

"The service is available free to anyone who is a Kansas citizen or in the military," said Albie Rasmussen, assistant professor of family economics and director of the program.

"They can come as often as they feel the need," Rasmussen said. "It's not just for people in financial trouble, but also for people who want to learn to use their resources."

The Family Center is located in the Ellen Richards Lodge on Campus Creek Road. The lodge is between Petticoat Lane and Lovers Lane, north of Justin Hall and east of King Hall. The Family Center represents the College of Home Economics.

The financial counseling program is run by the Department of Family Economics.

Rasmussen supervises the work of the two counselors, who use the program as a teaching clinic situation.

Anyone who wants to use the service can call the Family Center and set up an appointment. The call is referred to Rasmussen, who then contacts the client.

"Not very many students use the

Campus services can help students

service. There are more people from off campus," Rasmussen said. "Maybe some students don't think they need help. Generally, the students who come are referred by someone else. The time to come in is before you're in trouble. We'd like to have students come in before the problem begins."

The office of Student Financial Aid is directly involved with students who are having problems budgeting money.

"There is somewhat of a problem, but not a serious problem," said Robert Evans, director of Student Financial Aid.

There are usually two types of problems involved with bad checks, Evans said. Some students write a bad check without knowing the exact amount in their accounts and are honest and straightforward when dealing with the problem. Other students know they have no money and intentionally write bad checks.

"There is a difference," Evans said. "If you write a bad check, the bank is required to notify you. You can't say you didn't know."

Evans suggests one reason for the problem may be that students have never learned how to manage their money.

"One of the things I hear from parents at orientation is that their child has never had the chance of balancing a checkbook and managing money," he said. "They need to tickets are concerned, they should know they have received them.

"We mail a copy of the ticket to the person within a week of the day the ticket was issued. This gives them an additional week to pay the ticket or appeal it before a late fee is assessed. Toward the end of the semester, we send out a second letter telling them that we will tab their records, so they won't be able to enroll next semester."

A student with "tabbed" records will have to pay the fine in order to enroll.

"I'm sure there are some who slip through, but normally the amount does not go too far out of line," Stone said.

Jack Thoman, accountant for the Union Business Office, finds bad checks an ongoing problem. The office takes care of all the returned checks at the Union.

"There are a small percentage (of offenders) who have a problem with checks," Thoman said. "It is greater with more volume. There are always some students who are poor mathematicians or who mismanage their money."

"There will be spurts where one student will have two or three returned checks in one week because of a problem with a bank account," Thoman said. "The unfortunate ones with more than three go on our list for six months. After six months we take them off, but one more bad check will put them on."

Of the 18,470 students enrolled, several hundred will have a problem with a bad check at the Union each semester, Thoman said.

Bell requests $213 million due to utility divestiture

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The chief executive for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in Kansas called Monday for approval of his company's proposed $213.7 million rate increase, saying the utility faces "the most critical time in our history."

Edward E. Whitacre, vice president of Kansas operations for Southwestern Bell, delivered the remark in testimony before the Kansas Corporation Commission as it opened hearings on the company's rate case — the largest utility rate increase ever sought in Kansas.

Whitacre attributed the large rate request to the court-ordered breakup of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., Bell's parent company. The divestiture, which he said is based on a "national policy of competition," is to take effect Jan. 1, and will force Southwestern Bell to operate as a separate company instead of being one part of the Bell System.

He explained that Southwestern Bell will no longer receive revenues from interstate long distance services and "customer premise" telephone equipment once the breakup occurs. Both the revenues and assets of those will be transferred to AT&T.

Revenues from those services traditionally have subsidized local service rates, keeping them artificially low, according to Whitacre. Under Southwestern Bell's rate increase proposal, the charge for local service will more than double for all customers.

FINANCE CLUB
Professional Meeting
Featuring:
Kent Mueller
of Overland Park State Bank
Speaking on
Commercial Banking
Tues., Oct. 25 7:00 Union 212

POSITIONS AVAILABLE
Fall Semester 1984
Undergraduates to serve as Learning Skills Seminar Leaders for Fall 1984. Applicants should have strong backgrounds in mathematics and/or the social sciences and good study skills. Ten to twelve hours weekly. Salary of $750 for Fall Semester. Selected applicants must successfully complete EDAF-311, Guidance for the Paraprofessional, (3 hours academic credit) during Spring Semester, 1984. Contact Academic Assistance Center, Room 204, Holton Hall, 532-6492. Apply by November 1. Kansas State University is an equal opportunity employer.

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity
Rep. — TOM SEELE
• Supplemental Retirement Annuities
• Investment Options
• Free Transfer Privileges
• State Deferred Compensation
• Life Insurance
1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 913-276-7095

ESCAPE TO ASPEN/SNOWMASS WITH UPC TRAVEL
January 1-8, 1984
$323/295 (with your own equipment)

TRIP INCLUDES:
Roundtrip Motor Coach to and from Aspen
1 night's lodging at the hotel Colorado (location of filming for movie "The Shining") in Glenwood Springs, Colorado
4 nights lodging at the Woodbridge condominiums in Snowmass
4 days lift tickets (good at Snowmass, Aspen, and Buttermilk)
4 day equipment rental
Pre-party
2 Wild West parties with bands
UPC tote bag
Beer and cheese party

SIGN-UP:
8 a.m.-3 p.m., K-State Union
3rd Floor, Activities Center
Spaces Still Available!

Apple Station
RESTAURANT & BAR
TACO TUESDAY!
• TACOS FOR LUNCH OR DINNER
• 99¢ MARGARITAS 11:30 a.m.-closing
PLUS 99¢ TONIC DRINKS 11:30 A.M.-CLOSING!

GET OUR DRIFT!
Truly a ski park designed for action. With the use of action stretch pants the goose down filled Spindrift from The North Face assures you get an extra edge on the slopes. Of course, our Full Warranty applies.

THE NORTH FACE
the PATHFINDER
1111 Moro Aggieville

MAKE $12,200 FOR COLLEGE WHILE YOU'RE GOING TO COLLEGE.
Give your local Army Reserve unit a weekend a month and a couple of summers during college, and they'll give you over $12,000 for college. Up to $4,000 in college aid is yours just for joining most units. Plus over $2,200 for two summer training periods. And another $6,000 for serving a weekend a month plus two weeks a year. Interested? For more information call any of the numbers listed below. Or stop by.
ARMY RESERVE. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.
CALL: 776-8551

THE ICECREAM SOCIAL
• Inside seating
• Hand packed ice cream
• Old fashioned sodas
• Flavored popcorn (made in our store)
• (Cinnamon, caramel & cheese)
• Ice cream, cakes & pies
1314 Westloop 537-7079

BUSHWACKERS
• THE FUNDRINKERY
50¢ OFF any lunch at the BUSHWACKER EATERY
Try our Smuggler Bar Burger 75¢
Open 11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m. & 5:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity
Rep. — TOM SEELE
• Supplemental Retirement Annuities
• Investment Options
• Free Transfer Privileges
• State Deferred Compensation
• Life Insurance
1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 913-276-7095

ESCAPE TO ASPEN/SNOWMASS WITH UPC TRAVEL
January 1-8, 1984
$323/295 (with your own equipment)

TRIP INCLUDES:
Roundtrip Motor Coach to and from Aspen
1 night's lodging at the hotel Colorado (location of filming for movie "The Shining") in Glenwood Springs, Colorado
4 nights lodging at the Woodbridge condominiums in Snowmass
4 days lift tickets (good at Snowmass, Aspen, and Buttermilk)
4 day equipment rental
Pre-party
2 Wild West parties with bands
UPC tote bag
Beer and cheese party

SIGN-UP:
8 a.m.-3 p.m., K-State Union
3rd Floor, Activities Center
Spaces Still Available!

—After League—
DART TOURNEY
Every Tuesday
No entry fee

TUESDAY
"THE POWDER PUFF BEER-QUET"
7:00 p.m. Video-tape replays begin
10:30 p.m. Introduction of coaches
Trophy Presentations
MVP Presentation
The Sports Fan-atic

McCall's
313 Poyntz Downtown Manhattan

Blaze your own trail in footwear by Bass, made for the great outdoors. You'll take these rugged leathers with their surefooted rubber soles wherever you ramble, from mountaintop to Main Street.
Bass
• VISA
• MasterCard
McCall's Shoes . . . a Manhattan tradition since 1961

You'll be seeing some new faces at the Bookstore. Maybe even your own.

Choose your Halloween personality from our wide selection of famous, infamous and bestial masks. We also offer our wigs, artificial features, MAKE-UP (water, grease, pancake, rouge) in every imaginable color—you name it! Clown white, lipstick, and nail polish (black/green/red/glitter) we've got it!
10% discount on all merchandise (except special orders and sale merchandise for anyone in costume Oct. 28th).
k-state union bookstore

Seriousness surrounds Hietbrink during performance on court

By VIKKI WATSON
Staff Writer

She takes life easily, smiling sheepishly as she throws a joke into a conversation.

But it is another story when women's volleyball player Shantelle Hietbrink takes the court. She is all seriousness. And she is there to win.

Hietbrink, a 5-foot-11 middle blocker from Shawnee Mission East High School, was an All-Sunflower League selection during East's 1982 state championship campaign. She also competed in basketball, softball and track during her high-school years.

But when it comes to sports, it is volleyball Hietbrink prefers — so much, in fact, that she came to K-State and earned a starting position during the latter part of the 1982-83 season.

"I could relate to this area," said Hietbrink, who has lived in various cities including Toledo, Ohio; Cedar Falls, Iowa and Chicago. "I liked the program they (the 'Cats') had."

Hietbrink has seen steady improvement since that first year of collegiate play and so has Scott Nelson, head volleyball coach.

"She had the athletic ability, the quickness and the ability to dive and roll," he said. "Now her skill level has improved."

Ginger Mayson, assistant coach, agreed, saying the increased playing experience has made a more mature volleyball player out of Hietbrink.

"Shantelle had the aggressiveness, but she really did not know what to do with it," Mayson said. "From the very beginning of this season she has been steadily improving. She is really to a point where she knows she has the abilities and knows what she wants."

And what this blonde sophomore wants are victories — she despises losing and any factors that may cause losing.

But don't be fooled. Even though the game of volleyball is a "very serious" matter, the humorous, laid-back Hietbrink finds ways to make the game of life into lighthearted fun.

"I like to have fun; make things enjoyable," she said. "I (also) carry a lot of my attributes on to the court. I like to have a good time out there."

And if having fun means being one of K-State's most consistent players, then Hietbrink has made her mark. She currently is one of the Big Eight Conference leaders in digs and ranks in the top three in K-State's hitting efficiency, digs, service aces and blocks.

And those rewards can make the hardships of volleyball easier — those long practice hours, frequent road trips and, at times, defeat take their toll, Hietbrink said.

"At least six out of seven days a week you are involved with volleyball," she said. "I've always got to be taking care of something. You can't live without it (volleyball), but sometimes the pressure is what you can't live with."

"In the end you find yourself playing volleyball."

Hietbrink has been playing so much volleyball that her teammates have now become more than just court acquaintances. They are "extremely close" friends, she said.

"When we spend weekends together traveling, we're doing everything the same and we get to know each other pretty well," she said. "We are tied in a common bond. We would all help each other out anytime."

Helping each other off — as well as on — the court has helped to turn this young squad into a group of more experienced, Big Eight contenders.

"We are really a good team — one of the better teams in the conference," Hietbrink said, despite K-State's current 1-5 Big Eight record. The 'Cats' recent championship at the Oral Roberts Invitational is indicative of the caliber of volleyball they are capable of playing, she said.

"There are so many doors open — so many opportunities to take advantage of where we'll gain respect in our conference," Hietbrink said. "I think our qualities will stand out more and K-State will be able to play some volleyball."

Success is just down the road for K-State's volleyball program and also the fun-loving, yet serious-minded Hietbrink, Mayson said.

"We just see a lot of good things in the future for Shantelle," she said.

Volleyball results

The women's volleyball team went 1-1 in play this weekend, losing Friday to the University of Missouri, 15-17, 4-15, 6-15, and then defeating the University of Missouri-Kansas City, 15-5, 15-12, 16-14 on Saturday.

K-State's overall record now stands at 17-11 and they fall to 1-5 in the Big Eight Conference.

The 'Cats' next competition will be Friday, when they host the University of Oklahoma Sooners at Ahearn Field House.

SHANTELE HIEBTRINK...
A 5'11 SOPHOMORE
MIDDLE HITTER FOR KSU,
"TELLE" IS CURRENTLY
SECOND IN HITTING EFFICIENCY AND BLOCKS

Associated Press selects White Sox' LaRussa AL Manager of the Year

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Tony LaRussa, who led the Chicago White Sox from 20 games under .500 four seasons ago to a division title this year, was a runaway winner of The Associated Press American League Manager of the Year award announced Monday.

LaRussa, whose White Sox won the American League West with the best record in baseball this season, 99-63, received 51 of a possible 87 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Joe Altobelli, first-year manager of the World Series champion Baltimore Orioles, was second with 21 votes. Bobby Cox of the improving Toronto Blue Jays had 11 votes, and Sparky Anderson, whose Detroit Tigers finished second to Baltimore in the AL East, received the remaining four votes.

The White Sox's first championship since 1959, when they won the AL pennant, capped an up-and-down season for LaRussa, who was close to being fired early in the season.

On May 26, the club stood at 16-24, eight games below .500. The White Sox were in sixth place by seven games, and LaRussa was rumored on his way out, barely into his fourth season as White Sox manager.

"You get your heart broken once in a while in this business," LaRussa said. "But that shouldn't ruin your whole season."

And it didn't.

Backed by some incredible pitching from his top three starters — LaMarr Hoyt, Floyd Bannister and Rich Dotson — the White Sox rolled to the top and stayed there. Those three pitchers were 42-5 after the All-Star break, and, by July 18, the White Sox led the AL West by one game. They strung together eight straight victories from Sept. 5-Sept. 13, and they clinched the West on Sept. 17, the earliest of any division winner.

LaRussa, one of those men who manages by computer, was aided by another inspiration. He moved slumping Carlton Fisk into the No. 2 spot in the batting order behind Rudy Law, and the White Sox catcher responded by hitting .289 with 26 homers and 86 RBI.

"We did a good job once we got going," LaRussa said during the AL playoffs, which the White Sox lost in four games to Baltimore.

Harvey Kuenn of the Milwaukee Brewers won the award in 1982.

By SEAN REILLY
Sports Editor

In the football game between K-State and Missouri, the only real bright spot for K-State was the performance of junior punter Scott Fulhage.

Fulhage kicked nine punts a total of 376 yards for an average of 41.8. The Missouri punter averaged only 36.0 on three punts.

In the game between the two felines, the weather was none too perfect for a punter.

"It was a soggy field and I was afraid of slipping when planting my leg for a punt," Fulhage said.

"The ball doesn't travel as good in this type of weather. Today wasn't a very good day for punting. I just couldn't put much into punts," he said after the game.

It was that type of fear that created an even bigger worry for Fulhage when he was forced to punt deep within the 'Cats end zone in the second quarter.

"I was worried. I knew when they (Missouri) were lining up that they would be coming in hard," he said. "I didn't have the normal 14 yards back from the line of scrimmage."

"Instead, I had only 11 yards. That 3 yards made a big difference, especially kicking into the wind."

What made the situation even more tense was that Missouri had just scored, then kicked off. The ball landed near the sideline deep within K-State's territory. James Witherspoon gathered the ball up on the 1-yard line and began moving laterally when he was brought down by Missouri defenders.

Missouri players were claiming that they had tackled Witherspoon for a safety, but the referees didn't think so.

After K-State's four plays and loss of a yard, Fulhage was called in to punt. After his first punt from the end zone — which traveled 35 yards — Missouri was called for running into the kicker. The extra 5 yards and a second chance proved beneficial for the 'Cats and Fulhage.

Fulhage's second punt was also from the end zone but this one traveled 55 yards, putting Missouri on its own 37 with time left for one more play before halftime.

At the beginning of the season,

Fulhage's performance was anything but perfect. In the first three home games — which were played at night — Fulhage was hoping for an advantage.

"In the night games, I was counting on there being less wind or no wind at all in helping my average at the beginning of the season," Fulhage said.

However, it was not the weather conditions that Fulhage had to worry about but rather his technique.

"I started out slow on my average because I was trying too hard and I was not using any real technique. Finally, I decided to concentrate on my technique and I am improving."

Punter improves as season wears on

Coaches voice opinions on drugs studies

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Nebraska's Tom Osborne was the only Big Eight Conference coach with a negative reaction to the NCAA's funding of a study of drug problems. The study is being done by Michigan State University to determine whether drug use, including use of steroids, is a problem among college athletes.

Oklahoma's Barry Switzer, as usual, led the way in frankness.

"It's a problem that has existed, I guess, for years and years," Switzer said of steroid use. "There have been athletes taking steroids and dianabol and those type of drugs for mass and strength. I can't remember when I first saw it. That's been part of it for years and years."

"A lot of kids get prescriptions from their family physicians. No coach or trainer would ever advise young men to do it. But I've known instances where kids get it from their own physicians and have taken it that way, under their physician's care. It's something that's been there a while."

Osborne said he was "a little skeptical" of the study.

"I think there's always a reaction, sometimes an overreaction, to publicity," Osborne said. "I'm sure the recent Pan American Games' problems with steroids has caused some of this. And the drug problems in the National Football League. So I'm not sure it's entirely appropriate."

Colorado's Bill McCartney was as emphatic as Switzer.

"All the early reports suggest that drugs are running rampant on all college campuses throughout the country," McCartney said. "I tell you, if your eyes are open and you're willing to accept the truth, athletes are basically no different than the regular student body. They have a lot of the same patterns."

Big Eight requires player certification

By GARY VAN CLEAVE
Collegian Reporter

Before a future Rolando Blackman, Priscilla Gary or Lynn Dickey can participate in an athletic contest on the collegiate level, they have to go through a certification process that can take weeks or even months.

It is a process that takes time and a lot of paperwork for Admissions Director Richard Elkins and University Registrar Donald Foster. When their work is completed, it means Jim Dickey, Jack Hartman, Lynn Hickey and Bill Hickey and the rest of the K-State coaches can go to work.

Every year, the National Collegiate Athletic Association in Shawnee and the Big Eight Conference office in Kansas City, Mo., require all NCAA schools to send them a copy of the athlete's transcript.

"The certification process serves a purpose in making sure the kids are enrolled in a minimum of 12 hours, have graduated from high school and to make sure they meet all the academic standards of Kansas State University," Bill Hickey, baseball coach, said.

"It's just a long drawn-out process with our people (Elkins and Foster) trying to send the high-school release forms to the high schools,"

Hickey said. "The high-school release form is a statement that the student signs giving his permission so that we can receive his high-school transcript. The principal also signs it so we know the transcript isn't altered."

Sometimes this process takes two to three weeks. But not always is that the case.

"Some high schools are slow in getting them back," Elkins said. "Another thing which can slow the process down is some high schools send their grade point averages on a percentage basis. We have to have it on a 4.0 scale."

This paperwork was the reason some baseball players had to miss part of the fall exhibition season.

"It wasn't that the kids weren't eligible," Hickey said of Mike Jones and Kevin Vondekamp, among other walk-on players. "When school starts, Elkins and Foster have so much paperwork on their desks, it's tough to get through all those people. They're trying to do all the regular students plus the athletes and that takes time."

"With our walk-on kids like Jones and Vondekamp, we didn't get their high-school transcripts filled out until the second or third week of school, so that created a problem right there. But everything's straightened out now. Everything's fine."

Quarterback change is definite must

Two years ago, K-State's head football coach Jim Dickey raised a lot of eyebrows by sacrificing the football season in favor of building a winning team by introducing a radical redshirt program. The program included the redshirting of key senior players to build experience and to strengthen the team. That was a definite look to the future.

It is time once again for the coaching staff to look to the future. For years, Wildcat faithfuls booed the play of a young quarterback who the coaching staff had high hopes for. That quarterback, Darrell Ray Dickey, made all the mistakes (and then some) that a young quarterback could make. Slowly but surely, however, his talent began to shine until he became a very good quarterback, leading K-State's bowl-bound express.

Now, through Dickey's graduation, Doug Bogue has taken over the Wildcat offense. The K-State offense is supposed to have one of the best receivers in the Big Eight Conference in Mike Wallace; and with Greg Dageforde's emergence as a strong, durable running back capable of giving the team good first-down yardage, the offense should be an extremely potent machine — still it has yet to perform adequately against a formidable defense.

KEVIN DALE
Sports Columnist

This may not be Bogue's fault as he has not had an abundance of time to pick out the best receivers. But, Bogue's fault or not, he is not the quarterback that should be guiding the Wildcats.

Bogue is a fifth-year senior and before this year he saw very limited playing time. Therefore, even though he is a senior, he is still making rookie mistakes. Even if, at the end of the year, he has grown into a mature quarterback, he will not be of much use to the team next year as he will become ineligible.

The coaching staff finally gave the two younger quarterbacks a chance to run the Wildcat offense and, even though the outcome was not positive, this is a great look to the future.

Donnie Campbell and Stan Weber, both juniors, each took a shot at guiding the offense against the University of Missouri. Neither had much success, but that is not the issue. One of these two will be called on next year to run the offense and he will need game experience to do so effectively.

If Bogue returns as the starting quarterback after his bruised arm is healed, the Wildcats will run into the same problems next year as they are running into now. The coaching staff needs to realize that just because a player has been around the system for five years that does not insure he will have success. The coaches stuck with Dickey knowing he would improve with experience. The quarterback given the job of running the offense next year should have the same opportunity to learn as did Dickey. Let him make mistakes now instead of waiting for a new season. This season is already one most would like to forget.

Something good may as well come from the remaining games.

State to consider surrogate parents bill

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A baby born to a surrogate mother would automatically become custody of the natural father and his wife 48 hours after birth — without any adoption proceedings — under a bill adopted Monday by an interim committee for submission to the 1984 Kansas Legislature.

Single fathers would be prohibited from contracting with a surrogate mother and artificial insemination for single women would be outlawed under the proposal approved by the Special Committee on Judiciary, which has spent the summer studying laws relating to children and parents' rights.

"I think this bill continues our strong policy of protecting children," said Sen. Wint Winter, Jr., R-Lawrence, a member of the study committee which adopted the measure. "I think it's a progressive action by the committee and further protects the rights and best interests of children. I think this bill has a good chance of passage but it won't be easy."

Lawmakers spent most of the day grappling with such questions as the extent of need for court involvement and supplemental birth certificates.

The committee also argued over whether the surrogate mother should have the right to abort a pregnancy despite her contractual agreement with the couple. And lengthy debate centered on questions as to the extent of financial responsibility the natural father must bear in child support if the surrogate mother backs out of the contract and decides to keep the baby.

"Just because the surrogate mother backs out and won't give up her baby, that doesn't mean the natural father doesn't have any responsibility to that child," said Rep. Vic Miller, D-Topeka. "It's still his baby and he has responsibilities to raise that child and provide for it."

"That's one of the risks of people entering one of these arrangements. The contract is one-sided. It binds the couple wanting children but doesn't mean anything to the surrogate mother if she decides to get an abortion or to keep the baby."

However, Rep. Frank Buehler, R-Clifton, said surrogate mothers should bear the sole responsibility for child-rearing if she decides to keep the child. He said it was unfair to force the natural father to pay child support if he was not allowed to raise the child.

The committee disagreed and voted to make the natural father take financial responsibility, regardless of who raises the child. The panel also agreed it could not make penalty provisions for a woman who chooses to abort the pregnancy because that would be violating a constitutional right.

The committee decided that papers should be filed with the state to show the name of the natural parents, including copies of the contract between the surrogate mother and the couple wanting the child.

Also, a supplemental birth certificate, showing the name of the natural father and his wife, would accompany the original document which must list the name of the natural parents. Legislators felt the extra certificates were necessary for parents wanting the surrogate mother to remain anonymous.

Currently, state law only addresses artificial insemination and doesn't recognize surrogate parentage, especially for married women. Under state law, the baby of a married woman is automatically assumed to be the child of her husband.

The committee decided to keep the state, and the courts, as far removed as possible from the surrogate arrangements. It had considered forcing the contracting couple to go through adoption procedures.

"There's no reason for the court to throw holy water on it," Winter said. "It's a contract. We're setting the requirements — like no single fathers or artificial insemination for single women. Let's leave it at that."

The proposal will now be submitted to the 1984 Legislature for consideration. A similar bill did not pass during the last session.

Hunger crisis grows in American cities

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The hunger crisis in American cities is growing worse and the cities are falling behind despite "extraordinary efforts" to feed the needy, the U.S. Conference of Mayors reported Monday.

The mayors, in a report, said the recent economic recovery hasn't yet reached the hungry, who are still suffering the effects of high unemployment, sharp cuts in federal benefits and inflation in the cost of necessities — food, shelter and energy — stemming from the 1981-82 recession.

"The problem of hunger is indeed continuing to grow in cities, despite recent reports and indications of an economic recovery," the conference said after the annual meeting of its human services auxiliary.

"And the gap between the demand for assistance and local public and private resources available to meet that demand continues to widen," said the report, based on a survey of cities.

The mayors said the task of caring for the hardest-hit victims of the recession is placing a severe drain on the cities' resources and their ability to cope with other problems.

"Hunger is a problem created by other problems — chiefly joblessness, which has remained near record levels in the last year and is not expected to decrease substantially in the immediate future," the report said.

The unemployment rate was 9.3 percent in September, a big improvement over the December 1982 figure of 10.8 percent, the highest in four decades. But it is still running well ahead of the 7.5 percent level before the recession began in the summer of 1981.

The mayors said the hunger problem in the cities "has been exacerbated, clearly, by the recent drastic cuts in federal benefits and the high cost of basic necessities, such as food, shelter and energy."

The report was prepared for the United States Conference of City Human Services Officials. Among its findings:

— Since January, the emergency food hotline in Detroit has received more than 44,000 calls for assistance.

— A similar hotline service in Philadelphia resulted in emergency food supplies going to more than 10,000 families during one weekend last winter.

— A food bank in New York City, which is to begin full operation this fall, is expected to help feed about 200,000 people over the next two years.

— Local food banks in Seattle distributed 1.7 million bags of food last year, an increase of 156 percent over the previous year and nearly 300 percent over 1980, but "there are still many people in need of emergency food services who are not receiving the assistance they need."

Arrests mount in nationwide nuclear protests

By The Associated Press

More than 1,000 ban-the-bomb protesters were arrested Monday as they scaled fences and went limp on roadways in futile attempts to blockade key nuclear weapons facilities scattered from New England to the West Coast.

The demonstrations followed a weekend of 140 rallies nationwide against NATO's planned deployment of U.S.-built cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Europe, where 1.5 million people have joined the protests in recent days.

The wife of the police chief was among at least 577 arrested on trespassing charges during a demonstration by more than 1,000 people at the Minneapolis headquarters of Honeywell Corp., which makes electronic gear for nuclear arms.

The demonstrators were taken to Minneapolis Auditorium and served coffee and doughnuts along with their summonses, courtesy of Police Chief Anthony Bouza.

Bouza's wife, Erica, was among them. She also had been arrested in a similar demonstration at Honeywell last spring.

At the Seneca Army Depot in Romulus, N.Y., 230 of about 400 protesters had been arrested by noon as they breached a chain-link fence. Robert Zemanek, a spokesman for the depot, said, "I'm sure we'll see several hundred arrests before the day is through."

Among the fence-climbers was Dr. Benjamin Spock, 80, who was helped over the 6-foot barricade by two women and was eased down on the other side by two military police officers.

At the Savannah River Plant in

Aiken, S.C., the nation's largest nuclear weapons fuel facility, police dragged away and arrested 78 demonstrators who went limp in the path of cars on highways leading to two of the five main gates.

In El Segundo, Calif., where more than 3,000 people had gathered Saturday for a "Parade for Peace," more than 70 demonstrators were arrested Monday for blocking doorways or trespassing into lobbies of defense contractors.

About 30 demonstrators were arrested outside the Pentagon in Washington, D.C.

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.65 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.25 per inch; Five consecutive days: $3.95 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $3.75 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

ANNOUNCEMENT 01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. 50¢ for students with ID and $1 for all others. (28th)

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours. Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Maries, 1631 Humboldt, 539-5200. (32-50)

KANSAS CITY Peace Corps Office wants to locate returned PC volunteers in the Manhattan area. Call Charlotte at 532-6497 by Tuesday, October 24, 1983. (44-46)

UNIVERSITY FOR Man registration. Tuesday, October 25 and Wednesday, October 26, KSU Union, 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Catalogs available in Union, Farrell Library. (46)

ATTENTION 02

TRAVEL—We will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (11f)

FANTASY-GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

HURRY TO Balfour! To introduce you to our new arrivals, all Footjoy aerobic shoes and racquetball shoes and gloves are 20% off now through October 29th. (39-49)

SINGLE MALE searching for single female born between February 16, 1961 and February 4, 1962. Call 537-8365 for more details. (43-46)

CANDID PORTRAITS—I offer flexibility and a personal approach to each photo session. If you would like to give that "special" person a "special" photograph—phone 776-8502 evenings. Ask for Brian. (46-50)

FOR RENT—MISC 03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11f)

LOCATION—LOCATION—LOCATION

Retail/Office new space now available, super university traffic, Denison & Claflin. Ideal for beauty-barber shop, stereo, jeans, etc. Also convenient off-campus office use: consulting, travel agency, insurance, legal, accounting, medical, stock broker, etc. For Information 537-0200.

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11f)

HALLOWEEN COSTUMES—Sales and rentals, masks, makeup, accessories. The Emporium, 11th and Moro in Aggieville. (35-49)

FOR RENT—APTS 04

BASEMENT APARTMENT—Two bedroom, remodeled this summer, two blocks west of campus. Call Jim, 539-1135. (42-50)

NICE, SPACIOUS, two-bedroom, unfurnished, $295. Available anytime. 776-2171. (45-49)

PINE HAVEN brand new two-bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. 776-3804. (46-55)

TWO BEDROOM, furnished, near Westport. Fully equipped, pool, balcony, lovely—$350. Call 238-4752. (46-55)

FOR RENT—HOUSES 05

FOR RENT—Spacious, furnished, three bedroom home, three blocks from campus, two baths, utility room, garage. References required. Shown by appointment. Call 776-1283 after 5:00 p.m. (42-48)

FOR SALE—AUTO 06

1968 AMX classic 390—automatic, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, stereo, 5,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Excellent condition. $3400. Might trade. 537-4782. (39-48)

1973 DODGE Polara, V8, automatic, power steering, and brakes. In good condition. $550. Call 537-2865. (44-49)

1978 TOYOTA Corolla hatchback. AM/FM cassette, air, excellent condition. After 7:00 p.m. 776-1495 or 539-8970. (45-49)

1974 MUSTANG II, 65,000 miles. Engine rebuilt, only 9500. 537-5796. Evenings. (46-47)

1974 FORD Pinto. Good shape. New gear system, stereo, heating system. Call 539-1361 8 a.m.-10 a.m. or 6 p.m.-12 p.m. (46-49)

FOR SALE—MISC 07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risque greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

ONE-HALF Arab bay gelding, three years old, green broke. Call 776-9746 after 6:00 p.m. (42-46)

BICYCLE 12 speed, eclipse bags front and rear with racks, handlebar bag, rollers for indoor riding. 537-8501. (43-47)

BICYCLES FOR Sale: 10- and 3-speed mens and womens $35-$150. Limited selection. Call 537-8616. (44-46)

TWO NU vs KSU football tickets. Call 776-7146. (44-46)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (light blue), USC (white), others. $14.00 each postpaid. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 38601. COD orders call 1-801-835-1085. (45-59)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES 08

TWO-BEDROOM trailer house, excellent condition. Call 776-6143 after 6:00 p.m. (45-54)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES 09

1979 SUZUKI GS550, 18,000 miles, new chain, battery, helmets included. $900 or best offer. 776-1332 after 5:00 p.m. (42-41)

1973 TR6 Triumph, one owner, both tops, very nice, K-State purple, $2295. The Preston McCall Company, 913-641-6067. (44-53)

FOUND 10

CALCULATOR, FOUND near Anderson Avenue pedestrian light. Call John McCulloh, 532-6730, to identify and claim. (44-46)

HELP WANTED 13

STUDENT to work 20 hrs. per week. General office work. Typing, filing, bookkeeping. Office experience required. Prefer second or third year student. Apply Institute for Environmental Research, Seaton Hall. (46-48)

EARN MONEY for doing nothing. Observers needed for official attempt to break world's record for long distance walking without rest. Call 776-3844, October 25, 1983, 6-9 p.m. only. (46)

TAKING APPLICATIONS for part-time employment. Sales and train to install satellite antenna systems. Must be willing to work, meet public and dress neatly. Apply at 316 Poyntz, Ghere's. (46-48)

COMPUTER OPERATOR

We are seeking a qualified computer operator to work part time as needed during peak periods which may also include some weekends and holidays. Scheduled hours will vary per week depending upon work load and availability. IBM 4331, Dos-VSE experience N/or Data Processing education required. Starting wage is $6.35 per hour plus shift differential if applicable. Applicants are requested to contact:

Supervisor Employment/EEO
McCall Pattern Co.
615 McCall Rd.
Manhattan, KS 66502
Equal Opportunity Employer M-F

IMMEDIATE TWO part-time sale telephone receptionist positions. Qualifications: mature person from a standard high school or equivalent, pleasant speaking voice, neat personal appearance, the ability to work well with people in a pleasant working environment. Applications must be sent to P.O. Box 703, Manhattan, KS 66502. (46-49)

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

PART TIME male needed for T.V. satellite receiving dish installation and delivery. Must be ambitious and willing to work. Flexible hours required. Send name, address and phone number to P.O. Box 1397, Mahattan, KS 66502. (46-47)

LOST 14

LOST: LIKE new blue denim jacket on the 13th or 14th of the month. Call 776-3884. (46-49)

NOTICES 15

CITRUS and apple sale! Oranges, grapefruit, apples—one-fourth to one-half cases from $8.50 to $13. Deadline by November 5th. Call 539-9939, ask for Joe Merlo. (45-46)

PERSONAL 16

JAMES H.—Have old used tombstones. Will trade for fifteen-year-old (hot) school bell. Reply thru Collegian. (44-46)

SNOOPY—THE Great Pumpkin is coming! See him at the Union on Friday. Linus. (45-46)

YELLOW-HAIRED girl—Happy Birthday to a very special lady. Remember Ted, noisy ducks, great movies and tailpipes. Love, Your Knight. (46)

WHITE LIGHTNING: go beat SAE's. We will be rooting for you! From your Fan Club. (46)

PIKE LITTLE Sisters Olympic coaches Pete Obetz and Susan Jackson. Together you, Theta Xi's and our Little Sister's of the Unicorn are #1. (46)

HEY! CINDY! Here's a birthday wish for a great friend! Happy Birthday!!! Love, Your Theta Delta. (46)

FARMHOUSE NERDS—Sorry some of us were a little late, but the function was super great. You all had quite the style which really made us smile. Thanks for the laughs. The Kappa Delta Nerddettes. (46)

HUN WE MADE it. I knew we could do it. I love you. Love, R.B. (46)

CONNIE and Edie—This weekend was some fun. We all wobbled, but we didn't fall down. At least we got a picture. It really felt like sixty degrees, especially when we were Japanese. Sigma love, violets, and pick up five cards because you didn't knock. Christy and Beth. (46)

HAPPY 22nd Birthday to I'm not saying any names but his initials are David, Lee Whiteside. His distant girlfriend (in miles only) wishes him the best today and always. Good luck on your test tomorrow! Love, Jennifer. (46)

HOW'S 'BOUT those Theta Xi's and Little Sisters of the Unicorn? What an awesome way to win Little Sister Olympics! Love you all. PJT. (46)

ROOMMATE WANTED 17

ONE-TWO female non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplace, prefer animal friends or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (44-48)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share four-bedroom apartment through May. Good location. Call 539-5849. (42-51)

MALE FOR excellent apartment in great location. $120 per month. Call 776-3241. Keep trying. (45-47)

SERVICES 18

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Unique skin care and glamour products. Call Floris Taylor, 539-2070, for facial. (1-75)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South 4th Street, Suite 25. (11f)

GRADUATING THIS semester? Let us help you with your resume. Resume Service, 1221 Moro, Aggieville, 537-7294. (11f)

Typing—LOWER rates. IBM electronic typewriter for faster service. Satisfaction guaranteed. Call Linda, 776-6174. (71f)

MARY KAY Cosmetics: Free facials. 10 percent off products with student I.D. New fall glamour products now in. Call Elaine Berryhill, independent Beauty Consultant. 537-3233, 1456-7251 evenings. (30-50)

COSTUMES BY the thousands. Complete rabbits, chickens, gorillas, tigers, bears and more. Flap girls, much more. Ask for whatever you'd like to reserve now for Halloween. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (9-50)

Typing—LETTERS, term papers, resumes, etc. Reasonable rates. Call Sherry, 539-9131 after 5:30 p.m. (21-50)

Typing. FAST, experienced, professional; letters, resumes, reports, technical papers, theses; satisfaction guaranteed. Call 776-6166 anytime. (30-54)

Typing—ALL kinds Guaranteed. Reasonable rates. Twelve years experience with theses. Call Rita, (1)293-5304. (35-49)

Typing WANTED: Dissertations, theses, papers. Fast, professional service. Twenty years experience. Call Katherine, 539-8837. (39-59)

NOW HAIRSTYLING—Perms $17.50 up; cuts $5.50 up; kids cuts 10 and under, $5.50; walk-ins, appointments. Hours 8:00 a.m.-7:00 p.m., Tuesday-Friday, Saturday 8:00 a.m.-5:30 p.m., 110 North 3rd, 776-7808. (40-50)

WORD PROCESSING Services—storage of dissertation, is perfect for revisions. 2312 Anderson, 537-2810. (42-46)

WORD PROCESSING Services will give you fast services on repetitive letters. 2312 Anderson, 537-2810. (42-46)

WORD PROCESSING Services offers computer rental. 2312 Anderson, 537-2810. (42-46)

WORD PROCESSING Services offers typewriter rental. 2312 Anderson, 537-2810. (42-46)

WORD PROCESSING Services gives your resume a professional appearance. 2312 Anderson, 537-2810. (42-46)

ROAMIN' SPA Rental—Rent a hot tub for your next party! Call 776-2293 after 6:00 p.m. weekdays, anytime on weekends. (42-51)

Captain Cosmo

By Doug Yearout

Bradley

By Mich Johnson

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

THERE ARE MOUNTAINS AT K-STATE.

ANNOUNCING: The contest of the year. The biggest. The tallest. The most mountainous Busch Mountain on campus wins.

Starting today, all living groups and campus organizations should save all their empty Busch cans (and we know there are a lot out there).

OBJECT: On November 19 each group will build their mountain with a minimum of 1000 cans (Busch only). Each entry will be judged on number of cans, design and originality.

PRIZES: Awards to top 4 groups with a Grand Prize to be announced later.

Further details to be announced or call 776-BEER, ask for Steve or Dennis.

U.S. invades troubled Caribbean island; two Marines die

By The Associated Press

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados — Nearly 2,000 U.S. Marines and Army paratroopers invaded Marxist-ruled Grenada in an airborne strike Tuesday, clashing with Grenadian troops and armed Cuban workers.

The U.S. forces, ordered to protect some 1,000 Americans on the tiny eastern Caribbean island and "restore democracy" there, were followed by 300 soldiers from six Caribbean nations.

President Reagan called the pre-dawn operation "completely successful."

He said 1,900 Marines and Army Ranger paratroopers had seized the two main airports on the mountainous, 21-mile-long island.

At least two American military men were killed and 20 wounded in the initial fighting, according to U.S. administration and congressional sources in Washington. They also reported three members of Grenada's 1,200-man armed forces were killed, and that 30 Soviet advisers and about 600 Cubans were captured.

Jamaica was one of the six island nations contributing troops to the invasion force and

Prime Minister Edward Seaga told the Jamaican Parliament in Kingston he had received a report at noon saying 12 Cubans had been killed and 22 captured. He also said three civilians were killed and the allied forces had seized a large quantity of Soviet-made arms at the new airport being built by more than 600 Cuban workers at Point Salines.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz told a midafternoon news conference in Washington the decision to invade Grenada was taken because of the "atmosphere of violent uncertainty" and the fear that Americans on the island might be "hurt or taken hostage."

He said the U.S. forces "will leave promptly; we have no intention of staying there," but gave no timetable.

The Americans clashed with a Cuban work force that had been extending a runway at the Point Salines airport. Thirty Soviet advisers and 600 Cubans were captured in the invasion, U.S. officials said. There was no immediate word on losses within the 1,200-member Grenadian armed forces.

Reagan said the 1,900 Marines and Army

Ranger paratroopers, who were later backed up by 300 troops from six Caribbean nations, seized the two main airports on the mountainous, 21-mile-long island.

Medical students who make up the majority of the estimated 1,000 Americans on Grenada were reported unharmed, although pinned down by the continuing fighting.

U.S. helicopter gunships circled the St. George's Medical College, apparently drawing fire from Grenadian snipers, American student Mark Carpenter reported by ham radio.

"Every time a gunship goes over, there's fire all around us," Carpenter said in a broadcast monitored by The Associated Press.

The invasion, coming just two days after a deadly bomb attack on Marines in Lebanon, stirred new unease about foreign U.S. military operations among some in Washington, particularly Democrat congressmen.

The Soviet Union demanded that U.S. forces withdraw immediately from Grenada. The British government expressed reservations about the attack. And medical school officials and another American ham operator on the island insisted U.S. citizens had been in no danger from Grenada's new authorities.

The resort island has been under Marxist sway since a coup in 1979. But in a new government upheaval that began two weeks ago, a military-led group identified by Washington as hard-line Marxists took command, and Prime Minister Maurice Bishop and some of his Cabinet ministers were slain.

The new "Revolutionary Military Council" was headed by Gen. Hudson Austin.

The U.S. administration said the island, 1,500 miles southeast of Miami, posed a strategic threat to the United States because Soviet-bloc aircraft might eventually use the airport at Point Salines, whose runway was being extended by a Cuban work force.

Reagan, appearing at a White House news conference, listed three reasons for the invasion: protecting American lives, "to forestall further chaos" and to "restore order and democracy."

The U.S. chief executive asserted that the island had been under the control of "a brutal group of leftist thugs."

He said the joint operation had been mounted at the request Sunday of the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States. But a senior State Department official in Washington, who declined to be identified, said the decision to invade was made in the "middle of last week."

Troops from the islands of Jamaica, Barbados, Dominica, St. Vincent, Antigua and St. Lucia took part in the assault, Reagan said.

The prime minister of Dominica, Eugenia Charles, appeared with Reagan before reporters and said the operation was aimed at "preventing this thing (Marxism) from spreading to all the islands."

A Reagan administration official said Grenada's British-appointed governor-general, Paul Scoon, who had been under house arrest, has the power to form a provisional government that would plan elections.

Jamaican Prime Minister Edward Seaga told the U.S. Cable News Network that the U.S. forces would remain on Grenada only a few days, but the Caribbean nations' forces would stay up to six months.

Marines receive 'shoot to kill' order as death toll rises

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — U.S. Marines were ordered into sandbagged bunkers Tuesday and told to "shoot to kill" anyone approaching their camp after three trucks that officials feared might be filled with explosives drove nearby.

The Pentagon said the death toll from Sunday's terrorist bombing of a U.S. Marine command post rose to 216. The bodies of 197 already were undergoing processing and identification in Frankfurt, West Germany before being flown to Dover Air Force Base in Delaware. No date has been set.

The suicide strike was carried out by a man driving a truck packed with a ton of explosives. It was the bloodiest attack against the U.S. military since Vietnam.

The Marine commander, Col. Timothy Geraghty, told reporters more bodies were still in the rubble. About 70 Americans were injured, many of whom are being treated in military hospitals in West Germany, Italy and Cyprus.

French spokesman Lt. Col. Philippe De Longeaux said 38 French troops were killed, 15 wounded, and 20 were missing in the bombing at a French command seconds after the attack on the Americans.

They are part of a multinational force that arrived in Beirut 13 months ago to help the Lebanese government restore order in the war-torn country.

About 300 Marine troops arrived at the camp to replace their fallen comrades and the Marine commandant, Gen. Paul X. Kelley, arrived to inspect the jagged concrete wreckage of the Marine building.

Kelley said he thought security at the base was "very adequate" and that it would have been difficult to prevent the attack.

The tense Marines were ordered to their highest state of alert and reporters were told to get into bunkers or leave the area after suspicious trucks were seen at around the airport.

"There have been three vehicles spotted driving around the area. There are suspicions that they could contain explosives," said Marine Capt. Wayne Jones. Officials gave no further information about the trucks, but the Marines remained on alert throughout the day.

Another Marine spokesman, Maj. Robert Jordan said anyone approaching the gate to the camp would be shot.

U.S. Embassy spokesman John Stewart said the "extra precautions" were ordered because of "a warning of a potential threat... Some sort of indirect, indefinite threat received by somebody from somebody."

Reagan ousts half of Civil Rights Commission

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan fired half the Civil Rights Commission to make room for his own team of conservatives Tuesday in a move which effectively puts the gadfly agency out of business at least temporarily.

Outraged civil rights groups said the three ousted members, appointed by two previous presidents, were guilty only of criticizing the administration's record.

A bipartisan effort was launched in the Senate to reconstitute the commission as an independent arm of Congress and House Democrats unanimously approved a statement "strongly" disapproving of Reagan's action, which it said was taken "without cause."

Reagan's surprise move came after five months of wrangling between the administration and congressional liberals over the makeup of the independent commission.

In one stroke last May, Reagan proposed three nominees to replace members held over from the Carter and Ford administrations. The holdovers are Mary Berry, Blandina Ramirez and Murray Saltzman.

In a statement Tuesday, the White House said those three jobs now are terminated.

In firing the holdovers, Reagan called on the Senate to confirm his appointees: Morris Abram, John Bunzel and Robert Destro. They all share Reagan's belief that quota systems and mandatory busing are inappropriate ways to end racial discrimination.

The firing leaves the commission without its required quorum of four, meaning it cannot even meet until at least one more member is confirmed by the Senate.

Reaction to Reagan's move was swift.

"We are appalled by the abrupt firing of three dedicated servants of civil rights," said John E. Jacob, president of the National Urban League. "The administration's move is an insult to the civil rights community and to the Congress which has been searching for ways to preserve an effective Civil Rights Commission."

Joaquin Avila, president and general counsel of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund, said the firing was "both illegal and destructive to the fabric of civil rights."

Referring to the fired commissioners, Avila said, "Their only fault has been to denounce publicly this administration's efforts to dismantle federal civil rights enforcement."

Negotiations have been under way in the Senate toward a compromise that would expand the commission, allowing the current members to remain on the job and some of Reagan's nominees to be sworn in.

Reagan said he had agreed to several compromise offers, but that they were blocked by critics. Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., a Judiciary Committee member active in the dispute with Reagan over the commission, said he was disappointed by the firings because "we were very close to working out a compromise."

The commission, created in 1957, is an advisory body which investigates discrimination. It has no enforcement powers.

Local task force plans rape awareness forum

By LUCINDA ELLISON
Manhattan Editor

A community forum and further planning of Manhattan's whistle alert program, were discussed Tuesday during a task force committee meeting about rape.

The committee, composed of various community members, met to hear reports from subcommittees formed during a meeting last week.

The forum, scheduled for Nov. 10 in the City Auditorium, will serve as a kickoff for the declaration of November as rape awareness month. The declaration was prepared by city and county officials but will not be official until ratified by city officials at next Tuesday's commission meeting.

The forum will involve four aspects concerning Manhattan's efforts to raise rape awareness, said Bob Shoop, associate professor of administration and foundation.

"I think there's plenty of content for the forum," Shoop said. In addition to creating public awareness about the issue of rape and the whistle alert program, community members will be allowed to voice concerns and questions and to volunteer to help the task force.

"The forum has to come off, come hell or high water," said Judy Davis, director of the Regional Crisis Center and co-chairman of the task force.

Shoop, who is also co-chairman, provided information about Whistle Stop, a company which makes whistles specifically for the rape prevention program. Three communities in the United States currently have established Whistle Stop programs for rape prevention, Shoop said.

The Whistle Stop program involves distribution of high-pitched whistles which serve as an alarm device in case of an attack. When a whistle is heard, community members in the area go to the source of the sound in attempts to ward off attackers.

"None of them (sources in the three communities) reported any significant abuse (of the whistles)," Shoop said.

Whistle Stop also sends out information in order to educate communities on the program. Although the committee did not decide to purchase whistles from the Whistle Stop company and use their information, Manhattan's program will use some type of whistle and distribution of information to educate the public.

"Community education has to go along with whatever whistle we get," Davis said. "It isn't worth anything if people don't go when they hear the whistle."

In addition to the forum and the whistle alert program, reports on funding and distribution of information were discussed.

"We've got to have a broad funding base," Davis said. "We need a big kitty from which to spend."

The committee hopes, through community support, to raise funds to help pay for circulation of information and enough whistles to introduce the program to the community.

Over the edge

Pat MacLaird, an employee of the Danker Roofing and Siding Company, tosses an empty bucket from the roof of the patio in front of the Union into a truck below. MacLaird and his co-workers are putting on a new rubber roof. The project is expected to be completed today.

Art workshops leave mark on campus

By KATHY BARTELLI
Collegian Reporter

Some K-State students "artfully" left their marks on campus in the construction of sculptures.

John Vogt, associate professor of art, said much of the art on campus was produced by students who took part in art situation workshops more than 10 years ago.

There were three workshops in all, Vogt said, starting in 1969. The workshops, which were conducted for eight weeks in three consecutive summers included students in art, architecture and landscape architecture. Vogt said.

The workshops involved group projects as well as field trips and lectures by visiting artists and architects, he said. K-State and the Education Facilities Laboratories of the Ford Foundation funded the workshops.

A series of preliminary meetings were conducted before each workshop, Vogt said.

"The students made proposals for several areas of the campus which were, at the time, in pretty poor condition," he said. "The better ones and those that were financially feasible were selected and constructed, with the students doing most of the work."

"Some were sculptures, others involved architecture. The idea was to integrate the three different disciplines of art, architecture and landscape architecture."

Some of the work to come out of the workshops in 1969 include the stone sculpture behind Eisenhower Hall which was created by Nick Zack. The sculptor of the stone work east of Seaton Hall is unknown.

The epoxy resin sculpture in front of King Hall also was created during the workshop and was done by Jim Hentz. Another K-State student, whose name is unknown, completed the brick frieze on the facade of Lafene Student Health Center that summer.

During the 1970 workshop, Chuck

Gordon constructed the KSU letters which sit on the corner of Anderson Avenue and 17th Street. The aluminum frieze on Umberger Hall also was done that summer by Barry West.

Although it has changed some since it was first produced, the area in front of the Union consisting of stone pieces and various sized wooden pegs was assembled by students in the 1970 workshop. The same year, students Mick Toben, Jack Lewis and Lance Evans completed the playground behind Justin Hall.

Another collaboration of architecture students and art majors was completed during the last workshop in 1971. In the area between Willard and Shellenberger Halls, the students paved off a circular area and constructed a low brick wall. Designs made with colored stones are embedded in the walkway. A walnut sculpture in the center of the area was done by Pearle Hansen.

"That was a real ugly place in there," Vogt said. "It was all washed out."

The fountain in front of Farrell Library also was done by students participating in the 1971 workshop.

Some works were completed as temporary projects and have already been taken down, Vogt said. One such project was a mural painted on the back of Waters Hall.

There were no titles given to any of the works and Vogt said he could not name the meaning of any of the projects.

"The meaning is tied up in the medium," Vogt said. "You can't expect it to tell a story in a verbal sense. The meaning is tied up in the relationship of the forms."

The workshops were designed to enhance certain areas of the campus, he said, and were intended to be temporary.

"The workshops served their function very well," Vogt said.

Campus

Author to speak at conference

Former New York Times reporter Roy Reed will be the guest speaker at the annual K-State Editors' Day Saturday. More than 100 editors from across the state are expected to attend the conference, which will begin at 10 a.m. in Room 106 Kedzie Hall.

Reed, now on the faculty of the University of Arkansas, will speak about his experiences in Tibet while preparing a chapter for the National Geographic Society book "Journey into China." He also will answer questions and will offer writing tips to conference participants.

Other activities for the day will include a reception for editors and their guests from 9 to 10 a.m. Saturday. Charles Hein, K-State director of communications, will present the welcoming address and Bill Brown, associate professor of journalism and mass communications, will report on his summer faculty internship at the Osawatimie Graphic. A luncheon will be held at noon for editors and their spouses in the Union Ballroom.

Food chemistry seminars offered

Stig Friberg, professor of chemistry at the University of Missouri-Rolla, will give two seminars Thursday and Friday at K-State. He will speak on "Surface and Colloid Chemistry in Foods" at 4 p.m. Thursday in Room 109 Justin Hall and "Emulsions May Be More Complex Than We Think" at 10:30 a.m. Friday in Room 109 Justin Hall. The seminars are sponsored by the Department of Foods and Nutrition, Food Science Graduate Program and the Graduate School.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BLOODMOBILE COLLECTION is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today through Friday on the Union second floor. Walk-ins will be accepted.

PRE-NURSING, MED TECH AND PRE-PHYSICAL THERAPY STUDENTS should sign up to work at the Bloodmobile in the dean's office, Eisenhower Hall.

KSU AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS are due today.

SIGMA DELTA PI will be selling T-shirts from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. today through Nov. 1 outside Eisenhower 106. Anyone is welcome to look at sample shirts.

UNIVERSITY FOR MAN REGISTRATION is from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. today in the Union.

STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS: All undergraduate students in a health-related degree program are eligible to apply for a Student Cancer Research Award of $500. These awards have been made available by the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Division of Biology. Applications are now available in Ackert 233. Deadline is Nov. 28.

TODAY

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Ali M. Momeni at 12:30 p.m. in Seaton 54.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD meets at 3:30 p.m. in Union 207.

ASSN. OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union stateroom 3.

MICROBIOLOGY CLUB meets at 3:30 p.m. in Ackert 234 for a tour of the cancer research lab.

COLLEGE REPUBLICANS has a membership table in the Union.

FRENCH TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union stateroom 2.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD meets at 3:30 p.m. in Union 204.

AMERICAN NUCLEAR SOCIETY meets at 7 p.m. in Ward 135.

MECHA meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 205.

THURSDAY

ADVERTISING CLUB meets at 6:30 a.m. at the Union for a field trip to Kansas City.

RECREATION CAREER DAY is from 9:30 a.m. to noon in the Union courtyard.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Janice George-Stewart at 2:45 p.m. in Justin 247. The topic is "Effects of Various Combinations of Fiber, Carbohydrate, Lipid and Protein Levels in the Diet on Serum and Liver Lipid Levels in the Rat."

AG COUNCIL AND HOME EC COUNCIL meet at 5 p.m. in Waters 137 for a Halloween party. Wear costumes.

SIGMA DELTA PI meets at 6 p.m. at 509 S. 15th St. for a meeting and potluck dinner.

HORTICULTURE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Waters 244. Royal Purple pictures will be taken at 6:45 p.m. in Calvin 102.

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 7 p.m. in Kedzie 106.

PI KAPPA ALPHA LITTLE SISTERS meet for a function at 8 p.m. at the Pike house.

KSU PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Union 207.

SAILING CLUB meets at 8:45 p.m. in Blue-mont 122.

THETA XI LITTLE SISTERS OF THE UNICORN meet at 8:45 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

SISTERS OF THE SPHINX meet at 9 p.m. at the Delta Sigma Phi house.

FRIDAY

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Christian A. Okonkwo at 9:30 a.m. in Waters 230. The topic is "Genetics of Flower and Pod Color in Phaseolus Vulgaris L."

TAU BETA PI PLEDGE BOOKS are due at 5 p.m. in Durland 237.

STUDENT/FACULTY DANCE CONCERT is at 8 p.m. at Manhattan Middle School, 9th and Poyntz.

COPIES
5¢
kinko's copies

Hours: Monday-Thursday 8-6, Friday 8-5, Saturday 10-5, Sunday 12-5

2 for 1
Self Serve
Copies
with this coupon

kinko's copies

1126 LARAMIE 537-7340

FREE PARKING

NOW OPEN

IF in need of . . .

Cards
Specialty Gifts
Stationery
Desk Accessories
Unique Pastories
OPENING SPECIAL
Halloween Make-up

We have . . . the answer
gifts · cards · stationery

at: FirstBank Center
1812 Clallin
Manhattan, KS 66502

The Great Glee Club Battle

*** All Faiths Chapel ***

KSU vs NU October 28 8:00 p.m.

Tickets $2.50 each
Available at the door
or from any
Glee Club member

Tickets $2.50 each
Available at the door
or from any
Glee Club member

National Society of Professional Engineers

Applications available at Ambassador table in Durland Wed. & Thurs.

FIND OUT HOW TO:

- ★ ADVANCE YOUR CAREER OPPORTUNITIES
- ★ BE A MOVIE STAR (THROUGH MATHCOUNTS)
- ★ BE INVOLVED WITH THE ENG. COLLEGE OFFICER ELECTIONS ON TUES., NOV. 1 8:30 DU 152

QUESTIONS CALL GENE RUSSELL 539-9422

BUSHWACKERS

• THE •
FUNDRINKERY

Wednesday
Tonic Nite
All tonic drinks $1
Happy Hour: 4-9
2 fers on hi balls
75¢ draws $2 blended drinks

Drink of the Week:
CORN SHUCKER

A reciprocating Club
Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

531 N. Manhattan

'LEAF' IT TO US FOR FALL FASHIONS

GUYS LEE PREWASH IN SELECTED STYLES $22.99

SELECTED GALS SWEATERS & TOPS 1/3 OFF!!!

GALS CALIFORNIA STRAIGHTS & SUPER STRAIGHTS $18.88

GUYS BRITANNIA $19.88

GALS LEE BASIC RIDER (Selection of Style) $19.88

BUY 1 GUYS SHIRT & GET A 2ND (of = value or less) FOR 1/2 PRICE!!

GALS ZENA & CHIC JEANS $5.00 OFF!

BUY 1 GALS SWEATER AND GET A 2ND (of = value or less) HALF PRICE!!

GUYS LEVI BOOT-CUT $16.99

"WE'RE MORE THAN JUST A JEAN STORE!"
THE JEAN STATION

MON.-SAT. 10-6 THURS. 10-8:30

TODAY is the last day to vote for your candidate in the K-State Union

Butch Lacey—Acacia
Scott Schaake—Alpha Gamma Rho
Rex Woodell—Alpha Kappa Lambda
Darrin Dressler—Alpha Tau Omega
Phil Bullinger—Beta Sigma Psi
Keith Ely—Delta Sigma Phi
Bob Ring—Delta Tau Delta
Brian Smith—Delta Upsilon
Mike Hadacheck—Farmhouse
Rich Dale—Kappa Sigma
Joe Jerome—Lambda Chi Alpha
Brad Everett—Phi Delta Theta

Brian Wendelburg—Phi Gamma Delta
Rob Perszyk—Phi Kappa Tau
Neil Lansdowne—Phi Kappa Theta
Mike McCluskey—Pi Kappa Alpha
Brent Grauberger—Pi Kappa Phi
Bill Stevenson—Sigma Alpha Epsilon
Kevin Bowen—Sigma Chi
Mike Ward—Sigma Nu
Tom Griffith—Sigma Phi Epsilon
Monte Griffith—Tau Kappa Epsilon
Dan Klassen—Triangle

Silver coins count as positive votes and pennies and bills count as negative.

TONIGHT

THE JACKS

Rock 'n Roll and LADIES NIGHT—GIRLS FREE—PLUS 1 FREE STEIN 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

THURSDAY DRINK 'N DROWN with THE JACKS

1120 Moro 539-9064

VISIT OUR HALLOWEEN SPOOK-TIQUE

- Masks and Makeup
- Halloween Cards
- Candy
- Party Supplies
- Hair Dye
- Liquid Make-up

COME-BE-WITCHED WITH US!

704 N. Manhattan Ave. Aggieville

LADIES NITE

EVERY WED.!

Ladies Get . . .

- Free Adm.
- Free Draw
- 25¢ Draws Till Closing!

THURS. MEANS 1st 2ND STEINS & PITCHERS!

LET'S TALK HOME COOKIN

Do you like Fresh Homemade Muffins with your meal? How about Homemade soup a great Salad Bar, Fresh Homemade Pies and Special Dinners Prepared Daily?

Then You'll Love

CHEF

111 S. 4th

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 620) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 100, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.

Editor.....Paul Hanson
Managing Editor.....Sandy Lang
Photography Editor.....Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager.....John McGrath

Focus shifts for Marines in Lebanon

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — When U.S. Marines were sent to Lebanon in September of 1982, the Reagan administration thought their stay would be relatively short. Thirteen months later, with nearly 200 leathernecks dead, the road out looks longer than ever.

President Reagan resolved again Monday not to withdraw the Marines, because, he said, their mission remains vital and the United States can't give in to "international criminals and thugs."

Although the president said there has been a lot of progress since the Marines went to Lebanon, purportedly to oversee the withdrawal of foreign forces, it is hard not to conclude there have been plenty of setbacks, too.

The Marines, the administration argued, would not be combatants, but their presence would serve as a psychological lift to the budding government of Amin Gemayel as Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian fighters pulled out. Senior officials confidently predicted the Israelis would be out by the end of 1982.

But all of the foreign armies are still entrenched in Lebanon and the Gemayel government's authority doesn't extend beyond a tenuous grip on the city of Beirut and a few suburbs.

Meanwhile, fighting among native Lebanese factions has spread, and only the intervention of American warships averted a disastrous defeat for the Lebanese army at the hands of Druse militia.

Analysis

The original number of Marines has grown from 800 to 1,600 and the ships off Lebanon's coast have been augmented by the nation's only active battleship, the New Jersey. Reagan didn't rule out more Marines may be sent.

From the beginning, the Marines have been stationed around Beirut's airport, their presence obviously designed to help keep the airport open. But it has frequently been closed nonetheless, partly because of shooting directed at the Marines.

Officials say the mission of the U.S. Marines, part of a broader multinational force, hasn't changed. Technically it hasn't, but in reality it has been broadened considerably.

From an original emphasis on assisting the Lebanese government to reassert national sovereignty, the Marine role is now portrayed as essential to defending free world interests in the entire Middle East.

Reagan made this clear in remarks to a group of editors and broadcasters at the White House Monday. "Peace in Lebanon is the key to the region's stability now, and in the future. To the extent that the prospect of future stability is heavily influenced by the presence of our forces, it is central to our credibility on a global scale," he said.

It's not only stability Washington is after, of course, it's stability for a pro-Western government. The stakes are high, Reagan said, trying to head off a clamor in Congress and elsewhere that the Marines be withdrawn.

To those who say the United States hasn't accomplished anything in Lebanon, Reagan had an answer too. He pointed to the proposed national reconciliation conference for Lebanese political groups which is tentatively scheduled for Geneva later this month.

"We think the goal is worthy, and we think great progress has been made that would not be made if it were not for the multinational force," Reagan said.

But some key participants have expressed doubt that anything meaningful will emerge from the conference.

A leader of the Shiite population, Sayed Hussein Hussein, who is also a member of Lebanon's parliament, told reporters here Monday the conference was concocted by the Reagan administration to avoid giving the appearance during the 1984 U.S. elections of a failed policy.

He said Washington should be focusing on getting foreign armies out of Lebanon.

Gemayel himself was quoted by the New York Times as saying in a recent interview that the reconciliation conference was "a camouflage, a distraction" that was dreamed up by Washington. Embarrassed U.S. and Lebanese officials said he was quoted out of context.

The focus of U.S. efforts for getting foreign armies out of Lebanon also has changed since the Marines were first sent in. Soon after Israel invaded in June of last year, the administration supported a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for an unconditional withdrawal of Israeli troops.

But now Washington says the Israelis don't have to get out until the Syrians do, while the Syrians say Israel must leave first. Reagan, on Monday, seemed to say for the first time that the Israeli invasion was justified. He said Israel was "forced to cross its border" into Lebanon.

As for withdrawing the Marines, Reagan said that will come after the foreign armies withdraw and after the Lebanese government has proved it can control its territory.

Once upon a time, he said, "Lebanon was a very prosperous, peaceful nation that was known as a kind of gateway to the East, and we believe it can be again."

Nobody would argue that Reagan has set a noble goal for his foreign policy. But it could mean a long stay for the U.S. Marines.

Officials say security lax prior to bombing

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The first of the Marines injured in the Beirut bombing came back to America on Tuesday as the administration dispatched its top officials to explain why their barracks was so easily penetrated.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger briefed the Senate Armed Services Committee in a closed session and chairman John Tower emerged saying "It is the consensus of the committee that security was not adequate."

"Quite clearly, every security measure was not taken," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

There was a call from House leaders that the families of the injured be flown to Europe to be with their hospitalized loved ones.

Meanwhile, the count of the dead in Sunday's explosion at the Marine headquarters rose to 214. The bodies of 197 already were undergoing processing and identification in Frankfurt, Germany. They will be flown to Dover Air Force Base in Delaware but no date has been set.

Secretary of State George Shultz told a news conference that security in Beirut was not as tight as officials would like because the Marines were at an operating airport.

"Naturally you make decisions that involve some sort of balance between security risks on one hand and what it takes for an airport to operate on the other," Shultz said. "I think that certainly in the light of this terrible tragedy that balance needs to be shifted and the emphasis on security will have to be heightened very significantly."

CONCENTRATED
SHAMPOO
36¢ QUART
Plus
Over 1000 Salon and
Beauty Items at
Discount store prices.

• • • • •

10% OFF
WITH THIS COUPON
AT
GLAMOUR WORLD BEAUTY SUPPLY
1104 Waters
West on Anderson Ave.
Behind Curtis Mathis T.V.

DARK HORSE

TAVERN

LADIES
NITE!
Ladies get
1 Draw Free
1st pitcher for $1 & $2
pitchers.
619 N. Manhattan

Don't Miss
PRAIRIE STAR BAND
From Kansas City
at
BLUE RIVER PUB

Wed., Oct. 26th through Sat., Oct. 29

Saturday—Costume Contest
Bud Light Fright Night
Get a free mug for attending!!
Thursday—50¢ Fishbowl Night

$2.00 Cover Charge

Wednesday
3 Fers
10 pm-11 pm

2 Fers
11 pm-1 am

at
COWBOY PALACE
Where it don't make
no difference
209 Poyntz 539-9828
4:00pm to 3:00am

Clay's Portation RESTAURANT

TONIGHT
BBQ BUFFET
RIBS, BEEF & CHICKEN
$3.95

All you can eat
5:30-7:30

At the Ramada Inn 17th & Anderson

Manhattan Civic
Theatre presents

October 28, 29
November 4 & 5
8 p.m.

The Bat

Tickets $4.00

City Auditorium Basement
Call 776-4815 for reservations

MCCAIN
AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

the piano king
of Kansas City Swing...

Jay "hottie" mc shann
a Mid-America Arts Alliance program

Friday, October, 28, 8 p.m.

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office, noon-5 p.m. M-F, 532-6428

This program is made possible by support from the Kansas Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts, through participation in Mid-America Arts Alliance, a regional arts organization.

JUST WANTED TO PUT A BUG
IN YOUR EAR...

... Get your Royal Purple picture taken TODAY. Next week is the last week. Take your stamped fee card to
UNION 209.
Hours are 8:30-12:30 and 1:30-5:30.
539-5229

• Spirit Banner Contest •

Organizations!! Design an original banner boosting Wildcat spirit for the Nebraska game—October 29th. All banners will hang in the stadium for the game. $100 & $50 cash prizes for 1st and 2nd place winners. Entries judged on design, slogan, spirit and visibility. $5 fee per entry. For information call Mary Wiklander 532-6266 at Hollis House. Entry deadline Oct. 28. Sponsored by Student Foundation.

SPIRIT BANNER

TAKE 2

ALLEY SPECIALS
WED. DOUBLE TROUBLE
2 Fers or Tall Doubles 10-12:30
THURS. SUDS NITE
55¢ Draws $2.00 Pitchers
80¢ Bottles $1.25 Imports

FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR
$1.25 House Drinks 55¢ Draws
Hors d'oeuvres 4-8

SAT. LATE NITE HAPPY HOUR
OPEN Build your own sandwich at Alley Sandwich Bar
AT 9:00 Happy Hour Prices

MEL'S

THE BEST PAIR IN TOWN

TAVERN SPECIALS
WED. FISHBOWL FEVER
70¢ Fishbowls 7-midnight
FRIDAY TGIF
HAPPY HOUR ALL DAY
10:30 a.m.-7:00 p.m.

SAT. KEEP ON TRACKIN TO MEL'S

Downtown mall a mistake

By the end of this week, the city of Manhattan should know whether it will receive the $10 million Urban Development Action Grant to build its downtown mall. City officials dived headlong into the fight to get the grant and haven't come up for breath long enough to see the mall is not the best choice for Manhattan.

Contrary to popular opinion, the mall would not save downtown. Downtown would merely transform into something that in no way resembles a downtown shopping area. There would not be the streets and sidewalks, the fresh air and different storefronts. There would only be an enclosed mall, where the temperature is always the same, the atmosphere is stuffy and the cigarette and cigar smoke lingers in the air.

Preserving and promoting a shopping district downtown is a good idea. Building a mall in Manhattan may be a good idea. Replacing the downtown atmosphere with a mall is a bad idea.

It has been shown that a suburban mall would generate more money. The city officials who argue for the mall contend that they want to keep the Manhattan shoppers from going to Topeka and Kansas City to spend their money. If this was true, a suburban mall would be a better way to do it.

New housing districts are going in the suburban areas. If the city is serious about attracting shoppers downtown, it should get serious about attracting people to live in the area. Tax abatements for those who build or rehabilitate houses in the area surrounding downtown make a great deal more sense to us than public investment in a mall.

Manhattan's leaders need to get over their desire to turn downtown into a concrete extravaganza and start looking out for what is best for the city as a whole. Downtown can be renovated and given a new look which will transform it into a place where people will want to shop. If city leaders want to focus on a way to make it better, a parking garage would be an intelligent beginning. More people avoid downtown because of inadequate parking than because they dislike the looks of the area.

UDAGs should be used where they are really needed; to serve the people in the cities who really need the help, not to serve the city leaders who want the grant for purely commercial purposes.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

New rape laws no protection

Manhattan is up in arms about the current rape situation and it's none too soon. It is a shame that so many women had to suffer the brutal consequences of rape before the citizens of Manhattan became active against this crime.

Who's to blame for this passive attitude? No one in particular, but everyone in general. Our society seems to hush the discussion of rape, as if by ignoring it, maybe it will go away. Only if rape happens to someone in your neighborhood, or someone you know, does it get actively discussed. The citizens of Manhattan are finally discussing it, openly and actively. Progress is being made.

Rape is a fact of life but it's a fact that needs to be changed. If the statistics hold true, one of every three women will be raped during her lifetime. The number of rapes is not a pretty statistic; neither is the statistic for wife, husband or child abuse. But, as our society becomes more violent, so does its crimes.

It is wrong that a woman can't enter her own home, go to a movie or walk down a street without the threat of being sexually assaulted. But being wrong doesn't make the fact go away. It's time that we do something about this. Women shouldn't have to be prisoners in their own homes. It's wrong, unfair, unjust and uneverything but untrue.

We are victims of our own womanhood. The mere fact that we are female makes us more vulnerable to attack. The fact that we should know this also makes us more to blame for the crime. Or so they tell us.

While we can blame society and its attitudes about sexuality, the blame is not society's alone. Also to blame are the courts and the laws. There seems to be more laws to protect the attacker than the victim.

A mountain of proof is needed to make a rape arrest and then make the charge stick. The burden of proof still lies on the victim and the state. Remember the phrase: innocent until proven guilty.

Unlike some states, Kansas has done something about outdated rape laws. In January of this year, new Kansas legislation regarding rape went into effect. These new acts were designed to change and improve the current rape statutes in Kansas.

DARCY WARD
Collegian Columnist

House Bill 2008 amends article 21-3501 of the Kansas Statutes Annotated. The act defines rape as the "sexual intercourse with a person who does not consent to the sexual intercourse, under the following circumstances: (a) when the victim is overcome by force or fear; (b) when the victim is unconscious or physically powerless; (c) when the victim is incapable of giving consent because of mental deficiency or disease, which condition was known by the offender or was reasonably apparent to the offender; (d) when the victim is incapable of giving consent because of the effect of any alcoholic liquor, narcotic, drug or other substance administered to the victim by the offender or by another person with the offender's knowledge, unless the victim voluntarily consumes or allows the administration of the substance with knowledge of its nature."

One of the changes these laws made was replacing the word "woman" with "the victim." Another deleted the words "a woman's resistance" from part (a) of the statute and replaced them with "the victim," making it unnecessary for a woman to prove she physically resisted.

This act also redefines sexual intercourse as "any penetration of the female sex organ by a finger, the male sex organ, or any object. Any penetration, however slight, is sufficient to constitute sexual intercourse."

This new definition now includes a large number of sexual acts, which before were ignored or simply called battery misdemeanors.

The section also eliminates as evidence "the complaining witness' previous sexual conduct with any person including the defendant." This elimination of evidence, can however, be reversed. The defendant may request, at least seven days before the trial, that such evidence be used. The motion must state the nature of the testimony, its relevancy and contain an affidavit in which an offer or proof of the previous sexual conduct. The motion is heard in the judge's chambers, and the judge will make the decision of what may and may not be admissible as evidence.

The prosecuting attorney may introduce evidence concerning any previous sexual conduct of the complaining witness or the complaining witness may testify, without prior consent from the court. But, in this case the witness is opening him/herself up for any cross-examination questions the defense attorney may ask.

At least this law will help some women know and possibly prepare for questions a defense attorney may ask. It may also eliminate some needless embarrassment on the part of the complaining witness. Many times a woman's past was brought up in a rape trial when the information was not important to the case. At times, the judge would have such testimony stricken from the record, but it is hard for jury members to stike something from their minds that has already been heard.

These new laws are certainly a step in the right direction. But, while the wheels of justice turn slowly, the wheels of society's attitudes turn slower yet. These laws that have been changed for the better will help women who are already victims, but they will do little for those who are potential victims. For these women, the only real protection is to change the attitude of society toward rape. Not an easy task. Too many people still believe that a woman who is out alone at night is asking for rape and too many men are brought up without respect for women.

Again, we are victims of our womanhood. Laws are being passed to help protect us, but the real problem lies in society, and changing the values of society takes time.

Unfortunately, as we have seen in the past few months, the women of Manhattan are running out of time.

Jumping to the beat

My youngest daughter tells me that Don Marks, journalism teacher at Manhattan High School, told her to tell me to stop writing about baseball — that enough was enough. All right, I don't mind. Earlier, I had told him I would write more about jazz, so in fulfillment of that promise this column and the next are about that subject.

Perhaps some of the names are no longer familiar to many people, but I believe Mr. Marks will know them. I imagine he could even supply a few names himself of either musicians or songs which aren't mentioned.

A record of "Tea for Two" being played on a wind-up phonograph a couple of months before my seventh birthday was the first time I ever heard jazz. That was in 1929 in Africa, where my parents were missionaries.

After we came back to this country in 1930 we moved to western Oklahoma. In 1933, a little more than four years after hearing "Tea for Two," one Sunday morning my father was scheduled to preach in a church in a town called Leedey. It was a gray, drizzly, muddy day in late March or early April. We were invited to the home of one of the church members for Sunday dinner — a family by the name of Blacketter, who had a son about my age named Don.

I've kept sporadic contact with Don Blacketter in what is now more than 50 years since. A highly successful physician, he lives in Shamrock, Texas, a little town in the Texas panhandle. While on my way to California last year, I stopped in Shamrock and visited with him for a while.

Back there in 1933, in the kitchen of the Blacketter home in Leedey, Okla., there was a curved-top desk-size Philco radio which was turned on while Sunday dinner was being prepared. The sound of a popular music program filled the room. I listened with great interest. It wasn't the kind of music I heard in my own home, but this music fascinated me with its beat and syncopation, just like "Tea for Two" had when I first heard it in Africa. I remember that radio was on top of a small table next to a window — and I was sitting looking out that window at a gray and drizzly sky. And on the radio was being played "Stormy Weather." I remember thinking while listening that I, too, didn't know why there was no sun up in the sky.

A couple of years after that, while I was in junior high school in Upland, Calif., where we had moved in the summer of 1933, I heard "Blue Moon," "Red Sails in the Sunset," "Sweet Leilani" and "Moon Over Miami" — songs which always have been associated in my memory with a schoolboy crush I had on a girl named Mona Boyd.

I don't know exactly which jazz band from that time, known as the era of swing, first fixed itself in my awareness. They all came together in an explosion when I was a senior in high school in Pottstown, Pa., in 1938 and 1939. Unquestionably, Benny Goodman, Glen Miller and Artie Shaw were among the first.

Later came Larry Clinton, Charlie Barnet, Red Norvo, Gene Krupa, Harry James, Ziggy Ellman, and many many more. Music from the bands of Louis Armstrong, Coleman Hawkins, Erskine Hawkins, Duke

Ellington, Count Basie, Chick Webb, Fats Waller, Lionel Hampton, and all the rest beyond remembering filled my time. I listened to everything and anything which was jazz. And my body and spirit sure did jump to that beat!

Fortunately, in Pottstown in those days there was a place called Sunnybrook Ballroom. All these bands I've mentioned came there. Although I couldn't dance, I went to listen to them. At first, when I still lived at home and knew my parents disapproved of such music, I tiptoed out of the house after I was supposed to be asleep, then walked the four miles to Sunnybrook Ballroom to hear the great jazz played.

Later, of course, as I grew out of my teens, I became more open about what I was doing, so that my parents soon knew where I was going on those Saturday nights. In addition to the bands I've already listed, I heard Tommy Dorsey, Jimmy Dorsey, Hal Kemp, Bunny Berrigan, Muggsy Spanier, Wingy Manone and Woody Herman, in that ballroom.

There are times nowadays that I cannot comprehend how anyone can get as involved, as I see some young people around me doing, with what seems to me to be the raucous electronic screech of rock music.

"Where is the music?" I ask myself. "It all sounds alike to me!" I want to say. And then I remember how my father used to ask me how I could tell the jazz bands apart, that they all sounded alike to him. So, I try to listen a little more closely to the rock music I hear being played today.

At the same time, I regret that the big bands are no more. I miss hearing 15 to 20 musicians all together jamming the blues — and behind that wave of music the sound of many dancing feet jumping to the beat.

To my way of thinking, nothing electronically amplified can match that.

Letters

Science classes should teach science

Editor,

It seems to me that everyone has missed the main point in the creation vs. evolution battle in the school system, even the Supreme Court.

The main conflict should not be centered on the religious aspect of how life began. I, as a Christian and a scientist, have solved this conflict for myself and I believe that this aspect of the question can only be answered for yourself in the light of your own beliefs.

To answer this question requires a knowledge of two disciplines: religion and science. These two are unrelated except on a personal level. Faith does not follow the same rules as science. Some understanding of both is required for a healthy balanced personality. Your faith may be in Christ, Buddha, free enterprise or science (science is not a religion but it is the god of secular humanism), but you must realize that on a scientific level the answer to a quadratic equation cannot be "Krishna." These two disciplines involve different aspects of life.

No one can totally separate themselves from their beliefs, but with the recent uproar about the declining quality of public education, I think it is imperative that the time spent in a science class be spent learning the scientific method, not the thousands of different creation stories.

Susan Melia-Hancock
Graduate student in agronomy

Pull Marines from Lebanon

Editor,

I couldn't agree more with the Collegian's recommendation that U.S. troops be removed from Lebanon. No matter how the options are dressed up or disguised in military or diplomatic jargon, they boil down to three:

(1) Do nothing, maintain the status quo, and continue to expose our soldiers to future tragic incidents;

(2) Allow our troops to fight, to assume a more active role in defending their assigned "turf" and "keeping the peace," just as we allowed U.S. Marines in Vietnam to initiate patrols around the air bases they were charged with defending;

(3) Bring them home.

The best option seems obvious.

Frank E. Saal
Associate professor of psychology

Letters Policy

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be signed by the author and should not exceed 300 words. The author's major, classification or other identification and a telephone number where the author can be reached during business hours must be included. The Collegian retains the right to edit letters for style and spatial considerations.

Regent supports open access to universities

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — College is not for everybody coming out of high school, but Stanley Koplik, executive director of the Kansas Board of Regents, said Wednesday every Kansas student should have the opportunity to attend.

Koplik told the Legislative Educational Planning Committee he supported a state law requiring open access for all high school graduates to the Regents institutions. However, he complained that students need to be better prepared for college when they graduate from high school and other alternatives — such as trade school and community college — should be explained to more students.

"All people should not go to college," Koplik said. "College is not for everyone and universities that have advertised that have misled the public."

"I'm not trying to be aristocratic, egalitarian or anything like that. It's a simple fact. However, I do believe that anyone who wants to should have the opportunity to attend college."

About half the students who enter college in a given year drop out or transfer before the traditional four-year program expires, Koplik said. And another 25 percent of a particular class is still in school but has not earned a degree after four years.

Koplik said the regents are concerned about the attrition rate and worry that some students get in over their heads by immediately going to four-year institutions after high school.

"Some students would be better served by a community college," Koplik said. "Too often community colleges are passed by but they can play an important role as a feeder to four-year institutions and taking other students not particularly suited for larger schools."

Kansas lawmakers do not need to overhaul the open-access policy yet, Koplik said. But he suggested the Legislature consider adopting a policy of access to students who meet a particular curriculum in high school.

Tougher high school curriculum would result in fewer students entering college unprepared, Koplik said, and save universities large amounts of money now spent on remedial courses.

Design lean

Richard Schluemer, freshman in pre-design professions, peers around an obstacle blocking his view of the Union. He and Tyrone Clinchy, freshman in architecture, were working on design projects Tuesday afternoon.

Staff/Steve Mingle

KSDB installs service, offers 'precise' weather

By KAREN BELLUS
Collegian Reporter

KSDB-FM, the student-operated radio station, is now offering its listeners "more precise" weather information with the installation of the Weather Wire, Lee Buller, associate professor in journalism and mass communications, said.

The wire service was installed Oct. 14, but due to difficulties with installation and equipment, it has not been fully operational. Buller said he expected the Weather Wire to be working sometime Tuesday.

Student Senate appropriated a little more than $1,200 for the wire. This includes funding for equipment, paper and one year's phone service toll charges for the wire, Buller said.

The station previously used The Associated Press wire service. The weather information on the AP wire was inadequate for the needs of the area, Buller said.

"When we were getting the weather off of the AP wire, we were getting weather 30 to 60 minutes behind. We could be under a tornado watch and not know it for an hour," he said.

"This is an excellent addition to our station. We get a lot of weather from all over the country. We can now offer more precise weather information to our listeners," he said.

The Weather Wire is a service of the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Association, which is part of the National Weather Service.

ANNOUNCING A MOST EXCEPTIONAL SALE OF NORITAKE

1227 Moro
in Aggieville

Campbell's
Complete Tabletop Bridal Registry

5th & Poyntz
Downtown

Collegian Classifieds — Where K-State Shops

Support the
March of Dimes
BIRTH DEFECTS FOUNDATION

BEER
Sold at cost plus
5%
Revco Drug Store
Village Plaza

—Drink of the Week—
"SWITCH-HITTER"
made with either red
or white wine.
$1.50

TONITE
Alpha Chi Omega Greek
Playboy Contest & Auction
Plus 10 p.m. re-play of Saturday's Pike Lil' Sis events

Halloween
Get your FREE
Bud Light Fright Night Mug
Enjoy Games, Contest & Brew

The Sports
Fan-atic

STRAY CATS

With Special Guests
ROMAN HOLLIDAY

also appearing
14 Karats of Soul a cappella choir

Tickets on Sale Now at the K-State Union Box Office
Mon.-Fri. 10 A.M.-4 P.M.

Tickets: $10, 9.50, 9.00
K-State Students/2 per I.D.

One dollar more
for the general public

For More Info. call 532-6571

presented by

KSU
KANSAS
STATE UNIVERSITY

k-state union
upc special events 1004

IN CONCERT 1983 Homecoming

Friday, November 11
8 P.M. Ahearn Fieldhouse

Briefly

By the Associated Press

Dog owner charged in death

ANTHONY — David S. Reynolds, 19, of Harper was charged with involuntary manslaughter Tuesday in the weekend death of a woman mauled by two dogs he owns.

Harper County Attorney Phil Unruh said he also filed against Reynolds two misdemeanor counts of permitting a dangerous animal to run at large.

Unruh said Reynolds' bond was set at $10,000. The county attorney said Reynolds made arrangements Tuesday through his lawyer to surrender to authorities and appear in Harper County District Court in Anthony at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Grace Parsons, 67, of Harper, died Saturday after being attacked by two American pit bull terriers owned by Reynolds, who was one of her neighbors, Unruh said. Mrs. Parsons was a widow and a volunteer nurse's aide. She was buried Monday.

Neighbors and family members of the victim said she was afraid of the dogs and was frightened when she had to empty her trash or use her clothesline. One neighbor, Bonnie Schultz, said because of the dogs Mrs. Parsons would drive to her house to visit even though it was only two doors away.

Unruh said he will institute proceedings to have the dogs destroyed. He said Reynolds' 2-year-old pit bull apparently instigated the attack, but a pit bull puppy owned by Reynolds also participated. Both dogs have been impounded and are being held by a Harper veterinarian.

The pit bull terrier is a breed developed in the 1800s by crossing bulldogs and terriers. They are often trained for fighting. Harper Police Chief Ed Starks said Reynolds told him the 2-year-old dog was trained to react to "knives, guns, clubs — any kind of attack."

Starks said Reynolds told him Mrs. Parsons had recently thrown an egg-sized rock at the dogs. The chief said he asked Reynolds to keep the dogs chained about two weeks ago after a city employee complained he was nipped at by one of them. Reynolds said he put the dogs out on chains at 5 a.m. Saturday and went back to bed, Starks said. Mrs. Parsons was attacked between 5 a.m. and 7:30 a.m. when she apparently went outside to get her newspaper from a curbside box.

Harper, located about 45 miles southwest of Wichita, is a south central Kansas town of about 1,800 people.

Justice White visits site of first trial

DENVER — Supreme Court Justice Byron White looked around the white marble courtroom and recalled the place where he was admitted to the bar and first faced a jury.

"I was just a greenhorn then," White told Denver lawyers and judges gathered Monday for the unveiling of the renovated federal courtroom in the old Post Office Building.

"It was a criminal trial, and I was helped a lot by my client — an experienced recidivist," joked White, who officiated at the ceremonies.

The courtroom, which had become an office, has been restored as nearly as possible to its original condition. It is furnished with brass chandeliers, blue velvet curtains and a solid oak judge's bench and jury box.

"For some of us ancient ones, this courtroom holds many memories," said White, 66, a Colorado native appointed to the high court by President John F. Kennedy in 1962.

King Fahd fined in Spanish resort

MARBELLA, Spain — King Fahd of Saudi Arabia has been fined the equivalent of $440 for irregularities in a private landing pier under construction at a palace he owns at this fashionable seaside resort.

Town hall sources said some councilmen described the fine, levied Monday, as ridiculous and suggested it should have come to 5 percent of the $500,000 project.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

- ACROSS
1 Extinct bird
4 Coach Par-seghian
7 Cry loudly
8 Love, Italian style
10 Synthetic fiber
11 Healthful dishes
13 Disclaims responsibility
16 Summer drink
17 Suppose
18 Cedar Rapids college
19 Scoff
20 Gainsay
21 Gounod opera
23 Unrefined
25 Obligation
26 French city
27 Tax-free acct.
28 Perch
30 Possesses
33 Drives by
- 36 Character in "Of Mice and Men"
37 Evangelist
38 Sweet fruits
39 Stupid fellow
40 Through
41 Son of Odin
- DOWN
1 Clergyman's house
2 Is in debt
3 Affirms
4 Nanking nannies
5 Parts
6 Riyadh
7 Nail
8 Fall flower
9 Elicited
10 Psychiatrist's org.
12 Scottish teacake
14 Hard fat
15 Low island
19 Project prominently
20 Press for payment
21 Wild
22 Demeaned
23 Ready money
24 Take back
25 Party mix
26 Sheepfolds
28 French security
29 Willow
30 Wit
31 Old
32 Haggard novel
34 Break suddenly
35 Unctuous
- Average solution time: 24 min.
- Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP

10-26

LPNFE AUFE ONIAL BI BPA FPSDDUJ
LOSD DPNZUA FNJAL NPP ANZ.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — THOSE NAVY SAILORS EARN A BIG SALARY ON THE GRAVY BOAT.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: P equals L.

Manhattan's
Favorite Radio Station...

97fm

We Play Your Music!

SAFEWAY

222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson

New Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week

Large "A" Eggs
Doz. Limit two dozen	.59¢
Coke, Diet Coke, 7 Up, Tap
2 liter bottle	$1.09
Russet Potatoes
10 lb. bag	.99¢
Grade "A" Whole Fryers
lb.	.49¢

PLEDGE NITE OUT THURS. 10-12!

SORORITY
BARTENDERS
WED. NITES!

Gamma Phis
Tonite!

Remember 2 Fers
Thurs. 7-10!

Can YOU
Take TIME
From Your
Busy Schedule For
LOVE & INTIMACY?

Then join the Folks at E.C.M. for a

RETREAT

At Camp Chippewa—near Ottawa, KS—
for a discussion of love & intimacy
Nov. 4-6 $20 per person
Leave Manhattan at 5 p.m. Nov. 4—
return to Manhattan by 5 p.m. Nov. 6
Register by calling 539-4281 by Oct. 31

Burke's
404 Poyntz
Downtown Manhattan

FLORSHEIM

You and Florsheim...
"Professional and Successful"

SAVE

10%

THIS WEEK
ONLY

The Hair Experts
1209 MORO
MANHATTAN, KS. 66502
776-4455

WHERE WE LISTEN
TO YOU,
AND WE CARE ABOUT YOUR HAIR!

McCain
AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

London
Early Music
Group

"Lively, elegant and irresistible..."
—The Herald (Melbourne)

SATURDAY, NOV. 5, 8 p.m.

ALL FAITHS CHAPEL

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office,
M-F noon to 5 p.m., 532-6428

WESTERN OUTPOST

2ND ANNIVERSARY SALE

BOOTS—Up to 40% off on selected styles Tony Lama, Dan Post, Justin, Wrangler & Acme. All Redwings 20% off.

JEANS—All jeans 10% off mens & womens Lee, Levi & Wrangler.

SHIRTS—Buy two mens shirts & get one free of equal value.
Women's blouses one rack $10.00.

MISC.—Bally felt hats 50% off
Wrangler belts $10.50
Wrangler jean jackets lined $19.50
Unlined $14.50

SALE END SUN. 30th

OLD TOWN MALL

523 S. 17th

M-W 9 to 6
Thurs. 9 to 9

F-S 9 to 6
Sun. 12 to 5

The Sports
Fan-attic

Laramie at 12th—Aggieville
Office: 539-0525, Bar 539-9849

TONITE

7:00-9:00—Last chance to Vote. Silver coins count as positive votes, pennies and bills
count as negative.

9:00—Each "Greek
Playboy Candidate's" 8x10 photo will be auctioned off.

Winners of the contest will be announced following the auction.

ALSO: $2.25 Pitchers—
BUD LIGHT (7-10 p.m.)

★ Free Admission

Carrying pack incorrectly can be pain in back

By PAMELLA JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Mail carriers bearing letter pouches, parents wearing infant carriers and students wearing backpacks all have one thing in common. They are all carrying excess weight that causes problems for the back, according to Brian Sorell, a Manhattan chiropractor.

Sorell said he treats many student patients who have had problems with their backs from carrying too much or carrying a backpack incorrectly.

After diagnosing a patient's problems as stemming from backpack useage, Sorell said he advises them, "Anything carried in excess causes problems for the back. When you overload what is not meant to be overloaded, you're carrying too much weight and not realizing what condition you're putting your back into."

Sorell said overloading varies with the weight of each person. For example, 25 pounds is too much weight for a 150-pound person to carry in a backpack.

"Backpacks loaded for a day of classes should be filled with only the necessities. All textbooks aren't needed for class, so don't load them. Lighten the pack as much as possible," he said.

Most students using backpacks are carrying them wrong, Sorell said. They are carrying them in a "more preppy" style or on one shoulder. This can bring severe problems to the back area, he said.

For the back or dorsal spine, carrying a backpack the wrong way over one shoulder or with too much weight hyperextends the spine. This habit, also common for mail carriers, flexes the shoulders back, throwing the chest and spine forward. It fights against the normal curvature of the spine, exaggerating it and causing kyphosis.

Kyphosis is "the abnormal curvature in the lower lumbar area that causes the lower curvature to push forward resulting in decreased (bad) posture," Sorell said.

Most problems associated with carrying backpacks occur within the secondary curves of the spine, which are referred to as the mid-dorsal to upper areas of the spine (see illustration).

"Problems that arise from these areas of the back result in a condition such as the arms falling asleep or a nerve irritation in the lower bottom neck," he said.

For compactness and convenience factors, backpacks are fine. For reducing problems of the back, it would be best not to carry one at all, Sorell said.

The designing of the backpacks students use today also add to back area problems. If backpacks were designed differently, to be worn over both shoulders like a newspaper carrier's bag, they would reduce the problem associated with the back area. They wouldn't be aesthetically appealing, but by distributing the pack over the front and back of a person, it would equalize the weight over the shoulders, he said.

If backpacks are going to be carried, some general guidelines should be followed, Sorell said.

— Lighten the pack as much as possible.

— Carry the pack on both shoulders.

— Consider doing stretching exercises for back muscles. Isometric (self-stretch with pressure) exercises are recommended, such as the "cat stretch." To do the cat stretch, get down on all fours and arch the back upward. Hold this position for 10 seconds, release for 10 seconds and repeat the exercise.

— Participate in a good isometric sport for the back, such as wrestling.

Sorell also recommended exercises from The Jane Fonda Workout. Arm extensions and shoulder rolling exercises are good, he said.

If back pain persists, see a physician.

Areas Affected by Backpack Usage

Illustration by
Joel Torczon

Clark promises to review policies

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Interior Secretary-designate William Clark met with leaders of the country's top environmental groups Tuesday and told them he will not be tied to the policies of his controversial predecessor, James Watt.

Three times during the meeting, Clark said President Reagan has given him a free hand to make a complete review of Watt's policy decisions, according to participants at the one-hour closed-door meeting.

Clark also said that one of his first priorities will be to seek out-of-court settlements of the dozens of suits filed against Watt by environmental groups, the environmentalists said.

Clark met with representatives of seven organizations in the office of Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., who along with Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., set up the session. It was the second effort Clark has made to extend an olive branch to environmental groups. He met on Friday with officials of the 4-million-member National Wildlife Group and the National Audubon Society, pledging to those officials a complete review of Watt's policies and management team.

After the Senate session, Chafee predicted that Clark will do well in his Senate confirmation hearings, which are scheduled for Nov. 1 and 2. Chafee also said, however, that he expected Clark would face a round of tough questioning on his environmental views.

Auntie Mae's Parlor
AGGIEVILLE
TONIGHT
Mae's Most Popular
HIGH ROLLERS
Any Single Liquor Call or Premium Drink only
$1.25
8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.
—THURSDAY—
ALL YOU CAN DRINK
Guys $5.00 Gals $3.00
—FRI.—
LATE NIGHT HAPPY HOUR
615 N. 12th 539-9967

STUDENT • FACULTY DANCE • CONCERT

Kansas State University
Dance Program
Department of Physical Education,
Dance, and Leisure Studies
Oct. 28 & 29
8:00 p.m.
Manhattan Middle School
$4.00
(Tickets Available at the Door)

59.95 SALE
Save up to 53% when you purchase a complete set of frames and lenses. From Oct. 24-Nov. 5. Pick your favorite designer frame and purchase a complete pair of lenses and frames for only $59.95, regularly $65-$130. Purchase a complete pair of single vision lenses, any frames, any prescription, glass or plastic, with or without tint for $59.95.
(Multifocals, photocromatics and oversize lenses, slight additional charge.)
Some boutique frames not included.
b & l OPTICAL STUDIO
1210 MORO • 537-1574
Mon.-Fri. 9:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.; Sat. 9:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.

BUSHWACKERS
• THE •
FUNDRINKERY
DAILY SPECIALS
Monday—Watch Monday Night Football and enjoy our famous 1/2 lb. Bushwacker Burger. Specially priced Mondays at $2.25.
Tuesday—Italian Sausage Sub! A Philadelphia-style hoagie. It's the Best! $2.00 w/chips.
Wednesday—Steak Night! A generous 10 oz. cut of Kansas Top Sirloin with Baked Potato or Fries. Special at $4.95
Thursday—Coming Soon! Classical Music Night.
Friday—Happy Hour Hors d'oeuvre Buffet. 5-7 p.m. Smuggler Burgers 50¢ each from 8-11 p.m.
Saturday—Pre-Game Sandwich Bar—$1.50
(Open to public during lunch)
A Reciprocating Club
531 N. Manhattan Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

PIZZA TRANSIT AUTHORITY
PtA.
Pizza Transit Authority.

537-9500

we deliver in
30 MINUTES OR LESS

OR

IT'S FREE!
IT'S FREE!
IT'S FREE!
IT'S FREE!
WITH THIS COUPON

Expires November 15, 1983.

026C

SAVE $2 ON ANY LARGE
2 OR MORE ITEM PIZZA
One Coupon Per Pizza Not Good With Any Other Special
537-9500
Expires Nov. 15, 1983

SAVE $1 ON ANY
1 OR MORE ITEM PIZZA
One Coupon Per Pizza Not Good With Any Other Special
537-9500
Expires Nov. 15, 1983

FREE DOUBLE CRUST
on any pizza
Lg □ more pizza for your money □ Sm
One Coupon Per Pizza Not Good With Any Other Special
537-9500
Expires Nov. 15, 1983

PTA REAL MEAL DEAL
Large 3-topping pizza with 1ggs Small 3-topping pizza with 1ggs
4 Pepsis or Diet Pepsis only 2 Pepsis or Diet Pepsis only
One Coupon Per Pizza Not Good With Any Other Special
537-9500
Expires Nov. 15, 1983

Nicaragua economy suffers after attacks by exiled rebels

By The Associated Press

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Attacks by rebel exiles based in neighboring countries are taking a heavier toll on Nicaragua's already battered economy, bringing even more hardship to the general population.

"It can't hurt us politically, and it can't hurt our morale. In fact, the reverse is true," said Deputy Finance Minister William Hupper. "It will bring us together. But yes, it can hurt all phases of the economy."

Nicaragua claims that since January, the CIA has been secretly supporting the Nicaraguan Democratic Front rebels based in Honduras and the Revolutionary Democratic Front based in Costa Rica in their fight to overthrow the leftist Sandinista government.

In September, the rebels switched from military to economic targets, blowing up fuel tanks, damaging or wrecking power plants and bridges, and burning crops, and increasing damage to the economy, until then estimated at $120 million. Newer figures are not yet available.

An attack Oct. 11 on the Pacific port of Corinto destroyed more than 3 million gallons of fuel, drastically reducing the country's oil reserves and skyrocketing the price. Nicaragua has no oil and spends $150 million a year — 20 percent of its import budget — buying it abroad.

The tanks and fuel lost in Corinto belonged to Esso, a local subsidiary of the American oil company Exxon, and Esso is paying for it. But the company has refused to let its ships carry oil to Nicaragua any more.

In order to save energy, the gasoline ration of five gallons a week for private motorists is being cut 10 percent and 15 percent for government vehicles; the work week reduced from 6 to 5 days and the workday increased from 8 to 10 hours.

Lighting in city streets will be shut off at midnight as of Nov. 1.

"We don't have a petty cash box here to pay for these damages. We must take dollars from lower priorities to pay for these things," Hupper said. "Outside of this there is very little left to cut. We don't import electrical appliances or things like that any more. There are virtually no toys for sale for children."

Households are reverting to charcoal and wood because of a shortage of propane gas, widely used for cooking. A byproduct of refining, it was readily available until Venezuela cut off its oil supplies for non-payment.

The heavier oil that Mexico provides produces little gas.

Under a regional agreement signed in 1982, Mexico and Venezuela were selling Nicaragua 7,500 barrels of crude a day each on easy payment terms. Mexico is now almost its only supplier.

In Managua and other cities, people line up every day for scarce items like meat and eggs. Sugar and cooking oil are also scarce at times. Supermarket shelves are bare, or haphazardly crammed with canned fruit and baby food from Bulgaria.

Automobile tires are scarce, so people buy patched and repatched ones second hand. Newspapers may soon have to cancel Sunday editions to save newsprint.

Some hospitals perform surgery only in emergencies because of a lack of medicines, anesthetics and instruments. The hospital in the Caribbean port of Bluefields reduced the number of daily operations from four to one.

The government, expecting even more attacks when the harvests begin next month, announced it is drafting 15,000 new troops to increase security, further depleting already scarce manpower in fields and factories.

SALE $229<sup>99</sup>
with f2

RICOH XR-7

Deluxe automatic 35mm reflex with accurate quartz timing, dependable liquid crystal meter display and modern compact design. Top-of-the-line features include multi-exposure allowance, depth preview and memory lock.

Complete outfits available at low prices.

Sale $269<sup>99</sup>
With f1.7

Minolta X-700

Program Exposure Sets Lens And Shutter For Simple Focus And Shoot Operation. Off-The-Film Flash For Precise Flash Beeper Warning For Low Light.

2X Converters
Sale $59<sup>99</sup>

Sharpest 7 Element

Additional Glass Elements For Additional Sharpness And Color Correction Make This The Best Quality Pro Converter.

$39<sup>99</sup>

Popular 4 Element

Economical Construction With Maximum Sharpness Has Made The 4 Element Design The Most Popular Converter Sold.

$209<sup>99</sup>
with f1.8

CANON AE-1

This long time favorite has shutter preferred automatic to allow selection of fast action stopping speeds to 1/1000, or slower for scenic. Flash sets shutter and lens. Accepts winder, Canon mount lenses, databack and more.

Canon AE-1 with 35-70mm f2.8 Sigma Zoom $269<sup>99</sup>

$259<sup>99</sup>
BODY ONLY
CANON A-1

Multimode automatic provides single mode or manual for serious photographer and program full automation for the novice.

Canon A-1 with 35-70mm f2.8 Sigma $369<sup>99</sup>

Includes Canon U.S.A., Inc. one-year limited warranty/registration card

FINAL WEEK OF SALE

Special Thursday hours to 9 p.m.

OUR BEST SELLING
35MM AUTOFOCUS

$169<sup>99</sup>

RICOH FF3 AF COMPACT

This Compact Autofocus Has All The Most Desired Features For Easiest Use: Auto-Load, Self-Timer, Built-in Flash, Auto-Exposure With Film Speeds To 1000 For New Kodacolor 1000, Auto-Rewind, Advance Warning Light, And Very Soft Shutter Release.

Special Purchase

$99<sup>99</sup>

With Case

Yashica Autofocus S

As Easy Or Easier Than A Box Camera To Use. The Camera Sets The Exposure, Sets The Focus, And Warns You When To Use The Built-In Flash. The Camera Is So Fool Proof, It Will Refuse To Fire Under Low Light Unless The Flash Is On, Saving Wasted Film. The Fast f2.8 Lens Is Glass To Provide Sharpest Pictures. If You Want Quality Pictures, But Need Instamatic Simplicity, Check Out The Yashica S First.

MINOLTA TALKER

LOAD FILM
CHECK DISTANCE
TOO DARK, USE FLASH!

Exciting
New

Sale $149<sup>99</sup>

Retail $228.00

All Of The Features Of The Easiest To Use Autofocus Automatic 35's. Plus The Talker Speaks To You With Instructions And Advice. Definitely The Hottest New Autofocus Idea For '83.

All New Minolta Products Sold By Wolfe's Camera Include Minolta U.S.A. Limited Warranty.

Price Including
$35 rebate from Nikon $259<sup>99</sup>

Wolfe's Sale Price $294.99

NIKON FG Program with f1.8E

No Exposure Adjustments are Required with Program Automatic. Even Flash Sets Both Shutter and Lens Exposure. When Dedicated Units are Used. Has Full Manual Override and Motor and Winder Provision.

7x35
MERCURY
WITH CASE

$19<sup>99</sup>

10X50 MERCURY
FAST FOCUS $39<sup>99</sup>

Quick Rocker Focusing With High Power. Retail $54.50

7X35 MERCURY WIDE ANGLE

$29<sup>99</sup>

Easy Rocker Focus, Popular 7 Power, Retail $54.00

INSTANT 35mm SLIDES

Factory Retail
Price $125.30 $99<sup>99</sup>

Package includes processor and 2 rolls of film; one 12 exp.
and one 36 exp.

The New Polaroid 35mm Autoprocess System provides immediate processing and viewing of 35mm color. Transparencies in less than a minute. Polarochrome color Transparency film has a speed of ASA 40/17 DIN and does not require a darkroom for processing.

STORE HOURS
Thursday 8:30 to 8:00
Other Weekdays 8:30 to 5:30
Closed Sunday

$199<sup>99</sup>

with f1.8 lens including $30 rebate from Olympus

Wolfe's Sale Price
$229<sup>99</sup>

Olympus OM-G 35mm Reflex

The automatic Olympus OM-G is the lowest price 35mm reflex with the superior accuracy of off-the-film moment of exposure accuracy for your everyday pictures. Easy to focus with the extra bright Olympus viewfinder, and now easy to control manual override built-in. Many more features including built-in timer, grip, accepts optional motor or winder, accepts Olympus mounted lenses.

ZOOM KIT
SALE $129<sup>99</sup>

Includes 75-200mm f4.5 Hanimex, filter, hood, camera case and lens care kit.

Basic camera accessories for your new camera plus a zoom lens for more shooting pleasure. Handy lens for candid, wildlife, distant scenic and more.

$99<sup>99</sup>

Olympus XA-2

Automatic exposure with pocket size convenience make this 35mm an excellent camera to carry everywhere.

Olympus XA
$139<sup>99</sup>

Rangefinder focus and faster f2.8 lens.

PROMASTER ZOOM LENSES

80-200mm f4.5
Quantaray

$89<sup>99</sup>

After Sale Price $129<sup>99</sup>

This is a genuine Pro-Quantaray zoom one of Wolfe's main lens lines. This popular range lens has 1:4.8 macro close-up and a 3 year warranty.

Optional Lens Case $5.99

80-200mm f4.5
Promaster $129<sup>99</sup>

This popular lens has now been reduced in size and weight to be even more convenient than ever. Macro to 1:3 and 5 year warranty.

70-210mm f3.8
Promaster $179<sup>99</sup>

For easier focusing, this zoom has a fast f3.8 aperture. Great for portraits, candid and wildlife.

1/200
Flash Sync

SALE
PRICE
BODY ONLY

$229<sup>99</sup>

Nikon FM-2

The Serious Hobbyist Needs Many Of The Unique Extras Of The FM-2. New Fast Color And Pushed B&W Films Require Fast Speeds When Used Outside. Like The 1/4000 On The FM-2. The FM-2 Accessory Motor Provides 3 1/2 FPS Advance. And Viewing Screens Are Interchangeable. Dependable Mechanical Shutter Works Independent Of Batteries Which Power Only The Meter.

Wolfe's
camera shop, inc.

635 Kansas Avenue • Phone 913-235-1386
Topeka, Kansas 66601-1437

CLOWNING: RODEO STYLE

By RHONDA WESSEL
Agriculture Editor

He sat on the tailgate of his "home away from home." The topper on the small blue Datsun pickup was filled with old blue jeans, ropes, boots, food, and makeup. He held a small hand mirror while swiftly applying his "face."

"It's a tradition that clowns have to use the same face for each performance," he said as he outlined his eyes with black.

He put the finishing touches on and sealed his makeup with a layer of white powder.

"I hate powder," he said, after coughing. When the white powder cloud disappeared, his face was complete. It was really no different than any other clown face.

The difference is the man behind this clown face. K-State alumnus Dean Chambers is primarily a bullfighter and secondly a clown.

Chambers is a May 1983 graduate with a bachelor's degree in agriculture. He majored in animal science and industry. Although Chambers has been involved in the sport of rodeo about five years, he has been participating full time for three.

Chambers clowns rodeos in Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska. He holds an International Professional Rodeo card which enables him to clown high school, college and professional rodeos.

Wearing long red underwear, gray tube socks, one with blue stripes and the other with red, a diagonally red, white and blue striped shirt, suspenders holding up about size 50 Levi cutoffs and tennis shoes, Chambers clowned the K-State-Fort Scott rodeo match last weekend at Cico Park.

The arena was a big puddle of thick sticky mud. Chambers said if the mud was too bad he would put Vaseline on his shoes so the mud wouldn't slow him down.

"I got started by just getting in the arena. There are schools where you can learn to clown, but you just have to get out there and do it," he said.

Chambers teaches a school for rodeo clowns in Rantoul every spring and fall.

After hitting a bull on the head with his hat, Dean Chambers begins to run away.

Dean Chambers

"It's a good place to learn. There is a lot to learn about safety," he said.

"You have to learn not to get lined out," he explained using his hands as an imitation clown and bull. "It means that you should never run straight away from a bull because you'll never outrun it. You can out turn them though."

"You also have to learn to get around and drive towards the hip. It's a well-known fact that you can't get hooked from the rear-end of a bull," he said with a sly sideways grin.

Chambers said another important job of a rodeo clown is to learn to turn back a bull and make him spin. This helps improve the bull rider's score. However, the ultimate job of the rodeo clown is to save the cowboys without getting hurt himself.

He uses a beat-up old gray hat that looks like it's met up with its share of horns and hooves to turn back bulls. He tauntingly waves the hat in the bull's face and immediately runs toward the bull's hip.

Chambers said he has never been "seriously" hurt — just a few broken ribs, bruises, and an occasional toss over the arena fence via a sharp set of bull horns. Rodeo arena fences are just a mere 10 feet at a minimum.

"You don't get hurt bad when you thrown over a fence, but you get hurt when you get stepped on by the bull," he said.

Everything goes in "slow-mo" just before he gets hit by a bull, Chambers said. He knows it is going to happen, and there is nothing he can do about it.

"You know that Pepsi commercial where the bull hits the clown in the barrel? I've seen that picture a hundred times before. It happens just like that," he said with a distinct Midwestern twang tinted with slight overtones of a Southern drawl.

Chambers doesn't run or workout to stay in shape although he said that he really should.

"One time I was in Wyoming fighting bulls at a rodeo. I thought that I was in good shape, but the air there was so thin. I was so plum tired that I just decided to let that 'ole bull hit me, but by the time he got almost there I changed my mind," he said. "I could tell stories all day if you'd let me," he added.

"When you're tired you don't think as fast. You need to be in good shape. You have to think about your own and the bull rider's safety. I've seen clowns up to 50 pounds overweight — that's a bad deal," he said.

Just as bull riders learn the bulls on the circuit, Chambers said he also knows the bulls in "all the pens I work."

"Fighting bulls is a matter of being in the right place at the right time. If you know the bulls you're fighting, you'll be in a better position to know what the bull's going to do," he said.

"There are some bulls that you just can't get along with and then there are some that you can make look plum silly when another clown can't do anything with him."

"The cowboys also ask me about bulls. You know, how they turn back and things," he said.

Fighting rodeo bulls is a lot different than fighting Mexican bulls in bullfights because in Mexico they either kill the bulls or retire them from the arena.

"These 'ole rodeo bulls get smart. I can get away with something once or twice, but by the third time they are usually waiting for me. They're sometimes lazy, but if they get a chance to get — you they will," he said.

Although clowning is Chambers main way of making a living, he doesn't do it for the money.

"You've got to love doing it. If you're doing it to impress someone — it ain't worth it."

"I make more than some because I have trick animals, and I can clown as well as fight bulls which is what most rodeos want," he said.

Chambers has a trick mule named Miss Elly. She walks on

Staff/John Sleezer

K-State alumnus Dean Chambers has been clowning at rodeos for the past five years.

her hind feet, sits and bucks on command — at least most of the time.

"I trained her myself, and it took a long time. Mules are a lot smarter than horses. They are as stubborn as most people say, but not because they're dumb. They're just too smart for their own good. Miss Elly figured out that I won't get after her in the arena so she won't do her tricks sometimes," Chambers said.

"When I'm going down the road and see those poor kids out farming, I just think — 'Boy, I'm glad I ain't out there,'" Chambers said.

Chambers probably won't be out there farming for a living, but may very well be clowning at the National Rodeo Finals in a few years.

"When the latch opens, I run on automatic."

Chambers uses old football shoes to help give him traction when running from bulls.

Chambers draws a bull's attention away from a falling rider during the K-State rodeo last weekend.

A belt buckle Chambers received at a handicap rodeo in Pittsburg.

'Das Boot' portrays horrors of life in German U-boats

By GARY JOHNSON
Collegian Reviewer

One mark of a good film maker is someone who can take a cliché or hackneyed situation and make it appear completely fresh again. This is exactly what happens in "Das Boot."

German director Wolfgang Petersen tackles subject matter that has been seen in similar forms in countless American-made war movies. We have all seen the scenes where the submarine lies quietly far below its recommended maximum depth while awaiting an onslaught of depth charges.

In "Das Boot," though, these scenes are created with such incredible authenticity that the audience is not just a passive observer but is another member of the crew. Every time the submarine surfaces, the audience breathes a sigh of relief as well.

Claustrophobia is rendered with the use of close-ups of the faces of the crew members. It is as if there is nowhere in the ship that one can go to get away from having someone at his side. The great detail in the sets furthers this illusion.

The German U-boats were definitely designed with only the intent of staying afloat. Facilities for a crew were added only as an afterthought. Provisions were hung from the ceiling of the corridors. Storage space was so scarce that some bathrooms were converted into food storage even though one bathroom would have to service as many as 40 people. There were so few bunks that many members of the crew had to sleep on the floor.

These details are created with such a sense of authenticity in "Das Boot" that the U-boat's journey through the Straits of Gibraltar becomes a mentally draining experience for the audience. The film shows pineapples, salamis and bread loaves hanging overhead and poorly-designed features like navigational maps located beside the hatch which dumps water inside and onto the maps whenever it is opened.

Review

Above all else, "Das Boot" is a technical achievement that ranks alongside the American-made special-effects marvels.

What is most remarkable about the film, though, is that unlike many of the American-made films in which the special effects become the true stars, in "Das Boot" the people who inhabit and operate the submarine are the focus of the film. Although at times these characters become just a framework to help unravel the story of the U-boat, the characters are always emphasized as individuals who are caught in a situation that they can not quite comprehend.

The old guard is shown as having grave doubts about the fuhrer, while the young officers are shown to have a great confidence in the war effort.

The contrast between the two factions is seen when the U-boat commander refers sarcastically to the German radio's name-calling of Churchill: "For a drunken paralytic, he is putting up a good fight." The young officer then responds, "We will bring him to his knees." This officer keeps his uniform cleaned and pressed while the others stumble about in stained, rumpled uniforms.

The lives of the men are shown with a much greater sense of compassion than has been shown in American-made war movies. The crew is depicted as largely consisting of men who are passively going along with what the ruling elite says. Germany is not shown as a nation gripped by some mental disease that turned its people into fanatics — but as a nation of ordinary people.

One of the most memorable sequences in the film comes after the U-boat has torpedoed an American freighter. The ship lies with its back broken, flames turning the night sky a brilliant orange. The U-boat then surfaces to finish off the freighter. When the second torpedo hits, men still on board can be seen leaping into the water, pleading for the Germans to pick them up.

The crew reacts in horror, "Why didn't their ships save them? They've had hours." The U-boat commander then orders the engines reversed and the U-boat backs away from the men screaming in the burning oil slick.

"Das Boot" is full of memorable sequences like this which show the war from a perspective that no American-made film had dared portray before. The freshness of this approach combined with director Petersen's adept re-creation of the claustrophobic atmosphere aboard the U-boat produces an incredibly tense and powerful vision of war.

Have story
or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

Recreation Career Day

Thursday, October 27th

9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

Union Courtyard

Everyone is Welcome!

Sponsored by Kansas Recreation & Park Association, K-State Recreation Club, K-State Career Planning and Placement Center.

HALLOWEEN PARTY COMING UP?

Have an original costume w/basics from Footlights. We have leotards and tights to create your perfect Halloween outfit!

FOOTLIGHTS

EXERCISE & DANCE WEAR

10:30-5:30 MON.-SAT.

THUR. 'TIL 8:00

1110 LARAMIE 537-3106

OctoberFest Finale

10% off Sunglasses—except Ray Bans
10% off most frames
10% off second pair

Highest quality lenses
Personalized service

410 Poyntz 776-6255
Downtown Manhattan

Q. What's all the fuss about?

A. National Shakespeare Company's
Much Ado About Nothing
Monday, Nov. 7, 8 p.m.

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office,
M-F noon to 5 p.m., 532-6428

CHRISTMAS PARTIES

RESERVE NOW
No group too small or too large

Call Nancy —
539-9431

CHECK WITH US FIRST — We're sure we can save you money and find a party package to fit your budget. Plus we are offering special discounts for any group or business function scheduled during the week. We can handle everything from band to hors d'oeuvres. Also don't forget our full service catering department. We'll come right to your home or office and do all the work and clean up. We have over 101 catering ideas. So Call Us First.

Post-Game Warm-Up

HOT POT

MAIL-IN CERTIFICATE

Hot Pot Offer

The Regal® Hot Pot beverage maker will make it even easier to relax with a warm cup of General Foods® International Coffees. Perfect for study breaks and entertaining friends in your room. A $19.99 retail value, this offer saves you $6.51. For each hot pot, send $10.99 plus one proof of purchase* to:
Hot Pot Offer, General Foods Corporation
3 Stuart Drive, P.O. Box 3565,
Kankakee, IL 60902.

Send _____ hot pots to:

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Please allow 6-8 weeks for processing. Offer void where prohibited, taxed or restricted by law. Good only in U.S.A., Puerto Rico and U.S. Possessions.

*A proof of purchase is the "cup with letters GFC" cut from the plastic lid. Offer expires June 30, 1984.

50¢

MANUFACTURERS COUPON
OFFER EXPIRES JUNE 30, 1984.

50¢

Here's 50¢ to help you celebrate with General Foods® International Coffees.

This coupon good only on purchase of any flavor of General Foods International Coffees. Any other use constitutes fraud. COUPON NOT TRANSFERABLE. LIMIT—ONE COUPON PER PURCHASE.
To The Retailer: General Foods Corporation will reimburse for the face value of this coupon plus 7¢ if submitted in compliance with General Foods Corporation Redemption Policy C-1, incorporated herein by reference. Valid only if redeemed by retail distributors of our merchandise or anyone specifically authorized by General Foods Corporation. Cash value 1/20¢. Mail to: General Foods Corporation, P.O. Box 3565, Kankakee, IL 60902.

50¢

"Up to $2.00 off says our pasta's as great as our pizza!"

—Valentino's Ristorante

Our pizza made us famous. But we're not content to let it go at that! We want you to love our pasta dishes, too! And enjoy them together. So we make our spaghetti, lasagne, manicotti and mostaccioli as lovingly and carefully as we make our pizza. Just order our delicious pizza to go. Use the take-out coupon on our equally delicious pasta . . . and take home the savings! You get nothing but the best in every dish we serve. And our special packaging insures "all that pizzazz" will be pipin' hot when you get it home.

So order your favorite pizza. And we'll give you up to $2.00 off a family size pasta order to prove our point. Pizza and Pasta belong together. Don't let our coupon pasta you by!

3019 Anderson Avenue 537-4350

Offer good on take-out orders only and on deliveries, where applicable. Use by November 20, 1983.

VALUABLE TAKE-OUT COUPON

Present this coupon with your next take-out order of pizza from VALENTINO'S RISTORANTE. Save up to $2.00 on a family size order of pasta!

$2.00 OFF Any Pasta Order With Purchase of Large Pizza	$1.50 OFF Any Pasta Order With Purchase of Medium Pizza	$1.00 OFF Any Pasta Order With Purchase of Small Pizza
---	--	---

Offer good at participating Valentino's Ristorantes through November 20, 1983. Limit one coupon per order. Offer not good in conjunction with other offers. Offer good on take-out orders only and on deliveries, where applicable.

Unique jazz quintet improvises sound, style for Nooner

Staff/Wes Wilmers

John Nottingham, senior in music education, and Steve Johnson, senior in electrical engineering, perform jazz music during the Nooner in the Catskeller Tuesday.

By MELISSA BRUNE
Collegian Reporter

A departure.
That is what occurred Tuesday in the Catskeller.

Boplicity, a jazz quintet, performed during Tuesday's Nooner before a crowd of about 100.

The group, comprised of one woman and four men, played a variety of jazz sounds, and entertained the audience with some sounds that are new to most of those who frequent Nooners.

Stepping away from the general Coffeehouse atmosphere of melodic folk music and familiar popular songs, Boplicity performed several kinds of jazz, making each song totally their own music.

The members of the group are: John Nottingham, senior in music education, trumpet; Connaitre Miller, senior in applied music, keyboards and vocals; Tim George, senior in music, bass; Paul Harrison, senior in music education, drummer; and Steve Johnson, senior in electrical engineering, saxophone.

The Nooner began with "Freedom Jazz Dance," written by Eddie Harris, which the band arranged into a fun tune.

After the first song, Nottingham cleared up the confusion about what kind of music the band plays.

"We're not really a fusion group, we play all styles of jazz," he said.

To prove the point, the group performed an old jazz standard, "Stella by Starlight," by Victor Young. Miller described the song as having a kind of medium-swing sound.

Miller sang Hoagy Carmichael's ballad "Georgia," another jazz standard. The group also performed such jazz songs as "Route 66," a straight ahead blues form; "Seven Steps to Heaven," a song recorded by Miles Davis in the early 60s; another Davis tune, "Bye, Bye Blackbird," and John Coltrane's "Impressions."

Before performing the last song, "Impressions," Nottingham explained to the audience a little of what it was about to experience.

Nottingham used the word "out" to describe the music they were about to play.

"We do this in kind of a jazz fusion way," he said. "If things sound like they're wrong, it's because they're supposed to sound that way. So, if it sounds ugly, go ahead and cringe.

Although the band plays mainly other styles of jazz, Miller said fusion is becoming more accepted.

"It's a blending of jazz, rock and funk," Miller said. "Fusion is like modern art."

"The whole key behind what we do is improvisation," Miller said.

That statement summed up the music of Boplicity. The group performed numerous solos during each song, playing ad lib much of the time. Miller said the members play the chords and basic melody of a song then arrange the tune into the band's own style, leading each other into various solo parts. This technique gives a new sound to jazz songs.

"Everything we play comes out different each time," she said.

Johnson said he believes playing jazz has made him a better musician.

"If you can play jazz," he said, "you can play almost anything."

Panel suggests changes in special education

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Saying it is time to "hold the line" on special education costs in public schools, a legislative study panel recommended Tuesday that the state not increase its funding for the program and that local school districts pick up a greater share of the future tab.

The Special Committee on Ways and Means made the decision despite a warning from a Wyandotte County special education official that reduced state funding would lead to a deterioration of the quality of special education services.

"I don't think we should be throwing any more bucks at the program," said Sen. Frank Gaines, D-Augusta. "But I really don't think it should be anything less than this (existing) program."

The effect of the panel's decision, if it was followed by the 1984 Legislature, will mean local school districts must pay an additional $3.1 million of special education costs next year. Already local districts fund about $53.1 million of the total special education costs of $131 million. The federal government provides some money.

Gaines said the committee's action signals that lawmakers want to "hold the line" on special education costs, which have been increasing annually since the program was first authorized a decade ago.

Traditionally, the state has paid all or 100 percent of the "excess costs" of special education services.

Under that concept it is assumed that it costs more to teach a special education student — estimates place it at slightly more than twice as much. Recognizing that, the state pays the extra amount and local districts pay only for so-called normal educational costs. The average cost per pupil is about $2,568 this year.

However, that formula of 100 percent excess funding changed during the last legislative session because of the state's financial problems. Instead, lawmakers agreed to fund only 95 percent of the special education costs, which totaled $62.7 million during the current fiscal year.

The panel voted Tuesday to recommend that the 1984 Legislature continue to support special education at 95 percent of its cost.

However, education officials urged the committee to increase state funding.

Lowell Alexander, director of a special education cooperative for schools in Wyandotte County, warned that less state funding would affect the quality of special education programs.

"Decreases in quality would surely follow any decrease in state support," said Alexander, adding that schools do not need incentives to lower costs. "We're already doing everything we can to keep costs down."

The committee also recommended that the state Board of Education review its standards which determine who is eligible for special education programs. Some members of the panel expressed concern that the standards were too lax, allowing some students into special education programs who did not really need the services.

GET FRAMED!

Have your picture taken
for Royal Purple

Today:

Haymaker Hall 8:30-5:30

Tomorrow:

Marlatt Hall 8:30-5:30

Off-Campus people
can still get pictures taken
Oct. 10-28

Union 209

539-5229

Bring your stamped fee card.

"UPC... We do it right!"

UPCOMING EVENTS

Wednesday, Oct. 26

Kaleidoscope—Das Boot:
LT 7:30 p.m.

Thursday, Oct. 27

Issues & Ideas—LTAI—Linda
Richter, The U.S. Stake in the Philippines: Catskeller 12 noon.
Kaleidoscope—Das Boot: LT 3:30,
FH 7:30 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 28

Arts—Midday Arts—Halloween
Make-up Demonstration: Courtyard 12 noon.
Feature Films—Tootsie: FH 7 &
9:30 p.m.
Feature Films—Alien: FH 12 midnight.

Saturday, Oct. 29

Kaleidoscope—To Have and Have
Not: FH 2 p.m.
Feature Films—Tootsie: FH 7 &
9:30 p.m.
Feature Films—Alien: FH 12 midnight.

Sunday, Oct. 30

Kaleidoscope—To Have and Have
Not: FH 2 & 7 p.m.

Monday, Oct. 31

Arts—"Assemblages by Dennis Teepe": Union Art Gallery thru
Nov. 18

Tuesday, Nov. 1

Coffeehouse—Nooner—Jeff Howard and Andre Kelley, "An Afternoon of Song": Catskeller 12 noon.
Issues & Ideas—"Where Luther Walked," with Professor Robert Linder. Co-sponsored with Lutheran Campus Ministries:
Union Rm. 213 12 noon.

Reminder

Stray Cats tickets available Monday-
Friday from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. in Union
1st Floor Box Office. Ticket prices:
$10, $9.50, $9.

Spaces available
at our events.

1009

k-state union
program council

TO HAVE AND HAVE NOT

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

A daring story about a cynical Caribbean seaman who becomes deeply involved in a mission for the French resistance adapted from Hemingway's short story.
Bogart and Bacall make this film especially memorable... "You know how to whistle, don't you?"

Sat., Oct. 29
2:00 p.m.
Sun., Oct. 30
2:00 & 7:00 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.50
Rated G

DUSTIN HOFFMAN
Tootsie

Friday & Saturday
Oct. 28 & 29
7 & 9:30 p.m.
Forum Hall $1.50
Rated PG

k-state union
upc feature films

k-state union
upc feature films

Friday & Saturday
Oct. 28 & 29
12 midnight
Forum Hall
$1.50

CAVING Nov. 19-20

$23.50

Info Meeting:
Tues., Nov. 8
7:00 p.m.
Union Rm. 213

Spend a weekend of underground fun exploring 3 caves in central Missouri.

k-state union
upc outdoor rec.

Das Boot
The other side of World War II.

The most talked about movie in Germany is now one of the most talked about movies in America.

Wednesday, Oct. 26
7:30 p.m. Little Theatre

Thursday, Oct. 27
3:30 p.m. Little Theatre
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall $1.50

Part of the International Film Series

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

Rated R

BE A ROCKABILLY REBEL

Football games lower attendance, pose minor problems for police

By TIM FILBY
Collegian Reporter

Now that the debut of night football at K-State is history, the figures show that attendance at non-conference home games did not increase but decreased instead.

Last season, K-State football attracted 100,500 fans — an average of 33,500 per game — to watch the Wildcats face the University of Kentucky, South Dakota University and intrastate rival Wichita State University. This season, however, K-State has thus far attracted 89,000 fans — an average of 29,666 per game — to watch the 'Cats play California State University-Long Beach, Texas Christian University and the University of Wyoming.

K-State installed a new $450,000 lighting system at KSU Stadium using revenue earned partially through televised games with the University of Missouri, the University of Oklahoma and the University of Wisconsin.

K-State became the first Big Eight Conference school to have lights installed in their football stadium and they were used in the Wildcats' first three non-conference home games.

In a story in the Aug. 31 issue of the Collegian, K-State Athletic Director Dick Towers said there were two main reasons for installing lights at KSU Stadium — to increase attendance at football games and to make the stadium available for nighttime television broadcasts.

In addition, Towers said night football would help business in the Manhattan area by drawing in out-of-town fans to local shops who would have normally gone just to the games if they were in the afternoon.

At first glance, however, the first season of night football games at K-State was not successful in improving attendance, said Mike Scott, K-State sports information director. But K-State's attendance last season was helped by the Wichita State game, which drew in a large crowd, he pointed out.

Scott said K-State also was unsuccessful in arranging a televised game with any network.

"We had talks with WTBS (Turner Broadcasting Systems out of Atlanta) about televising the Iowa State game on Nov. 12," Scott said. "But WTBS pulled out and chose to pick another game instead."

Local businessmen said night football wasn't the boost to the area economy as it was originally billed to be.

Harold Carr of the Westloop Business Association said businesses in his area were hurt by night games.

"Westloop had very bad business," said Carr, manager of Mr. Steak. "We were opposed to night games at K-State before the season."

"Retail business in our area had a slight increase. However, food service-related businesses had a great decrease. There was a tremendous decrease from past years for restaurants on Saturdays."

Charles Ballard of the Aggieville Business Association sighted similar trends for businesses in his area.

"We expected the retail business to go up and restaurants and clubs to go down and that's exactly what happened," said Ballard, of Ballard Sporting Goods. "The retail business in the area went up quite a bit, while the restaurants and clubs went down because of the loss of night business."

Ballard said a reason retail business increased in his area was people had more time to shop as a result of the night football games.

"Customers had all afternoon to shop," Ballard said.

One problem that stemmed from having night football games was the more spirited behavior of the fans, Lt. Charles Beckam of the K-State Police Department said.

"We had considerably more problems at night games than we usually have," Beckam said.

Beckam said the main reason for crowd problems was intoxication.

"Night fans have more time to consume alcoholic beverages before the games," Beckam said. "Consequently, with that period of time, there are people that are more apt to get into some trouble."

Beckam said he noticed several problems as the result of night games.

"We've had a few people who have been injured because of being intoxicated or because of the intensity of the crowd," he said. "Also, people are more apt to throw anything they can get their hands on, and we've had some sign vandalism in north Manhattan after the games."

Beckam added he encountered far fewer problems at the last home game — a day contest against the University of Oklahoma — than he did the first three night games.

"Problemwise, we're happy to see night games get over with," Beckam said. "Day games go a lot smoother than night games."

However, Capt. Nick Edvy of the Riley County Police Department said his department encountered no increase in activity because of night games.

"We were happy with the way night games went," Edvy said. "We did have some sign vandalism, DWI arrests, and miscellaneous calls, but no more than any other Saturday night."

Edvy said his department had no problems inside the stadium because K-State Police is responsible for that area.

"We are mainly responsible for traffic," Edvy said. "In the stadium, we are there only to help the K-State Police if they need it, so we don't enforce city ordinances."

However, Edvy said that intoxication was a main problem in the stadium.

Staff/Chris Stewart

Bob Annan of White Lightning shovels an underhand pass to a teammate despite an attempted tackle by Art Peterson of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. The SAEs were 18-6 winners of the intramural championship game Tuesday afternoon at the intramural fields.

SAE takes intramural title

By JUDI WRIGHT
Asst. Sports Editor

After several postponed games due to the weather, intramural flag football has come to a close as the final division championship game — the All-University match — was played on Tuesday night at the L.P. Washburn Recreational Complex.

The game featured the fraternity division winner, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, against the independent division winner, White Lightning. Sigma Alpha Epsilon won the match with a score of 18-6.

"It felt great to win," Chris Ladish, player-coach of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon team, said. "The fraternity league is really competitive but the All-University games are anticlimactic because everyone has already won their division and they've gotten what they wanted — a T-shirt."

Earlier in the All-University playoffs, White Lightning advanced after defeating residence hall division winner, Marlatt 6, in a semifinal match on Oct. 18. Pi Beta Phi won the women's division championship title on Oct. 16 by defeating Alpha Xi Delta.

Water polo championships on Thursday night at the Natatorium matched the top two teams, O.P. and P.R.W.P., against each other. O.P. won the match and the tournament with an 11-4 score over P.R.W.P.

The intramural wrestling tournament concluded on Oct. 14 with 219 participants wrestling in the week-long tournament. The athletes were broken down into three divisions — fraternity, residence hall and independent — and 10 weight classes. Tau Kappa Epsilon took top honors in the fraternity division with 115 total points. Marlatt 5 was first in residence hall competition with 50 points and A.F.O. was the winning team in the independent division with 101 points.

The second intramural sports season for this semester got underway on Monday with innertube water polo, and on Tuesday the volleyball season began.

Twelve teams have signed up for innertube water polo competition with games scheduled for Monday and Tuesday nights at the Natatorium.

A total of 264 teams make up the volleyball field with four leagues in the fraternity division; five leagues in the resident halls division; six leagues in the independent division; 11 leagues in the women's division and one league in the faculty-staff division.

Intramural cross country and bowling competition will start on at the beginning of next week. Cross country starts on Sunday and bowling starts on Monday and runs through Nov. 6. Entries for these two sports will be taken up until 5 p.m. Thursday at the Rec Complex.

Hoyt wins AL Cy Young Award

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — LaMarr Hoyt, the barrel-bellied Chicago White Sox right-hander who led the major leagues with 24 victories this year, was named the winner of the Cy Young Award in the American League on Tuesday.

The previously unheralded Hoyt, who has won 43 games over the past two seasons and led the White Sox' second-half romp to the AL West title, received 17 first-place ballots and was the only one named by all 28 voters on a special panel of baseball writers.

He had a total of 116 points, easily outdistancing reliever Dan Quisenberry of the Kansas City Royals, who finished second with nine first-place votes and 81 points. Quisenberry, who set a major league record for saves with 45, was named on only 23 ballots.

Jack Morris of the Detroit Tigers was third with two first-place ballots and 38 points.

The ballots were cast by two members of the Baseball Writers Association of America from each American League city. Voting took place before the American League playoffs and World Series. Hoyt won the opening game of playoffs 2-1 over Baltimore, the White Sox' only outdistancing reliever Dan Quisenberry of the Kansas City Royals, who finished second with nine first-place votes and 81 points.

Quisenberry, who set a major league record for saves with 45, was named on only 23 ballots.

Jack Morris of the Detroit Tigers was third with two first-place ballots and 38 points.

The ballots were cast by two members of the Baseball Writers Association of America from each American League city. Voting took place before the American League playoffs and World Series. Hoyt won the opening game of playoffs 2-1 over Baltimore, the White Sox' only outdistancing reliever Dan Quisenberry of the Kansas City Royals, who finished second with nine first-place votes and 81 points.

Big Selections
of
USED ALBUMS
&
NEW RELEASES at $6.60
UNCLE DOC RECORDS
LOCATED ON 3RD ST. ACROSS FROM
THE DAIRY QUEEN — IN MANHATTAN
AUTO SOUND

POSITIONS AVAILABLE
Fall Semester 1984
Undergraduates to serve as Learning Skills Seminar Leaders for Fall 1984. Applicants should have strong backgrounds in mathematics and/or the social sciences and good study skills. Ten to twelve hours weekly. Salary of $750 for Fall Semester. Selected applicants must successfully complete EDAP-311, Guidance for the Paraprofessional, (3 hours academic credit) during Spring Semester, 1984. Contact Academic Assistance Center, Room 204, Holton Hall, 532-6492. Apply by November 1. Kansas State University is an equal opportunity employer.

the Avalon THE SUSPECTS
Rock 'n Roll with Top 40 Rock
TONIGHT IS — BUCK A BOTTLE NIGHT —
Enjoy $1.00 DOMESTIC BOTTLED BEER All Night
This Weekend Don't Miss THE ZOO
Plus Free TGIF with JOE QUINN
— Reggae and Ska
— Acoustic Guitar
1122 Moro UPSTAIRS IN AGGIEVILLE 539-9703

You'll be seeing some new faces at the Bookstore. Maybe even your own.

Choose your Halloween personality from our wide selection of famous, infamous and bestial masks. We also offer our wigs, artificial features, MAKE-UP (water, grease, pancake, rouge) in every imaginable color—you name it! Clown white, lipstick, and nail polish (black/green/red/glitter) we've got it!

10% discount on all merchandise (except special orders and sale merchandise) for anyone in costume Oct. 28th or Oct. 31.

k-state union bookstore

Σ A E • Σ Φ Ε
PRESENT THEIR 4TH ANNUAL ...
Busch Bowl
OCT. 28TH, 7:00 P.M., GRIFFITH FIELD

THANKS TO ...
CAMPBELL DISTRIBUTORS INC.,
BALFOUR HOUSE, WOODY'S &

Α Δ Π Α Ξ Δ Δ Δ Δ
Σ Σ Σ Χ Ω Κ Δ
Γ Φ Β Π Β Φ Α Χ Ω

Nebraska may leave 'Cats seeing red

This Saturday the Big Red is coming to town — and I don't mean Santa Claus. Points, not presents, will be the only things passed out by the University of Nebraska to a K-State defense that has accepted them readily this season.

Will the Cornhuskers score 100 points, how many hundreds of yards will I-back Mike Rozier rush for and is the bloodmobile on campus to get donations for the football team after the game are three questions being asked across the K-State campus.

Don't worry Wildcat fans. I guarantee Nebraska won't even break into the eighties, Rozier won't run for over 300 yards and the donations aren't for the football team.

The 'Husker offense scores an average of 39 points each Big Eight Conference game, while the 'Cats' offensive (I do mean offense) scoring rate is slightly over one field goal — 4.3 points per game.

In addition, the 'Cats' defense is giving up 33 points each conference outing in comparison to the 'Huskers' 14 points surrendered each game.

Using the law of averages, the final score of the game should be 36-9.15 in Nebraska's favor. Even with the addition of five cheap touchdowns, complete with extra points, the Nebraska total is still only 71 points.

HUEY COUNTS
Sports Columnist

The player who is going to give the Wildcat defense the toughest time is quarterback Turner Gill. He can run, throw and is intelligent — three phases of the game the 'Cats' defense has yet to prove it can stop.

Earlier this year Jim Dickey, head coach at K-State, said that the 'Cats could beat Oklahoma or Nebraska this season. Oklahoma already ran over them; so that leaves Nebraska. There also is the old adage that on any given day, any team can beat another team. Sorry coach, but we're still in Kansas, not the Land of Oz.

Until now, the K-State football team is one topic I've avoided because the coaches and players are doing the best they can. Besides that, I don't believe in kicking a dog while it's down.

But after the 'Cats' total collapse against the University of Missouri to keep a piece of the Big Eight cellar, it's time to reevaluate certain persons' lofty preseason expectations for this year's team.

Everyone knows about Dickey's redshirt program, the 'Cats first winning season since 1970 and the team's trip to the Independence Bowl.

Whether or not the 'Cats deserved their bid to the bowl is debatable and a close look at last year's schedule shows there wasn't that much to get excited about.

The combined record of the teams which K-State beat last season was 16-34-5. This is excluding the victory over South Dakota, a large "high school."

The teams which beat or tied K-State had a combined record of 49-25-5.

The pattern has continued this year as the two teams that the 'Cats defeated have a combined record of 5-9-1, while the teams that have beaten K-State are 22-12-1.

Even though the football team has improved to the point where they can beat the patsies on their schedule, K-State is still several years away from being able to beat the big boys.

A victory over the University of Kansas would have helped recruiting, but the Jayhawks thumped K-State soundly.

What it comes down to is that the 'Cats simply don't have enough talent to win the big games.

This leaves the 'Cats with a Catch-22 situation: they won't beat the top-caliber teams until they come up with some good recruits, but the recruits won't come to K-State until it beats some of the better teams.

After getting soundly beaten by Nebraska, the 'Cats have to rebound and defeat Colorado, Iowa State and Oklahoma State to salvage the season and have any chance of good recruiting.

It's time to realize that a consistently winning program is still years away, and even though the 'Cats are performing poorly, they're all we have.

L.A. Dodgers' manager wins baseball award

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Although he has guided the Los Angeles Dodgers to championships before and more may lie ahead, 1983 will remain a special season for Tommy Lasorda.

"It was a tremendous year, a rewarding year for all of us in the organization," said Lasorda, voted The Associated Press National League Manager of the Year for the third time in his seven seasons as the Dodgers' skipper.

"When we were 6½ games behind Atlanta, a lot of people gave us up as hopeless. But we still had confidence," he said.

While the high point of 1983 for the young and frequently troubled Dodgers came when they clinched the NL West championship Sept. 30, the most important time of the year may well have been last spring.

"We worked awfully hard last spring," said Lasorda, who has piloted the Dodgers to four division titles and one World Championship besides being voted the AP's NL Manager of the Year previously in 1977 and 1981.

Los Angeles won the West title despite the off-season departure of veterans Steve Garvey and Ron Cey, some fielding and hitting slumps by their younger players, injuries to their top two catchers and the continuing problems of their best reliever, Steve Howe, who was battling drug dependency.

The Dodgers roared out of spring training, winning 21 of their first 28 regular-season games. They eventually went into a skid and fell 6½ games behind the Braves Aug. 10. But they bounced back to take the lead again Aug. 29 and were in front the rest of the way, finishing three games ahead of Atlanta.

"It was a tremendous thing our youngsters did," Lasorda said of the August comeback.

Lasorda won the 1983 Manager of the Year award by a single vote over Bob Lillis of Houston, who led the Astros to a third-place finish in the West.

Lasorda received 28 of a possible 87 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Pittsburgh's Chuck Tanner was third with 23 votes, Paul Owens of the Phillies received six, Atlanta's Joe Torre two and Bill Virdon of Montreal one.

The annual honor was not the only reward Lasorda has received recently for the job he did this summer. Last week he received a three-year contract.

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 113 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.65 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.25 per inch; Five consecutive days: $3.95 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $3.75 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENT

01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m. 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. $56 for students with ID and $1 for all others. (281)

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours. Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m. Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Maries, 1631 Humboldt, 539-5200. (32-50)

COSTUME PARTY Saturday afternoon and night at the El Paso Powder Room. Two kags? Swan Lake? Blessings while you wait? You bet your t-u-t! Call Roger Deppenbusch, Colin Rankin, or Scott Heidtbrink for more information, 537-9349. (47-49)

FEMALE STUDENT would like to meet male student (25-35) with open, affectionate personality, broad range of interests (outdoors, plays), time to commit to friendship. Reply Box 4, Collegian. (47-49)

IF YOU want to drink it's your business, if you want to stop it, it's ours. Alcoholics Anonymous meets Thursday noon, 1021 Denison. (47)

GREAT PUMPKIN carving contest sponsored by the Horticultural Therapy Club will be held in the Union on Friday. Benefits will go to Big Lakes. (47)

AUCTION—QUITTING Business—Complete auction of all inventory and fixtures, Friday evening, October 28, 1983, 6:00 p.m., 423 Poyntz, Manhattan, Kansas. The remaining inventory consists of the following: Approximately 6,524 skeins of Persian and tapestry yarn; approximately 5,824 bundles of pre-cut rug yarn in a variety of colors; approximately 2,400 skeins and balls of tatting, pearl cotton and embroidery floss; approximately 2,457 skeins of a variety of types of yarns in all colors and types; 148 pieces of imported needlepoint canvas; knitting needles, cross stitch and other kits, sewing supplies and much more inventory; fixtures including display cases and racks, stands, tables, pegboard, baskets, display items. Note: The Yarn Shop has always been proud to stock some of the best quality yarn available. A large inventory and sure to be an interesting auction! The Yarn Shop, Auctioneers: Milt Anderson, 776-4834 or 539-7365; Earl Brown, Vern Gannon. (47-48)

ATTENTION

02

TRAVEL—WE will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (111)

FANTASY-GRAMS. Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

HURRY TO Ballroom! To introduce you to our new arrivals, all Footloose aerobic shoes and racquetball shoes and gloves are 20% off now through October 29th. (39-49)

SINGLE MALE searching for single female born between February 15, 1961 and February 4, 1962. Call 537-8365 for more details. (43-48)

CANDID PORTRAITS—I offer flexibility and a personal approach to each photo session. If you would like to give that "special" person a "special" photograph—phone 776-8502 evenings. Ask for Brian. (46-50)

KSU Parachute Club will be meeting in U207 on Oct. 27 at 8 p.m.! Be there to discuss demos, first jump classes & weekend jumping! Aloha!!

BOYD, PUTNAM, Ford and West: Today is the last day. Tom Hawk Photography will be taking out door portraits in the Quinlan Wildlife Area. No appointment necessary. We'll be there between 1:30 and 5:30 p.m. It's free! And there's no obligation. (47)

COZUMEL—YUCATAN Peninsula—Mexico. Yucatan Field Course: Natural History, Three biology credits, Winter Intercession, January 2-15 from Johnson County Community College. For more information, 1-888-0170. (47-49)

FOR RENT—MISC

03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (111)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9489. (111)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (111)

LOCATION—LOCATION—LOCATION

Retail/Office new space now available, super university traffic, Denison & Claflin. Ideal for beauty-barber shop, stereo, jeans, etc. Also convenient off-campus office use: consulting, travel agency, insurance, legal, accounting, medical, stock broker, etc. For information 537-0200.

HALLOWEEN COSTUMES—Sales and rentals, masks, make-up, accessories. The Emporium, 11th and Moro in Aggieville. (35-49)

FOR RENT—APTS 04

BASEMENT APARTMENT—Two bedroom, remodeled this summer, two blocks west of campus. Call Jim, 539-1135. (42-50)

NICE, SPACIOUS, two-bedroom, unfurnished, $295. Available anytime. 776-2171. (45-49)

PINE HAVEN brand new two-bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. 776-3804. (46-55)

TWO BEDROOM, furnished, near Westloop. Fully equipped, pool, balcony, lovely—$350. Call 238-4792. (46-50)

NICE TWO bedroom apartment. Available November 1. Deposit and lease required. No pets. 537-3629. (47-49)

ONE BEDROOM unfurnished apartment—off street parking, close to campus and Aggie. Available spring semester. Call 539-4371 or 539-2019 after 5:00 p.m. (47-49)

FOR SALE—AUTO 06

1968 AMX classic 390—automatic, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, stereo, 5,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Excellent condition, $3,400. Might trade. 537-4762. (39-48)

1973 DODGE Polara, V8, automatic, power steering, and brakes. In good condition, $550. Call 537-2665. (44-49)

1979 TOYOTA Corolla hatchback. AM/FM cassette, air, excellent condition. After 7:00 p.m. 776-1495 or 539-8970. (45-49)

1974 MUSTANG II, 65,000 miles. Engine rebuilt, only $950. 537-5796. Evenings. (46-47)

1974 FORD Pinto. Good shape. New gear system, stereo, heating system. Call 539-1361 8 a.m.-10 a.m. or 6 p.m.-12 p.m. (46-49)

1976 MALIBU Classic, 305 engine, automatic, air conditioning, tilt, stereo, good tires. Call 776-0545. (47-49)

FOR SALE: 1974 Mustang II, $600 or best offer. Call 539-9023. (47-49)

FOR SALE—MISC 07

ADULT GAG GIFTS, novelties, all occasion, risqué greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (111)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (111)

BICYCLE 12 speed, eclipse bags front and rear with racks, handlebar bag, rollers for indoor riding. 537-8501. (43-47)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (light blue), USC (white), others. $14.00 each postpaid. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-601-835-1085. (45-59)

OLYMPUS XA 35mm camera with A11 flash. $100. Call 532-2362. (47-50)

BICYCLES—MEN'S 27" 10-speed Montgomery Wards, excellent condition, $80. Women's 3-speed Skylark, $15. Please call 537-4473 after 5:00 p.m. (46-47)

WHISTLES!

Acme Thunderer
LOUD-SHRILL
Call Charly
913-537-9821

EQUIPMENT FOR making rubber stamps. Type, press cabinet for type, and supplies. Must sell. Phone 537-7511 after 5:00 p.m. (47-51)

SCHWINN VARSITY 10-speed—Excellent shape. Asking $90 or best offer. Call 776-1228 after 6:00 p.m. (47-49)

FOUR KSU-NU tickets. Excellent seats. Call anytime. Keep trying. Call 1-494-2816 or 1-494-2571. $25 each. (47-49)

FOUR TICKETS for NU-KSU football game. Call 537-4025 after 5:00 p.m. (47)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES 08

TWO-BEDROOM trailer house, excellent condition. Call 776-6143 after 6:00 p.m. (45-54)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES 09

1979 SUZUKI GS550, 18,000 miles, new chain, bat-tery helmets included, $900 or best offer. 776-1332 after 5:00 p.m. (421)

1973 TR6 Triumph, one owner, both tops, very nice, K-State purple, $2595. The Preston McCarty Company, 913-841-6067. (44-53)

1982 HONDA XL250R. Excellent condition, must sell, $975 or best offer. 537-4375. (47-49)

HELP WANTED 13

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sighting fee. Free information. Write LUC, Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

PART TIME male needed for T.V. satellite receiving dish installation and delivery. Must be ambitious and willing to work. Flexible hours required. Send name, address and phone number to P.O. Box 1397, Manhattan, KS 66502. (46-47)

STUDENT to work 20 hrs. per week. General office work, typing, filing, bookkeeping. Office experience required. Prefer second or third year student. Apply Institute for Environmental Research, Seaton Hall. (46-48)

TAKING APPLICATIONS for part-time employment. Sales and train to install satellite antenna systems. Must be willing to work, meet public and dress neatly. Apply at 316 Poyntz, Ghera's. (46-48)

IMMEDIATE TWO part-time sale telephone receptionist positions. Qualifications: mature person from a standard high school or equivalent, pleasant speaking voice, neat personal appearance, the ability to work well with people in a pleasant working environment. Applications must be sent to P.O. Box 703, Manhattan, KS 66502. (46-49)

MALE SUBJECTS needed for study, $3 for one-half hour time. Call 539-6929 or 539-1380. (47-51)

HELP WANTED—Computer Programmer. Advanced undergraduate or graduate student needed part-time to maintain and operate existing computer systems and develop programs to analyze survey data. Applicants should have working knowledge and experience in CIMS, SAS, PL1 and keypunching. Submit an application letter, resume and references by November 4, 1983 to: Dr. Charles I. Rankin, Director, Midwest Race and Sex Segregation Assistance Center, Kansas State University, 401 Blumert Hall, Manhattan, KS 66506. Kansas State University is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity Employer. (47-49)

LOST 14

LOST. LIKE new blue denim jacket on the 13th or 14th of the month. Call 776-3864. (46-49)

LADIES GOLD birthstone ring with Peridot stone (light green). Probably lost in Seaton Hall or Union. Sentimental value. Reward! Call Judy at 532-5964. (47-49)

PERSONAL 16

LISA—KNOWING you have helped me know myself. And remember—there's no such place as far away. Happy 21st—Love, Barb. (47)

LISA, HERE'S to Baskin Robbins, Swannies, architect parties, hard times, fun times, living alone, living together, and most importantly being friends. Love ya bunchies and happy 21st. Mervina. (47)

AD Pi Debbie L.—I hope you enjoyed your stay at the House. I can't wait 'til it becomes permanent. Love ya tons, Mom. (47)

DELTA SIG Don, my only son: Do you know your silent mom? (47)

STEPH—IT has been a great three years and one day. Hope to see more. Love, Geoff. (47)

LITTLE SIS Sarah R.—This is your big brother. Did you make it home last weekend without running out of gas or getting a speeding ticket? MR says hello. (47)

ALICE C.—Happy Birthday! Hope your day and this weekend are great. Your sis—Ruth. (47)

ANDREA K.—Saturday night was really great, and the party really did date. But it must have been fate. Because you are a fantastic date. Thanks again—Bill. (47)

KERRY—HERE'S to a day of surprises and some that aren't. Happy Birthday! Love, Julie. (47)

ALPHA CHI'S get psyched for tonight for down at Sports Fan-atic there'll be quite a sight. Bring your money and have some fun and find out which playboy will be #1! See ya down there. (47)

PIKE LIL' Sisters—Get psyched for Greek Playboy. Let's all go down and support Mike at the Sports Fan-atic tonight. (47)

SANDY W.—Your bags are packed and your K.C. bound, but Friday let's paint the town. P.K. (47)

TRI-DELTA Betsy H.—Lookout Aggieville—She's not a teenager anymore! I hope your 20th B-day is the best ever. Thanks for listening when no one else would. Party hard tonight but remember your ole cuz is keeping tabs on ya! Love ya, Chuck. (47)

KURT AND Sue: One month and the whole world will know your love for each other. Congratulations! Gen. 224. I love you both. Kelli. (47)

TRIANGLE—Unton, Mark and Craig: Get ready for high times this year! Your Special Angel. (47)

TRIANGLE—GREG, Kevin, Shawn: Looking forward to fun times ahead! Your Special Angel. (47)

DI, INTERESTED in attaching strings and Big Macs. Your "All-American Guy" from JSP. P.S. Is five minutes long enough? (47)

BETSY (S.O.)—As the years go by remember this: Live every moment for all it's worth; love and most of all laugh! Happy 20th Birthday! Love, Virg. P.S. Hope it's as good as Saturday night was! (47)

ROOMMATE WANTED 17

MALE FOR excellent apartment in great location, $120 per month. Call 776-3241. Keep trying. (45-47)

FEMALE ROOMMATES wanted for house one-half block from campus, $100 month plus one-half electricity. Available November 1st. Call 539-6553. (47-49)

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted—Colonial Gardens Trailer Court. $125 plus one-half utilities. Call 537-3680. (47-49)

QUIET FEMALE roommate needed for spring semester. 539-6674. (47-51)

ONE TWO female non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplace, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (44-48)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share four-bedroom apartment through May. Good location. Call 539-6849. (42-51)

SERVICES

18

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Unique skin care and glamour products. Call Floris Taylor, 539-2070, for facial. (17-5)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South 4th Street, Suite 25. (111)

GRADUATING THIS semester? Let us help you with your resume. Resume Service, 1221 Moro, Aggieville. 537-7294. (111)

Typing—LOWER rates. IBM electronic typewriter for faster service. Satisfaction guaranteed. Call Linda. 776-6174. (71)

MARY KAY Cosmetics: Free facials. 10 percent off products with student I.D. New fall glamour products now in. Call Elaine Berryhill, independent Beauty Consultant. 537-3233, 1456-7251 evenings. (30-50)

Typing WANTED: Dissertations, theses, papers. Fast, professional service. Twenty years experience. Call Katherine. 539-8637. (39-59)

NOW HAIRSTYLING—Perms $17.50 up; cuts $5.50 up; kids cuts 10 and under, $5.50; walk-ins, appointments. Hours 8:00 a.m.-7:00 p.m., Tuesday-Friday; Saturday 8:00 a.m.-5:30 p.m., 110 North 3rd, 776-7808. (40-50)

ROOMIN' SPA Rental—Rent a hot tub for your next party! Call 776-2293 after 6:00 p.m. weekdays, anytime on weekends. (42-51)

ROAMIN' SPA Rental—Rent a hot tub for your next party! Call 776-2293 after 6:00 p.m. weekdays, anytime on weekends. (42-51)

ROAMIN' SPA Rental—Rent a hot tub for your next party! Call 776-2293 after 6:00 p.m. weekdays, anytime on weekends. (42-51)

ROAMIN' SPA Rental—Rent a hot tub for your next party! Call 776-2293 after 6:00 p.m. weekdays, anytime

Legislator proposes phone rate control

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A western Kansas legislator announced Tuesday the filing of a package of bills for consideration by the 1984 Legislature to give the state more control over changes and potential rate increases in the telephone industry.

"As a result of the AT&T divestiture, and deregulation of the telephone industry, the projected increases in telephone rates is a cause for genuine alarm," Rep. David Heinemann, R-Garden City, said in a statement announcing the pre-filing of the bills.

"Universal telephone service may well become a thing of the past unless we do something to protect ourselves. In the near future, proposed changes in telecommunications services could be especially harmful to the rural areas of Kansas."

Specifically, his proposed bills would:

- Establish a "telephone siting" law to give the Kansas Corporation Commission, which regulates utilities in the state, greater authority to limit the expenses of telephone companies that can be charged to customers. The measure would require telephone utilities to obtain KCC permission before construction, installation, replacement, or retirement of equipment and buildings used to furnish telephone service. Telephone companies also would be required to provide their annual construction budgets to the KCC.
- Create a "Kansas Universal Telephone Service Fund" which would make money available to the elderly and disabled to pay for the costs of telephone service. All "interexchange carriers," generally companies providing long distance service, would be assessed a fee to operate in Kansas. Monies from the charge would be placed in the fund, and distributed by the KCC to eligible persons over 62 years old or disabled persons with an annual household income of less than $8,000.
- Allow the KCC to have management and operations audits conducted on all telephone companies under its oversight to ensure there will not be problems of "overbuilding and excess capacity."
- Authorize the KCC to exempt from regulation any operation of a telephone utility that involves two-way or one-way radio stations providing mobile telephone services. Heinemann says the measure will encourage more competition in that field.

NATO commander defends military missions

By The Associated Press

LAWRENCE — Nuclear freeze advocates delude themselves if they believe unilateral nuclear weapons reductions by the United States will lead to peace, a NATO general said Tuesday in a speech that attracted about 100 demonstrators.

"We must convince advocates of a nuclear freeze that as long as the Soviets believe that the West will restrain itself unilaterally, the Soviets will have no incentive to limit their own forces..." said U.S. Army Gen. Bernard W. Rogers, supreme commander of NATO military forces in Europe.

"It is wishful thinking to believe that arms negotiations can succeed without our conveying the impression that we have the will and resolve to take the necessary actions to preserve our security."

The demonstrators staged a peaceful protest outside the University of Kansas Student Union building while Rogers delivered his address to several hundred people inside.

The protesters carried signs that read, "Remember Hiroshima — End the Arms Race," and "Money for Jobs, Not for War." The demonstrators chanted, "Take the toys away from the boys — disarm."

Rogers said a nuclear war was not "winnable" by either side, and he said such a war could not be limited to a certain area or theater.

The planned deployment of a new generation of intermediate-range U.S. missiles in Europe in December is a key element in the deterrence that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has as its primary goal, Rogers said.

A protest campaign in parts of Western Europe has escalated among those opposed to deployment of the missiles, with thousands of demonstrators seeking to block the plan.

"Placing the missiles on West European soil this December — barring a breakthrough in the Geneva talks — will display resolve to the Soviets," the general said.

"Our being seen by them taking the requisite steps to strengthen our conventional forces will also be viewed as resolve on our part. And it is resolve which is the keystone of our deterrence, which in turn is the mission of NATO, the prevention of aggression and intimidation."

"...We must realize that the path to the future we all want, peace with freedom at reduced and balanced forces leads through the negotiating rooms in Geneva and Vienna," Rogers said.

At a news conference before his speech, Rogers said deployment of the missiles would proceed unless there is progress in the arms limitations talks in Geneva. He said the missiles were being deployed for defensive purposes.

"I do not have one offensive plan in my whole kit of plans," he said.

The general said he does not fear a Soviet nuclear attack on Europe, because "the Soviets are patient people. They don't want war, and they see trends which may help them avoid war." Rogers said the Soviets' goal always has been to control Western Europe "without firing a shot."

Rogers was asked whether tighter security precautions at the U.S. command post in Beirut would have prevented the terrorist bombing Sunday that killed more than 200 American Marines and Navy men and left about 60 French troops dead or missing.

Rogers said his NATO liaison visited the command post not long ago and made no recommendations to him "that we should improve the security."

The man who drove a truck loaded with explosives on its suicide mission through barricades and other obstacles was of the religious belief that the action would ensure his entry into paradise, the general said.

SPEEDWASH

in Aggieville
1118 Moro

- Open 24 Hours
- Free Parking Behind Building
- Newly Remodeled

comprehensive health associates

- free pregnancy tests
- outpatient abortion services
- alternatives counseling
- referrals
- gynecology
- contraception

1-415 & Hwy. Overland Park 642-3100

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity Rep. — TOM SEELE

- Supplemental Retirement Annuities
- Investment Options
- Free Transfer Privileges
- State Deferred Compensation
- Life Insurance

1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 913/275-7065

Aggie STATION
RESTAURANT & BAR

Hurry To . . .

75¢ DRINKS WED. NITES!

• 75¢ Well Drinks Tonite 7 p.m.-1 a.m.!

Bottoms Up Tomorrow!

ESCAPE TO ASPEN/SNOWMASS WITH UPC TRAVEL

January 1-8, 1984

$323/295 (with your own equipment)

TRIP INCLUDES:

- Roundtrip Motor Coach to and from Aspen
- 1 night's lodging at the hotel Colorado (location of filming for movie "The Shining") in Glenwood Springs, Colorado
- 4 nights lodging at the Woodbridge condominiums in Snowmass
- 4 days lift tickets (good at Snowmass, Aspen, and Buttermilk)
- 4 day equipment rental
- Pre-party
- 2 Wild West parties with bands
- UPC tote bag
- Beer and cheese party

SIGN-UP:
8 a.m.-3 p.m. K-State Union 3rd Floor, Activities Center

Spaces Still Available!

UPC is a service mark of UPC Travel

Coors Light Congratulates DELTA TAU DELTA "Bogie" and its trainer BOB RING & KENT BOOMER as the winner of the Coors Light Turtle Race

2ND PLACE:
"TURTLE"

SIGMA CHI AND KAPPA TEAM

BEST DECORATED:
"HELEN MOORE"
MOORE HALL

It's a pleasure serving you . . .

Junction City Distributing
238-6137

Thanks to all of the participants and fans at the Silver Bullet Turtle Race last Thursday at

© 1982 Adolph Coors Co., Golden, Colorado 80401

Defense

Brady Jones took up judo to protect himself

Sports, page 10

Resistance falters in Grenada invasion

By The Associated Press

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados — The United States threw fresh paratroopers and helicopter gunships into the fight for Grenada on Wednesday. They overran the stronghold of a handful of Cubans, but still met pockets of resistance, including the defenders of a hilltop prison.

House-to-house fighting flickered on between Grenadian defenders and American troops in the streets of St. George's, capital of the eastern Caribbean island, Barbados radio said.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said in Washington that some Cubans also continued fighting, but resistance generally was "diminishing."

The Cuban collapse came at Point Salines airfield, on Grenada's southern tip, where U.S. helicopter gunships battered a building holding armed Cuban airport workers, the Cuban news agency reported. "At the end, a group of six comrades, embracing our flag...sacrificed themselves for the motherland," it said.

The Cuban news agency said Cuban resistance ended at 11:17 a.m., but Weinberger said the U.S. forces still had yet to capture Richmond Hill Prison, just outside St. George's, where U.S. officials believe Grenadian dissidents are being held. Sources in Washington have said an initial U.S. attack Tuesday on the prison was repulsed by Cuban and Grenadian defenders.

Weinberger said military "operations are progressing extremely well" and the American force should control all its objectives "before too much longer."

At least 30 Cubans were killed in Wednesday's airport combat, Barbados radio reports said. The U.S. death toll for the two-day invasion stood at six. Weinberger said about 600 Cubans had been taken into custody.

Here in Bridgetown, 150 miles to the northeast, big U.S. Air Force transports took off from the airport through the day, shuttling arms, stretchers and other equipment to tiny Grenada.

"We're still sending gunships in," Air Force Lt. Col. Vince Strayhorn told reporters here. "It's getting better," he said. "We'll probably be out of there soon."

In Washington, a Reagan administration official, who requested anonymity, acknowledged that the almost 3,000 invasion troops had encountered "more resistance than we thought there would be" from the 1,200-man Grenadian army and the Cubans, most of them workers who had been building an airport runway at Point Salines.

Early Wednesday, U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said more U.S. casualties could be expected, "because the price of freedom is high."

At midday Wednesday, Pentagon sources said six U.S. servicemen had been killed in the operation, which began before dawn Tuesday, and 33 others were wounded. They said eight men were missing. Reports of casualties among the Grenadians remained uncertain.

Meanwhile, the evacuation of American residents of the island began.

President Reagan said he ordered the lightning invasion Tuesday to protect those 1,000 or so Americans on the Marxist-ruled island in the aftermath of a coup, and to "restore order and democracy" there.

Planes evacuate civilians from troubled Grenada

By The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Seventy exuberant evacuees from the embattled island of Grenada landed here Wednesday, expressing their delight at being back on U.S. soil and their thanks for "how well those Rangers came down and saved us."

Several people kissed the ground when they got off the C-141B transport plane carrying 69 Americans and one British civilian to Charleston Air Force Base. Others waved or gave the thumbs-up sign.

"I don't think there's a more beautiful sight than being back in the United States or seeing the Rangers at the True Blue campus to save us," said Jean Joel of Albany, N.Y., a St. George's University Medical School student.

Miss Joel said she woke up to shooting about 5:30 a.m. Tuesday, and the U.S. Rangers had secured the campus two hours later.

The students could hear that the fighting was quite fierce, with constant sniper fire and constant passes by American planes. But they said none of those isolated at the campus could see the fighting.

"We were too busy being under our beds," said Randall Tressler of Jarrettsville, Md.

Until their rescue, the students had been under 24-hour curfew since the coup except for a four-hour period Friday when they were allowed to buy food, they said.

Staff/Jeff Taylor

Robert Dixon, nuclear medicine technician, describes how the newly purchased Technicare Gamma Camera at Memorial Hospital operates.

Hospital's new camera provides better scans

By WAYNE PRICE
Collegian Reporter

Memorial Hospital recently purchased a Technicare Gamma Camera that will aid in the nuclear medicine department, which began operations Oct. 17.

Nuclear medicine is probably the most dramatic area in which the hospital is currently involved, Anne Renz, hospital administrator, said.

Currently, Memorial is the only hospital in Riley County which has such a camera. With this equipment, the hospital will be able to perform a greater variety of scans than with other equipment.

The machine was purchased from Technicare for approximately $130,000, Renz said. The camera itself cost around $110,000 and other instrumentation, which is needed to isolate radioactive material, accounted for the rest of the cost.

The camera should eventually pay for itself, Renz said.

"We felt this was a service that would financially break even for the hospital," Renz said. "But we don't know beyond that if we're going to have a revenue generation."

Basically, an examination with the camera involves the injection of a radioactive substance, called technetium, which is tagged for certain areas of the body.

Robert Dixon, a nuclear medicine technician at Memorial, explained this process with the example of a bone scan. When a bone is injured, bone cells begin to take in more nutrients and vitamins. The patient is injected with a radioactive material containing phosphate which the cells consume. The radioactive material leaves a hotspot in the cells for the camera to take a picture of and thus show anything that might be wrong with the body.

One of the advantages of using the camera is that the patient is exposed to less radiation than they would be if an X-ray was taken, Dixon said.

"You receive much less radiation with this," Dixon said. "If you were to get a whole bone scan of your whole body it might be the equivalent of just one picture of your knee or a knee X-ray."

Another advantage of nuclear medicine, Dixon said, is precision and speed. If a person wanted to see a change in a bodily function from looking at an X-ray, the change would have to be 50 percent for the eye to take notice. This change would take a certain amount of time. With nuclear medicine, a change can be seen much quicker. Changes in the body up to five percent are noticed through this technique. This includes just about any organ in the body, Dixon said.

Previously, scans were performed at the Radiology office in the Medical Center at College Avenue and Claflin Road. But there is a need to have them performed in a hospital setting, Renz said.

"It became apparent over the years as nuclear medicine has really come of age that it needed to be done in an acute care setting," Renz said. "Quite often the patients that are in need of this type of exam are critically ill patients that should not be shuffled from a hospital to a doctor's office and then back to the hospital."

The cost of a scan ranges from $130 to $250, depending on the different processes involved, Renz said.

This type of equipment looks high dollar on the outside, but can pay for itself by saving money in other areas, such as X-rays and lab tests, she said. One Harvard test showed that on a major diagnostic dilemma, the equipment could save up to $4,000.

Some of the financing for the equipment came from a loan, Renz said. The loan is paid for on a monthly basis which comes from the hospital's general operation funds. None of the money for financing the equipment came from the county.

Senate nixes funds to finish reactor

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate Wednesday scuttled the Clinch River Breeder Reactor, refusing $640 to spend $1.5 billion to complete the nuclear power project which proponents claimed held the promise of an inexhaustible supply of energy.

The project near Oak Ridge, Tenn., already has cost $1.7 billion. Critics have charged for years that the reactor, which would "breed" more nuclear fuel than it consumes, is dangerous, a waste of money and already obsolete.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., one of the project's most ardent supporters, admitted defeat after the surprisingly wide vote against him.

"I sincerely regret the loss of this amendment, but it is lost," he told the Senate. "One of these days, I think we will regret not having an entry in this field. But the Senate has spoken. I will not prolong this debate."

Supporters brought the $1.5 billion spending proposal to the floor as an all-or-nothing gamble to complete the project over the next seven years. Congress already had refused to provide a smaller, one-year appropriation in a routine 1984 spending bill.

The government alone has spent $1.7 billion on the project so far, for design, engineering and excavation, despite its rollercoaster ride in Congress. The overall price tag, including private money, was put at $4.2 billion. In 1970, the estimate was $800 million.

The vote apparently ends a battle that has raged more than a decade. Jimmy Carter tried to scuttle Clinch River with his first presidential veto, but succeeded only in mothballing it temporarily. But opponents in Congress have gained strength each year.

Soviets may abandon disarmament talks

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — President Yuri V. Andropov said Wednesday that continued talks on limiting medium-range nuclear missiles will be "impossible" if NATO puts new ones in western Europe, but the Soviet Union will ease its demands if the deployment plans are scrapped.

He expressed new flexibility on the number of Soviet missiles in Europe and in Asia, on the number of nuclear-capable aircraft and on the destruction of missiles that would be eliminated in an agreement.

A Western diplomatic source said the proposals probably would not meet with Western approval, since they required that no new U.S. missiles be deployed.

The statement came closer to an actual threat of a Soviet walkout at the Geneva talks than any previous public comment. It followed cryptic statements by other high-ranking Soviet officials who had hinted at a walkout.

He said: "The appearance of new American missiles in western Europe will make a continuation of the present talks in Geneva impossible. On the other hand, the Geneva talks can be continued if the United States does not start actual deployment of the missiles."

Democrats challenge controversial war act

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congressional Democrats, accusing President Reagan of failing to comply with the War Powers Act, promised Wednesday to assert their authority to pull troops out of Grenada after 60 days if they are not withdrawn sooner.

With the congressional outcry continuing over the death of more than 200 Marines in a bomb attack in Lebanon, the Grenada invasion appeared to be moving the lawmakers toward their second war powers confrontation with the White House in less than a month.

The Democratic minority in the Senate unanimously approved a resolution declaring that the notice Reagan sent to congressional leaders a few hours after Tuesday's landing on the Caribbean island "does not fulfill the requirements" of the 1973 act.

In his notification, Reagan took note of the Vietnam-era war powers law but did not invoke the provisions limiting a president's power to keep troops in combat or in overseas areas of potential combat without congressional approval.

The resolution said the timetable in the act was triggered by the invasion because "imminent involvement in hostilities was clearly indicated by the circumstances."

Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, asked whether he planned to ask Congress to invoke the War Powers timetable, said, "I fully expect to do so." As to when, he said, "It could be at any time."

The Democrats also passed a resolution declaring that security for Marines in Lebanon was "obviously inadequate" before Sunday's terrorist attack and proposing that the administration try to negotiate transfer of the Marines' peacekeeping mission to a United Nations force or "other forces from neutral countries."

In the House also, Reagan's notice was criticized as inadequate.

"We're not satisfied," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., D-Mass. If the president does not submit himself to the War Powers timetable, O'Neill said, "45 days from now a resolution will come to the floor" to invoke the time limit.

Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, called the president's action "a refusal to comply fully and properly with the law."

Vandalism blemishes Nichols reconstruction

By KARLA PORTER
Collegian Reporter

Recent vandalism at the Nichols Gym construction site has marred the otherwise smoothly-running reconstruction work.

Hank Morris, superintendent of construction for R.D. Andersen, the construction company in charge of the project, said overall the builders have had little trouble on the site.

"We really haven't had any problems except the fences and the trees," he said.

Morris said the fences enclosing the construction area have been knocked over in some parts, "probably by some kids wanting a short cut."

"With the rain we've had it's not hard just to push the fence over and walk over it," he said. "But I don't know who would want to walk through all that mud."

Morris said it's not hard to figure out why people have knocked the fence down, but he doesn't know why someone purposely killed one of the trees near the south wall of Nichols.

"I did hear of someone who didn't like the tree sitting right in front of the building saying 'Why don't they chop it down?'" Morris said. "We are going to have to thin the row of trees south of the building, but I would never thin a 30-foot tree."

Morris said the tree was attacked with a hatchet at some time between 4 p.m. Oct. 15 and 8 a.m. Oct. 17. The vandal "belted" the tree, cutting off about a six-inch strip of bark all the way around the trunk, and cut into the wood about three-fourths of an inch.

Because of the damage the tree will die, he said, because the ring of missing bark cuts off the feeding mechanism to the part of the tree above the damage. He estimated the price of the damage at between $2,000 and $3,000, judging by the $750 price tag on a tree he bought recently which was only half the size of the vandalized tree.

"That tree was probably 20 years old, 35 feet tall and 15 inches in diameter," he said. "They (the vandals) walked the fence down, and then walked all the fence down around the tree."

Another tree nearby was also attacked, but had only about six cuts, Morris said. He said he doesn't know why the vandals stopped short of killing the tree.

"Maybe they got tired. Maybe their hatchet broke," he said.

Morris said his company has

$2,000-deductible insurance, so the company will be paying for the replacement tree. A construction company is liable for any damage which occurs inside a designated construction site, he said.

The vandalism to the trees and fences are the only real problems the builders have had, Morris said, except for an occasional car parked in the yellow zone near the site exit. A car parked at the corner there makes it difficult to get trucks in and out, he said. Rather than having the cars towed, he said, he hopes students will obey the regulations on their own and avoid the $35 tow charge.

"I don't want to call the cops about it. Money is money, no matter whose it is."

Campus

1953 grad to give architecture talk

Gregory Tong, a 1953 K-State graduate, will give a slide-illustrated talk, "International Architectural Practice," at 1:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 31 in the Union Big Eight Room. The Department of Architecture and Design and the student chapter of the American Institute of Architects are co-sponsoring Tong's lecture, which is free to the public.

Tong is treasurer and chairman of the board of directors of the Hawaiian firm WWAT&G.

Wheat commission to arrive soon

New headquarters for the Kansas Wheat Commission just west of the Department of Forestry on Claflin Road should be occupied by early 1984, said Steve Frazier, a wheat commissioner. The facility, for which no cost was announced, is being built to bring the commission closer to agriculture-related agencies, he said. Current offices are in Hutchinson.

Plays on tap for class in England

Five professional plays are on the agenda for a K-State intersession class trip to London, England, during the 1983-84 Christmas break. The tour will depart from Kansas City on Jan. 3, 1984 and return Jan. 10.

Cost of the trip is $900 and includes round trip air fare, sleeping accommodations at a board and breakfast house, tickets to five plays and tours of the Royal Shakespeare Company and National Theater.

Registration for the class and trip is in the office of the Department of Speech, East Stadium 115, until Nov. 1. A $100 deposit is required.

Students will be asked to write and turn in a paper concerning their experience for two hours of credit.

English professors to read works

Jonathan Holden, associate professor of English, and Steve Heller, assistant professor of English, will read from their works at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in Union 212.

This is the first of two readings by the creative writing staff this academic year. In the spring Ben Nyberg and Phil Royster, associate professors of English, will read. The readings are free and open to anyone.

Hurley elected regional chairman

Jan Hurley, Division of Continuing Education conference coordinator, was voted chair-elect for Region V of the National University Continuing Education Association at its annual business meeting in Vail, Colo. earlier this month.

Hurley coordinates a national conference series on issues in education for the K-State Conference Office. A K-State conference coordinator since 1981, she has a master's degree in student personnel administration from K-State and a bachelor's degree in education from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

Student senate to read bills; consider new aide program

By The Collegian Staff

A bill from the Agricultural Student Council seeking $4,048.80 to help pay for agriculture judging teams' lodging and food expenses will receive first reading at today's Student Senate meeting at 7 p.m. in the Union's Big Eight Room.

The bills will be voted on at next week's senate meeting.

Other bills receiving first readings include a bill requesting $750 for printing costs of K-State's literary magazine, Touchstone, and a bill revising the senate aide program.

The ag council's Finance Committee requested $7,948 for the teams' meal and lodging expenses this year and are already providing $3,899.20, or about 49 percent of the request, through previous SGA allocations.

Judging teams include those for crops, dairy cattle, dairy products, horses, livestock, meats, poultry, soils, wool and flower.

Students on the teams have to cover $16,510.81 in other costs with their own money.

Touchstone magazine is seeking $750 in this one-time allocation to help fund its next issue. Also in the bill, Finance Committee is mandating that the magazine request future funding through the Fine Arts Council instead of coming directly from senate.

The senate aide program would be revamped if the bill receiving its first reading tonight is eventually passed. Instead of each senator having an aide as they do now, the new system calls for a pool of 20 aides from which senators can receive assistance.

"In the past we've had a little bit of trouble (with aides), and we feel it would be a more effective way to use the aides," said Lori Leu, senate chairman.

A five-member panel consisting of the senate chairman, vice chairman, senate Personnel Selections Committee chairman, Senate Operations Committee chairman and the senate aide coordinator would be responsible for interviewing and selecting the aides, the bill states.

Aides would not receive class credits, either, in the new system.

In senate's open period, Kansas Rep. Joe Knopp, R-Manhattan, will give a speech.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BLOODMOBILE COLLECTION is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today and tomorrow on the Union second floor. Walk-ins will be accepted.

STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS: All undergraduate students in a health-related degree program are eligible to apply for a Student Cancer Research Award of $500. These awards have been made available by the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Division of Biology. Applications are now available in Ackert 253. Deadline is Nov. 28.

GOLDEN KEY NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY APPLICATIONS are due Sunday.

TODAY

ADVERTISING CLUB meets at 6:30 a.m. at the Union for a field trip to Kansas City.

RECREATION CAREER DAY is from 9:30 a.m. to noon in the Union courtyard.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Janice George-Stewart at 2:45 p.m. in Justin 247.

AG COUNCIL AND HOME EC COUNCIL meet at 5 p.m. in Waters 137 for a Halloween party. Wear costumes.

SIGMA DELTA PI meets at 6 p.m. at 509 S. 15th St. for a meeting and potluck dinner.

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 7 p.m. in Kedzie 106.

HORTICULTURE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Waters 244. Royal Purple pictures will be taken at 6:45 p.m. in Calvin 102.

PI KAPPA ALPHA LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8 p.m. for a "Trick or Drink" Halloween party at the Pike house.

KSU PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Union 207.

SAILING CLUB meets at 8:45 p.m. in Belmont 122.

THETA XI LITTLE SISTERS OF THE UNICORN meet at 8:45 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

SISTERS OF THE SPHINX meet at 9 p.m. at the Delta Sigma Phi house.

AG ECON CLUB meets at 5:30 p.m. at Valentino's with the University of Nebraska Ag Econ club.

SPANISH TABLE meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union stateroom 2.

ICHTHUS FELLOWSHIP meets at 8 p.m. in Union 212. Everyone is invited.

LITTLE SISTERS OF ATHENA meet at 9 p.m. at the Alpha Kappa Lambda house.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

BUSINESS COUNCIL meets at 4 p.m. in Union 203.

It's The Great Halloween Costume Contest

Wear your most Unusual Costume to SWANNIE'S BACK DOOR

WHEN: This Saturday
JUDGE: Swannie
PRIZE: A Yum-Yum a day the rest of the semester.

*Swanson's Bakery is closed as usual on Monday, so order your Halloween treats for Sat. pick-up. Swannie's will be open as usual Monday at 9:30 p.m.

Announcing THE MANHATTAN JAYCEES

6th Annual

HAUNTED HOUSE

OCTOBER 27-31

Pottorf Hall
Cico Park

Admission $2.00 Adults
$1.00 Children Under 12

Thurs.-Sun. 7-12:00 p.m.

McCall's Shoes
A MANHATTAN TRADITION
SINCE 1961

Shoes so comfortable you may forget you're wearing them. Ultra-soft leather and a fleece lining cradle your feet and give a glove-like fit. And a specially designed "bounce-back" sole flexes easily and steps lightly. Slip into a pair. Remember, feeling is believing.

• VISA
• MASTERCARD

313 Poyntz

Downtown Manhattan

Recreation Career Day Union Courtyard TODAY

9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

- Professional Recreation Agencies
- Agency Displays
- Job Interviews
- Employment Opportunities

Pipsqueak:

You haven't gotten older... you've gotten better!

Happy Birthday!

SALE OF THE WEEK HIS & HERS CALVIN KLEINS

HIS 28.95 & HERS 24.95

NOTICE!

This week only so come today.

Today's Selections

1207 Laramie St. Aggieville.
539-2011

Master Charge Visa

ALL YOU CAN EAT MOUNTAIN OYSTERS!

Only $3.95
Thurs. nites
6-10 p.m.

ROCKIN' K BAR

TONITE IS LADIES NITE!

COPIES 5¢

kinko's copies

Hours
Monday-Thursday 8-8
Friday 8-6
Saturday 10-6
Sunday 12-6

2 for 1 Self Serve Copies

with this coupon

Expires 10/31/83

kinko's copies

FREE PARKING

TRICK OR TREAT

20% OFF

Treat yourself to a Store Wide savings now through Sunday. The entire Juniors, Misses and Mens fall fashion now 20% off. Don't trick yourself by shopping anywhere else this weekend but Fashion World!!

Thurs. 27th, Fri. 28th,
Sat. 29th, Sun. 30th.

Take an additional 20% off the already low prices.

Womens

Sweaters, Blouses, Skirts, Sweaters, Shirts, Jeans, Pants, Coats, Jewelry, etc. Slacks, Knits, Belts, etc.

MENS

Thursday 10-8

Weekdays 10-6

Sunday 12:30-5

FASHION WORLD

3015 Anderson Ave. Next to Valentino's Village Plaza

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6554 advertising 532-6560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.

Editor.....Paul Hanson
Managing Editor.....Sandy Lang
Photography Editor.....Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager.....John McGrath

Kennedy tapes replay talks on Cuban crisis

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — Fragmented transcripts and 33 minutes of scratchy recordings from the Kennedy White House were released Wednesday and revealed a young president and his advisers contemplating, then rejecting, military action during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

The tapes, secretly recorded by President John F. Kennedy, took on additional significance as public attention was riveted again on the Caribbean after the U.S. invasion of Grenada.

They were released at the Kennedy library here after screening by the National Security Council. The library said the release during the current turmoil in the Caribbean was coincidental.

The tapes chronicle White House conversations on Oct. 16, 1962, he day after Kennedy, 46, learned that the Soviet Union was building missile sites in Cuba.

Kennedy's first reaction was to prepare for military action.

"I think we ought to, beginning right now, be preparing," Kennedy said in the first of the two recorded meetings. "We're certainly going to do No. 1; we're going to take out these missiles."

But in the second meeting, the mood changed. Defense Secretary Robert McNamara argued for a political solution, including a blockade of the island, with the insistence that the Soviets remove their weapons.

The course suggested by McNamara ultimately was chosen.

Kennedy told the nation of the situation six days later, ordered a naval blockade of Cuba and forced the Soviets to remove the missiles from the island.

Kennedy worried that the crisis could turn into a nuclear confrontation, the tapes show.

"They may announce within three days they're going to have warheads on 'em; if we come and attack, they're going to fire them," he said. "Of course, we then announce, well, if they do that, then we're going to attack with nuclear weapons."

The transcripts, occasionally blacked out by NSC censors, showed Attorney General Robert Kennedy, Vice President Lyndon Johnson and others initially favored military action.

Also heard on the JFK tapes are

Secretary of State Dean Rusk; Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon; Maxwell Taylor, head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; and Marshall S. Carter, deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Last June, the library released 11 hours of tape-recorded conversations and telephone calls dealing with the battle to integrate the University of Mississippi and discussions on a proposed tax cut. Future releases are expected to deal with Kennedy's handling of domestic issues.

The existence of the tapes was announced in 1973. According to library officials, Kennedy recorded 325 conversations in his office and 250 phone calls from mid-1962 until Nov. 7, 1963 — 15 days before he was assassinated in Dallas.

Mobsters plead innocent to skimming charges

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Ten reputed Midwestern mobsters marched singlefile into federal court Wednesday and pleaded innocent to charges they conspired to skim nearly $2 million in gambling revenue from Las Vegas casinos.

After accepting the innocent pleas, U.S. Magistrate Calvin K. Hamilton temporarily revoked bail for most of the men and placed them in the custody of U.S. marshals. All of the defendants, however, were freed on bond later in the day after further appearances before Hamilton.

Those who appeared before Hamilton and the bonds they have posted are: Joseph J. Aiuppa, 76, identified by authorities as the head of organized crime in Chicago, $40,000; John P. Cerone, 69, a reputed underboss of the Chicago syndicate, $40,000; Anthony Chiavola Sr., 64, and his son, Anthony Chiavola Jr., 35, both former Chicago police officers, $20,000 each; Milton J. Rockman, 71, reputed Cleveland mob leader, $200,000; Frank P. Balistreri, 65, reputed organized crime chief in Milwaukee, and his two sons, Joseph P. Balistreri, 43, and John J. Balistreri, 35, $65,000 each; Carl W. Thomas, 50, a former Las Vegas casino operator, $100,000; and Angelo LaPietra, 62, Chicago, $20,000.

The defendants, many wearing dark suits and looking somber, stood before Hamilton in unison as their lawyers entered the pleas and argued briefly with the judge over his decision to temporarily revoke bail.

Hamilton did not revoke bail for Thomas and Rockman because they had appeared before him previously.

Fifteen defendants are charged in the eight-count indictment with muscling into control of the Argent Corp., which ran the Stardust, Hacienda, Fremont and Marina casinos during the 1970s.

The indictment, which was returned Sept. 30 but kept sealed until Oct. 11, alleges that nearly $2 million in gambling receipts was skimmed from Las Vegas casinos and distributed to the mob in 1978 and 1979. Skimming is the practice of taking gambling profits before they are counted and reported to the Internal Revenue Service for taxation.

Four defendants had pleaded innocent prior to Wednesday's proceedings. They are Joseph Lombardo, 54, of Chicago; Carl Civella, 73, reputed organized crime leader in Kansas City; and Peter J. Tamburello, 51, and Carl DeLuna, 56, both of whom have been identified as organized crime figures in Kansas City.

One defendant, Anthony J. Spilotro, 45, of Las Vegas, is on trial in Chicago for two 20-year-old gangland-style slayings. Spilotro allegedly runs the Chicago crime syndicate's Las Vegas operation.

The indictment is based on evidence obtained through massive FBI telephone wiretaps in 1978 in Kansas City, Las Vegas, Chicago and elsewhere. U.S. Attorney General William French Smith said the indictment is "one of the most far-reaching" that a federal grand jury ever returned, linking groups in numerous cities to hidden ownership of Las Vegas casinos.

But it is not the government's first assault on alleged mob control of Las Vegas gambling.

In July, Civella, DeLuna and three other men were convicted of conspiring to take over the Tropicana in Las Vegas and skimming $280,000 in gambling receipts from its casino. Tamburello was acquitted in that case.

NEBRASKA GAME SPECIAL

With each dinner
1 Free Beer (Meister Brau)
Thursday, Friday & Saturday

La Casa de Los Vera

Original Mexican Cuisine
Open 11 a.m.-10 p.m. excluding Tues.
308 1/2 Vattier 539-9809

IMPORT BEER NITE THURSDAYS!

• 12 Import Beers
$1.25
7 p.m.-Closing

1215 MORO • AGGIE STATION RECIPROCAL
Serving Hickory Smoked Bar-B-Que

Thursday

T.N.T.

Tacos "N"
TEQUILA
50¢ TACOS
with drinks
$1.00 Margaritas
4-6 p.m.

RAMADA INN

JOIN US THURSDAYS!

2 FERS
7-10

Draft Beer,
Pop, Popcorn

PLUS 12 PITCHERS
FOR PLEDGES 10-11:30

BUSHWACKER'S
• THE • FUNDRIKERY

Thursday
75¢ Well Drinks
9-11
Happy Hour: 4-9
2 fers on hiballs
75¢ draws $2 blended drinks

There's no doggin' it!

Drink of the Week:
Corn Shucker

A reciprocating Club
Bar 539-9727 Office 539-4321

531 N. Manhattan

Can YOU
Take TIME
From Your
Busy Schedule For
LOVE & INTIMACY?

Then join the Folks at E.C.M. for a
RETREAT

At Camp Chippewa—near Ottawa, KS—
for a discussion of love & intimacy
Nov. 4-6 $20 per person
Leave Manhattan at 5 p.m. Nov. 4—
return to Manhattan by 5 p.m. Nov. 6
Register by calling 539-4281 by Oct. 31

CUMMERCIAL
CHRISTIAN INDUSTRIES

the Avalon 1122 Moro

TONIGHT THE SUSPECTS Top 40 Rock 'n' Roll

LADIES NIGHT — Ladies get $1.00 HOUSE DRINKS
50¢ DRAWS • FREE COVER 7 to 11 p.m.

This Weekend—THE ZOO—Reggae and Ska—PLUS—TGIF with JOE QUINN—acoustic guitar

HALLOWEEN PARTY MONDAY, OCT. 31 WITH STEVE, BOB & RICH 539-9703

MONDAY HALLOWEEN BASH

★ FREE Bud Light Fright Night Mugs
★ Sexiest Cheerleader Costume Contest
★ Best Sports Personality Costume Contest
★ Monday Night Football—Chargers vs. Redskins
75¢ Drinks
$2.00 Pitchers when in Costume

“KIDD BAND”
Thurs., Fri. & Sat.
Rocking Rock 'n' Roll

TONIGHT GRAND SLAM
4 for 1s
Starts at 8 p.m.

The Sports Fan-atic
Laramie at 12th—Aggieville
Office: 539-0525, Bar 539-9849

The Great Glee Club Battle

*** All Faiths Chapel ***
KSU vs NU October 28 8:00 p.m.

Tickets $2.50 each
Available at the door
or from any
Glee Club member

Brother's
AGGIEVILLE

11th ANNUAL HALLOWEEN PARTY
Monday, October 31st—Noon to Midnight

—NO COVER CHARGE—
Featuring LIVE DJ from Lunar Tunes and a PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHER

BROTHER'S FAMOUS DECORATIONS

FIRST 300 PEOPLE after 6 p.m.
Receive a FREE FRIGHT NIGHT MUG
Yours to Keep from BUD LIGHT

CONTESTS • PRIZES
CRAZY BEER SPECIALS
1120 Moro NO COVER CHARGE WITH COSTUME 539-9064

Lutheran Campus Ministries and Local Manhattan Lutheran Congregations invite you to a CELEBRATION!

The 500th Anniversary "Luther"

- Remembering Luther's contributions
- Christian mission in the '80's

November 6 and 7, 1983
Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas

MARTIN LUTHER
1483-1983

Schedule of Events

Monday, October 31, 7:00 p.m.
Film: Where Luther Walked. Forum Hall, K-State Union
Response: Lutheran-Catholic Dialogue

Tuesday, November 1, 12:00 noon
Film: Where Luther Walked. Room 213, K-State Union
Response: Dr. Robert Linder, KSU Department of History

Wednesday, November 2, 7:00 p.m.
Film: Bonhoeffer — The holocaust and the church. Little Theater, K-State Union
Response: KSU faculty and students

Thursday, November 3, 7:00 p.m.
Film: Namibia—A Cry for Freedom — Apartheid in South Africa and the Church.
Little Theater, K-State Union
Response: KSU faculty and African students

Sunday, November 6—All Saints Sunday
Morning Worship: Sinners and Saints
First Lutheran: 8:30 and 11:00. Adult Forum: 9:30. Dr. Joseph Sittler: LSTC
Peace Lutheran: 8:00 and 10:30. Adult Class: 9:15. Bishop Roger Gieschen
St. Luke's Lutheran: 8:15 and 10:45. Adult Class: 9:30. The Rev. Gene Schmidt
Olshburg-Walsburg: 9:30 and 11:00. Bishop Wayne Weissenbuehler
*5:00 p.m.—Panel of Bishops: KSU Union Ballroom
Dr. Joseph Sittler: "The Word of God and the Bible"
The Rev. Gene Schmidt: "Justification by Faith through Grace"
Bishop Wayne Weissenbuehler: "Priesthood of Believers"
Bishop Roger Gieschen: "Freedom and Service"
*6:00 p.m.—Anniversary Reception: Light Buffet, K-State Union Ballroom
*7:30 p.m.—Anniversary Celebration: Forum Hall, K-State Union
Lecture: "Being Christian Today," Dr. Joseph Sittler
Mass choir, Greetings from Bishops, Lutheran Hymn Fest

Monday, November 7
*11:30 a.m.—Discussion: Contemporary issues: Peace, Nuclear Power, Justice
Dialogue with Dr. Joseph Sittler, Cottonwood Room, K-State
Union (luncheon carried from Bluemont Room or Cafeteria)
*7:30 p.m.—All-University Lecture—Forum Hall, K-State Union
Dr. Joseph Sittler: "Christianity's Mission in the '80's"

*Major lectures or events

Speaker
Dr. Joseph Sittler
Distinguished Professor in Residence,
Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago
Delegate, Ecumenical Conference on Faith and Order, World Council of Churches, Lutheran World Federation

Recent publications:
The Care of the Earth, 1964
The Anguish of Preaching, 1967
Essays on Nature and Grace, 1972
Grace Notes and Other Fragments, 1981

Sponsored by Lutheran Campus Ministries at KSU and Local Lutheran Congregations—
First, Peace, St. Luke's—with a grant from Aid Association for Lutherans.

The Grenada invasion

The United States' invasion of Grenada was not an incorrect choice on the part of President Reagan. It was not merely an example of the administration wanting to show some senseless military might. The biggest fault of the invasion was the timing; it took place when the shock of the Beirut attack was still fresh in people's minds.

Reagan contends that the United States invaded to "restore order and democracy," to protect American lives and "to forestall future chaos." Two of these three are good reasons, although we still believe that if democracy is to survive in a foreign nation, it should do so without our military assistance.

There were nearly 1,000 Americans on the island, and with the latest military-led uprising, their safety was in question.

Apparently, however, the main reason for the invasion, and the one which is most believable, is the speculation that Cuba and the Soviet Union plan to use the island as a military installation.

This speculation has some evidence to back it up. For instance, U.S. troops captured 30 Soviet advisers and 600 Cuban soldiers during the invasion. What were they doing there if Grenada was only interested in increased tourism?

Cuban workers were building a new airport large enough to handle major jet traffic; tourist traffic, according to Grenadian officials. The airport is also large enough for military aircraft and American forces seized a large quantity of Soviet-made arms at the airport.

The question now is how long the American troops will stay in Grenada. The answer should be measured in days. While the invasion was justified, the United States needs to be quick about what it plans to do in Grenada and then get out. The Americans need to be evacuated and the threat of a Cuban military strike from Grenada needs to be dealt with.

The people of the United States need to accept the fact that some occasional action is needed to assure peace and safety. With the current world situation heating up and the constant threats of war, our leaders can no longer sit in Washington making threats and expect other countries to give their demands and rebukes any respect. A slap on the wrist is no longer adequate discipline.

However, Reagan is picking up a reputation as a trigger-happy leader in the eyes of many people, here and abroad. The United States has been denounced by Mexico on the floor of the United Nations for the invasion of Grenada. Reagan needs to show that America's intentions are not imperialist in nature, but that our interest lies in making the surrounding areas safe from Soviet threat and influence.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

The student body president

Here are the answers to some questions you may be kicking yourself for not asking:

Q. Who in the heck is Jerry Katlin?
A. Jerry Thomas Katlin was elected to serve the one-year student body president term in February of last year and was inaugurated in March. The 22-year-old Mr. Katlin is from Mission, Kan., and has been at K-State for five years. Presently he is a graduate student in management.

Q. So what is the SBP (student body president) supposed to do anyway? Is he sort of like the "image of a typical K-State student?"

A. No, that would be saying that all K-State students are 5 feet 8 inches tall and have a mustache. Generally the SBP serves in a public relations role; a representative of the students.

Q. Represent the students to whom?

A. To faculty, administration, regents and alumni. Mr. Katlin is a voting member of Faculty Senate. He meets regularly with Duane Acker, University president (the big guy) and Chet Peters, vice president for Student Affairs (are students having affairs?). He goes to Topeka two days each month to meet with the regents and also is a student representative on the regents' Fiscal Affairs Committee. He also attends alumni events through the Alumni Association and the KSU Foundation.

Q. I bet he plays golf, too, right?

A. Yes. But according to his personal golf trainer, Mr. Katlin took up golf with crash course lessons and plays "fair" but is a "fast learner," yet, he might be better off "playing backgammon."

Q. What are the qualifications of holding the title of SBP?

A. You must make speeches to high school groups and introduce campus speakers.

You must travel to exotic and exciting places like Colby, Buller, Topeka, Garden City, Dodge City, Wichita, Ottawa, Kansas City, Moundridge and Hays.

You must professionally shake hands; a firm grip is definitely essential.

You must have a vast amount of patience because you'll be dealing with Student Senate.

Q. I'm confused. There is Student Governing Services, there is Student

EDEE DALKE
Collegian Columnist

Governing Association, and then there is Student Senate. What's what, and how does the SBP fit in?

A. 1) SGS is the title of the office. It had to be called "services" because it does include more than senate — in theory. Besides, it was probably easier to paint two giant S's on their office windows. The office includes legal services, SGA, the student activities coordinator, Associated Students of Kansas (ASK who?) and the Consumer Relations Board. 2) Now, SGA is the association which encompasses all activities of student government. 3) Student Senate, as we all know, is a ruling body within SGA composed of 60 fine, energetic, hard-working representatives who hardly research...er...who research hard to voice the opinions and views of the students, uh-hum.

Now, the SBP is a part of this happy office as president of SGA and is responsible for senate actions (legislative decisions only — not after hours) with veto power over its decisions.

Q. Has he ever used his power?

A. He flexed it once. The Solomon Amendment last April got the mighty veto as he responded to the student input of non-support for the bill. It was the first veto in seven years, so Mr. Katlin's first month in office was definitely scrapbook material. Ah, yes, slap senate with a veto and we're not only "making tracks" over senate, but we're also making history.

Q. Speaking of history, what about his campaign promises?

A. Among the other candidates (by the way, what ever happened to the candidates who weren't elected and had said they'd be involved in student government regardless?) Mr. Katlin campaigned under the slogan of "Keeping the Student in Student Government." Now we need to worry about keeping this student in classes. Mr. Katlin is "on the go" as he must travel, make speeches, keep up on correspondences, attend meetings and respond to day-to-day challenges.

Q. What, does this guy eat Wheaties or something?

A. I'd hate to speculate on that at this point, but about his campaign promises, he said he'd carry through with Holton Hall. We now have a renovated Holton Hall with more service than a gas station; too bad not everyone uses "service" and goes the "self-service" route. He said he'd follow through with picture identification cards, which Acker tried to do but couldn't, and we'll get those picture ID's next spring. He said there should be a sports club council. We have the council, but if we could now get it to do something. He said he'd write a regular column in the Collegian...he said what! He has written four columns, hardly "regular," but maybe he'd like to help cover a senate meeting sometime.

Q. Is there any certain procedure to speak with Mr. Katlin, student body president?

A. Yes. You dial 532-6541, ask for Jerry and tell him what's on your mind. Or you go to the Union and into the SGS office, first floor, walk 20 feet through the doors, and turn left. Walk another 40 feet to the end of the hallway, turn right, and you can talk to him in his office (although SBP's get an office, it's more likely that it's the reserved parking space that attracts people to run for this office each year).

Now, not only does Mr. Katlin say he wants students to come to him, he has made the effort and volunteered to go to them — sending letters offering his time to groups who wish to have him come to their meeting.

Q. What, does he tap dance?

A. Doubtful, but he probably does have a "song and dance" routine worked out for any issue that needs discussion. It just takes the invitation.

Q. So tell me, please, did the student body do a good job voting this guy in office?

A. I'm not real good at compliments — you can get those from your mother. Besides, you wouldn't want me to compromise my objectivity now, would you?

"DON'T FORCE THE U.S. TO CHOOSE BETWEEN SECURITY AND HUMAN RIGHTS — YOU NEVER KNOW, ONE OF THESE DAYS WE JUST MIGHT CHOOSE HUMAN RIGHTS...."

The war on wimps

Pity the American wimp. There aren't many women in the country today who think he deserves a break.

In fact, so detestable is the wimp to the modern woman that feminists and anti-feminists alike have joined in an unwitting alliance against him. As a result, if he's not extinct by Sadie Hawkins Day, he'll surely be in hiding.

We couldn't confirm the war on wimps until sometime last week, when one of this city's well-read throw-away weeklies featured a cover story titled "Wormboys — How to Recognize Those Passive, Unambitious Men."

At first, we thought the story was just another feminist call-to-arms. Basically autobiographical, the article castigates men for a variety of shortcomings, suggesting that they have become spineless, inactive dullards who would profit from a dose of machismo.

Specifically, the author charged that men have defaulted to women the responsibilities of love, breadwinning, housekeeping and child-rearing. Men, she stated, can't make decisions. They can't take action. They've simply become wimps.

"The kind of men I know are men who look to me for leadership. (They are) filled with fear of responsibility," author Deborah Laake wrote. "...the truth is...that in recent years I have not met men who want to share my life in a complete way or who want me to share theirs."

Such talk may have seemed familiar to those who read Esquire magazine's recent story about "When Men Won't Grow Up," which tore into overachieving whiz kids —

MAXWELL GLEN
& CODY SHEARER

the author called them "Peter Pans" — who couldn't maintain a relationship. That one alone surely sent a few guys into therapy.

Indeed, only a clod could have read either story without giving a few moments to a private vote of confidence. So critical were both articles of any shred of personal indecision that, ironically, some of our cockiest friends were rendered anxious heaps of self-doubt. The toll was evident at a local gathering of young professionals last week; when the males in attendance worried openly that they had wormboy tendencies, the women couldn't have been more amused.

Mass male introspection, clearly, isn't only a Washington phenomenon. Many people have suspected for some time that real men don't eat quiche; those who balk at such generalizations would surely approve of any attempt, no matter how futile, to define the New Man.

Nevertheless, there's something a little weird about this new psychosexual exercise. Feminists who criticize men as being wimps are only embracing the ideas of an unlikely sister, Phyllis Schlafly.

Don't believe it? Consider this: If women are dissatisfied with lackluster males, they're only endorsing the assumptions of anti-feminists who have long feared that only a strict society can keep the surly, untamed male from abandoning helpless women and children.

According to Barbara Ehrenreich, author of "The Hearts of Men: American Dreams and the Flight from Commitment," anti-feminists declared war on wimps long before their archrivals realized that there was a problem. Even more than feminists, she says, conservatives believe that men are inherently irresponsible and uninterested in breadwinning.

Of course, conservatives would also say that feminists have only encouraged the new sloth. For the extreme right, birth control, abortion, day care, no-fault divorce and full-time work — practices that feminists hold dear — have simply enabled men to dump everyday burdens on women's shoulders. Unfortunately, the Schlaflys would also contend that the only proper response is for the woman to adapt.

However strange the anti-wimp coalition, its implications for men are clear enough. After a decade of cultivating a taste for chablis and croissant, it's back to beef and brew. Sell the Toyota; get a Pontiac. Goodbye, Mr. Sensitive; hello, Action Man.

The pendulum is swinging back from Phil Donahue to John Wayne; real men don't eat quiche and real women don't like wimps.

Letters

Guardians Angels would provide safety...

Editor,

Due to the increasing crime rate (i.e. rape, mugging) in our area, I have come to the conclusion we need to help our citizens in trying to stop or decrease crime. I went to a meeting of men against rape and proposed starting a chapter of the Guardian Angels. In a sense, I was laughed out of the meeting.

I left the meeting with some disappointment with the way those present acted toward my proposal. I have talked to several students, mainly girls who would be victims of such crimes, and I have the backing of these women. I also have talked to several area businesses and they want to back us with donations for our uniforms.

I propose to get an escort service and roving patrol started to help citizens in distress. An open telephone number will be provided for people who would like our service.

The presence of our group walking on campus and throughout other areas would give us great public relations. I want it known to the citizens that if our presence is on the streets, people feeling uncomfortable with their surroundings could come up to us and we will take them where they would like to go.

People interested in volunteering for the group will have to go through a screening process to make sure they fit the criteria to be in the group.

Kevin Crumpler
Senior in business

...as would leaving porchlight on all night

Editor,

Art Stone, K-State chief of police, says a greater percentage of crimes are committed at night. He believes if more areas were lighted, crimes would also decrease. He said, "let's face it; a person is not nearly as likely to break into a house if the yard is lighted, where a passer-by or if anyone looking out of a window can spot them."

Caroline Peine, crisis counselor at the Women's Resource Center, said, "more rapes are committed at night due to the fact that darkness makes it easier for the rapist to rape a person." She states that although most rape is premeditated, poor lighting just enhances the situation. She believes a better-lighted neighborhood would be a positive step against rapists.

In an attempt to reduce crime and possible rapes and assaults, the residents of Jardine Terrace were asked to keep their porchlights on from dusk to dawn. According to Art Stone, crime rate was reduced by 75 percent. The cost of keeping the porchlight on each night came to a total of $.86 per person for the month.

In an attempt to reduce crime and rapes for the city of Manhattan, I propose the city commissioners advocate that the citizens of Manhattan leave their porchlights on at night. This would be a responsible step each person could take to try to ensure safety for their neighborhood. The cost of keeping one 40-watt lightbulb on each night in the city of Manhattan from dusk to dawn would be one dollar per month.

I urge each of you living off campus to take an active step now by keeping your porchlight on at night and thus initiating one more positive, responsible step in an attempt to keep your neighborhood safe.

Charlyn C. Beamer
Junior in pre-law

Medical students lose out in Grenada invasion

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The several hundred U.S. medical students in Grenada, whose safety was a prime consideration in the American invasion, are among thousands of would-be doctors who have gone abroad after being rebuffed at home.

For decades, frustrated Americans have pursued their dream of a medical degree in Guadalajara, Mexico; Bologna, Italy, and the Philippines.

But in recent years the trail has led most often to the Caribbean, where schools such as the American-run St. George's University Medical School on Grenada have sprung up in recent years. For Americans, they offer one distinct advantage: instruction in English.

St. George's was founded in 1977 by Charles Modica, 36, a Bayshore, N.Y., lawyer who was himself frustrated in attempts to gain admission to a U.S. medical school years ago. Modica raised $5.5 million from backers including physicians whose children had been rejected by American schools.

Alvin Bucksbaum, a North Woodmere, N.Y., lawyer and head of the 700-family Parents' Network of St. George's school said Tuesday, "Perhaps if the money that's going into this action today (the U.S. invasion) would have gone into opening doors up for American boys and girls statewide, we wouldn't have to send them to foreign medical schools."

"It's a shame there aren't enough places for all those who are determined to become doctors and have the ability," said Bucksbaum, who has a son enrolled at St. George's, but who is not on the island. The school's third-year students, including his son, normally take their clinical studies at hospitals in the United States and Great Britain.

"It's been an excellent education..." Bucksbaum said. "I would hope that the school goes back to normal. These are very determined young men and women who really went through a lot to get a medical education."

St. George's and rival Caribbean institutions are run for profit and are not accredited by U.S. agencies. They advertise frequently in The New York Times' Sunday "Week in Review" section. St. George's ads boast about its graduates' record on a test required of foreign medical school students seeking residencies in the United States — the Educational Commission on Foreign Medical Graduates test.

Dr. Ray Casterline, vice president of that Philadelphia-based commission, said that in 1982, 218 Americans from St. George's took the test and 79 percent, or 173, passed. Only 33 percent of all Americans and aliens who took the test passed.

By passing that test, Americans and others who study abroad can secure residencies in American hospitals. Some Americans also gain transfer into U.S. institutions as third-year students by passing an exam given by the National Board of Medical Examiners in Philadelphia.

Casterline estimated that at any given time, "at least 15,000 to 20,000 Americans are outside the United States studying" in 130 to 140 medical schools. The attrition rate is "very high," he added.

In last Sunday's New York Times, the University of St. Lucia School of Medicine stressed in its ad that it was "in stable democratic St. Lucia." The American University of the Caribbean emphasized that its medical school in Montserrat, British West Indies, is in "a politically stable democratic British Crown Colony of the United Kingdom, which assures students a peaceful and uninterrupted education."

The American Association of Medical Colleges, the organization of 127 accredited U.S. schools, frowns on Americans going abroad to get medical degrees.

The U.S. medical schools reject half of the approximately 35,000 students who apply each year.

A federal advisory panel warned several years ago that the United States was producing too many doctors. The government has cut out some subsidies and put pressure on U.S. schools not to expand.

Hacky happy
Brad Boyd, junior in microbiology, plays a game of hacky sack with Mike Boisvert, senior in wildlife biology, on the Union lawn Wednesday afternoon. The sunny weather is expected to continue for the next couple of days.

Official offers prison renovation plan to state

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Corrections Secretary Michael Barbara said Wednesday he will recommend the 1984 Legislature provide $2.5 million for a program to quickly create space at existing state institutions for about 400 non-violent prisoners by next summer.

His plan calls for establishment of pre-release centers at Winfield, Salina and Topeka, renovation of a dormitory at the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing and changes to permit the Larned State Hospital to treat more inmates with mental illness.

As part of a broader plan to ease prison overcrowding, the corrections chief said he will ask lawmakers for $3.8 million to fund construction of two 64-bed minimum security honor camps during the next fiscal year, which begins in July 1984.

Barbara will outline his proposals Thursday to the Legislature's Special Committee on Corrections and will put a special emphasis on the need for the $2.5 million.

"We've got to ensure that the Legislature gives us the money early as a supplemental so we can get some additional beds by summer," Barbara said Wednesday.

The population in the state prison system is near 3,600 now and is expected to swell even more in the future. Barbara contends that the overcrowding must be partially alleviated by summer or there could be inmate problems in the summer heat.

The heart of his plan calls for renovation of vacant buildings at state mental institutions at Winfield, Salina and Topeka for pre-release centers. They would house nearly 300 inmates initially, and could be established at a "minimal cost," Barbara told his Advisory Committee on Prison Overcrowding where he unveiled the proposal on Wednesday.

Prisoners would enter the centers 60-90 days before they are scheduled to be released from prison. Programs would be offered to prepare them for return to their communities.

Barbara's plan for pre-release centers calls for renovation and conversion of two buildings at the Winfield State Hospital at a cost of $600,000, a dormitory at the Kansas Vocational Rehabilitation Center in Salina costing $229,000, and a former high school building at the Topeka State Hospital costing $500,000. The three institutions are under the control of the Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services.

The Topeka facility would handle about 65 inmates, the Winfield pre-release center would house 144 inmates initially, and the Salina facility would handle 64 inmates. Both men and women would be in the centers.

The renovation for the pre-release centers would cost about $1.5 million including all planning expenses. There would be some additional funding needed for education and recreation facilities.

In addition, Barbara said he will recommend that lawmakers provide $111,000 to renovate an outside minimum-security dormitory at the Lansing prison which could provide 127 beds.

Barbara said he will ask lawmakers for the $2.5 million as a supplemental allocation to the current budget of the Department of Corrections. The 1984 Legislature convenes in January, and Barbara said he hopes the additional space will be ready for inmates by next July.

CANCER CAN BE BEAT

Q. What's all the fuss about?

A. National Shakespeare Company's
Much Ado About Nothing
Monday, Nov. 7, 8 p.m.

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office,
M-F noon to 5 p.m., 532-6428

Peanuts any way you like 'em

- Roasted & Salted in the shell
- Roasted No Salt in the shell
- Raw in the shell
- Shelled Roasted Salted
- Shelled Raw

FRESH LOCAL CIDER only $2.69 gallon delicious hot or cold!
-OUR SPECIALTY- FINE FRUITS AND FRESH VEGETABLES open daily 9-8.

SAVE $$ We package our ownz
HUGE SELECTION
Trail Mixes Dried Fruit Granolas FRESH NUTS PASTA

Westside Market
just west of town on K-18 by the Holidome

N • A • U • T • I • L • U • S

You want it, you need it, you like it, you can afford it, why not have it

1. The Workout... on the finest equipment in the world. The results are automatic. Nautilus is the only type of exercise based upon a solid foundation of facts, undeniable laws of physics, and established principles of physiology. Nautilus has been sanctioned by professionals in every physical fitness discipline, including the medical profession.

Time: 30 minutes

Nautilus
Fitness Center
where a minimum of time gives you the maximum in results 776-1654
1122 Laramie Aggieville

MID SEASON

SUPER SALE
THIS WEEK THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY

Special Selection Womens Dresses 20% off Reg. Price 3 DAYS ONLY	Cute &amp; Warm Knock Around Fall Jackets 30% off Reg. Price 3 DAYS ONLY	Collections Womens Sportswear includes Fire Island, Devon, Country Suburbans, Koret 20 to 30% off Reg. Price 3 DAYS ONLY	Entire Stock Misses &amp; Junior Jeans 15% off Reg. Price 3 DAYS ONLY
ENTIRE STOCK College Town Coordinates 20 to 30% off Reg. Price Excellent Interview Suits 3 DAYS ONLY		ENTIRE STOCK Childrens Clothing 15% off Reg. Price Excludes Scout Supplies 3 DAYS ONLY
Special Collection Knit Leg Warmers 30% off Reg. Price 3 DAYS ONLY	Special Sale Womens Classic Twill Trouser Reg. $34.00 NOW $23.99 Sizes 5 to 15 3 DAYS ONLY	OPEN UNTIL 8:30 p.m. THURSDAY Broune's DOWNTOWN MANHATTAN

Briefly

By the Associated Press

Judge favors dropping draft charge

MADISON, Wis. — A U.S. magistrate has recommended dismissal of draft resistance charges against a local man, saying the regulations were adopted without allowing 60 days for public comment.

"In its apparent haste to have registration regulations in place by July 21, 1980, Selective Service breached its own notice-and-comment rule," U.S. Magistrate William Gansner told U.S. District Judge James E. Doyle Sr. on Tuesday.

The regulations were published July 18, 1980, 32 days after the first publication in the Federal Register, he said.

Gillam Kerley, 22, of Madison was indicted in September 1982 and pleaded "not guilty by reason of sanity."

Anti-smut leader urges boycott

DALLAS — An organizer of an anti-smut group, the National Federation for Decency, is urging a boycott of 7-Eleven stores for selling girlie magazines.

At a "rally for decency" Tuesday night in the Dallas Convention Center, the Rev. Donald Wildmon told about 3,000 supporters that 7-Eleven stores, owned by Dallas-based Southland Corp., are "the biggest sellers of pornography in the country."

Wildmon later mentioned Playboy and Penthouse magazines as examples of what he considers pornography. He praised the Winn-Dixie and Kroger grocery chains for keeping such magazines off their shelves.

Southland spokesman Allen Liles responded Wednesday that "7-Eleven has, in our opinion, the strictest policy on adult magazines of any retailer in America." He said such magazines are kept behind counters in a covered rack and are available only on request.

Juror may be sent bill for trial

GOLDEN, Colo. — A juror whose disregard of judicial instructions nullified a murder trial may be sent a bill for the $10,000 to $15,000 cost of the wasted trial, officials say.

Deputy District Attorney Jack Byron said Tuesday his office was considering asking the court to order juror Carolyn Clark to pay for the cost of Joachim F. Niemand's first trial in August, when he was convicted of slaying his wife and her lover last Christmas Eve.

District Judge Winston Wolvington nullified the trial after Mrs. Clark admitted she used a legal dictionary to look up some terms used in the trial, including "atrocity" and "premeditation."

While admitting he did not know if Mrs. Clark's action affected other jurors' judgment, the judge said they clearly violated his instruction not to do outside research or reading about the case.

Mississippi men win 'chess' match

NEW YORK — Three Mississippi men and their computer program named Cray Blitz beat 21 other entrants from North America and Europe to win the World Computer Chess Championship Tournament on Wednesday.

The program — written by Robert Hyatt, Albert Gower and Harry Nelson, all of Hattiesburg — was best in the contest, winning four games and playing to a stalemate on the fifth, said Jerry Graham, an assistant tournament director.

Tying for second place were Tony Sherzer of Hoffman Estates, Ill., and his program, Bebe; and Tony Marsland, of Edmonton, Alberta, designer of the program Awit, Graham said. The second-place finishers each won four games and lost one.

The competitors all played five games since Saturday, each lasting four to five hours. The competition, held at a Manhattan hotel, was sponsored by the Association for Computing Machinery, Graham said.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

- |                       |                  |                     |                        |
|-----------------------|------------------|---------------------|------------------------|
| ACROSS         | 36 Performed     | 55 Oboe part        | 8 Teheran native       |
| 1 Swiss peaks         | 37 Army officer  | DOWN         | 9 Army officer         |
| 5 Rotating part       | 40 Costa —       | 1 Distantly         | 10 Allow               |
| 8 Key                 | 41 Boutiques     | 2 Citrus fruit      | 11 TV's Ron —          |
| 12 Decree             | 45 Verve         | 3 Ache              | 19 Tax org.            |
| 13 Actress            | 47 Cut off       | 4 Flashing lights   | 21 Unusual             |
| MacGraw               | 49 Drill         | 5 Resort            | 23 Pun response        |
| 14 Square dance       | 50 Tune          | island              | 24 Paddy crop          |
| 15 Turkish title      | 51 Vigilant time | 6 In the man-ner of | 25 Toboggan's relative |
| 16 Dads               | 52 Different     | 7 Lost              | 26 Cry                 |
| 17 Bohemian           | 53 Plateau       |                     | 27 Jai —               |
| 18 Pierre             | 54 Campaigned    |                     | 28 Army officers       |
| Augu.te —             |                  |                     | 32 Thief               |
| 20 Stretched out      |                  |                     | 33 Fall month          |
| 22 Army officers      |                  |                     | 35 Catchall abbr.      |
| 26 Salary             |                  |                     | 36 Hill insect         |
| 29 Disencumber        |                  |                     | 38 Utah mountain range |
| 30 Be sick            |                  |                     | 39 Quaking tree        |
| 31 Pub orders         |                  |                     | 42 Part to play        |
| 32 Turf               |                  |                     | 43 Gaelic              |
| 33 Fairy tale starter |                  |                     | 44 Spore               |
| 34 Author             |                  |                     | 45 Shade tree          |
| Fleming               |                  |                     | 46 Deceit              |
| 35 Greek letter       |                  |                     | 48 Eggs                |

Avg. solution time: 27 min.

MOA ARIA
BOWL AMORE
ARNEL SALADS
PASSESTHERUCK
ADE GUESS COE
JEER DENY
FAUST CRUDE
DEBT CAEN
IRA ROOST HAS PASSESTHROUGH
LENNIE AIMEE
DATES CLOD
PERT TYR

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP

10-27

JGBEB PGB VDFA ABSTSALVP ISFTW
OB PHMLDA 40 JLDLV — H OBW ESIM.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — SLACK DECK HANDS ON OLD CLIPPER SHIP PLAYED CARDS ALL DAY.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: A equals G.

National Society of Professional Engineers

Applications available at Ambassador table in Durland Wed. & Thurs.

FIND OUT HOW TO:

- ★ ADVANCE YOUR CAREER OPPORTUNITIES
- ★ BE A MOVIE STAR (THROUGH MATHCOUNTS)
- ★ BE INVOLVED WITH THE ENG. COLLEGE OFFICER ELECTIONS ON TUES., NOV. 1 8:30 DU 152

QUESTIONS CALL GENE RUSSELL 539-9422

GET FRAMED!

Have your picture taken for Royal Purple

Today:

Marlatt Hall 8:30-5:30

Tomorrow:

Marlatt Hall 8:30-5:30

Off-Campus people can still get pictures taken Oct. 10-28

Union 209

539-5229

Bring your stamped fee card.

FREE FISH

$10.00 Value

with Purchase of Any Complete Aquarium Set Up 20 gal or Larger

During The Entire Month of October

FOUNTAIN FALLS TROPICAL FISH SHOP

2007 Ft. Riley Blvd.
539-1676

M-S: 10:30-6:00
Sun 12:00-5:00

APPLICATIONS for Spring Collegian Editor & Advertising Manager

HEAR YE!
HEAR YE!

Due in Kedzie 103 by 4 p.m., Friday, Nov. 4.
APPLY NOW!

A little good news goes a Long Distance.

Land a job for next summer? Call home! Your parents will relish the thought of you making money, as opposed to spending it.

Get a good grade on a paper? Parents love to see proof that they raised a smart kid.

You don't need a big event to call home. Even a little good news can go a long, long way. And nobody's more eager to hear about it than your family.

You can call anyone in Kansas between 11 pm Friday and 5pm Sunday, and talk 10 minutes, for $1.68*. Or less, depending on where you call.

So go ahead. When you've done something good, share the good news!

Reach out and touch someone.

Southwestern Bell

*Price applies to calls dialed One-Plus without operator assistance. Same rate applies from 11pm to 8am every night. Tax not included.

Business burglarized

Sometime late Wednesday night, Oct. 5 or early Thursday morning, Oct. 6, Kershaw's Sand Plant, located just south of Manhattan, was burglarized.

The suspect cut the padlock on the entrance gate and drove inside the compound. There the suspect cut another padlock, gaining access to a metal storage building, and removed various automotive type tools.

Among the items taken were one three-fourths-inch drive socket set, 1 1/2-inch drive socket set, one set of combination wrenches, 1 1/2-horsepower grinder, four tires, mag wheels and other miscellaneous tools.

It is believed the suspect was driving a vehicle with three snow tires and one street tire on the left front wheel.

Once the suspect obtained the items, he closed up the metal building and the gate before leaving the scene.

Anyone with any information on this or any other case is urged to call Crime Stoppers at 539-7777. Your call will remain anonymous, and you may qualify for a cash reward of up to $1,000.

Marine crises spur growth in enlistment

By The Associated Press

The din of bombs and gunfire in Lebanon and Grenada has sounded a call to arms for gung-ho teen-agers and former GIs, who are surprising Marine recruiters with their fervor to enlist and join the fight.

"Calls have been piling in like you wouldn't believe," said Lt. Col. Robert Tilley, who is in charge of 43 Marine recruiting stations across central and southern California.

One new recruit was Scott Mapstead, 18, of Lakewood, Calif., who asked if he could improve his chances for getting overseas duty if he listed his top three choices as "Beirut, Beirut, Beirut."

Mapstead said that as the death count in Sunday's terrorist bombing of the Marine garrison climbed above 200, "it really upset me."

"Those are a lot of our brothers," he said. "I feel they are my brothers."

The Marine recruiter in Buffalo, N.Y., Gunnery Sgt. Bob Lyons, said Wednesday he thought the disaster in Lebanon and Tuesday's invasion of Grenada by Marines and Army Rangers would have a chilling effect on enlistments, but the opposite appeared to be true.

"There is still a dying breed of gung-ho kids who are still patriotic," Lyons said.

Recruiters in some cities — including Providence, R.I., Detroit, Atlanta, Omaha, Neb., Atlanta, Phoenix, Ariz., and Denver — said it was too early to tell if this week's events would affect enlistments.

But in other cities — notably Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Miami, Evansville, Ind., and Austin, Texas — recruiters said they were deluged with applicants, including many former leathernecks and GI's who haven't fired a rifle since World War II.

On the other hand, two potential Marines called the recruiting office on Chicago's South Side on Monday to say they had changed their mind about signing.

DARK HORSE

TAVERN

Thursday
$ Dollar Days $
$1 Cover
$1.25 Pitchers
7-Midnight

Game Day open at 10:00 a.m. with build your own Sandwich Bar!

619 N. Manhattan

STUDENT-FACULTY DANCE CONCERT

Kansas State University
Dance Program
Department of Physical Education,
Dance, and Leisure Studies

Oct. 28 & 29
8:00 p.m.
Manhattan Middle School

$4.00

(Tickets Available at the Door)

NOW OPEN

IF in need of . . .

Cards
Specialty Gifts
Stationery
Desk Accessories
Unique Pastries
OPENING SPECIAL
Halloween Make-up

We have . . .

the answer
gifts · cards · stationery

at: FirstBank Center
1812 Claflin
Manhattan, KS 66502

Plant fungus latest suspect in search for AIDS source

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — AIDS may be caused by a plant fungus that mimics a drug used to lower immunity in organ transplant patients, federal scientists say.

"We are working around the clock on it," said Dr. Thomas Folks, one of the researchers. "We are very excited about it."

But a report by the research group emphasized, "These results are extremely preliminary."

The fungus, which has never been known to cause disease in human beings, has been found in the blood of victims of AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome. It produces a substance that is chemically similar to cyclosporin, a new drug used to temporarily lower natural resistance in transplant patients.

Unusual forms of the fungus, called Thermoplasma crustaceus, were found in the blood of three AIDS patients by researchers from the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases in Bethesda, Md. The work was described in a letter in Thursday's edition of the New England Journal of Medicine.

AIDS destroys the body's ability to fight off disease. No one knows its cause, and the fungus is the latest suspect to be identified. Many other scientists say they think a virus is the most likely culprit.

Homosexuals, Haitians, abusers of injectable drugs and hemophiliacs are most likely to get AIDS. It apparently is spread by sexual contact, contaminated needles and blood transfusions, not casual contact.

Since AIDS appeared in 1979, it has struck more than 2,500 people and claimed more than 1,000 lives, according to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"Our main interest is to get this to the scientific community and let them take a shot at it," Folks said in an interview.

BEER

Sold at cost plus 5%

Revco Drug Store
Village Plaza

comprehensive health associates

- free pregnancy tests
- outpatient abortion services
- alternatives counseling/referals
- gynecology
- contraception

1415 & Roe Overland Park 642-3100

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity

- Rep. — TOM SEELE
- Supplemental Retirement Annuities
- Investment Options
- Free Transfer Privileges
- State Deferred Compensation
- Life Insurance

1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 913/276-7095

Flash Bash

83'

You don't even need to close your eyes to feel the music at Flash Bash '83.

On Friday, November 4th from 8:00 p.m. to 12:00 p.m. at 5th & Houston. For only $4 you can feel the music, drink all the beer and soda you want, and witness the battle of the air bands.

Door prizes, courtesy of Coors will be announced all night by D.J. Ed Klimek and the picture man Tom Hawk will be there to capture your fun memories.

Advance tickets may be purchased in the Union on Nov. 2, 3, 4.

All proceeds create student scholarships because we are:

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY STUDENT FOUNDATION

DON'T FORGET!

Next week is the last week to get your Royal Purple picture taken.

Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. Hours are 8:30-12:30 and 1:30-5:30.

539-5229

GET THE POINT

The Point Is . . .
KSU vs. O.U.

Friday, Oct. 27, 7 p.m. Ahearn

Everyone admitted for 25¢

GET EXCITED ABOUT KSU VOLLEYBALL

Σ A E • Σ Φ E

PRESENT THEIR 4TH ANNUAL . . .
Busch Bowl

OCT. 28TH, 7:00 P.M., GRIFFITH FIELD

THANKS TO . . .

CAMPBELL DISTRIBUTORS INC.,
BALFOUR HOUSE, WOODY'S &

Α Δ Π	Α Ξ Δ	Δ Δ Δ
Σ Σ Σ	Χ Ω	Κ Δ
Γ Φ Β	Π Β Φ	Α Χ Ω

Student senators, aides plan debates

By DAVE MANCHON
Collegian Reporter

Campus debates between students enrolled in the Forensics Participation Class will begin Nov. 1 and continue through Dec. 7. The class is offered for credit only to student senators and senate aides.

"In the past the class consisted of lectures concerning parliamentary procedure. Recently, a change in the class format has led way for the upcoming campus debates," Dwaine Hemphill, speech instructor and debate coach, said. He said requiring debates will be more productive than a lecture format.

"In 1863, literary societies sprung up on campus which provided weekly campus debates between groups," Hemphill said. The literary societies soon died out because classes in the areas of writing, music and debate met the need.

Since then K-State has had only intercollegiate debates.

Three basic formats will be used in the upcoming debates. They are Lincoln-Douglas, two-person teams and three-person teams.

The Lincoln-Douglas format is a one-on-one debate in which one person will speak in favor of a resolution and one will speak in opposition.

"In the two-person teams, each person will give their speech, negative or affirmative, then one rebuttal speech per team will be allowed," Hemphill said.

The three-person team format is the same except for the size of the team.

"The senators got to choose what format they wanted to debate," Hemphill said. He said grades will not depend on winning or losing but on participation.

"The best evaluation is the audience evaluation," Hemphill said. "There will be four types of audience evaluation." The first is change of opinion, in which the audience members are asked after the debate whether their former opinion was changed by the debate. The second is a basic win-lose form filled out by the audience.

"The last two, audience movement and heckle are probably the most interesting because they actively involve the audience," Hemphill said.

"In the audience movement evaluation, the audience will be instructed to sit on the side they agree with. After each speech the audience will be given the option of moving to the other side," Hemphill said. He said this could be discouraging if the debater notices the entire audience is on the other side.

"Heckle has two basic ground rules: no profanity and no shouting down the speaker," Hemphill said. "Everything else goes."

The senators will have total freedom in their topic choice," Hemphill said. He said some debates will be humorous and others serious, depending on the topic.

"I do encourage them to debate campus issues, but I don't require it," Hemphill said.

Two national issues will be discussed during the debates and will deal with "Drug Use by Professional Athletes" and "Martin Luther King Holiday vs. U.S. Immigration Policy." Other topics include denying parking permits to females, the drinking age and the greek little sister program.

"The debates, which are open to the public, are an expansion of the senators' functions," Hemphill said. Although he is uncertain about the response to the debates, Hemphill said he believes he debates will give the senators practice in public advocacy.

"Most importantly the debates have the potential to increase student awareness and possibly involvement in campus issues," he said.

Legislators review firemen's fund

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee said Wednesday it's time the Legislature took on the state's firefighters and ended what he and others see as the firemen's "benefits slush fund."

Rep. Bill Bunten, a Topeka Republican, heads the interim Ways and Means Committee, which is reviewing the Firemen's Relief Act and the fund it created 88 years ago to provide health and death benefits for firefighters.

The fund, which Bunten thinks outlived its original purpose long ago, is used today to give firemen extra benefits ranging from supplemental medical care to $50,000 life insurance policies to paid leave time, based on records of what the Wichita and Topeka Firemen's Relief Associations have spent their money on.

It's also been used to pay for wart removal, getting teeth fixed and treatment of allergies.

"It's just one of those things that started out in 1895 as a good idea, but it's all changed and it's no longer needed," Bunten said in an interview.

"It just shows how difficult it is to change something, even if it no longer has merit."

The law imposed a two percent tax on fire insurance premiums, with the proceeds distributed to local fire departments, both organized and volunteer, in the cities or districts in which the insured property is located. Fire departments in the big cities get most of the money.

The original aim was to generate funds to buy health, life and retirement benefits for firefighters because cities with paid fire departments didn't provide many benefits in those days and members of volunteer departments had no benefits.

Now, the two percent tax produces more than $2 million annually. The money is distributed by the insurance companies writing the fire protection policies to the local associations, under supervision of the state Insurance Department.

Even the $35,000 it costs the Insurance Department to keep the records of the collections and distributions isn't paid out of the fund. It comes from the state general fund.

The firemen's relief associations have banked a lot of the money over the years. Reports Bunten obtained show the Wichita Firemen's Relief Association had $1.3 million in the bank as of Jan. 1, 1982, and the Topeka Firemen's Relief Association had $547,000.

Statewide, there are 441 of these local associations, and collectively they have between $14 million and $15 million in reserves, Bunten said.

The Insurance Department asked the Legislature last session for authority to pay the cost of administration out of the fund. The House Ways and Means Committee looked at it, and wondered why the state had to foot the bill on administration if the associations had so much money in the bank.

The committee will consider its options at a Nov. 16 meeting and perhaps decide on a recommendation to the 1984 session, opening Jan. 9.

Those options, Bunten said, are:
— Do nothing.
— Repeat the act and abolish the firemen's relief fund.

— Reduce the amount of the tax, perhaps to one percent.

— Distribute the funds differently.
— Keep the fund, but make paid, fulltime fire departments ineligible to receive any of the proceeds and use them only to provide benefits to volunteer firefighters.

"My first thought was to eliminate it altogether, but there may be a justification for keeping it to provide benefits for the small, volunteer fire departments," he said.

Bunten said the public pays for it in the form of higher insurance premiums. The companies just add the two percent to the premium cost.

The Topeka legislator and his cohorts on the Ways and Means Committees of both houses know they are taking a stick to a hornet's nest in challenging the firefighters on the relief fund.

"They came up here in droves to protest last session," said Bunten. "They were all in here, steely-eyed, today. They've got a good thing going, but there isn't any rationale for it at all."

Pre-Halloween Party at Lords 'n Ladys
$2.00 off any service to anyone wearing a mask.
Friday, October 28
Witch's Brew & Treats For All

REDKEN NEXUS
776-5651 210 Humboldt

"BEER BASH"
Fri., Oct. 28
$6 at the door
Dance to
"Southern Star"
All Draw Beer Free
Mixed Drinks $1.00
Sponsored by Liederkrantz
Alma, KS

BALLARD'S BACKROOM SPECIALS!!

Ladies Fashion Sweat Suits $16<sup>95</sup>
(reg. to $22.95)

Crewnecks & sweatpants $5<sup>00</sup>
(reg. $8.50)

Topstitch Football Jerseys
and Baseball Undershirts $4<sup>00</sup>

Ballard's
IN AGGIEVILLE

"UPC... We do it right!"

UPCOMING EVENTS

Thursday, Oct. 27

Issues & Ideas—LTAI—"The U.S. Stake in the Philippines," Linda Richter, 12 noon.
Kaleidoscope—Das Boot: LT 3:30 p.m. & FH 7:30 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 28

Arts—Midday Arts—Halloween Make-up Demonstration: Courtyard 12 noon.
Feature Films—Tootsie: FH 7 & 9:30 p.m.
Feature Films—Alien: FH 12 midnight.

Saturday, Oct. 29

Kaleidoscope—To Have and Have Not: FH 2 p.m.
Feature Films—Tootsie: FH 7 & 9:30 p.m.
Feature Films—Alien: FH 12 midnight.

Sunday, Oct. 30

Kaleidoscope—To Have and Have Not: FH 2 & 7 p.m.
Outdoor Rec—Trapshoot: Tuttle Creek Trap Park, 2 p.m.

Monday, Oct. 31

Arts—"Assemblages by Dennis Teepe": Union Art Gallery thru Nov. 18

Tuesday, Nov. 1

Coffeehouse—Nooner—Jeff Howard and Andre Kelley, "An Afternoon of Song": Catskeller 12 noon.
Issues & Ideas—"Where Luther Walked," with Professor Robert Linder. Co-sponsored with Lutheran Campus Ministries: Union Rm. 213, 12 noon.

Wednesday, Nov. 2

Kaleidoscope—The Chosen: FH 7:30 p.m.

Reminder

Stray Cats tickets available Monday, Friday from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. in Union 1st Floor Box Office. Ticket prices: $10, $9.50, $9.
Trapshooting sign up continues through Friday, Oct. 28 at 4 p.m. in the Activities Center and at the Trap Park on the day of the shoot.

Let's Talk About . . .

THE U.S. STAKE IN THE PHILIPPINES

By Linda Richter
Assistant Professor
Political Science
FREE ADMISSION
TODAY, Noon,
K-State Union Catskeller

k-state union
upc issues & ideas

MID DAY ARTS
K-STATE PLAYERS
HALLOWEEN MAKEUP DEMO
NOON Fri Oct 28
K-STATE UNION
COURT YARD

HAPPY HALLOWEEN!

k-state union
upc arts

TO HAVE AND HAVE NOT

Sat., Oct. 29
2:00 p.m.
Sun., Oct. 30
2:00 & 7:00 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.50
Rated G

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

Das Boot

The other side of World War II.

Thursday, Oct. 27
3:30 Little Theatre
7:30 Forum Hall
$1.50
Rated R

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

Friday & Saturday
Oct. 28 & 29
7 & 9:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.50
Rated PG

k-state union
upc feature films

Friday & Saturday
Oct. 28 & 29
12 midnight
Forum Hall
$1.50
Rated R

k-state union
upc feature films

k-state union
program council

Crime conference to focus on corrections

By SUZANNE LARKIN
Collegian Reporter

The Kansas Council on Crime and Delinquency is scheduled to hold its 12th annual conference Saturday in Leavenworth.

The conference, scheduled from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at St. Mary College, will feature eight workshops addressing current corrections issues. The theme for the conference is, "Opportunities in Corrections for the '80s."

Two Manhattan citizens will serve as moderators during the conference. Frank McCoy, director of the Riley County Community Corrections Center, will moderate on the topic of "Community Corrections: a Record of Success." Sue Rieger, assistant director for the Women's Resource Center at K-State, will make a presentation about "Women in Prison: the Invisible Minority."

"The KCC&D seeks other alternatives to sending all criminals to prisons," said Rosalys Rieger, board member of the KCC&D and organizer of the conference. The focus of these alternatives revolves around the idea of community corrections, she said.

"For (class) D&E felons (felons who have been convicted of non-violent crimes), not murderers and rapists, it is more economical and effective to have these criminals serve their time well supervised, yet, out of prison," Rieger said. "While these criminals are serving time working in and for the public, they are providing the victims with restitution."

An extended program of community corrections is needed in Kansas, Rieger said.

"Six or seven counties in Kansas are active in community corrections. There are a lot of positive steps which can come out of these programs if more people would learn about community corrections and how these programs work. We could accomplish much more," Rieger added.

"Over all, though, we have had remarkably good community support, especially in Manhattan," she said.

Money is used more effectively and victims can vent their anger in the community corrections program.

"It costs approximately $50,000 a year for each bed in a prison, but with community corrections, this cost is greatly reduced and the criminal reimburses the victim while serving time by working," Rieger said.

"Victims often come face to face with the criminal and express their anger for the illegal act committed; in turn, benefiting the victim and criminal," Rieger said.

"Maximum security prisons will always be needed, but with the work of community corrections by organizations such as the Jaycees and the Kiwanis clubs, for example, new aspects of prison reform can be explored," Rieger added.

According to McCoy, the program is extremely successful.

Man fights extradition order to face 'kiddie dope' charges

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The president of a New York laboratory firm facing felony charges of advertisement and sale of "kiddie dope" in Kansas is fighting extradition that would return him to Harvey County District Court for trial, a state official said Wednesday.

Attorney General Robert Stephan announced that Perry Krape, and his corporation PDK Labs, Inc., of Ronkonkoma, New York, have been charged in district court in Newton with four counts of mail-order advertisement and sale of simulated controlled substances.

However, Krape was served arrest papers Monday and is now fighting extradition to the Sunflower State for prosecution.

The 1981 Kansas Legislature passed a law prohibiting advertisement or sale of the simulated drugs. The pills are called "kiddie dope" because they appear identical to amphetamines and other illegal substances sold on the street but usually contain nothing more than caffeine.

Stephan said two of the charges facing Krape and his firm are for sales of the phony amphetamines to a minor, which constitutes a class E felony in Kansas.

FCC warns against misuse of ham radios

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission issued a reminder to broadcasters Wednesday that they are not allowed to use amateur radio frequencies to pose questions for news-gathering purposes.

The reminder was issued because of the wide-spread reliance by newsmen on ham radio broadcasts from the island of Grenada, where U.S. Marines led an invasion on Tuesday.

According to the FCC, radio and TV stations are free to monitor ham radio broadcasts and also to air such broadcasts on either a live or delayed basis.

"Broadcasters are cautioned, however, that in covering amateur radio activity, they must not become actively involved in the amateur transmissions," the FCC said.

"That is to say, the broadcaster may not employ an amateur station as it would use a reporter or a translator in order to convey, directly or indirectly, questions which the broadcast station desires to be addressed," the FCC said.

"What we're trying to tell people is that there is a prohibition on the use of amateur radio for business purposes, and news-gathering is a business purpose," said Richard M. Smith, the chief of the FCC's Field Operations Bureau. "The amateur frequencies are reserved for amateurs and they simply can't be used for other purposes. You can't use amateur radio to conduct an interview over-the-air."

The FCC also issued an advisory Wednesday that so-called third-party transmissions are not permitted between the United States and Grenada. A third-party transmission try By third-party transmissions, the FCC is referring to the practice of a ham radio operator relaying a telephone call from a third person to another ham.

Have story
or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

MANHATTAN
SHOE REPAIR
Open daily 8-5:30, Saturday 8-1
Drive-Up Convenience
401 Humboldt 776-1193

CHIROPRACTIC CARE

WE PROVIDE CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS FOR $12.00. OTHER FEES PROVIDED ON REQUEST.

- SPORTS INJURIES • HOME, AUTO & WORK ACCIDENTS
- KSU STUDENT, FACULTY AND STAFF
- BONE, MUSCLE, NERVE AND JOINT DISORDERS

DR. WALDO E. SCHELLENGER
AVENUE CHIROPRACTIC OFFICE
1500 POYNTEZ AVE.
MANHATTAN, KANSAS 537-8305

Thursday
Jack nite
&
Black Velvet
1.50 ea (9-3)

at
COWBOY PALACE

Where it don't make
no difference
209 Poyntz 539-9828
4:00pm to 3:00am

Western & Dress
Boots at Bargain
Prices!

Only
$29<sup>90</sup>
to
$59<sup>90</sup>

Values
to $120.00

221 Poyntz, Downtown
Lady Foot Shoes

MRK'S

Welcome To . . .

1st NITE
THURS!

• 1st Second Draws &
Pitchers

Thurs. 7-10

OPEN SUN. NITES
FOR SANDWICHES
& KURLY K'S!

LET'S TALK HAMBURGERS

Who makes the Best Hamburgers in town? What is the only Restaurant that uses 100% Fresh Ground Beef, not frozen or preformed and serves it on a Toasted Sesame Seed Bun cooked the way you like it?

The Chef Cafe:

"We Get Back To Basics"

CHEF
The 111 S. 4th Cafe

THE BEST OF THE ROCKIES IS YOURS.

Coors

Judo remains an art, sport

By BRENT BAYER
Collegian Reporter

The art of most sports seem to be a thing in the past. But in judo the art remains and the sport is still dignified.

K-State judo member Brady Jones, who also has a third-degree black belt, said the sport still demands a high level of courtesy.

"Bowling is a must. I once disqualified a person in a tournament for refusing to bow to his opponent," he said.

Doug Von Feldt, club secretary and junior in industrial engineering, said judo is practiced as both a religion and an art.

"We practice on developing both the mind and the body," he said.

The judo club was started around 1958, Issac Wakabayashi, club adviser and instructor in electrical engineering, said.

"In 1958, two men came to K-State and started calling all the Orientals in the student directory and asked if they practiced judo," Wakabayashi said.

"That's how I got started with this club and I have continued ever since. I am from Washington and have studied judo in Hawaii and Japan."

Wakabayashi teaches two sections of the class — advanced and beginning. The advanced section consists of mostly club members, Von Feldt said.

"You don't have to be a student to be in the club," Von Feldt said. "About one-half of the club members are not students."

After one semester, a beginner moves to the advanced class and joins the club, Von Feldt said.

To compete in tournaments, members must join the Kansas State

Judo Association and pay a fee, Jones said.

"All tournaments, clinics and events are sponsored by the KSJA and the United States Judo Incorporated. To enter in any event you must have a KSJA card," Jones said.

Out of USJI, each state has its own organization started, Jones said. Each state group is a member of USJI, he added.

The art of judo is very much like wrestling, Von Feldt said.

"A lot of a match is wrestling and the thinking of judo is a lot like wrestling. Timing is everything," he said.

The point system in judo is also along the same line as wrestling but is a little different.

One referee and two judges rule on a match and decide the winner.

"A committee decision is used," Jones said.

A match can be won four different ways; by throws, pins, armbars and chokes.

Points are given by the judges for the accuracy of a throw. When one point is obtained the match is over, Von Feldt said.

A perfect throw is given an Ippon (one point). When about 60 percent of the back hits the mat a Waza-Ari (one-half point) is given.

"A running total is kept during the three to five minute match and the total point winner usually wins."

Pinning an opponent is another way to win a match.

"You have to have your opponent on his back for 30 seconds," Von Feldt said.

The armbar and choke can win a match when it forces the opponent to give up, Von Feldt said.

"The choke hold can not be used by people under 13 and the armbar can't be used by people under 15," Jones said.

"People have broken their arms to avoid losing when in an armbar," Von Feldt said.

There are 15 degrees that can be obtained in judo in the United States; three white belts, three brown belts and nine black belts, Jones said.

"To move up (in degrees) points must be obtained. For example, there are five points between white and brown belts. Here (locally) we only have one degree of white belt," Jones said.

Jones said that there are two routes to take in obtaining a higher degree.

"You can either be competitive or non-competitive," he said.

In the competitive route, time is spent practicing for competition wins that moves a person up a degree.

"Five wins over an equal or higher degree moves a person up a degree. If you win over a person who is more than two degrees higher than yourself, this moves you up quicker," Jones said.

"A non-competitor can move up with practice time but it is much slower," Jones said.

Area competitors will participate in a tournament Saturday Oct. 22 at Manhattan High School.

"We are expecting 40 adults (18 and over) and 40 juniors (17 and under)," Jones said.

"This is the fourth year for the tournament but interest seems to come and go from year to year," he added.

The tournament will be based on double elimination with medals given to each winner and certificates to the second and third place finishers, Jones said.

Staff/Andy Nelson

Brady Jones, K-State Judo Club member, took up judo to protect himself and is now a third-degree black belt.

Fans unable to purchase tickets

By GARY VAN CLEAVE
Collegian Reporter

If you want a ticket to Saturday's K-State vs. Nebraska football game, you're not the only one. Hundreds of Wildcat and Cornhusker fans have been trying to purchase a ticket, but the only response they got in return was "Sorry, it's sold out."

Carol Adolph, K-State ticket manager, said the game has been sold out for a month.

"We received around 4,000 tickets and we had over 10,000 orders. It ended up we had to turn away more people than what we actually sold," said Carol Broadstone, secretary to Nebraska Ticket Manager Helen Ruth Wagner.

"We had asked for additional tickets, but we could not get them. They (K-State Ticket Office) told us they were sold out," Broadstone said. "In the past, we usually got more tickets, but this year tickets weren't available to fill our requests."

The number of tickets an opposing school receives from K-State depends a lot on the school itself.

"It depends on the individual school. Some schools want 5,000 tickets, while others may want only 1,000," Adolph said. "It just depends on the school itself, and what its needs are and how well the team is playing."

"The demand was, to say the least, great for the tickets,"

Broadstone said. "It's just one of the many problems — but good problems — that we're faced with. I guess that's the problem when you have such a good football team."

KSU Stadium seats 42,000, but with added bleachers in the north end zone, the stadium can hold considerably more. An additional 4,000 seats are going to be set up in front of the locker rooms in the north end zone. Those seats are also sold out.

The attendance record at KSU Stadium was set last year at the K-State vs. University of Kansas game, when 45,595 were packed into the stadium. That game was also broadcast to a national audience on WTBS in Atlanta, Ga.

Injuries sideline football players; Faraimo redshirted, Harding out

By The Collegian Staff

Wildcat tailback Iosefatu Faraimo was declared a redshirt for the 1983 season due to an ankle injury that he sustained during a practice early in the year.

Jim Dickey, K-State head football coach, said Faraimo's injury will not allow the 205-pound sophomore to make any lateral movements.

"He can run straight ahead," Dickey said, "but he can't make any cuts at all. The injury is such that it would be very difficult for him to improve enough to play.

"When it happened we thought it was very minor," Dickey said. "We thought he would be ready to go in a week, but it has never healed. I think he has tried real hard to get back, and maybe he ran on it when he should have stayed off the ankle and let it heal."

"Some people say this may be a blessing, but if it is, I think it is a blessing in disguise," he said. "We already have 30 redshirts this year and that is a pretty well disguised blessing because we're not playing them."

The injuries are piling up on the Wildcats as they lost two more key players in Saturday's game against the University of Missouri.

Andy Harding suffered a neck injury and will be lost for the rest of the season and fullback Mark Hundley sustained a strained shoulder one play after he carried the ball for the first time all year.

Jones makes 'throw' to top

By BRENT BAYER
Collegian Reporter

With the threat of gangs and the inability to defend himself, Brady Jones took up judo in his senior of high school 18 years ago.

"I started judo in 1965 to defend myself in fights. I got tired of guys pulling knives and guns on me," Jones, a K-State Judo Club member, said.

Jones heard of a judo class at Douglass Center and decided to give it a try.

"The class lasted three weeks at Douglass Center. After that class, I followed the teacher to K-State and have been in judo ever since," Jones said.

"I took the class at K-State from 1965 to 1970, and once I got my brown belt, I began to help teach," he added.

In 1972 Jones left Manhattan and moved to Madison, Wis., and lived there one year. He then moved to Seattle and worked out at the Seattle Judo Club for four years.

"The Seattle club is one of the most competitive clubs in the nation," he said.

After leaving Seattle, Jones came back to Manhattan in 1977 and has worked out with, and helped, the K-State Judo Club ever since.

Jones' career in judo started quickly and has had some high and low points in it. The first tournament he placed in was in 1968 at Ames, Iowa.

"I remember the first time I placed — I was very excited. I lost the first match of tournament and came back to win five matches in a row," he said. "That got me into the consolation match."

Jones lost the match in three overtimes, but he said the match established him as a "contender."

Another time — early in his career — that was satisfying to Jones was when he defeated a black belt opponent at a 1969 tournament in Columbia, Mo. Jones was only a brown belt at the time.

"I was happy to beat him. He weighed 25 pounds more than myself and thought he was going to get me," Jones said.

But Jones' climb to excellence hasn't been that easy.

"I was not naturally coordinated and didn't move well, but my senior year in high school, I played football and wrestled," Jones said, "and that helped me a lot."

To Jones, judo has several meanings.

"Judo is a weapons system, but it also is a way of life — maximum efficiency with minimum effort," he said.

Jones was at his prime in Judo in 1979 and 1980 when he was invited to the Olympic Training Camp in Colorado Springs, Colo.

"It was a thrill to get invited to the tryout camp, but I always blow it," he said.

In 1980, he was one of the first people to register for the camp. The day after he registered, President Jimmy Carter announced that the United States would boycott the Olympics.

"I was interviewed by CBS and NBC-TV about what I thought about the boycott, because I was one of the first athletes at the camp. My family and friends saw the CBS interview and were really excited," Jones said.

Throughout his career, Jones has been in 14 national tournaments as a light heavyweight and heavyweight with his best finish being a fifth place.

"I've been to tournaments in Oklahoma, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas — just to mention a few," he said.

At the age of 36, Jones is not ready to count himself out of national competition.

You'll be seeing some new faces at the Bookstore. Maybe even your own.

Choose your Halloween personality from our wide selection of famous, infamous and bestial masks. We also offer our wigs, artificial features, MAKE-UP (water, grease, pancake, rouge) in every imaginable color—you name it! Clown white, lipstick, and nail polish (black/green/red/glitter) we've got it!

10% discount on all merchandise (except special orders and sale merchandise) for anyone in costume Oct. 28th or Oct. 31.

k-state union bookstore

0302

To all those who care enough to want only the KING OF BEERS . . .
THIS BUD'S FOR YOU!

On Tap

Aggie Lounge
All Seasons (The Barn)
Blue River Pub
Cowboy Palace
JD's Garden Restaurant

Brothers
My Place
Roger's Tavern
Pizza Hut #1
(Aggieville)

J. Riggs West
Rook's Recreation
Show Biz Pizza
Stable Influence
Third Street Pub
Valentino's

Coaches need to show sensitivity

"That was the best hit all day. More hits like that and I wouldn't look so bad," Jim Dickey, K-State head football coach, said of Andy Harding's tackle on Missouri linebacker Buck Stinson.

Dickey's quote to the press came after Missouri Tigers' 38-0 trouncing of the Wildcats.

Stinson had intercepted Donnie Campbell's pass in the third quarter when Harding, the 'Cats' center, delivered a tackle that twisted his head to the back over the left shoulder and left him unconscious.

Harding was quickly administered aid by trainers from the K-State and Missouri benches. After a few moments, a stretcher was brought out and placed under Harding, who then was immediately rushed by ambulance to the University of Missouri Hospital and Clinic.

It was not a pretty sight. As Harding was being tended to, fans sat or stood quietly wondering just how severe the injury might be.

And a pressbox spokesman announced to the sports writers that the doctors were to cut off Harding's helmet to perform the X-rays.

It was evident that many people feared the worst and were upset; praying deep down inside that everything would work out for the injured player. Fortunately, their prayers were answered when the X-rays revealed no fracture, and thus no paralysis.

Harding was diagnosed as having a severely sprained neck and has been released from Lafene Student Health Center wearing a neck brace. Doctors said Harding will wear the brace for two to six weeks. He will not participate in football the rest of the season.

But one person who seems undisturbed by the whole incident was Coach Dickey. In the quote, it is apparent that Dickey is concerned with just himself and not with the welfare of Harding.

Is football becoming so demanding that the coach becomes concerned only with the final outcome of a football game and/or his employment?

SEAN REILLY
Sports Editor

In another matter that involved the insensitivity of a college head football coach, Barry Switzer of the University of Oklahoma was upset when his sophomore tailback sensation, Marcus Dupree, did not return to practice to continue on with the football season after he had received permission to visit his home in Mississippi following OU's loss to Texas Longhorns.

It is appalling that Switzer could not understand the mental anguish of Dupree. Even worse, Switzer appeared not to accept Dupree as a human being outside the football realm.

In the 1982 NCAA basketball championship, Georgetown's Freddy Brown, whose team was down by one point with seconds to go, cost the team a possible victory when he passed the ball sideways to a North Carolina player he didn't see. John Thompson, coach for Georgetown, didn't get upset with his bungle; he hugged him in front of a national TV audience.

This exemplifies a coach who is sincere about his player's grief over his mistake and not the outcome of the game.

In the future, should any other Wildcat gridders be injured, even in minor injury cases, Dickey should become concerned with his players' welfare and display the sensitivity or sympathy for his players which is necessary for an effective program at K-State.

Team prepares for 'Huskers; players' attitude improves

By KEVIN DALE
Staff Writer

With the number one football team in the nation coming to town, Jim Dickey, K-State head football coach, wants his team to be up to the challenge.

"We are having pretty good practices but not as good as I would like us to have," Dickey said. "I'm really anxious to see how many of our guys can compete against them."

The players are ready to step on the field and even though they know Nebraska is the best they are not intimidated by them.

"Everyone has a good attitude," Reggie Singletary, defensive lineman, said. "There are no signs of intimidation like there has been in previous weeks. The team is really getting up for the game."

Jerry Boyce, assistant coach, said the team is looking forward to the game.

"No one is really downcast," he said. "Certainly, they're disappointed but they are bouncing back and they are going to play as hard as they can."

"We won't have any trouble getting the players up for the game," Dickey said. "As the week goes on I think the realization of who they are going up against will hit them and they will be anxious to play the number one team in America."

Freshman Curtis Hughes is also looking for a chance to get into the action.

"It's easier to get up for Nebraska," he said. "We all have confidence in each other and we are going to play hard. We want to beat up on them and we want to be the first team to beat them. If we do, people will think that we really are a good football team."

"Right now, I think the whole team is really getting up and we are going to put up a good fight," Singletary said. "I'm not going to say Nebraska is going to win until the game is won."

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

ANNOUNCEMENT 01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, 50¢ for students with ID and $1 for all others. (281f)

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours: Daily 2:00-8:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Maries, 1631 Humboldt, 539-5200. (32-50)

COSTUME PARTY Saturday afternoon and night at the El Paso Powder Room. Two keep? Swan Lake? Blessings while you wait? You bet your tui! Call Roger Depenbusch, Colin Rankin, or Scott Heidtrink for more information, 537-9349. (47-49)

FEMALE STUDENT would like to meet male student (25-35) with open, affectionate personality, broad range of interests (outdoors, plays), time to commit to friendship. Reply Box 4, Collegian. (47-49)

AUCTION—QUITTING Business—Complete auction of all inventory and fixtures, Friday evening, October 28, 1983, 6:00 p.m., 423 Poyntz, Manhattan, Kansas. The remaining inventory consists of the following: Approximately 6,524 skeins of Persian and tapestry yarn; approximately 5,824 bundles of pre-cut rug yarn in a variety of colors; approximately 2,400 skeins and balls of tatting, pearl cotton and embroidery floss; approximately 2,457 skeins of a variety of types of yarns in all colors and types; 146 pieces of imported needlepoint, avans, knitting needles, cross stitch and other kits, sewing supplies and much much more inventory; fixtures including display cases and racks, stands, tables, pegboard, baskets, display items. Note: The Yarn Shop has always been proud to stock some of the best quality yarn available. A large inventory and sure to be an interesting auction! The Yarn Shop, Auctioneers: Mill Anderson, 776-4834 or 539-7365; Earl Brown, Vern Gannon. (47-48)

ATTENTION 02
TRAVEL—We will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (11f)

FANTASY-GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

HURRY TO Balfour! To introduce you to our new arrivals, All Footjoy aerobic shoes and racquetball shoes and gloves are 20% off now through October 29th. (39-49)

SINGLE MALE searching for single female born between February 16, 1961 and February 4, 1962. Call 537-8365 for more details. (43-48)

CANDID PORTRAITS—I offer flexibility and a personal approach to each photo session. If you would like to give that "special" person a "special" photograph—phone 776-8502 evenings. Ask for Brian. (46-50)

COZUMEL—YUCATAN Peninsula—Mexico. Yucatan Field Course: Natural History. Three biology credits, Winter Intercession, January 2-15 from Johnson County Community College. For more information, 1-888-0170. (47-49)

FOR RENT—MISC 03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11f)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11f)

LOCATION—LOCATION—LOCATION

Retail/Office new space now available, super university traffic, Denson & Claflin. Ideal for beauty-barber shop, stereo, jeans, etc. Also convenient off-campus office use: consulting, travel agency, insurance, legal, accounting, medical, stock broker, etc. For Information 537-0200.

Halloween COSTUMES—Sales and rentals, masks, make-up, accessories. The Emporium, 11th and Moro in Aggieville. (35-49)

FOR RENT: One and two bedroom mobile homes, $165 and $175. No pets. 539-6058 or 539-5402. (48-52)

THREE BEDROOM with fireplace and garage. Available now or for semester. $525. Call 539-4294, ask for Ron. (48-53)

FOR RENT—APTS 04

BASEMENT APARTMENT—Two bedroom, remodeled this summer, two blocks west of campus. Call Jim, 539-1135. (42-50)

NICE, SPACIOUS, two-bedroom, unfurnished, $295. Available anytime. 776-2171. (45-49)

PINE HAVEN brand new two-bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. 776-3804. (46-55)

TWO BEDROOM, furnished, near Westloop. Fully equipped, pool, balcony, lovely—$350. Call 538-4792. (46-50)

NICE TWO bedroom apartment. Available November 1. Deposit and lease required. No pets. 537-3529. (47-49)

ONE BEDROOM unfurnished apartment—off street parking, close to campus and Aggie. Available spring semester. Call 539-4371 or 539-2019 after 5:00 p.m. (47-49)

LARGE, NICE, two-bedroom apartment. Fireplace, balcony. Call 776-3439. Available immediately. (48-50)

ONE BEDROOM apartment, $150. No pets. 539-6058 or 539-5402. (48-52)

FIRST FLOOR, two-bedroom, duplex apartment. Close to campus with off-street parking. $350. Call 776-0055. (48-52)

FOR SALE—AUTO 06

1968 AMX classic 390—automatic, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, stereo, 5,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Excellent condition, $3,400. Might trade. 537-4782. (39-48)

1979 TOYOTA Corolla hatchback. AM/FM cassette, air, excellent condition. After 7:00 p.m. 776-1495 or 539-8970. (45-49)

1974 FORD Pinto. Good shape. New gear system, stereo, heating system. Call 539-1361 8 a.m.-10 a.m. or 6 p.m.-12 p.m. (46-49)

1976 MALIBU Classic, 305 engine, automatic, air conditioning, tilt, stereo, good tires. Call 776-0545. (47-49)

FOR SALE: 1974 Mustang II, $600 or best offer. Call 539-9023. (47-49)

1980 MUSTANG Cobra Turbo, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, 39,000 miles. 776-8182 after 5:00 p.m. Anytime on weekends. (48-52)

1979 CHEVY Liv pickup. Air conditioning, AM-FM cassette, two new tires. Call 48 evenings and weekends. 776-1810. (48-52)

FOR SALE—MISC 07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, rique greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, trade, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (light blue), USC (white), others. $14.00 each postpaid. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-601-835-1065. (45-59)

OLYMPUS KA 35mm camera with A11 flash. $100. Call 532-2362. (47-50)

EQUIPMENT FOR making rubber stamps. Type, press cabinet for type, and supplies. Must sell. Phone 537-7511 after 5:00 p.m. (47-51)

WHISTLES!

Acme Thunderer
LOUD-SHRILL
Call Charly
913-537-9821

SCHWINN VARSITY 10-speed—Excellent shape. Asking $90 or best offer. Call 776-1228 after 6:00 p.m. (47-49)

FOUR KSU-NU tickets. Excellent seats. Call anytime. Keep trying. Call 1-494-2816 or 1-494-2571. $25 each. (47-49)

SOUND SYSTEM: Peavey-mixer, EQ, CS800, bass bins. Also, Tapco mixer, Mitchell cabinets, 100W guitar amps, Halpinstill and Rhodes pianos. Call 776-9305. (48-50)

HAVE TWO K-State vs. Nebraska tickets for sale. Call 537-4853. (48-49)

INTELLIVISION GAME System plus five game cartridges, like new. Call 537-4676 after 5:00 p.m. (48-49)

MOVING SALE: Desk, $35; sewing cabinet, $15; Spanish living room set, black couch, easy chair, rocker with ottoman, two end tables, $150; 20" pushmower, $35; ping pong table, $15; full size bed, box springs, mattress and frame, $50. Beige shag carpet remnants (room size) with pad, $3 per square yard. Call 776-2251. (48-50)

MOVING SALE: Queen size bed with chest, dresser, night stand; shelves; chair; T.V.; stereo; radio; rug. Reasonable price. Call 539-4866 anytime Saturday. (48-49)

TWO TICKETS to Heart concert on Wednesday, November 2 in Salina. Call Joe or Steve after 2:00 p.m. 776-3488. (48-50)

AKC MINATURE Schnauzer puppies. Neat little dogs for apartment living, excellent watchdogs. Call 1-456-9605. (48-50)

BICYCLES FOR Sale: 10- and 3-speed mens and womens $35-$150. Limited selection. Call 537-8616. (48-49)

TWO KSU vs. NU tickets, 2nd row on 50-yard line. Best offer by Friday evening. 532-3429. (48-49)

UKC REGISTERED Plott Hound, proven sire. 776-8677 after 6:00 p.m. (48-49)

ONE PAIR Brook's Chariot running shoe's. Almost new. $35. Call 539-7152 after 6:00 p.m. (48-51)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES 08

TWO-BEDROOM trailer house, excellent condition. Call 776-6143 after 6:00 p.m. (45-54)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES 09

1979 SUZUKI GS550, 18,000 miles, new chain, battery, helmets included. $900 or best offer. 776-1332 after 5:00 p.m. (42f)

1973 TR6 Triumph, one owner, both tops, very nice, K-State purple, $2595. The Preston McCall Company, 913-841-6067. (44-53)

1982 HONDA XL250R. Excellent condition, must sell, $975 or best offer. 537-4375. (47-49)

FOUND 10

FOUND—MALE cat, long hair, black and white, in Eisenhower Hall. Very friendly. Call 532-6841 days. (48-50)

FOUND: PAIR of large-framed glasses on sidewalk between Cardwell and Ackert. Claim in Kedzie 103. (48-50)

GARAGE SALES 12

BARGAIN HUNTERS! Yard sale! 10-speed, clothes—like new, drawing equipment, furniture, records, etc. Saturday, 8:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m.; Sunday, 12:00-2:00 p.m.; 1517 Hartford. (48-49)

HELP WANTED 13

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

STUDENT TO work 20 hrs. per week. General office work. Typing, filing, bookkeeping. Office experience required. Prefer second or third year student. Apply Institute for Environmental Research, Seaton Hall. (46-48)

TAKING APPLICATIONS for part-time employment. Sales and train to install satellite antenna systems. Must be willing to work, meet public and dress neatly. Apply at 316 Poyntz, Ghare's. (46-48)

IMMEDIATE Two part-time sale telephone receptionist positions. Qualifications: mature person from a standard high school or equivalent, pleasant speaking voice, neat personal appearance, the ability to work well with people in a pleasant working environment. Applications must be sent to P.O. Box 703, Manhattan, KS 66502. (46-49)

HELP WANTED—Computer Programmer: Advanced undergraduate or graduate student needed part-time to maintain and operate existing computer systems and develop programs to analyze survey data. Applicants should have working knowledge and experience in CMS, SAS, PL1 and keypunching. Submit an application letter, resume and references by November 4, 1983 to: Dr. Charles I. Rankin, Director, Midwest Race and Sex Segregation Assistance Center, Kansas State University, 401 Blumont Hall, Manhattan, KS 66506. Kansas State University is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity Employer. (47-49)

PART-TIME liberal maid to help handicapped writer early afternoons. Prefer person who will be here for holidays and spring semester. Foreign students and student wives welcome to apply. Call 776-6584 between 11:00 a.m. and 9:00 p.m. (48)

MALE SUBJECTS needed for study. $3 for one-half hour time. Call 532-6929 or 539-1380. (47-51)

LOST 14

LOST: LIKE new blue denim jacket on the 13th or 14th of the month. Call 776-3864. (48-49)

LADIES GOLD birthstone ring with Peridot stone (light green). Probably lost in Seaton Hall or Union. Sentimental value. Reward! Call Judy at 532-5964. (47-49)

LOST: TEXTBOOK—Design of Experiments by Cochran and Cox. Please return to Waters Hall, room 130. (48-52)

PERSONAL 16

HEY DUDE—How could I forget your birthday with that full page ad you put in the paper. Bogus! Remember—N.P.R. people do it early—I owe you one! Happy Birthday!!—Dudette. (48)

DELTA SIG Bob Schuey—I'm so glad to know that you're my dad. Love, Judy. (48)

TO DR. R. and Econ. of Ag. Bus. Students: It's your last chance, so hold on to your pants. Buy highest quality merchandise from Firm SA. Our products, B and C, will sell well during our once-in-a-lifetime sale. The Management. (48)

BANSHEE: Say! Say! Say! You've survived it all—lived and steam engine mania. Shabo the honorary dog, roommates, trivia, people with big gelatinous heads, the radiator incident and the melting car, birds in your bed, pool hall rumble, mermaids, fire alarms (so we forgot to evacuate you, no big deal), and being comatose. If you hold a glass to the wall you'll hear them doing it like rabbits. God knew what we were laughing at so he sent lightning. The mechanic still wants my body. If Beaver can grow up and Gilligan can get off the island, you can pass that test. Wheee! (48)

AX'S—GREEK Playboys has drawn to a fantastic end, to CF all the money we will send, and with our dad's here this weekend, we'll have lots of fun, everyone will know AX's are #1! (48)

SHEILA—HAPPY 19th! Beware, expect the least expected! Have a good one! Your roomie, Carol. (48)

ATO'S JEFF and Terry—Keep up the good work. I'm thinking of you! Love, Mom. (48)

COLD BUD—Hang in there. It's almost over. I'm thinking of you always. ILY, Tasty Waves. (48)

ATO'S TOM, Tim, Joe—There were hours of listening to me gripe, Kites, Aggie Station, swing dancing, Hander's hangovers, delivering cold medicine and shopping. Thanks for keeping the lonely wife busy this week. Lori Ann. (48)

TRI-ANGLE Moms Jennifer and Stephanie: Couldn't get for better moms! Your daughters, Mary and Gina. (48)

MIA BROWN—I'm 6-foot tall and that's not all, cause tonight we meet when we come over to eat. Your Secret Squirrel. (48)

JEFF SUTTLE—Talk to me! Happy 19th Birthday. Looks like I'll be going to semi-formal with an "older man." Get psyched.—Party Girl. (48)

RICH AND Joel—Your invitation was a delight. You two are such hunks, you deserve a good night. We want to swoon so we'll see you soon! M.R. (48)

ROOMMATE WANTED 17

ONE-TWO female non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplace, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (44-48)

Captain Cosmo

By Doug Yearout

Bradley

By Mich Johnson

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

State bill taxes lawyers to aid peers

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Every lawyer licensed to practice in Kansas — including state and federal judges — would have to pay a special $200 annual tax to beef up fees paid to their peers who defend indigents accused of crimes, if a bill endorsed Thursday by a legislative study committee becomes law.

The interim Ways and Means Committee, with only two attorney members objecting, recommended for introduction in the 1984 session a bill to impose the "indigents' defense services fee" of $200 annually on all lawyers before they would be eligible to practice in the state.

The estimated $800,000 a year new revenue the fee would generate would be added to the present legislative appropriation of $2.1 million a year to pay lawyers who defend those charged with crimes who don't have the financial resources to pay for private attorneys.

Public defense issue studied

Only Sens. Frank Gaines, D-Augusta, and Ron Hein, R-Topeka, voted against the proposal, but several other committee members said they had reservations about levying the fee against judges and lawyers not in private practice. The latter would include those who work for state agencies.

However, Sen. Paul Hess, R-Wichita, who is a lawyer, said he viewed the bill as a "little powder keg" to jar the Kansas Bar Association into recognizing the problem the state has with its indigent defenders system. Lawyers have only become interested, Hess said, since talk first began about imposing the $200 fee.

Gaines opposed the bill on grounds judges shouldn't have to pay it.

"You want to impose a $200 fee on Judge (Frank) Theis?" Gaines asked fellow Sen. Joe Warren, D-Maple City.

"I've already discussed it with him," replied Warren. "He doesn't want to pay it, but he understands the problem."

Theis, who is on senior status as a U.S. District Court judge in Wichita, lives in Arkansas City, which is part of Warren's senatorial district.

"This is a waving of the red flag that they better start thinking about something," Warren said of the proposed bill to impose the $200 fee. "It isn't going to pass in this form."

"This is just a little powder keg to get the bar association to study this problem," said Hess. "There is discussion of the problem now, and I think that's healthy."

"This bill just raises the issue and forces debate on how to raise the money."

Both Hess and Warren said the bill could be amended during the 1984 session opening Jan. 9 to exempt judges and others if the Legislature believes that is proper.

"We've got to exempt some, but we've also got to do something," said Rep. John Solbach, D-Lawrence, a former member of the Board of Indigents' Defense Services, which sets the fees which are paid to lawyers who defend indigents and administers the program.

Presently, in 26 of the state's 29 judicial districts the judges appoint public defenders from a pool of local attorneys. In the judicial districts which include Topeka, Salina and Junction City, public defender offices have been created which have crews of attorneys hired fulltime to defend indigents.

WARM UP FOR SATURDAY'S GAME!!

100% cotton SKYR
T-necks
Wool Sweaters
Long-Sleeved T-Shirts
Wool Hats and Scarves
Wool Socks

1111 Moro Aggville 539-5639
Hours: Mon.-Fri. 10-6; Thurs. 10-8; Sat. 10-5

The Women of Alpha Xi Delta will be serving as

TRICK OR TREAT ESCORTS

- Hosting Halloween party for kids
- Then we'll take the costumed creatures on their "track" for treats.

Oct. 31st
7-8 p.m.
601 Fairchild Terr.
Call 539-4693

the piano King
of Kansas City Swing...

Jay "hootie" mc shann

a Mid-America Arts Alliance program

Friday, October, 28, 8pm

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office, noon-5 p.m. M-F, 532-6428

This program is made possible by support from the Kansas Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts, through participation in Mid-America Arts Alliance, a regional arts organization.

ATTENTION BASKETBALL FANS BASKETBALL TICKET SALES LINE POLICY

1. Between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday thru Friday, there will be no roll calls, although between these hours student can still sign-up for a position in line. Roll call intervals after 4:30 p.m. shall be up to the discretion of the Basketball Ticket Sales Committee. There will be a 15-minute grace period to check in after completion of roll call.
2. One (1) person will be allowed to represent up to five (5) others. One for five will be allowed up until 10:00 a.m. the day of ticket sales, then one for one from 10:00 a.m. until ticket purchase. (Time subject to change.)
3. Regardless of the size of the group, each individual must sign-up for his/her place in line when acquiring their position number, with a fee card.
4. If inclement weather becomes a problem, the Basketball Ticket Sales Committee has the power to disband the lines until further notice.

*Security & Traffic will remove any group attempting to start a line before the Basketball Ticket Sales Committee arrives. The Committee will run the lines.

INFORMATION MEETING

Tues., Nov. 1, 7:30 p.m.
Rm. 207, K-State Union
For those who have questions concerning the above line policy.

STUDENT SEASON BASKETBALL TICKETS

The following plan was adopted by Student Senate and approved by Intercollegiate Athletic Council for the sale of student season basketball tickets

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY Basketball Schedule - 1983-84

Nov	17	Thu	Brandon Univ.	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	25	Fri	Tribune Charities Holiday Classic
	26	Sat	(Utah Illinois Loyola of Chicago)	at Rosemont, IL
	29	Tue	Oral Roberts University	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
Dec	3	Sat	U.S. International	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	7	Wed	Centenary	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	10	Sat	Wisconsin	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	17	Sat	Nevada Las Vegas	at Las Vegas	10:05 p.m.
	21	Wed	Indiana	at Bloomington	6:30 p.m.
	23	Fri	California State-Northridge	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
Jan	4	Wed	Texas	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	7	Sat	Northern Iowa	at Cedar Falls	7:30 p.m.
	12	Thu	Eastern Washington	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	14	Sat	Southern Colorado	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	18	Wed	Oklahoma State	at Stillwater	7:35 p.m.
	21	Sat	Oklahoma	at Manhattan	2:10 p.m.
	25	Wed	Colorado	at Boulder	9:05 p.m.
	28	Sat	Kansas	at Lawrence	4:10 p.m.
Feb	1	Wed	Iowa State	at Manhattan	8:10 p.m.
	4	Sat	Nebraska	at Manhattan	4:10 p.m.
	8	Wed	Missouri	at Columbia	8:05 p.m.
	11	Sat	Oklahoma	at Norman	4:00 p.m.
	15	Wed	Colorado	at Manhattan	8:10 p.m.
	18	Sat	Oklahoma State	at Manhattan	2:05 p.m.
	22	Wed	Iowa State	at Ames	7:35 p.m.
	25	Sat	Kansas	at Manhattan	2:05 p.m.
	29	Wed	Nebraska	at Lincoln	7:35 p.m.
Mar	3	Sat	Missouri	at Manhattan	2:05 p.m.
	6	Tue	Big 8 Tournament - 1st Round	at campus sites
	9	Fri	Big 8 Tournament - Semis	at Kansas City
	10	Sat	Big 8 Tournament - Finals	at Kansas City

RESERVED
and
NON-RESERVED
$42.25

Does not include the games on Dec. 23 and Jan. 4. Individual student tickets for these games will be available at a later date.

I. There will be three types of basketball tickets:

- A. Group Reserved
- B. Individual Reserved
- C. Non-reserved

II. One ticket will be sold per fee card with the exception of buying for a non-student spouse, then two may be purchased with one fee card. A married student with a student spouse may buy two tickets but a fee card for both student and student spouse is required.

III. The total allotted tickets for the reserve section will be divided into 85% for Group Reserved and 15% for Individual Reserved.

IV. Tickets for the Group Reserved will be applied for on Monday and Tuesday, October 31 and November 1 in which a lottery system will be in effect.

A. Students will be able to go to the ticket window in Ahearn Fieldhouse where they can fill out an application for no more than 20 tickets and leave the respective fee cards with the person at the ticket window. There will be no guarantee all 20 tickets will be together.

B. While students are applying for Group Reserved Tickets, they will also be asked to draw a number which will be placed on their envelope at that time. This number will be this group's number for lottery purposes.

C. At the end of the two day period, the ticket window will be closed for Group Reserved ticket applications and the Athletic Department will proceed in distributing tickets, starting with the lowest numbered application and moving to higher numbers until the entire 85% of the reserved tickets are allotted. Tickets for Individual Reserved and Group Reserved will be allocated on a 50/50 preference basis, until Individual Reserved are sold.

D. The Athletic Department will notify the Collegian for publication on November 2 the highest numbered application that will receive tickets. Students with numbers lower than the number printed will know that they will receive tickets.

E. Students with numbers higher than the published number can pick up their fee cards from 9:00 a.m.-4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, November 2-4.

F. On Sunday afternoon November 6, the Individual Reserved and Non-Reserved tickets will be sold. Only one ticket per person with each fee card, unless a married student who may purchase for spouse.

1. Non-reserved tickets will be sold at the east ticket window of Ahearn Fieldhouse from 2:00-4:00 p.m. on November 6.

2. Individual Reserved tickets will be sold at the north ticket window of Ahearn Fieldhouse from 2:00-4:00 p.m. on November 6.

3. Any type of "ROLL CALL" or line system will be the responsibility of the S.G.A. Basketball Ticket Sales Committee.

Professor speaks out on U.S. involvement in Philippines

By MIKE HEDGES
Collegian Reporter

United States relations with the Philippines create an important strategic concern in the Pacific Ocean, said Linda Richter, assistant professor of political science. Richter spoke at noon Thursday to approximately 50 people in the Union Catskeller as part of the Union Program Council "Let's Talk About It" series.

Richter lived in the Philippines in 1973 and again in 1976 and 1977, where she researched land reform and tourism. She has written a book titled "Land Reform and Tourism Development: Policy Making in the Philippines." During her stay in the Philippines, Richter spoke to 198 government officials about the current state of affairs in the nation.

Last spring, Richter traveled to Washington, D.C., where she testified in Congress about the government of President Ferdinand Marcos and U.S. involvement in the Philippines.

"It's strange to me that when President Marcos declared martial law in 1973, there wasn't near the uproar that there was when martial law was imposed in Poland.

"The Philippines have one and one-half times the population of Poland and is much more important strategically, yet the United States seems to have looked away where human rights are concerned," Richter said.

Martial law was imposed in 1973, at the end of Marcos' second term, and Richter feels that was only because Marcos didn't want to be taken from office since third terms are unconstitutional in the Philippines. She said she feels this way because at the time Marcos imposed martial law, there were no major political problems in the Philippines.

Marcos imposed martial law for nine years, lifting it three days before the beginning of Ronald Reagan's administration.

Richter said Marcos got away with martial law so long because he kept things in line with the law.

"When Marcos wanted to do something against the law, he would just have the law changed in his favor. That way the people couldn't oppose him.

"When martial law was lifted, it was in word only. All the rules are still in effect. And there is some evidence that political opponents are being murdered," Richter said.

Richter also said she is concerned with the recent willingness of the U.S. to send troops to foreign lands and that it might want to invade the Philippines.

"If that would happen, the duration of the fighting would be complicated by the fact that the Philippines would be very hard to control guerrilla groups.

"People that I have talked to that have fought in the Philippines say that if we did attack, it would be a war that would not be easily won," Richter said.

She also talked about the love-hate relationship that the Philippine people have with the U.S.

"The Philippine people embrace our culture, and we get along with them better than anyone outside of Great Britain. However, the fact that our servicemen commit crimes and then escape back to base where the Philippines have jurisdiction is a constant sore spot, Richter said.

The U.S., on the other hand, has no options but to get along with Marcos if they hope to keep Clark Air Force Base and use Subik Bay, which is important for refurbishing American naval ships.

Richter said the Philippines also is angry at the U.S. for its treatment of the islands after World War II.

"Philippine soldiers were our allies against the Japanese, but when the war ended, the U.S. put a lot more money in Japan's economic recovery than they did in the Philippines. And only Warsaw suffered more damage than Manila did," she said.

Richter said right now there are 1 million Philippines in the U.S., most all of them immigrating after Marcos declared martial law. Only Mexico has had a larger immigration total during that period.

She also said a little-known fact is that at the time Marcos imposed martial law, there were 3 million people in the Philippines working to make the islands a part of the U.S.

Richter said she was concerned when President Reagan visited the Philippines, because it looked bad having the U.S. showing support for a dictatorial regime.

"The administrations of Nixon, Ford and Carter kept Marcos at bay. But Reagan is different," she said.

If the two nations were to become good friends, Richter is concerned that Marcos may be able to talk Reagan into extraditing political prisoners back to the Philippines to stand trial.

She also addressed the concern of the Philippine people that the U.S. might want to pull out of the country.

"Right now, the Philippines is the only country in Southeast Asia where there is a growing communist threat, and in that way, if the United States pulled out, it would scare Marcos. If Marcos flirted with the Soviets, a military coup would be inevitable. The pressure is on the U.S. to stay there. The Philippine people like a strong American presence there.

"Also, the United States rents Clark Air Force Base, and also employs 40,000 Philippines. This works out to about seven percent of the economy of the Philippines."

She said that the diet of the Philippine people has become increasingly worse since Marcos regime and that the U.S. needs to put money into economic recovery instead of the military.

Student choreographers display creations on stage

By TOM DOWNING
Staff Writer

Every creator of theater dreams of the day his or her work is performed for an audience.

The choreographer is the creator of dance. Like the composer and the playwright, the choreographer has to begin somewhere.

For five student choreographers, that beginning is tonight and Saturday at the Manhattan Middle School Auditorium.

The concert is sponsored by the K-State dance program and the Department of Physical Education, Dance, and Leisure Studies.

Luke Kahlich, assistant professor of dance, stressed the importance of the concert.

"The most exciting thing we feel about the concert is that it's the first student/faculty concert," Kahlich said. "It's important to get immediate feedback and response outside of the studio. We try to keep away from artistic incest."

Fourteen dancers will present 10 pieces, five of these are choreographed by students. Linda Westby, instructor of dance, said the students have been working on the choreography since August.

"The creative process can sometimes be frustrating but all of the end products turned out well," Westby said.

The importance of the choreographer was pointed out by Loretta Zerbe, senior in dance.

"The choice of music or non-music or sound, the choice of movement, the story line, theme, costumes, characters...it's all your choice," Zerbe said.

Zerbe, who has a degree in theater, said costumes for dance are radically different from costumes used for plays and musicals.

The costume must be workable, incorporate the theme of the piece, and accent the individual dancer's body, she said.

Zerbe said her dance, "Tides," tries to create the inner feeling of currents in a relationship. Her purpose is to create movements on stage and let the audience create the story line, she said.

Another student choreographer is Keith Banks, senior in pre-physical therapy. He is dancing in the piece he choreographed as well as four other pieces.

Banks said he has learned how to deal

Staff/Allen Eyestone

K-State students perform "Viewers," choreographed by Melissa Hort, junior in elementary education. The dance is one of 10 to be featured during K-State's first student/faculty dance concert tonight and Saturday at the Manhattan Middle School Auditorium. The spotlighted dancers were wearing black costumes against a black background.

with slower movements. His piece "Under the Moon," is different than the way he naturally moves.

"I'm basically a dynamic person," he said. "My movement preference is everything that's fast, and sharp."

"I also see how much work it takes to choreograph something. As a choreographer, you're in charge of everything that happens with the dance."

Banks said he has learned from performing in his own dance.

"It's like trying to perform saying 'Now I have to do the movement and imagine what I look like performing it."

"That's when they (the faculty) come in and help with their suggestions and opinions. They also helped me clarify the meaning behind the movement, what I'm trying to get across."

The students take a considerable risk in putting their work before an audience, Kahlich said. But students are not the only ones who are trying something new.

Westby was trained in ballet. She received her master's degree in ballet at the University of Utah and teaches ballet at K-State.

In the concert, however, she is dancing in a modern piece choreographed by Susan Warden, assistant professor of dance.

Westby said that for the students' sake she needs to have a knowledge of all three areas of dance; ballet, modern and jazz.

The concert program will incorporate works from all three areas and should be about an hour long, Kahlich said. Tickets for the 8 p.m. concert are $4 for students and public and will be available at the door.

Court drops charges facing frat presidents

By The Collegian Staff

Charges against the presidents of the Phi Delta Theta and Beta Theta Pi fraternity houses were dismissed Thursday in Manhattan Municipal Court.

Jeff McReynolds, president of the Phi Delta Theta house, 508 Sunset Ave., and Max Martin, president of the Beta Theta Pi house, 500 Sunset Ave., had been charged with aiding and abetting, disorderly conduct, disturbing the peace, disturbing the quietude and urinating or defecating in public. The charges were in connection with incidents that allegedly occurred at a party Sept. 24.

City prosecutor Robert Pottroff said he decided to dismiss the charges after learning of steps the fraternities had taken to ensure fewer problems with future parties.

An interfraternity council agreement to curtail problems in neighborhoods where fraternity houses are located, establishment of neighborhood relations officers in the houses and proposed rules governing parties were reasons the charges were dropped, Pottroff said.

McReynolds and Martin, with their attorneys, met with Barb Robel, greek affairs adviser, and Pottroff for about 30 minutes Thursday afternoon at City Hall before the decision was announced.

Notice

Today is the last day courses may be dropped before the end of the semester.

Reagan condemns 'terrorist' Russia

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan charged the Soviet Union on Thursday night with fostering the violence in both Lebanon and Grenada "through a network of surrogates and terrorists." He said a Cuban occupation of Grenada was planned, and "We got there just in time."

Reagan said the island nation invaded by U.S. and Caribbean forces on Tuesday was "a Soviet-Cuban colony being readied as a major military bastion to export terror and undermine democracy."

The president said the foremost mission of the American invasion of the Marxist-ruled Caribbean island was to guarantee the safety of U.S. citizens. "The nightmare of our hostages in Iran must never be repeated," he declared.

Reagan also vowed that those responsible for the bombing in Beirut that killed 225 Marines and sailors "must be dealt justice. They will be."

In a televised address to the nation, Reagan said, "The events in Lebanon and Grenada, though oceans apart, are closely related. Not only has Moscow assisted and encouraged the violence in both countries, but it provides direct support through a network of surrogates and terrorists."

"It is no coincidence that when the thugs tried to wrest control over Grenada, there were 30 Soviet advisers and hundreds of Cuban military and paramilitary forces on the island," Reagan said.

"Two hours ago," said the President, "we released the first photos from Grenada. They included pictures of a warehouse of military equipment, one of three we have uncovered so far. This warehouse contained weapons and ammunition stacked almost to the ceiling, enough to supply thousands of terrorists."

Reagan said the United States had initially assumed that several hundred Cubans working on an airport runway on the southern part of the island could be military reservists.

"As it turned out, the number was much larger and they were a military force," Reagan said. "Six hundred have been taken prisoner and we have discovered a complete base with weapons and communications equipment which makes it clear a Cuban occupation of the island had been planned."

Staff/Wes Wilmers

Tension

Jami Strong, sophomore in elementary education, wrinkles her nose while donating blood Wednesday in the Union. Today is the last day to donate to the Red Cross Bloodmobile.

Cubans resist attack; take woman hostage

By The Associated Press

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada — American forces crushed a final stronghold of Grenada's defenders Thursday, but the Caribbean island's diehard Marxist leader was reported still resisting the invaders and holding a woman hostage.

The United States poured hundreds of fresh paratroopers into the fight for the tiny nation Thursday. President Reagan said a fully equipped Cuban base was found and that the operation thwarted a planned Cuban takeover of the island.

Artillery fire could still be heard at the Point Salines airport Thursday night. The shelling was to head off a possible counterattack, Marines told 12 reporters flown to the island.

The U.S. forces were also strafing positions with four or five A-7 Corsair jet aircraft, said Army Lt. Col. Fred Ackers in a briefing on the island.

Six hundred Cuban soldiers and 200 Cuban civilian prisoners were being held at a hill overlooking the airport, the reporters were told.

During a stay of several hours, reporters were taken to five warehouses full of crated arms that Ackers said were from Cuba and the Soviet Union — "enough arms there to arm guerillas around the world for years," Ackers said. He said Grenada had served as a "dropping off point" for arms Cuba apparently was shipping to Africa. Some weapons had Soviet markings.

U.S. officials on the island said no Grenadians were killed in the military operation. The casualty toll among the almost 3,000 U.S. troops stood at eight dead, eight missing and 39 wounded, the officials said.

The reporters were told 41 Cubans and five Grenadians were wounded in airport area. Eight Cuban doctors were treating their own wounded.

Army Major Jim Holt said, "The fighting was super-intense...much stronger than expected...the Cubans are very professional." He said the Grenadian forces, the People's Revolutionary Army, showed "not much stomach for the fight."

Armed Cubans who had been holding out at Richmond Hill prison, in the steep green hills east of the harborside capital, St. George's, were overrun by attacking troops Thursday, 2½ days after the U.S. invasion began, the Pentagon said.

A second St. George's stronghold, the Grenadian army headquarters at Fort Frederick, was captured Wednesday, the sources said.

Campus

Service to honor dead servicemen

A public memorial service in honor of the servicemen killed in Beirut and Grenada this week is set for 10 a.m. Monday at Washburn University's student union.

U.S. Army Maj. Gen. Ralph Tice will be the keynote speaker at the ceremony, which is sponsored by the Washburn Veterans On Campus. Other speakers will include Washburn President John Green, Topeka Mayor Doug Wright and Harry Wiles, a representative of the Governor's Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Approximately 50 servicemen from the First Infantry Division marching band from Fort Riley will also attend.

Committee gives make-up service

The Union Programming Council's Art Committee is sponsoring a Halloween make-up demonstration by the K-State Players at noon Friday, in the Union courtyard. The make-up service will be offered for a fee Oct. 28, 29 and 30.

Department requests name change

The Department of Electrical Engineering has requested to change its name to the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering.

"The change is motivated by the growth of computer engineering. It would be to recognize the growth we have in that option," said Donald Hummels, head of the department.

The name change would have to first be cleared by the Faculty Senate, the administration and by the Board of Regents.

If passed, Hummels was unsure of when the name change would go into effect.

Hummels said that four other schools in the Big Eight have already instituted the similar name change, including the University of Kansas, University of Colorado, University of Oklahoma, and Iowa State University. He added that about 45 schools across the country have also made the change.

Including computer engineering in electrical engineering departments is a common change, Hummels said.

Professor named engineer of year

Harry S. Manges, associate professor of agricultural engineering, has been named Engineer of the Year by the Kansas section of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE). He was presented the award during the October meeting of ASAE in Topeka. Criteria for the award included field activity, promotion of professionalism and involvement.

Manges has been a K-State faculty member for 27 years. He earned bachelor's and master's degrees from K-State and was named assistant professor in 1963. He received his doctorate degree from Oklahoma State University in 1969.

He is a member of the American Society for Engineering Education and the Soil Conservation Society of America and is a registered professional engineer in Kansas.

Senate advised against funding judging teams

By LAURI DIEHL
Collegian Reporter

The activities of student government parallel those of real life.

That was what Kansas Rep. Joe Knopp, R-Manhattan, told Student Senate at its meeting Thursday night. Knopp was the 1973-74 student body president and is currently serving his second term in the Kansas Legislature.

The way any issue is handled, he said, depends on the personality of the people involved as much as the merit of the issue.

Following his speech, Knopp answered questions. Several dealt with the proposed change in the drinking age that was considered by the legislature last session.

There is a chance the issue will be raised in the next legislative session, Knopp said.

"There may be enough momentum left from last session to make it an issue again," he said.

Knopp said he does not support raising the drinking age although he might in the future.

"If there are significant statistics presented that show consumption of 3.2 beer by 18-year-olds, as opposed to those who are 19 or 21, causes more accidents and more drinking in high schools, it might make me argue differently," he said.

In other business, senate heard first reading on a bill requesting

Kansas senators split vote on reactor

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Here's how Kansas' senators voted Wednesday in the 56-40 roll call by which the Senate killed an amendment that would have authorized $1.5 billion to complete work on the Clinch River Breeder Reactor in Tennessee.

On this vote, a vote "for" was a vote against the reactor, while a vote "against" was a vote for the reactor.

Republican voting for: Kassebaum.

Republican voting against: Dole.

House appropriates $11.9 billion

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House passed by voice vote Thursday an $11.9 billion appropriations bill with provisions to "stem the tide" of illegal drugs from abroad and restrict abortion coverage for federal employee health plans serving nine million Americans.

The legislation would finance the Treasury Department, the Postal Service, the Customs Service, the president's office and other agencies for fiscal 1984.

The bill, which went to the Senate, was $299.7 billion more than the amount requested by the Reagan administration.

The abortion provision is similar to an anti-abortion restriction in the Medicaid program for low-income Americans.

It would apply to the approximately 130 health plans serving the federal government's 2.8 million employees and their more than six million dependents.

The anti-drug war would be bolstered by restoration of $52.7 million and 1,775 positions the Reagan administration wants to cut from the Customs Service.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BLOODMOBILE COLLECTION is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today on the Union second floor. Walk-ins will be accepted.

SIGMA DELTA PI will be selling T-shirts from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. today through Nov. 1 outside Eisenhower 106. Anyone is welcome to look at sample shirts.

STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS: All undergraduate students in a health-related degree program are eligible to apply for a Student Cancer Research Award of $500. These awards have been made available by the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Division of Biology. Applications are now available in Ackert 233. Deadline is Nov. 28.

GOLDEN KEY NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY APPLICATIONS are due Sunday.

TODAY

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Christian A. Okonko at 9:30 a.m. in Waters 230.

TAU BETA PI PLEDGE BOOKS are due at 5 p.m. in Durland 237.

STUDENT/FACULTY DANCE CONCERT is at 8 tonight and Saturday night at Manhattan Middle School, 9th and Poyntz.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI meets at 4 p.m. at Dark Horse for a pledge paddle signing party.

WOMEN'S RESOURCE CENTER AND WOMEN'S STUDIES meet at noon in Union 213. Pat Hook will speak on "Witches as Herbalists."

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS meets at 5:30 p.m. at Last Chance Restaurant.

FELLOWSHIP OF CHRISTIAN ATHLETES AND ICHTHUS FELLOWSHIP meet at 6:45 p.m. outside Danforth Chapel for a hayride and bonfire.

SUNDAY

KSU PEO meets at 5 p.m. in the East Stadium parking lot in costume. A meeting follows at 6 p.m. at 1741 Anderson Ave.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA PLEDGE CLASS sponsors a chili supper at the Alpha Chi house at 5:30 p.m. Tickets are sold at the door for $2.50.

ECUMENICAL CHRISTIAN MINISTRIES meets at 5:30 p.m. at 1021 Denison for a Sunday supper and program.

RHOMATES meet at 6:30 p.m. at the Alpha Gamma Rho house. Bake sale and Halloween party follow the meeting.

COLLEGIATE 4-H meets at 7 p.m. at 734 Poyntz for a Halloween costume party. Everyone is welcome.

K-LAIRES meet at 7 p.m. in Union K, S and U rooms.

ARTS AND SCIENCES AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS meet at 9 p.m. in the Union Big Eight Room.

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

Division of Continuing Education

INTRODUCTION TO PERSONAL COMPUTERS

If you have questions about personal computer capabilities, or are just plain curious, this information-packed, six-week, hands-on course provides the fundamental overview you seek. Learn about: computer components and terminology, how to program in BASIC, wordprocessing, and popular software packages.

FEE: $60

DAYS AND DATES: Tuesdays, Nov. 8 to Dec. 13

TIME: 7 to 9 p.m.

9 to 10 p.m., optional lab time

Location to be announced at registration.

Sponsored by the KSU Community Activities Program

*More classes planned for January, including youth classes*

Call 532-5566 to register for this session and call 532-5370 to get on next session's mailing list.

HAVE STORY OR PHOTO IDEA?
"HAND 'EM OVER"
CALL THE COLLEGIAN
532-6555

Loneliness Is God's
Opportunity To Show His Fullness
And Your
Opportunity To Find Relief For
Your Distant
Pain.
Together You Can
Be A Winning
Combination.
Reference (John 14:1-27)

The Assembly
1400 Vattier on campus
ALL FAITHS CHAPEL
Sunday Morning 10:30 A.M.
Sunday Evening 6:00 P.M.

The DOWN UNDER
515 RICHARDS DRIVE — UNDER WILDCAT LANES

FRIDAY
MAKE YOUR OWN TACOS
4 p.m.-7 p.m.

Gary returns with
hits from 50's & 60's.
7:30-???

DOWN UNDER CLUB
515 Richards
(under Wildcat Lanes)
For reservations call 539-0230

COMMONWEALTH THEATRES
MOVIE MARQUEE

West Loop 7:00 Only	Daily at 7:00 Only	R
—Separate Admission—
"Under Fire"	"Zelig"	Daily at 9:30 Only
West Loop 7:10 and 9:10	Daily at 7:10 and 9:10	R
"Dead Zone"
Campus 7:00 & 9:00	Daily at 7:00 & 9:00	R
"All the Right Moves"
Wareham 7:00 & 9:30	Daily at 7:00 & 9:30	PG
"Never Say Never Again"
Varsity 7:00 & 9:00	Daily at 7:00 & 9:00	R
"Richard Pryor, Here and Now"

NOW OPEN

IF in need of . . .

Cards
Specialty Gifts
Stationery
Desk Accessories
Unique Pastries
OPENING SPECIAL
Halloween Make-up

We have . . .

the answer
gifts • cards • stationery

at: FirstBank Center
1812 Clifton
Manhattan, KS 66502

Phi Phi Pumpkin Patch
OCT 29 1983

Happy Halloween to our dates
Get ready to have a "terror"ific time tomorrow night!!

MCCAIN
AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

London
Early Music
Group

"Lively, elegant and irresistible . . ."
—The Herald (Melbourne)

SATURDAY, NOV. 5, 8 p.m.
ALL FAITHS CHAPEL
Tickets Available at McCain Box Office,
M-F noon to 5 p.m., 532-6428

SUNDAY
SUPPER

5:30 p.m. 1021 Denison Ave.
50¢ or Free if necessary
Program begins at 6:45 p.m.
"Pros and Cons of Being Clergy"

Wini Nunson, Robert Carlson,
Steve Hughes, Ron Clingenpeel
& Jeff DeYoe

ECUMENICAL
CHRISTIAN
MINISTRIES

Buy A Bacon Double Cheeseburger and get a Whopper Jr.
FREE

BURGER KING

Please present this coupon before ordering. Limit one coupon per customer. Not to be used with other coupons or offers. This offer expires 11/3/83. Good only at the Burger King restaurant, 3rd and Poyntz, downtown Manhattan, KS.

Burger King—Reg. U.S. Pat. & TM Off 1982 Burger King Corporation

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $35, calendar year; $30, academic year; $15, semester; $7, summer term. Address changes should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

THE COLLEGIAN functions in a legally autonomous relationship with the University and is written and edited by students serving the University community.

Editor..... Paul Hanson
Managing Editor..... Sandy Lang
Photography Editor..... Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager..... John McGrath

Career day assists recreation students

By MATT MCMILLEN
Collegian Reporter

Approximately 23 recreational agencies were represented Thursday at the eighth annual K-State Recreation Career Day in the Union Courtyard.

"The main purpose of Recreation Career Day is to help the students in the recreation field," said Karleen Kaufman, junior in recreation and Career Day chairman. "It helps them to familiarize themselves with the different fields in recreation and also with different agencies and functions."

From 9 a.m. until noon, the representatives from the various recreational agencies were available for student questions and had displays set up in the Union courtyard. The displays included slide presentations, posters, picture albums and other visual displays.

Following a luncheon in the Cottonwood Room, the representatives moved to the second floor of the Union, where some conducted prearranged interviews, and others were available to answer questions.

"The interviews are for those seeking a pre-internship or internship in the recreation field," Kaufman said. "We have about 60 students signed up for this afternoon."

Paige Howard and Dave Seymour, 1981 K-State graduates, represented Lifewise, a community service of St. Luke's Hospital in Kansas City, Mo., at the event.

"We mainly do this kind of thing for promotion," said Seymour, Lifewise facility manager. "We don't do this a whole lot, but we have three interviews this afternoon."

"Attendance was pretty good," Kaufman said, "but it wasn't as good as I had hoped."

Three other schools in the state were represented, including Pittsburg State University, Emporia State University and the University of Kansas. Other groups attending included K-State Recreational Services, McConnell Air Force Base, the Omaha YMCA and the Topeka State Hospital.

Senate votes to limit U.S. borrowing

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate, trying to force a solution to the record federal deficit, on Thursday rejected the Reagan administration's request for a $225.6 billion increase in government borrowing authority.

Instead, by a 70-15 vote, the Senate tentatively approved only enough borrowing authority for another two months. That period may be reduced further when the Senate resumes consideration of the debt-limit bill Friday.

However, such changes mean the bill will have to be considered again by the House, where the measure always faces tremendous opposition. With the $1.389 trillion borrowing authority due to be exceeded on Tuesday, any delay could produce a considerable amount of trouble for the Treasury Department as it borrows to cover bills already incurred.

The Finance Committee had approved the administration's request to routinely boost the borrowing authority to $1.615 trillion, which, it is anticipated, would carry the government through next September. But Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., saying drastic action was needed to force Congress to reduce the record federal deficit, offered the successful amendment to raise the debt limit to $1.45 trillion — only enough to last until January.

Armstrong and his supporters reasoned that limiting the government's credit would force Congress and President Reagan to raise revenues and cut spending to reduce the deficit.

Only a short time before that vote, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Finance Committee, and three of its members had proposed a package of spending cuts and tax increases that would cut the deficit by $120 billion over the next three years.

The plan would reduce cost-of-living adjustments for Social Security and federal retirement systems, raise taxes by $56 billion and give the president emergency authority, after the 1984 election, to cut spending for individual programs by 15 percent. The automatic annual individual income tax reductions scheduled to start taking effect in 1985 would be limited for two years.

Dole told reporters he has solicited support from other members of the Senate leadership. "I can't say people are jumping with joy but there is a very positive response for doing something," he said.

Added Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., another sponsor: "Time is running out and this is the only act in town" for reducing the record federal deficits that many authorities say threatens the current period of economic recovery.

Also endorsing the plan at a news conference were Sens. David Boren, D-Okla., and Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo.

No one is predicting passage of the Dole plan. President Reagan has stated repeatedly his opposition to higher taxes despite the record deficits. And House leaders have been stymied so far in their efforts to pass a much smaller tax package.

The current mind-boggling debt limit of $1.389 trillion is the accumulation of all federal deficits over the years. Without some marked changes in government policies, the debt is expected to hit $2 trillion by 1986. Dole said he finds that prospect unacceptable.

The plan he is proposing would require sacrifice of all Americans, he said, and assures $1 of spending cuts for each $1 of tax increases.

Legislator proposes new prosecutor system

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Concern about Kansas' overloaded county-attorney system, staffed by prosecutors who are generally inexperienced, is prompting House Minority Leader Fred Weaver to pre-file a proposal to create a statewide felony prosecutor system.

Weaver, D-Baxter Springs, announced Thursday his intention to introduce bills to the 1984 Kansas Legislature that would set up a Felony Prosecutors Division within the attorney general's office. He said such a division would "complement the current system and, at the same time, relieve county attorneys of some of their ever-increasing burdens."

"I am not recommending the elimination of the county-attorney system or of the four district attorneys," Weaver said in a prepared statement. "I believe that it is a good system but one that we have overloaded with responsibilities."

"Because many of these (county) attorneys are relatively new to the practice of law, they cannot handle all of the responsibilities without some assistance. Many are so frustrated that they leave with the first opportunity."

Weaver suggested the felony division operate with the attorney general's office to ensure good communication and cooperation between the felony prosecutor and the Kansas Bureau of Investigation.

His plan calls for a "qualified, experienced prosecutor in every judicial district that currently does not have a district attorney." They would handle all felony cases and be paid by the state. County attorneys are elected positions funded by each county.

"Currently, in the case of indigent defense, the state encourages the procurement of the best defense lawyer available at no cost to the defendant," Weaver said. "I strongly believe that it is time the state recognize its obligation to seek out and fund the best prosecution system."

The person selected to run the felony division would coordinate prosecution and legal work with the attorney general's office and the KBI, and offer support services to felony prosecutors out across the state.

"It is my understanding that maybe as many as 30 states have a statewide system and I believe that it is time we join them," Weaver said.

Except for the division head, each felony prosecutor would be a classified civil servant, under Weaver's plan, to attract career prosecutors. The felony prosecutors would free the county attorneys, many of whom work just part time, to handle misdemeanors, civil cases involving their counties and provide counsel to their county commissions.

J.C. Penney approves store in proposed mall

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Reporter

One of the final obstacles to the preliminary approval of Manhattan's $10 million Urban Development Action Grant was removed Thursday when the J.C. Penney Capital Appropriations Committee approved establishing a store in the proposed downtown mall.

Department of Housing and Urban Development officials placed high importance on the J.C. Penney decision because the store would be one of two major "anchor" stores in the mall.

J.C. Penney officials in New York could not be reached for comment Thursday afternoon, but Community Development Director Gary Stith confirmed information about the approval.

The pro forma, or developer's cost list, for the mall indicates that J.C. Penney would pay $3.85 per square foot annually to rent 67,000 square feet in the mall. The Jones Store Co., the other anchor store, would pay $4.80 a square foot for a 72,000 square foot facility.

Rent for the Jones Store is higher because mall developer Forest City Enterprises would have to pay $1 a million to put fixtures in the building, Stith said earlier this week.

Other stores that might rent the remaining 170,500 square feet would have to pay more than the Jones Store or J.C. Penney, however.

Rent for other stores would be $14.90 per square foot, the pro forma indicates. The total includes a base figure of $13, plus 40 cents to pay for mall air conditioning, 89 cents for air conditioning in rented space, 21 cents for sprinkler system rental and 40 cents for utilities.

The base figure would remain the same for the first three years the mall operates, then increase a dollar the fourth and eighth years, according to the pro forma. The first 10 years of mall operation are shown on the list.

This rent total means a 1,000 square foot store would pay $14,900 in years one, two and three; $15,900 in years four, five, six and seven; and $16,900 in years eight, nine and 10.

Mel Roebuck, Forest City vice president, would not comment on the rent figures in the pro forma. Stith also refused to comment.

"I consider that confidential information," Roebuck said.

An announcement concerning the fate of the UDAG request is expected today.

TGIF DRINKING TEAMS!

TODAY:
PHI DELTS
VS.
AKLS
AGRS
ATOS

LAST WEEK'S WINNERS:
SIG EPS and ACACIAS!

KITE'S BAR AND GRILL

22 TGIF PITCHERS 1-7 P.M.!

THE Pizzeria 776-0004

Fast and Free Delivery
Sunday-Thursday 5:00 p.m.-1:00 a.m.
Fri.-Sat. 5:00 p.m.-2:00 a.m.

*The Halloween Weekend Special

THE Pizzeria 776-0004 $6.80 Large 16" Pizza with one topping tax included

One coupon per pizza Valid Oct. 28/29/30/31

The Great Glee Club Battle

**** All Faiths Chapel KSU vs NU October 28 8:00 p.m. ****

Tickets $2.50 each
Available at the door
or from any
Glee Club member

Brother's AGGIEVILLE

11th ANNUAL HALLOWEEN PARTY

—AGGIE'S FIRST, BEST AND CRAZIEST AFFAIR—
Monday, October 31st—Noon to Midnight

Featuring
LIVE DJ
by Lunar Tunes
PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHER PLUS
• CONTESTS •
Banana Race
Apple Bobbing
Pie Eating
OUR FAMOUS DECORATIONS

BEER SPECIALS
• 2 FREE KEGS
• 2 FERS, 12 p.m.-7 p.m.
• FIRST 300 PEOPLE
after 6 p.m. receive a
FREE BUD LIGHT MUG

• PRIZES •
Weekend Passes and Discounts
NO COVER CHARGE
WITH COSTUME

This Weekend — Rock 'n Roll with PLAIN JANE

1120 Moro 539-9064

RIDE OUR STADIUM BUSES!

Stadium or Bust

• Buses Start Noon Sat. (only $1 round trip)!

KITE'S BAR AND GRILL MRK'S

ROCKY K BAR Apple STATION LAST CHARGE

All Places Open 10 a.m. and Serving Food Before Game!

ALLEY SPECIALS

FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR
$1.25 House Drinks 55¢ Draws
Hors d'oeuvres 4-8

SAT. COME PARTY BEFORE AND AFTER THE GAME

—Open at 9:00 a.m.
—Happy Hour Prices
—Build your own sandwich at the "Alley's" Sandwich Bar

MEL'S

TAVERN SPECIALS
FRIDAY TGIF TILL 7:00

Free painter hat
with pitcher purchase.

SAT. KEEP ON TRACKIN TO MEL'S
HAPPY HOUR
9 a.m.-6 p.m.
Come Party With Us.

THE BEST PAIR IN TOWN

Our sluggish Congress

President Reagan made some more enemies in Congress with the invasion of Grenada. Congressional Democrats were upset that Reagan failed to comply with the War Powers Act because he waited until a few hours after the attack to notify them of his intentions.

Now the House Foreign Affairs Committee has voted to apply the time limits of the War Powers Act to the U.S. troops in Grenada.

While we applaud Congress for setting a relatively short time limit on the U.S. stay in Grenada, and realizing that the Democrats' accusation is true, we think perhaps Reagan was smart to go through with the invasion without Congressional knowledge. Had he taken the matter to Congress and waited for approval, there is no telling when or if anything would have been done in the matter.

Thus, it is difficult to condemn the president's failure to consult with the legislative branch of the government. Many congressmen have a tendency to get overly emotional about issues and let those emotions rule their judgment. Others will say anything for a vote. Examples are available in profusion in responses to the Beirut attack.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Until we have congressmen who are capable of keeping their heads on their shoulders and who realize that we live in a world of conflict, we cannot expect quick, logical solutions to the nation's problems.

Reagan was not right to neglect consulting Congress about the invasion of Grenada. But his solution was right, if he only leaves the troops for a short while, and it wouldn't have been achieved had he consulted Congress.

But we should consider our mission complete with the release of all American civilians from the island, even though our ambassador to the United Nations, Jeane Kirkpatrick, said Wednesday that the U.S. will never accept a resolution against American presence in Grenada. This sounds to us too much like the comments of the Soviet ambassador with respect to Afghanistan. What, we wonder, makes our continued presence in Grenada justifiable, especially in the eyes of the rest of the world, while we condemn the Soviets each time they move into an area?

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

College before the regents' cuts

"Grandpa, tell me again about when you were in college. Please."

The grandfather rose from his chair and looked at his grandson. He'd told this story many times, but he loved the little boy asking to hear it again. It made him feel young to recall his college days.

"Well, boy, it was quite a spell back when I first set foot in college. It was a hot August day — not like now, with all the fancy-dancy air conditioning gizmo things we have now. No, boy, we went to school in hot classrooms."

He knew this always fascinated the boy. He'd never experienced the heat of a Kansas summer, what with all the air coolers whizzing around.

"Grandpa, talk about your classes," the boy whined. "I know all about the heat. You always start out talking about that."

The grandfather sat down in his rocking chair and thought for a few minutes.

"Which classes do you want to know about?"

"The ones you had with all the other people who were there."

"You mean the ones who weren't in my major?" the grandfather asked, trying to discern what the boy wanted him to say.

"Yeah, grandpa, those classes."

"Hmm...well, I had a few classes which had people in different majors. I had a speech class which had engineers, business folks, agronomists, teaching majors, pre-vets — all kinds of people. We had a good time, giving speeches and learning about each other."

The grandfather rocked the creaky chair back and forth while remembering his long forgotten classmates.

"Grandpa, what happened? Why don't engineers have classes with speech majors anymore?"

That question caught the grandfather off guard. His grandson hadn't asked that question before. Guess the kid must be growing up after all, the grandfather thought.

"The Board of Regents, the folks who control the schools, decided there was too much duplication of classes and majors. The state was strapped for money, and doing away with this duplication seemed like an easy way to save money."

"Did it affect you, grandpa?"

"Oh, not really. I was in my senior year — that means my last year, boy — when the regents began cutting the programs. No, boy, I got out early, before the damage was done."

The grandfather laughed. His grandson looked puzzled.

"You see, it was thought the regents could do away with 'duplication' at the state's schools without harming anyone," the grandfather said. "They thought it would be permissible to let schools achieve 'specialty' areas. K-State..."

"What's that?" the grandson asked.

"K-State was the name of the college I attended."

"Oh, but grandpa, it's now called 'Kansas Agriculture, Architecture, Engineering, Home Economics and Veterinary Medicine Institute,'" the grandson said.

"Yes, that's what they call it now, but back in my time, its name was 'Kansas State University of Agriculture and Applied Science.' We called it K-State for short."

"Anyway," the grandfather said, continuing his story, "the regents began to cut back on programs for associate degrees at the schools. I thought this was all right because I went to a junior college..."

"A what?"

"A community college," the grandfather said, correcting himself. "When I first entered college, I went to a junior college. They changed the name of them to community college so people wouldn't think of them as inferior places."

"These community colleges offer associate degrees, vocational training and general education classes. The regents, in their infinite wisdom, decided to rid the state's universities of the associate programs and let the community colleges offer them."

"But grandpa," the grandson asked, "why did they cut speech out of your school?"

"Because every school had to drop something. K-State used to have colleges of Arts and Sciences and Education — good colleges, too. The year I graduated, K-State placed more teachers in jobs than any other school in the state. Damn fools, they had to mess with something that worked."

The grandson looked at his grandfather. He'd never heard him so angry before.

"Grandpa, what happened to these colleges? Did Kansas Liberal Arts Institute get them?"

"No, boy, Emporia got the education college. KU got the arts and sciences college. At least K-State kept more programs than did KU...I mean, Kansas Liberal Arts Institute."

"Boy, they messed up the whole system. They always told us the reason we went to college was to get a 'well-rounded' education. How can you learn about engineering if you're holed up in another school 90 miles away just because you want to be a historian? It just doesn't make sense."

"I read the other day that the regents are still cutting academic programs. I don't know how much more they can cut — it's thin enough now."

"But grandpa, all the schools have athletic teams," the grandson said. "Why don't they get rid of them?"

"Money and pressure."

"What?"

"C'mon, boy, don't you know anything? The athletic programs bring in money. Why do you think the regents voted to rebuild the football stadium, in order to seat 80,000, while they were cutting my college out and giving it to Emporia? People don't pay to see teachers being trained."

"That's also why there's a new coliseum at K-State. When I was there, we had Ahern Field House. Ahern was a large limestone barn, but it had character. Boy, we could whoop it up in there when the 'Cats played basketball."

"What about the old coliseum?" the grandson asked. "Didn't they build it while you were there?"

"No. They just collected money from the students and had faculty and alumni donate to build it. The problem was, when they finished the building, it only held 16,000 people, while 20,000 wanted tickets."

"Since the alumni raised the major portion of the money, they wanted the choice seats. The students rebelled, and the regents ruled that a new coliseum had to be built in order to accommodate the students. They never used the old one — I think the vets use it to operate on horses now."

Both grandfather and grandson laughed at the thought of 14,000 veterinarians watching an operation in the old coliseum.

"Will there be a college when I get old enough?" the grandson asked.

"I hope so, boy. I hope so."

Letters

K-State radio club not guilty of misuse

Editor,
I was deeply concerned about the article "FCC warns against misuse of ham radios" which appeared in the Thursday, Oct. 27 Collegian. Being the communications manager of the KSU Amateur Radio Club and having held a ham license for eight years, it surprised me that this article even appeared in the newspaper. I felt that the KSUARC was slapped in the face by the presentation of this AP article in our paper. I can guarantee that no such offenses have occurred in our radio club. Our log book confirms that. As a matter of fact, William H. Dawes, assistant professor of engineering technology and KSUARC faculty advisor, and Gary L. Johnson, associate professor of electrical engineering and KSUARC license trustee, both work very hard to see that our operations are legal and have a positive impact on the University community.

The KSUARC provides communications for many events sponsored by the University and the city of Manhattan every year. The club was established in 1927 and receives no financial support from SGA. The members of the club are very proud of the vital service we provide.

I, for one, wonder why that article was printed in our paper. The Collegian, as I understand it, is supposed to inform the students and faculty of the University about pertinent national and University news. I don't believe that article fits into either category. I suspect that it was used to fill blank space. I simply don't think it should have been printed because it doesn't apply to anyone on campus. Do us all a favor by using the blank space for something useful.

Doug Howard
Senior in electrical engineering

Khomeini loyalists should stay in Iran

Editor,
I am so sick of walking through the Union and seeing the Islamic table set up in front of a large picture of a beaming, serene Khomeini that proclaims Islam as the "Guidance of the World." Actually, I thought the picture at the other Iranian table with the blood dripping from Khomeini's fangs and claws was a much better likeness.

I just don't understand why, if Islam is such a good system, they don't go home and live under it. Please don't misunderstand me. The majority of the foreign students at K-State (the ones I know anyway) are great people whose cultural differences add to the flavor of campus life. But I am tired of seeing my country exploited by people who would so obviously rather not be here, (exploited in the sense that people who earn American degrees and then depart are taking human resources out of our country). Isn't it ironic? They are extolling a regime in which executions and tortures are commonplace while enjoying the benefits of freedom, some 10,000 miles removed from the harsh realities of Islamic life.

It would seem to me that such dedication and loyalty to Khomeini and his cause could be better served at home. At any rate, it would give the other middle-Eastern students more space to continue their educations and decide how they want to run things when the fighting is over and the dust has cleared — and the fanatics are gone.

Josie Taylor
Sophomore in radio-television

Patriotism brought about American rights

Editor,
I've heard it all now. I can't imagine how anyone could think that the United States is trying to protect its interests in other countries without the knowledge of the American people. I am referring to the draft registration process and the letter to the editor written by Chris Wolff.

Wolff somehow received the notion that the card attached to the notification letter is somehow a draft card. If Wolff would read the article by Brian La Rue, and maybe understand some of what he is reading, he would notice that it specifically states that it is not a draft card. Although I don't agree with La Rue, the second paragraph of his article proves my point.

I am really disturbed about the way some of the American people think. I hear people on street corners preaching some type of religion who don't realize that if it weren't for the few American people, whether they believed in the cause or not, who fought to protect their rights, despite the unpatriotic efforts by those such as Wolff, the rights would not exist.

Wolff says that until he can fight for something he believes in, his notification of draft registration card will burn, and he won't leave this country. It would suit me just fine if he burned the card and got out of my country, which I will try so hard to protect.

Calvin F. Schaffer
Freshman in political science
Private in the United States
Army National Guard

Jam sessions

Down through the years I have always been caught up by the rhythm and beat of jazz. The memories I have about jazz could fill a book. How I heard Bob Scobey and the Yerba Buena Jazz Band play for a white tie and tails fraternity party in Berkeley, Calif., which Mina Cooper and I crashed after a Cal-UCLA football game. Or the year that Dave Brubeck lived in the same run-down ocean apartment in Santa Monica as did a friend of mine. The time I met Peggy Lee (before she was famous) and wrote a column about her for a pictorial magazine in Pennsylvania, predicting she would be a star someday. How in 1942 Bunny Berrigan played to only 46 people in the Sunnybrook Ballroom on a night of freezing sleet the weekend before he died.

When I was in the Army in 1945 and 1946, I used to go to New York City on weekend passes — into Greenwich Village to hear Eddie Condon and Max Kaminsky, or uptown to Harlem to hear Coleman Hawkins and Lionel Hampton.

I've not gone to hear just the famous people; I've also gone to hear the lesser-knowns, the has-beens, musicians coming back after years of absence, from all of whom came some of the finest jazz ever created. Edgar Hayes and Teddy Bunn at the Somerset House in Riverside, Calif. (that place is no more; it was torn down to make room for a freeway). Horace and Harris and Junior and Rosetta, who played regularly at the Monte Vista near Pomona, Calif. (the Monte Vista is no more either; there is now a suburban town built on what was the desert wash behind it). At one Sunday afternoon Monte Vista jam session, Charlie Parker showed up with his saxophone without anyone knowing he was coming. He and that unknown band jammed their way to the stars past midnight.

When I was a student at UCLA, Kid Ory played every weekend at the Beverly Caverns on Beverly Boulevard in Los Angeles. Kid Ory had been famous in the very early days of New Orleans jazz right alongside Louis Armstrong and Sidney Bechet. He had fallen into obscurity during the hard times of the 1930s. Orson Welles found him working as a parking-lot attendant and helped bring him back into public notice. He spent the last years of his life playing in that joint on Beverly Boulevard.

In those days I didn't have much money. On Sundays I would walk the nine miles from Westwood Village where I lived to the Beverly Caverns, arriving in time for the afternoon jam session. I would sit at a table next to the bandstand, buy one bottle of beer, nursing it through the entire afternoon and night. I would go without any supper. I learned to know the men in the band; they became my friends. Finally, one evening the manager of the place told me I could no longer take up that table — if all I was going to do was buy only one bottle of beer. Kid Ory overheard that, whereupon he took a pile of tattered sheet music off a chair at the edge of the bandstand, plopped the chair down right in front of the manager and said, "This chair here is for Joel!" After that, the manager left me alone. For a little more than a year, I went down to the Beverly Caverns on Sunday afternoons at least twice a month. I even stopped buying that one bottle of beer.

That night of thick freezing sleet in 1942 when I heard Bunny Berrigan merits description. His band was to have come to Sunnybrook Ballroom in two buses. Only one bus made it — with Berrigan and just half the band. The bad weather had affected the size of the crowd. Only about 150 people had come. After a hurried consultation with Ray Hartenstein, the owner of Sunnybrook, Berrigan stepped to the microphone and told the small crowd a refund would be given to those who had paid admission, then added that if anyone wanted to stay to hear him jam with half his band they were welcome. I counted the number who remained. Only 46 of us. Berrigan jammed that night until four in the morning. At one point he and his band jammed "I Can't Get Started With You" (that song which always had been his theme and trademark) for more than 30 minutes.

I talked with him several times during the course of the evening. His conversation was almost monosyllabic. His clothes were badly rumpled, as if he had been sleeping in them for several days. He needed a shave. He wore no tie. Frequently he took a healthy swig from a flask he carried in his pocket. At just before 4 a.m., Berrigan stopped and said, "That's all I'm going to play. I'm finished. Come, let's shake hands." The 46 of us filed past the bandstand to shake his hand. Two nights later, Berrigan played a dance at a hotel in Washington, D.C., and the following morning he suffered a sudden heart attack and died that afternoon.

But Bunny Berrigan's music is not dead. That will live as long as there are still records of "I Can't Get Started With You" and there are those such as myself with the memory of his greatness as a jazz musician. Nor will the music of Kid Ory die — or that of any other great jazz artist from the big band days. I think the music of all of them will live a lot longer than either me or you.

Obviously I like old-time jazz. But I'll never bad-mouth — at least not too much — rock or soul or country or all the rest of this modern stuff. After all, it would be a dull world indeed if we had nothing else to dance to except music from the pipes of Pan.

(Author's Note: This column and the earlier ones "Jumping to the Beat" and "A Secret Ambition" utilized selected material from a column I wrote in 1980 titled "And All That Jazz" which originally appeared in the May 1, 1980 issue of First Hills Journal.)

Comment

Some males need educations

Doris Grosh

Guest Commentary

I recently attended a meeting where some gripes were aired about certain posters in workrooms and graduate student offices which are a source of embarrassment to women students in two different departments.

A few days later, I was at a meeting with a faculty member of one of the offending departments. I told him of the concern that had been expressed, thinking he could be enlisted as an ally to help educate his colleagues. His reaction was an angry defense of the poster and a threat to forbid access to that workroom to anybody who objected to the posters.

Since that was not exactly the type of response I had hoped for, I have written him the following letter, hoping to help him understand things better from the female point of view. Readers who agree with my position are urged to write to me or just cut out this clipping and send it to me with your signature (optional). I will pass it along to those who need educating. I would welcome information from readers concerning other departments where such education is needed.

Dear Colleague:

To continue our conversation about the objections expressed by women students about the "pinup" posters (computer printout, etc.) in your department, let me see if I can explain it to you gently. My desire is to help you understand and emphasize; not to force you into a soap-box position of "defending your rights" or of rescinding privileges from those who object to the "art."

It is always difficult to explain to men — the more "macho" the man, the more difficult — how besieged we females feel by the time we reach womanhood. From the time we are children, we are under frequent stress from defending ourselves from the pressure of male sexuality. We learn to walk with eyes cast demurely down, because an open glance can be interpreted as an invitation for a pickup. We learn to avoid groups of young (and not so young) men on the street because they so often issue degrading comments about our bodies. And please note: the more "complimentary" the comment, the more degrading it is to us because it casts us in the role of a piece of meat; to be graded as prime, choice, utility, etc.

The pinup art which men use to decorate their walls has no component of spirituality or intellectualism to it; it is a declaration that says, "I am first and foremost a sexual being and these pictures are my idea of a good piece of meat. Do you measure up?" It's like a leer. We don't want to be reminded constantly of male sexuality. It crops up everywhere we go — the pawing hands, the suggestive jokes, the threat of rape from both acquaintance and faceless stranger. The workplace (especially a university) needs to be a safe place for us to breathe free and never have to be aware of the sexuality of the male professors.

As for the demonstration computer printout which sparked our conversation, why need it be of a scantily clad female figure? Why not a dog or a building or a tree? Your answer will be that the female picture is already available; you said it has been in the computer for the past twenty years. This says that the men who wrote the original program had the same mentality that I'm talking about. Did they think they were honoring womanhood? If they want to honor womanhood, let them reproduce a picture of Helen Keller, Clara Barton, the Statue of Liberty or Mother Teresa.

Please don't feel any necessity to respond to this note. I don't want to generate any "yes, but..." responses or put you on the defensive. What I want is for you, and all the men who read this, to sit back, relax and mentally try for a few minutes to walk in our shoes. Pretend that you have a school-age daughter who has a male teacher. Imagine her going to his office and seeing there a girly poster. Envision her discomfort at the image her teacher is presenting of himself to her as an admirer of girls. Can you feel something of her discomfort?

(Editor's note: Doris Grosh is an associate professor of industrial engineering.)

Disputing creation theory

Robert Gendron

Guest Response

Louisiana has on the books a law which requires that creation science be given equal time with evolution in the biology classroom. Recently, the state Supreme Court ruled that passage of such a law affecting the school curriculum was within the legal authority of the legislature. The court did not consider the constitutionality of the law. That will now be decided in federal court. In an editorial column on Oct. 20, Brad Gillispie supported the side of the creationists in this case. I would now like to present the alternative side of this evolution/creation controversy.

The first of several points raised by Mr. Gillispie is the "mistake" of previous courts in considering evolution a scientific theory while classifying creation as a religious belief. Apparently, creationists want it both ways. They have argued both that creation and evolution are a) two alternative scientific theories, and b) two religious beliefs. Interestingly, these two mutually exclusive positions are often held by the same individuals. Among these are included not only Mr. Gillispie but notables such as Duane Gish of the Institute for Creation Research. Ignoring for the moment the contradiction in these two arguments, I will consider the merits of each one in turn.

Creation fails to meet several of the criteria necessary for a theory to be considered scientific. Most importantly, a scientific theory must be testable. This means that there must be some conceivable bit of evidence which, if it ever came to light, would thoroughly discredit the theory. Creation of course is based on the fundamental belief in an all-powerful Creator. This is a matter of faith and not vulnerable to disproof. An atheist may not believe that there is a god, but there is no way that he can prove that such a god does not exist. In contrast, it would not be difficult to disprove the theory of human evolution if it were wrong. For example, the presence of human and dinosaur fossils in the same geological strata would be inconsistent with evolutionary theory since humans are believed to have evolved long after the great reptiles went extinct. So far, such evidence has not been found.

A scientific theory should also be productive. By providing a new way of looking at the natural world, it raises questions which in turn lead to research and further understanding. That the evolutionary theory satisfies this criterion is evident from the increasing amount of work being done in the field. The theory is not, as characterized by Mr. Gillispie, a collection of a "few loose links" poorly supported by the available evidence. Rather, it is the most important and elegant unifying theme in biology. The evidence in support of it is quite strong and grows stronger every year. Mr. Gillispie points to disagreements among evolutionists as though this were a problem for the theory. But these disagreements are concerned only with "fine tuning" the theory. The general mechanism of evolution first proposed by Darwin (i.e. natural selection) and the evidence for human evolution are not in doubt. In fact, current controversies in evolution serve to emphasize my point that this is a healthy and vigorous field. Contrast this with creation. Christian creationists believe that all the important answers are in the Bible, leaving no room for inquiry or doubt. This is certainly not a productive theory in any scientific sense.

If creation does not qualify as science perhaps evolution can be classified as a religion. Here Mr. Gillispie's argument centers around the issue of whether secular humanism is a religion. The point is debatable. More importantly, it is irrelevant to the evolution/creation controversy. Although it may be true that secular humanists believe in evolution, it does not follow that all evolutionists are secular humanists. On the contrary, many evolutionists are devoutly religious. There is no conflict here; a belief in evolution does not preclude a belief in a supreme being. Nor of course does the theory require a belief in God. Quite simply, it is outside the domain of religion, or at least it should be.

In his closing argument, Mr. Gillispie appeals to our sense of fair play: "What is the danger of presenting both sides of an issue and letting the students make their decisions as to which they want to believe is the truth?" There are at least two objections to this appeal. First, the Louisiana law violates the constitutional separation of church and state since it favors the advancement of one religious doctrine over others. Proponents of this law are clearly interested only in the Christian version of creation though there are many alternatives. Second, it is an example of the attempt to legislate science. The Inquisition tried to do this in the days of Galileo and T.D. Lysenko tried to do this with genetics in Stalinist Russia. In both cases, science and scientist suffered. But no statutory decree can change the path of the earth around the sun or the laws of genetic inheritance. The immediate consequences of the creationist movement may not seem as drastic as in these examples, but as a scientist and educator I consider it an alarming trend. This is an alarm which I feel should be shared by everyone concerned with academic freedom, including the students of this campus.

(Editor's note: Robert P. Gendron is a research associate in the Division of Biology.)

Collegian Classifieds — Where K-State Shops

Le Mars Family Fun Center

Redeemable at LeMars Family Fun Center in Westloop Shopping Center.

Limit: One coupon per customer.

Aggieville

Expires October 31, 1983

FREE GAME COUPON Good for One FREE Game

Vista RESTAURANTS

WOODEN NICKELS ARE GREAT FOR TRICK OR TREATERS!

Each Wooden Nickel is good for a FREE regular size Vista Creme Cone. You get 10 for $1.50 (a $4.00 value). Good at any Vista Restaurant.

Price good through Oct. 31, 1983. While supplies last.

1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

MASTER MONEY

GOOD FOR 1 REGULAR SIZE

SALE OF THE WEEK

HIS & HERS

CALVIN KLEINS

HIS 28.95 & HERS 24.95

NOTICE!

This week only so come today.

Today's fashions

1207 Laramie St. Aggieville.

539-2011

Master Charge Visa

"BEER BASH"

Fri., Oct. 28

$6 at the door

Dance to

"Southern Star"

All Draw Beer Free

Mixed Drinks $1.00

Sponsored by Liederkrantz

Alma, KS

J. Riggs west inc.

Custom Cues Billiard Supplies

$100 PITCHERS

Thurs. 7-10 Fri. 2-6

We're proud to serve Bud, Bud Light & Busch on tap.

1983 Busch Open 8-Ball Tournament.

$1000 cash guarantee Nov. 4, 5 & 6

$12 entry fee

Limit 64 players

Congratulations to our manager, Kevin McNeil the new K-State 8-ball champ.

3rd Annual Cue Sale

20% off all cues in stock

776-8338

317 Payntz Ave. Downtown

LITE BEER AND SHOCKER MOUNTAIN PRESENT

Kansas Ski Week

IN WINTER PARK

January 2-9, 1984

97fm

SKI TRIP PACKAGES INCLUDE:

- 8 Days of ski rental
- 5 Nights lodging at condos
- 4 Days of lift tickets (Note cost schedule)
- Transportation
- Party at ski area one night with live band from Wichita
- On mountain party bar & grill
- Ski races and prizes for fastest college skier, best college team & skiers, fun race winners
- 2 hour ski lesson before December 1st at Shocker Mountain

For more information, call Shocker Mountain: (316) 689-3218. K-STATE

COST SCHEDULE:

$259 Maximum occupancy without 4 day lift tickets

$279 Maximum occupancy with 4 day lift tickets

$279 Minimum occupancy without 4 day lift tickets

$299 Minimum occupancy with 4 day lift tickets

Universities that will be represented are Wichita State, Kansas State, Kansas University, Washburn, Pittsburg State, Emporia State, Fort Hays State. Open to all Kansas College Students.

To register, contact one of our local representatives:

Todd Burnett 539-3857

Dave Hancock 776-2042

Maura McLaughlin 539-7452

Tammy Miller 539-7647

Chris Pravecek 776-2035

Susie Farris

MID SEASON

SUPER SALE

THIS WEEK THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY

Special Selection Womens Dresses 20% off Reg. Price 3 DAYS ONLY	Cute &amp; Warm Knock Around Fall Jackets 30% off Reg. Price 3 DAYS ONLY	Collections Womens Sportswear includes Fire Island, Devon, Country Suburbans, Koret 20 to 30% off Reg. Price 3 DAYS ONLY	Entire Stock Misses &amp; Junior Jeans 15% off Reg. Price 3 DAYS ONLY
ENTIRE STOCK College Town Coordinates 20 to 30% off Reg. Price Excellent Interview Suits 3 DAYS ONLY		ENTIRE STOCK Childrens Clothing 15% off Reg. Price Excludes Scout Supplies 3 DAYS ONLY
Special Collection Knit Leg Warmers 30% off Reg. Price 3 DAYS ONLY	Special Sale Womens Classic Twill Trousers Reg. $34.00 NOW $23.99 Sizes 5 to 15 3 DAYS ONLY	OPEN UNTIL 8:30 p.m. THURSDAY Broune's DOWNTOWN MANHATTAN

Briefly By the Associated Press

Capote guilty of drunken driving

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. — Author Truman Capote was sentenced to three years probation and fined $500 on Thursday after pleading guilty to drunken driving.

"I understand you are a talented writer, but you must recognize you have a problem," said Southampton Town Judge Paul Smith.

He told Capote that besides the probation and fine, he would not be eligible to apply for a New York driver's license for six months. And he ordered Capote to continue alcoholic counseling.

Capote, author of "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and "In Cold Blood," could have been sentenced to a year in jail.

Capote had been stopped July 1 by a Southampton policeman who said he saw the writer weaving down Daniels Lane in Bridgehampton, about half a mile from his home.

Capote was arrested and given a breath test, which measured the alcohol content in his blood at 0.14 percent. A person with a reading of 0.10 is considered legally drunk in New York State.

Capote said, outside the courtroom, "I pleaded guilty to this thing to get it out of the way, even though I know I wasn't drunk."

"I don't need a driver's license because I'm going to Europe to make a movie," he added.

Capote had been charged with driving without a license, but that charge was dismissed in a plea bargain arrangement.

Capote's New York driver's license was revoked in 1977 when he failed to complete a drunken driving program after a 1976 arrest.

Passengers take milestone flight

PARIS — At 9:01 a.m. Thursday, 25 years to the minute after Pan Am ushered in the jet age with daily trans-Atlantic flights to Paris, a Boeing 707 sister aircraft touched down at Le Bourget airport to celebrate aviation history.

International celebrities aboard the birthday flight included Jeanne Moreau, Marcel Marceau, Maureen O'Hara, Johnny Unitas and Floyd Patterson.

Passengers on the night flight that followed the same route as Pan Am's first jet flight a quarter of a century ago were greeted with a brass band, speeches and French champagne.

The plane was adorned with the same 1958-style markings as the original flight and stewardesses outfitted in the same navy-blue gabardine suits and pert caps served the same meal prepared by the chef at Maxim's.

The 1958 flight from New York to Paris took eight hours, 41 minutes, including the refueling stop in Gander, Newfoundland. Today's Boeing 747 jumbos cover the 3,634-mile distance in just 6 hours, 50 minutes.

Spilotro acquitted in torture killing

CHICAGO — Anthony Spilotro, alleged to be the Chicago mob's Las Vegas overseer, was acquitted Thursday of the torture-slayings of two men whose bodies were found in car trunks more than 20 years ago.

Circuit Judge Thomas J. Maloney rendered the verdict in a quiet courtroom, saying the testimony of the government's key witness, Frank Cullotta, was not credible.

Defense lawyers Herbert Barys and Oscar Goodman had sought a verdict of direct acquittal. They argued that the prosecution's case against Spilotro, 45, was so shaky that it should be dismissed out of hand.

But Maloney ruled the defense would have to present its case against government charges.

The defense repeatedly hammered away at the credibility of Cullotta, who has admitted involvement in more than 300 crimes, including perjury and four murders.

K-State professor leaves Grenada on final flight from island airport

By RHONDA WESSEL
Agriculture Editor

The last two seats on the last commuter plane to leave Grenada before the local military closed the airport was occupied by a United Nations official and a K-State professor.

Eli Posner, instructor of grain science and industry, left Grenada Oct. 18 on an eight-passenger plane. Other members of a U.N. delegation who were staying at the Grenada Beach Hotel, formerly a Holiday Inn before the government takeover, are "as far as I know, still there," Posner said.

"Just two of us got to leave. We got up early, about 6:00 a.m., and went to the airport. I didn't know if we were going to get out, but we got on the last plane out to St. Vincent," he said.

"All of the rest of them are still there. I don't know for sure. I haven't heard anything since I got back. I hope they're all safe," Posner said. "We were just lucky, I guess."

Posner and the U.N. delegation were in Grenada for a conference on milling and baking. The conference was sponsored by the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development. The conference, however, was canceled.

"We waited several days for several island government officials connected with grain trade and other milling industry officials to arrive. Jamaica, St. Lucia and Guyana were the only three countries to send representatives," Posner said.

The conference was canceled Oct. 18 because of low attendance. Posner said he believed some countries didn't participate because of tension between Grenada and its neighboring islands.

Posner and some U.N. officials celebrated his 46th birthday in a St. George pub. His birthday celebration was one night before the shoot-to-kill curfew which was imposed by the leftist Grenada government.

"Everything was very calm. In fact, I didn't feel I was in a revolution until I arrived at the hotel, (Monday morning). There was some tension among the conference group. Everyone was asking for news, and what was going on in Grenada," Posner said.

"We really didn't get to talk to the Police suspect former deputy in dual killings

By The Associated Press

GRANTS, N.M. — A bomb squad was called in Thursday to help remove two bodies from an elderly murder suspect's ranch, which police feared was guarded with booby traps as well as vicious dogs.

Gus Raney, a former deputy sheriff who claims to be 100 years old, was arrested on murder charges late Wednesday after officers discovered the bodies of two men on his ranch about 40 miles southeast of Grants, said Cibola County Sheriff Bill Driggers.

Assistant District Attorney Warren Harris said a bomb squad from the Albuquerque police department was called to the scene because of reports the area was booby-trapped.

He said authorities would not know how long the men had been dead until the bodies could be examined, but said a medical investigator estimated the victims had been dead about four days.

the Avalon HALLOWEEN PARTY Monday, Oct. 31
with STEVE, BOB & RICH

$1.25 SCREWDRIERS AND BLOODY MARY'S PLUS 50¢ DRAWS, 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. — COSTUME CONTESTS, CASH PRIZES

1120 Moro ***FREE TGIF TODAY with JOE QUINN—This Weekend THE ZOO*** 539-9703

Crossword By Eugene Sheffer

- ACROSS
- 1 Use a straw
  - 4 Pinnacle
  - 8 Equine game
  - 12 Bother
  - 13 Bard
  - 14 "Sobeit"
  - 15 Put off
  - 17 Window part
  - 18 Lofty
  - 19 Pub game
  - 20 Gunk
  - 22 Nautical marker
  - 24 Musical sound
  - 25 Mailing costs
  - 29 Breakfast item
  - 30 Blackthorns
  - 31 Keats work
  - 32 Traveler's mail home
  - 34 Zoo feature
  - 35 Sunbeams
  - 36 Did cobbling work
  - 37 Started
  - 40 Pork serving
  - 41 In the heart of
- 42 Highway marker
- 46 Mahjong piece
- 47 American lake
- 48 Behold
- 49 Polaris, e.g.
- 50 Cried
- 51 Assessment fruit
- DOWN
- 1 Vital fluid
  - 2 Altar words
  - 9 Sharif
  - 10 Gave for a time
  - 3 Bulletin board announcements
  - 4 Jonathan, e.g.
  - 5 Air-conditioned
  - 6 Chess pieces
  - 7 Riviera summer
  - 8 Tropical
  - 9 Sharif
  - 10 Gave for a time
  - 11 Folding money
  - 16 Domesticated
  - 19 Morse symbols
  - 20 Rung
  - 21 Ad symbol
  - 22 Cads
  - 23 Not new
  - 25 Bit of drama
  - 26 Stadium upright
  - 27 Border
  - 28 Sow
  - 30 Look over
  - 33 Merchant
  - 34 Pen up
  - 36 Bed cover
  - 37 Belfry contents, often
  - 38 Give off
  - 39 Western "monster"
  - 40 Paper fastener
  - 42 Kitten cry
  - 43 Fury
  - 44 Ocean
  - 45 Singer
- Avg. solution time: 24 min.
- ALPS CAM ISLE
FLAT ALI REEL
AMIR PAS ARTY
RENOIR LONG
BRIGADIER WAGES RIDAIDS
ALES SOD ONCE
TAN ETA ACTED
LIEUTENANT
ERICA STORES
ELAN LOP BOMBS
LILT EVE REEDS
MESA RAN REEDS

CRYPTOQUIP

10-28

DLHDLFY DUQEYS KZQA DUQZY; ALS
QHU EQQVTSF KQZ ATDDTSF ETSV.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — WHERE THE SNUG GEOLOGIST COULD BE TAKING 40 WINKS — A BED ROCK.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: Q equals O.

Family peddles pumpkins for profit

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Reporter

Legend has it that people in olden times carried jack-o'-lanterns on the eve of All Saints' Day to ward off evil spirits in the night.

Hundreds of years later, the evil spirits are but figments of a distant generation's imagination. But the gourds they carried live on as a Halloween tradition.

Evidence of this can be found in front of the Dutch Maid Super-Market, 1522 Poyntz Ave., where Cindy Parker and family brave the elements and sometimes real-life spooks to sell pumpkins.

"For the most part, it's pretty fun," Parker said.

She takes turns running the business with her sister, Sherri Silva, and Aurelio and Maria Silva, Sherri's father- and mother-in-law. All are Manhattan residents.

This is the first year Parker's family has sold pumpkins. Sherri was awarded the contract by Dutch Maid two days before learning she had a job at a local department store. The rest of the family has helped to operate the stand since the end of September.

Operating a successful pumpkin business requires hours of hard work and many sleepless nights in a small trailer adjacent to the pumpkins to ensure none will be stolen, Parker said. Thus far, there have been no serious problems with vandals or pumpkin thieves, she said.

The trailer, which is manned around the clock by at least one family member, contains all the conveniences of home, Parker said. All, that is, except a working toilet, a problem she said will have to be remedied if they operate the stand next year.

In the meantime, other family members usually arrive in time to take over the person's shift, or in emergencies, the toilet can be used, she said.

Problems with after-hours visitors have been minimal, Parker said. Most are just stopping to use the pay phone that doubles as the family's business and "home" phone, she said.

But on certain nights, they must keep a watchful eye on the produce.

"The bad time is Friday and Saturday nights," Parker said. "The bars close at 3 or 4 o'clock and (people are) still sober enough to want something to do. And pumpkins are a little too fun."

Jack-o'-lanterns often are thought to be for children, but Parker said this is no longer the case.

"The girls will buy them for the guys and the guys will buy them for the girls," she said. "And they have to look just right."

"We've had more college kids come in. They've had pumpkins at home and they want their jack-o'-lanterns."

Parker said she enjoys watching people choose pumpkins. The customer usually will buy the first one he sees, but only after careful inspection of several others, she said.

"There becomes an emotional attachment between people and their pumpkins," she said.

The emotional attachment sometimes carries over to the pumpkin salesman.

"You actually begin to recognize them," Parker said, gesturing toward a pumpkin "friend" who had seen better days. "You get to know pumpkins."

During jaunts around town, Parker said, she notices pumpkins she has sold. The feeling sometimes is haunting.

"I'll probably have pumpkin nightmares when it's all over," she said. "They tend to become a little more than a vegetable after a while. They become little personalities."

Part of the fun of running a pumpkin stand is hearing stories of pumpkin pies that weren't what the cook expected, Parker said.

One woman complained to Parker that her pumpkin pie was stringy. After further questioning, Parker discovered that the woman had used the gooey insides of the pumpkin for the pie filling instead of the part just under the skin.

And then there was the woman

Staff/Jeff Taylor

With the help of family members, Sherri Silva of Manhattan is able to maintain a pumpkin stand 24 hours a day.

who wondered why her attempt at baking a pumpkin was unsuccessful. She had baked the pumpkin whole.

"It was a wonder it didn't blow up all over the oven," Parker said.

Parker and her family will continue to operate the stand through Halloween, she said. The seasonal business will then be done and any remaining pumpkins will be returned to the local vegetable market where they were purchased.

Conferees trim farm, food bills under threat of veto

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House and Senate negotiators Thursday approved a $34 billion budget for 1984 food and farm programs, trimming the money bill slightly below current funding levels in the face of a veto threat from the White House.

Conferees picked their way through more than 70 differences between versions of the legislation passed by the two houses, going in most cases with the lower dollar figure in an effort to pacify President Reagan's Office of Management and Budget.

The measure now must be agreed to by the full House and Senate before being sent to President Reagan for his signature.

The outcome was very close to spending levels set in a stopgap money bill, called a "continuing resolution," under which the Agriculture Department and related agencies have been operating since the new fiscal year started Oct. 1.

But because of what the administration views as accounting tricks used by Congress, it still exceeds what Reagan wants in several areas. Nutrition programs like a supplemental program for women, infants and children are funded for only part of the year and will require hundreds of millions in supplemental appropriations, for example.

The final bill differed little from the earlier versions which prompted the veto threat.

"I just don't want to cut back the present operating levels in agriculture," said Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., chairman of the House agriculture appropriations subcommittee. "We earlier agreed to the levels in the continuing resolution, and the president signed it, so I hope we can stay with it."

★★★★★★★★★
Don't Miss
Prairie Star
BAND
 at
Blue River
Pub
 ★Friday & Saturday
 ★Oct. 28 & 29
 ★★★★★★★★★★

Auntie Mac's Parlor
SATURDAY
PRE-GAME PARTY
$1.50 SANDWICH BAR
$1.00 SCREWDRIVERS AND BLOODY MARY'S
 Open at 11 a.m.
TGIF TODAY 3 p.m.-7 p.m.
PLUS LATE NIGHT HAPPY HOUR 530-9967
 616 N. 12th

Country Western nite!
SATURDAY

2 furs from 7:00-9:00 p.m.
 Wear your western hat and get 50¢ off drinks all nite!
 515 RICHARDS DRIVE — UNDER WILDCAT LANES

WESTERN OUTPOST
2ND ANNIVERSARY SALE
BOOTS—Up to 40% off on selected styles Tony Lama, Dan Post, Justin, Wrangler & Acme. All Redwings 20% off.
JEANS—All jeans 10% off mens & womens Lee, Levi & Wrangler.
SHIRTS—Buy two mens shirts & get one free of equal value.
 Women's blouses one rack $10.00.
MISC.—Baily felt hats 50% off
 Wrangler belts $10.50
 Wrangler jean jackets lined $19.50
 Unlined $14.50
SALE END SUN. 30th
OLD TOWN MALL
 523 S. 17th
 M-W 9 to 6
 Thurs. 9 to 9
 F-S 9 to 6
 Sun. 12 to 5

EAT WITH US SUNDAYS!

MRKS
 • Sandwiches & Kurly K Fries
 5-8:00 p.m.

LAST CHANCE
 • Hickory Smoked Bar-B-Que
 5 p.m.-10 p.m.

Aggie STATION
RESTAURANT & BAR
 • All You Can Eat Bar-B-Que $6.50
 • Dinner Menu 5:30-8:30 p.m.
 Aggieville

Gibson Guitars
 Now in Stock
 20% off all guitars & a free case
 20% off drums
 35% off banjos, mandolins, guild guitars
Hayes House of Music
 523 N. Washington
 238-1014

WIN THIS '84 DODGE CHARGER FOR A YEAR!!! WITH YOUR 101 + CARD!

GET YOUR CARD AT:
 Town & Country Hardware
 Furniture Center
 Browne's Ladies & Children
 Fashion World
 Burnett's Automotive
 Pfeiffer Jewelers
 Furniture Center
 Polly Florist
 Brown's Shoe Fit
 Bushwackers
 J.C. Penney
 Pinata
 Kitchens Plus
 Pizza Hut
 Casual Encounter
 Country Kitchen
 Bryant Carpets
CARDS ALSO AVAILABLE AT KMKF 101+
 MANHATTAN KS

PI KAPPA ALPHA
HAUNTED HOUSE
 PROCEEDS BENEFIT
CEREBRAL PALSY

OCTOBER 31st 7:30
 — ADMISSION —
 $2.00 adults
 $1.50 children
PI KAPPA ALPHA HOUSE
 2021 COLLEGE VIEW
HALLOWEEN

Few herpes victims get treatment

By KARRA PORTER
Collegian Reporter

Herpes isn't curable, but it isn't the end of the world either.

That was the message Cindy Culver Burke, health educator at Lafene Student Health Center, gave more than 36 listeners in Moore Hall Wednesday evening.

The recent increase of awareness and fear of herpes has made it the most talked about sexually transmitted disease, Burke said.

"When we talk about sexually transmitted diseases we used to talk about gonorrhea and syphilis. Suddenly, there has been a surge of concern about herpes, and that's what people are talking about now."

At K-State, there are more reported cases of gonorrhea (12 last year) and syphilis (two last year) than of herpes, she said. But the actual number of herpes victims is hard to determine.

"There are a lot of cases of herpes (at K-State) that have never been documented, as far as diagnosis," she said.

Many people who have herpes know there is no cure and don't see a physician, she said. She guessed there are about two documented cases of herpes so far at K-State.

A herpes victim is most likely to

Feared disease not hopeless

seek medical attention during the first onset of symptoms, when there is a lot of pain and he doesn't understand what's happening, she said.

Burke said herpes takes two forms — oral and genital.

"People think of herpes as genital herpes. That's where the 'sexually transmitted' comes into it," she said.

Actually, everyone has the potential to contract herpes, she said. To illustrate, she asked for a show of hands from persons who had ever had chicken pox, a cold sore or mononucleosis, which are all forms of the disease.

The disease is transmitted by direct contact with a herpes lesion. The symptoms of genital herpes, which recur at intervals after the initial contraction of the virus, include painful lesions or sores in and around the genital area and but-tocks. Oral herpes is identifiable by open sores on the mouth.

Having a hand around the sore and then touching another susceptible part of the body can spread the disease, she said, as can kissing or oral sex. Herpes can even be transmitted to the eyes, she said.

"An easy way to do it: take out your contact lens, pop it in your mouth and pop it in your eye," she said.

"Basically, what you need (for transmission) is skin-to-skin contact with a herpes lesion or with saliva. The sore may disappear, but the virus remains in the saliva for a while afterward," she said.

Once a person contracts the herpes virus, he can't be cured of it, she said. The initial herpes symptoms can, and often do, recur throughout the rest of the victim's lifetime.

The symptoms may recur as often as once a month or even several years after the disease is contracted, Burke said, a situation which often causes trouble in later relationships.

"Suppose you get herpes from somebody, and it's not a serious relationship. Then five years later, the symptoms recur. How are you going to explain to a serious-relationship person or a spouse that you haven't been out with somebody?"

During the dormant stages of herpes, sexual activity is relatively risk-free in terms of a non-infected person getting the disease from a sexual partner. When the symptoms are present, however, the odds are more than 90 percent that a non-infected partner will contract herpes, Burke said. This makes truthfulness an essential part of sexual contact, she said.

"Be honest. If you don't have herpes you wouldn't want to get it from somebody who didn't tell you he had it," she said. "It's only fair."

Herpes is not a fatal disease except in a few rare cases, she said. Burke showed a film by the National Institute for Health about "Jennifer," a herpes victim, which showed that the psychological and social aspects are as much a part of having herpes as the symptoms.

Herpes victims are unfairly looked down upon, Burke said, and they face the uncertainty of when another outbreak may occur. Women with herpes also face the added concerns of pregnancy and cervical cancer, Burke said.

Pregnant women who give birth during a recurrence of the symptoms can transmit the disease to their babies. Unfortunately, Burke said, many women are too embarrassed to tell their physicians they have herpes. A baby can be delivered by Caesarean section to avoid the risks of transmitting the disease, she said, if a physician is aware of the problem.

Half of the babies who contract herpes at birth die, Burke said, and half of those who live suffer brain damage. In addition to this worry, she said, there is some evidence that women with herpes are more likely to contract cancer of the cervix.

Despite these gloomy aspects of herpes, Burke said, getting herpes "isn't the end of your life."

However, it is important, she said, for non-infected and infected persons to avoid stress, which is one factor affecting the virus. A person who does not have herpes should also avoid direct contact with a herpes lesion, she said, to reduce the risk of infection.

"Everyone has a herpes tiger in their system, and it just depends on how well your body is going to fight it off."

Bloodmobiles use caution; tell donors about AIDS

By KELLY CARLSON
Collegian Reporter

Since the recent Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome scare, bloodmobiles have been more cautious and have provided information to educate potential blood donors about AIDS.

According to an article in the July 4 Time magazine, the disease attacks the immune system, leaving the body defenseless against disease. Many scientists believe it may be caused by a virus or fungus.

The incubation period of AIDS may extend from six months to three years, the article states, and many people may not be aware they have the disease.

Active homosexual men, intravenous drug users, Haitian immigrants and people who suffer from hemophilia are the most common AIDS victims, the article states. More than 90 percent of the victims are males between the ages of 20 to 49.

At this time, there are no laboratory tests to detect persons with AIDS, said Ruth Meulbroek, a registered nurse working on campus with the bloodmobile.

Because no tests are available, the bloodmobile must rely on a blood donor's health history to exclude individuals whose blood might transmit AIDS to patients who will receive blood.

"We leave it upon the donors' integrity. People in the high-risk category generally wouldn't want to sacrifice another person's health and probably wouldn't donate blood," Meulbroek said.

The Time article states that since 1980, only approximately 12 out of 10 million blood transfusions have been tentatively associated with AIDS.

The Office of Biologics of the Food and Drug Administration has identified groups at an increased risk of developing AIDS. This includes persons with symptoms and signs suggestive of AIDS such as severe nighttime sweats, unexplained fevers, unexpected weight loss, swollen glands or Kaposi's Sarcoma, a rare skin cancer.

Tylenol lawyer claims client's letter 'foolish'

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — James W. Lewis, accused of trying to profit from last year's Tylenol murders by attempting to extort $1 million, was a misguided "wretch" hounded by the government, his lawyer argued in closing arguments Thursday.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Jeremy Margolis charged that Lewis was a fiend who preyed on fear and grief and "turned the world on its ear" by writing a letter seeking money from the makers of Tylenol to stop the killings.

The arguments followed five days of testimony in the trial before U.S. District Judge Frank McGarr. The judge then instructed the jury and deliberations began in mid-afternoon.

Lewis, 37, a former Kansas City resident, is charged with trying to extort $1 million from Johnson & Johnson, the parent company of the firm that manufactures Tylenol.

The company received the letter after seven Chicago-area residents died in September and October of 1982 after taking cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules. No charges have been filed in the murders.

Defense lawyer Michael Monico, standing just inches from his client, called Lewis a "wretch" who wrote a "foolish, reckless letter."

"Don't ask me to justify the letter," he said as Lewis sat watching intently, with his lips pursed, seeming to hold back tears. "I cannot and I will not."

But, Monico told the jury, Lewis never intended to collect the money and was seeking revenge against his wife's former employer.

This case "is bizarre, but it is simple," Monico said. "The government mischarged this man in a rush to judgment...in the heat of bringing a body in (during the Tylenol investigation)."

The letter, he said, "may be a crime, but it's not the crime he's charged with."

But the prosecutor said, "The grief of October and September (when the murders occurred) is what he trafficked upon to commit his crime."

comprehensive health associates

- free pregnancy tests
- outpatient abortion services
- alternatives counseling
- referrals
- gynecology
- contraception

1-435 & Roe Overland Park 642-1100

BEER
Sold at cost plus
5%
Revco Drug Store
Village Plaza

Halloween Party "TRICK OR TREAT" ESCORTS

- Hosted by the Women of Alpha Xi Delta
- Questions Call 539-4693

C'mon in for Breakfast!

SATURDAY AND SUNDAY ONLY!

All You Can Eat:
SCRAMBLED EGGS
PANCAKES
BACON-SAUSAGE
HASH BROWNS
BISCUITS-GRAVY
DRINKS EXTRA

All You Pay:

$2.29

From 6 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.

Kids 7 yrs.

and younger

$1.29

We don't just give you breakfast.
We give you a break.

Full Service Breakfast Menu Monday thru Friday

SIRLOIN STOCKADE
100 East Bluemont

Fri. & Sat.
Mug Doubles
& 65¢ Stains 4-8
Sunday Rock Nite
11 Vodka Drinks
60¢ Drums 12 Pitchers
All Nite
(no mug doubles)
at
COWBOY PALACE
Where it don't make
no difference
209 Payne 539-9828
4:00pm to 3:00am

STUDENT • FACULTY DANCE • CONCERT

Kansas State University
Dance Program
Department of Physical Education,
Dance, and Leisure Studies

Oct. 28 & 29
8:00 p.m.
Manhattan Middle School

$4.00

(Tickets Available at the Door)

KSU
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY

Could I have a drinking problem?
Perhaps...

- do you have to have a drink in order to function a cope with life?
- do you go to class while intoxicated?
- when drinking do you do things you would never do when sober?
- do you drive while intoxicated?

There are people who can help you decide if alcohol has become a problem in your life.

Call: Elaine Spencer-Carver 532-6432
Alcohol & Other Drug Ed. Serv. 532-6927
Counseling Center
Marian Moore 532-6550
Mental Health Center
Lafene

Alcohol & other Drug Education Service
101A Hinton Hall 532-6432
Funded by SRS Alcohol & Drug Abuse Services

MRK'S TGIF
GUEST D.J.!
ANNE SWAFFORD
LISA FORD
Gamma Phis
are today's Guest D.J.s!
$2 TGIF PITCHERS
2 P.M.-7 P.M.!

CHEF
Thurs. 111 S. 4th

LET'S TALK BREAKFAST

Introducing Saturday Breakfast Buffet Scrambled Eggs
Chunks of Ham, Hash-browns, Pancakes, Biscuits & Gravy, Homemade Muffins.
$2.49
Saturday 7-10 am
CHEF
Thurs. 111 S. 4th

T.G.I.F.

Bockers Two

THE SPREAD SEVEN
Hors d'oeuvres
$1 per plate
4-7 p.m.
Come Dance to
Mainstreet
Fri. & Sat. Night
10-1 A.M.
No Cover
RAMADA INN

GET FRAMED!
Have your picture taken for Royal Purple

Today:
Marlatt Hall 8:30-5:30

Monday:
Moore Hall 8:30-5:30

Off-Campus people can still get pictures taken
Oct. 10-28
Union 209 539-5229
Bring your stamped fee card.

DOMINO'S PIZZA

Weekend Special!

Call us. 539-0561
517 North 12th St.

Hours:
4:30pm-1am Mon-Thurs.
11am-2am Fri & Sat.
11am-1am Sun.

Prices do not include applicable sales tax.
Our drivers carry less than $10.00.
Limited delivery area.
© 1983 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

$2.00 Off!
Good Friday, Saturday, & Sunday only.
$2.00 off any 16" 2-item pizza plus 1 qt. of Pepsi.
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 12/31/83

Fast, Free Delivery!
Good at listed locations.
36862 / 6311

Nation's top team to travel to Manhattan

'Cats hope to halt 'Scoring Explosion'

By SEAN REILLY
Sports Editor

The K-State football team will play at home for the first time in three weeks when they face the No. 1-ranked University of Nebraska Cornhuskers. Game time is set for 1:30 p.m. Saturday at KSU Stadium.

This contest has been a sellout since early September. KSU Stadium has a capacity of 42,000, but folding chairs will be added to the north end zone area which should swell the crowd to around the 45,000 mark.

The game also marks the midway point in the Big Eight Conference season. The 'Huskers will take the nation's longest current winning string — 18 games — into Saturday's clash, while the 'Cats have lost all of their Big Eight matches, including a 31-0 defeat to intrastate archrival University of Kansas and most recently a 38-0 thrashing by Missouri.

However, Jim Dickey, K-State's head coach, said the losses shouldn't dampen his team's attitude for the NU game.

"I don't think that (attitude) is a big problem with our kids. I think they would like to go against the No. 1 team in the nation. Look at what Colorado and Oklahoma State did against NU. Against Oklahoma, the team came out and tried real hard, and against NU, we will try hard, also," Dickey said.

Dickey said he has changed the team's game plan in preparation for the 'Huskers.

"We're going to try a few new wrinkles this week. We hope they work better than they did last week," said Dickey.

"It's very difficult to detect any real weaknesses in their team. They've got a very high-powered offense that can score in spurts, like 48 points in one quarter, which they did against Colorado. Each player does a good job of playing his position. They're just really a fine overall team," Dickey added.

Against Colorado, NU scored seven touchdowns in the third quarter, giving them a score of 62-12. The halftime score was 14-12.

"It's just like the poster says, it was a scoring explosion. It's simple as that," NU wingback Irving "Fryar-works" Fryar said in reference to NU's 1983 schedule poster which carries the theme of the "Scoring Explosion," with Fryar, quarterback Turner Gill and runningback Mike Rozier "exploding" out of the NU Memorial Stadium scoreboard.

"I thought at halftime (of the Colorado game) it was anybody's ball game — it just kind of broke open. I was amazed the way it did break when it happened. I thought we'd probably be scrapping right to the last three or four minutes of the game," said Tom Osborne, NU's head coach.

NU's time of possession was far less than the Buffaloes, although they did lead in other categories.

"I think the big difference in time possession is that they will try to keep our offense off the field by keeping possession of the ball longer," Osborne said.

When asked about his next opponent, K-State, Osborne was quick to point out that K-State is not to be taken lightly. "K-State usually play us tougher in Manhattan. They are a better team in Manhattan. They will probably do the same things Colorado did, and if they can play without mistakes, they will be tough," he said.

For the fourth time in five weeks, All-America I-back Mike Rozier, who rushed 19 times for 155 yards and four touchdowns, caught one pass for 26 yards and returned four kickoffs for another 90 yards in the 'Huskers 69-19 romp over Colorado, was voted Big Eight player of the week.

The 271 all-purpose yards Rozier gathered were just 18 short of the NU record of 289 by Rick Berns against Missouri in 1978.

The Colorado game also featured Rozier's seventh straight 100-yard game — and the 21st of his career — and was his third four-touchdown day. Rozier is currently second in the nation in rushing, averaging 152.4 yards a game.

"Mike Rozier probably is the most outstanding runner in the nation. He will run around or over you and cuts around you on a dime and leaves you a nickel's change. I definitely have respect for NU," 'Cats' cornerback Nelson Nickerson said.

Even Osborne, who is not one to laud praises on his players, has a lot of respect for his runningback and Heisman Trophy candidate, Rozier.

"I am always looking for a guy with character and good playing ability. I am usually cautious about the people I believe who deserve the trophy, (but) I believe Mike deserves the Heisman," he said.

"He's the best football player to ever play in this league in my opinion, for whatever that's worth. I've never seen such a physical back as he is," Coach Dickey said. "He'd just as soon run over you as around you and that quality is rare. He's a real eye-opener. I know they have other outstanding players on their team but he's the one they'd miss most if he got hurt."

Should Rozier become injured, his replacement is just as dangerous. Jeff Smith, a junior running back, has carried the ball 63 times for a total of 326 yards, an average of 5.1 yards a tote.

MIKE ROZIER...
A BONAFIDE HEISMAN
TROPHY CANDIDATE, HE IS CURRENTLY SECOND
IN THE NATION WITH
1,219 RUSHING YARDS,
AND THE 'HUSKERS ARE
8-0 AND NO. 1 IN THE NATION!

'He's (Rozier) the best football player to ever play in this league in my opinion, for whatever that's worth. I've never seen such a physical back as he is.'

—K-State Coach Jim Dickey

Smith also leads NU on punt returns with 15 returns for 190 yards, an average of 12.7 yards per run-back.

The star on the defensive side for NU is Mike "Fort Knox" Knox. He recently broke a set of shoulder pads in a game. "I've broken three helmets since I've been here but that was the first set of shoulder pads. Either I'm hitting people harder, or they're hitting me harder," Knox said.

While the 'Cats do not have a "Fort Knox" on its defensive unit, Dickey said he would play three players at the two linebacker spots, need to "swarm tackle" Rozier, who leads the conference in rushing with 1,219 yards and 17 touchdowns.

"We've also got a lot of respect for wingback Irving Fryar and Jeff Smith, who switches with Rozier at tailback," Dickey said. "And they both run punts and kickoffs back very well."

It is the 68th meeting in a series that began 1911 and has been continuous since 1922. NU leads the series, 55-10-2, has won 14 straight since the 12-0 Homecoming defeat in Lincoln in 1968 and has won 22 of the last 23 games, including last year's 42-13 whipping in Lincoln.

NU has a 7-0 record with games played at KSU Stadium, including a 49-3 win in its last appearance (1981, when Mike Rozier recorded his first 100-yard game — 153 yards on 19 carries, including a 93-yard touchdown run).

The 'Huskers have not lost in Manhattan since a 29-14 defeat at the old Memorial Stadium in 1959.

Cagers to face tough schedule

By KIM KLEIN
Collegian Reporter

Unity. Enthusiasm. Youth. Intensity.

These four words help to describe the 1983-84 K-State's women's basketball team.

The Wildcats' first game is Nov. 25 and the team has already begun practice in preparation for the season.

The team began basketball drills on Oct. 15 with efforts to improve offensive and defensive formations. Lynn Hickey, head women's basketball coach, said.

"I am pleased with the intensity and effort the team is giving out," Hickey said. "We are at the beginning point of learning drills, defenses and offenses."

Last year, the 'Cats had a 25-7 record and finished among the top 20 teams in the country. With three seniors and All-American Priscilla Gary gone from the roster, the 'Cats will have to rely on unity and depth in the playing positions to have a good season, Hickey said.

"This year's team lacks floor experience, and that is one factor I'm concerned about," Hickey said. "We have good depth with at least three players at each position."

"The unity of the team and the rapport between the girls is better than last year's. This year's team is more enthusiastic and this could be because of its youth," she added.

One goal for this year's squad is to keep everyone healthy, Hickey said. Hopefully, Karen Franklin, a sophomore forward, will suit up for the season's opener after having to undergo knee surgery on Oct. 19, Hickey said. Knee trouble hampered Franklin last season and forced her to sit out.

The 'Cats will open the season with the Little Apple Classic Nov. 25-26 in Ahearn Field House.

Only one senior — Barbara Gilmore, a 5-foot-11 forward — and one junior — Angie Bonner, a 6-foot-1 center — are on the team's returning roster. Other returning starters include sophomores Cassandra Jones, a 5-foot-7 guard and Tina Dixon, a 6-foot-3 center.

"We didn't have a good recruiting year. We signed half as many as we did last year," Hickey said. "Last year, we signed six, and this year we signed three."

One of the players that the team signed this year is Carlisa Thomas, a 5-foot-10 high school All-American guard from Jacksonville, Fla. Thomas was an all-conference and all-state selection three consecutive years in Florida. She averaged 20.5 points, 18.3 rebounds and 14.8 assists per game to lead her high school to a 28-3 record. She totaled 1,817 points, 1,605 rebounds and 1,224 assists in three seasons.

Thomas can play all three positions — forward, guard or center, but Hickey said she will use Thomas as a guard.

The 'Cats also signed Sue Leiding, a 6-foot-2 center from Tulsa, Okla., who was an all-city, all-metro and all-conference choice in Oklahoma. She was the leading scorer in Oklahoma in

Juco players make switch to Big Eight

By KEVIN DALE
Staff Writer

In 1981, two Kansas junior college football players made the transition to two different Big Eight Conference schools. Both have gone on to become the most productive players on their respective teams and they will clash on the football field Saturday as K-State entertains the No. 1-ranked University of Nebraska Cornhuskers.

Reggie Singletary, K-State's all-conference defensive lineman, and Mike Rozier, NU's All-American I-back, have been beating up on each other from junior to major college football for four years and Saturday's matchup will close the book on their collegiate duels.

After completing his high school career at Brandon High School in Tampa, Fla., Singletary was recruited by Jerry Boyce, K-State's defensive coordinator, who was — at the time he recruited Singletary in 1980 — head coach of Cowley County Community College.

"We recruited quite a bit in Florida, and I had some friends who told me about Reggie," Boyce said. "At the time he was having some academic problems and probably would not have qualified for a major college. Really, his misfortune was my gain."

Boyce said Singletary immediately showed everyone he was going to be a great football player.

Rozier, on the other hand, was all set to enroll at NU when his high school teachers went on strike. Because of the strike his grade point average dropped, and he was unable to meet the academic standards of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Tom Osborne, NU's head coach, called Dick Foster, the head coach at Coffeyville Community College, and made arrangements for Rozier to attend the junior college to get his grades in order.

Although Rozier was still young, Foster knew he had a great running back.

"It was very evident that Mike was a great back," Foster said. "1980 was a short season, and he was hurt in two of the games, but he still ended up with over 1,200 yards."

"The most impressive thing about Mike — then and now — is his ability to handle all the publicity he gets. He is always giving credit to his teammates and that shows real character," he continued.

Foster said he didn't think Singletary was a very good football player in junior college and was not on the same level as Rozier.

"I recruited Reggie, but I didn't

Continued on page 10

Staff/Andy Nelson

Wildcats Cassandra Jones and Sheronda Jenkins find the backboard support a good place to watch as Coach Lynn Hickey directs their teammates during practice Thursday afternoon. The team is preparing for its home opener Nov. 25-26 in the Little Apple Classic at Ahearn Field House.

Pigskin Picks

After the dust (or was that mud in Columbia?) settled last week, only Dan "The Walking Sports Encyclopedia" Owsley and Joel "The Polish Predictor" Torczon were the "few guys" who can play in this league as both ended up with a glossy 11-1 record.

Tied for second, and surprisingly so, were Tex Hanson and Judi "How 'bout them Cowboys"

Wright with 9-3 marks.

Overall, Torczon remains on top with a 66-27 record — a .710 showing — followed closely by Owsley's 63-30 mark. Third is "Crash" Nelson, who slipped from second place with a 60-32 count, while Hanson and Wright are 56-37 and tied for fourth. Next are Reilly (54-39), La Rue (53-40) and cellar-dwelling Kevin Dale (50-43).

Andy Nelson

Nebraska 77 vs. K-State 14
Missouri 38 vs. Iowa St. 3
Oklahoma St. 28 vs. Colorado 14
Kansas 9 vs. Oklahoma 42
Michigan 24 vs. Illinois 21
Texas 20 vs. Texas Tech 19
Tulsa 35 vs. Wichita St. 14
North Carolina 14 vs. Maryland 7
Northwestern 14 vs. Purdue 13
Dallas 45 vs. N.Y. Giants 38
Kansas City 24 vs. Denver 21
Seattle 19 vs. L.A. Raiders 21

Brian La Rue

Nebraska 14 vs. K-State 21
Missouri 38 vs. Iowa St. 10
Oklahoma St. 31 vs. Colorado 21
Kansas 14 vs. Oklahoma 24
Michigan 21 vs. Illinois 24
Texas 31 vs. Texas Tech 17
Tulsa 28 vs. Wichita St. 14
North Carolina 35 vs. Maryland 28
Northwestern 17 vs. Purdue 28
Dallas 21 vs. N.Y. Giants 7
Kansas City 21 vs. Denver 20
Seattle 28 vs. L.A. Raiders 35

Kevin Dale

Nebraska 75 vs. K-State 10
Missouri 28 vs. Iowa St. 14
Oklahoma St. 27 vs. Colorado 10
Kansas 10 vs. Oklahoma 45
Michigan 24 vs. Illinois 26
Texas 35 vs. Texas Tech 21
Tulsa 21 vs. Wichita St. 14
North Carolina 24 vs. Maryland 17
Northwestern 7 vs. Purdue 17
Dallas 21 vs. N.Y. Giants 20
Kansas City 14 vs. Denver 17
Seattle 21 vs. L.A. Raiders 35

Judi Wright

Nebraska 80 vs. K-State 3
Missouri 28 vs. Iowa St. 17
Oklahoma St. 36 vs. Colorado 7
Kansas 24 vs. Oklahoma 36
Michigan 36 vs. Illinois 24
Texas 21 vs. Texas Tech 20
Tulsa 24 vs. Wichita St. 21
North Carolina 28 vs. Maryland 24
Northwestern 17 vs. Purdue 28
Dallas 42 vs. N.Y. Giants 21
Kansas City 21 vs. Denver 17
Seattle 20 vs. L.A. Raiders 36

K-STATE

Offense
SE -30 Mike Wallace, Jr., 6-2, 175
TE -82 Eric Bailey, Jr., 6-3, 225
WT -87 Jeff Koyl, Jr., 6-5, 273
WG -88 Randy Voelker, Jr., 6-4, 254
C -71 Jim Northcutt, Sr., 6-4, 240
SG -70 Calvin Switzer, Jr., 6-1, 256
ST -68 Damian Johnson, Jr., 6-5, 280
FL -88 Eric Mack, Sr., 6-3, 206
QB -7 Donnie Campbell, Jr., 6-4, 205
TB -41 Greg Dageforde, Sr., 6-0, 203
FB -38 Charles Crawford, Jr., 6-1, 199
PK -10 Steve Willis, Jr., 6-2, 194

Dan Owsley

Nebraska 90 vs. K-State 3
Missouri 35 vs. Iowa St. 17
Oklahoma St. 38 vs. Colorado 13
Kansas 13 vs. Oklahoma 41
Michigan 27 vs. Illinois 26
Texas 31 vs. Texas Tech 14
Tulsa 27 vs. Wichita St. 13
North Carolina 28 vs. Maryland 30
Northwestern 2 vs. Purdue 39
Dallas 29 vs. N.Y. Giants 13
Kansas City 28 vs. Denver 27
Seattle 37 vs. L.A. Raiders 35

Sean Reilly

Nebraska 56 vs. K-State 10
Missouri 28 vs. Iowa St. 17
Oklahoma St. 48 vs. Colorado 10
Kansas 10 vs. Oklahoma 34
Michigan 21 vs. Illinois 14
Texas 45 vs. Texas Tech 6
Tulsa 56 vs. Wichita St. 12
North Carolina 24 vs. Maryland 21
Northwestern 10 vs. Purdue 24
Dallas 42 vs. N.Y. Giants 14
Kansas City 13 vs. Denver 28
Seattle 28 vs. L.A. Raiders 35

Defense

LE -87 L.E. Madison, Sr., 6-0, 217
LT -86 Reggie Singletary, Sr., 6-0, 254
NG -80 Mark Newton, Sr., 6-3, 262
RT -41 Bob Daniele, Jr., 6-3, 250
RE -33 Greg Strahm, Sr., 6-3, 233
LB -82 Bill Keesley, Jr., 5-11, 209
LB -21 Bob Kerr, Sr., 6-2, 208
LCB -16 Ivan Pearl, Sr., 5-9, 176
RCB -3 Nelson Nickerson, Jr., 5-10, 171
FS -17 David Ast, Sr., 6-0, 182
P -2 Scott Fulhage, Jr., 5-11, 187

Joel Torczon

Nebraska 52 vs. K-State 10
Missouri 27 vs. Iowa St. 21
Oklahoma St. 29 vs. Colorado 23
Kansas 13 vs. Oklahoma 34
Michigan 20 vs. Illinois 24
Texas 33 vs. Texas Tech 17
Tulsa 28 vs. Wichita St. 30
North Carolina 24 vs. Maryland 27
Northwestern 19 vs. Purdue 27
Dallas 31 vs. N.Y. Giants 13
Kansas City 30 vs. Denver 23
Seattle 24 vs. L.A. Raiders 37

Tex Hanson

Nebraska 44 vs. K-State 11
Missouri 43 vs. Iowa St. 12
Oklahoma St. 24 vs. Colorado 21
Kansas 27 vs. Oklahoma 23
Michigan 23 vs. Illinois 21
Texas 42 vs. Texas Tech 03
Tulsa 23 vs. Wichita St. 11
North Carolina 21 vs. Maryland 23
Northwestern 11 vs. Purdue 13
Dallas 21 vs. N.Y. Giants 19
Kansas City 21 vs. Denver 20
Seattle 31 vs. L.A. Raiders 40

NEBRASKA

Offense
SE -88 Scott Kimball, Jr., 6-0, 185
TE -83 Monte Engbritson, Sr., 6-1, 220
LT -87 Greg Orton, Jr., 6-1, 258
LG -86 Harry Grimmering, Jr., 6-3, 260
C -57 Mark Traynowicz, Jr., 6-4, 260
RG -71 Dean Steinkuhler, Sr., 6-3, 270
RT -72 Scott Raridon, Sr., 6-3, 280
WB -27 Irving Fryar, Sr., 6-0, 195
QB -13 Turner Gill, Sr., 6-0, 190
LB -30 Mike Roder, Sr., 5-11, 210
FB -25 Mark Schellen, Sr., 5-10, 225
PK -48 Scott Livingston, Jr., 6-2, 200

Defense

LE -87 Bill Weber, Jr., 6-1, 210
LT -41 Mike Koeler, Sr., 6-4, 245
NG -44 Mike Tranmer, Sr., 5-11, 230
RT -75 Rob Stuckey, Jr., 6-3, 250
RE -90 Scott Strasburger, Jr., 6-1, 205
SLB -51 Mark Daum, Jr., 6-3, 225
WLB -44 Mike Knox, Jr., 6-3, 225
LCB -11 Neil Harris, Jr., 6-1, 195
RCB -33 Dave Burke, Jr., 5-10, 195
MON -2 Mike McCashland, Jr., 6-1, 195
SAF -10 Bret Clark, Jr., 6-2, 200
P -48 Scott Livingston

Juco players

Continued from page 9

think he was very good at the time," he said. "I can't believe he has done what he has at K-State."

Boyce disagreed with Foster and said Singletary was probably the best in the league at his position.

"I don't know why he would say that," Boyce said. "Reggie was much the same then as he is now."

"He was very physical and had good speed. He was all-conference and was mentioned as an (Juco) All-America candidate. He certainly was highly recruited. He had the same (recruiting) input in his position as Rozier had at running back," he said.

The confrontation between two players' respective schools that year ended in favor of Rozier and Coffeyville as they beat Cowley County 58-34.

Both coaches said the game was not billed as a fight between the two outstanding players and the game left Singletary impressed.

"We would beat up on him (Rozier), and he would leave the game; then a few plays later, he would be back in. Then we would beat up on him again. Every time he left the field, he would always come back. What really impressed me was that he could perform as well when he was injured as when he was healthy. It was a good game, it's just too bad we didn't come out on top."

After one year of junior college ball, both Singletary and Rozier jumped into the Big Eight. Again, there was a battle for recognition as each player tried to excel at his position.

Singletary had a total of 109 tackles, including 28 tackles for 149 yards in losses, and was named to the all-Big Eight defensive team. He also was honored as the Big Eight's Newcomer-of-the-Year.

Rozier alternated with NU's Roger Craig as the I-Back in the 'Husker offense and rushed for 943 yards on 151 attempts for an average of more than six yards per carry. He was runner-up to Singletary as the Big Eight's Newcomer-of-the-Year.

They both had record-setting years as juniors with Rozier rushing for a NU record of 1,689 yards and Singletary moving to the top of the K-State tackles-for-losses category with 48 totaling minus 220 yards.

This year, each player is continuing to show his prowess in terrorizing opponents. Singletary is now K-State's tenth leading tackler and continues to add to his record of tackles for losses. He now has 57 for 281 yards in losses after playing only 29 games for the Wildcats.

Rozier is a favorite for the Heisman Trophy and continues to run over or around anyone who gets in his way. He has rushed for 1,219 yards on 163 carries for 7.5 yards per carry. He also has 17 touchdowns so far this year.

Flying 'Cats try to compete with other Big Eight schools

By TIM FILBY
Collegian Reporter

Prior to Saturday's 38-0 loss to Missouri, K-State's football team traveled to Columbia by Abbott buses, costing the athletic department $674. However, on the return trip to Manhattan, the team flew via Ozark Airlines, costing $9,500 for the one-way trip.

The additional cost of flying is an expense the athletic department bears in order to remain competitive in the Big Eight Conference, said Dick Towers, athletic director.

"We fly to as many games as we can," Towers said. "To be competitive in the Big Eight, we try to keep up with what other teams in the conference do."

Towers said by taking the bus one way, the football team saved money that normally would be used to fly.

"Most teams in the conference fly to the games, so by taking the bus, we saved about $9,000 in transportation costs," Towers said. "We're more stringent in spending our money than most teams in the conference are."

Towers said flying home has several advantages.

"From the standpoint of team morale, flying was better," Towers said. "We had players injured, and after a game, the team is ready to leave."

"The bus, once you get there, is important. It's important to have some sort of transportation to get to the airport, the hotel and to eat," he said. "With the Missouri game, having buses was an advantage, because we didn't have to worry about that aspect of transportation."

Towers said another advantage of flying is that it is less time-consuming, which enables the athletic department to cut out a meal they would have to pay for usually.

Towers said Coach Jim Dickey has a say in the decision to fly to games.

"If Coach Dickey thinks it is advantageous to fly to a game, we will do so," he said. "We will do whatever Coach Dickey feels is right in this situation, if we possibly can."

"We're not going to sacrifice at all with football and basketball," Towers said. "We're going to spend what we can to make both programs competitive in the Big Eight."

STUDENT SEASON BASKETBALL TICKETS

The following plan was adopted by Student Senate and approved by Intercollegiate Athletic Council for the sale of student season basketball tickets

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY Basketball Schedule - 1983-84

Nov	17	Thu	Brandon Univ.	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	25	Fri	Tribune Charities Holiday Classic
	26	Sat	(Utah, Illinois, Loyola of Chicago)	at Rosemont, IL
	29	Tue	Oral Roberts University	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
Dec	3	Sat	U.S. International	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	7	Wed	Centenary	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	10	Sat	Wisconsin	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	17	Sat	Nevada-Las Vegas	at Las Vegas	10:05 p.m.
	21	Wed	Indiana	at Bloomington	6:30 p.m.
	23	Fri	California State-Northridge	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
Jan	4	Wed	Texas	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	7	Sat	Northern Iowa	at Cedar Falls	7:30 p.m.
	12	Thu	Eastern Washington	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	14	Sat	Southern Colorado	at Manhattan	7:35 p.m.
	18	Wed	Oklahoma State	at Stillwater	7:35 p.m.
	21	Sat	Oklahoma	at Manhattan	2:10 p.m.
	25	Wed	Colorado	at Boulder	9:05 p.m.
	28	Sat	Kansas	at Lawrence	4:10 p.m.
Feb	1	Wed	Iowa State	at Manhattan	8:10 p.m.
	4	Sat	Nebraska	at Manhattan	4:10 p.m.
	8	Wed	Missouri	at Columbia	8:05 p.m.
	11	Sat	Oklahoma	at Norman	4:00 p.m.
	15	Wed	Colorado	at Manhattan	8:10 p.m.
	18	Sat	Oklahoma State	at Manhattan	2:05 p.m.
	22	Wed	Iowa State	at Ames	7:35 p.m.
	25	Sat	Kansas	at Manhattan	2:05 p.m.
	29	Wed	Nebraska	at Lincoln	7:35 p.m.
Mar	3	Sat	Missouri	at Manhattan	2:05 p.m.
	6	Tue	Big 8 Tournament 1st Round	at campus sites
	9	Fri	Big 8 Tournament Semis	at Kansas City
	10	Sat	Big 8 Tournament Finals	at Kansas City

RESERVED
and
NON-RESERVED
$42.25

Does not include the games on Dec. 23 and Jan. 4. Individual student tickets for these games will be available at a later date.

I. There will be three types of basketball tickets:

- Group Reserved
- Individual Reserved
- Non-reserved

II. One ticket will be sold per fee card with the exception of buying for a non-student spouse, then two may be purchased with one fee card. A married student with a student spouse may buy two tickets but a fee card for both student and student spouse is required.

III. The total allotted tickets for the reserve section will be divided into 85% for Group Reserved and 15% for Individual Reserved.

IV. Tickets for the Group Reserved will be applied for on Monday and Tuesday, October 31 and November 1 in which a lottery system will be in effect.

- Students will be able to go to the ticket window in Ahearn Fieldhouse where they can fill out an application for no more than 20 tickets and leave the respective fee cards with the person at the ticket window. There will be no guarantee all 20 tickets will be together.

- While students are applying for Group Reserved Tickets, they will also be asked to draw a number which will be placed on their envelope at that time. This number will be this group's number for lottery purposes.

- At the end of the two day period, the ticket window will be closed for Group Reserved ticket applications and the Athletic Department will proceed in distributing tickets, starting with the lowest numbered application and moving to higher numbers until the entire 85% of the reserved tickets are allotted. Tickets for Individual Reserved and Group Reserved will be allocated on a 50/50 preference basis, until Individual Reserved are sold.

- The Athletic Department will notify the Collegian for publication on November 2 the highest numbered application that will receive tickets. Students with numbers lower than the number printed will know that they will receive tickets.

- Students with numbers higher than the published number can pick up their fee cards from 9:00 a.m.-4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, November 2-4.

- On Sunday afternoon November 6, the Individual Reserved and Non-Reserved tickets will be sold. Only one ticket per person with each fee card, unless a married student who may purchase for spouse.

- Non-reserved tickets will be sold at the east ticket window of Ahearn Fieldhouse from 2:00-4:00 p.m. on November 6.

- Individual Reserved tickets will be sold at the north ticket window of Ahearn Fieldhouse from 2:00-4:00 p.m. on November 6.

- Any type of "ROLL CALL" or line system will be the responsibility of the S.G.A. Basketball Ticket Sales Committee.

Ridley sparks volleyball team

By VIKKI WATSON
Staff Writer

She leaps high into the air — much higher than her 5-foot-7 frame would seem to allow. With a swift blow and blaring yell, she sends the volleyball streaming into an opponent's court.

She's Sharon Ridley and she's adding her own brand of dynamic play to the K-State women's volleyball team.

Ridley, a senior from Montgomery, Ala., is currently the Big Eight Conference's leader in service aces and is second only to K-State's Donna Lee in digs. She, along with senior Cathy Sittenauer, is co-captain of this year's squad.

And the leadership this co-captain displays comes very naturally, said Scott Nelson, head volleyball coach, who calls Ridley one of the "most explosive" competitors in the Big Eight.

"When somebody's giving 110 percent, it affects the rest of the team," said Nelson. "How can someone work so hard and you not work just as hard?"

And that 110 percent effort made a significant difference in the 'Cats recent championship win at the Oral Roberts Invitational in Tulsa, Okla., when Ridley hit .312 and had 61 kills, 55 digs and nine service aces. Her effort landed her Big Eight Player of the Week honors and helped establish her as one of the conference's top defensive players, Nelson said.

"She's one of the top two or three defensive players in the league," he said. "She's always been able to jump and hit, but her backcourt defense is just tremendous."

But being a top-notch player hasn't always been easy for this recreation major, whose high school team went undefeated during her junior and senior years. No matter how successful in high school, a player will still have adjustments to make in the collegiate sports, Ridley said.

Those adjustments include accepting a much higher level of competition within the squad as well as against other teams, she said, and taking volleyball the way any sport should be taken — very seriously.

"High school was fun volleyball," she said. "My freshman year (at K-State) was a lot of competition. You sleep volleyball and you eat volleyball. You have to work for a starting position."

"My attitude has changed completely," she continued. "I started taking volleyball seriously. It's very important to me now."

So important that Ridley, or "Nay Nay" as she is nicknamed, puts her all in each and every match. A very vocal player with an extremely high vertical jump, Ridley can be heard yelling with each kill she makes.

"I'm just a hyper person," Ridley said. "I've always been that way. I like to get excited."

And it is this dynamic type of play that helps pull this young squad together, generating that excitement within the other players, said Ginger Mayson, assistant coach.

"Nay Nay is such an inspiration," she said. "The captain is someone who holds the team together. Nay Nay is the backbone," Mayson said.

Being such an inspiration is just what Ridley enjoys, and this hard-working middle blocker describes herself as "very" people-oriented and a good listener.

"I try to help others as much as I can," she said. "If they need someone, I'm always there. I'm concerned with people."

It is this concern for others that Ridley hopes will someday lead to a job working with children — preferably in the recreational field.

"I've always wanted to work with kids," she said. "(And) I would like to get involved with recreation more — getting kids off the streets and educating them more. I've also always wanted to be a counselor. When someone has a problem, I've always been there to listen."

"I know I won't make too much money, but it's something I enjoy," she said.

But that's in the future, and for right now, Ridley will just keep enjoying volleyball. Enjoying it and continually trying to make K-State a better quality team, she said.

"At the beginning of the year, everybody was so excited — working hard and hitting and digging well," said Ridley, who watched her squad storm to a 6-0 record and then at one point lose four straight matches to Big Eight competitors. It just takes confidence to come back, she added.

"You've got to pop back. If you have that emotional down, it's going to be hard," she said. "We had that confidence to go on and work together."

And this teamwork will be K-State's success to winning — both at the present and in the future, said a very positive and optimistic Ridley.

"I just have the attitude of winning," she said. "I never look at a

Staff/John Steerer

Sharon Ridley, senior and co-captain of the K-State Volleyball Team, is a driving force behind the spirit of this year's team.

negative aspect. I just think 'we're going to get 'em.'"

And that's exactly what Ridley hopes the 'Cats will be able to do tonight, as they host the University of Oklahoma Sooners in a 7 p.m. match at Ahearn Field House. The squads have split in their first two matches this season.

It will be essential for the 'Cats to win, said Nelson, whose team is only 1-5 in Big Eight standings.

"Ours is a must-win situation," he said. "We will be very ready to play Oklahoma. The intensity level and concentration are very high and all that guarantees is excellent volleyball."

And for K-State's Sharon Ridley, she'll be relying on the same philosophy she relies on during each match she encounters.

"I'm going to try my best. I'm not into volleyball for myself. I'm in it for the team."

Dickey changes plan, shifts coaching duties

By The Collegian Staff

In an unexpected move, Jim Dickey, head coach at K-State, announced a change in the coaching staff following Thursday's practice. The change will move offensive coordinator Jim Davie to the defense while Jerry Boyce moves from defense to offense.

Dickey said he decided to make the switch on Tuesday. He also said the change will be a positive one for the Wildcats.

"I feel it will give us a different look. I think it's a good move, one I had to make. Only time will tell if it works or not," Dickey said.

Both coaches involved in the change are no strangers to their new jobs. Boyce was offensive coordinator the past two seasons while Davie spent two seasons in 1978-79 as defense line coach.

Harriers to run for conference title

By TIM FILBY
Collegian Reporter

Pulling out all the stops will be the strategy that Steve Miller, K-State cross country coach, and the Wildcat men's and women's teams will use when they participate in the Big Eight Conference cross country championship meet Saturday in Lawrence.

"We are going to go out after the race and try to hold on to a lead," Miller said. "In some meets this year, we've run a little cautiously. In this race, if we don't win, it won't be because we didn't challenge ourselves."

Miller views the K-State squads as being in positions to win this weekend because the women are ranked eighth nationally, while the men are ranked 16th.

"We've taken some dramatic steps forward in this program," Miller said. "The women finished first in the Big Eight last year, and the men took third. I feel confident that we are well prepared again this year."

In the men's division, Miller looks for Iowa State University to be the 'Cats' biggest challenger.

"Iowa State has a really strong foreign team," Miller said. "It will be a monumental task, but I think we can still win the meet."

"Iowa State has two Africans — Yobes Ordick and Joseph Kipsang — that are not only the best in the conference but are two of the best in the country," Miller said.

Miller said K-State's biggest hopes for winning the individual championship rests on the shoulders of Brian Carroll and Alberto Rosas.

Iowa State will pose another threat to K-State in the women's division as the 'Cats try to defend last year's championship title, Miller said.

In the individual race, Miller sees the University of Missouri's Andrea Fisher as the meet favorite — ahead of defending Big Eight champion, Sabrina Dornhoffer, also of Missouri.

Miller said K-State's Betsy Silzer also is in contention to win the meet.

"Betsy will definitely be in the fight for the title," Miller said. "We're going to have her run right with Fisher and let Fisher dictate the pace. So, even if Betsy doesn't win the meet, she'll finish among the top."

Miller's confident that women are ready for the meet.

"Our girls are well-prepared mentally and physically," he said. "We're really looking forward to the meet."

CONCENTRATED
SHAMPOO
36¢ QUART

Plus
Over 1000 Salon and
Beauty Items at
Discount store prices.

• • • • •

10% OFF
WITH THIS COUPON
AT

GLAMOUR WORLD BEAUTY SUPPLY
1104 Waters
West on Anderson Ave.
Behind Curtis Mathis T.V.

DARK HORSE

TAVERN

TGIF
$2 PITCHERS
1-6
**&
FREE POPCORN

Game Day open at 10:00 a.m.
with build your own Sandwich Bar!

619 N. Manhattan

JUAREZ
TEQUILA

The Magic of Mexico.

Musical Instruments

Hayes House of Music

We Will Not Be Undersold
$10 Monthly Rental
We Rent Everything

223 Poyntz Manhattan, KS 66502 913 776-7983	2011 W. 6th Topeka, KS 66606 913 234-4472	523 N. Washington Junction City, KS 66441 913 238-1014
---	---	--

MCCAIN
AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

the piano King
of Kansas City Swing...

Jay "hootie" McShann
a Mid-America Arts Alliance program

Friday, October, 28, 8 p.m.

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office, noon-5 p.m. M-F, 532-8428

This program is made possible by support from the Kansas Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts, through participation in Mid-America Arts Alliance, a regional arts organization.

BUSHWACKER'S
• THE • FUNDRIKERY

—Friday—
Old Time
Rock n' Roll
&
Free
Hors d'oeuvres
Happy Hour: 4-8
2 Fers on HiBalls
75¢ Draws
$2 Blended Drinks

Saturday (Opening at 10:00)
Pre-game Sandwich Bar
Don't forget our game day bus to the Stadium

Drink of the Week:
CORN SHUCKER

A Reciprocating Club
Office 539-4321 Bar 539-9727

531 N. Manhattan

Announcing
THE MANHATTAN JAYCEES
6th Annual
HAUNTED HOUSE

OCTOBER 27-31

Pottorf Hall
Cico Park

Admission $2.00 Adults
$1.00 Children Under 12

Thurs.-Mon. 7-12:00 p.m.

Stanley LP may open doors for previous musical efforts

By ANGIE SCHARNHORST
Collegian Reviewer

The Michael Stanley Band has been recording solid standard rock'n'roll since 1975. Only with the release of its ninth LP, "You Can't Fight Fashion," has the band received considerable radio exposure in this area.

Michael Stanley (with or without band) has had several radio hits over the years, beginning with "Let's Get The Show On The Road" in 1973. Stanley's hits have helped bring him out of obscurity in its purest sense — and kept him recording — but have done little to bring him the recognition he deserved.

The title of the new LP, "You Can't Fight Fashion," could be attributed to this lack of recognition. The band, not being fashionable, has had a hard time breaking into popular radio.

Music Television (MTV) has done more to put the name of The Michael Stanley Band in front of the rock'n'roll public than anything. The band's video "He Can't Love You," from the 1980 "Heartland" album, was its first exposure to mass audiences throughout the country.

Even with the aid of MTV and a few minor hits, The Michael Stanley Band has had trouble breaking out beyond its cult following in the Midwest. Judging from the current airplay of the hit "My Town," and others, "You Can't Fight Fashion" could be the album the band needs to achieve widespread exposure to radio audiences.

Review

This would be justified only if this exposure leads to the exposure of the band's earlier work.

It's not that "You Can't Fight Fashion" isn't an adequate album. It is. But The Michael Stanley Band has produced LPs that were much more than adequate.

Since its inception, The Michael Stanley Band has gone through many changes in personnel, always maintaining a balance of musicians and vocalists. Carryovers from the group's first album, "You Break It...You Bought It!" include Stanley and drummer Tommy Dobeck.

Later additions to the band include current members Kevin Raleigh, vocalist and keyboardist; Bob Pelander, keyboardist; bassist Michael Gismondi; tenor saxophone player Rick Bell, and lead guitarist Danny Powers. Stanley plays guitar and shares lead vocals with Raleigh.

This change in personnel has helped to keep the band's music sounding fresh, with the exception of the latest record. The lack of progression the band displays on the album is one thing that sets it aside from previous, much stronger works.

The LP includes solid rock'n'roll hits and ballads, but is without the excitement of previous Michael Stanley albums. The band sounds slightly bored with itself, and should be, because it is producing the same kind of music it has been producing for several years, without the previous quality.

The album contains the same talented musicianship and vocals of the other Michael Stanley LPs, and on its own sounds good. When compared to earlier releases, the album is fair at best. If someone were to invest in a Michael Stanley album, one of the previous LPs would be a better choice.

Class offers chance at opera roles

By TOM DOWNING
Staff Writer

Last night in All Faiths Chapel, the departments of music and speech presented a Opera Workshop which gave students the opportunity to learn roles from operas without having to undergo the pain of producing the entire opera.

"For this year's workshop, one of the objectives has been to explore widely divergent styles, both in terms of vocal as well as dramatic realization," Jerry Langenkamp, professor of music, said.

Langenkamp directed the music and Tomas Hernandez, assistant professor of speech, staged the scenes.

The first scene was Act 1 of Gaetano Donizetto's comic opera, "Don Pasquale." Gerald Reeck, professor of biochemistry, sang Don Pasquale as a guest performer.

Susan Graber, senior in music education, sang the role of Norina, who is the object of the men's passion. Brent Weber, senior in music education, sang the role of her lover.

The second scene was Act 1, Scene 8 from Francesco Cavalli's "Ormindo," an early Baroque opera.

The first seven scenes of Act 1 of Kurt Weill's "Street Scene" comprised the final piece. This gave the 18 students who sang in "Street Scene" a chance to work with Weill's experimentation of the forms and styles.

Opera Workshop is a class taught by Hernandez and Langenkamp for both undergraduates and graduate students.

Renowned jazz trio visits K-State

By MICHELE SAUER
Staff Writer

Jay "Hootie" McShann taught himself to play the piano. He's been named to the European Jazz Hall of Fame and praised by the Smithsonian Institution.

Today, he is recognized by jazz musicologists as one of Kansas City's most important contributors to jazz.

"He embodies the heart and soul of what Kansas City music is all about," Al Cochran, instructor of music, said.

The Jay McShann Jazz Trio will perform at 8 tonight in McCain Auditorium.

He will also teach a masters class this afternoon in McCain, Cochran said. The session is open to the public.

The trio is comprised of McShann, drummer Paul Gunther, and vocalist Priscilla Bowman.

Gunther is a Kansas City native who has toured the Midwest and Canada with Tommy Douglas' band and performed widely in Europe.

Bowman is known for her wide vocal range and the emotion she projects.

McShann came to Kansas City in 1937, formed his first big band by 1939 and has been described as the man who "jumps the blues." Known for his improvisations, McShann handles blues, boogie-woogie and pop songs with relative ease.

McShann began studying in 1951 at the Kansas City Conservatory of Music to develop formal understanding of jazz.

"McShann represents today one of the last major figures in the Kansas City jazz tradition of the 1930s," Cochran said. "He has a hard driving rhythmic approach and is real strong in the blues tradition. He's geared to pleasing the crowd."

"One of the biggest reasons (for attending the concert) is that very soon most of the major innovators are going to be gone. He was a major influence in jazz and the Kansas City style."

McShann appeared in the film, "The Last of the Blue Devils" and the television special "Singin' the Blues."

Spotlight

Today, Oct. 28
CONCERTS

Jay McShann Jazz Trio — 8 p.m., McCain Auditorium

K-State, Nebraska Glee Clubs — 8 p.m., All Faiths Chapel

Jean Luc Ponty — Uptown, Kansas City

BANDS

Joe Quinn — TGIF, Avalon

The Zoo — Avalon

Plain Jane — Brothers

Kidd Band — Sports Fan-Attic

Prairie Star Band — Blue River Pub

DANCE

K-State Student/Faculty Dance Concert — 8 p.m., Manhattan Middle School

THEATER

Manhattan Civic Theatre presents "The Bat" — 8 p.m., City Auditorium

MOVIES

Never Say Never Again — Wareham

All the Right Moves — Campus

Richard Pryor, Here and Now — Varsity

Under Fire — Westloop

Dead Zone — Westloop

To Have and Have Not — 2:30 p.m., Forum Hall

Tootsie — 7 and 9:30, Forum Hall

Alien — midnight, Forum Hall

Saturday, Oct. 29
BANDS

The Zoo — Avalon

Plain Jane — Brothers

Kidd Band — Sports Fan-Attic

Prairie Star Band — Blue River Pub

DANCE

K-State Student/Faculty Dance Concert — 8 p.m., Manhattan Middle School

THEATER

Manhattan Civic Theatre presents "The Bat" — 8 p.m., City Auditorium

MOVIES

Never Say Never Again — Wareham

All the Right Moves — Campus

Richard Pryor, Here and Now — Varsity

Under Fire — Westloop

Dead Zone — Westloop

To Have and Have Not — 2:30 p.m., Forum Hall

Tootsie — 7 and 9:30, Forum Hall

Alien — midnight, Forum Hall

Spotlight is a calendar of entertainment and cultural events in the Manhattan area. The arts and entertainment staff encourages anyone to bring or mail items of interest to the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall, room 116.

BUY ANY 15" PIZZA
AND GET THE SAME 12"
PIZZA FOR 1/2 PRICE

2026 N. Tuttle Creek 537-1035

DON'T FORGET!

Next week is the last week to get your Royal Purple picture taken.

Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. Hours are 8:30-12:30 and 1:30-5:30.

539-5229

WILDCAT INN APTS

GRADUATING SENIOR SUBLETS

5 AVAILABLE FOR JAN. 1

APARTMENT LOCATION:

- FIELDHOUSE—1803 COLLEGE HEIGHTS, TOP FLOOR & BALCONIES, FURNISHED
- WILDCAT V—411 NORTH 17TH, JUST SOUTH OF RAMADA. PATIO APARTMENT—MASTER BEDROOM, 100% AC, FURNISHED.
- WILDCAT I—1854 CLAFLIN, JUST NORTH OF MARLATT HALL, 1-BEDROOM—FURNISHED. $220.00 PER MO.

CALL:
CELESTE—539-5001

The 1983 Pledge Class of ALPHA CHI OMEGA

is sponsoring a CHILI SUPPER on Sunday, October 30 at 5:30 p.m. at the Alpha Chi house—1835 Todd Road

Tickets will be Sold at the Door—$2.50

Σ A E • Σ Φ E

PRESENT THEIR 4TH ANNUAL ...
Busch Bowl

OCT. 28TH, 7:00 P.M., GRIFFITH FIELD

THANKS TO...

CAMPBELL DISTRIBUTORS INC.,
BALFOUR HOUSE, WOODY'S &

Α Δ Π Α Ξ Δ Δ Δ Δ
Σ Σ Σ Χ Ω Κ Δ
Γ Φ Β Π Β Φ Α Χ Ω

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not affect the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.65 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.25 per inch; Five consecutive days: $3.95 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $3.75 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENT

01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, 50¢ for students with ID and $1 for all others. (281)

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours: Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Maries, 1631 Humboldt, 539-5200. (32-50)

COSTUME PARTY Saturday afternoon and night at the El Paso Powder Room. Two keggs? Swan Lake? Blessings while you wait? You bet your tui! Call Roger Deenbush, Colin Rankin, or Scott Heidbrink for more information, 537-9349. (47-49)

FEMALE STUDENT would like to meet male student (25-35) with open, affectionate personality, broad range of interests (outdoors, plays), time to commit to friendship. Reply Box 4, Collegian. (47-49)

SUPPORT GROUP for incest survivors, confidential. Meets Thursdays 4:30-6:00 p.m. Call Women's Resource Center, 532-6444. (49-53)

SUPPORT GROUP—Women who have experienced abortion. Alternate Thursdays, 7-9:30 p.m., Women's Resource Center, 532-6444. (49-53)

500th LUTHER anniversary film "Where Luther Traveled" 7:00 p.m., Monday, October 31, Little Theater Union. Discussants: Rev. Norbert Diabai, St. Isadores; Rev. Ron Roschke, Peace Lutheran. (47-49)

ATTENTION

02

TRAVEL—We will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (11)

FANTASY-GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

HURRY TO Balfour! To introduce you to our new arrivals, all Footjoy aerobic shoes and racquetball shoes and gloves are 20% off now through October 29th. (39-49)

SINGLE MALE searching for single female born between February 16, 1961 and February 4, 1962. Call 537-8365 for more details. (43-48)

SPECIAL THANKS TO

From Sigma Phi Epsilon & Sigma Alpha Epsilon for their help with the 1983 BUSCH BOWL

CANDID PORTRAITS—I offer flexibility and a personal approach to each photo session. If you would like to give the "special" person a "special" photograph—phone 776-8502 evenings. Ask for Brian. (45-50)

COZUMEL—YUCATAN Peninsula—Mexico, Yucatan Field Course, Natural History, Three biology credits, Winter Internship, January 2-15 from Johnson County Community College. For more information, 1-888-0170. (47-49)

FOR RENT—MISC

03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11)

HALLOWEEN COSTUMES—Sales and rentals, masks, make-up, accessories. The Emporium, 11th and More in Aggieville. (35-49)

FOR RENT: One and two bedroom mobile homes, $165 and $175. No pets. 539-6058 or 539-5402. (48-52)

THREE BEDROOM with fireplace and garage. Available now or for next semester. $525. Call 539-4294, ask for Ron. (48-63)

FOR RENT—APTS

04

NICE, SPACIOUS, two-bedroom, unfurnished, $295. Available anytime. 776-2171. (45-49)

PINE HAVEN brand new two-bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. 776-3804. (46-55)

TWO BEDROOM, furnished, near Westloop. Fully equipped, pool, balcony, lovely—$350. Call 238-4792. (46-50)

NICE Two bedroom apartment. Available November 1. Deposit and lease required. No pets. 537-3629. (47-49)

ONE BEDROOM unfurnished apartment—off-street parking, close to campus and Aggieville. Available spring semester. Call 539-4371 or 539-2019 after 5:00 p.m. (47-49)

LARGE, NICE, two-bedroom apartment. Fireplace, balcony. Call 776-3439. Available immediately. (48-50)

ONE BEDROOM apartment, $150. No pets. 539-6058 or 539-5402. (46-52)

FIRST FLOOR, two-bedroom, duplex apartment. Close to campus with off-street parking. $350. Call 776-0055. (48-52)

DECEMBER 1—Large rooms with complete kitchen and washer/dryer, off-street parking, near KSU. Call evenings, 776-3382. (49-50)

THREE BEDROOM house with garage for rent. Call collect (913) 823-6690 Friday evening, Saturday, Sunday. (49)

FOR SALE—AUTO

06

1979 TOYOTA Corolla hatchback. AM/FM cassette, air, excellent condition. After 7:00 p.m. 776-1495 or 539-8970. (45-49)

1974 FORD Pinto. Good shape. New gear system, stereo, heating system. Call 539-1361 8 a.m.-10 a.m. or 6 p.m.-12 p.m. (46-49)

1976 MALIBU Classic, 305 engine, automatic, air conditioning, tilt, stereo, good tires. Call 776-0545. (47-49)

FOR SALE: 1974 Mustang II, $600 or best offer. Call 539-9023. (47-49)

1980 MUSTANG Cobra Turbo, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, 39,000 miles. 776-5182 after 5:00 p.m. Anytime on weekends. (48-52)

1979 CHEVY Luv pickup. Air conditioning, AM/FM cassette, two new tires. Call evenings and weekends, 776-1810. (48-52)

1976 CHEVY Monza. Four-cylinder, 5-speed, AM/FM. Low mileage. Call 537-1827 after 5:30 p.m. (49)

FOR SALE—MISC

07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risqué greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, recorders. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (light blue), USC (white), others. $14.00 each postpaid. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-801-835-1085. (45-59)

OLYMPUS XA 35mm camera with A11 flash. $100. Call 532-2362. (47-50)

EQUIPMENT For making rubber stamps. Type, press cabinet for type, and supplies. Must sell. Phone 537-7511 after 5:00 p.m. (47-51)

SCHWINN VARSITY 10-speed—Excellent shape. Asking $90 or best offer. Call 776-1228 after 6:00 p.m. (47-49)

WHISTLES!

Acme Thunderer

LOUD-SHRILL

Call Charly

913-537-9821

FOUR KSU-NU tickets. Excellent seats. Call anytime. Keep trying. Call 1-494-2816 or 1-494-2571. $25 each. (47-49)

SOUND SYSTEM: Peavey-mixer, EQ, CS800, bass bins. Also, Tapco mixer, Mitchell cabinets, 100W guitar amps, Heipinstill and Rhodes pianos. Call 776-9305. (48-50)

HAVE TWO K-State vs. Nebraska tickets for sale. Call 537-4853. (48-49)

INTELLIGENCE GAME System plus five game cartridges, like new. Call 537-4676 after 5:00 p.m. (48-49)

MOVING SALE: Desk, $35; sewing cabinet, $15; Spanish living room set, black couch, easy chair, rocker with ottoman; two end tables, $150; 20" pushmover, $35; ping pong table, $15; full size bed, box springs, mattress and frame, $50. Beige shag carpet, remnants from $29 with pad, $3 per square yard. Call 776-2251. (48-50)

MOVING SALE: Queen size bed with chest, dresser, night stand, shelves, chair, T.V., stereo, radio, rug. Reasonable price. Call 539-4666 anytime Saturday. (48-49)

TWO TICKETS to Heart concert on Wednesday, November 2 in Salina. Call Joe or Steve after 2:00 p.m., 776-3488. (48-50)

We have new Gibson guitars starting at $299.00. 20% off guitars. Hayes House of Music

223 Poyntz

776-7983

AKC MINATURE Schnauzer puppies. Neat little dogs for apartment living, excellent watchdogs. Call 1-456-9905. (48-50)

BICYCLES For Sale: 10- and 3-speed mens and womens $35-$150. Limited selection. Call 537-8616. (48-49)

TWO KSU vs. NU tickets, 2nd row on 50-yard line. Best offer by Friday evening. 532-3429. (48-49)

UKC REGISTERED Pit Bull Hound, proven sire. 776-5677 after 6:00 p.m. (48-49)

ONE PAIR Brook's Chariot running shoe's. Almost new, $35. Call 539-7152 after 6:00 p.m. (48-51)

FOUR K-State-NU tickets for sale. Forty-five yard line, 20 rows up, alumni section. Call 532-3482 by 6:00 p.m. on October 28, 1983. (49)

FOR SALE: Complete home stereo system. Includes Bose 901 speakers. Call 1-632-2391 after 6:00 p.m. (49-53)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES

08

TWO-BEDROOM trailer house, excellent condition. Call 776-6143 after 6:00 p.m. (45-54)

12' x 65', three-bedroom trailer, excellent condition. Includes: air conditioning, washer and dryer, some furniture. Call 479-5053. (49-53)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES

09

1979 SUZUKI GS550, 18,000 miles, new chain, battery, helmets included. $900 or best offer. 776-1332 after 5:00 p.m. (42)

1973 TR6 Triumph, one owner, both tops, very nice, K-State purple, $2595. The Preston McCall Company, 913-841-6067. (44-53)

1982 HONDA XL250R. Excellent condition, must sell. $975 or best offer. 537-4375. (47-49)

FOUND

10

FOUND—MALE cat, long hair, black and white, in Eisenhower Hall. Very friendly. Call 532-6841 days. (48-50)

FOUND: PAIR of large-framed glasses on sidewalk between Cardwell and Ackert. Claim in Kedzie 103. (48-50)

GARAGE SALES

12

BARGAIN HUNTERS! Yard sale! 10-speed, clothes—like new, driving equipment, furniture, records, etc. Saturday, 8:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m.; Sunday, 12:00-2:00 p.m.; 1517 Hartford. (48-49)

HELP WANTED

13

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

MALE SUBJECTS needed for study. $3 for one-half hour time. Call 532-6929 or 539-1380. (47-51)

IMMEDIATE TWO part-time sale telephone receptionist positions. Qualifications: mature person from a standard high school or equivalent, pleasant speaking voice, neat personal appearance, the ability to work well with people in a pleasant working environment. Applications must be sent to P.O. Box 703, Manhattan, KS 66502. (46-49)

HELP WANTED—Computer Programmer. Advanced undergraduate or graduate student needed part-time to maintain and operate existing computer systems and develop programs to analyze survey data. Applicants should have working knowledge and experience in CMS, SAS, PL1 and keypunching. Submit an application letter, resume and references by November 4, 1983 to: Dr. Charles I. Rankin, Director, Midwest Race and Sex Desegregation Assistance Center, Kansas State University, 401 Bluemont Hall, Manhattan, KS 66506. Kansas State University is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity Employer. (47-49)

LOST

14

LOST: LIKE new blue denim jacket on the 13th or 14th of the month. Call 776-3884. (46-49)

LADIES GOLD birthstone ring with Peridot stone (light green). Probably lost in Seaton Hall or Union. Sentimental value. Reward! Call Judy at 532-5964. (47-49)

LOST: TEXTBOOK—Design of Experiments by Cochran and Cox. Please return to Waters Hall, room 130. (48-52)

PERSONAL

16

SANDI WESTHUES—Here's a long distance birthday wish from Overland Park! Have a blast: only one more year! Lots of love, your sis, Janie. P.S.—Party with Dad anyway! (49)

SWAFF—GET psyched for this afternoon at Mr. K's. Being guest D.J.'s together will be a blast! Lisa-Marie. P.S. The Gap Band lives! (49)

SUE: WE'VE checked our clocks. Lincoln won't be like the trip with P.J. (I hope we'll be able to untie those in our L.R.—Dre. (49)

CHUCK #51—I am so proud of you, you have worked so hard and now it's paying off. I will always be here for you, because I love you so much. Good luck and have fun Friday and Saturday. I know you will do well. Love always, Tara (Mom). (49)

BOB #63—Congratulations, you have moved up to the big time. I am proud. Love, Tara. (49)

TO THE Bug Eyes of Triangle Composites: I've met with your pledge brother, and he really thinks you're great; and as my APO pledge son, you really rate. (49)

JANELLE, HOPE you have a super 8-day. Thanks for being a terrific comrade. I know we'll have fun tonight. Love ya! Sandy. (49)

SANDY, THANKS for all your help! I couldn't make it without you being my roomie! Love, Janelle. (49)

DI—SORRY about this, late as usual I know. So I'm not perfect. Anyhow, Happy Birthday and good luck next week on the exam. My heart and mind will be with you all the time. Love always, D. Edgar. (49)

MOON, I hope this is a birthday you won't forget! Have a happy birthday and good luck in the race this weekend. I love you, Prell. (49)

DEAR GREAT Pumpkinhead (or DB, or EB, or J. Meet ya in the Pumpkin Patch tomorrow night, and I want to see some heavy-duty jammin' to M/J! Happy early 8-day—Lucy. (49)

BAM—DALLAS is a runn, I think it's going to rain; why don't we have dinner, then I'll rub your pain. Meet me at the Rocker, approximately at nine; I won't keep you out long, you'll get to CU on time. Ty Ready. P.S. We need to decide what I win June 1st, 1985. (49)

JOANIE—YOU are the best roommate! Have fun at the Barn Party! Julie. (49)

DOC—JUST a few words for someone special. You've been a best friend and more to me, and I am really going to miss you. I wish the best of everything to you. Remember Doc, when you've got a dream, go for it! What ever that dream is, I know you'll own it. Your friend always, Jo. (49)

LUXURIANT-HAIRED Woman: But how to keep in touch, how to find closeness and continuity, and share quiet times? Someone who notices. (49)

PIKES—We rocked and rolled all weekend long, with Pi Kappa Alpha, we couldn't go wrong; even though the fun couldn't last, we AD Pi women sure had a blast. Love, the AD Pi's. (49)

MIKE WARD—You are the real #1 Greek Playboy, I still want a picture of you. Meet me at Kite's tonight and we'll talk about it.—The almost winning bidder. (49)

CRYSTAL—HEY Pooky, how is Scooba Kitty? It is not my birthday, thanks anyway. By the way, how about going to Red Dog with me? Love, Cary. (49)

AD Pi Jill—Happy 21st Birthday to our #1 mom! We love you! Your Dots. (49)

RTJ—H.B.I.L.Y. T.B. Surprise later. (49)

LENA YOWELL—Here is your fourth clue: We both live down under, but a long ways apart. Love, your secret spooks. (49)

S.O.B.'s—Dig out your tires, for the party is about to begin! Happy Halloween! (49)

TANE—TOMORROW's the day. Big 20. Don't worry, you're not over the hill yet. Have a Happy Birthday. I love you. Robert. (49)

MRS. WINK: Last Friday was our night, tonight will be even better. Love, Mr. Wink. (49)

TRI DELTS—To Stephanie Stewarts we're on the run, so look out Dallas here we come! To dance and frolic all night long—we'll miss you all, don't get us wrong. We'll be home so don't despair—but after we've hit Boiling and Wilson, Billy Bobs, confetti's, and LeBaron's See ya Sun day! Love, The Juniors (the class you hate to love). P.S. Delta Delta Delta does Dallas Dallas Dallas! (49)

PAM T.—Thanks for being my best friend and making this past year the greatest. It's been fast, but that happens when you're around someone as special as yourself. Love, your clown, Brian. (49)

DIANE J.—Happy Birthday to a great sister. Thanks for everything, including those things you called cookies! Love, Grant and Scott. (49)

SIXTEEN CHEERFUL People—Well, the time has finally come for our routine to be done. Many hours have been spent making our bodies tired and bent. Thanks for all your dedication and let's go "Hawaiian" for our Christmas vacation. Go Tigers, Go Tigers, Hey, Hey-Hey, Love, Merli. (49)

ROOMMATE WANTED

17

ONE-TWO female non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplaces, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (49-53)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share four-bedroom apartment through May. Good location. Call 539-8849. (42-51)

FEMALE ROOMMATES wanted for house one-half block from campus. $100 month plus one-fourth electricity. Available November 1st. Call 539-8553. (47-49)

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted—Colonial Gardens Trailer Court, $125 plus one-half utilities. Call 537-3680. (47-49)

QUIET FEMALE roommate needed for spring semester. 539-6874. (47-51)

FEMALE NON-SMOKER wanted to share nice, quiet apartment, two and one-half blocks from campus; second semester, $130/month. Call 537-0948, 5:30 p.m.-10:00 p.m. (48-50)

SHARE TWO bedroom house (own room), three and one-half blocks east of campus, $135/month. Available now! Private parking. 776-4987 or 776-0182. (49-53)

HONEST, RELIABLE female wanted to share nice duplex with one other. Super rent! Call Susan, 776-3808 days, 539-6070 evenings. (49-50)

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted—For a house close to campus. $150 a month plus one-third electricity. Available now. Call 539-1093 or 539-8662. (49-53)

SERVICES

18

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Unique skin care and glamour products. Call Floris Taylor, 539-2070, for facial. (1-75)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South 4th Street, Suite 25. (11)

GRADUATING THIS semester? Let us help you with your resume. Resume Service, 1221 Moro, Aggieville, 537-7294. (11)

Typing—LOWER rates. IBM electronic typewriter for faster service. Satisfaction guaranteed. Call Linda, 776-6174. (71)

MARY KAY Cosmetics: Free facials. 10 percent off products with student I.D. New fall glamour products now in. Call Elaine Berryhill, Independent Beauty Consultant. 537-3233 days, 1-456-7251 evenings. (30-50)

COSTUMES by the thousands. Complete rabbits, chickens, gorillas, tigers, bears and more. Flappers, Play Boy Bunnies, French maid, dance hall girls, much more. Ask for whatever you'd like to reserve now for Halloween. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (9-50)

Typing—LETTERS, term papers, resumes, etc. Reasonable rates. Call Sherry, 539-9131 after 5:30 p.m. (21-50)

J&L BUG SERVICE

Video rock'n'roll goes local

By ANDY OSTMEYER
Staff Writer

Video tape and rock'n'roll make beautiful music together.

So beautiful, in fact, that many local stations and cable networks now carry their own video rock programs.

There are four stages of development with this type of program, according to Scott Sassa, executive producer for "Night Tracks," the video program of WTBS in Atlanta, Ga.

The first was the innovator stage which started with the creation of video rock by Music Television.

MTV was created in the fall of 1981, Dan Hebert, manager of Manhattan Cable, said. It became available in Manhattan in February 1982.

Hebert said approximately 30 percent of Manhattan college students subscribe to MTV, which he described as a "strictly rock'n'roll station."

"Video rock now is a pretty popular item," Hebert said.

One of the reasons for the increasing popularity of video rock is the promotion it has received from record companies and record stores. Hebert added that MTV's popularity in Manhattan is due in part to the large number of college students.

Age of viewers is also major factor of the popularity of video rock. Hebert defined the age group for MTV subscribers between 13 and 30 years old.

People who are "into" classic, old time films are strongly attracted to video rock, Hebert said.

The second stage of video music development, Sassa said, is the bandwagon stage in which other stations follow the innovator. WTBS is one cable station that followed MTV, as did two local stations. WIBW in Topeka started "FM Vision" last April and KSHB, Kansas City premiered "Hit Video."

The letters and requests the station receives about the video program continue to increase, said Dave Alexander, co-host and music director for "FM Vision." Some of the letters are written by people who live in communities which also receive MTV. Topeka does not have MTV.

The latest Arbitron ratings, announced in July 1983, showed that in the Topeka area (which includes all of northeast Kansas) "FM Vision" had a greater share of the viewers than the Tonight Show, Barney Miller, Nightline and Royals baseball. Arbitron is a Chicago-based television ratings service which is published four times a year. Selected families are asked to keep track of the shows they watch for a month, and then ratings are compiled from the collected data.

George Logan, general manager of WIBW said video rock is an extension of the popularity of music. Instead of just listening to music, people prefer it with the added dimension of video.

It is too early to tell how popular "Hit Video" is because it just premiered in September. Cindy Gray, associate producer, said she expects the show to do well because many people don't subscribe to MTV in Kansas City.

Sassa said his station's video program, "Night Tracks," has four times as many viewers as MTV according to the ratings because of the type of music played.

Gray agreed with Sassa that the format of the station makes a difference in the popularity.

MTV features album-oriented rock as opposed to the contemporary music which is featured on the other video rock programs.

The third stage will be a weeding-out stage. The stations with the best video formats are going to survive and the weak ones are not, Sassa said.

The final stage would be one of technical development of the surviving programs in which the finishing touches are added, Sassa said.

"Haunting" for a good deal? Come to the Ville!

What's a Chimichanga?

- Flour tortilla filled with beef, black olives, onions & sauce
  - Deep-fat fried
- Served with lettuce, cheese sour cream & salsa.

ONLY $2.20!

Piñata

Open Daily at 11:00 a.m.

Blumont & North Manhattan

539-3166

The Palace

GIFTS AND NECESSITIES

Your Halloween Spook-tique

Masks • Make-up • Cards
Party Goods • Decorations

CANDY

Everything to make your
Halloween spook-tacular!

704 N. Manhattan

In Aggieville

Open Mon. - Thurs. til 8:30

539-7654

kinko's copies

1126 LARAMIE

AGGIEVILLE

537-7340

.SPECIAL.

WITH THIS COUPON
Kinko's copies

8 1/2 x 11 20 LB WHITE PAPER
HAND FEEDING CHARGES MAY APPLY
OFFER EXPIRES 11-5-83

4 1/2¢
NO MINIMUM

WITH THIS COUPON
Kinko's copies

SELF SERVICE COPIES
NO COINS REQUIRED
OFFER EXPIRES 11-5-83

3 1/2¢
NO MINIMUM

WITH THIS COUPON
Kinko's copies

ANY SOFT BINDING
NO LIMIT
OFFER EXPIRES 11-5-83

20% OFF

WITH THIS COUPON
Kinko's copies

PASSPORT PHOTOS
COLOR OR BLACK & WHITE
NO APPOINTMENTS
3 MINUTE SERVICE
OFFER EXPIRES 11-5-83

$1.00 OFF

Big Red
Rolls

'Cats improve in second half
Sports, page 10

UDAG approval breathes life into city mall

By LUCINDA ELLISON
Manhattan Editor

By 1987, it'll be a whole new place. With preliminary approval Friday of an application for a $10 million Urban Development Action Grant, Manhattan will finally see plans for a downtown mall become a reality. The city, which began thinking about such a plan about 10 years ago, received approval from the Department of Housing and Urban Development at 4 p.m., Gary Stith, community development director, said.

Word of approval came from Republican Senators Nancy Kassebaum and Robert Dole.

"It's pretty exciting," Stith said. "It's the result of a lot of work for a long time by a lot of people."

The grant will aid in funding a $55 million project for downtown redevelopment, including the mall. In addition to the 400,000 square foot structure, the project consists of construction of two office buildings, a southern arterial, relocation of the Rock Island Railroad tracks, service commercial development for relocation of businesses in the construction area and general rehabilitation of the remaining downtown area.

The service commercial development consists of the construction of two buildings in the 300 block of Colorado Street on both sides of the street. The structures will serve as a possibility for relocation of those businesses being moved out by the mall project. About 80 businesses will be relocated by the project.

The mall site includes land east of Third Street, bounded by the Rock Island Railroad tracks, and Leavenworth and Colorado streets. Construction of the southern arterial will cause K-18 to be rerouted around Fort Riley Boulevard, through El Paso Street and to the K-177 viaduct. U.S.

Highway 24 will connect to Tuttle Creek Boulevard with an access point to Leavenworth Street.

The project is scheduled to be complete and the mall open for business by spring of 1987, Stith said.

"I'm pleased that we're at this point," Mayor Wanda Fateley said. "It (downtown) should look considerably different as you come across the bridge (K-177)."

Now that preliminary approval has been received, the city must begin contract negotiations with HUD and mall developer, Forest City Enterprises, Stith said. Final approval for the UDAG will not be given until the contract negotiations are complete.

"In our scheduling, we've allowed ourselves six months, but we hope it won't take that long," he said.

During the next six months, the city will proceed with redevelopment plans by selecting a consultant to perform appraisals on businesses in the area which must be relocated, Stith said.

After the final approval has been granted, the city will complete appraisals, acquisition of property and relocation of businesses. Following the relocation process, buildings on the mall site will be demolished and final preparation will take place, he said. The area will then be turned over to the developer for mall construction.

"It will take about 1½ years to get the site ready and 1½ years to get it (the mall) built," he said.

During the mall site preparation and construction of the building, other processes involving redevelopment will occur, Stith said. Utility and street improvements, relocation of the railroad yards and construction of the southern arterial are scheduled to take place during this time.

The mall, which will cost approximately $23 million to construct, will be anchored by two major department stores, with adequate space for the addition of a third major store later. The city has received commitments from J.C. Penney and the Jones Store Co. as anchor stores in the project. The project design includes retail space for about 60 additional businesses in the mall.

Commitment from the Penney Corporation was not received until last Thursday. JCP Realty, which is part of the corporation, is working in conjunction with Forest City on the mall development plan. The commitments were necessary to gain approval from HUD for the UDAG.

Stith said planning for downtown redevelopment began in 1978. "We've submitted our application (for a UDAG) since August of 1981," he added.

The city has submitted an application to HUD every three months since then, being rolled over each time until Friday.

"There's an awful lot of people that are really excited about it," he said.

U.S. captures leaders of Grenada rebellion

By The Associated Press

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados — Barbados' state-run radio said Sunday the Marxist general who seized control of Grenada's left-wing government in a bloody coup has been captured, apparently by U.S. forces which invaded the tiny island last week.

The Caribbean Broadcasting Corp. gave no details, saying only that Gen. Hudson Austin was taken prisoner Sunday, one day after U.S. Marines captured former Deputy Prime Minister Bernard Coard, accused of provoking the coup.

There was no confirmation of the broadcast by U.S. officials or other sources in Grenada.

Austin led the coup and named a Revolutionary Military Council following the slaying of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop on Oct. 19. Bishop had been under house arrest for a week in a power struggle with Coard, a hard-line Marxist.

In Washington, the Pentagon said the American death toll rose to 16 Sunday, with 77 wounded and three missing since thousands of U.S. troops and a seven-nation Caribbean force invaded Grenada at dawn Oct. 25 and deposed the leftist military junta. Their stated aim was to restore order and protect civilians.

U.S. military officials in Barbados said Air Force planes were transporting food into Grenada for tired and hungry residents of the tiny tropical island nation. American diplomats could not confirm this, but said 500 displaced Grenadians may be eligible for emergency aid.

Another planeload of U.S. evacuees reached the United States late Saturday, bringing to at least 677 the number of U.S. nationals flown out of the island since the invasion began. Most of the 1,000 Americans that had lived on Grenada were students at St. George's University Medical School.

Sir Paul Scoon, who was appointed to the largely ceremonial British Commonwealth position of governor-general by Queen Elizabeth II in 1978, has become the acting civilian leader of Grenada. Caribbean nations supporting the military action are looking to him to form an interim government until elections can be held.

Scoon addressed the island's estimated 110,000 residents late Saturday on state-run Spice Island Radio, formerly Radio Free Grenada. He asked shopkeepers to reopen their stores, urged teachers and students to attend school, and said government employees should report to their offices today for "business as usual."

However, Scoon also asked Grenadians to respect an 8 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew. There were still reports of looting in the city during the weekend, though repair crews restored electricity and water service.

On Saturday, Coard was captured after islanders showed U.S. troops the house where he was hiding.

Jesse Jackson to pursue presidential nomination

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Rev. Jesse Jackson announced Sunday he will seek the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination and said he would try to choose a female running mate.

The civil rights leader, in an interview recorded for the CBS-TV program "60 Minutes," said he would formally announce his candidacy Thursday in Washington. He is seeking to become the first black presidential candidate nominated by a major party.

Although many black political leaders have said they will not support him, fearing such a campaign would be divisive, Jackson said, "No candidate can expect to have unanimous support from any given community."

On the subject of a running mate, Jackson was asked by CBS correspondent Mike Wallace, "Are you now saying that you will choose, if you can, a woman, be she white or black?"

"There's no doubt about it," Jackson replied.

Jackson said he will try to win votes from younger Americans.

"Twenty-five percent of all the eligible black voters are between the ages of 18 and 24," Jackson said. "The group had been voting at about a 10 percent level. It's obvious it would move above 50 percent now."

Jackson said of 18 million eligible black voters, only 10 million are registered.

"(If) we move to get another 3 million on the books by next November, we will have changed Democratic options in the primaries," he said.

The 42-year-old Jackson heads Operation PUSH, a Chicago-based community-service organization that concentrates on registering voters.

Jackson said he wants to be president because "I'm concerned about our measure for greatness."

"I want to help again measure greatness by how we treat children in the dawn of life, how we treat poor people in the pit of life and how we treat old folk in the sunset of life," he said.

Bloodmobile receives record donation

By KAREN BELLUS
Collegian Reporter

The Red Cross Bloodmobile received record response to their biannual blood drive at K-State last week and "went way past the goal" during the four-day operation.

According to Lea Ruggles, K-State bloodmobile community chairman, the bloodmobile goal of 1,400 pints of blood donated was easily surpassed. The total amount of blood donated was 1,745 pints, which was the "biggest amount donated ever at K-State," he said.

During two of the four days the bloodmobile was here, records were set for the amount of donations. On Wednesday, 441 pints of blood were donated and 452 were donated on Thursday. On each day of the blood drive, more than 400 volunteers donated blood.

"We had a lot of first-time volunteers. Approximately 120 donors each day donated blood for the first time. That's great because that usually means that they'll come back," said Marcia Wunderlich, co-student chairman of the bloodmobile and senior in interior design.

To operate the bloodmobile, the Red Cross provides 20 registered nurses to help screen the blood donors and take blood. Approximately 50 Red Cross community volunteers participated as well as several student organizations. More than a dozen living groups and campus organizations were represented by student volunteers. Circle K International managed the student section of the drive.

"We provide the publicity, sign-up volunteers and send out thank-you notes to various organizations after the bloodmobile is over," said

Wunderlich, who also is a member of Circle K.

Wunderlich said 18 student volunteers are needed each hour to help operate the bloodmobile. There are usually enough student volunteers to efficiently manage it.

"A lot of man-hours go into this. In the past years, student volunteers worked about 535 hours in four days," Ruggles said.

Doctors from Lafene Health Center volunteered their time for at least half a day. Community doctors Ben W. Lafene and Donald E. McCoy also volunteered their services.

Legend of jazz

A legend in Kansas City jazz history, Jay McShann, performed and talked with students in an informal classroom jazz workshop Friday afternoon.

McShann and his band performed in McCain Auditorium Friday evening. (See story page 3.)

Turkish quake demolishes 50 villages

By The Associated Press

ISTANBUL, Turkey — A major earthquake struck six provinces in eastern Turkey early Sunday and officials said at least 487 people were killed. Newspapers said 50 villages were leveled, and the death toll was expected to climb.

About three hours earlier a quake rolled through the Hindukush mountain range, 1,400 miles to the east on the border between Afghanistan and Pakistan, shaking Islamabad and reaching as far as India's Kashmir state. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage. More than 12 hours later, a strong quake shook southwestern Japan, but no casualties were reported.

The quake struck Turkey at 7:12 a.m. (11:12 p.m. EST Saturday) and was felt in mountainous provinces bordering Iran, Syria and Iraq.

Nightfall and intermittent snowfall in several areas hampered rescue efforts. A local army corps mobilized all its soldiers to help the survivors and clear debris in communities reached earlier in the day.

Reporters in Erzurum, reached by phone from here, told of "widespread destruction" in the districts of Pasinler, 25 miles northeast of Erzurum, and in Sarikamis, 45 miles from the Soviet border.

The daily Tercuman reported at least 50 villages were "destroyed" in an arc including Pasinler, Horasan and Narman.

Authorities said 361 of the victims were in Pasinler villages and nearly a hundred were found under collapsed houses in Sarikamis.

"In view of the remoteness of hundreds of other villages, the total casualty figure could be very high," said a spokesman for the governor's office in Erzurum.

Local officials and the Kandilli Observatory in Istanbul said they believed Pasinler was the epicenter of the killer quake.

The U.S. Geological Survey, which monitors earth-sensors throughout the world, said the quake measured 7.1 on the Richter Scale of earth movement — capable of widespread damage.

Outspoken 'Miss Lillian' dies in Georgia hospital

By The Associated Press

AMERICUS, Ga. — Lillian Carter, the opinionated and outspoken mother of former President Jimmy Carter, died Sunday at age 85.

Mrs. Carter had been at Americus-Sumter County Hospital for about a week. The former president and his wife, Rosalynn, had been at the hospital for the day.

"Miss Lillian," as her neighbors in Plains, Ga., called her, lived on the fringes of politics for most of her life, but was rarely shy about expressing her opinions. In 1980, she created headlines by saying that if she had $1 million, she would hire a "hit man" to kill Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini.

A graveside service for Mrs. Carter will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the Lebanon Cemetery in Plains.

Mideast leaders gather for peace conference

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Guns fell silent Sunday in Beirut, and U.S. Marine patrolers sequestered themselves in their airport compound after an exhausting week of digging out comrades killed by a terrorist truck-bomb.

As leaders of the country's warring sects gathered in Geneva in an attempt to end eight years of turmoil, politicians said the reconciliation conference was the last chance for Lebanon to survive.

State-run radio said Beirut's southern slums and adjacent hills, where fighting has persisted despite a civil war truce, were "remarkably silent," and police reported no cease-fire violations by late Sunday. Two Marines were wounded by a rocket-propelled grenade in skirmishes Saturday.

At the Marines' airport compound, where a suicide terrorist killed at least 229 U.S. servicemen with a truck bomb Oct. 23, the Americans ordered all reporters out, and rested after a weeklong search for the dead. But efforts to dig out more bodies were expected to continue for several days.

A simultaneous bombing a mile away killed at least 58 French soldiers. The French and Americans are part of a multinational force that has patrolled the Beirut area since the fall of 1982.

The Reagan administration said last week it has evidence Iranian-backed terrorists engineered the double bombing and has vowed unspecified retaliation. Iran has denied involvement.

The last Lebanese leaders to leave for the Swiss capital Sunday were Saeb Salam, an elderly Sunni Moslem and former prime minister, and Pierre Gemayel, chief of the right-wing Christian Phalange Party and father of President Amin Gemayel, who is chairing the reconciliation conference.

"We will all be responsible for the consequences if we do not deal with this historical period with full awareness," Salam told reporters before his departure.

Pierre Gemayel said he was "confident that the representatives of the people of Lebanon meeting in Geneva will not let the Lebanese down and will be up to their responsibilities."

But Ghassan Tuani, publisher of the country's leading newspaper An-Nahar and a presidential adviser, published what he said was an open letter to the conferees saying failure of the conference will "mean the end of Lebanon."

Two men rob local citizen

By The Collegian Staff

The manager of the Pizza Hut at 231 Moro St. was robbed at gunpoint early Saturday morning. Mike Simmons was en route to his car after closing the business as two black males approached him and took a Union National Bank money bag and his tri-fold wallet.

The money bag contained an undetermined amount of money. Simmons reported that his wallet held his personal identification and credit cards.

According to police reports, the suspect holding a short-barreled gun wore a nylon hose over his face. He was in his early 20s, 6 feet tall and weighed about 160 pounds.

The second suspect was 6 feet tall, weighed about 175 pounds and also in his early twenties. He had on a long-sleeved, thermal-type undershirt, grey sweat pants, white socks, tennis shoes and a two-toned baseball hat. He had facial hair and a mustache.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

FOR CAMPUS BULLETIN should be submitted in the Campus Bulletin mailbox outside the Collegian newsroom in Kedzie Hall.

STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS: All undergraduate students in a health-related degree program are eligible to apply for a Student Cancer Research Award of $500. These awards have been made available by the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Division of Biology. Applications are now available in Ackert 233. Deadline is Nov. 28.

TODAY

ALPHA ZETA meets at 7 p.m. in the Union Big Eight Room.

STAR RIDERS meets at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI meets at 8 p.m. in Union 213.

TUESDAY

ADULT AND OCCUPATIONAL GRADUATE CLUB meets at 11:30 in Union Stateroom 2.

EDUCATION COUNCIL meets at 6:15 p.m. in the Blumert Hall honors seminar room.

AG COMMUNICATORS OF TOMORROW meet at 6:30 p.m. in Kedzie 216.

PHILOSOPHY CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Eisenhower 212. Dave Green will present a slide show on his trip to Russia. All students are welcome.

NATURAL RESOURCE MANAGEMENT meets at 7 p.m. in Call Hall 228. Royal Purple pictures will be taken at 7:15 p.m. in Calvin Hall.

INSTITUTE OF INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERS meets at 7 p.m. in Durland 173.

SIERRA CLUB meets at 7:15 at 1511 University Dr.

STUDENT DIETETIC ASSOCIATION meets at 7:15 p.m. in Union 105.

BLOCK AND BRIDLE meets at 7:30 p.m. in Weber 107. Officers meet at 7 p.m. Yearbook ads are due.

PRE-LAW CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Shellenberger 301.

FELLOWSHIP OF CHRISTIAN ATHLETES meets at 8:30 p.m. in Danforth Chapel.

BEER
Sold at cost plus
5%
Revco Drug Store
Village Plaza

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity
Rep.—TOM SEELE
• Supplemental Retirement Annuities
• Investment Options
• Free Transfer Privileges
• State Deferred Compensation
• Life Insurance
1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 613276-7095

Correction

The paragraph showing the cost to the developer of placing fixtures for The Jones Store Co., should it be located in the proposed downtown mall was unreadable in Friday's Collegian. The price is $1.8 million.

MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR

Open daily 8-5:30, Saturday 8-1
Drive-Up Convenience
401 Humboldt 775-1193

LET'S TALK PRICES

Next Time Think Chef Cafe For Dinner. You Can't Spend Over $3.95 for dinner and it includes a Saled Bar. We also Have a Special Childrens menu with Dinners for Only $1.50

You can't say this about any other Full Service Restaurant.

CHEF
111 S. 4th

POSTER & PANES

"GRAND OPENING"

OCT. 31 to NOV. 5

*FINE ART POSTERS
*DRY MOUNTING
*LEADED STAINED GLASS
*FRAMING

10% OFF ANY POSTER
COME BY, BROWSE,
REGISTER FOR
FREE DRAWINGS.

1112 LARAMIE
AGGIEVILLE

DARK HORSE

TAVERN

It's Halloween!

Enter our Best Costume
Contest along with other ghostly
contests!

$2 Pitchers All night long!
619 N. Manhattan

Gibson
Guitars
Now in Stock

20% off
all guitars
& a free case

20% off
drums

35% off
banjos,
mandolins,
guild guitars

Hayes House
of Music
523 N. Washington
238-1014

LOOKING FOR VALUE?

The Silver-Reed
Penman daisy wheel printer types with both pica and elite

The Silver-Reed Penman has self-correcting ribbon and a memory of 16 characters

The Silver-Reed Penman

has automatic relocation and much, much more!

$399.00

See at HULL BUSINESS MACHINES

715 N. 12th St., 539-1413

PAYMENT PLANS AVAILABLE

McCain
AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

London
Early Music
Group

"Lively, elegant and irresistible..."

—The Herald (Melbourne)

SATURDAY, NOV. 5, 8 p.m.

ALL FAITHS CHAPEL

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office,
M-F noon to 5 p.m., 532-6428

THE GASLIGHT BOOTIQUE

IS HAVING A

HALLOWEEN JAMBREE

(Monday only)

Come in costume and get a 20% DISCOUNT!

Play games for DISCOUNTS up to 30% OFF!

Guess the number of candy corns and win a $20 GIFT CERTIFICATE!

We'll be in costume, so come for a ghoulish good time!

1118 Moro
Aggieville

Brother's

AGGIEVILLE

11th ANNUAL HALLOWEEN PARTY

—AGGIE'S FIRST, BEST AND CRAZIEST AFFAIR—
Monday, October 31st—Noon to Midnight

Featuring

LIVE DJ by Lunar Tunes

PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHER

BROTHER'S FAMOUS DECORATIONS

NO COVER CHARGE WITH COSTUME

• CONTESTS •

Banana Race

Apple Bobbing

Pie Eating

• PRIZES •

Weekend Passes
and Discounts

• BEER SPECIALS •

2 FREE KEGS

2-FER DRAWS

Noon to 7 p.m.

FIRST 300 PEOPLE
after 6 p.m. receive a
FREE BUD LIGHT MUG

YOU HAVEN'T SEEN A HALLOWEEN PARTY UNTIL YOU'VE BEEN TO BROTHER'S

1120 Moro 539-9064

Flash Back '83

- * Date: Friday, Nov. 4, 8:00 p.m.-12:00 p.m.
- * Place: Fifth & Houston (Downtown)
- * Entertainment: Air Band Contest
- * Guest D.J.—Ed Klimak
- * Cost: $4.00—includes admission, free beer and pepsi
- * Free door prizes from Coors
- * Tom Hawk photographers
- * Advance Tickets can be purchased in the Union on Nov. 2, 3, 4.
- * Sponsored by:
Kansas State University
Student Foundation.

SALES SO GOOD IT'S ALMOST SCARY!

Gals
Lee Basic Rider	$19 <sup>00</sup>
Guys
Fashion denim by Britannia, Zepplin, Lee & Levi	$19 <sup>00</sup>
Gals
Levi California Straights and Super Straights	$18 <sup>00</sup>
Guys
Coats	25%-50% off
Gals
Selection of Fashion Denim by Zena, Rumbleseats, Chic, Levi and Britannia	$15 <sup>00</sup> -$19 <sup>00</sup>
Guys
Ocean Pacific Pants	$5 <sup>00</sup> off
Gals
Selected Shirts & Sweaters	1/3 off

"WE'RE MORE THAN JUST A JEAN STORE!"
THE JEAN STATION

MON.-SAT.
10-6

THURS.
10-8:30

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

Editor.....Paul Hanson
Managing Editor.....Sandy Lang
Photography Editor.....Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager.....John McGrath

Have story
or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

HURRY!
HURRY!
HURRY!

FRIDAY is the
LAST DAY to get your Royal Purple picture
taken.

Step right up to
UNION 209. Take your
stamped fee card.
Hours are 8:30-12:30
and 1:30-5:30

539-5229

Monday Madness

$7.00

Mondays Only...
Pay only $7.00 for a 16",
1-item pizza plus 1
free quart of Pepsi (Price
includes tax).
One coupon per pizza.
Expires: 12/31/83

Fast, Free Delivery™
517 North 12th St.
Phone: 539-0561
36861/6311

Name

Address

Fast...Free Delivery™

Call us.
539-0561
517 North 12th St.

Hours:
4:30pm-1am Mon.-Thurs.
11am-2am Fri. & Sat.
11am-1am Sun.

Trio embraces crowd with jazzy performance

By SUE SCHMITT
Arts and Entertainment Editor

It should have sold out. The Jay McShann Trio should have played to a full house Friday night; the bottom level of McCain Auditorium wasn't near full.

But those who were there got more than their money's worth.

McShann is a living legend. He is one of the true greats of Kansas City jazz. The same is true for the musicians who perform with him.

They looked a little out of place in McCain. On the stage that normally hosts symphonies, ballet companies, theater, sat McShann behind a grand piano, Claude "Fiddler" Williams and Paul Gunther behind the drum set, and Priscilla Bowman — the trio's featured vocalist.

They are the big shots of Kansas City jazz — probably the most accomplished musicians to set foot in McCain for a long time.

The concert began with the jazz standard, "A-Train." And each tune that followed was nothing but great jazz.

The great Fiddler Williams accompanied the group on guitar and bass. But you haven't heard him play until you've heard him play the violin.

Review

He was featured on violin on several tunes. His style of playing put the violinists of the Saint Louis Symphony to shame. They can't bend the notes like Williams can.

Then Priscilla Bowman walked onto the stage.

She held the microphone like a cocktail.

And when she sang, McCain was more like a bar on 12th Street than an auditorium.

She provoked whistles, howls and laughter from people in the audience. She held them in the palm of her hand.

But the control she had over her voice was even stronger than the control she had over her audience.

She turns a soft tender phrase into a growl that rivals Louis Armstrong's. She sings in the normal female vocal range then suddenly dives down to notes that are soooooo low.

She does impersonations of the singing styles of personalities that make Rich Little look like an amateur.

And Paul Gunther was playing drums. Gunther has played with McShann for 11 years.

Everyone looked like they were having fun, but Gunther was really enjoying himself. His style of playing brought the trio together and added life to the music. He made his job look incredibly easy.

But it was McShann that they came to hear. McShann sat behind the piano laying down the basis for the music the trio played. He talked to his musicians as much as he talked to the audience. He used his deep, husky voice to sing classics like "Georgia" and "All of Me," as well as the 12-bar blues he is famous for.

McShann took Count Basie's job as the king of Kansas City piano. Although the piano styles of Basie and McShann both are considered Kansas City jazz piano, they are not alike.

McShann has a style of piano playing that is different than all the others. He puts more feeling into the keyboard than would seem possible. He is truly one of the best when it comes to playing 12-bar blues.

McShann and his band played together like they were old friends. Kidding around, and complimenting each other for good solos. But more importantly, they treated the people in the audience like old friends, too. It was like they were saying, "Come in, sit down, we'll show you what jazz is all about."

TACKLE
your competition.
ADVERTISE
532-6560

DR. PRICE, YOUNG, & ODLE
OPTOMETRISTS
CONTACT LENSES • GENERAL PRACTICE
1119 Westloop 537-1118

CHIROPRACTIC CARE

WE PROVIDE CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS FOR $12.00. OTHER FEES PROVIDED ON REQUEST.

- SPORTS INJURIES • HOME, AUTO & WORK ACCIDENTS
- KSU STUDENT, FACULTY AND STAFF
- BONE, MUSCLE, NERVE AND JOINT DISORDERS

DR. WALDO E. SCHELLENGER
AVENUE CHIROPRACTIC OFFICE
1500 POYNTZ AVE.
MANHATTAN, KANSAS 537-8305

WIN FREE BEER and FREE PASSES

In the following costume contests:

- Best Howard Cosell
- Sexiest cheerleader
- Most painted
- Best "poor college student"
- Best space monster
- Most Perverse
- Most resemblance to any part of the human body
- Best flashdance
- Most voluptuous
- Best beer can/bottle
- Biggest feet
- Most grotesque
- Biggest hat
- Most purple
- Best sports personality

TONIGHT: HALLOWEEN BASH

- ★ FREE Bud Light Fright Night Mug
- ★ Monday Night Football—Chargers vs. Redskins
- 75¢ Drinks $2.00 Pitchers
- When in costume.

Drink of the Week
"WITCHES
BREW"

The Sports
Fan-atic

Laramie at 12th—Aggieville
Office: 539-0525, Bar 539-9849

Love
is Blind . . .

But you don't have to be.

We Specialize in Contact Lenses . . .

- Soft Lenses:
- Tinted (to change the color of your eyes)
  - Extended Wear (to sleep with)
  - Bifocal (for reading difficulties)
  - Regular Type (for near and far sightedness)
  - Toric (for astigmatism) and
  - Oxygen Permeable (rigid)

Replacement Lenses and Solutions in Stock.

Dr. Paul E. Bullock, P.A.

Practice of Optometry

776-9461

404 Humboldt

"UPC... We do it right!"

UPCOMING EVENTS

Monday, Oct. 31

Arts—"Assemblages by Dennis Teepe": Union Art Gallery thru Nov. 18

Tuesday, Nov. 1

Coffeehouse—Nooner—Jeff Howard and Andre Kelley, "An Afternoon of Song": Catskeller 12 noon.
Issues & Ideas—"Where Luther Walked," with Professor Robert Linder. Co-sponsored with Lutheran Campus Ministries: Union Rm. 213 12 noon.

Wednesday, Nov. 2

Kaleidoscope—The Chosen: FH 7:30 p.m.

Thursday, Nov. 3

Kaleidoscope—The Chosen: LT 3:30, FH 7:30 p.m.

Friday, Nov. 4

Feature Films—Frances: FH 6:30 & 9:30 p.m.

Saturday, Nov. 5

Feature Films—Francis Covers the Big Town: FH 2 p.m.

Feature Films—Frances: FH 6:30 & 9:30 p.m.

Sunday, Nov. 6

Feature Films—Francis Goes to the Races: FH 2 p.m.

Feature Films—Francis Joins the WACS: FH 7 p.m.

Reminder

Stray Cats tickets available Monday-Friday from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. in Union 1st Floor Box Office. Ticket prices: $10, $9.50, $9.

Trapshooting sign up continues through Friday, Oct. 28 at 4 p.m. in the Activities Center and at the Trap Park on the day of the shoot.

Pencil Drawings by Richae Morrow on display in Union 2nd Floor Showcase thru Nov. 4.

Applications are available for UPC Promotions Chairperson in Activities Center and are due Wednesday, Nov. 9. For more information, call 532-6571.

NOONER!!

This Tuesday!

Jeff Howard &
Andre Kelley
"An Afternoon of Song"
12 noon

coming soon!

Park Avenue
Contemporary Rock-n-Roll
Nov. 8

k-state union
upc coffeehouse

The Chosen

"The Chosen is a first-rate adaptation of Chaim Potok's novel of friendship between two young Jewish men of widely different religio-cultural upbringings and their individual relationships with strong fathers. Powerfully and artistically told. Steiger gives an exceptional performance as the somewhat tyrannical but loving patriarch."

—Variety

Wed., Nov. 2
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
Thurs., Nov. 3
3:30 p.m. Little Theatre
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
$1.50

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

"Where Luther Walked"

A film celebrating Martin Luther's 500th Anniversary with response by Dr. Robert Linder, KSU Dept. of History

Tuesday, November 1, 12 noon
Room 213, K-State Union

Sponsored by K-State Union Issues and Ideas Committee and Lutheran Campus Ministries.

MARTIN LUTHER
1483-1983

k-state union
upc issues & ideas

CAVING Nov. 19-20

$23.50

Info Meeting:
Tues., Nov. 8
7:00 p.m.
Union Rm. 213

k-state union
upc outdoor rec.

Spend a weekend of underground fun exploring 3 caves in central Missouri.

Sign-up begins Wed., Nov. 9, 8 a.m.
Activities Center

"ASSEMBLAGES" by DENNIS TEEPE

October 31-
November 18
K-State Union
Art Gallery
Monday-Friday,
8 a.m.-5 p.m.

k-state union
upc arts

k-state union
program council

1009

STRUT YOUR STUFF WITH THE CATS

Sidewalk bicyclists

One positive transition students will get to make with the declining temperatures is that they won't have to worry about dodging as many bicyclists riding on the sidewalks.

Even with the K-State Police Department "on the lookout" for such offenders, the number of sidewalk riders does not seem to have declined. Pedestrians still must be on the lookout for the daredevil cyclist who attempts to make his way through traffic the way Mike Rozier maneuvered through the K-State defense on Saturday. He may know what his next move will be, but nobody else does.

Pedestrians are put in a bind when it comes to avoiding such bicyclists. They cannot be sure which way to move when a cyclist is coming down the sidewalk toward them. The pedestrian does know what move, if any, the cyclist will take to avoid him.

Since the threat of enforcement by the K-State Police Department did not seem to deter many cyclists from their intention of getting from one building to another quicker by riding on sidewalks, it is time for action. Maybe if campus police begin a crackdown the remainder of this semester, it will stick in people's minds next semester.

We think it is time to shift the focus of our police force, and its part-time employees, at least some of the time, from writing parking tickets to stopping bicycle infractions. Illegal parking does not directly hurt anyone. Rarely do illegal parkers cause injuries. Bicyclists who ride on pedestrian walkways could.

We think some of the parking ticket writers should begin roving the sidewalks with their eyes peeled for illegal riders. It would present more of a challenge to them than writing tickets and placing them on the windshields of parked cars, and it would provide a needed service. The cute little bicycle prohibited signs have proven their lack of effectiveness. The University needs to crack down on the sidewalk riders; they should begin now.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

Trick and treat

My son Neal was born on Oct. 31, 1956, in Harrisburg, Pa., — exactly two years to the day after I had first met in California the woman who became my wife and his mother.

On Oct. 31, 1954, Ron Martin, a friend of mine from Brazil, was bored at the prospect of staying at home with his wife and small baby that evening. Ron and I had known each other for about four years, both of us being in theater at UCLA. He called me on the telephone and asked me if I'd go someplace and have a drink with him.

Later that night, while sitting in a cocktail lounge on Westwood Boulevard in West Los Angeles, I suggested to Ron we go to a Halloween party at the home of one of the theater students who lived in Santa Monica. He agreed. Quite a crowd was there — 75 to 100 people. Tom Mills, a fellow student, came up to me at one point with an 18-year-old blonde girl, and said, "Joel, this is Zoe Motter." That was the first time I ever met face-to-face the woman who later became my wife.

At that party I didn't pay much attention to Zoe. I imagine we chatted politely for a few minutes. But I don't have any vivid recollection of what we said. I do remember, however, the two of us participating with several other people in a long conversation with some guy claiming to be the bastard son of Ernest Hemingway.

It wasn't until the following April that either one of us paid any real attention to each other. Starting in April, though, everything progressed very swiftly between us. We married late in 1955.

In August 1956 we moved to Harrisburg, where I had gotten a job as a teacher of literature, drama and creative writing at Central Dauphin High School. I remember my salary was $3,600 for the year. That doesn't sound like much now, but it seemed sufficient to me then. We lived in a small apartment two blocks from the Susquehanna River and one block from the downtown hospital.

JOEL CLIMENHAGA
Collegian Columnist

I drove my wife that one block to the hospital late in the afternoon of the 31st of October. I remember the golden quality of the setting sun as we walked in the main entrance. After all the business requirements had been gotten through, the doctor sent me home, telling me he'd call me when the baby arrived. I didn't want to leave the hospital, but being a first-time father, I had no awareness that I could argue with the doctor. So I went back to our apartment to wait.

Children started coming to the door demanding, "Trick or treat!" I turned out the lights so they would think there was no one home. Not being able to see to cook myself any supper, I quartered two apples at the kitchen sink by the light shining through the window from the street lights outside, drank several cups of black coffee, and laid down on the couch in the living room. I could hear the children at the doors to other apartments in the building, where they would get their trick-or-treat, after which they would come across the hallway, then go away without knocking at our door. Turning out the lights had worked.

I had just begun to doze when the telephone rang. The doctor told me it was a boy.

Upon hearing that, I said, "His name is Neal Eric."

"That's nice," the doctor said. "You can tell them when you come up to the hospital so it can be put on the birth certificate."

I don't believe that doctor cared at all what name we had decided on, but at least he was polite. And that was what I most wanted to say right then — the name of the person who had just been born.

I've done that with all our children. My wife and I chose names for each of our children before their birth. Then when I was first told about the birth in the hospital, I said the name of the new child to whoever told me (in the same manner as I had said the name of our first child to that doctor in Pennsylvania). On Feb. 26, 1958, very early in the morning, I said to the doctor in Santa Monica, Calif., "Her name is Anna Elise." In Wilmington, Ohio, on Oct. 10, 1960, late at night, I said to a nurse, "Her name is Greta Celine." On March 17, 1966, just after noon, in Quincy, Ill., I said to a doctor, "Her name is Miriam Grace."

I have no preferences among my children. All of them are equally significant to me. I remember the birth of each of them vividly. However, of all my children, Neal Eric is the one whose birth allowed me to avoid the children demanding "trick or treat." And that avoiding taught me a deeper lesson than I realized at the time. It is not trick or treat — it is trick and treat. The trick was that I escaped the children at the door on Halloween in 1956; the treat was the birth of our first child. Today, he is 27 years old. He lives and works in this town. My wife and I have invited him to come have supper with us tonight in honor of his birthday.

Many happy returns of the day, Neal Eric. Cheers. Trick and treat. For this year, the trick is that I've written this column about your birth as a birthday surprise and the treat will be in our supper together.

Letters

K-State needs art gallery

Editor,
I was very disappointed to read in the Oct. 24 Collegian that a $10,000 allocation made by Student Senate in 1975 to be used for helping establish an art gallery in Nichols Gymnasium could be dumped in favor of another use. However, I was impressed and relieved to know that Jerry Katlin supports the bill as originally intended, and I strongly agree that student feedback is essential. My greatest fear is that the money will not be put to its original use.

Is it fair to those past students, who committed money for a specific use, to throw this out the window? Is it right for us now to let that happen? I don't think we can.

The Nichols issue is a dead one, but there are other possibilities. One solution might be to put the money in any one of several accounts already established at the KSU Foundation for the building of an art museum and gallery. A second option might be to renovate Room 6 in the art building as a temporary space. The room is there; it is a desirable space.

An interesting item about K-State is the fact that we are the only university in either the Big Eight or the Big 10 conferences that does not have a museum of any sort on campus. Now that we have a curator for the total University collections, shouldn't this be a good starting point? A validation for a definite need exists.

As an artist and a Union Program

Council gallery coordinator, I am constantly aware of the frustrations of showing my work and, more importantly, the problems in trying to show major artists in the Union gallery because we lack space, money, security, etc.

Art is an aesthetic and intellectual part of our lives. We constantly learn about ourselves from it, consciously or not. The question is whether we can learn anything new about ourselves when we make responsible decisions that will affect many in the future. Even though it is several years down the road an art museum and gallery is a definite need and an attractive addition that can only help the University.

Lindsay Smith
Senior in fine arts

Regents institutions need consolidation

Editor,
Brian LaRue bemoans the decision by the Board of Regents to survey and eliminate duplicative curricula at the institutions that it oversees ("College before the regents' cuts," Oct. 28). I, however, applaud this move and hope the regents will attack this problem with a vengeance. Here is why:

1. There are seven regents institutions in Kansas, a state that can boast a population equivalent only to a medium-sized city (approximately 2.2 million).

2. It is abundantly apparent that the state lacks a tax base of sufficient size to support these schools.

3. The elimination of duplicative curricula would save money. I do not advocate the elimination of any particular program, just consolidation and streamlining.

My major is architecture, which serves as a perfect example because the University of Kansas also has an architecture program. Why would any reasonable person hold that it is either necessary or beneficial for Kansas to sustain two separate architecture programs for its population of 2.2 million, especially in the light of the fact that such duplication has the effect of strangling both programs financially? I maintain that not only is it unnecessary and detrimental, but also wasteful, counter-productive, and inane.

Perhaps, as LaRue seems to suggest, this duplication exists for the purpose of allowing me to mingle with agricultural economists et al., and will provide me the benefit of making me "well-rounded." I did not come to school here to mingle.

I came here to learn to be an architect, and the University has no business trying to round me well. If, during the first 17 years of my life, I had not managed to become "well-rounded" or had not, at least, acquired the habits that would allow me to develop this quality, then no amount of rubbing elbows with students of veterinary medicine in Aggieville or enduring oral communications with business majors is going to make me "well-rounded." These diversions into social engineering are only going to make the aim of education more elusive by displacing funds and attention.

I am all for consolidation of duplicative curricula because it will only make it easier for the universities to do what they should be doing: providing higher education.

W. Bradley M. Kemp
Fifth-year student in architecture

A year-round Halloween

Think Halloween: think masks, costumes, trick or treats, and celebrations.

But think again. Could things associated with Halloween occur in everyday living? Is Halloween being observed on other days of the year? And are students being caught up in the masquerade?

Take for instance the things that are brought to mind when thinking of this holiday.

Masks. Who's wearing the masks today?

The definition of mask is "anything that conceals or disguises, an outward appearance that seeks to obscure an underlying true character."

For example, I would bet that the administrators are actually really nice people. The role that a person plays is sometimes dictated by the position of one's job. And we are JUST the students. In a state of transit, between being juvenile and professional.

I sometimes wonder if they plan things out like, "Let's see how much run-around we can put these students through." At times, it's like they pat us on the head and think, "Nice student, good student, just pay your tuition, student."

What about the masks that might be worn by everyone? Have you ever had the official "just trying to be nice" conversation that consists of:

"How are you?"

"Fine, how are you?"

"Fine." (when perhaps you know good and well that you have to eat at the Union again today, they took attendance in the class you just skipped, and your Walkman radio dial broke and is stuck on KSDB.)

EDEE DALKE
Collegian Columnist

Then there are the costumes.

The definition of costume is "style of clothing typical of a certain country, a set of outer clothes."

What costumes are being worn every day?

Jeans for some, suits for others. J.C. Penney's flannel shirts or Polo shirts. Sweats if you oversleep. Foreigners look funny? — and how do WE look to them? By the way, is there a "look like you've just starred in the movie, 'Flash Dance'" contest going on somewhere?

And then there's the word celebration, that's a familiar topic to a lot of students.

The definition of celebrating is "to commemorate with festivity, to honor publicly, to have a good time."

So then, what can we celebrate tomorrow?

Celebrate because President Reagan is NOT coming to campus this year. Celebrate because we don't attend the University of Kansas. Celebrate because Student Senate meets only one night a week. Celebrate because of freedom of the press...

That brings us to tricks and treats. One at a time, the definition of trick is "something designed to deceive, a clever act intended to amuse."

The administrative act of making decisions during the summer months (like how much tuition would be raised, the closing of Smith House, and the actions around the closing of North Campus Courts, etc.) was, and is, not amusing.

The definition of treat is "a meal or drink paid for by another, a reward, something that gives you pleasure."

Have you noticed how college students are bribed by free food and/or drink?

We go places because there will be "free beer," or apply for certain credit cards for the "free meal." Someone once told me that they'd even go to church if there was free beer!

Some treats are only a form of satisfying the customer. It seems that often students are being pacified. Since we're mainly concerned with learning and leaving, it's the administration that is staying. They see the student turnover. If something can't be changed now, it might slide by the next generation. When change is slow, it goes unnoticed. Where faculty is concerned with education, the administration seems to only be concerned with enrollment figures. How many students' opinions are equal to the opinion of one administrator? To be heard, it seems students must make huge protests. With no access to organized protest without the bureaucracy of Student Senate) we must accept things like a 20 percent tuition increase, as just the way it is.

Think Halloween today only? Think again.

Okay, once again...this is your DRAFT REGISTRATION CARD... IT HAS NOTHING TO DO WITH THE NFL!

Local Lutheran groups join world in birthday celebration of founder

By MICHELE SAUER
Staff Writer

The anniversary of Martin Luther's 500th birthday is being celebrated by Lutherans around the world.

"Luther was a very prolific writer," Don Fallon, minister of student development, said. "The 16th century Reformation is normally seen as divisive; it split the Catholic and Lutheran churches."

"But now the two are leading to convergence on some of the principles. East and West Germany are converging around the Luther experience. It is a point of renewal."

Luther's contributions to the church include congregation singing, the "Protestant principle" (let God be God), the Bible in the hands of people, and a universal emphasis for literacy and education for men and women, Fallon said.

Luther was born in 1483 and died in 1546. His theological position is increasingly seen to be part of the central stream of Christian conviction, according to Christianity and Crisis, an interdenominational magazine.

The Roman Catholic Church, at the time of Luther, had developed a system of merit to free sinners from punishment. Luther's teaching stressed the importance of faith alone and the authority of scripture, leading him into direct conflict with church authorities and teachings of his time.

Historically, Roman Catholics have placed a stronger emphasis on good works and the sacraments as aids to salvation, but Roman Catholic theologians in recent years have come to a greater appreciation of the doctrine of justification, according to the latest issue of The Lutheran Standard, an interdenominational magazine.

In Manhattan, the Lutheran Campus Ministries, local Lutheran congregations, the Lutheran Student Movement, Beta Sigma Psi, a Lutheran fraternity, and Lutheran Young Adults are sponsoring a week-long celebration titled "Luther, Lutheran, Lutheranism."

A film series will be presented. Included will be "Where Luther Walked," at 7 p.m. today in Forum Hall. The same film will be shown Tuesday at noon in room 213 of the Union.

At 7 p.m. Wednesday, the film "Bonhoeffer," about the Holocaust and the church, will be shown in the Little Theater. A film called "Namibia — A Cry for Freedom" about apartheid in South Africa and the church, will be shown Thursday, also in the Little Theater.

A panel of bishops will speak in the Union Ballroom at 5 p.m. Sunday. Joseph Sittler, professor in residence at the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago, is the featured speaker and will speak on "The Word of God and the Bible."

An Anniversary Celebration will take place at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Forum Hall. Sittler will give a lecture titled "Being Christian Today," a mass choir will sing and there will be a Lutheran hymn fest.

Sittler will deliver an all-university lecture in Forum Hall titled "Christianity's Mission in the '80s" at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 7.

Other events will be going on throughout the state in honor of the Luther quincentennial.

A three-day Festival of Reconciliation for the Kansas City metropolitan area will include a variety of activities Friday through Sunday. The Rev. Herbert Brokering of Minneapolis will be the featured speaker. He is the author of "Celebrating a 500th Birthday: a retelling of events in Martin Luther's life."

The University of Missouri-Kansas City Conservatory of Music will present a German mass on Friday evening as well as a portion of "Concerts in Three" on Saturday, including medieval musical instruments.

St. Paul's and Gloria Dei churches of Wichita, are co-sponsoring a lecture series with J. Kelly Sowards, professor of history at Wichita State University, Oct. 23 through Nov. 13. Trinity Church of McPherson is sponsoring a three-part Martin Luther film series Oct. 30 through Nov. 13. A birthday celebration complete with cake and decorations will take place Nov. 6.

The 500th anniversary of Luther's birth has generated a record number of postage stamps honoring the reformer, including a 20-cent stamp to be issued Nov. 11 by the U.S. Postal Service. The Martin Luther Jubilee in Washington, D.C., is producing a limited edition of first day covers featuring the commemorative stamps.

Last November, East Germany issued four Luther stamps. In February, France and Czechoslovakia issued stamps. Brazil followed in April. Bulgaria released a stamp in May, Hungary in August, and the Netherlands and West Germany in October.

the casual encounter

1208 Moro
in Aggieville

Levi's

Saddleman Boot Jeans:

Rugged, long lasting. The jeans that fit right. Whether you're on campus or heading for an evening in Aggieville, you know you'll feel right in Levi's Saddleman Boot Jeans.

100% Cotton Denim—$19<sup>95</sup>

Check 'em out at

the casual encounter

1208 Moro
in
Aggieville

Students make faces for carving contest

By DAVE MANCHON
Collegian Reporter

With carved smiles, frowns and frightening grins, pumpkins were the center of attention at the second annual Horticulture Therapy Club pumpkin carving contest Friday afternoon on the first floor of the Union.

"Participants were required to pay a 50 cent entrance fee along with providing their own pre-cut pumpkin," Sherill Harman, senior in horticulture therapy, said.

Proceeds from the contest went to the Big Lakes Development Center, a workshop for mentally retarded and developmentally disabled adults.

"Because of individual donations, we raised more money last year, even though we had fewer entries," Harman said. She said a total of approximately $50 was raised for the center.

A $5 cash prize was awarded to the winners of various categories. Winners were: for the funniest pumpkin, Lynn Doxon, graduate student in horticulture therapy; most original pumpkin, David Hackenberry, junior in horticulture therapy; scariest pumpkin, Kay Sylvester, junior in horticulture therapy; and best show award, Chris Coffey, freshman in pre-design professions.

"The contest was open to anyone who wanted to participate," Harman said.

The contest judges were Paul Jennings, head of the Department of Horticulture, Terry Nelson, representative from Westside Market and Steve Williams, client at Big Lakes. The judges were chosen by the horticulture club.

"A lot of clients from Big Lakes came to the Union to watch Steve judge," Harman said.

"Last year, we had 10 entries. This year we doubled that with 20," she said.

JOIN OUR HALLOWEEN PARTIES TONITE!

KITE'S HALLOWEEN PARTY!

• MOST ORIGINAL AND FUNNIEST COSTUME CONTESTS

Winners of each get:

- 5 PITCHERS
- LUNCH FOR 2 AT KITE'S GRILLE

Judging 10:00

DO YOUR TRICKS AT OUR... ANNUAL HALLOWEEN HAPPENING

• SCARIEST • SEXIEST • MOST ORIGINAL COSTUME CONTESTS!

Winners of each get:

- 5 PITCHERS
- 1 YR. FREE PASS

Judging 10:00

ROCKIN' HALLOWEEN PARTY

• BEST COSTUME CONTEST • BEST RODEO CLOWN CONTEST

Winners get:

- 5 PITCHERS
- 1 YR. FREE PASS
- APPLE BOBBIN' FOR FREE BEERS

Judging 10:00

ALL ABOARD FOR OUR... HALLOWEEN BALL TONITE!

Plus 99¢ Witch's Brew!

- ORIGINAL • SEXIEST COSTUME CONTESTS
- Winners of each get:
- $10 FREE DRINKS
- LUNCH FOR 2 AT AGGIE STATION

Judging 11:30

HALLOWEEN PARTY!

• BEST COSTUME CONTEST

• DOUBLES SHUFFLEBOARD (Sign up by 7 p.m.)

Winners of each get:

- $10 FREE DRINKS
- SLAB OF RIBS

Judging 10:30 p.m.

Reciprocating with Aggie Station

PLUS . . .

- $2 PITCHERS 7-10 PM AT KITE'S—MR. K'S—ROCKIN' K
- $1 HOUSE DRINKS 7-10 PM AT AGGIE STATION
- DECORATIONS!!!

LAST CHANCE

Man plans to spend six days walking his way to world record

By KAREN BELLUS
Collegian Reporter

Most people never have the opportunity to challenge themselves to the extent of breaking world records. One man, Jerry Rowe, has that chance and is now attempting to break the non-stop world walking distance record.

Rowe began his record-breaking attempt at 9 a.m. Sunday at Memorial Stadium. He plans to walk around the track for approximately six days until the record is broken.

According to Rowe, the current world record is 401.436 miles set in 1982 by Norman Fox. In order to surpass the current record, Rowe will have to walk more than 1,600 laps. During the event, Rowe can only stop for medical or personal reasons. He cannot stop to rest, sleep or eat.

"I guess I'm doing this for a lot of reasons. Partly for personal reasons, partly for the recognition and achievement," Rowe said.

Rowe is a K-State graduate and received a bachelor's degree in biological science and a master's degree in biological education. He also was a member of the K-State track team. He currently works as a salesman and lives in Marysville.

He has hired approximately 20 people to observe his attempt. These people will work in pairs to count and record lap times. Two people must observe Rowe at all times in accordance with the rules set by those who compile the Guinness Book of World Records.

"I've put in lots of miles, sometimes up to 75 miles at a time, to train for this. I've lifted leg weights and walked a lot. The real challenge is more in being able to stay awake for six days," Rowe said.

Although Rowe has never competed in any walking events, he has walked across Kansas twice. The first time took him four days and the second time, attempted this past August, took him three days. Rowe said he believes those experiences helped him prepare for the fatigue he will be facing after the first few days.

Daniel Staggenborg, freshman in engineering, accompanied Rowe on his last trip across Kansas and is helping to observe him during the next six days.

Rowe said that he did not think weather conditions would affect his attempt.

"I've got a raincoat and six pairs of shoes, so I don't think that I'll be bothered by any rain. Actually, this cool weather is ideal for walking," he said.

In order to be able to use Memorial Stadium for his record-breaking attempt Rowe had to obtain a permit from University Facilities, get permission from the K-State Police Department and be sponsored by a University organization. The Manhattan Track Club has sponsored Rowe.

Staff/Rob Clark Jr.

Jerry Rowe, K-State alumnus, takes a slice of pizza for the road from Kim Conradt of Marysville as he begins his world record attempt for continuous walking. Rowe is rounding the track at Memorial Stadium in an attempt to enter the Guinness Book of World Records.

Kansas State Travel

HALLOWEEN HAPPENING!!

CRUISE

m/s SUNWARD II
THE MOST POPULAR 3 AND 4 NIGHT CRUISE IN THE CARIBBEAN.

DEPART EVERY FRIDAY OR MONDAY ON A MATCHLESS COMBINATION OF SEA AND SUN. VISIT NASSAU AND THE OUT ISLANDS FOR NON STOP ACTION OR RELAXATION. IT'S WHAT YOU'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR.

FROM $275

FLORIDA

OZARK AIR LINES

Miami — Orlando — Ft. Lauderdale — Tampa

$268 Round Trip

First two accompanying children age 2-17 pay 50% of adult fare. Additional children age 2-17 pay 75% of adult fare.

(Travel Restrictions Apply)

ARIZONA

Round Trip Air
from Kansas City to Phoenix

only $160

Complete 3 day, 2 night package, including 2 nights at the Pointe Resort and a Rental Car with unlimited miles.

$100 per person double occupancy

HAWAII

$515 per person double occupancy
Five Nights—Six Days

Including: • R.T. Air from Kansas City
• Lei Greeting
• Five nights at Sheraton Moana Hotel
• R.T. Transfers and luggage handling

537-2451

WestLoop Center

HALLOWEEN SPECIAL!!

Buy any 15" pizza

and get the same

12" pizza for

1/2 price!

2026 N. Tuttle

Expires 11/7/83

537-1035

BALLARD'S

1218 Moro PH 539-2441
Manhattan, Kansas

NIKE DAYS SALE

(Promoting Heartland Road Race)

Mon.-Sat., Oct. 31-Nov. 5

Running Shoes		Performance Shoes		Basketball Shoes
Men Carib	27 <sup>99</sup> — 19 <sup>99</sup>	Tailwind	51 <sup>99</sup> — 35 <sup>99</sup>	Burt Bruin (1-7)	29 <sup>99</sup> — 19 <sup>99</sup>
Lady Carib		Lady Aurora	64 <sup>99</sup> — 45 <sup>99</sup>	Bruin Leather
white/powder	27 <sup>99</sup> — 19 <sup>99</sup>	Internationalist	52 <sup>99</sup> — 35 <sup>99</sup>	Lo	36 <sup>99</sup> — 25 <sup>99</sup>
Lady Carib		Daybreak	44 <sup>99</sup> — 30 <sup>99</sup>	Blazer Leather
ice/lemon	27 <sup>99</sup> — 19 <sup>99</sup>	Equator	64 <sup>99</sup> — 45 <sup>99</sup>	Hi	43 <sup>99</sup> — 35 <sup>99</sup>
Men Leather				Legend Lo	54 <sup>99</sup> — 40 <sup>99</sup>
Cortez (1-6)	41 <sup>99</sup> — 25 <sup>99</sup>
Lady Yankee	34 <sup>99</sup> — 22 <sup>99</sup>
Men Dasher	26 <sup>99</sup> — 13 <sup>99</sup>
Youth Dasher	24 <sup>99</sup> — 12 <sup>99</sup>

ALL NIKE CLOTHING & MERCHANDISE

10% OFF

(Mens, Womens, and Children)

Run For A Healthy Heart

5th Annual Heartland
10,000 Meter
Road Race

Plus — 2-mile Fun Run

THIS SATURDAY
November 5, 1983

Stockdale Area —
Tuttle Creek

Manhattan, Kansas
ENTRIES AND INFO
AT BALLARD'S

FREE

NIKE T-Shirt

with Nike purchase

(1 per customer)

Other Clothing

Trimmed Russell Sweat Shirt	19 <sup>99</sup> — 9 <sup>99</sup>
Fashion Sweat Suits	22 <sup>99</sup> — 16 <sup>99</sup>
Coaches Shirts	9 <sup>99</sup> — 9 <sup>99</sup>

Other Shoes

Etonic Courier	59 <sup>99</sup> — 35 <sup>99</sup>
Etonic Trans Am	34 <sup>99</sup> — 20 <sup>99</sup>
Etonic Zephyr	26 <sup>99</sup> — 13 <sup>99</sup>
Brooks Fantasy	26 <sup>99</sup> — 15 <sup>99</sup>
Brooks Super Villanova	31 <sup>99</sup> — 20 <sup>99</sup>
Brooks Lady Vantage	39 <sup>99</sup> — 25 <sup>99</sup>

Other Brooks

(Hugger, Sundance, Invincible, Lt. Flight)
Limited sizes 1/2 Price

Hours Mon.-Sat. 8:30-5:30
Thurs. 8:30-8:30

Forum attracts world scientists to animal, farming research study

By CATHY BROWN
Collegian Reporter

The role of animals in the areas of production methods, products and processes of farming systems will be the focus of the third annual Farming Systems Research Symposium today through Wednesday in the Union.

Every continent will be represented by top scientists in animals in farming systems. This is the first time all continents will be represented at the symposium.

The symposium is sponsored by the office of International Agricultural Programs, the United States Agency for International Development, K-State, the Farming Systems Support Project, and a USAID Title XII Strengthening Grant.

The programs will focus on animals in farming systems rather than the traditional topic of field crops.

"Farming systems up to now has very much ignored animals. They have really looked at crops instead.

What was needed was a thrust toward animals," said Cornelia Butler Flora, chairman of the symposium planning committee and professor of sociology.

Approximately 300 people were expected to register for the symposium by 5 p.m. Sunday. One hundred and eighty pre-registration forms were received from off-campus individuals wanting to speak or attend the conference.

This morning will be devoted to an overview of the concepts and methodology of farming systems research and extension. Another topic to be presented and discussed will be the ongoing inventory of current farming systems programs and projects.

The keynote session of the symposium will be at 7 tonight. Hank Fitzhugh from Winrock International Livestock and Research Center in Morrilton, Ark., will speak on "The Current State of the Art of Animals in Farming Systems Research and Extension."

"The conference is directed at strengthening K-State faculty and building the community of experts in farming systems research. However, interested students and faculty are more than welcome to attend," Flora said.

The conference aims to take people who would not normally publish materials and make public this vast amount of development experience that would not otherwise be presented, she said.

"This is the only forum there exists in the world for people to come together and tell each other what they are doing," Flora said.

"This (symposium) really puts our University on the map as terms of a leader in international agricultural development," she added.

HAVE STORY OR PHOTO IDEA?
"HAND 'EM OVER"

CALL THE COLLEGIAN
532-5555

comprehensive health associates
• free pregnancy tests
• outpatient abortion services
• alternative counseling referrals
• gynecology
• contraception
1-435 & Roe Overland Park - 642-3100

Monday
Hi Rollers
$1.50
(9-3)
at
COWBOY PALACE
Where it don't make
no difference
209 Payne 539-9828
10:00 to 3:00 am

After Five Long Years
The Sensational Sequel to
The White Dragon $14.95

Available at

9-9 Mon.-Sat. 11:00-6:00 PM 12-5 Sun.

BUSHWACKER'S

• THE • FUNDRINKERY

Alright kiddies . . .
It's time for Bushwacker's
GHOULISH GALA!

Witches' Brew $1

Contests for most Original Costumes

Drink Specials

and lots of surprises!

(see you there!)

A Reciprocating Club

531 N. Manhattan

Office 539-4321

Bar 539-9727

HALLOWEEN THRILLER

Hourly Specials

10-11	All Technics Demo Equipment at dealer cost. "The Science of Sound"	3-4	Buy any Alpine car deck get 36 watt amp Free.
11-12	Bose 201's $74.00 each. "Perfect for any car or home use."	4-5	Koss headphones $16.95 Your best value for headphone selection.
12-1	Infinity RS-10 $77.00 each. 5 year warranty with Polypropylene drivers.	5-6	Clarion Am-FM-Cassette with speakers only $99.00. Your chance for a new car stereo under $100.00.
1-2	Any Sony or Maxell blank cassette tape $2.99	6-7	Sony WM-F1 $104.00 "Sony's most popular Walkman with cassette & FM."
2-3	JVC Home Speakers 12" 3-way. Buy 1 get 1 free.

MORE SPOOK SPECIALS

Portables	Receivers & Amps	Tape Decks
Sony TCM-3 Mono cassette recorder $49.95	Hitachi SR-2001 50 watt receiver with 3 yr. parts & labor warranty $169.50	Hitachi DE-1 Full feature cassette deck with soft touch control $119.95
Alwa HR-S02 Stereo FM/AM radio headpiece $59.95	JVC RK-10 30 watt per channel with 03 THD $175.00	Hitachi DE-33 Dolby B & C, soft touch switching $149.95
Hitachi TRK-6800 H AM/FM stereo cassette player recorder $82.00	Hitachi HTA-3000 60 watt sim-line AM/FM digital receiver. 3 yr warranty, full function receiver. One of our best buys ever on a receiver. $219.88	JVC KD-D40 Dolby B & C, program search, spectro, peak metering $219.95
Alwa HS POS Stereo cassette player, smaller than a WM-2 $88.00	Sony STR-VX250 Digital tuned AM/FM stereo receiver from the one and only $179.00	Hitachi DE-44 Stereod switching, Dolby C, Timer capable, LED meters, comes with remote control $239.88
Sony WM F1 FM stereo cassette player with headphones $104.50	JVC RK-22 30 watt per channel digital receiver with built-in graphic equalizer $239.95	Sony TC-FX 25 Auto Reverse, electronic switching, Dolby C, program search $169.95
Sony WA-55 The Walkman with everything $149.00	Technics SA-410 Quartz synthesizer computer drive new class A receiver. 45 watts per channel $279.50	Akai GX-F31 Computer controlled cassette deck, 2 motor. Super GX heads, Dolby B & C $249.95
Hitachi TRK-9000H Cassette recorder with AM/FM/SW radio & removable speakers $174.00	Sony STR-VX550 Includes wireless remote control. 50 watts per channel at 008 THD, digital and more $399.00	Sony TC-FX600 Full logic switching, real time counter, multiple program search & repeat, Dolby B & C $295.00
Hitachi TRK-9100 H Deluxe component portable system $239.95		Hitachi DRV7 Automatic reverse with remote control, Dolby C, Computer IC logic, multiple search and numerous other features $299.95
		Technics RSM-235 DBX, Dolby B & C, full logic, 2 motors $219.95
Turntables	Car Stereo Speakers, Amps & Equalizers	Cartridges
Hitachi HT 1 Semi automatic with p mount cartridge holder $59.88	Alpine 6203 5 1/4 Co Ax speaker, 40 watt $77.00	Audio Technica 112EP $29.95
Technics SLB 100 Manual turntable, belt drive $79.88	Jet Sound JSE222 Box MT speaker, 2 way with mounting brackets $77.80	Audio Technica 122EP $39.88
Technics SLB 200 Semi automatic $89.88	Ultimate Ribbon Tweeter Excellent for GM dash mount or sun visor mounting $58.88	Ortolen FF15XE $42.50
Technics SLB 300 Fully automatic, straight arm plug in, cartridge mount $109.88	Alpine Subwoofers 10 & 12 inch sizes, your pick while they last $49.88 Ea.	Audio Technica 125LC $62.50
Hitachi HTL55 Quartz locked, fully automatic, linear tracking, direct drive with program repeat $182.00	JBL T425 6 1/2 3 way speaker, 100 watt, fit rear deck & door $97.50 Pr.	Ortolen TMC-200 The ultimate P-mount, moving coil time line. $220.00
Luxman PX-101 Our best linear tracker $339.00	JVC CS 6930 6x9 3 way, water proof sunproof with ribbon tweeter $119.80 Pr.	Audio Technica 110E $25.88
Dual 530 Dual's newest, fully automatic includes Ortolen cartridge $179.95	Alpine 6391 Alpine's best car speaker, 100 watt, while they last $119.80	Audio Technica 122LP $60.00
Sony PS-LX500 Dual's newest, fully automatic includes Ortolen cartridge $189.88	Alpine 3516 Power Amp 20 watts per chn., add this to any system for power $59.95
	Alphasonic AS2001 60 watt subwoofer for eq & AM, free subwoofer with AS2001 $150.00	Stereo Accessories
	Alpine 3316 Preamp equalizer, subwoofer out, 3 hook up for amps, 7 band control, fit BJ048H $180.00	Audio Technica 607 Stylus cleaner and brush $2.95
	Interaudio Alpha 3 150 watt RMS, 3 way with high tech protection circuitry $215.00 Ea.	Vanco XC-100 25" headphone extensions $3.95
	Interaudio Alpha 4 Rock n roll delight, 200 watt RMS, 4 way system, 5 yr. warranty $279.00 Ea.	Allsop 3 Cassette deck cleaning system $6.95
	Bose 901 V The ultimate in direct reflected sound $499.95 Ea.	Discwasher D4 System Cassette deck cleaning system $10.95
		JVC HF-1H Stereo mini headphones $19.88
		Koss K-20 Stereo headphones $16.95
		Audio Technica AT-9100 Low impedance unidirectional microphone $24.50
		Koss HV-X High velocity stereo headphones $40.95
		Koss Pro 4X Our best headphones $69.50

STEREO FACTORY

1126 Moro

IN AGGIEVILLE

Hours: Mon.-Sat. 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Sun. 12-5 p.m.

$20 Holds
Any Sale
Item

776-5507

We Are Stereo

Ghosts haunt Van Zile to 'get into spirit of Halloween'

By TOM DOWNING
Staff Writer

The spooks came from all over campus Friday and Saturday evening. They came to hang around the spook house in the basement of Van Zile Hall.

For the last six years they've been meeting there, having a good time, and scaring the daylight out of people.

Van Zile residents are involved in the planning and construction of the 13 rooms which make up the Van Zile Spook House. They also are responsible for the running of the house. Proceeds are used to fund hall activities.

In the spring, Van Zile is scheduled to be closed for remodeling and the fate of the basement and the haunted house is uncertain. Some of the spooks are worried about the future.

Nick, a ghost who lives in the Purple Masque Theater, voiced the concern of most of the ghosts on campus.

"We always have a great time watching these kids get scared," Nick said. "You know, I remember going to spook houses when I was younger and now that I can take an active role, I always come over here. It's great to see my friends."

Mary Pierce Van Zile echoed

Nick's sentiments but declined to be quoted. "I don't trust the Collegian," she said.

Mary lives in the attic of Van Zile with another ghost named Wanda and an entity who calls herself Missy.

"These kids here did a fantastic job," Wanda said. "Of course, they don't know we're here...but we are."

The ghosts have been watching the coordinator of the spook house, Chip Madinger, junior in construction science, and the other residents since they began preparing in August.

The night before the haunted house opened, the city fire marshal made an inspection tour. Missy said everyone is safety-minded.

"The guides and the geeks, they're the ones who run around scaring people at will, they know where the fire extinguishers are and the exits," she said.

Nick said he likes to help out with security.

"The eight guides do a good job of keeping the crowd under control, but sometimes I have fun freaking out the rowdies. They've usually been drinking so that helps. Earlier this evening, I followed these guys out to their car. I really get into the spirit of Halloween," he said.

Staff/Wes Wilmers

TOP: Hugh Heckman, sophomore in pre-design professions, drills into Jeff Borland, senior in mechanical engineering, in the "Mad Doctor's Room" as anxious students hope to complete their tour without becoming the next patient. BOTTOM: The axe murderer claims another victim, Becky Rogers, sophomore in biology.

Staff/Wes Wilmers

Steve Sutterlin, freshman in pre-design professions, stares into the darkness of the Van Zile Spook House.

Here are twenty gift ideas all under Fifteen Dollars

$5<sup>00</sup> & Under

- Natural Soaps
- Bubble Bath
- Contemporary Design Acrylic Glassware
- Garfield Soap
- Coffee Mugs
- Cookie Cutters
- Monogram Wine glasses or Beer Steins.

$10<sup>00</sup> & Under

- Nightlights
- Garfield Towels
- Scented Candles
- Cookbooks
- Unicorn Gifts
- Body Paints & Liqueurs

$15<sup>00</sup> & Under

- Wind Chimes
- Stained Glass Sun Catchers
- Garfield Chimes
- Personalized Towels
- Pizza Pans

Special Services:

- Lay-a-way 90 Days
- UPS Package Shipping (No standing in line)
- Bridal Registry
- Monogramming Towels & Glassware

THE BATH SHOP and
Cook's Nook

421 Poyntz 776-6980
M-F 9:30-5:30 Thurs. 9:30-8:30

When it comes to pizza,
PTA comes to you.

PTA Pizza Transit Authority

This Halloween
the treat's on us
with such good deals
it's
FRIGHTENING

1127 Moro
Aggieville

537-9500

25¢ Pepsi's!
When you order any pizza,
we'll also deliver all the big 14-ounce fountain Pepsi's you want for only 25¢ each!
Diet Pepsi also available.

30-MINUTE GUARANTEE

031C

Your pizza will arrive within 30-minutes of the time you place your order or present this coupon to the pizza runner for your FREE pizza.

Not good with any other special.

Good only with this coupon.

537-9500

Expires Nov. 30, 1983.

FREE DELIVERY
IN 30 MINUTES OR LESS

031C
SAVE $1 ON ANY
1 OR MORE ITEM PIZZA
One Coupon Per Pizza. Not Good With Any Other Special.
537-9500
Expires Nov. 30, 1983

031C
PTA REAL MEAL DEAL
Large 3-topping pizza with
4 Pepsi's or Diet Pepsi's only $9.95
One Coupon Per Pizza. Not Good With Any Other Special.
537-9500
Expires Nov. 30, 1983

031C
SAVE $2 ON ANY LARGE
2 OR MORE ITEM PIZZA
One Coupon Per Pizza. Not Good With Any Other Special.
537-9500
Expires Nov. 30, 1983

031C
PTA REAL MEAL DEAL
Small 3-topping pizza with
2 Pepsi's or Diet Pepsi's only $6.95
One Coupon Per Pizza. Not Good With Any Other Special.
537-9500
Expires Nov. 30, 1983

Briefly

By the Associated Press

Governor speaks from fire engine

ORLANDO, Fla. — Gov. Bob Graham delivered a speech from the back of a fire truck after he and about 300 others at a banquet were forced by a telephoned bomb threat to evacuate a hotel.

No bomb was found Saturday night in the lobby of the Sheraton World Hotel, said Orange County Sheriff's spokesman Harvey Pechacek. A search was completed and the Florida Home Builders Association diners returned to their meal within 90 minutes, he said.

However, Graham didn't let the situation deter him from his purpose, hotel night manager Jim Shutt said. While everyone was outside, the governor climbed onto the fire truck and delivered his entire speech.

Man died in hit-and-run accident

LAWRENCE — A Kansas City man was killed Saturday night when he was struck by a hit-and-run vehicle while standing beside a car that had broken down, authorities said.

The Leavenworth County Sheriff's Department identified the victim as George Marcus, 48.

The accident occurred about seven miles north of Lawrence on Kansas 32.

The hit-and-run vehicle was believed to be a pickup truck, authorities said.

This candy melts in your hand

DEXTER, Iowa — Drew's Candy melts in your hand as well as your mouth.

Norbert Tigges, 55, a truck driver by trade, his wife, Phyllis, and their eight children make chocolates in their basement. Left on a shelf or in a warm place, the candy melts into a mess.

But that's the way the Tiggeses want it because, unlike many big candy makers, they don't use paraffin in their chocolate.

The family claims their candy flunks the filling station test. Daughter Mary Kim Tigges, 19, claims that some candies can remain on the shelf of a store, or filling station, "for three years and never change.... Well, our candy won't do that...it melts."

Drew's Candy Shop was founded 57 years ago by Helen Drew. When she died, the Tiggeses bought the business in 1977.

Boxes — the one-pound variety pack costs $4.75, $5.50 with dividers — are stuffed by hand. Old-fashioned machines do the stirring and each candy, one by one, is dipped and shaped by workers using a tool that looks like a child's bubble blower.

Advertising is by word of mouth and the shop, started in the basement, stayed there because it's cool.

Dylan gives up Christian preaching

LOS ANGELES — Bob Dylan, who startled fans three years ago when he became an aggressive, born-again Christian, says he's stopped proselytizing because even Jesus "only preached for three years."

"I don't particularly regret telling people how to get their souls saved," the 42-year-old musician, who was reared as a Jew, said in an interview published in Sunday's Los Angeles Times.

"But maybe the time for me to say that has just come and gone. Now it's time for me to do something else.... Jesus himself only preached for three years."

Although Dylan reportedly has spent much time recently at Chabad Lubavitch, a Hasidic Jewish center in Brooklyn, N.Y., and was seen wearing a yarmulke and prayer shawl at his son Jesse's bar mitzvah in Jerusalem, he did not say if he had returned to practicing Judaism.

CREDIT FOR STUDENTS

VISA® and MasterCard® Credit Cards Now Available to Students through TIMESAVER's BankAction Program!

No Minimum Income or Job Requirements. Savings account and fees required. Mail this coupon for complete information.

Send to: Timesaver Headquarters Building / Student Dept. / 12276 Wilkins Avenue / Rockville, MD 20852

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Phone ( ) _____

School Attending _____

Status: Fr ☐ Soph ☐ Jr ☐ Sr ☐ Grad ☐

There's Never Been a Better Time to Get VISA® and MasterCard® Credit Cards! Apply Today!

AT PIÑATA:

LUNCH WITH US!
99¢ to $1.80

Choose from 6 featured "Special" Specials
Changed Daily Mon.-Fri. 11-2

You Won't Pay Over $1.80!
(Drinks not included)

Piñata.

Open Mon.-Sat. 11-11, Sun. 11-10

539-3166

Bluemont and North Manhattan

SKIERS

...SKI FREE and for 1/2 price.

...SAVE EVERYDAY ON LODGING, DINING, EQUIPMENT, TRAVEL AND MORE.

SAVE AT THESE AREAS PLUS MANY OTHERS

Breckenridge Winterpark Anglefire
Vail Taos Red River
Aspen Copper Mountain Squaw Valley
Crested Butte Mary Jane Snowbird

YOU RECEIVE...SKI CARD INTERNATIONAL and your 288 page guide to Thousands of Dollars in Cash SAVINGS.

JOIN THOUSANDS OF SKIERS IN COLORADO WHO NEVER PAY FULL RATE (Now Available in the Midwest on Limited Availability!) MAIL TODAY (Reg. Price $30) Student Special Until Nov. 20th only $15.

SKI CARD INTERNATIONAL P.O. BOX 8010, BOULDER CO 80306-8010 (303) 440-4131

Name _____ Reg. $30.00 Enclosed $15.00

Address _____

Phone _____ City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Master Charge _____ Exp _____

VISA _____ Exp _____

Signature _____

C-1

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

- ACROSS
- 1 Cobras
- 5 Matterhorn
- 8 S.A. country
- 12 Kitchen utensils
- 14 Sharif
- 15 Hygienic
- 16 Bring to pitch
- 17 Sailor
- 18 Office workers
- 20 Small door
- 23 Front of the leg
- 24 Nanking nanny
- 25 Useful suggestion
- 28 The sun
- 29 Armistice
- 30 Anagram for rot
- 32 Universities
- 34 Real
- 35 Team retirees
- 36 Salute
- 37 Spud
- 40 Understand
- 41 Affirm
- 42 Scouring powder
- 47 — a hand (help)
- 48 Like a burnt roast
- 49 Goals
- 50 Leo the — (Durocher)
- 51 Trade
- DOWN
- 1 Ninny
- 2 Ems or
- 3 "Peter —" (Barrie book)
- 20 Possesses
- 4 "A — in time..."
- 5 Winglike
- 6 Gibbon
- 7 Mediums
- 8 Puissant
- 9 Asian river
- 10 File's companion
- 11 War god
- 13 Nevada neighbor
- 19 "What's My —" (quiz show)
- 21 Role for Freeman Gosden
- 22 Bath powder
- 23 Spirits
- 25 Etiquette of state functions
- 26 French verb
- 27 Rake
- 29 Race track shill
- 31 Soak
- 33 Acts like a miser
- 34 Prevailing tendencies
- 36 Equipment
- 37 Pallid
- 38 Baker's need
- 39 Minister to
- 40 Ooze
- 43 Caesar's
- 44 Farm breeder
- 45 Alfonso's queen
- 46 Sturdy fabric

Answer to Saturday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 10-31

RFD QTYR JBQTWY EZNEWY YRBN
RWNQY JZKFRDN; ZY B NZOK QBYRDN.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: SAUSAGE STOLEN FROM STORE; MAN OUT LOOKING FOR MISSING LINK.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: W equals U.

The Women of Alpha Xi Delta will be serving as

TRICK OR TREAT
ESCORTS

- Hosting Halloween party for kids
- Then we'll take the costumed creatures on their "track" for treats.

Oct. 31st
7-8 p.m.
601 Fairchild Terr.
Call 539-4693

NOVEMBER
SPECIAL

Ends 11/30/83

Breakfast
at Vista

$1.89

Regular $2.75

Vista
RESTAURANTS

1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

NOVEMBER
SPECIAL

A ham and cheese or bacon and cheese omelette made with three fresh eggs. Served with golden hash browns, toast or home made biscuits.

Enjoy our full breakfast menu
...including Sunrise Sandwiches!

the Avalon

HALLOWEEN PARTY Monday, Oct. 31

with STEVE, BOB & RICH

$1.25 SCREWDRIVERS AND BLOODY MARYS • 50¢ DRAWS

— 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. —

BOBBING FOR APPLES—COSTUME CONTESTS—CASH PRIZES

A Halloween Party You Mustn't Miss—It's A Ghoulish Good Time

UPSTAIRS IN AGGIEVILLE

539-9703

MCCAIN

AUDITORIUM

SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

Q. What's all the fuss about?

A. National Shakespeare Company's
Much Ado About Nothing
Monday, Nov. 7, 8 p.m.

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office,
M-F noon to 5 p.m., 532-6428

ATTENTION BASKETBALL FANS

BASKETBALL TICKET SALES LINE POLICY

- Between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday thru Friday, there will be no roll calls, although between these hours student can still sign-up for a position in line. Roll call intervals after 4:30 p.m. shall be up to the discretion of the Basketball Ticket Sales Committee. There will be a 15-minute grace period to check in after completion of roll call.
- One (1) person will be allowed to represent up to five (5) others. One for five will be allowed up until 10:00 a.m. the day of ticket sales, then one for one from 10:00 a.m. until ticket purchase. (Time subject to change.)
- Regardless of the size of the group, each individual must sign-up for his/her place in line when acquiring their position number, with a fee card.
- If inclement weather becomes a problem, the Basketball Ticket Sales Committee has the power to disband the lines until further notice.

*Security & Traffic will remove any group attempting to start a line before the Basketball Ticket Sales Committee arrives. The Committee will run the lines.

INFORMATION MEETING

Tues., Nov. 1, 7:30 p.m.
Rm. 207, K-State Union
For those who have questions concerning the above line policy.

'Cats' 'scoring explosion' falls short

By JOEL TORCZON
Copy Editor

Following Nebraska's 51-25 romp over K-State on a cloudy, cool Saturday before the second largest KSU Stadium crowd in history — 44,150 — Stan Weber, a junior who had just completed his first career start at quarterback for the Wildcats, was trudging up to the locker room when red-clad well-wishers suddenly gathered around him.

"You're a great quarterback," said one admiring Cornhusker fan as he gave him a pat. "Great game," said another.

What Weber had done was give K-State, which hadn't scored a touchdown since three games ago in the first quarter against Oklahoma (a total of 14 quarters), a ray of hope after he guided the 'Cats to not one, but three touchdowns covering drives of 83, 60 and 63 yards in the fourth quarter.

"He's (Weber) always been a slick option quarterback and he showed it today," said Jim Dickey, K-State head coach. "I thought he played exceptionally well."

So well, in fact, that Weber piled up 255 total yards (132 yards rushing and 142 yards on 12 for 27 passing) against the No. 1-ranked 'Huskers, which saw its nation-leading winning streak increase to 19 games. And while NU stands atop the Big Eight Conference with a 4-0 mark (9-0 overall), it was clear, however, that the 'Cats dominated the second half.

"They really knocked us off the ball," said winning coach Tom Osborne. "They hurt us with the off-tackle plays...we just didn't do a real good job of playing defense."

K-State, which had been limited to 78 yards rushing, 40 yards passing and eight first downs in the first half, rallied to finish with 377 total yards (235 total yards rushing and 142 yards passing) — only 52 yards less than NU's 429 — and 24 first downs, which was three more than NU's 21.

The 'Cats also did what it takes to keep the high-scoring 'Husker offense off the field — keep possession of the ball longer — with an amazing 40 minutes and 27 seconds as compared to NU's 19:33. But the 'Huskers' 38-5 halftime lead proved to be too much for the 'Cats to overcome — although they did come close to winning the football game.

"When it was 38-25, I really thought we had a chance if we got the next inside kick," Dickey said.

They didn't get it, and any chances the 'Cats had of upsetting the so-called "greatest team in college football" were finished as NU scored twice late in the game.

"I really feel like we were in awe of them at first," Dickey said, "but we got a little gritty in the second half. It's nice to come close, but we've got to beat somebody."

What might have gotten the 'Cats fired up in the second half was the apparent fact that NU was trying to run up the score right before halftime when it called three timeouts and threw four straight incompletions.

"I think that it helped us a little bit in the second half when Nebraska threw a few times at the end of the first half," Dickey said. "It made us a little mad. Scoring 38 points in the first half is a lot. I was just hoping it wouldn't be like the Minnesota game when they scored 84 points."

Nebraska's offense, which has been billed as "The Scoring Explosion," lived up to its name as it scored in just six seconds — unfortunately, it was reflected on the scoreboard under "K-State" — thanks to a blunder by I-back Mike Rozier.

Rozier, who received the kickoff in the end zone, took two steps, hesitated and then retreated back into the end zone, was called for a touchback which gave the 'Cats a 2-0 lead.

"I should never have done that," Rozier said. "I wasn't sure about the rule, but I am now. That made me really mad since I gave them two points." But that wasn't all Rozier gave.

Staff/Rob Clark Jr.

K-State's Mike Wallace (20), Jim Northcutt (72) scramble for a loose ball with Nebraska's Neil Harris (11) and Mike Knox (44) during first half action Saturday.

In a game which saw NU quarterback Turner Gill turn in a mediocre performance despite scoring three touchdowns and a complete shutdown of big-play wingback Irving "Fryar-works" Fryar, Rozier showed why he's considered the favorite for the Heisman Trophy as he carried the ball 23 times for 227 yards — both season-highs — and three touchdowns.

Rozier also atoned for his opening kickoff mistake as he accounted for most of the 'Huskers' yards in their 81- and 55-yard scoring drives on their first two possessions. Rozier scored the first touchdown on a 4-yard burst and quarterback Gill plunged in from the 1-yard line for another score. Scott Livingston booted the extra points to give NU a 14-2 lead which it never relinquished.

"Mike Rozier is some kind of back," Dickey said. "He about killed a couple of our defensive backs."

David Ast, who finished second among K-State defenders with 11 tackles, said Rozier is the best back he's ever seen.

"He's (Rozier) low to the ground, quick and shifty," Ast said. "He's strong and fast and even when you get a hold of him, he's tough to bring down."

Then with 3:09 left in the first quarter, Husker defensive lineman Jim Skow picked off a short Weber pass intended for Charles Crawford in the flats and returned it 31 yards for a touchdown. Livingston converted to make it 21-2.

'Cats' kicker Steve Willis interrupted the NU scoring parade when he booted a 28-yard field goal with 13:56 remaining in the second quarter which capped a 16-play 77-yard drive.

However, John Chandler's ensuing inside

Staff/Andy Nelson

Quarterback Stan Weber celebrates the 'Cats first touchdown.

kick was recovered by NU, which then proceeded to march 40 yards in six plays — capped by Rozier's 5-yard touchdown run.

Livingston then kicked a 29-yard field goal on NU's next possession to increase its lead to 31-5.

A Crawford fumble at the K-State 22 then gave NU another cheap touchdown — a 22-yard scamper by Rozier with 3:12 left. Livingston's conversion gave NU a 38-5 intermission lead.

Even though the third quarter was a scoreless one, it featured a K-State drive which gave the 'Huskers a taste of things to come in the final quarter.

The 'Cats took the second-half kickoff and embarked on an 82-yard drive before they lost a fumble. On their next possession, however, Weber broke the long touchdown drought on a 1-yard bootleg which left the 'Huskers fooled. His score capped an 83-yard drive, and Willis' conversion made it 38-12.

Nelson Nickerson then recovered Chandler's inside kick — he kicked four of those — to give the Wildcats the ball at the K-State 40. The 'Cats then gave the 'Huskers a dose of their own "scoring explosion" as they scored in only three plays, capped by an electrifying 30-yard bolt through the middle by Lemuel James, who knocked the helmet off NU defensive back Neil Harris along the way. Willis' extra-point kick was good and the score stood 38-19.

NU pounced on the next inside kick, but a

Gill pitchout went astray and was recovered by Nickerson on the K-State 37. Weber then ended the 63-yard drive with an 8-yard scoring strike to Mike Russell. Willis connected on the extra point to bring the 'Cats closer at 38-25.

At that point in the second half, the 'Cats had run 40 plays to NU's eight.

"I sure didn't like standing there," Rozier said of his enforced third-quarter inactivity. "It was cold and wet. I just wanted to get back in and get it over with so we could go home."

And that's exactly what he did as he carried the ball for 12 and 32 yards on NU's first two plays after it recovered another K-State inside kick. Gill scored on a 3-yard keeper, but the two-point conversion failed as the 'Huskers led 44-25.

Later, Gill scored a 5-yard touchdown run — thanks to a Mike McCashland interception of a Weber pass at the 'Cats 29. Livingston's extra-point kick closed the day's scoring and put the 'Cats in a tie with Colorado for last place in the conference with an 0-4 mark (2-6 overall).

Dageforde finished second behind Weber in rushing with 19 totes for 65 yards and Reggie Singletery responded to his first call at a new position — linebacker — with a team-leading 13 tackles. Russell led all receivers with three catches for 41 yards.

K-State will travel to Stillwater, Okla., Saturday to play Oklahoma State while NU hosts to Iowa State.

Staff/Jeff Taylor

LEFT: Heisman Trophy candidate Mike Rozier ran for 227 yards and three touchdowns in Nebraska's victory over K-State Saturday. ABOVE: A K-State fan carries a banner expressing his feelings toward Nebraska.

Iowa St. runs away with Big Eight title

By TIM FILBY
Collegian Reporter

Iowa State University showed its dominance over the rest of the conference as its men's and women's squads captured team championships at the Big Eight cross country meet Saturday in Lawrence. Meanwhile, K-State's teams each posted third place finishes.

In the men's division, Iowa State's two African runners, Yobes Ondieki and Joseph Kipsang, swept the top two places to lead the Cyclones to the championship. The Cyclones gathered 53 points for the win, topping second-place Nebraska, which finished with 78 tallies. K-State finished third with 84 points and KU placed fourth with 92 points.

Ondieki gained individual honors by running the course in 29 minutes and 42 seconds, outdistancing teammate Kipsang, who turned in time of 30:21. Brent Steiner of Kansas, Wally Duffy of Nebraska, and Tim Gundy of KU rounded out the top five finishers. Alfredo Rosas was K-State's top finisher, placing seventh with a time of 31:08.

Besides Rosas, two K-State runners placed among the top 20 finishers. Brian Carroll, who turned in a time of 31:27, placed 13th while Ron Stahl finished 19th with a time of 31:42. Bob Leetch, who placed 21st in a time of 31:52 and Mike Rogers, placing 25th in a time of 32:38, rounded out K-State's top five finishers.

In the women's division, Iowa State overcame a sweep of the top three places by Missouri to take the championship. The Cyclones scored 44 points to edge the 53 tallies gathered by Missouri. K-State finished third with 64 points and Nebraska finished a distant fourth with 111 points.

MU's Sabrina Dornhoefer won the individual championship with a 16:28 time. Dornhoefer's teammates Andrea Fischer and Jill Kingsberry finished second and third respectively with times of 16:41 and 16:54, giving the Tigers the sweep. K-State's Betsy Silzer captured fourth place with a 17:07 time and Bonnie Sons of Iowa State rounded the top five, finishing in 17:09.

All of the top five K-State runners finished among the top 20. Behind Silzer, Renee Williams placed 13th in the time of 17:28, Barb Ludovise finished 14th in 17:30, Jacques Struckhoff placed 16th in 17:37 and Lauretta Miller finished 18th with a time of 17:40.

Sooners 'serve' defeat to volleyballers

By VIKKI WATSON
Staff Writer

Excellent defense and efficient short serving propelled the University of Oklahoma Sooners to a 13-15, 16-14, 13-15, 9-15 victory over the K-State women's volleyball team Friday at Ahearn Field House.

The win improves the Sooners' overall record to 20-9 and their Big Eight Conference record to 4-2, while the 'Cats drop to 17-12 overall and 1-6 in Big Eight standings.

K-State jumped to a 3-1 lead in the first game before OU later came back and took a 7-4 advantage behind four straight serves by Stephanie Townsend.

The 'Cats made a comeback bid of their own to take a 13-9 lead, but it was the short serving of OU's Rosey Miller that dashed any hopes of a K-State win. Miller served six straight points for the victory.

"We didn't make the adjustment of moving our serve reception shorter," Scott Nelson, head coach, said of the six unanswered points. "They (OU) did something very outstanding."

OU started the second match much the same way they finished the first — taking a quick 5-0 lead before a kill by senior Sharon Ridley finally put K-State into the scoring column.

A kill by sophomore Donna Lee later tied the score at 6-6 but the 'Cats mustered only three more points, while the Sooners stormed out to a 14-9 lead.

Three services, two by Lee and one by senior Cathy Sittenauer, brought the 'Cats within one point at 13-14. Lee's kill, off a Helen Bundy serve, and two missed hits by OU gave K-State the two-point victory.

Bundy, a freshman outside hitter from Manhattan High, had six kills and eight digs in a substitute middle blocker role.

"No doubt, she was a sparkplug for us," said Ginger Mayson, assistant coach.

And with the aid of a Bundy service ace and a Sittenauer kill, the 'Cats jumped to a 5-2 lead in the third game. Three straight Townsend serves tied the score at 5-5.

The score remained close throughout the contest before two missed hits and two serving errors by the 'Cats helped the Sooners go ahead at 14-11.

K-State closed within one at 13-14, but a Townsend service ace gave the Sooners the win.

The final contest remained close in the opening moments as four straight serves, including two aces, by freshman Leesa Gross highlighted K-State's play.

Once again OU serving proved fatal as the Sooner's Sharon Kuchan served six straight points to take her squad from a 7-9 deficit to a 13-9 lead. The Sooners ended the contest with a 15-9 win.

Uncharacteristically good defensive play by Oklahoma was the main edge in the match, said Nelson, adding that the 'Cats played well despite the loss.

"There was some great volleyball going on," he said. "The difference was that Oklahoma played the best defense I've ever seen them play."

K-State's next match will be tomorrow night against the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers at Ahearn Field House. Nebraska is the Big Eight Conference leader with an unblemished league record.

Lomax fuels Cardinals' upset win over Vikings

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Neil Lomax fired two touchdown passes to Roy Green and one to Pat Tilley, and Ottis Anderson ran for 136 yards and a touchdown, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 41-31 triumph in a National Football League upset Sunday over the Minnesota Vikings.

St. Louis, the NFL's most error-besieged team, stayed away from fumbles and interceptions until the final period. The Cards' Neil O'Donoghue, who missed three field goal tries in a 20-20 tie with the New York Giants the previous game, made good on attempts of 52 and 47 yards.

Lomax, who completed 19 of his 28 passes for 241 yards, shot a 9-yard scoring toss to Tilley in the opening minutes following a pass interception by Lionel Washington.

After Stump Mitchell rolled 4 yards to pad the St. Louis lead to 14-0, Minnesota embarked on a 96-yard scoring march. But the Cards used O'Donoghue's two field goals to establish a 20-7 command and carried a 20-10 advantage to intermission.

Lomax' 4-yard touchdown toss to Green to cap a 76-yard drive and Anderson's 10-yard scoring gallop around left end seven minutes later moved St. Louis away in the third quarter.

Steve Dils, who had three touchdown passes for Minnesota in the final quarter, combined with Sam McCullum on a 49-yard scoring play at the outset of the final quarter for the Vikings. After Joey Browner covered Randy Love's fumble at midfield, Dils shot a 2-yard touchdown pass to Bob Bruer for the Vikings with 9:55 left.

The Cards added their final score on Lomax' 5-yarder to Green with 8:33 left, and Minnesota responded with a 5-yard scoring flip from Dils to Sammy White in the closing five minutes.

By beating Minnesota a fourth straight time, St. Louis improved its record to 3-5-1. The Vikings, in the National Conference Central, dipped to 6-3.

Classified

ANNOUNCEMENT 01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m. 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. 50¢ for students with ID and 75¢ for all others. (281f)

RENTAL COSTUMES—New hours: Daily 2:00-6:00 p.m., Wednesday until 9:00 p.m. Maries, 1631 Humboldt. 539-5200. (32-50)

SUPPORT GROUP for incest survivors, confidential. Meets Thursdays 4:30-6:00 p.m. Call Women's Resource Center, 532-6444. (49-53)

WHISTLES!

Acme Thunderer
LOUD-SHRILL
Call Charly
933-537-9821

500th Anniversary "Where Luther Walked"

Contemporary film narrated by Ronald Bainton Luther Historian Respondents:
Rev. Norbert Diabali, St. Isidore's University Chapel and
Rev. Ron Roschke, Peace Lutheran Church
Sponsored by:
Lutheran Campus University

SUPPORT GROUP—Women who have experienced abortion. Alternate Thursdays, 7:30-9 p.m., Women's Resource Center, 532-6444. (49-53)

ATTENTION 02

TRAVEL—We will give you the best price at anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (11f)

FANTASY-GRAMS. Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

CANDID PORTRAITS—I offer flexibility and a personal approach to each photo session. If you would like to give that "special" person a "special" photograph—phone 776-8502 evenings. Ask for Brian. (46-50)

IS IT true you can buy jeans for $44 through the U.S. Government? Get the facts today! Call (312) 742-1142 ext. 3286-A. (50)

IT'S NOT too late! You can still register for UFM classes! Catalogs at Union, Farrell Library. (50)

FOR RENT—MISC 03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeups, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

WILDCAT INN APTS

GRADUATING SENIOR SUBLETS

5 AVAILABLE FOR JAN. 1

APARTMENT LOCATION:

- Fieldhouse—1803 College Heights, top floor & balconies, furnished
- Wildcat V—411 North 17th, just south of Ramada. Patio apartment—master bedroom, 100% AC, furnished.
- Wildcat I—1854 Claflin, just north of Marlatt Hall, 1-bedroom furnished. $220.00 per mo.

CALL:
CELESTE—
539-5001

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electrics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11f)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Clob Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11f)

FOR RENT: One and two bedroom mobile homes, $165 and $175. No pets. 539-6058 or 539-5402. (48-52)

THREE BEDROOM with fireplace and garage. Available now or for next semester, $525. Call 539-4294, ask for Ron. (46-63)

FOR RENT—APTS 04

PINE HAVEN brand new two-bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. 776-3804. (46-55)

TWO BEDROOM, furnished, near Westloop. Fully equipped, pool, balcony, lovely—$350. Call 238-4792. (46-50)

LARGE, NICE, two-bedroom apartment. Fireplace, balcony. Call 776-3439. Available immediately. (48-50)

TIRED of dorm life? Take over lease on one-bedroom apartment next semester. 776-6398, 537-4851. (50-52)

REDUCED RENT on one-bedroom apartment and mobile home. Campus one mile. No children, no pets. 537-6389 or 537-8494. (50-54)

ONE BEDROOM apartment, $150. No pets. 539-6058 or 539-5402. (48-52)

FIRST FLOOR, two-bedroom, duplex apartment. Close to campus with off-street parking, $350. Call 776-9055. (48-52)

DECEMBER 1—Large rooms with complete kitchen and washer/dryer, off-street parking, near KSU. Call evenings, 776-3392. (49-50)

FOR RENT—HOUSES 05

Four to six bedroom house, three blocks from KSU. Stove, refrigerator, washer, dryer, $575 plus utilities. Available immediately. 776-1849. (50-54)

FOR SALE—AUTO 06

1980 MUSTANG Cobra Turbo, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, 39,000 miles. 776-8182 after 5:00 p.m. Anytime on weekends. (48-52)

1979 CHEVY Luv pickup. Air conditioning, AM-FM cassette, two new tires. Call evenings and weekends, 776-1810. (48-52)

FOR SALE—MISC 07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risque greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (teal), North Carolina (light blue), USC (white), others $14.00 each postpaid. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-601-835-1085. (45-59)

OLYMPUS KA 35mm camera with A11 flash. $100. Call 532-2362. (47-50)

EQUIPMENT FOR making rubber stamps. Type, press cabinet for type, and supplies. Must sell. Phone 537-7511 after 5:00 p.m. (47-51)

SOUND SYSTEM: Peavey-mixer, EQ, CS800, bass bins. Also, Tapco mixer, Mitchell cabinets, 100W guitar amps, Heipinstill and Rhodes pianos. Call 776-9305. (48-50)

MOVING SALE: Desk, $35; sewing cabinet, $15; Huffy man's 3-speed, $35; Hewlett-Packard 330 chair, rocker with ottoman; two end tables, $150; 20" pushmower, $35; ping pong table, $15; full size bed, box springs, mattress and frame, $50; beige shag carpet remnants (room size) with pad, $3 per square yard. Call 776-2251. (48-50)

TWO TICKETS to Heart concert on Wednesday, November 2 in Salina. Call Joe or Steve after 2:00 p.m. 776-3486. (48-50)

AKC MINATURE Schnauzer puppies. Neat little dogs for apartment living, excellent watchdogs. Call 1-456-9605. (48-50)

ONE PAIR Brook's Charlot running shoe's. Almost new, $35. Call 539-7152 after 6:00 p.m. (48-51)

FOR SALE: Complete home stereo system. Includes Bose 901 speakers. Call 1-632-2391 after 6:00 p.m. (49-53)

TWO TANDOM disk drives model 100-1. IBM and TRS compatible. Call 537-2465. (50-54)

MOVING SALE: Westinghouse refrigerator, $60; Huffy man's 3-speed, $35; Hewlett-Packard 330 calculator, $45; matching couch and chair, $50; coffee table, $55; two snow tires, $78-14; $10; drafting table with folding legs-sliding square, $30; fluorescent desk lamp, $10; collectors edition of Hobbit and Lords of Ring set, new, $100; Crate guitar amplifier, $119. Call 537-3739. (50-53)

FOR SALE: ARP Omni-2 and Micro-moog synthesizers. Both good condition. Call Jeff, 539-2099. (50-54)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES 08

TWO-BEDROOM trailer house, excellent condition. Call 776-6143 after 6:00 p.m. (45-54)

12' x 65', three-bedroom trailer, excellent condition. Includes: air conditioning, washer and dryer, some furniture. Call 539-5053. (49-53)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES 09

1979 SUZUKI GS550, 18,000 miles, new oil, battery, helmets included. $900 or best offer. 776-1332 after 5:00 p.m. (42f)

1973 TR6 Triumph, one owner, both tops, very nice. K-State purple, $2595. The Preston McCall Company, 913-641-6067. (44-53)

FOUND 10

FOUND—MALE cat, long hair, black and white, in Eisenhower Hall. Very friendly. Call 532-6841 days. (46-50)

FOUND: PAIR of large-framed glasses on sidewalk between Cardwell and Ackert. Claim in Kedzie 103. (48-50)

HELP WANTED 13

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

MALE SUBJECTS needed for study. $3 for one-half hour time. Call 532-6929 or 539-1380. (47-51)

EXTENSION PROGRAMMING Consultant, Temporary (1/2 time) for Extension Service, KSU. B.A., B.S., M.A., or M.S. in computer science or related field required with training in software engineering, program design and program languages. M.S. degree in computer science desirable. Apply to Roger Terry, 123 Umberger Hall, 532-5840. (50-52)

TWO PART-time programmers needed to work as part of a team developing and coding age-related software on microcomputers. Individuals must be self-motivating with desire to gain experience in software development arena. Working knowledge of Pascal, PL/I or C required. Each position requires 15-20 hours per week. Opportunity exists for summer employment. Contact KSU Cooperative Extension Service, 123 Umberger Hall, for application. (50-52)

LOST 14

LOST: TEXTBOOK—Design of Experiments by Cochran and Cox. Please return to Waters Hall, room 130. (48-52)

NOTICES 15

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY does typing—all types. Reasonable, all work guaranteed. Nancy, 776-8084. (50)

PERSONAL 16

MORGAN—A birthday wish to my little spook born 19 years ago today. I love ya and wish ya a happy fun-filled "Goulash" B-day! Love, LFK. (50)

MY VIKING son, Sven—Does August 18th sound familiar? Love, Mommy (50)

JKP—THANKS for the greatest 277 days of my life! You're the best. Have a good day Sweetie. Love bunches, MJG. (50)

TO THE ice witches at 1819 Todd Road: Your personalities are a fright, they give us frostbite. Look out for tonight, your yard could be a sight. Signed two loathers and 60 others. (50)

HEY DUDES—Dice or two years. Congratulations! Love, C.W. and J.W. (50)

RONNIE W.—Look! Here's your very own personal. Thanks for changing my tire, for pizzas, for blizzards and for Sunday afternoon Putt-Putt! Have a good day. Happy Halloween. P.S. Are you blonde? —Whimp! (50)

B-50 who's! Best of luck rocking your lobster on Friday! The B-52's. (50)

DELTA SIGMA Phi—No tricks, just treats await you for a Happy Halloween. From Sisters of the Sphinx. (50)

STEVE, The last couple of weeks have been the greatest. I hope there are more to come. Have a super 21st B-day. Sandy. (50)

ROOMMATE WANTED 17

ONE-TWO female non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplaces, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horses, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (49-53)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share four-bedroom apartment through May. Good location. Call 539-6849. (42-51)

QUIET FEMALE roommate needed for spring semester. 539-6674. (47-51)

FEMALE NON-SMOKER wanted to share nice, quiet apartment, two and one-half blocks from campus, second semester. $130/month. Call 537-0948, 5:30 p.m.-10:00 p.m. (48-50)

SHARE TWO-bedroom house (own room), three and one-half blocks east of campus, $135/month. Available now! Private parking. 776-4989 or 776-0182. (49-53)

HONEST, RELIABLE female wanted to share nice duplex with one other. Super rent! Call Susan, 776-3808 days, 539-6070 evenings. (49-50)

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted—For a house close to campus, $150 a month plus one-third electricity. Available now. Call 539-1093 or 539-8662. (49-53)

NON-SMOKING male wanted to share two-bedroom apartment, $137.50/month with utilities paid. Call 537-3927. (50-68)

SERVICES 18

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Unique skin care and glamour products. Call Fiona Taylor, 539-2070, for facial. (1-75)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9160. 103 South 4th Street, Suite 25. (11f)

GRADUATING THIS semester? Let us help you with your resume. Resume Service, 1221 Moro, Aggieville, 537-7294. (11f)

TYPING—LOWER rates. IBM electronic typewriter for faster service. Satisfaction guaranteed. Call Linda, 776-6174. (71f)

J&L BUG SERVICE

VW Rabbit and Bug repairs. Tune ups starting at $42. Parts—new and used. We buy dead Bugs, Rabbits. 1962 Bus for sale.

1-494-2388 St. George.

Captain Cosmo

By Doug Yearout

Bradley

By Mich Johnson

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Hunting for Halloween costume may be haunting project

Becky Stoskopf, senior in dietetics, and Marie Malone, sophomore in business administration, help Erica Mulryan, 5, make the rounds trick-or-treating at the Gamma Phi Beta sorority house.

By KELLY ROBINSON
Staff Writer

Welcome all spooks, ghosts and goblins to this Halloween's fiendish fashion review. Today's look at what's hot in haunting apparel is a tribute, Transylvanian style, to the costume...er, custom of dressing up on Oct. 31.

Browsing through any discount store, magic or novelty shop, it would seem the manufacturers have not missed a trick or treat in providing the costume-buying public with a wide selection.

For instance, if traditional fright is the look you want to achieve, the stores are marketing monster masks en masse. There are plastic, rubber and latex masks — all complete with grotesque, distorted features.

Nick Saint-Erne, senior in veterinary medicine, operates The Emporium, a seasonal business which provides all sorts of ghoulish garb in Aggieville. He offered some insight into what the professional designers are showing now.

"We have some masks here that are made by Don Post, a Hollywood make-up artist, who has special permission from the 'Star Wars' people to make 'Star Wars' character masks," he said.

From "Yoda" to "Wicket W. War-rick", the authenticity and high quality of these masks will surely impress even the most avid fans of the "Star Wars" saga.

According to Saint-Erne, these masks, just like real monsters, abhor sunlight. But if kept out of the heat, they will last forever.

If politics is your game, President Reagan or Ayatollah Khomeini can be your name if you choose to look through the eyes of a famous-person mask this Halloween. Not-so-famous mugs, such as clowns and hobos, also are available with "skin" so soft it would make a baby jealous.

Treasure Chest manager, Dixie Hoyt, has been coordinating Halloween costumes for six years. In her judgment, the classics are where it's at.

"We really are not carrying anything new this year," she said. "Most of what we are renting is the same as other years."

Flappers and French maids, priests and playboy bunnies, convicts and cops are among the yearly favorites, she said.

"Of course, the most popular is the gorilla suit," she added.

Getting away from the flash-in-the-pan fads, Saint-Erne added devils to this non-trendy line.

"Our devil pieces have really been popular," he said. "You can go with the regular devil's tail (plastic) or with the deluxe model (red, shiny, sequin-covered cloth)."

Most fashion consultants will tell you that no outfit is complete without the proper accessories. Halloween costumes are no exception.

Where would a devil be without a pitchfork? And a fangless vampire probably wouldn't make anyone's teeth chatter.

Elaborating on your costume depends on the extent to which you want to go with your outfit and the money you are willing to spend.

"You can buy an eye patch for a couple dollars and be a pirate," he said. "Or we had a girl come in and spend $70 on a witch costume."

According to the Saint-Erne, the realism of this outfit covered everything from a $30 witch dress to a black wig to phony warts.

However, he estimated the median price that people spend putting together costumes is $25.

The newest thing in makeup this year is a fluorescent hairspray, Hoyt said. The spray, which washes out with shampoo, is available in assorted creepy colors and could be just the needed finishing touch if you are dressing up as a monster, clown or Boy George of the Culture Club.

Some of the old standbys still on the market include tooth black-in, plastic scars, fake eyelashes, rubber noses and glasses, spirit gum...spirit gum?

"It's what ghosts chew," Saint-Erne said jokingly. He then explained that the substance is used for glueing, not chewing, various artificial facial features onto the skin.

Lecturer details ingredients of witches' brew

By PATTI SHIPP
Collegian Reporter

Tales of witches that come to mind at Halloween are not necessarily only spooky stories.

"There were witches and there still are people who practice witchery," Pat Hook, plant pathologist and instructor of biology, said.

Hook's presentation at noon Friday in the Union, "What Were Macbeth's Witches Really Brewing?" was part of the Women's Resource Center's lecture series. Hook focused on the kinds of plants that medieval witches used in their brews and ointments.

Before explaining about the different plants, Hook explained why witches were mostly thought of as being female.

"Part of it has to do with the fact that these people were still practicing the remnants of an old fertility religion, where they had a god and a goddess," Hook said. "These people were herbalists."

"A lot of their religious practices had to do with the use of plants and these plants that they used were of a particular interest to women. The plants aided in childbirth, easing menstrual cramps and abortion."

Many plants are poisonous and hallucinogenic, which caused people to believe they were having a religious experience, Hook said. "Some give the sensation of flight through the air," she said, while others made people believe they were transformed into some kind of animal.

The plants were mixed into brews or ointments by the witches.

Some plants that can be found in the old recipes include hemlock, celery, water lilies, monkshood, poppy, deadly nightshade, henbane, mandrake, thorn apple, wild lettuce and also bat's blood, Hook said.

An old witch myth said that a plant would heal the part of the body that it resembled. Mandrake, which has a root that looks like a human body, was used over the entire body, Hook said.

The many legends about mandrake, which was used as a sedative and an aphrodisiac, were probably made up by its sellers to justify its high price, Hook said.

One legends described mandrake as being very dangerous to get. First, three circles were drawn around it with a sword. Then the witch would dance around it, say obscene words and pull it out of the ground. Dogs were usually used to pull it out because it was believed that whoever pulled it out would die, Hook said.

Deadly nightshade is a berry that was supposed to make women beautiful and dreamy-eyed, Hook said.

"A mild poisoning with deadly nightshade brings on high spirits, a sense of timelessness, followed by deep sleep with erotic dreams," Hook said.

Another plant, thorn apple or jimsonweed, got its name from the Jamestown settling by pilgrims in 1676, Hook said.

The settlers were searching for food and found jimsonweed. They made stew and cooked salad from it, Hook said.

"It didn't kill them but they behaved like fools for 11 days. They had no memory of what happened but it was recorded in their journals," Hook added.

Hemlock was used in the witches brew to counteract aphrodisiacs. Hemlock, which had a numbing effect, was used to stop sexual feelings and as a local anesthetic for amputations, Hook said.

"Hemlock was also used as a cure for St. Anthony's Fire, a medieval disease which was actually ergot poisoning. Ergot is a fungus that grows on rye," Hook said.

Hemlock is a natural source of LSD and causes burning sensations, hallucinations, constricts arteries and brings about abortions, Hook said.

Hemlock may have been a factor in the Salem witch trials, Hook said.

"It was very likely that the summer before the girls in Salem thought they were bewitched, they had ergot on their grain that year. This might have started it," Hook said.

Another plant, monkshood, is extremely poisonous, Hook said. It was used as an arrow poison, in love potions and as a substitute for morphine in World War I.

Division of Continuing Education

INTRODUCTION TO PERSONAL COMPUTERS

If you have questions about personal computer capabilities, or are just plain curious, this information-packed, six-week, hands-on course provides the fundamental overview you seek. Learn about: computer components and terminology, how to program in BASIC, wordprocessing, and popular software packages.

FEE: $60

DAYS AND DATES: Tuesdays, Nov. 8 to Dec. 13

TIME: 7 to 9 p.m.

9 to 10 p.m., optional lab time

Location to be announced at registration.

Sponsored by the KSU Community Activities Program

*More classes planned for January, including youth classes*

Call 532-5566 to register for this session and call 532-5570 to get on next session's mailing list.

ANNOUNCING: The contest of the year. The biggest. The tallest. The most mountainous Busch mountain on campus wins.

All living groups and campus organizations should save all their empty Busch cans (and we know there are a lot out there)

OBJECT: On November 19 each group will build their mountain with a minimum of 1000 cans (Busch only).

Each entry will be judged on number of cans, design and originality.

PRIZES: Awards to top 4 groups with a Grand Prize to be announced later.

Further details to be announced or call 776-BEER, ask for Steve or Dennis

U.S. judge overturns Craft case

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A federal judge on Monday threw out a $500,000 verdict won by former anchorwoman Christine Craft and ruled that her demotion by a TV station was not the result of sex discrimination.

U.S. District Judge Joseph E. Stevens Jr. said the jury verdict on Craft's allegations of fraud against Metromedia Inc. was the result of "passion, prejudice, confusion or mistake," and ordered a new trial.

The former anchorwoman, in Milwaukee on a speaking tour, said she was "appalled" by the decision and vowed to pursue the case "to its highest level if I have to."

Craft had claimed that she was demoted from co-anchor of news broadcasts to reporter because she wasn't attractive or deferential enough to men, but Stevens wrote that the Kansas City TV station had to contend with Craft's "below-average aptitude in matters of clothing and makeup."

Citing Craft's "affinity for the beach life and her apparent indifference to matters of appearance," the judge said the station's actions were "appropriate to her unique circumstances."

Stevens also denied Craft's request for a new trial on her claim that equal pay laws were violated by Metromedia, which owned KMBC-TV at the time she was demoted in August 1981.

The jury that awarded Craft $500,000 in the fraud case in August had ruled against her on the equal pay issue but had returned an advisory verdict in her favor on the sex discrimination complaint.

An attorney for Metromedia, Sandra L. Schermerhorn, said she wanted to limit her comments on Monday's ruling because "the judge is still very concerned about pre-trial publicity."

The judge had refused at a Sept. 1 hearing to issue a directed verdict in favor of Metromedia, but the company filed a motion asking for a reduction in the jury award or a new trial.

Stevens criticized the publicity surrounding the case, and said the new trial on the fraud complaint would begin Jan. 4 in Joplin, Mo., 120 miles south of Kansas City. The jury in that trial will be sequestered, unlike the jury in the first trial, he said.

Craft, 38, returned to her old job at KEYT-TV in Santa Barbara, Calif., after refusing to accept her demotion, but quit that job after the verdict to write a book and lecture.

She said Monday that Stevens was "saying in essence, that in this country at this time it is perfectly acceptable for a woman to be told that she has to hide her intelligence to make men look smarter."

Staff/Rob Clark Jr.

Dressed to kill

The Grim Reaper, Bill Ward of Manhattan, roams Aggieville streets Monday night. Other ghosts and goblins paraded about the city as part of the Halloween tradition.

Military party loses Argentine election

By The Associated Press

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Raul Alfonsín and his left-of-center Radical Civic Union on Monday won Argentina's first general elections in a decade, to replace the military government. It was a stunning defeat for the Peronist Party which has dominated national politics for nearly 40 years.

The military government which has ruled since a 1976 coup said Alfonsín and vice presidential running mate Victor Martinez, both attorneys, had received 7.43 million of the more than 14 million ballots cast in Sunday's elections — good for 318 votes in the electoral college. The college will meet Nov. 30 to ratify the results.

The government says the new leadership will take over by January 1984, but could move up the date.

The Peronist presidential candidates, former Sen. Italo Luder and his running mate Deolindo Bittel, received 5.71 million votes — 258 electoral college votes, the government said.

"We've won the election, but we haven't defeated anyone," Alfonsín, 56, told cheering supporters at party headquarters in downtown Buenos Aires as election returns showed the Radicals building an unbeatable advantage.

The victors will take control of a country reeling under an 800 percent inflation rate, a $40 billion foreign debt, bitterness over the military regime's loss of the Falkland Islands war last year and its bloody crackdown on leftists in the late 1970s.

Police reported several clashes between groups of rival Radical and Peronist sympathizers in the capital and suburbs. Private news agencies said about 100 people were arrested and three injured.

The military government agreed to the elections following the Falklands defeat. Many Argentines who had supported the regime were outraged at the way the armed forces handled the 74-day conflict for the disputed islands off the southern Argentine coast.

The labor-based Peronist Party, founded in 1945 by the late three-time president Juan Peron, has won most elections since then. The Radicals won a 1963 election.

Peron died in office one year after the last elections in 1973, and was succeeded by his wife and vice president Isabel, who has been blamed for failing to stop a wave of political violence.

Generals ousted her on March 24, 1976, established a military junta and began a campaign to wipe out leftist guerrilla groups. Many Argentines are bitter over that repression, in which human rights groups say 15,000 people were seized, tortured and killed.

Farm research shifts to animal production

By RHONDA WESSEL
Agriculture Editor

Research of farming systems is moving away from the traditional experimentation of field crops and focusing more on the role of animals in the farming system. However, this change is presents difficulties in the research methods used.

"On the farm, research with animals isn't easy. If our research is to prove effective, we must set high standards. Then, we too, can achieve success," said Hank Fitzhugh, animal scientist and program officer for Latin America and the Caribbean at Winrock International, Morrilton, Ark.

Fitzhugh gave the keynote address of a Farming Systems Symposium to approximately 100 people last night in the Union. The symposium continues until Wednesday afternoon.

"We have to make a decision to improve the role of livestock," Fitzhugh said.

To increase the efficiency of animal research, the farming systems research method could be used, he said.

The research system involves dividing classification of the production system into three categories.

The first is the animal-based system in which animals are the primary factor. The second is the mixed crop-animal division. Fitzhugh called this the most important, and the most productive division because it is an interaction between animals and crops in the environment. The third division is crop-based.

"Most animals are found in the mixed crop-animal category and make up a high contribution and higher opportunity for growth and development of the animal industry to aid people," Fitzhugh said.

When dealing with the animal-based system, research becomes increasingly difficult, Fitzhugh said.

"To deal with complexity of the system (animal-based research), we clearly must use a systems approach," Fitzhugh said.

The steps involved in farming research are to analyze, design, evaluate and transfer technology, Fitzhugh said.

"The ultimate goal of farming research systems is to transfer technology," Fitzhugh said.

There are many problems involved in animal research in comparison to research of field crops.

"Animals are always up and running around. When you get ready to measure them, they're nowhere around," he said.

"Another problem is the length of the life cycle in animals. It takes about five months to do crop research, and it takes about seven or eight years to follow through the complete life cycle of a cow," he said.

Another problem with animal research is synchronization of breeding. The units used in this type of research are hard to determine, Fitzhugh said.

The cost of the inputs involved in livestock production is difficult to place a value on, Fitzhugh said.

"Animals have different outputs, and it's hard to measure them," he said. "It is difficult to do an experiment (animal related) that will stand up to statistical scrutiny."

"We need to put more effort in monitoring and reporting the results of our research," Fitzhugh said. "The farmer must be more involved. This is the heart of farming systems research."

One of the major reasons for developing higher quality animal research is to increase the wealth of the poor. This is done by raising animals which can utilize low-quality feed material into a high-quality products with a high resale value.

"We want to help people move out of subsistence agriculture to economic agriculture," Fitzhugh said.

U.S. bombed island hospital during invasion

By The Associated Press

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada — U.S. jets attacking an army fort on the first day of the invasion of Grenada bombed a nearby hospital, killing about 20 patients, hospital officials said Monday.

"I'm not saying it was deliberate. It was during the attack on Fort Frederick," said Anthony Roberts, an administrator at the hospital, Richmond Hill Institutions.

There were conflicting reports on the casualties, and no figures were given for the number of people wounded in the bombing. It occurred last Tuesday after nearly 2,000 U.S. Marines and soldiers had landed on the small Caribbean Island to remove a Marxist military government.

Roberts and the hospital manager, Clement Gabriel, said 15-20 patients were killed. A nurse, Agatha Harry, said she thought as many as 46 had been killed, but Roberts disputed that figure.

He said up to 20 patients also were missing, but some might have wandered away unharmed.

Navy Cmdr. Tony Hilton, who was at the site as workers dug through the rubble, said at least 12 men and women were killed and probably more bodies would be found.

In Washington, the Defense Department said an investigation disclosed that explosives from an A-7 Corsair fighter-bomber had hit the hospital while the plane was trying to knock out artillery and small-arms fire.

It said hospital personnel "had buried the dead and moved all other patients to a house" in St. George's before U.S. Marines arrived in the area the next day.

The statement said the Marines "did not know a hospital had been hit and, since they encountered no resistance from the hospital site, did not visit the site."

But the Pentagon denied a report in the Canadian news magazine Macleans that as many as 47 patients perished in the attack and said the casualties were "substantially lower." Publication of the Macleans account Sunday had prompted the U.S. investigation.

No gunfire was heard around the capital Monday as business returned to normal.

Board to serve as intermediary for students' complaints

By KATHY BARTELLI
Collegian Reporter

A review board designed to allow students to express their concerns before their peers has been developed by the Student Senate Academic Affairs Committee and will be ready to receive those concerns this week.

The Academic Affairs Review Board will hear concerns students have about instructors, said Kent Barnow, Academic Affairs Committee chairman and senior in business administration.

"The committee is not a place to report personality conflicts or personal opinions of the teaching effectiveness of instructors," Barnow said. "It is designed to allow students with a legitimate complaint about the fairness of the policies of instructors to air their concerns to their peers."

Unlike the Undergraduate Grievance Committee, the review board will not handle complaints about grades, Barnow said.

"Basically we would be handling problems that don't fall under the auspices of the Undergraduate Grievance Committee, and presently there is not a mechanism to air those concerns," he said.

Barnow stressed the fact that the board will have no authoritative power.

"Authoritatively speaking, we have no power, we're more like a sounding board," he said. "We can analyze the problem and, based on that analysis, decide on the best avenue to pursue, whether it be confronting the instructor, the department head or a dean."

"We have absolutely no power to remedy the situation on our own. We can only bring the problem to the surface and air the concerns to the proper individuals."

Even though these same avenues are open to students now, Barnow said many do not follow through with their complaints.

"A lot of students feel intimidated about confronting an instructor with their problems or about going to a department head because these people are viewed as authority figures," Barnow said. "This (the board) will give students the opportunity to come before their peers with the assurance that, if so desired, they can remain completely anonymous."

Drew Cleland, College of Arts and Sciences senator and senior in biology, suggested the formation of such a committee.

"Most students don't have the guts to go to the instructor or the department head or the dean when they have a problem," Cleland said. "I thought it would be better to have a committee of students and maybe some faculty members. That way the committee can pursue the matter."

The review board will be an extension of the Academic Affairs Committee, Barnow said, with the committee serving as the review board.

"We decided that the constitution of the student government allows us to expand our duties in this area without any legislation," Barnow said.

Students should be able to start filing complaints by Wednesday, he said.

To file complaints, students can go to Student Government Services and fill out a complaint form. Students will then be invited to the next regularly scheduled Academic Affairs Committee meeting to discuss the complaint. The review board will discuss the complaint and decide what measures to take to resolve the problem.

Although both Barnow and Cleland think the review board will be beneficial to students, they are not sure that students will take advantage of it.

"I don't even know if it will be used," Cleland said. "Most students will go to their instructors. But if the instructor is adamant, this will be something to fall back on. It gives the instructor and the student a way to settle things without any hard feelings."

"I think students don't feel the need or don't want to take the time to get the problem resolved, or they may feel intimidated," Barnow said. "The effectiveness of the committee depends on the students themselves. If they feel they have a justifiable concern or problem, they are certainly encouraged to come to our committee so we can pursue it further."

Campus

Speech marks German tricentennial

In commemoration of the German Tricentennial, Juergen Kalkbrenner, a West German foreign officer, will speak at 2:30 p.m. today in Room 219 Eisenhower Hall about "Germans and America: 300 Years of Immigration."

Kalkbrenner is currently a director for regional cultural planning for the German Foreign Office at Bonn. His presentation is sponsored by Phi Alpha Theta, a history honorary.

Kalkbrenner has his doctor of law degree from Kiel University and has done postgraduate work at the University of Washington at Seattle. He has worked with the German Foreign Service since 1955 and was cultural attache for the German Embassy in Washington from 1970 to 1977.

Minority honors program tonight

President Duane Acker and James Boyer, professor of curriculum and instruction, will be the speakers at the first Scholastic Achievement Recognition Program for minority students at 7:30 p.m. today in the Union Cottonwood Room.

The reception will honor approximately 120 undergraduate minority students who have maintained a high grade point average and first year and transfer students who are recipients of academic scholarships for the 1983-1984 academic year. It is sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs.

Film to honor Luther's anniversary

A film dedicated to the 500th anniversary of Martin Luther's birth, "Where Luther Walked," will be shown at noon today in Room 23 of the Union. Luther was a major figure in the Christian church whose action led to the Reformation, which occurred in the early 16th century in Europe. Following the film, Robert Linder, professor of history and an expert in the study of Reformation history, will lead a discussion.

The program is sponsored by the Union Program Council's Issues and Ideas Committee and Lutheran Campus Ministries.

Professor presents English seminar

Don Hedrick, associate professor of English, will present a Department of English seminar at 3:45 p.m. Wednesday in Room 124 Denison Hall. His topic will be "Cultural and Textual Subversion: Cannibalism, Polygamy and Shakespeare's 'The Winter's Tale.'" It will be illustrated with slides. It will include some of Hedrick's current work on Renaissance spectating, images of the New World and historical changes in the institution of marriage in Shakespeare's time.

Correction

In the story "Lecturer details ingredients of witches' brew" in Monday's Collegian, we incorrectly stated that hemlock is a natural source of LSD and that it may have been a factor in the Salem witch trials.

Hemlock is not a source of LSD. LSD is a synthetic substance and can be derived from ergot, a rye mold. The article should have stated that ergot may have been a factor in the trials.

The plants discussed in the article are poisonous and dangerous. A mild poisoning to one person may cause death in others.

In Friday's Collegian, Lynn Hickey, K-State women's basketball coach, was incorrectly quoted that the team did not have a good recruiting year this year. Actually, she said the team did have a good recruiting year.

Campus Bulletin

TODAY

ADULT AND OCCUPATIONAL GRADUATE CLUB meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

EDUCATION COUNCIL meets at 6:15 p.m. in the Blumert Hall honors seminar room.

AG COMMUNICATORS OF TOMORROW meet at 6:30 p.m. in Kedzie 218.

PHILOSOPHY CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Eisenhower 212. Dave Green will present a slide show on his trip to Russia. All students are welcome.

NATURAL RESOURCE MANAGEMENT meets at 7 p.m. in Call Hall 228. Royal Purple pictures will be taken at 7:15 p.m. in Calvin Hall.

INSTITUTE OF INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERS meets at 7 p.m. in Durland 173.

SIERRA CLUB meets at 7:15 at 1511 University Drive.

STUDENT DIETETIC ASSOCIATION meets at 7:15 p.m. in Union 105.

BLOCK AND BRIDLE meets at 7:30 p.m. in Weber 107. Officers meet at 7 p.m. Yearbook ads are due.

PRE-LAW CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Shellenberger 301.

FELLOWSHIP OF CHRISTIAN ATHLETES meets at 8:30 p.m. in Danforth Chapel.

LITTLE SISTERS OF THE UNICORN meet at 9 p.m. at the Theta Xi house.

LITTLE SISTERS OF THE STAR AND LAMP meet at 9:30 p.m. at the Pi Kappa Phi house. Executive officers meet at 9 p.m.

PHI ALPHA THETA meets at 2:30 p.m. in Eisenhower 219. Dr. Juergen Kalkbrenner will speak on German immigration to America.

COALITION FOR HUMAN RIGHTS meets at 4:30 p.m. in Union 207.

SPURS meet at 9 p.m. in Union 207.

BUSINESS COUNCIL meets at 4:30 p.m. in Union 203.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 213 for initiation. Executives meet at 6:45 p.m.

BIOFEEDBACK OPEN HOUSE is sponsored by the Counseling Center from 4:30 to 6 p.m. in Holton Hall.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA meets at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Big Eight Room.

DARK HORSE

TAVERN

TUESDAY
2 fers

7-10

619 N. Manhattan

OPEN HOUSE AGAIN?

But, it's not until next year.
True, but we need help
to get it organized.

Volunteer for Parade & Opening
Ceremonies.

Sign up at Anderson 104.
Don't get Caught—Get Involved!

GET FRAMED!

Have your picture taken
for Royal Purple

Today:

Moore Hall 8:30-5:30

Tomorrow:

Putnam Hall 8:30-3:30
Smith 3:45-5:30

Union 209

539-5229

Bring your stamped fee card.

BUD BECKLEY

a former barber back in business

at AGGIE HAIRPORT

776-7377

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity

Rep.—TOM SEELE

- Supplemental Retirement Annuities
- Investment Options
- Free Transfer Privileges
- State Deferred Compensation
- Life Insurance

1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 613/276-7095

Male
Burlesque
Tuesday
7:30-9:30
Ladies
Only
Downunder Club

515 Richards
(Under Wildcat Lanes)

For reservations
call 539-0230

Dr. Jorgen
Kalkbrenner of the German Foreign Office will speak on

- Germans to America
- 300 years of immigration
- Tuesday, Nov. 1
- EH 219
- at 2:30 p.m.

Welcome To...

2 FER
TUES!

• 2 Fer
Draws &
Pitchers
Every
Tuesday
7-10:00

Wednesday Is
Ladies Nite!

SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

Q. What's all the fuss about?

A. National Shakespeare Company's
Much Ado About Nothing
Monday, Nov. 7, 8 p.m.

Tickets Available at McCain Box Office,
M-F noon to 5 p.m., 532-6428

The men of
Beta Sigma Psi
would like to congratulate their newly tapped Little Sisters of the Golden Rose

Bridget Benton
Jamie McWilliams
Lana Hock
Karen Berndt
Cathy Nordus
Connie Link
Susie Buchman
Dana Bradley
Diana Curtis
Michelle Engemann
Denise LaSpaluto

Susan Lawrence
Shannon Archer
Mary Lyn Roberts
Kathy Feldkamp
Julie Sullens
Laurie Deutsch
Lisa McEvoy
Sharon Campbell
Tracy Weckman
Renee Beaudoin
Dawn Sloan

500th Luther Anniversary

Film Series

"Where Luther Walked"

Today, 12:00-Noon Union, Rm. 213

Recent film narrated by Roland Bainton, Luther historian. Places, events and implications of the Reformer.

Discussant: Dr. Robert Linder, Luther Scholar, KSU, History Department.

Sponsored by UPC and Lutheran Campus Ministry

"BON HOEFFER"

Wednesday, November 2, 7:00 p.m.

Little Theater Union

The Holocaust & The Churches Response filmed in Germany. Discussant: Dr. Merlin Gustafson, KSU Political Science

"Nambia—A Cry For Freedom"

Thurs., Nov. 3, 7:00 p.m.

Little Theater Union

Recent film practices depicting apartheid practices in South African and the churches involvement.

Discussant: Elias Ncubi, KSU Student, Zimbabwe, Africa, Sifatiele Machacha, Botswana, Africa.

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University, daily except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. Newsroom phone number is 532-6556, advertising 532-6560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

Editor..... Paul Hanson
Managing Editor..... Sandy Lang
Photography Editor..... Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager..... John McGrath

Carlin names former Docking aide as Secretary of Administration

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Marvin A. "Mike" Harder, an administrative assistant to former Gov. Robert Docking on education, on Monday was named Secretary of Administration replacing Patrick J. Hurley.

Harder, 62, a political science professor at the University of Kansas, was named by Gov. John Carlin to Hurley's post at an afternoon news conference.

"Mike has distinguished himself as one of the most knowledgeable persons in Kansas on the subject of state government and public administration," Carlin said in explaining his choice. "He brings with him a wealth of experience ranging from direct participation in government to the observation of the workings of government from the outside."

"I am pleased to have Mike Harder join the Carlin administration, bringing his many talents back into service for the people of Kansas."

Harder has taught political science at the University of Kansas and at its Capitol Complex Center in Topeka since 1974. Prior to that, he was a political science professor at Wichita State University.

Harder was appointed an assistant in education to Docking in December 1967 and served during the legislative sessions in 1968-72. In 1971, Docking named Harder his special assistant for policy review and coordination and was responsible for formulating the governor's budget and legislative program.

Harder, who is the nephew of state Sen. Joseph Harder, R-Moundridge, also served as Democratic State Party chairman 1954-55 and was a delegate to the Democratic National Conventions in 1956 and 1964.

"The job of Secretary of Administration is one of the most important jobs in Kansas government," Carlin said. "The secretary has a wide range of responsibilities for the management and operation of state government. It requires a person of the highest intellect and moral caliber. Pat Hurley certainly had those qualities and I believe the person I have selected to succeed him possesses them as well."

Hurley, 42, is resigning his post to become a lobbyist for the Kansas Association for Economic Growth — a group of large Kansas banks which want the Kansas Legislature to overhaul the state's banking system.

A senior cabinet member and top adviser to the Democratic governor for the past five years, Hurley is the second key member of Carlin's staff to decide to leave this month.

Two weeks ago, Chief of Staff William O. "Bill" Hoch announced he was leaving to join a private advertising agency in Kansas City, Mo. Hoch's wife Ellen, who is Carlin's scheduling secretary and has worked for Carlin since he was speaker of the Kansas House, also resigned.

"I'm very honored and pleased the governor has asked me to assume the responsibilities of secretary of the Department of Administration," Harder told reporters. "I had at least one sleepless night thinking of all the responsibilities of the secretary of administration."

"He fills that role today because of his experience," Carlin said. "That's one of his real pluses. He brings experience and can make an immediate contribution. As an adviser, he does not need a tune-up."

Harder assumes his position Nov. 15, the same day Hurley's resignation takes effect.

Big Selections
of
USED ALBUMS
&
NEW RELEASES at $6.60
UNCLE DOG RECORDS
WE PAY CASH FOR USED ALBUMS
LOCATED ON 3RD ST. ACROSS FROM
THE DAIRY QUEEN — IN MANHATTAN
AUTO SOUND

317 Houston
539-8601

HAIRCUTS
THESE ARE OUR EVERYDAY LOW PRICES

GALS 8.50
GUYS 6.50

Includes shampoo, cut and blow-dry

HURRY!
HURRY!
HURRY!

FRIDAY is the
LAST DAY to get your
Royal Purple picture taken.

Step right up to
UNION 209. Take your stamped fee card.
Hours are 8:30-12:30
and 1:30-5:30

539-5229

Deputies raid dogfight sanctuary; arrest wealthy, armed spectators

By The Associated Press

ROBBINSVILLE, N.C. — Sheriff's deputies raided a dogfight pit disguised as a country church in the Smoky Mountains and arrested more than 90 people, including one carrying $100,000 in cash.

About 150 spectators stampeded into the rugged countryside of rural Graham County — leaving behind guns, brass knuckles, clubs, money, alcohol and drugs — as officers from several surrounding counties closed the trap early Sunday, authorities said.

"Everybody had plenty of money," said Sheriff A.J. Peterson, who was elected to the office just 10 months ago. "One guy had $100,000 in a bag...and several people had $16,000 to 18,000."

One boy, among 15 children under the age of 16 at the fight, was treated at a hospital after he was trampled by spectators trying to escape. A nail pierced his hand.

The barn, disguised as the "Brush Arbor Revival" house, hid a carpeted 16-by-16 foot ring where the dogs fought, Peterson said. The floor and sides of the pit were smeared with fresh blood and saliva. The plywood sides were stained a dark gray by what spectators said was blood from past fights.

Several dog skeletons were found in the wooded area near the old wooden building.

The building was equipped with a public address system, food and a liquor bar, Peterson said. Near the building was a converted school bus which served as a hospital for the fighting dogs.

Spectators said they paid $20 each — wives and children were admitted free — to watch the dogs, mostly pit bulldogs bred to try to kill each other.

They said gambling on the outcome sometimes involved "thousands of dollars."

The dogs were matched according to their sex and weight, spectators said. Deputies confiscated several engraved trophies intended for winning dog owners.

Peterson said George Long, a losing candidate for sheriff in 1982 and Leonard Colvin of Robbinsville were charged with promoting dog fights after the raid late Saturday and early Sunday.

Others were charged with aiding and abetting dog fights. Peterson said he hoped to arrest about 10 more people connected to the fights. All suspected of being spectators or participants were charged with aiding and abetting dogfighting and were released under $250 cash bonds, Peterson said.

About 60 of those arrested were from North Carolina.

McCall's
313 Payntz DOWNTOWN MANHATTAN

fanfares
...says it all

When you buy the most versatile, most fashionable style of the season... choose from a most wide selection of colors and pay a most affordable price for footwear you'll wear everywhere well... what's stopping you?

Black, Wine, Grey, Navy, Taupe

McCall's Shoes
A MANHATTAN TRADITION
SINCE 1961

Fanfares pumps are beautiful at their basic best, and even more eye-stopping when you decorate with a bow.

CLIP-ON BOWS
see our selection

VISA*MASTERCARD

BOOK SALE

NOW IN PROGRESS!

You are the one who can cash in on the savings of this over-stock clearance sale. Selected hardback and paperback books (new and used) have been priced at up to

50% OFF

to make room for our new holiday season stock. Selection includes GENERAL READING, bestsellers, fiction, non-fiction, and others. Come in and see for yourself!

Selections are limited. Sale ends Nov. 13.

Varney's
BOOK STORE
IN AGGIEVILLE

9-9
MON.-SAT.

12-5
SUN.

Yes, we've got more than textbooks!

DARK HORSE

TAVERN
Thursday
is Coors
Nuts
&
Bolts
Night
5 Grand Prizes plus
Coors give aways all night
619 N. Manhattan

Meeting Tuesday 8 p.m.
Union 206
Speaker: Jack Brier
(Kansas Secretary of State)
Wear buttons today
and tonight.
Sponsored by College Republicans

TUESDAY ALL DAY
IS BURGER DAY
TREAT THE DORM
Go for it
BRING A GANG—
37¢ each
Regular Hamburgers
Cheese Xtr
SAVE MONEY—LIKE OLD TIMES—
Frosty Mug of Beer—

FAST DRIVE-THRU
BRANDING IRON—421-N-3RD

Taking away Craft's award

Justice was done Monday when a federal judge threw out the $500,000 award given to Christine Craft in her sex discrimination suit. The judge ruled that Craft was not discriminated against because of her sex, but because of "her affinity for the beach life and her apparent indifference to matters of appearance."

While many people would consider such a decision a step back in the battle against sex discrimination, we believe it was the right move. The facts of the case were not given enough thought. The people were blinded to the facts by the cry of sex discrimination.

One point people must realize is that the "TV journalist," position Craft was hired for does not qualify her as a real journalist. An anchorman is an actor, hired to stand before a camera, well-dressed and well-groomed and read the headlines in a way that people can understand. When an actor or actress does not fit into a role, the role is given to someone else.

Don't blame the media for this attitude; blame the public. The media are molded by public demand. When we turn on the evening news, we want a fresh, cheerful, and yes, pretty face greeting us with news of the day. Most people would not settle for anything else.

The cry of sexism is all too prevalent in this country. Things not meant to be at all sexist are often labeled as such. What it boils down to is that when one is intently looking for something to attribute to sexism, it can probably be found.

The issue of sexism is not an imagined problem. Sexism does abound in America and does need to be dealt with. But it will never be solved by juries awarding $500,000 decisions to actresses who refuse to fill the role they were employed for.

Sexism is an attitude, both on the part of men and women. We can pass laws against sexism, but it is impossible to legislate attitude. Until some stop practicing it and others stop throwing false accusations, the problem will continue to plague our country.

The solution to the problem will not be found quickly. A lasting solution takes time to work out. We naturally abhor the practice of sexism, but, since we realize there are real differences between men and women, we are also against irrational accusations and proposed quick solutions to the problem.

Concern among the youth

The youth of America have something to say to those members of the older generation who say the nation is in trouble because of apathy among the young people. The message is this. Many of us do care.

The message came across loud and clear last week after the terrorist attack on the Marines in Beirut. The number of young men going to Marine recruiting centers across the country increased dramatically. The response by the high school- and college-aged generation was the same as that of youth in the past, whenever Americans abroad were threatened and our way of life was being questioned.

The concern is not isolated to the area of military might and patriotism. A local example is the bloodmobile that was on campus last week.

Enrollment at K-State is down this semester over last semester. Even so, the amount of blood given by K-State students surpassed the goal by 345 pints, or nearly 25 percent.

These responses force us to question whether youths today are more apathetic than the youth of yesterday, or whether the youth of yesterday have merely forgotten how they responded to the issues when they were young.

The issues have not changed that much. The United States is still involved in conflicts that are questionable in the eyes of many citizens. Moral issues are still prevalent and both sides still heatedly argue for and against their rights; the arguments are given different labels but are based on the same principles.

The shape of the nation has not changed, and neither have the basic thoughts and ideas of the youth. If the United States is in worse shape now than in the past generations, let's try to find solutions, not culprits.

Paul Hanson, Editor Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

Press coverage of Grenada

Are Americans getting the true picture about what is happening in Grenada?

One has to wonder. The American government isn't allowing reporters into Grenada while the military is taking over the country.

I know what you're thinking. You're probably thinking that I'm going to berate the government about First Amendment rights and the right for a reporter to put himself in danger just to get a story.

Well, that's part of it. The reports from Grenada have been censored and released by the Defense Department. The only television news footage shown by the networks has also been shot, censored and cleared by the military censors.

So what's wrong with that, you might ask. It allows reports to be brought back from the front without placing any American civilians in danger.

I disagree. All this censorship is doing is presenting a one-sided report to America — the military's version, that is.

Where are the reports of our military being brought under attack? Where are the reports on American casualties as they happen on the battlefield? Yes, we get to see all the ammunition the military has captured and all of the great things the military is doing over there, but what about its problems?

Could it be that the military is trying to prevent the media from bringing the fighting into Americans' homes, as the media did in Vietnam?

Oops, there it is again. The "Vietnam syndrome." I told myself I'd keep away from that phrase. It seems to be a catch-all phrase for anyone who criticizes the military for any type of action. It has been used so often, the phrase is almost a cliché.

But it fits.

I can remember watching the Vietnam War while I was in grade school. It was easy — just turn on the evening news and it was there, in living color, in the house. The sounds of gunfire, the sight of men bleeding from their wounds, the sight of civilians running away from burning villages — all these things I remember seeing on the evening news.

Had the government censors been allowed to clip this news footage, these scenes would never have been reported. What I would have seen probably would have been scenes of American soldiers standing around captured caches of enemy ammunition and lots of prisoners the American soldiers had captured. It would make one wonder if there really was a war going on.

In World War II, (as my father would say, "the one in all the papers"), reporters were right on the front line with the infantry. Some of the best examples of reporting I've read were stories sent back from correspondents who were covering World War II from the trenches. You can't cover a war from a desk in New York and expect to have the same insight, the same meaning, as a story from the front has.

There is a need for some censorship when dealing with covering a war. If I was in the military, I wouldn't want a reporter telling where we would strike next, or where we are retreating to. That's pretty obvious. Some types of security are needed in order to protect some information so the enemy doesn't know your every move. This could be done now, in Grenada, as it apparently was done in World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

We learned all about the situation in Beirut after American forces had entered the city. We learned about the terrible fighting among the different Lebanese factions and between the Christians and Moslems. We learned about battles and attacks as well as how the Lebanese are coping with living in a no-win situation. How did we learn all about this? Because uncensored reports were allowed to come out of Beirut.

The Israeli censors carefully allowed only a glimpse of Beirut under attack. We saw the "good" Israeli forces battling the "evil" Palestine Liberation Organization forces. American reporters were allowed to cover the fighting, provided they submitted their reports for censorship. What came out of this process was a sterile report of the action.

Now comes Grenada. I'm not saying the same things will happen in Grenada as happened in Beirut. But don't we, the American public, deserve the right to the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth? While it is the military which protects America and its allies, it is the American public which is paying for the military's adventures. The payments come in human lives, as well as money and equipment. Equipment can be replaced or rebuilt; humans can't be replaced when they die.

If President Reagan expects Americans to support his action in Grenada, then he must also be willing for the press — the government's watchdog — to be allowed to report the action in Grenada. The ultimate loser in this battle of reporting rights is the American public. An informed public can support its government if it knows the truth. An uninformed public will question the government's moves — regardless of whether the moves were right or wrong — because the public wasn't allowed to become informed.

This is why reporters should be allowed in Grenada now, not after the battles are over. The public deserves the right to be informed by an independent press, not by government censors.

Russia and the 1984 Olympics

WASHINGTON —If the law school payoff is a myth, it still favors men over women. While the average business and industrial lawyer's salary is a handsome $60,808, the average female attorney's wage is about half that, $33,000, according to a recent study by Abbott, Langer and Associates.

The firm also found that more women than men were attracted to law because of the "adversarial nature" of the work; women lawyers were also less likely than men to avoid controversy.

mitted to colleagues that he won't withdraw until January 1984, when Uncle Sam hands out "matching funds" for nearly $600,000 which the Coloradoan has raised himself. Whether he needs to wait until then, however, is another matter; the Federal Election Commission has no rule requiring a candidate to stay in until the matching funds are handed out.

Vice President Bush followed up a three-day visit to Jamaica last week with little more than 12 hours in San Juan, P.R., the site of a major speech. Aides say the brevity of the stop-over stemmed from a reluctance to fan domestic tensions over the statehood issue.

Of the 10.4 million Americans looking for work in September, only 3.4 million, or 32.8 percent, collected unemployment compensation, according to a recent report by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities in Washington. The report said September's percentage was the lowest in the 48-year history of the nation's jobless aid program.

David Stockman's Office of Management and Budget has revised a plan prohibiting federally-funded nonprofit organizations from engaging in political activity. OMB's new rules would, among other things, require foundation or association employees who spend more than 25 percent of their time lobbying to keep detailed records of their activities.

Though the OMB rules grew out of a desire by conservatives to "defund the left," they have angered a wide range of federally-contracted groups.

A big question mark for Los Angeles Olympic planners is the disposition of Soviet athletes. It already seems likely that politics could keep the Soviet team in Moscow next summer.

Several conservative California assemblymen have threatened to pull a Mario Cuomo and keep the Soviet athletes from landing in Los Angeles. Meanwhile, it's possible that the Soviets, still reeling from the Korean Air Lines fiasco, could decline to compete, citing cold war politics.

But if the Soviets don't show, their reason could have more to do with athletics than politics. Track and field experts who've spoken with their Eastern bloc counterparts speculate that the Soviets may default for fear of losing badly in Los Angeles.

During the world track championships in Helsinki last August, the Russians captured only six of an expected 10 gold medals. The poor showing reportedly led Soviet coaches to ship the team home immediately, canceling coveted leisure time in Finland.

Meanwhile, Western coaches say the Soviets may win no more than five or six of 41 track and field events (compared with 16 gold medals in 1980). The Soviets are strong in the pole vault, men's and women's high jump, men's 1600-meter relay and men's hammer throw. But the U.S.S.R. has no first-rate distance runners.

"The Russians aren't going to come to Los Angeles (to) be devastated by the Americans," a U.S. coach told us. "If their athletes don't perform well at a few indoor meets in Europe this winter, you can scratch them from the Summer Games."

Of course, if the Russians stay home, Pravda will cite something like "U.S. Imperialism." But everyone will know better.

Footnote: President Reagan's political lieutenants intend to milk the Summer Games for all they're worth, particularly if the Soviets make the trip. They say that an impressive U.S. Olympic victory in Los Angeles, coming a week before the Republican National Convention in Dallas, could lend an impression that America under Reagan is a winning combination.

With a negligible ranking in voter surveys and a debt of more than $700,000, Sen. Gary Hart remains in the race for 1984's Democratic presidential nomination. Hubris isn't the only reason. Hart has ad-

Letters Policy

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author and should not exceed 300 words. The author's major, classification or other identification and a telephone number where the author can be reached during business hours must be included. The Collegian retains the right to edit letters for style.

SOME GUY WANTS TO KNOW IF YOU'VE HEARD ABOUT A NEW ANTI-HERPES VACCINE THAT WORKS ON MICE?

Letters

Errors in Friday's Philippine story

Editor,

On Thursday, Oct. 27, Linda Richter, associate professor of political science, gave an organized, accurate and objective talk about U.S. involvement in the Philippines. I thought the next day's report in the Collegian was unfair to the speaker. Here are some examples of errors in the article:

1. Martial law in the Philippines was declared by President Marcos in 1972, not in 1973.
2. The United States is not left with just one option if it hopes to keep Clark Air Force Base and Subic

Naval Base. While Richter said that getting along with Marcos is one alternative, she also mentioned that other options are open to the U.S., such as keeping the bases regardless of what is happening in the Philippines, or moving the military bases to the Mariana Islands or Guam.

3. Reagan has not yet visited the Philippines as a president. However, he did go to the country with Mrs. Reagan when he was still the governor of California.
4. Three spellings of the name of the country can be found in the article — Philippines, Phillipines, and Philippines. The first spelling is the correct one.

5. People of the Philippines are called Filipinos, not Phillipines. (Although the Philippines is a small country, I don't think one million land areas the size of the country would fit in the United States.)

Is it not the responsibility of Collegian reporters and editors to give their thousands of readers accurate and well-edited news articles?

Evangelina Novero
Graduate in family and child development

Read the fine print in advertisements

Editor,

This is a warning to the unsuspecting college students who may be lured into Aggieville by coupons with misleading information. We, the writers of this letter, have had two occasions to question the methods used by two establishments in Aggieville to get consumers into their bars.

The first occasion was with a well-established bar that, nevertheless, decided to try to fool the consumer. We received from the bar a coupon which had clearly imprinted on the coupon "Free Pitcher of Beer."

Consequently, the two of us decided to cash in on this alleged pitcher. To our dismay we were rudely informed that the coupon was only for 75 cents off. Why then did they say "Free Pitcher" when pitchers of beer cost $2.85? Even if this coupon was only valid if it was stamped by something or someone, why was that not on the coupon?

The next occasion occurred when we received "Beer Bucks." An unsuspecting consumer may have entered the bar trying to cash in on this "buck." Look closely and the coupon reveals that the "buck" is good on "Oct. 23, 1983 Only." Look on a calendar and a quick glance will tell you that this is on a Sunday. Have the laws changed?

In conclusion, we urge the beer-buying public to beware of the tactics of some Aggieville bars.

Linda Hanefeld
Sophomore in fashion marketing and one other

Briefly

By the Associated Press

Hundreds honor Topeka columnist

TOPEKA — Several hundred friends and loyal readers paid tribute Monday to Zula Bennington "Peggy" Greene, who observed her 50th anniversary as a columnist for the Topeka Capital-Journal. Greene, who declines to make public her age, began work for the Topeka Daily Capital, which three years ago was merged with the Topeka State Journal, on Oct. 31, 1933.

Since then, she has written her column six days a week every week of the year, except for vacation time, churning out an estimated 15,000 columns over that span.

She is believed to have written a column continuously for one publication longer than anyone, perhaps in the world, and will continue. She says she has no intention of retiring.

An estimated 500 people attended a reception at a downtown Topeka hotel staged in Greene's honor by the Capital-Journal.

Judge refuses to bar rights firings

WASHINGTON — A federal judge refused to issue a temporary court order Monday barring the firing of three members of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

U.S. District Judge Norma H. Johnson said she was not persuaded that the fired members had demonstrated that they would suffer irreparable harm between now and Nov. 7 — the date the judge has set for argument on an injunction against the president.

The request for the temporary order was made by Mary Frances Berry and Blandina Ramirez, dismissed by President Reagan last week in his fight with Congress to get his own new nominations confirmed.

Actor stops show after protests

LONDON — The prominent French actor and mime Jean-Louis Barrault ended a French-language solo performance 20 minutes early when protests from the uncomprehending audience made it impossible for him to go on.

Barrault, 73, was presenting his one-man show "Le Langage du Corps," which means "The Language of the Body," before an almost full house Sunday in the 1,100-seat Barbican Theatre.

But many in the audience were angered that they had paid up to $14.25 a ticket to see a lecture in French demonstrating body control and techniques of acting. The brochure had promised an evening of "Barrault's gift for pantomime," never mentioning that the mime would be accompanied by a lengthy commentary in French.

One-third of the way through the performance, a man cried out from the upper circle: "I am very angry. I cannot understand this, and I want to understand."

Calls of "Shut up!" came from others in the audience, and Barrault immediately left the stage, but returned several minutes later to perform some brief mime sequences. He then ended the show, 20 minutes before scheduled.

Station raises funds for family

INDIANAPOLIS — If TLC is just what every baby needs, WTLC may be just what the parents of quintuplets need.

A weekend fund-raiser on WTLC radio for the family of the 3-month-old Gaither quintuplets raised $134,500 in pledges and $57,000 in cash, station officials said.

The quints were born Aug. 3 to Suzanne and Sidney Gaither of Indianapolis, who also have a son, Ryan, 3. Gaither, 33, is an elevator service representative.

TLC — tender loving care — for quintuplets isn't cheap. Social workers have predicted the cost of raising the quints could hit $40,000 a year for the first two years.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS	37 Greek physician	DOWN	16 — the line (conform)
1 Foray	38 Tableware	1 Fictional dog hero	20 Pistachio, for one
5 Insult	40 Elbe	2 Malt drink	21 Soviet news agency
9 Greek letter	42 Simpleton	3 Call — day	22 Brothers in baseball
12 Kind of saxophone	43 Domineering	4 Twin	23 Liberal
13 Prong	48 Teutonic sky-god	5 Mix	24 Wild plum
14 Fall behind	49 Large lake	6 Prison sentence	26 Gasp
15 "Oh, You — Doll"	50 Ireland	7 Babylonian god	27 Circle segment
17 WWII area	51 House wing	8 Large-billed bird	28 Not any
18 Unwelcome party guest	52 Shopping reminder	9 Abundant	29 Black
19 Word with circle or tube	53 English sand hill	10 Gratify	31 Chewy candy
21 Restaurant feature		11 Musical prince	34 Title for Juan or Quixote
24 Rabbit's tail			35 Jolted
25 Plant of the lily family			37 Command to Silver
26 One of the hills of Rome			38 Dove's home
30 Old French coin			39 Storm surprise
31 Actress Leslie			40 Egyptian goddess
32 Watch pocket			41 Let it stand
33 Indian ceremony			44 Mr. Onassis
35 " — and the Paycock"			45 Exclamation
36 Legal wrong			46 Ode subject
			47 Marvin or Meriwether

Avg. solution time: 24 minutes.

ASPS ALP PARA SPATULAS OMAR SANITARY TUNE TAR CLERKS HATCH SHIN AMAH POINTER SOL TRUCE TOR SCHOOLS TRUE OUTS GREET POTATO SEE AVER CLEANSER LEND OVERDONE ENDS LIP SWAP

11-1

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP

11-1

RDW GZ HMP VM XNA PNIR UINBEH:

"ZMD ADIB RMMG UBVWXNEP."

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — THE MOST FAMOUS CIRCUS STAR TURNS FIGHTER; IS A RING MASTER.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals O.

Program cuts heat bills, winter chills

By MATT MCMILLEN
Collegian Reporter

For low-income area residents, the arrival of winter means the tremendous burden of trying to cope with high energy costs. But with the help of University for Man and Humane Dimensional Inc., a non-profit organization, the burden for many could be lightened.

The program, begun in September 1982, provides insulation, caulking, window and door weatherstripping, storm windows and other energy-saving materials. It also provides information about how residents can weatherize their own homes by low- or no-cost methods.

The program is available and free to all low-income home owners or renters in a five-county region, including Riley, Geary, Wabaunsee, Morris and Dickinson counties. Priority is given to handicapped and elderly citizens.

"We hope to do about 350 houses in the next year," said Alan Edgar, administrative director of the weatherization program. "Residents' eligibility is based on their income and the number of occupants in the home."

"Last year about 10 percent of the applications we received did not qualify," he said.

The weatherization of homes is completed by a 10-man crew based in Junction City.

Edgar said the crew works in two different shifts, with one group doing insulation work and the other group doing infiltration work, such as caulking.

"Our crews started out with some people on welfare and some high-school dropouts. They are now all highly qualified," Edgar said.

"This program is also job-producing," Edgar added, "and that's important."

Edgar said the crews perform a complete and efficient routine when weatherizing a house.

"After people apply, we determine their eligibility," Edgar said. "If they qualify, we then send out a pre-inspector. He makes up a work report. The crews then install everything which is indicated on the report."

"A post inspector makes sure that everything on the work report was done correctly," Edgar said. "We make sure that the crew's interaction with the residents was good. When the work is completed, the residents sign a form confirming it."

Edgar said he has received "good reports from most of the residents."

The funding for the weatherization program is provided for primarily by the federal level of the Department of Energy and the low-income energy assistance program from the Kansas State Economic Opportunity Office.

"The amount that we are allotted varies from year to year," Edgar said. "The total from June of 1982 to June of 1983 was somewhere around $300,000."

Edgar said part of the money provided for weatherization was money returned to the state because of the overcharge of oil companies.

"Since we cover a five-county area, we get five percent of the state's money allotted for weatherization," Edgar said.

The weatherization crews try to complete two houses a day in order to keep up with their quotas and do most of the work in the spring and fall.

Commissioners to discuss beer consumption code

By The Collegian Staff

A request for the interpretation of Manhattan's code pertaining to consumption of cereal malt beverages in the vicinity of a school will be heard today at the City Commission meeting. The commission will meet at 7 p.m. in the City Commission room.

The code prohibits sale of cereal malt beverages for consumption on the premises within 200 feet of a city or parochial school. A cereal malt beverage license has been requested by a business in the First Center, on Claflin Road and Denison Avenue.

The city is to review the code and determine whether an education center operated by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints should qualify as a school under the ordinance. The facility is located within 200 feet of the establishment seeking the license.

The city will also hear the second reading of an ordinance for the licensing of precious metal dealers and pawn brokers in Manhattan. The ordinance calls for a $25 license fee for precious metal dealers, a $100 license fee for pawn brokers and a $100 fee for a combination license.

comprehensive health associates

- free pregnancy tests
- outpatient abortion services
- alternatives counseling
- referrals
- gynecology
- contraception

1-435 & Roe Overland Park 642-3100

Tuesday is
Ladies Nite
1 free drink
&
$1 bar drinks
(all night, ladies!)
at
COWBOY PALACE
Where it don't make
no difference
209 Poyntz 539-9828
4:00pm to 3:00am

$7.95
9-9 M.-Sat. 12-5 Sun.
Available at
Varney's
BOOK STORE
in Aggieville

CLIP THIS COUPON
CHEESEBURGER
with a BASKET
of STEAK FRIES $1.99
Expires 11/5/83
608 N. 12th LOCATED IN AGGIEVILLE 539-9906

HEAR YE! HEAR YE!

APPLICATIONS
for
Spring Collegian
Editor
& Advertising
Manager

Due in Kedzie 103 by 4 p.m.
Wednesday, Nov. 9
APPLY NOW!

AT PIÑATA:
LUNCH WITH US!
99¢ to $1.80
Choose from 6 featured "Special" Specials
Changed Daily Mon.-Fri. 11-2
You Won't Pay Over $1.80!
(Drinks not included)

Piñata.

Open Mon.-Sat. 11-11, Sun. 11-10 539-3166
Bluemont and North Manhattan

Gibson
Guitars
Now in Stock

20% off
all guitars
& a free case

20% off
drums

35% off
banjos,
mandolins,
guild guitars

Hayes House
of Music
523 N. Washington
238-1014

LONG
NECK
NITE

TUESDAYS!

• All Long
Necks
Only 75¢!
(7 p.m.-closing)

ROCKIN' K BAR

MOUNTAIN OYSTER FRY THURS.

Alpha Chi

BUD LIGHT

A Special Congratulations to the 1983 Playboys!

1st — Tom Griffith
Sigma Phi Epsilon

2nd — Mike McCluskey
Pi Kappa Alpha

3rd — Brad Everett
Phi Delta Theta

Alpha Chi Omega would like to thank the following for making the Greek Playboy Contest a success:
Proceeds of $1100.68 will go to Cystic Fibrosis.

Bud Light	Farmhouse
Dennis Cook	Kappa Sigma
Steve Payne	Lambda Chi Alpha
Kelly Deines	Phi Delta Theta
Tom Hawk Photography	Fiji
Dave Teeter	Phi Kappa Tau
K-State Union	Phi Kappa Theta
KSU Students	Pi Kappa Alpha
Acacia	Pi Kappa Phi
Alpha Gamma Rho	Sigma Alpha Epsilon
Alpha Kappa Lambda	Sigma Chi
Alpha Tau Omega	Sigma Nu
Beta Sigma Psi	Sigma Phi Epsilon
Delta Sigma Phi	Tau Kappa Epsilon
Delta Tau Delta	Triangle
Delta Upsilon

Big Eight dubs Weber Player of the Week

By KEVIN DALE
Staff Writer

He's been waiting for three years. Playing back-up, fighting off injuries and waiting.

He got his chance, and it was worth the wait.

Junior quarterback Stan Weber got his first start against the No. 1-ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers and, for his efforts, he was named the Big Eight Conference's offensive player of the week.

"I'm pretty surprised," Weber said. "It's a real team honor. The team did a great job coming off the ball. They may use my name but it is a team award."

Jim Dickey, Wildcat head coach, was pleased that one of his players has been recognized.

"What is really great is that they recognized Stan in a losing effort," he said. "He had a great game and it's nice to know people are intelligent enough to realize that fact."

Weber won the award over Missouri's quarterback Marlon Adler in a split vote. Adler scored four touchdowns against Iowa State University.

Although Weber, a converted defensive back, does not really like being called a running quarterback, run is just what he did — over, through or around on of the Big Eight's best rushing defenses.

Weber led all K-State rushers with 113 yards on 24 carries and he also scored the Wildcat's first touchdown in the fourth quarter on a 1-yard keeper around right end. He even showed the team he could throw the ball if the game plan called for it.

Weber completed 12 of 27 passes for 142 yards and one touchdown. He was intercepted three times, however, with one of those being returned 31 yards for a touchdown.

The first two interceptions came in the first half when he had yet to build his confidence.

"It took me the whole first half to get comfortable," he said. "I felt better after I scored my first touchdown. I don't think the fact that we were playing Nebraska made the difference — it was just my first start. I would have been the same against anybody."

Weber led a ball-control offense that held onto the ball for more than 40 minutes as compared with 19 minutes for Nebraska. Although the offense controlled the ball all afternoon, they had trouble putting any points on the board until the fourth quarter. In that quarter, the Wildcats scored three times on drives of 83, 60 and 63 yards.

"They really knocked us off the ball, which concerned us," Tom Osborne, Nebraska head coach said. "They hurt us with the off-tackle plays. For some reason, we were soft at that spot."

Weber had been stringing the Husker defense out all afternoon with option play after option play.

"I told Stan he would start on Tuesday," Dickey said after the game. "He's always been a slick option quarterback and he showed it today. It would be real satisfying if we can continue it next week. I was very pleased with Stan's performance. He looked very good and was able to keep the ball on the ground. I was surprised he ran that well, but we were always counting on his leadership."

"The quarterback change helped," Jim Northcutt, Wildcat center said. "Stan played a heckuva game against Nebraska. When someone does well it spreads to the other players too."

"I was satisfied with some things and not satisfied with others," Weber said. "I'm not satisfied when we get inside the 20-yard line and then don't score. I can think of a couple of times when we got close and then couldn't get the points. And then there was the interception for the touchdown."

"Some people were saying I would get injured or my knee wouldn't hold up. I needed to have a good game to prove that I have the coordination to play. This game wasn't a fluke but I need to play well every week. What good is one game if you don't play well week after week? I just want the coaches and everyone to know that when Stan Weber gets on the field he will give 110 percent."

This is the first time this year a Wildcat has been named the player of the week. Last year, K-State had three defensive winners but no offensive. K-State's last offensive player of the week was Mark Hundley in 1981 when he rushed for 109 yards against Iowa State.

Quarterback Stan Weber lunges for extra yardage while in the grasp of a Nebraska defender during Saturday's game. Weber rushed for 113 yards and passed for 142 yards in the game, and was named Big Eight Player of the Week Monday.

Court case has little effect on K-State

By LAURI DIEHL
Collegian Reporter

A U.S. Supreme Court decision on an NCAA control of televised college football will have little effect on K-State.

Currently, all televised college football games are scheduled with the television networks through the National Collegiate Athletic Association. This 30-year-old policy was challenged in a lawsuit brought by the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Association.

The suit claims NCAA's control of college football on television violates federal anti-trust laws. A federal trial judge and the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals have previously ruled in favor of the universities. The Supreme Court is not expected to rule on the NCAA appeal until next year.

Dick Towers, athletic director, said the decision would not have much effect on K-State's football program. He stressed that, if the Supreme Court does uphold the lower court rulings, it is important that K-State remain a strong member of the Big Eight Conference.

"What we're interested in is working out some kind of deal with the networks through the Big Eight," he said. "A network might not want just K-State, but the Big Eight is an important conference."

K-State would not try to market games as an individual school for several reasons, Towers said.

"First, the football product we have now wouldn't have that great a market," he said. "Second, I don't believe the television market in Kansas could generate enough money to support it (marketing K-State games). Third, it would be too easy for people to watch our games on television and not go to the game."

Towers said the other universities may have greater market potential than K-State.

"Oklahoma and some other schools think they have potential to get games on subscription television and pay cable," he said. "For example, the University of Nebraska could sell out every seat in their stadium."

"If people have cable systems, those that can't get tickets could pay a set amount to have the game piped into their homes. Now, under NCAA rules, they (Nebraska) can't do that."

There have been five K-State football games televised in the last three years. One game was televised in 1980 and four, including the Independence Bowl game, in 1982. Towers said he does not expect any game to be televised this year.

The Supreme Court decision will not affect college basketball. Schools may make their own arrangements to televise basketball games, Towers said.

Big Eight coaches assess basketball squads

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Wayman Tisdale, first-team All-American and Big Eight Conference Basketball Player of the Year as a freshman, will be even better in the 1983-84 season, his coach says.

"He has a valuable commodity that he didn't have last year called one year of experience," Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs said Sunday.

Speaking at the Big Eight's annual media day with head basketball coaches, Tubbs also said his 6-foot-9 sophomore superstar profited over the summer from his experience with the Pan American team coached by K-State boss Jack Hartman.

"I think the Pan American games had to improve him because of the competition," Tubbs said. "Just in practice, when you're practicing against guys like Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins, it has to make you a better player than you would be if you had just sat around on your can all summer and done nothing."

Even with Tisdale, one of the most impressive players ever to come into the Big Eight, Oklahoma has not been voted the Big Eight's pre-season favorite. That honor goes to the only team with a new coach — the Kansas Jayhawks.

And Larry Brown, who's replacing the fired Ted Owens, says he will try not to repeat a mistake he made after taking over the prestigious UCLA program a few years ago.

"I inherited six kids. We changed dramatically and really struggled," said Brown, who resigned as head coach of the New Jersey Nets of the National Basketball Association to take the Kansas job. "I think I asked them to do things they weren't capable of doing. I hope I've learned that lesson. I'm trying very hard to make the change easy."

Nevertheless, the players Brown has inherited were recruited for their ability to play the Ted Owens style of basketball — not the Larry Brown style.

"It's been a lot of learning on my part to see what they're capable of doing and a lot of learning on their part for what I want them to do," Brown said.

Every coach agreed that the conference could be as well balanced as it's ever been.

"It's going to be very unpredictable," said Iowa State's Johnny Orr. "I think every coach in our league believes he can win at home. It all depends on who can go on the road and do the job. I feel better about this team than any I've had since I've been here. There are going to be a lot of close games in the Big Eight this year."

K-State, like many Wildcat teams of the past, will have to overcome a lack of height, Hartman said.

"We don't have the traditional post-up type center, but that's nothing really unusual," Hartman said. "I think we have compensating quickness and agility. Defensively, I don't think there's any question but what there will be nights when we have a lot of trouble with big, strong inside people. It's just something we'll have to deal with."

Oklahoma State lost three starters. Coach Paul Hansen said that he's not making any promises for this season, but that the long-range future for the Cowboys looks good.

"Of the 13 players on scholarship, 11 will return next year," Hansen said. "Hopefully, the coach will, too."

Dickey not responsible for poor play

Jim Dickey did it.

K-State's football mentor has taken the heat for the team's play during the current campaign. Most of the comments I've heard concerning the 1983 edition of the Wildcats has placed the brunt of the blame on Dickey's shoulders.

A typical question about K-State's team might go like this: "Well, what do you think about those 'Cats'?" Some responses I have heard might follow this pattern: "K-State's offense shows no imagination," or "We don't have any running backs...they're too slow."

Perhaps K-State doesn't show its opponents the most explosive offense in the nation, but don't blame Dickey for it. He doesn't suit up.

Dickey has gotten the most from what he had coming into this season. For beginners, Dickey lost 13 starters from last season's squad, a hefty number indeed. Some of those lost included four offensive linemen. Also, the two top runners from a year ago haven't seen any substantial action in 1983. Josefatu Faraimo, the team's leading ground-gainer last season, has carried the ball only three times for a total of 11 yards. Mark

HOWARD RICHMAN
Guest Columnist

Hundley, the second leading rusher off the same squad, has been hampered by injuries all season long. The loss of these two has obviously hurt K-State's offensive potential.

Maybe to the amazement of many Wildcat fans, the offense showed some life last Saturday against top-ranked Nebraska. I wonder how many of those who have been critical of K-State's offense were sitting on their hands when the Wildcats exploded for 20 fourth-quarter points against the Cornhuskers. Even the most pessimistic fan had to show some emotion as the 'Cats made the game closer than was anticipated.

Dickey's team fell to 2-6 overall after the loss, but they showed signs they haven't thrown in the towel. That was the case last season when a late-season loss at home to Oklahoma State supposedly dashed the Wildcats' hopes for a bowl bid. Fortunately, they bounced back with an impressive victory against Colorado and still received the bowl invitation.

And that's another thing — it seems so many people have already forgotten about K-State's first bowl appearance. To refresh your memory, it was less than one year ago. To be exact, it was Dec. 11. Whatever the date was, it was still the biggest moment in K-State football history. Not only did the Wildcats go to a bowl, but they had their first winning season since 1970, a feat in itself. And remember, Jim Dickey's team did it.

The memorable season helped produce the best in-state recruiting year ever at K-State. A total of 17 new Wildcats inked letters to attend K-State. Along with the newcomers are the redshirts, players who sit out a season to gain strength and maturity. Last season's bowl team had eight starters who were redshirts the previous season. And Jim Dickey helped in that, too.

Dickey, now in his sixth season as head coach, has had a wealth of coaching experience in his career. Before coming to K-State in 1977, he was the defensive coordinator at the University of North Carolina. Before that he coached at the University of Kansas, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Houston. No doubt that Dickey knows how to coach on the major college level.

When he took over the head coaching position six years ago, he took control of a program which had been left in ruins. Violation of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules by the coach prior to Dickey left the situation in limbo.

Dickey's first few seasons at K-State were overshadowed by probation, but the effort to clean up the mess was of ultimate importance. Now, the program that was once in shambles has returned to respectability. Of course, Jim Dickey did it.

It is obvious that some K-State football fans can't forgive, but they can forget. Wildcat football fans should be thankful the program is headed in the right direction. Times have been worse, especially at K-State. The 'Cats may not be Orange Bowl material, but they're aiming to make that dream a reality someday soon.

(Editors note: Howard Richman is a senior in Journalism and mass communications.)

Baseball team anticipates spring season campaign

By GARY VAN CLEAVE
Collegian Reporter

To say K-State's baseball team will improve in 1984 is a statement which cannot be verified until next spring, but Wildcat coach Bill Hickey is about as optimistic as one can get.

After going through a 16-1 fall season against Kansas community colleges, Hickey can't wait until March 2 when the Baker University Wildcats pay a double-header visit to Frank Meyers Field.

Last spring, Coach Dave Baker's troops had K-State off to a 16-4 start against teams like Oral Roberts University, Texas-Arlington, Arkansas and Notre Dame. But that was before the Big Eight Conference started league play, and by the end of the rain-plagued Big Eight campaign, K-State finished with a disappointing 2-16 league record and 18-25 overall mark.

The reason was pitching. Offensively, K-State averaged five runs, which should be enough to win baseball games, but the Wildcat hurlers were giving up an average of six runs a contest.

"My feelings for the spring season right now are we hope the pitching is going to be better than what we saw last year at Kansas State," Hickey said. "This fall they (the pitchers) have worked hard, and they're beginning to pitch now instead of throwing the ball."

"Rick Carriger and Tim McKinnis have both pitched excellently, and we're very optimistic about some of our younger kids," Hickey said. "Tom Meyer, John Tirrell, Otto Kaifes and Scott Spurgeon have all played well for us this fall."

Hickey hopes to work a little more in hitting this winter — an area where the Wildcats have some aggressive hitters but didn't show it that much this fall.

"The hitting didn't come around like we expected. I think it's just a process where the coaching staff is going to have to spend a lot of time with our hitters this winter," Hickey said. "We were swinging at too many bad pitches, and maybe that's our (the coaches') fault, because we've talked to them about being aggressive at the plate."

Before the season, Hickey's goal was to go 18-0. The only loss came to Garden City Community College 9-5. Another game had to be called due to darkness against Garden City.

K-State's 1984 schedule includes Baker, followed by a home match against Bethany on March 6. After that, the Wildcats head south for a road trip with Texas Wesleyan, North Texas State, Texas Christian, Texas-Dallas, Emporia State, Dallas Baptist and Oral Roberts. The Wildcats then come back on March 21 to start a homestand with Fort Hays State, Marymount and William Jewell.

On March 31, K-State starts Big Eight action at Nebraska and a week later travels to Stillwater, Okla., for weekend twinbills with Oklahoma State.

"My overall view of the spring schedule is we have a tough schedule...maybe the toughest Kansas State has played in the last few years," Hickey said. "We're going to find out if we can play or not."

"We've got a tough road schedule. We'll go down to Texas and play some people down there; some schools that can compete with anybody in the United States. If you're going to improve your program, you have to go out and play better competition than what you can find in the state of Kansas."

One thing's for sure — Hickey is not scared to take his ballplayers out of the state.

"We'd like to go in and play Baylor, Pan American and maybe even the University of Texas. I'm not scared to take my kids in there and play them because that's a learning experience," Hickey said. "You have to find out what the best people play like."

"It's kind of like Jack Hartman, he's not scared to play Indiana, and we're not scared to play Texas," Hickey said.

University manages area weather station

By KRISTI NELSON
Collegian Reporter

Manhattan area weather stations have recorded daily weather changes since 1858.

The first weather station in Manhattan was established by Isaac Goodnow, founder of the city of Manhattan, in May 1858. After the Agricultural College (now K-State) was established, a weather station was set up on campus called "Manhattan No. 2."

The K-State National Weather Station, now the only one in Manhattan, is located on the lawn between Call Hall and the Veterinary Medicine Complex. The station does not make forecasts but instead collects climatic data and weather information. Records and data are stored in Cardwell Hall, room 401.

The lobby of fourth floor Cardwell houses a weather weather printer with the national weather summary, temperature reading, wind speed, wind vane and barometer. This information provides a public service for student and faculty use as well as information for the media.

Dean Bark, professor of physics and climatologist for the Agricultural Experiment Station, oversees the weather station and collection of data.

"The weather station information is used by researchers working with the Agricultural Experiment Station and when time is available, to aid the entire University community," Bark said. Students doing research or grant work often use the facilities and people in the community call for information on occasion, Bark said.

Bark assists with student advisement in the station and data research, but all services are being trimmed because of lack of time and funds.

Bark supervises the official Manhattan National Weather Station, one of nearly 12,000 in the United States. These weather stations are maintained on a voluntary basis, but K-State uses a student employee to collect the data.

William Mann, junior in construction science, collects the precipitation and temperature readings each day at 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.

"I have to be here to collect information every day of the year, even holidays," Mann said. Mann has been collecting weather data since last summer. After the data is brought to Cardwell it is phoned to the Topeka weather station and put on the weather wire service, eventually filtering down to the local stations.

The K-State station has the longest continuous precipitation record in the state. Other stations in the state were established earlier but have incomplete records.

New law ignites smoking controversy

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Both sides are fuming in a battle between smokers and non-smokers over a referendum on Proposition P, which would regulate puffing in public in San Francisco.

"If anybody complained about my smoking I'd have to punch them," warned legal secretary Anne Brunetti.

But Maureen McInerney, another secretary, said, "It's so unfair...my clothes reek of cigarette smoke at the end of the day."

The issue on the Nov. 8 ballot will ask simply for a "yes" or "no" vote on an ordinance that earlier sailed through the Board of Supervisors but went to the voters due to a referendum petition.

The Board of Supervisors voted 10-1 for an ordinance that required non-smoking areas in the office workplaces of the city. The measure provides a $500 daily fine for non-compliance.

Under the law, originated by Wendy Nelder, president of the Board of Supervisors, smokers and non-smokers will have to work out a compromise in the workplace. If they can't agree, says the ordinance, "the preference of non-smoking employees shall prevail."

On June 3, Mayor Dianne Feinstein signed the ordinance, providing for a 90-day grace period before it takes effect.

But on July 1, a referendum petition with 30,860 names was filed, calling for repeal. Only 19,357 names were needed.

California law says once a referendum is filed and certified legal, the law cannot go into effect until a majority of voters approves it.

Five tobacco firms contributed more than $700,000 so far to the campaign to defeat the bill. Proponents of the ordinance, principally the American Cancer Society, have raised $82,000 for their side.

One man who can see both sides of the argument is securities executive Seth Gersch. He said that when he goes into a restaurant and he is not smoking, "I find cigarette smoke offensive."

"Yet, there are times when I enjoy smoking in a restaurant. So I can sympathize with both sides of the argument."

Executive Charles Lindberg said, "If I'm holding a meeting in my office, I smoke. If I go to another office where they don't smoke, then I don't smoke."

A compromise already has been worked out at the offices of patent lawyers Townsend and Townsend, where office manager Joan Suwat said, "If you smoke, then people who come to your desk may also smoke."

The reverse, she said, also is true.

Some companies have recognized the problem and shifted workers or desks around, depending on who did or didn't smoke.

Sometimes rules are arbitrary. A board chairman reportedly decided flatly to ban smoking in his office, but allow smoking elsewhere.

Most firms' queries appear to insist on preserving the rights of smokers in some way. Said Clark Kerr, the Bank of America's vice president for corporate health programs:

"We realize there are two sides to this and our goal is to reach an accommodation that is reasonable and acceptable by both groups, adding that the bank is studying a policy that would leave it up to individual managers and supervisors to work out their own agreements."

Activists may force city into 'no-nukes zone'

By The Associated Press

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — From a basement office located midway between Harvard and MIT, peace activists are waging a campaign to ban nuclear weapons work in Cambridge — a ban that could halt more than $100 million in missile design contracts.

Members of Mobilization for Survival are working to declare Cambridge a "nuclear-free zone," where it would be a crime to design, build or store nuclear weapons. The city's 44,000 voters will decide the issue Nov. 8.

The main target of the campaign is the Charles Stark Draper

Laboratory, a high-technology spinoff from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology that employs about 1,800 people. Draper holds some $140 million in contracts with the Defense Department, most of it for guidance systems on MX, Poseidon, Trident and cruise missiles.

In the past eight weeks, the campaign has divided this intellectual community. Nobel Prize winners are lined up on opposing sides — biologist George Wald of Harvard is for it, and physicist Samuel C.C. Ting of MIT is opposed. So are the presidents of Harvard and MIT.

"We have the right to say we will not be complicit in the arms race," said Richard Schreuer, a Mobilization volunteer. "Draper is directly contributing to the arms race."

Draper officials say the campaign poses an economic threat. "We think it's unconstitutional. If it's nuclear research this year, it could be genetic research next year, then who knows what," said company vice president Joseph F. O'Connor.

If the referendum passes, the Nuclear-Free Cambridge Campaign would be a major breakthrough for a movement that seeks to end the arms race village by village across the world.

Cambridge, a city of 95,000 academics, workers and immigrants across the Charles River from Boston, would be the largest U.S. city to declare itself off-limits to weapons work. It would also be the first nuclear-free zone established in a place where weapons design is carried out.

Since 1980, hundreds of nuclear-free zones have been declared in Europe and in the Pacific. Garrett Park, Md., became the first U.S. city to go nuclear-free, in May 1982, and more than two dozen others have followed suit. More U.S. cities are to vote on the issue in the fall elections.

Supporters see nuclear-free zones as the logical extension of the nuclear freeze movement — a legal, practical way to change U.S. policy.

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

ANNOUNCEMENT 01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m. 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. 50¢ for students with ID and $1 for all others. (28tf)

SUPPORT GROUP for incest survivors, confidential. Meets Thursdays 4:30-6:00 p.m. Call Women's Resource Center, 532-6444. (49-53)

SUPPORT GROUP—Women who have experienced abortion. Alternate Thursdays, 7-8:30 p.m., Women's Resource Center, 532-6444. (49-53)

ATTENTION 02

TRAVEL—We will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-4756. (11f)

FANTASY-GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

SKI BRECKENRIDGE January 28, 1984 at unbelievably low prices. Call Scott for details, 539-2870. (51-54)

FOR RENT—MISC 03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th, 539-7931. (11f)

FOR RENT: One and two bedroom mobile homes, $165 and $175. No pets. 539-6058 or 539-5402. (48-52)

THREE BEDROOM with fireplace and garage. Available now or for next semester, $475. Call 539-4294, ask for Ron. (51-63)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electronics and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9469. (11f)

WILDCAT INN APTS

GRADUATING SENIOR SUBLETS

5 AVAILABLE FOR JAN. 1

APARTMENT LOCATION:

- Fieldhouse—1803 College Heights, top floor & balconies, furnished
- Wildcat V—411 North 17th, just south of Ramada. Patio apartment—master bedroom, 100% AC, furnished.
- Wildcat I—1854 Clafin, just north of Marlatt Hall, 1-bedroom furnished. $220.00 per mo.

CALL:
CELESTE—
539-5001

FOR RENT—APTS 04

PINE HAVEN brand new two-bedroom apartments available in November. Will accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. 776-3804. (48-55)

ONE BEDROOM apartment, $150. No pets. 539-6058 or 539-5402. (48-52)

FIRST FLOOR, two-bedroom, duplex apartment. Close to campus with off-street parking. $350. Call 776-0055. (48-52)

TIRED OF dorm life? Take over lease on one-bedroom apartment next semester. 776-6398. 537-4851. (50-52)

REDUCED RENT on one-bedroom apartment and mobile home. Campus one mile. No children, no pets. 537-8389 or 537-8494. (50-54)

ONE BEDROOM apartment, $210. All bills paid. Call 537-1478 mornings. (51-54)

FOR RENT—HOUSES 05

Four to six bedroom house, three blocks from KSU. Stove, refrigerator, washer, dryer, $575 plus utilities. Available immediately. 776-1849. (50-54)

FOR SALE—AUTO 06

1980 MUSTANG Cobra Turbo, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, 39,000 miles. 776-8182 after 5:00 p.m. Anytime on weekends. (48-52)

1979 CHEVY Luv pickup. Air conditioning, AM-FM cassette, two new tires. Call evenings and weekends. 776-1810. (48-52)

1977 DATSUN 280Z, 80,000, clean body, $3900. Call 539-7451. (51-54)

1978 JEEP CJ5, 44,000 miles, soft top, good condition. Call 539-2460 evenings. (51-54)

FOR SALE—MISC 07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risqué greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (11f)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (light blue), USC (white), others. $14.00 each postpaid. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-801-835-1085. (45-59)

WHISTLES!
Acme Thunderer
LOUD-SHRILL
Call Charly
913-537-9821

EQUIPMENT FOR making rubber stamps. Type, press cabinet for type, and supplies. Must sell. Phone 537-7511 after 5:00 p.m. (47-51)

ONE PAIR Brook's Chariot running shoe's. Almost new, $35. Call 539-7152 after 8:00 p.m. (48-51)

FOR SALE: Complete home stereo system. Includes Bose 901 speakers. Call 1-432-2391 after 6:00 p.m. (49-53)

TWO TANDON disk drives model 100-1. IBM and TRS compatible. Call 537-2485. (50-54)

MOVING SALE: Westinghouse refrigerator, $60; Huffy men's 3-speed, $35; Hewlett-Packard 33E calculator, $45; matching couch and chair, $59; coffee table, $55; two snow tires, G78-14, $10; drafting table with folding legs-sliding square, $19; fluorescent desk lamp, $10; collectors edition of Hobbit and Lords of the Rings set, new, $100; Crate guitar amplifier, $119. Call 537-3739. (50-53)

FOR SALE: ARP Omni-2 and Micro-moog synthesizers. Both good condition. Call Jeff, 539-2099. (50-54)

GIBSON EXPLORER—Gold hardware, fine tuner, locking nut, brown-burst, hard-shell case. Make offer. 776-4304. (51-55)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES 08

TWO-BEDROOM trailer house, excellent condition. Call 776-6143 after 6:00 p.m. (45-54)

12' x 65', three-bedroom trailer, excellent condition. Includes: air conditioning, washer and dryer, some furniture. Call 539-5055. (49-53)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES 09

1979 SUZUKI GS550, 18,000 miles, new chain, battery, helmets included. $900 or best offer. 776-1332 after 5:00 p.m. (42tf)

1973 TR6 Triumph, one owner, both tops, very nice, K-State purple, $2595. The Preston McCall Company, 913-641-6067. (44-53)

HELP WANTED 13

MALE SUBJECTS needed for study. $3 for one-half hour time. Call 532-6929 or 539-1380. (47-51)

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write IJC, Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

EXTENSION PROGRAMMING Consultant. Temporary (1/2 time) for Extension Service, KSU. B.A., B.S., M.A., or M.S. in computer science or related field required with training in software engineering, program design and program languages. M.S. degree in computer science desirable. Apply to Roger Terry, 123 Umbarger Hall, 532-5840. (50-52)

TWO PART-time programmers needed to work as part of a team developing and coding agricultural software on microcomputers. Individuals must be self-motivating with desire to gain experience in software development arena. Working knowledge of Pascal, PL/I or C required. Each position requires 15-20 hours per week. Opportunity exists for summer employment. Contact KSU Cooperative Extension Service, 123 Umbarger Hall, for application. (50-52)

CHANCEL CHOIR Director, beginning November 17, 1983. Experience or training in choral music required. Submit resume to Betty Kandt, First Baptist Church, 2121 Blue Hills Road, Manhattan, on or before November 4, 1983. (51-53)

NEED ONE female to share nice, two-bedroom apartment for spring semester. Half rent, utilities. Call 539-5368 or 539-8427. (51-55)

NON-SMOKING FEMALE roommate to share two-bedroom house. Nice location. Call 776-8086 or 532-7114. (51-55)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share house. Own bedroom, three and one-half blocks east of campus, private parking, large yard, $135/month plus utilities. 776-0182, 776-4989. (51-55)

NEED ONE female to share nice, two-bedroom apartment for spring semester. Half rent, utilities. Call 539-5368 or 539-8427. (51-55)

NON-SMOKING FEMALE, $125/month, plus one-half utilities. Call 776-1688. (51-55)

LOST 14

LOST: TEXTBOOK—Design of Experiments by Cochran and Cox. Please return to Waters Hall, room 130. (48-52)

FOUND 10

RICHARD R. Ortiz—Your wallet has been found. Come to Kedzie 103 to claim. (51-53)

PERSONAL 16

KEVIN B.—How was the ice water at Mr. K's Saturday night? Wait until everyone hears about this!—Two eye witnesses (51)

KD-CHRISTIE, I'm your big brother, and I think it's great. I know you well, and think you're really fit at rate. Now for your first clue: I've ridden horses to riches. Love, your Big Bro. (51)

DOROTHY, SCARECROW, Cowardly Lion—Do you think NY will be the same after us? Probably! But will we be the same after NY? Definitely not! Hope our costumes are having fun in LA! Great study break—let's do it again some time—next week? We're gonna party, carabe, fiesta, forever... Tin-Man. (51)

POLLY PI Phi: Welcome to the family. We think you're the greatest! Love—Grandma Nancy and Grandma Tammi. (51)

SVEN THE Viking—For August 18th we really didn't fail, so on January 6th, I'll give you my all—7 (51)

ATTENTION BIG Dick: Lonely sophomore (with broken foot) will write dazzling English papers for minimal charge. One Mickey Gilley Two-step per 100 words. Call 539-7647, Buhl (51)

GUMBY—I blew it! Thanks for understanding and helping this ex-debutante out of the gutter. Your almost Tough—Tuffy Davis. (51)

LAURA BETH—Thanks for cheers, tears, laughter, fears, (beers!) and everything else that goes with being generic roomies! Remember: Keep your eyes to the sky—the Big P could be watching. Five years of friendship and still going strong. I couldn't have made it without you—keep flashing those dimples! All my love on your big "one nine." Mom. (51)

CINDY—WELCOME to Gamma Alpha! We're happy to have you and hope you have a great week! Love, The Kappas. (51)

FH—We enjoyed Sacred Spooks. What fun! Have a nice week. The Little Sisters. (51)

JR—HAPPY Birthday. Don't plan on getting away, having an extra shower is part of a birthday. Love, Mom. (51)

MATTHEW K.—Here's a birthday wish filled with love for the man who's stood by my side for three wonderful years! Happy 20th! Your nut, Diana. (51)

WENDALL K.: Happy Birthday, Babe. I wish you the best of everything always. I love you! Susan. (51)

B-50 WHO'S! Can't wait to see ya at the air band contest! Fred, Cindy, Keith, Kate and Ricky. (51)

TO WHOM it may concern: Friday's personal "Someone Who Notices," was not the work of the original person by that alias. All notices, letters, etc. issued under that name are still valid however. To the sender of Friday's personal: Nice sentiments, nobly put, but please find your own norm de plume. Signed, the real "Someone." (51)

EARL—JUST wanted to say you're pretty neat. Love ya lots! Maynard. (51)

KEITH, KATE, Fred, Cindy, and Ricky—Let's have a baby now! Your Agent. (51)

ROOMMATE WANTED 17

ONE/TWO female non-smoking roommates to share nice farmhouse with fireplace, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (49-53)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share four-bedroom apartment through May. Good location. Call 539-8849. (42-51)

QUIET FEMALE roommate needed for spring semester. 539-6674. (47-51)

Captain Cosmo

By Doug Yearout

Bradley

By Mich Johnson

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Committee starts search for new dean

By DAVE MANCHON
Collegian Reporter

A search committee has been selected to find a successor to Jordan B. Utsey, dean of the College of Education. Utsey will retire in August 1984.

The representation of the 10-member committee, chaired by Joyce Terrass, professor of adult and occupational education, was decided upon after weeks of deliberation.

"I felt the committee needed to be balanced on certain criteria," Provost Owen Koeppe said. "I wanted a balance of interests." Koeppe said the committee could not have all teachers or all researchers, but a variation of both.

"A balance of sex and race also was important," he said.

The committee's first meeting was Oct. 21. Its members are Terrass, Robert Kruh, dean of the Graduate School, Nancy Smith and James Boyer, assistant professors of curriculum and instruction, Fred Bradley and Gerald Hanna, professors of administration and foundations, John Parmley, assistant professor of adult and occupational education, Cindy Harrison, graduate representative, Kathy Houts, undergraduate representative and James Benjamin, superintendent of Manhattan schools.

"Each department in the college of education nominated four faculty members for the committee," Koeppe said. "I chose two from each department."

"I believe it is an excellent committee. There are very good people on it," he said.

The position for dean will be advertised in three November issues of The Chronicles of Higher Education, a weekly education journal, he said.

"In addition to the advertisements, I will write to various institutions asking my counterparts to suggest people they consider (to be) possible candidates," Koeppe said.

The committee has tentatively agreed on a Jan. 15 deadline for applications and nominations.

"Once we start getting names, resumes and letters of recommendation, we will begin interviewing the candidates," Koeppe said. Candidates from outside the University will spend two days on campus and will have the opportunity to meet with faculty members and students from the College of Education. President Duane Acker and the search committee will evaluate the candidates.

"At this time, we don't know how many candidates we will interview," Koeppe said.

After interviews are completed, the search committee will recommend a list of acceptable candidates to Koeppe.

"From the list, I will recommend one candidate to Acker who will make the final decision," Koeppe said. He said he believes it is extremely important that the faculty, students and other deans are pleased with Utsey's successor.

"It will be difficult to find the right person," Koeppe said. He said the new dean must have credibility with the College of Education.

"With a change of leadership, we hope the transition goes well," he said.

Koeppe said he hopes a new dean is appointed by late June.

Tires track oily smoke from five-acre inferno

By The Associated Press

WINCHESTER, Va. — A mound of 7 million used tires covering five acres caught fire Monday, sending up a mushroom-shaped cloud of oily black smoke that drifted over three states. Officials said it could burn into 1984.

The cloud climbed almost one mile high and spread 35 miles over a corner of Virginia and the panhandles of West Virginia and Maryland.

"It could be out of control for several days and may even burn to the first of the year," said Tyree Cather, an assistant fire chief in Frederick County.

No injuries were reported and no one had to be evacuated, Cather said.

"As far as the people downwind right now, we don't believe they're in any danger," said Cory Gabrielsen, an official with the state Office of Emergency and Energy Services.

But the elderly and people with chronic health problems were warned to avoid the smoke if possible.

William Brabson, a biology professor at a local community college, said burning tires can give off hydrocarbons that are harmful to plants and animals. People who inhale the fumes can suffer coughing, throat irritation and chest pains.

But state officials said the fumes presented little immediate problem because they were staying in the upper atmosphere. Roger Koontz, chairman of the county Board of Supervisors, said first tests by the Environmental Protection Agency showed no cancer-causing materials being emitted.

The fire began about 1 a.m. on property owned by Paul Rhinehart on Virginia Highway 608, about 10 miles west of Winchester.

"Somebody set it," Rhinehart said. "There's no question about it."

County officials had gone to court earlier this month seeking an injunction to block Rhinehart from collecting the tires. Officials have estimated that there are 7 million tires in the heap.

Rhinehart has been piling the tires on his property since 1972, when the county banned their burial in landfills, according to John Riley, county administrator.

John E. Wetsel Jr., a lawyer representing some of the complaining neighbors, said Rhinehart gets 50 cents for each tire he throws onto the pile. Rhinehart has not commented on the financial arrangements.

Donations hit record high

By The Collegian Staff

Contributions received by the K-State Foundation during the 1982-1983 fiscal year increased by 77 percent compared to the previous year, the Foundation announced Saturday during the annual Board of Trustees meeting.

A record $8,355,900 was received during the year ending June 30, 1983, said Les Longberg, Foundation controller. That compares to $4,716,281 received during fiscal year 1981-1982. Net investment income increased by more than $290,000 to $2,755,000, Longberg said.

He said the carrying value of Foundation assets increased by 24 percent during the fiscal year to $32.9 million. Market value of the assets increased from $29.9 million to $40.6 million.

Longberg said the Foundation established several other records during the year, including receiving 32,302 gifts from 24,551 donors compared with 19,466 and 17,367 respectively during the previous reporting period.

Art Loub, executive vice president of the Foundation, said the funds were raised by many groups, including students and faculty involved in telefunds, Presidents Club members, major donors in regional meetings and faculty and corporate executives in special interest campaigns currently underway.

The Foundation received its largest gift ever during the fiscal year — $1.8 million in capital stock in Patton Farms Inc., an Ohio farm corporation. The gift will benefit the K-State Livestock and Meat Industry Council. Sixty other gifts of $10,000 or more which benefited many University programs also were received. During the previous year 42 such gifts were given.

Longberg said awards to students from scholarship funds administered by the Foundation totaled $1,185,000 during the academic year, a 21.6 percent increase over the $974,000 awarded last year.

In addition, the Foundation made short-term, non interest-bearing loans totaling $590,000 to the University. The loans enabled the Office of Student Financial Assistance to meet loan demands pending receipt of funds from the federal government and to provide emergency student loans during enrollment periods.

Alumni and friends gave 63.6 percent, or $5,315,100, of funds contributed during the year. Those funds are used for research, travel, supplies and other expenses. Other fund designations during the fiscal year included scholarships, $1,880,100; athletics, $981,900; coliseum campaign, $838,600; undesignated, $330,000 and memorials and loan funds, $115,000.

BUSHWACKER'S

• THE •
FUNDRINKERY

Tuesday
Bushwacker Blaster
nite—$1.25 all nite

Happy Hour: 4-9
2 Fers on Hibs
75¢ draws $2 blended drinks

Drink of the Week: The Six Shooter

A Reciprocating Club
Bar 539-9727    Office 539-4321

531 N. Manhattan

Flash Back

'83

★ Date: Friday, Nov. 4, 8:00 p.m. - 12:00 p.m.

★ Place: Fifth & Houston (Downtown)

★ Entertainment: Air Band Contest

★ Guest D.J. — Ed Klimek

★ Cost: $4.00—includes admission, free beer and pepsi

★ Free door prizes from Coors

★ Tom Hawk photographers

★ Advance Tickets can be purchased in the Union on Nov. 2, 3, 4

★ Sponsored by:
Kansas State University
Student Foundation

ESCAPE TO ASPEN/SNOWMASS WITH UPC TRAVEL

January 1-8, 1984

Trip Includes:
Roundtrip motor coach to and from Aspen/Snowmass, Colorado
1 night's lodging at Hotel Colorado in Glenwood Springs, Colorado
4 nights lodging at Woodbridge Condominiums in Snowmass, Colorado
4 days lift tickets (good at Snowmass, Aspen & Buttermilk Mountains)
4 days equipment rental
2 wild west parties with live bands
Pre-party
UPC tote bag

$323/295 (with your own equipment)

SPACES STILL AVAILABLE
SIGN-UP:
8 a.m.-3 p.m., Monday-Friday
Activities Center
3rd Floor K-State Union.

BEER
Sold at cost plus
5%
Revco Drug Store
Village Plaza

MC PRINT
Instant printing

COPIES
TYPESETTING
—24-HOUR SERVICE—

1211 Moro    539-5749

Special Sale
World's Best
Fitting Jeans
Chic Jeans
$19.95
Also on sale:
Sweat Shirts $8.99

Free pawprint transfer with purchase of both sale items.

1207 Larimer St. Aggieville
539-2011

HAVING A PARTY? CALL US FOR FRESH BAKED GOODS AND SANDWICHES.

Everyday Prices!!
• $1.59 Sandwiches for 99¢!
• Glazed Donuts $1.79 a dozen

11th & Moro
Aggieville 537-4808

Mon.-Thurs. 6:30 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
Fri. 24 hours
Sat. till 6 p.m.

500th Luther Anniversary

Film: "Where Luther Walked"
Today—12:00 noon
Union Room 213 FREE

MARTIN LUTHER
1483-1983

A recent film concerning events, places and implications of Luther and the reformation.

RESPONSE—DR. ROBERT LINDER,
Luther Scholar, KSU Dept. of History

Sponsored by: Lutheran Campus Ministries

—WANTED—

- Arts & Science students with leadership skills,
- Arts & Science students with enthusiasm and the ability to communicate well with others.
- Arts & Science students who wish to take a more active role in building and improving scholarships and college resources.

APPLY NOW FOR THE ARTS & SCIENCE —TELEFUND DIRECTORS—

Applications available in the SGS Office (Lower level of the Union)

If questions call Brett Lambert 539-8593, or Brad Russell at 532-3997
Sponsored by the Arts & Science Council

DANCE CONTEST

November 7-8, 1983
Brother's Tavern
in Aggieville

Strut Your Stuff With UPC Special Events, Brother's Tavern, and Bud Light

First Prize: Two tickets and backstage passes to the Stray Cats Concert at Ahearn. Plus two autographed copies of their latest album.

FREE KEG

FOR SIGN-UP AND ADDITIONAL INFORMATION CONTACT BROTHER'S TAVERN OR THE ACTIVITIES CENTER

westloop
south chiles rd
anderson
granger
key moto photo

(next to office world)

1134 Garden Way
Manhattan, Kansas
66502

776-9030

1 hour photo finishing no extra cost

HALLOWEEN COSTUME CONTEST RULES

1. Bring in a roll of film or a photograph of you in your Halloween costume (no Polaroids please)
2. To be eligible photographs must be submitted no later than 6:00 p.m. November 2nd
3. Costumes will be judged on creativity, style, and uniqueness

$100 GRAND PRIZE FOR ADULTS
$50 GRAND PRIZE FOR CHILDREN UNDER 12

costume contest

★ WATCH FOR OUR GRAND OPENING ★

Losing effort

The 'Cats lose three straight.
Sports, page 8

Anti-mall coalition to battle approval

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Reporter

Although Manhattan's $10 million Urban Development Action Grant has received tentative approval by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, a group of downtown business owners apparently isn't taking yes for an answer.

Some property owners in the area planned for the mall, and other downtown redevelopment opponents, have banded together to seek disapproval of the UDAG. They are also concerned with fair treatment of businesses should the grant be approved.

The first meeting of the organization, which has not been scheduled, is expected to attract between 40 and 60 property owners and mall opponents, said Don Carrel, one of the business owners in the relocation area.

Although the group has yet to conduct its first formal meeting, Carrel said the members will have some clout.

"There is going to be some legal counsel," he said. "The people (in the group) are well aware that we are talking about thousands of dollars in legal fees."

Carrel, owner of Kitchens Plus and The "Department" Store at Humboldt and Third streets, said he favors enhancing the appearance of downtown, but dislikes the idea of a mall.

"I've talked to a lot of businesses that say they'll close down or move to another town," he said. "You don't find locally-owned businesses in malls."

Carrel said that even if he planned to put his stores in the mall, the rent — probably $14.90 per square foot annually — would be too high. At that rate, it would cost $62,000 a year to rent space for his stores in the mall, he said.

"I don't know of one single business that's going to be displaced that plans to move into the mall," Carrel said. Something else Carrel said he disagrees with is the way the city has lobbied for the UDAG.

"We're still going to do what we can to convince somebody that the city is not giving all the facts to Washington," Carrel said. "I have talked to hundreds and hundreds of people since I opened my store and very few are for this project. This is not a blighted area." Carrel opened his stores a year ago.

Another concern of the group is that the city will try to cheat the businesses out of proper payments for their property if eminent domain is exercised to make way for the mall, Carrel said.

"We're of the opinion that if the city deals with us on an individual basis, we'll get taken to the cleaners," he said.

City Commissioner Suzanne Lindamood, a frequent critic of the mall, said she wasn't aware the group had been formed.

"I wouldn't be surprised," Lindamood said. "I think it's a very good idea. I'm sure that I will find out more about it."

More than 80 businesses are to be relocated should the entire downtown redevelopment project be completed.

Staff/Jeff Taylor

'Weather' it rains or not

Three civil engineering students hoist an umbrella Tuesday afternoon in an attempt to keep dry as a brief shower passed through the Manhattan area. Scott Lamons, sophomore in construction science, Tim Purkeypyle, junior in civil engineering, and Stan Meyers, junior in civil engineering, worked to complete the assignment despite the weather.

House approves War Powers Act in landslide vote

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House called on President Reagan Tuesday to withdraw troops from Grenada within 60 days as provided in the war powers act which Congress passed during the Vietnam era to prevent lengthy, undeclared wars.

The vote was 403-23.

The measure now goes to the Senate, where a spokesman for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said it is expected to be acted upon quickly.

The Senate passed an identical resolution last Friday as an amendment to a bill extending the national debt limit so that the government could borrow more money.

But on Monday, senators defeated the debt limit measure, even though it could be reconsidered and passed with or without a war powers provision.

Reagan regards the 1973 War Powers Act as an encroachment on his constitutional powers as commander-in-chief, but it is not certain whether he would veto or sign the bill if it reached his desk. A White House spokesman said last week a decision would be made depending on the situation at the time.

The war powers act requires that the president withdraw troops within 60 days. That timetable could be extended to 90 days if the president says the extra time is needed to withdraw troops safely. Congress could also authorize a longer stay.

Officials suspect Cuba may seek retaliation

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The State Department said Tuesday it views with the "gravest concern" reports indicating that Cuba may be trying to retaliate for the U.S. invasion of Grenada by sponsoring death threats and terrorist acts against Americans in Latin America.

Other officials said, however, that the United States has suspicions but no hard evidence that Cubans are resorting to such tactics.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, said the U.S. concern is based partly on a U.S. telephone intercept in which a Cuban official, following the invasion of Grenada last week, is alleged to have told a colleague, "The gringos are going to have to pay for this."

Afterward, the officials said, the United States told its embassies in the Western Hemisphere that Cuban sympathizers may target American diplomats for revenge.

State Department spokesman

John Hughes, asked to comment on an article by columnist Jack Anderson about the American concerns, said there are some reports of death threats to Americans "and that these emanate from Cuba."

Hughes said this is "obviously a subject of gravest concern to the United States. We are obliged to take reports of possible terrorist activity very seriously."

He refused to say what action the United States would take if the alleged link with Cuba is confirmed.

Hughes noted that since the Grenada invasion, there have been terrorist acts in Bolivia and Puerto Rico and against the U.S.-Colombian binational center in Medellin, Colombia.

Hughes had no details on the incident in Bolivia but other officials said he was referring to the sacking last week of the U.S.-Bolivian binational center and of a U.S. consular office. Both offices are located in Cochabamba and were raided by an estimated 100 to 150 students.

U.S. struggles to revive borrowing authority

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Like a consumer whose credit cards were revoked, the government began living on its cash Tuesday as congressional leaders searched in vain for a way to revive federal borrowing authority.

At a White House meeting with President Reagan, Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said he intends to delay further consideration of the debt bill until next week. There is inadequate support for passage, a Baker aide noted, saying Baker is willing to "wait and see if there is a crisis and how people react to it."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill seemed to have the same thing in mind. When a crisis occurs, he told reporters, "we can accomplish things that you can't accomplish a month previously." The implication was that Congress will give the government new credit when the lawmakers feel the need is urgent, and after some of them have made their points on the need to slash federal spending.

For the moment, there was no evidence of an immediate crisis.

Uncle Sam didn't miss a car payment but came up $9 billion short on a required $13 billion deposit to the Social Security system. For the time being, Social Security checks will still go out on schedule.

The law limits the government's debt to $1,389,000,000,000 — nearly $1.4 trillion in round numbers. That ceiling was reached Tuesday when the Treasury Department, under terms of the new Social Security law, made as large a payment to the giant pension system as it could.

Translation of Bible lessens male emphasis

(Editors note: This is the first of three articles which deal with a new translation of Bible readings.)

By MICHELE SAUER
Staff Writer

A new translation of Bible readings, designed to eliminate male terminology, was released Oct. 14 by the National Council of Churches.

In the new translation, male terminology referring to human beings and God is minimized wherever possible. One of the changes is a reference to God as both the Father and Mother of humankind.

The Bible readings are for voluntary, experimental use in services by some Protestant churches.

The new readings, titled "The Inclusive Language Lectionary," were prepared over a two-year period by a committee of 11 biblical scholars and pastors from several denominations, including the Roman Catholic Church, although it is not a member of the National Council of Churches.

The committee retranslated the lectionary, the parts of the Scripture read in public worship on Sundays and festival days. Formal lectionaries are used by denominations stressing liturgy (prescribed forms of public worship), such as Episcopalians, Lutherans and Roman Catholics. The form of the lectionary used is often up to the individual congregation.

The National Council of Churches, an organization of 30 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, cannot require member churches to use the lectionary, but will promote the volume and ask churches to report on experiences with it.

The new lectionary is the first of three volumes that committee members say will eventually include about 95 percent of the New Testament and 40 percent of the Old Testament as recorded in the Revised Standard Version Bible.

The Lutheran Church in America announced it would not recommend the new translations for use in its 6,000 congregations because they were inaccurate and stylistically inadequate.

Victor Gold, a Lutheran pastor and professor at Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary and chairman of the lectionary committee, said the most difficult part of the translation was the inclusion of female imagery in the metaphors used for God and said the committee believes the lectionary was "consistent with the original languages of Scripture" even if it was not a literal translation.

For instance, the committee explained, the word used in the Book of Genesis about the creation of the first human being is the Hebrew "ha-adam." The translators say the word lacks a particular gender, but has often been translated "man."

A statement issued Oct. 21 by Archbishop Iakovos of the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of North and South America said he believes the lectionary would bring disunity to the church because "it does not

Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: as my Father and Mother hath sent me, even so send I you.

— John 20:21

reflect the traditions and reverence of the Holy Scriptures."

Though many recent editions of the Bible have tried to put the Scriptures into more familiar language, this lectionary is the first designed to meet such a specific concern as that over what is seen as sexism in the Bible.

The most striking change is the phrase "God, Father and Mother."

"Father" is a common term for God in the Bible, especially in the New Testament. The fact that Jesus called God "Father" is one of the reasons the early Christians concluded Jesus was related to the Creator in an especially intimate way.

The editors say references to God as mother can be found in such passages as, "Now I will cry out like a woman in travail." In the new version, when Jesus greets the Disciples after the resurrection, he says: "Peace be with you. As God the Mother and Father has sent me, even so I send you."

The editors felt it was important to use words described God as a loving parent who cares for a family. Referring to God as "father" in one verse and "mother" in a succeeding verse seemed confusing, committee members said, so they decided to combine both terms.

"I find it pretty weak to call God 'Father and Mother,'" said Ron Clingenpeel, Episcopal Campus Minister. "I think the closest we can come is to call God the Creator. Anything that ascribes a gender to God is pretty inadequate."

"One of the problems with it (the lectionary) is that it sets up another family, and we all fit in this family — all nice and cozy," he said. "What about someone without a family or someone who had a bad relationship with both parents?"

"If this new lectionary is non-sexist, were there 12 nice 'people' that followed Jesus? Or is it more sensitive to note women were part of the entourage?"

"What is inclusive? Is it just men and women? Or should you include sexual preference, capitalism versus marxism, or can you say it already exists (in Scripture)?" Clingenpeel said.

"This is theological tinkering with Scripture. The problem is not in Scripture, the problem is at the pulpit or the altar and reinforced there. I talk about God as Creator, Jesus as Messiah and the Holy Spirit in terms of sustenance. This is a feeble attempt to express the infinite."

"Fundamentalists and conservatives will use this as rash generalizations on other Christian bodies' 'secular humanism.' Some liberals will see it as a great step forward. But it misses the point completely."

"Creator is an incredibly intimate word. We are called to 'increase and multiply' and be a co-creator with God. The act of conceiving a child is very intimate, warm, loving act," he said.

"I've only seen excerpts of it (the lectionary)," said Rev. Rod Saunders of Ecumenical Christian Ministries. "It initially came out of a committee of the National Council of Churches. They never tried to take the male gender out of the Bible, but looked at passages that could be either gender or both. Scholars have said for years that some passages talk about God in the feminine, or God as Mother."

"The basic concern is to be as inclusive as possible," Saunders said. "Some people have had nothing but bad experiences with father figures. To ask them to have faith in God as father, you're asking them to do something they cannot do."

"It (the new translation) is a break. It may be uncomfortable, but God's word didn't begin with the Bible and end with its writings. This can bring us new knowledge."

"I certainly wouldn't exclude it (the lectionary) and wouldn't force this on anybody," Saunders said. "I would be sensitive to their concerns."

"There is the reality of the biblical text in whole historical context.

When it was written, there was a male-dominated culture, and it is naive at best, downright head-in-sand denial to say that didn't have an effect on what was written. But we do not need to continue the same mistake. Women have always been an intricate part of the faith journey. An inclusive lectionary is beneficial to all of us."

Some feminists with Christian upbringing have a hard time staying within a religion so male-dominated, Saunders said. The new lectionary could speak to them.

"Someone who's had nothing but negative experiences with a father might have difficulties relating to God as father. This could open the door for them."

"Any religious group that arr literalists in terms of the Bible are not going to accept this. They will say it attempts to destroy Scripture," Saunders said. "Even middle-of-the-road folks, see it as an attempt to add material to Scripture."

"All pictorial representations of God in western art are masculine looking."

"Man had not had written word for 10,000 years, (so) to claim that God's word began when they wrote it down is absurd," Saunders said. "You need to take it in context. The Bible was written in a male-dominated society. Women were paid a lot of attention to in the Bible in spite of the culture."

(Editor's note: Some of this article's information was taken from Associated Press articles.)

Campus

Planetarium show set for Thursday

The November planetarium show, "Cosmos: The Spirit of Exploration," will be at 5 and 7 p.m. Thursday in Room 407 Cardwell Hall. The show, which will explore 15 billion years of cosmic history and spacecraft missions, will be open to the first 50 people. Ted Stalec, instructor of physics, will give the presentation.

Cancer expert to speak at seminar

Dr. Esther Hays, professor of medicine at the University of California at Los Angeles, will be the speaker for a seminar at 4 p.m. Friday in Room 221 Ackert Hall sponsored by the Division of Biology. The speech topic will be "A Concept of Tumor Progression in Mouse Models of T Cell Lymphoma."

Hays works in the Laboratory of Nuclear Medicine and Radiation at the university. She received her medical degree from Cornell University Medical College in 1952, then became a member of the UCLA medical faculty.

She has been instrumental in the establishment of many model systems for the development of RNA tumor virus-induced T cell lymphomas. Her work has covered both the mechanism of tumor progression and host anti-tumor immune responses.

Home ec alumni to meet Nov. 12

The annual meeting of the Kansas State University Home Economics Alumni Association will be Nov. 12 at Justin Hall.

Registration and tours will begin at 8:30 a.m. at Justin. The main program will begin at 9 a.m. and will include a welcome by Carol Kennett of Warrensburg, Mo., president of the association, reports and a business meeting at which new directors will be elected.

A luncheon will be at the University Ramada Inn at which Barbara Stowe, dean of the College of Home Economics, will give a presentation called "Update '83: Taking Charge of Change."

In the afternoon Barbara Reagan, associate professor of clothing and textiles and interior design, will present her research on effects of pesticides on carpeting and Ken Kennedy will discuss computer software for home economics programs.

Cancer center gets endowment

The Center for Basic Cancer Research at K-State will receive an annual income from an endowment established by the family of Roy A. Johnson of St. Paul, Minn., who died earlier this year of cancer. The gift was made by his wife, Catherine Johnson and his two sons, Kent and Terry Johnson.

Terry Johnson is the director of the center, which is part of the Division of Biology in the College of Arts and Sciences. The center provides an opportunity for scientists and students from diverse backgrounds to combine their skills to learn more about the cellular and molecular characteristics of cancer cells.

Proceeds from the endowment will fund a student cancer fellowship program and cancer research activities. Additions to the endowment may be made by contacting the K-State Foundation.

Senate aide overhaul to receive discussion

By The Collegian Staff

A bill that would revamp the senate aide program will receive first reading at Thursday's Student Senate meeting. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the Union Big Eight Room.

The bill would eliminate individual aides for senators and form a Senate Aide Committee of 20 members, which would be a pool of aides from which senators could draw assistance. The change would take effect at the beginning of the 1984-85 senate term.

Another bill that will receive first reading would require senators to visit University Activities Board-recognized groups and living groups, said Lori Leu, senate chairman.

Senate also will hear the first reading of a resolution that would endorse the city of Manhattan's action to designate November as "Rape Awareness Month."

Senate also will vote on the $750 funding bill for the University's literary magazine, Touchstone, and the $4,048.80 funding bill for agricultural judging teams.

Approval of Kirk Porteous, College of Arts and Science senator, as the new Finance Committee Chairman also will be decided.

Tom Rossen, a member of the Board of Regents Budget Staff, will speak during open session.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

FOR CAMPUS BULLETIN should be submitted in the Campus Bulletin mailbox outside the Collegian newsroom in Kedzie Hall.

STUDENT CANCER RESEARCH AWARDS: All undergraduate students in a health-related degree program are eligible to apply for a Student Cancer Research Award of $500. These awards have been made available by the Center for Basic Cancer Research, Division of Biology. Applications are now available in Ackert 233. Deadline is Nov. 28.

DEADLINE TO SIGN UP for the Society for Advancement of Management field trip is Friday. Register in the Management office in Calvin Hall. A $5 deposit is required to reserve a seat and will be refunded on the day of trip.

TODAY

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jeffrey A. Howard at 2:30 p.m. in Blumont 426. The topic is "Preschoolers' Empathy for Specific Affects and Their Social Interaction."

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD meets at 3:30 p.m. in Union stairroom 3.

COALITION FOR HUMAN RIGHTS meets at 7 p.m. in Union 207. Professor Jan Flora will speak about the Grenada invasion.

PI KAPPA ALPHA LITTLE SISTERS meet at 7:30 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures.

FRENCH TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union stairroom 2.

MINORITY ENGINEERING STUDY CENTER Peer Counselors will not meet.

HISTORY CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 208. Professor George Kren will speak on the Holocaust.

LATIN AMERICAN ISSUES FORUM meets at 11:45 a.m. in Eisenhower 20.

THURSDAY

FOOD SCIENCE COLLOQUIUM meets at 4 p.m. in Justin 149.

N.S.A.E. meets at 4:30 p.m. in the Durland Hall Pasley Lecture Hall.

KSU PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Calvin 102 for Royal Purple pictures and at 8 p.m. in Union 206.

Brother's
AGGIEVILLE

TONIGHT

WIZARD

Rock 'n Roll for LADIES NIGHT
—GIRLS FREE—
PLUS 1 FREE STEIN
PLUS $2.25 PITCHERS
7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

THURSDAY
DRINK 'N
DROWN with WIZARD

1120 Moro

539-9064

Aetna Life Insurance/Annuity
Rep.—TOM SEELE
• Supplemental Retirement Annuities
• Investment Options
• Free Transfer Privileges
• State Deferred Compensation
• Life Insurance
1335 Topeka Ave., Topeka, KS 613276-7085

comprehensive health associates
• free pregnancy tests
• outpatient abortion services
• alternatives counseling
• referrals
• gynecology
• contraception
1-415 & Rose Overland Park 642-3100

ESCAPE TO ASPEN/SNOWMASS WITH UPC TRAVEL
January 1-8, 1984

$323/295 (with your own equipment)

Trip Includes:
Roundtrip motor coach to and from Aspen/Snowmass, Colorado
1 night's lodging at Hotel Colorado in Glenwood Springs, Colorado
4 nights lodging at Woodbridge Condominiums in Snowmass, Colorado
4 days lift tickets (good at Snowmass, Aspen & Buttermilk Mountains)
4 days equipment rental
2 wild west parties with live bands
Pre-party
UPC tote bag

SPACES STILL AVAILABLE
SIGN-UP:
8 a.m.-3 p.m., Monday-Friday
Activities Center
3rd Floor K-State Union.

UPC logo

The Women of Kappa Alpha Theta

would like to congratulate our pool tournament winners:

Singles: Joe Rice (Sigma Nu)

Mixed: Lulo Huerta (Phi Kappa Theta)

Doubles: Bridget Cunningham

(Kappa Alpha Theta)

Doubles: Jeff Henderson (Acacia)
Rob Christie

TONIGHT
BBQ BUFFET
RIBS, BEEF & CHICKEN
$3.95

All you can eat
5:30-7:30

At the Ramada Inn 17th & Anderson

LATE NITE
HAPPY HOUR!

• 99¢ Well
Drinks
Mon.-Thurs.
10:00-12:00

Reciprocating With Aggie Station
1215 Moro

BUSHWACKER'S
• THE • FUNDRIKERY

DAILY SPECIALS
Open at 4:00 p.m.

Monday—Watch Monday Night Football and enjoy our famous 1/2 lb. Bushwacker Burger. Specially priced Mondays at $2.25.

Tuesday—Italian Sausage Sub! A Philadelphia-style hoagie. It's the Best! $2.00 w/chips.

Wednesday—Steak Night! A generous 10 oz. cut of Kansas Top Sirloin with Baked Potato or Fries. Special at $4.95

Thursday—Coming Soon! Classical Music Night.

Friday—Happy Hour Hors d'oeuvre Buffet. 5-7 p.m.
Smuggler Burgers 50¢ each from 8-11 p.m.

Saturday—Our Famous Chicken Burrito for just $2.

531 N. Manhattan

A Reciprocating Club
Bar 539-9727

Office 539-4321

BON HOFFER—
A LIFE OF CHALLENGE
FILM DOCUMENTARY

The Holocaust and the church—
A pastor's response

WED., NOV. 2, 7:00 p.m.
LITTLE THEATRE, UNION

Response: Dr. Merlin Gustafson
KSU, Political Science

Sponsored by Lutheran Campus Ministries 539-4451

Kansas State COLLEGIAN

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications, Inc., Kansas State University except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods.

OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-4555. Newsroom phone number is 532-4556, advertising 532-4560.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

Editor.....Paul Hanson
Managing Editor.....Sandy Lang
Photography Editor.....Jeff Taylor
Advertising Manager.....John McGrath

EARN OVER $1,000 A MONTH
THROUGH YOUR SENIOR YEAR

If you're a Math, Chemistry, Physics, or Engineering major, the Navy has a program you should know about. It's called the Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate (NUPOC) Program, and if qualified you could earn $1,000 per month, for up to 24 months prior to graduation.

SOME OF THE BENEFITS INCLUDE:

- $3,000 Bonus upon acceptance
- 1 year of graduate level education
- Unequaled hands-on training and experience using the most sophisticated up to date equipment
- Immediate management responsibility
- $23,000 starting salary—over $42K annually after five years
- Free medical and dental care.

The NUPOC program can help you not only to complete college, it can also be the start of an exciting career. If you'd like to find out more, contact your placement office or call,

ENGINEERING OFFICERS PROGRAM
800-821-5110

NAVY OFFICERS GET RESPONSIBILITY FAST.

FINALLY! IT'S OUR GRAND OPENING!

FREE DRAWING!
YOU MUST ENTER TO WIN!

RENT ANY MOVIE OF YOUR CHOICE
VHS & BETA
ONLY $1.50 PER DAY!

NO LIMIT
NO Clubs, Fees or Dues

Sylvania VCR $499.99

Sale Good Only At:
NATIONAL VIDEO

Westloop Shopping Center
1130 Westloop Place
The Arcade Behind Calhoun's
537-0089
OFFER EXPIRES 11/6/83

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

Government allows whale testing; environmental concerns cry foul

By The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — A marine park won federal permission Tuesday to conduct tests on 100 killer whales, despite protests from biologists who said the research could upset a global whale-hunting moratorium that begins in 1986.

Approval of tests for five years was granted to Sea World by the National Marine Fisheries Service, the agency responsible for safeguarding the whales under the 1972 Marine Mammal Protection Act.

The park also may capture, display and breed 10 of the mammals.

Alan Reichman, a spokesman for Greenpeace, which opposes the whale roundup, said the project will remove the United States from a role of "a world leader" in protecting whales "to a renegade whaler."

He said legal action was being considered along with deployment of a boat to disrupt the hunt, a familiar Greenpeace tactic.

"We question Sea World's motives and the integrity of National Oceanic Atmosphere Administration and the National Marine Fisheries Service," Reichman said. The service is a branch of the NOAA.

The roundup likely won't begin before next summer, Sea World spokeswoman Jackie O'Connor said.

Sea World said the permit application was "perhaps the most fully documented requested ever to be considered by the service" and "was supported broadly by people in the zoological and scientific communities as well as by the general public."

Ted Crail, spokesman for the Animal Protection Institute of Sacramento, said the project jeopardizes a five-year moratorium on whale hunting effective 1986. "This is now giving the Soviet Union and Japan a way to wiggle out of it," he said.

The permit restricts the types of tests that can be done and spells out the consequences if any of the captured whales die.

Fire aboard aircraft carrier kills six

By The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Fire raced through the main power plant of the aircraft carrier Ranger early Tuesday as it operated in the Arabian Sea, killing six men and injuring 35 others, the Navy said.

It was the worst Navy accident in two years, and the second fatal incident aboard the 1,071-foot Ranger since July, but the carrier continued its operations, officials said.

The fire broke out at 12:50 a.m. EST (9:50 a.m. local time), and was extinguished within an hour, Lt. Cmdr. Tom Jurkowsky said in San Diego where the ship is based.

Names of the dead were withheld until their families could be notified. The injured suffered smoke inhalation, minor burns and heat exhaustion, but none of the injuries was serious and all wounded were treated aboard the ship, Jurkowsky said.

The fire was discovered in the ship's main power plant, which contains two boilers, and in an adjoining equipment room, Jurkowsky said.

The flames were extinguished within a half-hour, he said, but there was a flareup, and the fire was not completely doused until about an hour after it was discovered.

The extent of damage will be determined by a Navy board of inquiry, Jurkowsky said.

The conventionally powered 85,000-ton ship, carrying 5,000 men and 80 airplanes, was continuing operations, with six of its eight boilers and shafts in working condition, Jurkowsky said.

The ship was continuing flight operations and was within aircraft-launch range of the Persian Gulf, Jurkowsky said.

The 26-year-old ship arrived in the Arabian Sea Oct. 3 after leaving Central America, where it had taken part in a "show-the-flag" exercise off the coast of Nicaragua.

The Ranger left San Diego July 16 on its way to the western Pacific and Indian Ocean and was diverted to the Pacific Coast of Central America.

After that operation, the Ranger resumed its voyage to the Indian Ocean on Aug. 12 and spent some time in the western Pacific, where it underwent repairs from a collision, then headed to the Arabian Sea.

Two days after the Ranger left San Diego, a sailor was blown overboard by exhaust from jet blast on the flight deck and was declared lost at sea.

Have story
or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

COIN-A-MATIC

All New Equipment
8 a.m.-9 p.m. Everyday
1615 Yuma
(Behind Kreem Kup)

What—

Pancake Feed

When—Nov. 6th

Time—5:00-

8:00 p.m.

Place—Kramer Hall

at St. Isadors

711 Denison

Cost—$2.00

Organization—

Newmans

SAVINGS COUPON

Buy any one Ice Cream item with this coupon at regular price and get another of equal value FREE. One coupon per customer. Cones, dishes, sundaes, shakes, etc.

Offer good through Sunday Nov. 6th
Denison & Claflin Corner

BUSHWACKERS

• THE • FUNDRIKERY

Wednesday

Tonic Nite

all tonic drinks $1

Happy Hour

2 Fers on Hiballs 75¢ drawn

52 blended drinks

Drink of the week:

THE SIX

SHOOTER

A Reciprocating Club
Bar 539-9727

Office 539-4321

531 N. Manhattan

Walking Shorts

WALKING SHORTS
for football games or just for fun. Available in many fall shades.

Argyle Vest - 35.00
Pin Striped Shirt - 35.00
Wide Wale Corduroy
Shorts - 20.00 to 30.00

1130 Moro
Aggieville

carousel

Open
Mon.-Sat. 10-6:00
Thurs. 10-8:30
Sun. 12-5

Attention AED Members!

Muscular Dystrophy
Association
Representatives
Donna Harris
and Randy Bay
will speak about medical aspects of M.D., fundraising and donation use.

Thursday, Nov. 3
7:00 p.m.
Union 205

The Hair Experts
1209 MORO
MANHATTAN, KS 66502
776-4455

PICK YOUR COLOR

WITH
$5.00 OFF

Any color service including highlight, lowlights, tints, color blend and special effects (small).

Bring this coupon into our expert hair colorists,
we will create an exciting new you.

OFFER EXPIRES NOV. 30.

The KSU History Club

presents:

Professor George M. Kren speaking on the Holocaust.

Wed., November 2
at 7:00 p.m. in Union Rm. 208.

All are welcome!

Men & Women's Glee Club

performing at
All Faiths Chapel
Thurs., Nov. 3 8 p.m.

Free

N.A.U.T.I.L.U.S

"Life begins with a thirty minute workout."

As Simple As
1...2...3...4

1. The workout... on the finest equipment in the world, endorsed by professionals in every physical fitness discipline, including the medical profession. The results are automatic.
Time: 30 minutes

Plus...

2. Jacuzzi... penetrates the skin, opens pores, and gives you a deep massage. The 106 degree mineral water increases circulation and pulse rate.

Time: 5 minutes

3. Sauna... It cleanses bacteria and brings natural oils to the surface of the skin, prevents muscle soreness, and improves circulation by relaxing nervous tension.

Time: 10 minutes

4. Shower... the perfect finish. A hot shower, cool rinse, dress, and you're ready to go. You'll always leave feeling better about yourself.

Time: 15 minutes

Nautilus
Fitness Center

where a minimum of time gives you the maximum in results

776-1654

1122 Laramie Aggieville

SHAMPOO

36¢ QUART

When you buy a concentrate—makes 16 quarts.
Only $5.97

GENERIC BRAND

REDKEN

SHAMPOO &

CONDITIONERS SAVE

ABOUT 30%

OVER THE

NAME BRAND

AVEC

ALOE VERA

HAIR SPRAY

16 oz.

$1.99

NATURELLE

APPLE WITH

PECTIN

SHAMPOO

QUART SIZE

$7.49

PROFESSIONAL

PERMS

STARTING AT

$3.79

DO IT YOURSELF

AND

SAVE

LA MAUR

APPLE PECTIN

SHAMPOO

QUART SIZE

$10.95

OVER 1000 OTHER BEAUTY ITEMS AVAILABLE AT GLAMOUR WORLD BEAUTY SUPPLY

1104 WATERS, WEST ON ANDERSON
BEHIND CURTIS MATHIS T.V.

10%

OFF STOREWIDE WITH COPY OF THIS AD

DAILY 9:30-6 SAT. 10-5

537-3233

BOOK SALE

NOW IN PROGRESS!

You are the one who can cash in on the savings of this overstock clearance sale. Selected hardback and paperback books (new and used) have been priced at up to

50% OFF

to make room for our new holiday season stock. Selection includes GENERAL READING, bestsellers, fiction, non-fiction, and others. Come in and see for yourself!

Selections are limited. Sale ends Nov. 13.

Varney's
BOOK STORE
IN AGGIEVILLE

9-9
MON.-SAT.

12-5
SUN.

Yes, we've got more than textbooks!

Small local businesses may suffer

Now that Manhattan has received preliminary approval of the Urban Development Action Grant for its downtown mall, the focus shifts toward what will happen to the businesses — more than 80 of them in all — that will be forced to move should the mall become a reality.

The owners of those businesses are concerned with a number of issues, and rightly so. All too often, small local businesses get stepped on in favor of a larger project. We hope the same will not happen in Manhattan.

Where will the businesses move to? Most have said they would not be able to afford the rent in the mall. Is the city really prepared to take on the immense problem of helping the businesses resettle? We fear that many owners will be given a token payment and left out in the cold, without proper consideration of the real value of their businesses' locations.

We can conscientiously question whether those who pushed so hard for the mall are really concerned about the local businesses, and their future actions will answer our questions, now that the mall has become nearer to reality.

Will the city give the businessmen a fair settlement for their forced resettlement? A number of the businesses have recently expanded their space and operations. Will all their past work and investment be lost when the mall moves in and they have to move on?

The city officials may have gotten their argument past HUD, but they have yet to convince many of the downtown merchants that the mall is desirable. The city bears a great responsibility to the businessmen who have kept downtown going for the past years.

If the mall is built, will it attract enough businesses to compensate for those which are forced to leave? And will as many of these new businesses be locally owned as the ones that went before? We doubt it. The city needs to be fair to its businessmen and consider what is best for them, as well as for the people of Manhattan. The small businesses should not have to suffer merely because a few powerful people want a mall.

Once again, we doubt that the mall, attractive as it may turn out to appear when entering Manhattan across the K-177 viaduct, is in the best interests of the city as a whole. We think it is more a benefit to a few people who have interests in the area. Clearly, the small businesses are against it. Apparently, city officials who support the mall are representing the special interests, not the entire city.

One battle in the downtown mall saga is over. But the real war has yet to begin.

New sod worth the trouble

The grass is always greener...

At times, we must put up with, and naturally gripe about, short-term inconveniences which are needed for improvements. The thick new carpet of turf sprouting on the field of Memorial Stadium is an example of this.

Though we wondered about the propriety and necessity of closing the field earlier this year, we now agree that it was a wise move. The clumps of mud and sand which once constituted the playing field there are being transformed into a green carpet of grass.

While we are sometimes quick to condemn actions because of the immediate, short-term hassles they bring about, we must say that the new sod will be well worth the wait. It is a great improvement over the "grass" that has been replaced, and one that will benefit students in the long run. We think the soccer club and other sports groups that use the field will agree.

We often question the priority lawn reseeding and other cosmetic improvements are given among campus projects. But we are pleased with the final results. A walk across campus confirms the opinion that the campus looks 100 percent better with green, rather than brown, lawns.

It proves that just because we are referred to as "Silo Tech" by the school down the river, our campus does not have to look like pasture.

Paul Hanson, Editor

Brad Gillispie, Editorial Page Editor

Several different concepts

All of us take ourselves too seriously most of the time. Oh, there may be a few people who never take themselves seriously. I've heard about those people — but I've never met them.

What this world needs is a lot more satire.

In the interests of developing bigger and better satire, I hereby suggest the formation of the Society for the Prevention of All Things (SPAT). I'll be the first president. Our first order of business will be to prohibit any further meetings.

JOEL CLIMENHAGA
Collegian Columnist

bottom, who is the head of the society.

"See here, you slack-salted transubstantiated interdigital geranium, you rantipole sacrosacral rock-barnacle you, if you give me any of your caprantipolene paragastrular megalopterotic jactitation, I'll make a lamellibranchiate gymnomixine parabolic lepidopteroid out of you! What diacritical right has a binominal opendactile advoutrous holoblastic rhizopod like you got with your trinocinal ustilaginous Westphalian holocaust blocking up the teleostean way for, anyway? If you give me any more of your lunarian, snortomanic hyperbolic pylorotomy, I'll skive you into a megalopterotic diatomiferous auxospore! You queasy Zoroastrian son of a helicopter hypotrachelium, you, shut your logarithmic epicycloidal mouth! You let this monopolitarian macrocosmic helciumform procession go by and wait right here in the analogical street. And no more of your hedonistic primordial supervivrescence, you rectangular quillet-eating, vice-presidential amoeboid, either!"

I wonder what the truck driver said in reply. Well, we'll let that pass. In any event, thank you, Mr. Marks, for this fine example of cursing at its non-profanest best.

In response to my column "Uses of Language," Don Marks, journalism teacher at Manhattan High School, sent me the following item (well, actually, he didn't send it to me. Instead, he gave it to my youngest daughter, instructing her to give it to me).

Mr. Marks writes: "The author Gelett Burgess was a master of word creation. In a passage from his 'Find the Women,' there is a truck driver who has, by chance, gotten in the way of a parade organized by a society to ban profanity. The driver is addressed by the angry Dr. Hop-an endeavor wherein the history and lore is as vital as the contemporary event, precisely because of the way that lore is inscribed on the individual psyche."

I think that's a very interesting concept.

Felber goes on his letter to call my attention to two agencies in this area devoted to baseball — the Society for American Baseball Research and the Manhattan-Flush Baseball League. The first is a national organization devoted to the furtherance of the study of the history of baseball and its impact on culture. The second is a light-hearted recreational tabletop baseball league engaged in purely for the fun of the experience. Each organization has several K-State faculty members active in it.

As a result of receiving this letter, I had coffee with Bill one afternoon recently. It was a pleasant being able to talk baseball with someone who really knows more about it than I do.

Have you ever wondered who's right?

You can stop wondering. I'm going to tell you who's right.

Everybody is right!

If you don't believe me, just ask anybody. Ask a Cuban who's right. He'll tell you he is. Ask a Russian who's right. He'll tell you he is. Ask a Republican. Ask a Democrat. Ask a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses, a Mormon, a Southern Baptist. Ask Reagan. Ask Jesse Helms. Ask Walter Mondale. Ask Jesse Jackson. Each one of them will tell you he's right. Ask anybody. Anybody will tell you he (or she) is right.

Have you ever seen a booth set up in the Student Union proclaiming, "We are wrong! Don't put a quarter in this cup! Go away! This is not the right place to be!"

Tell you what, why don't you and me try that? Set up a booth telling everybody we're wrong. That'll make two of us who are wrong. Since we will be admitting that we are wrong and the rest of the world right, that will make us both right. Right?

The surrogate mother issue

Do you ever get the feeling that the Kansas Legislature takes one step forward, only to go two steps back?

Under a bill adopted by an interim committee for submission to the 1984 Kansas Legislature, single fathers would be prohibited from contracting with a surrogate mother and artificial insemination for single women would be illegal.

The bill also would eliminate adoption proceedings currently needed where a surrogate mother is involved — automatically giving custody of the child to its natural father and his wife 48 hours after birth.

While I agree with the elimination of adoption proceedings, I believe that the legislature will certainly be taking steps backward if the law is passed which prohibits all single men from hiring a surrogate. Furthermore, eliminating single women from artificial insemination is absolutely ludicrous. The best this bill will do is discriminate against single men who wish to be fathers. Obviously, they can't in this case discriminate against women; it's pretty tough to keep a single woman from having a baby if she wants one badly enough.

What the legislature is doing is sticking its nose into private family matters, where it doesn't belong.

First of all, it makes more sense to me for a single woman to be a surrogate mother. The strain on the spouse of a married woman who chooses to be a surrogate mother must be intense. A single woman would not have this problem. She also may look at the arrangement from a more businesslike perspective. Married women, on the other hand, already involved in family life, may become more attached to the unborn child, making it more difficult for her to give the child up.

DARCY WARD
Collegian Columnist

I am not saying that a single woman would not become attached to her child. I'm simply saying that the situation might be less complicated where fewer people are involved.

A woman who chooses to have a baby for another family is a very special person indeed. She need not be married. Single women are perfectly capable of having children.

Time and time again the legislature acts on matters it should not have a hand in. The legislators talk about protecting children. What children? If this law passes, there will be fewer children available for adoption than ever before. The adoption applications are already longer than the arm of the law. Surrogate mothers are, for many couples, the last resort to what is the most important thing in their lives — having a family.

Surrogate parentage is a legal contract between three people — a husband, his wife and the surrogate mother. It is a very delicate contract; one that too many laws may break.

Perhaps what the legislature is trying to do is prevent single women from having babies of their own by means of artificial insemination in the same way they keep single people from adopting children. It's hard to disagree with this, and there are already too many children with single parents. But single parents can make good parents and should be given the opportunity if they really want it.

A single person who hires a surrogate must want a child very much. The cost of having a child in this way is astonishing. People who can afford to pay the price of having a child can certainly afford to raise the child.

I agree that some laws are needed in the area of surrogate parents. All parties need to be protected. But these laws should be based on a business perspective — not a moral one. They should protect the rights of all three parties — the surrogate mother, the natural father and the child.

Laws should be made to protect the natural father from a surrogate mother who changes her mind and decides to keep the baby. Provisions also should be made if the natural father changes his mind. What happens to the baby then? A contract is a contract; if you can't stick to it, don't sign it.

These are the kinds of issues the legislature should consider — not who can and who cannot be parties in a surrogate arrangement.

The legal issues concerning surrogates belong in the legislature; the moral issues should be left to the people involved.

1983 APPLICATION FOR COLLEGIATE ADMISSION
TYPE OR PRINT ALL INFORMATION: (CRAYONS FOR ATHLETES ACCEPTABLE)
FULL LEGAL NAME: JIM A. FOOTBALL PLAYER		CLASSIFICATION: <input type="checkbox"/> NEW FRESHMAN <input type="checkbox"/> TRANSFER <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> V.I.P. ATHLETE <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
TERM AND YEAR OF EXPECTED ENROLLMENT:	<input type="checkbox"/> FALL <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> WINTER <input type="checkbox"/> SPRING	SOCIAL SECURITY NO. ?	JERSEY NO. 22
ADDRESS TO WHICH ADMISSIONS INFO SHOULD BE SENT: STRAIGHT TO YOUR ATHLETIC DIRECTOR!!		Ht. 6-3 Wt. 230 T.D.S. 13 OVER 1000
WHAT WILL BE YOUR FIELD OF STUDY AT THIS INSTITUTION? A GRIDIRON 100 YARDS LONG!
WHAT IS YOUR GOAL AT THIS INSTITUTION? <input type="checkbox"/> BACHELORS DEGREE <input type="checkbox"/> ASSOCIATE DEGREE <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> NFL CONTRACT
INDICATE TEST SCORES:	ACT 27 SAT 700 40YD DASH 14.3 AVG. YDS PER CARRY 8.8 POUNDS IN BENCH PRESS 300 VERTICAL LEAP 42"
ARE YOU ELIGIBLE FOR VETERAN'S BENEFITS? NO! PROBABLY JUST ALUMNI ONES!!
HAS ANY RELATIVE ATTENDED THIS COLLEGE? DO RICH ALUMNI COUNT?
HIGH SCHOOL G.P.A. ALL TRANSCRIPTS ALTERED!!
CHECK AWARDS AND HONORS RECEIVED: NATIONAL MERIT SCHOLAR <input type="checkbox"/> NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY <input type="checkbox"/> ALL-STATE FOOTBALL <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> ALL-AMERICAN FOOTBALL <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> PLAYBOY ALL-AMERICAN TEAM <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> TRANS-AM <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> LAUNDRY MONEY (IN THOUSANDS) ABOUT 5 A BLONDE <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> TWO!!
LIST ALL COURSES YOU PLAN TO TAKE UPON ENROLLMENT:		CREDITS
COMPLETE COURSE TITLE
BEGINNING FOOTBALL BASICS!!		LOTS!!
INTERMEDIATE FOOTBALL BASICS!!		"
ADVANCED FOOTBALL BASICS!!		"
THE HISTORY OF FOOTBALL!!		"
FOOTBALL: IS IT ART?		"

The price of too much football

WASHINGTON — For the last few Monday nights, nearly three million red-blooded Americans have ignored professional football. Such disloyalty, representative of wider dissatisfaction with the game, is doubtless breeding chaos in television network huddles.

The telltale signs of football flight have been visible to the experts for about a month. Games aren't selling out. Pre-sold season seats are going empty. Meanwhile, in living rooms, not only are armchair quarterbacks bypassing "the game" on Monday night, but they're turning to other entertainments on Sunday and Saturday afternoon as well.

Of course, football historians will tell you that the game has been slumping since last season's eight-week strike. In 1982, A.C. Nielsen's "season weekly rating" for professional football broadcasts fell an unprecedented one rating point (or, roughly 838,000 households) after a decade of annual increases. Two factors contributed to the drop-off: One, fans couldn't make sense of the truncated "two-season" schedule; second, betting, much of which is done on televised games, never picked up after the strike.

Last summer, as the 1983 season approached, advance ticket sales were noticeably below average. Recalling last season's weakening trend, some observers suggested that only an above-average enthusiast could, for National Football League moguls, make this season worth remembering. So far, there's no sign of a resurgence.

For one, people seem less interested in watching big men in pads fall down and get up for hours on end. Viewing on Sunday afternoon is down anywhere from four (CBS) to 19 percent (ABC) from 1981 levels. A.C. Nielsen reports that Sunday viewing dropped from a 22.2 share Sept. 11 to a 15.6 share Oct. 9. (A "share" is the percentage of households with TV sets on at any given period.)

MAXWELL GLEN & CODY SHEARER

Meanwhile, college ball hasn't picked up the slack. This year, viewing has fallen 15 percent under that of last season, which, despite the strike, wasn't anything special.

As if to verify Nielsen's estimates, Broadcasting magazine reported last week that television blackouts are up 64 percent this season over 1981 (NFL home games are usually broadcast locally when the game sells out 72 hours in advance of kickoff). Whereas only 22 of 70 games were blacked out after five weeks in 1981, 34 of 70 contests were blacked out during the same period this season.

Perhaps most telling, ABC's 14-year-old anathema to the happy housewife, "Monday Night Football," is taking the biggest thrashing of all. One in five "Monday Night" regulars has found other pursuits. One network executive called this "a considerable drop." Indeed, it is perhaps not coincidental that "Monday Night's" often insulting Howard Cosell was passed over this week for the likes of Dandy Don, the Gaffer, and the Juice.

Neither network nor NFL officials have much to say about the new "gridiron gap." No one seems willing to lay blame to the possible suspects: the ongoing rash of coke freaks and drug busts among team ranks; allegations by former Baltimore Colts defensive end Bubba Smith that Super Bowl III was rigged; suspicions that now-sidelined gambler-quarterback Art Schlichter may not have acted alone.

Yet perhaps ABC, which is suffering the most, knows who's most to blame. It was their reportedly $19-million, two-year contract that helped give birth to the United States Football League last year. Having invented football without a season timeout, the network is now paying the price of overexposure. This year, the USFL season opener is scheduled for one week after the NFL's Jan. 29 finale, the Pro Bowl.

If viewers are getting sick of football now, they'll be in a collective coma by Easter. Hence, a multimillion dollar shakeout of advertisers, franchises and, inevitably, broadcasters seems likely while Americans' passion for football cools. We couldn't think of a better tonic for the game.

Faculty may become new budget adviser

By The Collegian Staff

Faculty may be involved in intermediate-level decisions affecting the University budget for fiscal year 1986, President Duane Acker announced Tuesday during a press conference.

"We are in the progress of talking with the Faculty Senate and leadership staff to involve them in intermediate budget planning," Acker said.

He said the ideas of the faculty which were given informally during past budget-planning sessions have been helpful, and the recruitment of senators' and others' ideas is now a formalization of the process.

Acker said planning has already been completed for fiscal year 1985, but faculty ideas will probably be sought in the future, not only in fiscal year 1986.

"We'll do well if we can involve our staff in not only the University, but the college level as well," Acker said.

In reference to the 35 programs cut Oct. 20 by the Kansas Board of Regents from regents schools' offerings, Acker said, "The cuts will have no operating effect on the University or its students. The titles closed out were those not used by our students."

The regents approved the discontinuation and merger of programs in architecture, engineering and physical and library sciences and eliminated all bachelor's degrees in general studies in the physical sciences and the interdisciplinary associate science degree in natural sciences.

"Students simply major in these fields (instead of obtaining general or associate degrees)," Acker said.

Acker also announced that Gov. John Carlin and John Montgomery, chairman of the regents, will speak Nov. 9 at a seminar for University vice presidents, deans, associate deans and department heads. The two will discuss the state's expectations of the regent system and how these expectations apply to K-State.

He said the seminar, the second this year, is "to pull people away from their daily administration tasks and to look at issues affecting national and state leaders."

Acker said the meeting will also help improve communication among participants about important issues and recognize the participants for their service and leadership.

City commission discusses tavern law

By LEE WHITE
Collegian Reporter

Interpretation of a city ordinance governing how close to schools taverns can be located occupied much of the Manhattan City Commission's agenda Tuesday night.

Local bar owner Charles Busch requested the commission's interpretation of the ordinance as it relates to Charlie's Neighborhood Bar, an establishment he is building in the First Center at Claflin Road and Denison Avenue.

The tavern would be located near the Institute of Religion which is owned and operated by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The ordinance prohibits taverns within 200 feet of "any city or parochial school ground." The issue facing commissioners was whether the institute constitutes a parochial school.

City Attorney Bill Frost said the law could be interpreted in two ways: that a parochial school must operate like a public school to be considered part of the ordinance or that the ordinance was intended literally, thus including the institute.

"I will acknowledge there is a literal interpretation," Frost said. "I think that's too broad. I don't think that was the intent of the ordinance."

Commissioners Gene Klingler, Rick Mann and Dave Fiser agreed with Frost's recommendation, but Commissioner Suzanne Lindamood and Mayor Wanda Fateley interpreted the ordinance more literally than their colleagues.

Some of the discussion centered on the definition of a school ground, especially if the ordinance was intended to mean a playground or simply property.

"Any time you have an ordinance this unclear and ambiguous, it should be cleared up," Fateley said.

"I could agree with Commissioner Lindamood's interpretation."

Dick Seaton, attorney for the First National Bank, owner of the shopping center where the bar would be located, encouraged the commission to accept Frost's recommendation. Terry Arthur, attorney for Busch, did the same and asked that the bar be exempted from any ordinance change because his client already has $45,000 invested in the business.

Two representatives of the institute asked commissioners to include their property in the interpretation of a parochial school. Although classes at the institute aren't taught on the same schedule as those in public schools, the representatives said they oppose alcohol use in the area and consider their facility sacred.

Commissioners took no binding action on the matter.

In other action, Fateley issued a proclamation making November Rape Awareness Month. The joint resolution was approved by the Riley County Commission at its Oct. 24 meeting and is expected to gain approval of Ogden city commissioners today.

Commissioners also approved a request from Downtown Manhattan Inc. to abolish metered parking from Nov. 25 to Jan. 3 and institute two-hour parking for the Christmas shopping season.

A similar request from the Aggieville Merchants Association was tabled until the next meeting because commissioners and staff couldn't agree on the wording of a motion including both areas.

Lawyers request injunction for GM X-cars

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Government lawyers have asked a judge to order General Motors Corp. to tell owners of all 1980-model X-cars that their brakes are defective.

In a request Monday to U.S. District Judge Thomas P. Jackson, the Justice Department sought a preliminary injunction against the automaker "to prevent accidents, injuries and deaths that might otherwise occur" while Jackson hears the government's lawsuit to force GM to recall 1.1 million cars. The recall would involve all 1980 models in the X-body series, including Chevrolet Citation, Pontiac Phoenix, Buick Skylark and Oldsmobile Omega.

An injunction is "particularly important as winter approaches" and highways get slicker, and as road salt corrodes brake parts, the government said.

When it sued in August to force a recall, the government said the safety administration had 1,740 complaints of rear brakes locking prematurely. The agency said it knew of 71 injuries and 15 deaths, and Paris said Tuesday those were still the latest available figures.

GM has made two recalls totaling almost 300,000 X-cars from the 1980 model year to change the linings in the rear brakes. The government contends that is not enough and all the cars should be recalled.

POSTER & PANES

"GRAND OPENING"

OCT. 31 to NOV. 5

*FINE ART POSTERS

*DRY MOUNTING

*LEADED STAINED GLASS

*FRAMING

10% OFF ANY POSTER

COME BY, BROWSE,

REGISTER FOR

FREE DRAWINGS.

1112 LARAMIE
AGGIEVILLE

ALLEY SPECIALS WED. DOUBLE TROUBLE

2 Fers or Tall Doubles 10-12:30

THURS. SUDS NITE

55¢ Draws $2.00 Pitchers

80¢ Bottles $1.25 Imports

FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR

$1.25 House Drinks 55¢ Draws

Hors d'oeuvres 4-8

SAT. LATE NITE HAPPY HOUR

$1.25 House Drinks

55¢ Draws $2.00 Pitchers 10-12

TAVERN SPECIALS WED. FISHBOWL FEVER

70¢ Fishbowls 7-midnight

FRIDAY TGIF

HAPPY HOUR ALL DAY

10:30 a.m.-7:00 p.m.

SAT. KEEP ON TRACKIN TO MEL'S

Go Cats! Beat Oklahoma St.

"UPC... We do it right!"

UPCOMING EVENTS

Wednesday, Nov. 2

Kaleidoscope—The Chosen:
FH 7:30 p.m.

Thursday, Nov. 3

Kaleidoscope—The Chosen: LT 3:30,
FH 7:30 p.m.

Friday, Nov. 4

Feature Films—Frances: FH 6:30 &
9:30 p.m.

Saturday, Nov. 5

Feature Films—Francis Covers the
Big Town: FH 2 p.m.

Feature Films—Frances: FH 6:30 &
9:30 p.m.

Sunday, Nov. 6

Feature Films—Francis Goes to the Races: FH 2 p.m.

Feature Films—Francis Joins the
WACS: FH 7 p.m.

Monday, Nov. 7

Arts—Theatre Display by the KSU
Theatre Department: 2nd Floor
Showcase thru Nov. 18

Arts—Exclusive Art Prints Inc. print sale: 1st Floor Concourse, 9 a.m.-
5 p.m. thru Nov. 11

Special Events—"Caricatures
Unlimited": Union Courtyard
11 a.m.-3 p.m., $1.50

Tuesday, Nov. 8

Special Events—"Caricatures
Unlimited": Union Courtyard
11 a.m.-3 p.m., $1.50

Coffeehouse—Nooner—Park
Avenue, Contemporary Rock:

Catskeller 12 noon

Outdoor Rec—Caving Info Meeting:
Union Rm. 213, 7 p.m.

Reminder

Stray Cats tickets available Monday-
Friday from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. in Union
1st Floor Box Office. Ticket prices:
$10, $9.50, $9.

Applications are available for UPC
Promotions Chairperson in Activities
Center and are due Wednesday,
Nov. 9. For more information, call 532-6571.

Wed., Nov. 2
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
Thurs., Nov. 3
3:30 p.m. Little Theatre
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
$1.50

PG

"The Chosen is a first-rate adaptation of Chaim Potok's novel of friendship between two young Jewish men of widely different religio-cultural upbringings and their individual relationships with strong fathers. Powerfully and artistically told. Steiger gives an exceptional performance as the somewhat tyrannical but loving patriarch."

—Variety

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

Friday and Saturday
November 4 and 5
6:30 and 9:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.50

k-state union
upc feature films

CAVING Nov. 19-20

Spend a weekend of underground fun exploring 3 caves in central Missouri.

Info Meeting: Tues., Nov. 8
7:00 p.m. Union Rm. 213
Sign-up begins Wed., Nov. 9
Activities Center, 3rd Floor,
Union

k-state union
upc outdoor rec.

BARBARA BAILEY HUTCHISON Performing Contemporary Acoustic Pop

Thursday, Nov. 10
K-State Union
Catskeller, 8 p.m.
Doors open
at 7:30 p.m.
Admission $2.00

"She'll make your socks roll up and down!"

k-state union
upc coffeehouse

Francis The Talking Mule

Saturday, Nov. 5
2:00 p.m.
Francis Covers the Big
Town
Sunday, Nov. 6
2:00 p.m.
Francis Goes to the Races
7:00 p.m.
Francis Joins the WACS
Forum Hall, $1.50
Rated G

k-state union
upc feature films

k-state union
program council

BE A ROCKABILLY REBEL

Briefly

By the Associated Press

He/she loses Miss Teen-ager title

SAN MARINO — A raven-haired, shapely contestant bearing the name Silvia Sossi won the hearts of judges at the Miss Teen-ager beauty contest in this tiny mountain republic — until an identity card betrayed she was a he.

Miss Sossi, 18, who charmed the jury Monday with a song and dance number to the tune "Play it, Johnny," looked like the winner when organizers discovered her sex-change documents had not been approved.

Sossi, whose papers carried the name Fabio, screamed to the judges, "You should judge me on what I am and not what I was." But she was overruled and eliminated from the contest.

Joan Rivers' libel suit dismissed

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. — A libel suit filed by comedian Joan Rivers against Philadelphia Daily News columnist Jill Porter has been dismissed.

Bucks County Judge Paul Beckert ruled Monday that Miss Porter was within her constitutional rights when she wrote a June 6 column critical of Miss Rivers' efforts to build 300 luxury condominiums, a movie studio and a golf club in the scenic county.

The ruling means the loud comedian loses twice, because a county judge last summer ruled against the building plan.

Miss Porter wrote that the comedian's partner, developer Thomas Pileggi of Warrington, Pa., showed a "damn the public" attitude about local zoning laws.

The judge called the column a "constitutionally privileged expression of the writer's opinion and ... not capable of defamatory meaning."

Jury awards $2 million to patient

KANSAS CITY — A Wyandotte County District Court jury has awarded a county resident $2 million for injuries she sustained during an operation at Bethany Medical Center in 1980.

The jury, in a 10-2 vote Monday, decided that Dr. C. Thomas Hitchcock, the defendant in the suit, was negligent in an operation performed on Lillian Walters.

Walters charged she received permanent injuries as a result of Hitchcock's negligence in cutting her esophagus during a thyroid operation, in operating in the wrong place in the throat area and in failing to recognize the negligent cutting and to repair it immediately.

The alleged injuries include the loss of use of Walter's esophagus. Hitchcock said he was not negligent. He contended that Mrs. Walters' injury resulted from an abnormal physical condition.

Her lawyers, Felix G. Kancel and Gloria Vusich, said that as a result of the injuries doctors had to transplant part of Walters' colon into her throat so she could swallow food.

Walters had sought $4 million in the case.

Girl injured as school bus wrecks

SOUTH COFFEYVILLE, Okla. — A 10-year-old girl received a serious head injury and seven other youngsters were hurt Tuesday when the brakes on a spare school bus failed and it overturned, officials said.

Cheryl Greenfield was hospitalized in stable condition in the intensive care unit of Jane Phillips Episcopal Memorial Medical Center in Bartlesville, a nursing supervisor said.

Seven other youngsters age 6 to 13 were treated for cuts and bruises at Coffeyville Memorial Hospital Medical Center following the 8:08 a.m. accident, a nursing supervisor there said.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

- ACROSS
- 1 Cunning
  - 4 Put to flight
  - 8 Block segment
  - 12 Color
  - 13 Author
  - 14 Japanese aborigine
  - 15 MD's group
  - 16 Popular dessert
  - 18 Drunken carousal
  - 20 Make lace
  - 21 — au rhum
  - 24 Strokes on the green
  - 28 Popular desserts
  - 32 Exhibit
  - 33 French friend
  - 34 Old photo color
  - 36 Pie — mode
  - 37 Pale tinge
  - 39 Popular dessert
  - 41 Precipitous
  - 43 Portal
  - 44 Thing, in law
- DOWN
- 2 Sugar serving
  - 3 A — and a day
  - 4 Rescinds
  - 5 Rio de —
  - 6 Eskimo knife
  - 7 Circus shelter
  - 8 Desert plant
  - 9 Hawk parrot
  - 10 Scribe's need
  - 11 "The Gold Bug" author
  - 17 Skip stones on water
  - 19 Recede
  - 22 Electronic signal
  - 23 Hungarian national hero
  - 25 It's common in January
  - 26 Narrated
  - 27 Oscillate
  - 28 Current Broadway hit
  - 29 Neglect
  - 30 Twining tendril
  - 31 Chinese: comb. form
  - 35 Worshipers
  - 38 Cylindrical
  - 40 Mine output
  - 42 Through
  - 45 Flat-bottomed boat
  - 47 Wages
  - 48 Ardor
  - 49 Roman historian
  - 50 Fold over
  - 51 Fuss
  - 52 Nickname for E. Y. Harburg
  - 53 Cuckoo
  - 54 Small barrel
- Average solution time: 23 min.
- Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 11-2

Q T W U W A T W N P U W V G K O E W H N E U N Y K:
A E G T E Y H W Q G U V P K G .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — LUCKY DOG TO HIS GIRL FRIEND: "YOU SURE LOOK FETCHING."
Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals F.

DARK HORSE

TAVERN

LADIES NITE!

Ladies get
1 Draw Free
1st pitcher for $1 & $2
pitchers.

619 N. Manhattan

TONIGHT
TACO, SANCHEO
& NACHO
BUFFET
5:30-7:30 p.m.

All you can eat

RAMADA INN

OPEN HOUSE AGAIN?

But, it's not until next year.
True, but we need help
to get it organized.

Volunteer for Parade & Opening
Ceremonies.

Sign up at Anderson 104.
Don't get Caught — Get Involved!

GRENADA: Its Implications for the Caribbean

Jan Flora, Assoc. Prof. of Sociology

Union 207 Wed., Nov. 2, 7:00 P.M.

Sponsored by Coalition for Human Rights

Hurry To ...

75¢
DRINKS
WED.
NITES!

• 75¢ Well Drinks
Tonight
7 p.m.-1 a.m.

Bottoms Up
Tomorrow!

HURRY!
HURRY!
HURRY!

FRIDAY is the
LAST DAY to get your Royal Purple picture
taken.

Step right up to
UNION 209. Take your
stamped fee card.
Hours are 8:30-12:30
and 1:30-5:30

539-5229

Be a Maniac at Flash Bash '83. Wear your cut-up sweat shirts and legwarmers for a crazy time.

The delirium begins at 8:00 p.m. to 12:00 p.m., November 4 (Friday) at the old Fifth Street Exchange location on the corner of 5th & Houston, Downtown. Admission is $4 and it includes all the beer or soda you want.

Air bands will be competing for either a pizza party from Showbiz Pizza Place or a keg of beer.

Door prizes from Coors will be distributed all night long by D.J. Ed Klimek and a Picture Man from Tom Hawk will be there.

Tickets may be purchased at the Union on Nov. 2, 3, 4 or at the door. All proceeds create student scholarships because we are:

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
STUDENT FOUNDATION

Santa Dollars
entitle you to savings of $15.00, valid on purchases of $100.00
or more.

Good From
November 1st to November 15th.
Santa Dollars cannot be applied to prior purchases.
Present Santa Dollars with your purchase and save $15.00.

West Ltd.

327 Poyntz
Downtown

Gibson
Guitars
Now in Stock

20% off
all guitars
& a free case

20% off
drums

35% off
banjos,
mandolins,
guild guitars

Hayes House
of Music
523 N. Washington
238-1014

Tickets for Stray Cats sell slowly; initial purchases disappoint UPC

By The Collegian Staff

There are still plenty of tickets available for the Nov. 11 Stray Cats concert.

Ticket sales are not as high as was expected when the concert was announced, Barbara Burke, Union Program Council adviser, said.

"I think everybody thinks it's a great show, and the type of show we should be doing, but the tickets aren't selling," Burke said.

The number of tickets sold as of Tuesday was 2,200. UPC is about halfway to breaking even on the show, she said.

Burke said she saw no concrete reason why a top-name group such as the Stray Cats should have such low ticket sales, but added that she does not believe ticket prices are the reason for the low sales.

"Our tickets are cheaper than any college around here," she said.

Ticket prices for the concert are $10, $9.50 and $9 for students and are $1 more for the general public.

Burke said the reason for low ticket sales might be competition for students' money since basketball tickets are going on sale. She said those students who might be waiting to get money to buy concert tickets now may choose to purchase basketball tickets.

Another factor may be the fact that the concert is to be performed in Ahearn Field House. Problems with the acoustics at Ahearn have caused complaints about the concerts held there.

"Maybe it's a stigma of concerts at Ahearn Field House," Burke said.

The acoustics problems have been solved by hanging the sound system from the ceiling, as was done for the

Joan Jett concert last spring, she said.

Burke said perhaps concerts are just a dying fad, and people do not want to pay money to go to concerts. Feedback for the Stray Cats was favorable, but ticket sales are low.

Burke compared this fact to the ticket sales for the Joan Jett concert. Burke said feedback on the Jett concert was quite negative, but 5,000 tickets were sold, which is more than the Stray Cats are selling.

"I was pretty disappointed in the number of tickets sold on the first day," Burke said.

Burke said she expected 2,000 sales on the first day. Of 233 actual customers, there were only 1,200 sales.

Seats are still available in all the price categories. Burke said at least 3,000 seats are left in the top price category.

Students find credit rating hard to establish

By MELINDA FREIDENBERGER
Contributing Writer

Credit. You've probably heard how important it is to establish credit in your own name. It should be done early in life, but it is sometimes not easy for students. Since having no credit history is the main reason people are denied credit, many students question how they can get a credit history if they are unable to get credit.

Two common ways to establish a financial history are to take out a small personal loan or to apply for a credit card. A credit union or bank where you already have a savings or checking account are good places to go for a loan. The lending institutions may be more willing to make first-time loans if a parent co-signs with a student.

It is a good idea to save the amount of the loan before receiving the loan so you will be sure to have the finances on hand to pay off the debt on time, and thus establish a good repayment pattern.

Credit cards are issued by local and national retail stores, oil companies and banks. By paying for goods and services with credit and paying the debt back promptly, a credit history can be established. An added benefit of having a credit card is that it may also be used for identification.

Many local merchants permit customers to pay for expensive items, such as jewelry or furniture, over a specified period of time. If these payments are made regularly and on time, this can also provide a means of establishing a credit history.

Once you have received a credit card, some important guidelines to follow are:

- Use credit for convenience. Don't use it to buy things you can't afford.
- Don't let the minimum monthly payments fool you. Remember the interest which must be paid on the remaining balance.
- If you are paying more than 20 percent of your net monthly income on installment debts, you should evaluate the number of credit cards you have and your use of them.
- Keep records of all your purchases on credit since they add up quickly.

(Editor's note: This is the fourth article in a five-week series dealing with consumer issues. The writer is a member of the Practicum for Consumer Relations Board class and serves on the Consumer Relations Board.)

Capitol tightens security after bomb scare

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — U.S. Capitol police re-adjusted metal detectors and installed sensitive bomb-detecting equipment in mid-October after a tourist entered the House gallery with a homemade bomb under his shirt, it was learned Tuesday.

House Sergeant at Arms Jack Russ said the urgent steps following the frightening Oct. 18 experience were only the beginning of a tightened security system.

After Congress recesses later this month, the police plan additional measures, some of them so secret that Russ would not describe them.

In an interview, Russ said the bomb brought into the building last month "was not a dud" and failed to explode because the man "had not placed his wiring properly."

If the new bomb detection devices and metal detector settings had been in place Oct. 18, Russ said, the man "would not have been able to get in the front doors. I think we'll have the state of the art" in security measures, he said.

Capitol Police identified the man arrested as Israel Rubinowits, a 22-year-old Israeli who threatened to blow up the Capitol when approached by police. His court-appointed lawyer, Carl Angelis, told a District of Columbia Superior Court hearing that Rubinowits wanted to address Congress about the problem of world hunger.

He was charged with making threats of bodily harm and held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Russ said that Rubinowits had under his clothes two plastic one-liter bottles wrapped in cardboard, strapped to his body with a rope and wrapped in a white cloth bag. The thin copper wire attached to the bottles did not set off a metal detector outside the gallery entrance. The bottles contained black powder, a flammable liquid of still unknown composition, glass, stones, ceramic tile and metal fragments, Russ said.

How to have class between classes.

Indulge yourself in a warm cup of Cafe Vienna. It's a light and cinnamon touch of class. And just one of six deliciously different flavors from General Foods® International Coffees.

GENERAL FOODS® INTERNATIONAL COFFEES
AS MUCH A FEELING AS A FLAVOR

k-state union
bookstore

© General Foods Corporation 1983

Auntie Mae's Parlor
AGGIEVILLE
TONIGHT
Mae's Most Popular
HIGH ROLLERS
Any Single Liquor Call or Premium Drink only
$1.25
8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.
—THURSDAY—
ALL YOU CAN DRINK
Chips $5.00 Cuts $3.00
—PLUS—
LATE NIGHT HAPPY HOUR
616 N. 12th 539-9967

M.C. ESCHER
1984 CALENDAR
1684 CVENTDAYS
W.C. ESCHER
$7.95
available at Varney's
BOOK STORE
M-Sat. 9-9 Sun 12-5

Wednesday
3 Fers
10 pm-11 pm
2 Fers
11 pm-1 am
at
COWBOY PALACE
Where it don't make
no difference
209 Payntz 539-9828
4:00pm to 3:00am

DANCE CONTEST
November 7-8, 1983
Brother's Tavern
in Aggieville
Strut Your Stuff With UPC Special Events, Brother's Tavern, and Bud Light
First Prize: Two tickets and backstage passes to the Stray Cats Concert at Ahearn. Plus two autographed copies of their latest album.

STRAY CATS
FREE KEG
FOR SIGN-UP AND ADDITIONAL INFORMATION CONTACT BROTHER'S TAVERN OR THE ACTIVITIES CENTER

Brother's
AGGIEVILLE
BUD LIGHT
KESU K-state union special events

BALLARD'S
1218 Moro PH 539-2441
Manhattan, Kansas

NIKE DAYS SALE
(Promoting Heartland Road Race)
Mon.-Sat., Oct. 31-Nov. 5

Running Shoes	Performance Shoes	Basketball Shoes
Men Carib 27 <sup>99</sup> — 19 <sup>99</sup>	Tailwind 51 <sup>99</sup> — 35 <sup>99</sup>	Burt Bruin (1-7) 29 <sup>99</sup> — 19 <sup>99</sup>
Lady Carib white/powder 27 <sup>99</sup> — 19 <sup>99</sup>	Lady Aurora 64 <sup>99</sup> — 45 <sup>99</sup>	Bruin Leather Lo 36 <sup>99</sup> — 25 <sup>99</sup>
Lady Carib Ice/lemon 27 <sup>99</sup> — 19 <sup>99</sup>	Internationalist 52 <sup>99</sup> — 35 <sup>99</sup>	Blazer Leather Hi 43 <sup>99</sup> — 35 <sup>99</sup>
Men Leather Cortez (1-6) 41 <sup>99</sup> — 25 <sup>99</sup>	Daybreak 44 <sup>99</sup> — 30 <sup>99</sup>	Legend Lo 54 <sup>99</sup> — 40 <sup>99</sup>
Lady Yankee 34 <sup>99</sup> — 22 <sup>99</sup>	Equator 64 <sup>99</sup> — 45 <sup>99</sup>
Men Dasher 26 <sup>99</sup> — 13 <sup>99</sup>
Youth Dasher 24 <sup>99</sup> — 12 <sup>99</sup>

ALL NIKE CLOTHING & MERCHANDISE 10% OFF
(Mens, Womens, and Children)

Run For A Healthy Heart
5th Annual Heartland 10,000 Meter Road Race
Plus — 2-mile Fun Run
THIS SATURDAY November 5, 1983
Stockdale Area — Tuttle Creek
Manhattan, Kansas
ENTRIES AND INFO AT BALLARD'S

FREE NIKE T-Shirt
with Nike purchase
(1 per customer)

Other Shoes	Other Clothing
Etonic Courier 59 <sup>99</sup> — 35 <sup>99</sup>	Trimmed Russell Sweat Shirt 19 <sup>99</sup> — 9 <sup>99</sup>
Etonic Trans Am 34 <sup>99</sup> — 20 <sup>99</sup>	Fashion Sweat Suits 22 <sup>99</sup> — 16 <sup>99</sup>
Etonic Zephyr 26 <sup>99</sup> — 13 <sup>99</sup>	Coaches Shirts 9 <sup>99</sup> — 9 <sup>99</sup>
Brooks Fantasy 26 <sup>99</sup> — 15 <sup>99</sup>
Brooks Super Villanova 31 <sup>99</sup> — 20 <sup>99</sup>
Brooks Lady Vantage 39 <sup>99</sup> — 25 <sup>99</sup>

Other Brooks
(Hugger, Sundance, Invincible, Lt. Flight)
Limited sizes 1/2 Price

Hours Mon.-Sat. 8:30-5:30
Thurs. 8:30-8:30

VISA MasterCard American Express

Soft touch

Staff/Bob Spencer

K-State's Cathy Sittenauer reaches up to return the ball to the Nebraska side during Tuesday night's volleyball match at Ahearn Field House. The 'Huskers defeated the 'Cats in three straight matches, 15-5, 15-8, 15-11.

NBA needs change

The National Basketball Association season got underway last Friday, beginning an eight-month long, 82-game schedule.

A change in the NBA playoff format now allows 16 of the league's 23 teams to qualify for post-season play.

Whipping out my abacus, I calculated that 1,886 regular season basketball games will be played to eliminate just seven teams.

A prime example of the ridiculousness of an expanded playoff format is that in the Atlantic Division (Philadelphia, Boston, New Jersey, New York and Washington), four of the five teams qualified for the playoffs. This is with only the 12 post-season spots that were available last season.

Realigning the schedule is just one change I'll implement when I become the commissioner of basketball.

Only three things — height, quickness and jumping ability — kept me from being a basketball "stud" in high school. I had none of these. I've since come to the conclusion that if I can't play in the pro league, I'll run it.

As every fan knows, NBA games are decided in the final two minutes. Therefore, as commissioner, I will set up the schedule in a format similar to tennis. Each team will play every other team twice, giving each team 44 "matches." Each match will be divided into three "sets." Each set will be broken down into five two-minute "games." The winner of three games wins the set and the winner of two sets wins the match.

HUEY COUNTS
Sports Columnist

With each team playing three matches a week, the season will last a mere 15 weeks. The shortened season and two-minute games will keep players from trying to coast through the regular season.

I will then arbitrarily pick the four teams I like the best and put them in the playoffs. Unfair? Hey, I'm the commissioner.

A second change I will make is eliminating many of the teams' current nicknames. I can live with teams called the Pistons, Jazz or Nuggets — no matter how stupid they sound. But what the heck is a "Laker" or a "Pacer." They're not in any dictionary I've read. And "Knickerbocker" is defined as "full breeches gathered just below the knee."

The teams in my league will have macho, aggressive sounding names such as the Boston Cuthroats, Cleveland Buzz Saws and Indiana Seal-Clubbers.

I will put an end to the team with the worst record getting the first pick in the draft, thereby eliminating the "must-not-win" situations that the leagues patsies find themselves in. There needs to be a few worthless teams for everyone else to beat. The first pick will go to the team with the best record. They earned it.

Fans love players who hustle, so after the draft each season, I will put all the slow, white forwards on one team, located in Pittsburgh. They'll be called the "Bruisers," not because they hurt opposing players, but because of all the "ouchies" they'll get from falling down when they have to dribble the ball more than twice consecutively.

Imagine a whole team of Kurt Rambises, Marc Iavaronis and Ed Nealys. One magazine described Nealy, a former K-State great, as "built as if he forgot to take off a set of shoulder pads...not only should Nealy not start, he shouldn't even be in the league." He can be the star of the team in my league.

Finally, being the commissioner is a tough, demanding job. It is well worth the $500,000 a year salary that I will receive when I take over. That's not too much. My mom always said I was one in a million.

Intramural roundup

The second intramural sports season, consisting of volleyball, innertube water polo and individual sports, is well underway, while the intramural cross country meet — one of the major events of the second sports season — was last Sunday at Warner Park.

Overall team winner in the cross country fraternity division was Theta Xi, and Marty Meyer, representing Sigma Nu, finished first in the individual competition with a time of 9 minutes and 50 seconds.

Marlatt 6 was the top team in residence hall division with the individual winner being John Jury, who ran for the winning team in a time of 9:59.

Steve Lenz was the top individual in the independent division with a time of 9:42. Lenz represented Goodnow Hall but his first-place finish was not enough as Smith House took the team honors.

Alpha Xi Delta was the number one women's team, but Kathy Rinella, representing Kappa Kappa Gamma, was the top runner with a time of 12:11.

The overall winner in the faculty&staff division was Bob Pinsince with a time of 11:50.

In other intramural action, intramural bowling is in progress this week in the Union with competition at 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 5 p.m. Friday, and Sunday at noon. There is no intramural bowling competition on Saturdays.

The following are the results of the first intramural sports season's individual sports:

3-wall Racquetball

Fraternity
Kurt Wilbur
Residence Hall
Craig Brannin
Independent
Drew Spisak
Women
Elaine Liebe

Tennis

Fraternity
John Button
Residence Hall
Hari Paramesh
Independent
Brad Tinker
Women
Sabrina Skulborstad

Horseshoes

Fraternity
Bruce Smith

Residence Hall

Mark Adinolfi
Independent
Jeff Ashen
Women
Lea Neibarger

1-on-1 Basketball

Men over 6-foot
Sam Curran
Men under 6-foot
Hunter Westerfield
Women
Pat Daniels

3-wall Handball

Residence Hall
Greg Roggentamp
Independent
Brian Dellett
Women
Elaine Liebe

Badminton

Fraternity
Jerry Day
Residence Hall
Venki Paramesh
Independent
W.M. Grim
Women
Susan Miller

Doubles Volleyball

Fraternity
Steve Preston and Jerry Day
Residence Hall
Dave Horseman and Mel Placek
Independent
Rich Cox and Ed Kaliekau
Women
Peggy Hopkins and Rhonda Bergren
Co-Roc
Tammy Higgins and Latham Shinder

Chicago Bears' owner dies

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — The doors of Halas U are closed. Old Bears no longer will be returning to the alumni party to share memories with the man they loved and gave their all. Instead, they'll have one more gathering Thursday — at the funeral of "Papa Bear."

George Halas died Monday night at his home from pancreatic cancer at the age of 88. He had been in and out of hospitals since spring.

Hundreds of sports, business and political figures will pay their last respects to Halas, one of the rare figures in championship sports to have equal status as a civic leader and business executive.

Old Bears like Bill Osmanski are sure to be among the mourners.

A tough little fullback, Osmanski was the kind Papa Bear liked in the Bears' days as Monsters of the Midway.

"Current and future Bears will not have an opportunity to graduate from Halas U, and that's too bad,"

Osmanski, a Chicago dentist, said Tuesday.

"He was one of the greatest coaches, and also a gentleman — a man who had a family called the Chicago Bears. He always said football was a means to an end. I believe I could name around five physicians, four dentists and five lawyers who graduated from Halas U. Mr. Halas will never be forgotten."

His teams went on to eight national titles and produced 20 football Hall of Famers.

Collegian Classifieds — Where K-State Shops

A Local Manhattan Barber
Bud Berkley
is now back in business at
Aggie HairPort
776-7377

Attention Pledge Class
Social Chairperson
Tonight
The Party's On Us — 10:00 p.m.

Betcha didn't know...
"DONNIE and the ROCK"
Thursday, Friday & Saturday
High Energy Rock 'n' Roll

MCCAIN AUDITORIUM
SEASON 1983-84 JOIN THE CROWD

London
Early Music
Group

"Lively, elegant and irresistible..."
— The Herald [Melbourne]
SATURDAY, NOV. 5, 8 p.m.
ALL FAITHS CHAPEL
Tickets Available at McCain Box Office,
M-F noon to 5 p.m., 532-6428

Our instructors and students have had recent education on the new Fall trends.

Call
today for a new Fall look
776-4794

All services performed by students who are closely supervised by instructors

CRUM'S BEAUTY COLLEGE
512 Poyntz

WEDGEWOOD CHINA AND ADAMS IRONSTONE

SAVE

15% to 50% off

Wild Oats — rugged, yet civilized, this oven-to-tableware goes happily into oven, dishwasher and freezer. (Microwave ovens, too)

Campbell's
Complete Tabletop Bridal Registry

1227 More
in Aggieville

5th & Poyntz
Downtown

©Wedgwood is a Registered Trade Mark of Wedgwood Ltd.

Sports comments

Coach shows concern

Editor:

I was really disheartened recently from the comments made by Sean Reilly's column "Coaches need to show sensitivity," Oct. 27. The article revolved around Coach Dickey's comment about a jarring tackle made by Andy Harding. Reilly tab-ed Dickey as insensitive and thinking of only himself.

I can't speak for Coach Switzer (also mentioned in the article), but as far as Coach Jim Dickey is concerned, you will not find a coach in America more concerned about his players. All during the four years I played for Kansas State (1979-82), Jim Dickey was an inspiration to play for. I first came to K-State as a walkon, and was assured by the staff that Jim Dickey treated walkons just like anyone else. He did, and it made me work harder knowing I had a fair opportunity.

Coach Dickey also has worked very hard during the off-seasons to make sure the players have the very best facilities that can be offered. Coach Dickey, President Acker and Athletic Director Dick Towers have worked together to make an indoor workout facility, a redecorated dressing room and one of the best weightlifting rooms in the country a reality at Kansas State. Coach Dickey took a program on the verge of sinking to the bottom of the ocean to its first-ever bowl game in 1982. He did it with care and respect for his players, not himself.

I think what he meant from his comment was that he was blaming himself for what has happened this year. He feels he misjudged some of the talent on the team.

J. Darren Gale
Graduate student in nuclear engineering

Andy Harding
Junior in arts and science

Coach helps Harding

Editor,

I want to express my contempt over the cheap shot Sean Reilly fired at Coach Dickey in the Oct. 27 issue of the Collegian.

Reilly has badly misinterpreted the post-game statements concerning a tackle from which I sustained a sprained neck. By the game's conclusion, Coach Dickey had been informed of my condition and conferred with the team physician and trainers.

It was Coach Dickey who opened the door of the ambulance to greet me and make further inquiries about the injury. Also, he took time to visit at length with my parents and reassure them. My mother and father are very appreciative of his thoughtful concern. Anyone who knows Coach Dickey recognizes his deep sense of regard for the well-being of his players. His inherent decency and caring attitude is obvious to those of us on the football squad and your assertion of insensitivity is a deplorable misrepresentation.

Given the full context of events, I regard Coach Dickey's comments about "the best hit of the day" as a compliment on my efforts. I do know that your characterization is not only grossly unfair, but deceitful and hypocritical.

Letters policy Bogue deserves credit

Editor:

In regard to Kevin Dale's column, "Quarterback change a definite must," in the Collegian Oct. 25, concerning the ability of Doug Bogue as a quarterback, I tend not only to disagree but find it downright cruel.

If one didn't know better, he would assume you had a personal vendetta against Bogue. Bogue is not only a fellow K-State classmate of yours, but he also represents the Wildcat football team as our quarterback.

I realize your job as a columnist entails such things as voicing your opinion, but when it degrades another human being just for the sake of your own personal satisfaction, I believe you've gone too far.

Football is a team sport. Quit putting all the blame on one guy only. After all, those who criticize, usually are those who are envious of another one's ability or talent.

How would you feel if someone wrote a column on you degrading enough to say you weren't capable of writing good sports columns and that you should be replaced? My guess is not only would it lower your esteem, but you're feelings would probably be hurt too.

Granted the K-State football team hasn't had the best year, but if you can feel right about laying the blame on one guy, than you're the one with the problem.

Perhaps the real problem is the lack of support the football team gets. And I'd be willing to bet that you're one of those unloyal fans.

Kathy Woodward
Senior in advertising

Quote taken out of context

Editor,

Some things need to be taken with a grain of salt and nowhere is this more evident than in Sean Reilly's column, in which he portrayed Kansas State Coach Jim Dickey as a non-caring, insincere human being.

Reilly blew Dickey's quote, "That was the best hit all day. More hits like that and I wouldn't look so bad," completely out of proportion.

Everyone's entitled to their own opinion, but do you think Dickey was insinuating that maybe not all of his players were putting out 100 percent in their 38-0 loss to Missouri?

I don't see anywhere in Dickey's quote that he was unshaken at the ambulance carrying Harding and departing from Faurot Field.

Mack McClure
Junior in journalism and mass communications

Classified

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $1.95, 10 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $2.70, 15 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.10, 20 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.85, 25 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.30, 30 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon Friday for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.65 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.25 per inch; Five consecutive days: $3.95 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $3.75 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENT

01

1983-84 Campus Directories now on sale—Kedzie Hall, room 103 from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. $56 for students with ID and $1 for all others. (2811)

SUPPORT GROUP for incest survivors, confidential. Meets Thursdays 4:30-6:00 p.m. Call Women's Resource Center, 532-6444. (49-53)

SUPPORT GROUP—Women who have experienced abortion. Alternate Thursdays, 7-8:30 p.m., Women's Resource Center, 532-6444. (49-53)

LOOKING FOR the best powder skiing in the country? Ski Utah, January 1-6, if interested call Lex at 539-0895 or 532-6724. (52-56)

IF YOU want to drink it's your business, if you want to stop, it's ours. Alcoholics Anonymous meets Thursday noon. 1021 Denison. (52)

K-STATERS: Homecoming 1983 is just around the corner so get ready for a fun-filled week of exciting activities, November 7-12. We're "Trackin' Back for the Purple Pack!" Blue Key. (52-54)

ATTENTION

02

TRAVEL—We will give you the best price to anywhere. International Tours, 776-1849. (50-54)

FANTASY-GRAMS, Belly Dancing for all occasions. Call 776-0524 before noon. (36-75)

SKYDIVE!!

K.S.U. Parachute Club presents: SMITTY the JUMPER. Smitty the Jumper will be at the K.S.U.P.C. meeting on November 3, 1983 in Union 206 at 8:00 p.m. Be there to hear his stories and see his unique gear!! Also, K.S.U.P.C. pictures will be taken in Calvin 102 at 7:00 p.m. All old members and anyone else who is interested are welcome. We'll be adjourning to Mel's! BE THERE!!

SKI BRECKENRIDGE January 2-8, 1984 at unbelievably low prices. Call Scott for details, 539-2870. (51-54)

FOR RENT—MISC

03

COSTUMES—FROM gorilla suits to Hawaiian leis. Makeup, wigs, periodical clothing, masks, grass skirts, all occasions available. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (111)

TYPEWRITER RENTALS, electric and manuals, day, week or month. Buzzell's, 511 Leavenworth, across from post office. Call 776-9489. (111)

IBM TYPEWRITERS for rent. Supplies and service available for electric and electronic typewriters. Hull Business Machines (Aggieville), 715 North 12th. 539-7931. (111)

FOR RENT: One and two bedroom mobile homes, $165 and $175. No pets. 539-6056 or 539-5402. (48-52)

THREE BEDROOM with fireplace and garage. Available now or for next semester. $475. Call 539-4294, ask for Ron. (51-63)

FOR RENT—APTS

04

PINE HAVEN brand new two-bedroom apartments available in November. We accommodate up to four persons. 1113 Bertrand, rents from $400. 776-3804. (46-55)

ONE BEDROOM apartment, $150. No pets. 539-6056 or 539-5402. (48-52)

FIRST FLOOR, two-bedroom, duplex apartment. Close to campus with off-street parking. $350. Call 776-0055. (48-52)

TIRED OF dorm life? Take over lease on one-bedroom apartment next semester. 776-6398. 537-4851. (50-52)

REDUCED RENT on one-bedroom apartment and mobile home. Campus one mile. No children, no pets. 537-8389 or 537-8494. (50-54)

ONE BEDROOM apartment, $210. All bills paid. Call 537-1478 mornings. (51-54)

MONT BLUE Studio—Furnished, carpeted, air conditioning, water and trash paid. Available January 1, $210. Call 539-4447. (52-60)

WILDCAT INN APTS

GRADUATING SENIOR SUBLETS

5 AVAILABLE FOR JAN. 1

APARTMENT LOCATION:

- Fieldhouse—1803 College Heights, top floor & balconies, furnished
- Wildcat V—411 North 17th, just south of Ramada. Patio apartment—master bedroom, 100% AC, furnished.
- Wildcat I—1854 Clafin, just north of Marlatt Hall, 1-bedroom furnished. $220.00 per mo.

CALL:
CELESTE—
539-5001

ONE-TWO females wanted to share an apartment in Royal Towers. Three blocks from campus, utilities paid, air-conditioned, $138-$69. Call 776-9581 after 6:00 p.m. (52-56)

FOR RENT—HOUSES

05

Four to six bedroom house, three blocks from KSU. Stove, refrigerator, washer, dryer, $575 plus utilities. Available immediately. 776-1849. (50-54)

FOR SALE—AUTO

06

1980 MUSTANG Cobra Turbo, air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, 39,000 miles. 776-8182 after 5:00 p.m. Anytime on weekends. (48-52)

1979 CHEVY Luv pickup. Air conditioning, AM-FM cassette, two new tires. Call evenings and weekends. 776-1810. (48-52)

1977 DATSUN 280Z, 80,000, clean body, $3900. Call 539-7451. (51-54)

1978 JEEP CJ5, 44,000 miles, soft top, good condition. Call 539-2460 evenings. (51-54)

1977 BMW 320i, air conditioning, AM/FM stereo. Call 776-4956 after 5:00 p.m. Must sell. (52-54)

FOR SALE—MISC

07

ADULT GAG gifts, novelties, all occasion, risque greeting cards. Always a good selection! Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (111)

BACK ISSUES men's magazines, comics, National Geographic, Life, used paper backs, records. We buy, sell, trade. Treasure Chest, Aggieville. (111)

COLLEGE SWEATSHIRTS! Harvard (grey), Yale (white), Princeton (navy), Dartmouth (kelly), North Carolina (light blue), USC (white), others $14.00 each postpaid. Send check to LMG, Box 317, Brookhaven, MS 39601. COD orders call 1-801-835-1085. (45-59)

FOR SALE: Complete home stereo system. Includes Bose 901 speakers. Call 1-632-2391 after 6:00 p.m. (49-53)

TWO TANDON disk drives model 100-1. IBM and TRS compatible. Call 537-2465. (50-54)

MOVING SALE: Westinghouse refrigerator, $60; Huffy men's 3-speed, $35; Hewlett-Packard 33E calculator, $45; matching couch and chair, $59; coffee table, $55; two snow tires, 078-14, $10; drafting table with folding legs-sliding square, $19; fluorescent desk lamp, $10; collectors edition of Hobbit and Lords of the Rings set, new, $100; Crate guitar amplifier, $119. Call 537-3739. (50-53)

FOR SALE: ARP Omni-2 and Micro-mog synthesizers. Both good condition. Call Jeff, 539-2099. (50-54)

GIBSON EXPLORER—Gold hardware, fine tuner, locking nut, brown burst, hard shell case. Make offer. 776-4304. (51-55)

NAKAMICHI 480 two-head cassette deck, $320; Bang Olufsen Beogram 1700 automatic turntable, $200. Both excellent condition. 537-0591. (52-56)

120-WATT Roland Jazz Chorus guitar amp, mint condition. $300 or best offer. Call 776-9885. (52-56)

FANTASTIC OFFER—100 rolls of Kodak or Fuji Print Film for $15. For any type film call 776-5059. (52-56)

FOR SALE—MOBILE HOMES

08

TWO-BEDROOM trailer house, excellent condition. Call 776-6143 after 8:00 p.m. (45-54)

12' x 65', three-bedroom trailer, excellent condition. Includes air conditioning, washer and dryer, some furniture. Call 539-5053. (49-53)

FOR SALE—MOTORCYCLES

09

1979 SUZUKI GS550, 18,000 miles, new chain, battery, helmets included. $900 or best offer. 776-1332 after 5:00 p.m. (4211)

1973 TR6 Triumph, one owner, both tops, very nice. K-State purple, $2595. The Preston McCall Company, 913-841-6067. (44-53)

FOUND

10

RICHARD R. Ortiz—Your wallet has been found. Come to Kedzie 103 to claim. (51-53)

HELP WANTED

13

OVERSEAS JOBS—Summer/year round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields $500-$1200 monthly. Sightseeing. Free information. Write U.C. Box 52-KS-2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625. (32-53)

EXTENSION PROGRAMMING Consultant, Temporary (1/2 time) for Extension Service, KSU, B.A., B.S., M.A., or M.S. in computer science or related field required with training in software engineering, program design and program languages. M.S. degree in computer science desirable. Apply to Roger Terry, 123 Umberger Hall, 532-5840. (50-52)

TWO PART-time programmers needed to work as part of a team developing and coding age-related software on microcomputers. Individuals must be self-motivating with desire to gain experience in software development arena. Working knowledge of Pascal, PL/I, or C required. Each position requires 15-20 hours per week. Opportunity exists for summer employment. Contact KSU Cooperative Extension Service, 123 Umberger Hall, for application. (50-52)

CHANCEL CHOIR Director, beginning November 17, 1983. Experience or training in choral music required. Submit resume to Betty Kandi, First Baptist Church, 2121 Blue Hills Road, Manhattan on or before November 4, 1983. (51-53)

BABYSITTER, OCCASIONAL evenings and weekends, some days according to class schedule. Prefer infant experience. Three children, seven, four, and one. Please call 539-0300 after 2:00 p.m. (52-54)

TEACHERS NEEDED IN FLORIDA

Instructors needed to teach math, science, or engineering at the Navy's Nuclear Power School in Orlando, Florida. BENEFITS: up to $19,500 starting salary; over $33,000 in four years. Over $1,000 per month for selected students during Jr. and Sr. years. Full medical and dental coverage. 30 day's earned annual paid vacation. Opportunity for Navy-financed post-graduate education. Family benefits. QUALIFICATIONS: U.S. citizen. Ages 19-29. College Graduates or seniors/juniors, BS-MS Technical majors only. Call Navy Officer Majors toll free 1-800-821-5110.

COMPUTER PROGRAMMER—Advanced undergraduate or graduate student needed part-time to maintain and operate existing computer systems and develop programs to analyze survey data. Applicants should have working knowledge and experience in CMS, SAS, PL/I and keypunching. Submit an application letter, resume and references by November 4, 1983 to: Dr. Charles I. Rankin, Director, Midwest Race and Sex Desegregation Assistance Center, Kansas State University, 401 Blumont Hall, Manhattan, KS 66506. Kansas State University is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity Employer. (52-54)

BOSTON ADVENTURE—Explore opportunities of exciting city while working as live-in child care worker. Many openings, one year commitment. Contact Allene Fisch, Child-Care Placement Service, 149 Buckminster Road, Brookline, Mass. 02146. Phone 1-617-566-6294. (52)

LOST

14

LOST TEXTBOOK—Design of Experiments by Cochran and Cox. Please return to Waters Hall, room 130. (48-52)

LOST—LOCKER key with #2 printed on it and pink ribbon tied to it. Please call 776-0278. (52-54)

NOTICES

15

TOSTADOS! TOSTADOS! All you can eat! You top'em with grated cheese, shredded lettuce, sour cream, chopped tomatoes, salsa and taco sauce. Thursday, November 10 in the K-State Union Stateroom. 4:30-6:30 p.m. (52-53)

PERSONAL

16

TO THE girl at Brother's Halloween Party who gave her finger to my sidekick and said, "Give this to him to remember me by," please call me, 539-7467—Glint Eastwood. (52-53)

GREG. ONCE and for all—I'm not curious! ILY. MP. (52)

B-50 WHO'S—Tearing the midwest; isn't it a bloody riot? Hope you can catch our gig too! Good luck! The Police. (52)

MB, DAWN, and Darren—The place looked superb! Thank!—Ad Staff. (52)

AX'S—YOU have till tonight to find a mate, so hurry to the fanatic and don't be late. For there you will see that preppies never die, 'cause down there will be party-in-Buffy, Muffy and Alpha Chi. (52)

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, Bob Birk. (52)

PAUL MELLING—Congratulations Mr. President! Good luck with your new office. I'm really proud of you. Have a good day! Love, Josephine! (52)

ADAM ANT—When did you start touring with the B-17? Who's E. Costello. (52)

DIANNE AND Cathy: Here's to T.C. parties, a gallon and a fifth, the J.H. motel, "We aren't going to talk about it." Psycho II, Minnie, Mickey and Punk-monk, talking till four and friends. I had a blast—hope you did too.—Christie. (52)

CATHY W.: Hope you have a great 8-day. Sorry I won't be here tonight to help celebrate. Chris. (52)

RUSS—BEWARE of two girls who know toast. Medicine will make you disappear. Your B-9 buddies. (52)

ROOMMATE WANTED

17

ONE-TWO female non-smoking roommates to share new farmhouse with fireplaces, prefer animal science or Vet major, free stall and pasture for horse, cattle, dog. $175/month beef included. 776-1205. (49-53)

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted—For a house close to campus. $150 a month plus one-third electricity. Available now. Call 539-1093 or 539-8662. (49-53)

ROOMMATE GRADUATING! Female non-smoker to help rent two-bedroom apartment, half block from campus, washer included. Call 776-1651, keep trying. (52-56)

Bradley

By Doug Yearout

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Brier explains importance of individual votes

By CAROL BELL
Collegian Reporter

It takes the vote of every eligible American citizen to elect good government officials.

This was the message Jack Brier, Kansas Secretary of State, delivered to about 50 College Republicans Tuesday evening in Union Room 206.

There is a great amount of apathy from the general public, Brier said, and it's up to the individual person, with the ability or inability, to get involved.

"We have something the rest of the world doesn't have," Brier said. "A future, something to look forward to."

After his recent visits to the Soviet Union and China, Brier said he had a greater appreciation for the quality of life in the United States — "as bad as it is."

Brier also tried to dispell myths about voting by telling voting anecdotes.

The myth that one vote doesn't make a difference was countered with a story about a man who ran for public office and lost by one vote — only to find out that his wife didn't vote.

In the U.S. Senate primary race, Nancy Landon Kassebaum only won by 7 percent of the registered voters in Kansas — less than five votes per precinct, he said.

In the 1982 Kansas elections there were three ties, Brier said. One was a hospital trustee contest that, after a recount, was found to be one vote off. One was the state sales tax and because there is no provision in voting laws for a recount, it was defeated, he said.

The third was a county commissioner race and after a recount it was found to still be a tie, so straws were drawn to decide the winner.

The ties all may have had different outcomes if six out of 10 young people between the ages of 18 and 21 had voted, Brier said.

"In 1976, 76 million people voted for a president, which is impressive until I found out that 82 million people tuned in to watch 'Dallas' to see who shot J.R.," he said. "And in 1980, 86.5 million people voted for a president. I was excited about that until I was told that 102 million people watched the Super Bowl that year.

"You (students) have the resources — time and willingness — to make a commitment," Brier said. "It is easy to get involved just as it is also easy to say 'no, I don't want to get involved.'"

"The Constitution says this is a government of the people, by the people and for the people. But instead, it is a government of a few, by a few and for a few."

"Everything I've told you tonight can be summed up in one sentence. Bad public officials are elected by good citizens who don't vote."

Poor turnout ensures basketball group tickets

By The Collegian Staff

All students who drew a number in the group-reserved basketball ticket lottery will receive tickets.

Only about 2,000 students participated in the lottery this year compared to 9,000 last year, said Carol Adolph, athletic ticket manager. The approximately 750 remaining group-reserved tickets will be on sale 2-4 p.m. Sunday, along with those tickets designated for individual-reserved and non-reserved seating, Adolph said.

This year's turnout is the worst response in the lottery's five-year history, she said.

Before the lottery was decided upon, the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics accepted a proposal to change one of the three non-reserved seating sections in Ahearn Field House to a reserved section.

Section A, previously non-reserved, will now be a reserved section. The 350-seat section will be split between individual and group-reserved seating.

Jerry Katlin, student body president, said he talked to several student groups before proposing the change.

"I talked to Student Senate, a couple members of the 'Front Row Fanatics' and a few other students who had purchased non-reserved tickets in the past," he said. "They said they realized enthusiasm for those seats had diminished slightly last year, but they were concerned about losing an entire section — especially when enthusiasm picks up in the future."

Katlin said this student feedback and having only 650 requests for 1,050 non-reserved tickets, while having 9,000 requests for 4,000 reserved seats last year, led him to recommend the change to the athletic department.

"I recommended the change be reviewed annually," he said. "I also recommended that Sections B and C remain non-reserved because they are center court and the best seats."

Katlin stressed that the accepted proposal does not mean students will lose seats.

"The students are not losing seats," he said. "The proposal would just change where priorities would fall."

Adolph said the change would be reviewed annually.

IMPRESSIONS

Hair care center

Owner-Kyoko

Vel Johnson

She has 7 years experience. She is specializing in curls, relaxers, press and curl, cuts and hair coloring for men and women.

Stylists:
Kyoko
Debbie S.
Annette
Debbie Lee
Vel

537-1332 Lower Level Mall
411 Poyntz Open Mon.-Sat.

GET FRAMED!

Have your picture taken for Royal Purple

Today:
Putnam Hall 8:30-3:30
Smith 3:45-5:30

Tomorrow:
Smurthwaite 8:30-11:30
Van Zile Hall 11:30-4:30
West Hall 4:30-5:30

Union 209 539-5229
Bring your stamped fee card.

"We can get a Coke and keep the Old Fashioned Coke Mug"

Both Only 89¢

OPEN 10:30 A.M. TO 1 P.M.
TIL MIDNIGHT FRI. & SAT.

1015 N. 3rd
Manhattan

Dairy Queen
brazier.

* Reg. U.S. Pat. Off. Am. D. & C. Corp.
© Copyright 1974, Am. D. & C. Corp.

SAFEWAY

222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson

New Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week

Old Milwaukee Beer	12 pack, 12 oz. cans	$2.99
Nuts	Brazil, filberts, almonds, pecan and walnuts	lb. 99¢
Assorted Pork Chops		lb. $1.19
Green Giant Vegetables	Peas, green beans and corn	3 12 or 17 oz. cans $1.00 or $4.00 1/2 case

CANCER CAN BE BEAT

SPEEDWASH

in Aggieville
1118 Moro

- Open 24 Hours
- Free Parking Behind Building
- Newly Remodeled

APPLICATIONS for Spring Collegian Editor & Advertising Manager

HEAR YE! HEAR YE!

Due in Kedzie 103 by 4 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 9 APPLY NOW!

the Avalon

Tonight MOJO Rock and Blues for

BUCK A BOTTLE NIGHT — $1.00 Domestic Bottled Beer All Night Tonight

Thursday—MOJO and LADIES NIGHT—This Weekend—UNIDOS—Live Funk

1122 Moro UPSTAIRS IN AGGIEVILLE 539-9703

Stylish Tracks Lead you to Lords 'n Ladys

Open 8:00 till 8:00 Weeknights
8:00 to 5:00 Sat.

Joyce

Linda (manager)

Sherrie (receptionist & stylist)

Diane

Gayle

Brenda

Pauline

CP

Mary

Tess

★ Styled haircuts

★ Blowdrying & curl iron styling

★ Frosting & color

★ Hi-Lite

★ Stylish Permanents

★ Braiding

★ Manicures

★ Pedicures

★ Hair removal

★ Henna/lucent

★ Skin care & makeup applications

★ Ear piercing

NEXUS

VISA

REDKEN

210 Humboldt Humboldt Square 776-5651

ARM HIGH

AIR FORCE

If you want a challenge, consider serving your country as an Air Force pilot or navigator. Top performance is a way of life in the Air Force. And pilots and navigators are a vital part of the important role the Air Force plays in world affairs today. It's a challenging and rewarding career. If you're a college graduate or soon will be, find out why Air Force pilots and navigators enjoy a great way of life.

See SSgt. Johnnie Hood at KSU Placement Offices

Wednesday, November 2.

AT THE AIR FORCE
A great way of life.

Victory
Volleyball team wins final home match.
Sports, page 10

Farm Bureau chief resigns after 11 years

By The Associated Press

MANHATTAN — John Junior Armstrong resigned Wednesday as president of the Kansas Farm Bureau, a post he had held for more than 11 years.

Gordon Hibbard, a Farm Bureau spokesman, said he could not comment on the reason for Armstrong's resignation.

"I can't comment beyond what the news release says. We do not have a statement from him," Hibbard said.

The Kansas Farm Bureau's board of directors met in a special session Wednesday and voted unanimously to accept the resignation from Armstrong, who had served as president of the state organization since 1972. The Farm Bureau said the resignation followed a six-week leave of absence by Armstrong.

The board named Doyle D. Rahjes of Agra, vice president of the state organization since 1973, as acting president until the annual meeting of the board of directors Dec. 4-6 in Topeka.

Armstrong, 59, a Muscotah farmer, has been a member of the board since 1949 and served four years on the American Farm Bureau Federation board from 1976-1979.

House rejects funding cut for Marines

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House rejected, 274-153, an attempt Wednesday to cut off money for American peacekeeping troops in Lebanon, a move that would have ordered the battered Marine force home in four months and defied President Reagan's Middle East policy.

After an emotional, 90-minute debate, members sided with a call by Democratic Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., to support the Republican administration and defeat the measure, a proposed amendment to a $247.3 billion defense spending bill.

But some of the speaker's Democratic colleagues scoffed at the appeal for bipartisanship.

"A bipartisan policy, if it is wrong, should be rejected; it should not be acquiesced in," said Rep. William Ratchford, D-Conn.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., one of the House's most fervent hawks, added his voice to those calling for a pullout, saying: "The American people want the Marines out of that Lebanese trap."

Voting against the amendment were 126 Democrats and 148 Republicans. Voting for it were 136 Democrats and only 17 Republicans.

The vote marked the most direct congressional challenge of Reagan's decision to keep the Marines in Lebanon even after a terrorist bombing of their headquarters in Beirut killed 238 servicemen.

"We must not flag, our will must not cave, we must follow through," Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, said in opposing the effort led by Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., to cut off money for ground operations in Lebanon after March 1.

"If the victims were alive today, they would never want the Marines out of Lebanon until their mission was accomplished," said House Republican Leader Robert Michel of Illinois.

"We in this country have to decide whether we are a leader or whether we are in the world of Peter Pan," said Rep. Stewart McKinney, R-Conn., another pullout opponent.

Still pending was an amendment that would force a pullout of American invasion forces from the Caribbean island of Grenada 15 days after the bill was enacted. The House had set a 60-day limit under the War Powers Act by a 403-23 vote on Tuesday.

The House had voted 253-156 in September to let the Marines stay at their posts in Beirut for up to 18 more months. The 1,600 troops were deployed to the war-torn city in September 1982 as part of a four-nation peacekeeping force.

But members shaken by the Oct. 23 truck-bombing of Marine headquarters say they fear the troops are occupying indefensible positions which invite further attacks and bloodshed.

The defense bill, about $14 billion below Reagan's request but $14 billion more than its fiscal 1983 counterpart, contains funds for virtually every major military program the Pentagon requested, including MX missiles and B-1B bombers.

One exception was Reagan's request for $124 million to build a new generation of nerve-gas weapons, which both the House and Senate Appropriations committees denied in their drafting sessions.

Professor recalls invasion of native country

By WAYNE PRICE
Collegian Reporter

On Dec. 23, 1979, the sky above Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, was crowded with Soviet planes which landed every two or three minutes to unload various arms and soldiers.

This continued for three days and in the late afternoon of the third day the noise from the aircraft ceased, only to be replaced by a more terrifying sound — that of Soviet tanks blasting away at the presidential palace.

This is how Yar M. Ebadi, associate professor of management, described the Russian invasion of his homeland, which would eventually force him to leave behind a pregnant wife and three children.

"All the signs led me to believe that the only way to survive or live would be to escape the country," Ebadi said.

Those signs, Ebadi said, were several late night searches of his home, constant surveillance and witnessing the killings of several relatives and friends by Soviet forces.

Ebadi was in the United States for almost 10 years prior to the invasion and received his master of sciences degree from the Georgia Institute of Technology and his MBA and Ph.D. in business administration from Indiana University. It was that educational background which put Ebadi in danger.

"I knew they were going to get me," Ebadi said. "That means that anybody who had any sort of connection or training with Western countries was not accepted in their kind of country."

"I had spent 10 years in this country. As far as they were concerned I was an agent of the West, especially America."

After a pro-Russian coup took power of the government in 1978, Ebadi said he was discharged from his position as assistant dean of engineering at Kabul University.

Another reason for his dismissal was due to a major difference in philosophy.

"My ideology was not acceptable to them," Ebadi said. "I believe in religion and to them religion is something not acceptable. I did not agree with some of the things they were doing at the university level."

One of the changes Ebadi said he differed with was a curriculum change which stressed the teachings of Marxism and Leninism. But the bottom line for Ebadi was the Russians' presence in his country.

"More than anything else they had invaded our country," Ebadi said. "They were killing our people, destroying our villages. I couldn't sit idle. With that kind of situation they realized I was somebody they wanted to get rid of."

Ebadi said he was at first hesitant to leave because of lack of opportunity and his responsibility to his family. Finally, he said, he couldn't wait any longer.

Word had come to him through former classmates, who were acting as interpreters for an increasing number of Soviet advisers, that he was at the top of the Russians' list, Ebadi said.

After talking with his family, Ebadi said it was realized his presence was putting his family in danger.

Opportunity for Ebadi to leave came November of 1981 when UNESCO sponsored a seminar in Sri Lanka, a tiny island country off the tip of India. Ebadi said a major factor in being able to attend the seminar concerning technological education was that he was the only person at the university qualified to attend.

"I played it very low-key in getting the passport without letting the high-ranking officials of the government know," Ebadi said. "I managed to get passports through the help of low-level officials. They were not Communist Party members and they were sympathetic."

On Nov. 28, 1981, Ebadi said goodbye to his wife, who would later have twins, and three children — and hasn't talked to them since.

After the conference, Ebadi said he escaped to India where he applied for refugee status at the American Embassy in New Delhi. After being granted refugee status, Ebadi returned to Indiana University where he taught until January 1983. At that time, he joined the College of Business Administration faculty.

His family remained in Kabul awaiting a chance to leave. Ebadi said he received word in the summer of 1982 that an attempt by his family to leave the country had ended in failure.

Then in September, Ebadi said he received word from his brother-in-law in Peshawar, Pakistan, a small city near the Afghanistan-Pakistan border, that his wife and children had escaped the country by traveling with Afghan freedom fighters through the mountainous terrain.

With help from William Richter, professor of political science, Ebadi was able to get the necessary papers to allow his family into the United States.

Richter said he and Naomi Lynn, head of the political science department, contacted Kansas Sen. Nancy Kassabaum and Second District Congressman Jim Slattery to help with the immigration paperwork for Ebadi's family.

Currently, Ebadi is awaiting the processing of his own papers that would allow him to travel to Pakistan and bring his family back to the United States. Because his children are so small and his non-English speaking wife has never been out of the country, Ebadi said traveling alone would be extremely difficult if not impossible for them.

State may expand laws on conflict of interest

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A legislative committee Wednesday approved a proposal to expand the state's conflict of interest laws to prohibit the spouses of public officials and state employees from participating in any contracts funded by the state.

The Special Committee on Conflict of Interest and Ethics also recommended the 1984 Kansas Legislature consider a proposal to require the spouses of elected public officials, and spouses of state employees making at least $25,000 annually, to file substantial interest statements under some circumstances.

The committee is considering ways of tightening up Kansas' ethics laws in the aftermath of First Lady Karen Carlin's fundraising activities on behalf of a state tourism film.

"Basically, we want a flat prohibition on state employees, public officials and their spouses from participating in contracts funded by the state," said Rep. Robert Frey,

R-Liberal and chairman of the committee. "The committee feels there should be absolutely no participation or direct benefit by a state official or employee from a contract financed by the state."

"Currently, state law exempts a person if they file a disclosure statement listing the involvement in the contract."

The bill also prohibits any legislator from going to work for any person or business that has a contract with the state for at least one year after leaving the Legislature.

Rep. Vic Miller, D-Topeka, objected to spouses of state officials and employees being involved in state contracts for such things as professional architectural, engineering and attorney services. He said a spouse's involvement had a direct benefit on state officials' family income and that was unacceptable.

Rep. David Miller, R-Eudora, tried to strip the bill of its provisions barring the spousal involvement in contracts.

Notice

Today and Friday are the final days students may have their portraits taken for the Royal Purple yearbook in Union 209. Sitings may still be purchased in Kedzie 103.

